Dad Pays $250,000, Kidnaped Boy Free

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. (AP) — The 11-year-old son of a financier was kidnaped from his bedroom Monday morning but returned to his home today, unharmed, after the family paid $250,000 ransom.

The boy, Kenneth Young, was taken from his home in a car parked in a garage in Beverly Hills and taken to a San Francisco suburb.

He was held a half hour, according to the kidnappers' instructions, then wiggled free and ran to an apartment house to telephone his parents.

His father, Herbert J. Young, 53, said $250,000 ransom was asked but did not disclose how much was paid. The FBI in Washington said it was $250,000.

The father is president of the Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association.

The FBI said the kidnappers picked up the ransom Wednesday in Westwood, a few miles from Beverly Hills and were a large.

When he was greeted by the FBI and his family at the apartment, "Kenny was very calm, not hysterical or crying," Young said. "He said, 'I'm sorry I'm awfully sleepy.' He acted as if he expected it to end all the time. It was like he'd never been gone."

As Kenneth was examined by a doctor and put to bed in the lavish Young home in a fashionable neighborhood, his father said.

Space Craft Circling in Wrong Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A $4-million satellite launched from the wrong orbit today, its mission ruined by a misfiring rocket engine.

The "daddy longlegs" satellite, officially called Application Technology Satellite 2, rode an Alta-Agena rocket into space Wednesday night from Cape Kennedy.

The Agena upper stage hurried the satellite into a 1,000-mile preliminary orbit ranging from 154 to 7,000 miles high, but after it fired a fuel valve failed to close.

With the valve open, the engine could not ignite to boost the payload into a 7,000-mile-high circular orbit and it continued in the long elliptical path.

The ATS separated and deployed six long stabilization booms that gave it the appearance of a giant spider.

The booms, extending to a span of 200 feet, were part of an experiment to use the structure as a means of keeping

Reds Assist 200 To Flee Viet Jail

SAIGON, (AP) — Communist Marines plus the Vietnamese 1st Division and militia troops, in a Viet Cong military position, staged a jailbreak today at Quang Tri, a provincial capital in the south.

The Viet Cong regulars in the province and just to the north above the 17th Parallel, they made a serious effort to move into the province in strength last year and are known to train for a propaganda victory there.

Most of the fighting in Quang Tri has been done by North Vietnamese regulars and the Viet Cong guerrilla units there are backed with North Vietnamese advisers' compound.

How many Reds were involved in the attacks early today is not known.

LBJ Names Abrams Westmoreland Aide

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Johnson announced today the assignment of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams Jr., the Army's top commander in Vietnam, as Westmoreland's former deputy.

Abrams, who has more combat command experience than any other general officer in the Army, will be deputy to the top commander in the war area.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, both Pentagon and White House officials emphasized that there was no plan for Abrams to succeed Westmoreland, a West Point classmate.

Abrams, 52, is a much-decorated officer who led a tank force that broke the siege of Da Nang during the Battle of the Bulge in World War II. He also served in the Korean War.

The assignment of Abrams was in line with Johnson's policy last month to keep Abrams out of Vietnam.

In 1962 and 1963 Abrams supervised federal troops in Mississippi and Alabama to break up racial demonstrations.

Sheinwold on Bridge HELP YOUR PARTNER SOLVE HIS PROBLEMS

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
In some hands the defense is a delicate matter. In that case East makes the defense easier rather than present a problem to the unfortunate partner across the table from you.

Opening lead—ace of hearts. When South's hand was played by a few thousand students last month in the annual inter-collegiate championships, West usually opened the ace of hearts and continued with a heart to the king. Now East was in trouble.

It was possible that South had made the contract by returning a heart at once in the hope that West would get two trump tricks.

Whenever East did so South made the contract by returning a heart at once in the hope that West would get two trump tricks.

$5,000 Campaign Ceiling Major Dilemma for House

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a hard-fought campaign in northern Virginia's 3rd Congressional District, Republican Rep. Joel T. Brogghini spent $10,000 winning reelection. Democratic challenger Clive DuVal spent $12,000 in a losing effort.

Yet federal law says House candidates can't spend more than $5,000. Senate candidates are limited to $25,000.

Where does that put Brogghini and DuVal? Right in the middle of the large number of candidates who have found it hard to run for Congress without breaking the federal "Corrupt Practices" Act.

The race between Brogghini and DuVal was typical of hard-fought — and free-spending — 1966 House campaigns in urban areas.

A survey of campaign law reports required by law showed today that most candidates spend far more than $5,000 in their campaign.

Wilson said he favored an overhaul of the campaign financing law to raise spending ceilings to "realistic" levels and to provide for reporting that shows the actual cost.

BY DOMS BEADING

When poultry is abundant and low in cost, Mrs. Paul Jacobsen of 28 Hillside Manor Ave., Vernon, often includes Chicken and Broccoli Casserole in her menus. For company dinners or luncheons sometimes served in cream dressing with homemade Ice Cream Wafers.

Chicken-Broccoli Casserole
 1 pound fresh or 2 packages frozen broccoli, cooked and drained
 2 cups medium white sauce
 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
 2 1/2 cups cooked chicken, sliced
 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
 1/4 cup crushed cereal flakes

Add lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce to white sauce. Arrange chicken on greased and shallow two-quart casserole or oblong baking dish; arrange broccoli on top of chicken and sprinkle with half of the cheese. Pour white sauce over chicken and broccoli; top with remaining cheese mixed with cereal flakes crumbs. Bake in 350-degree oven for 25 minutes until well heated and lightly browned.

Ice Cream Wafers
 1/2 cup vegetable shortening or butter
 1 cup sugar
 1 egg well beaten
 1/2 cup flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Blend shortening with sugar and mix until light and creamy; add beaten egg, stir in sifted flour and salt. Beat batter vigorously and mix in vanilla. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased cookie sheet. Do not place batter too close together. Bake at 350 degrees on each cookie and flatten. Bake in 225-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Bobby, LBJ Tangle Again; Campaign Fund Law Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy again are clashing this time over the White House-backed presidential election campaign financing law.

Kennedy called Tuesday for repeal of the law enacted by Congress last year, saying it would give "massive amounts of funds in a dangerous and unrestricted way to the national leadership of the two major political parties."

Although the New York Democrat named no names, his remarks seemed directed at least partially at Johnson — particularly since Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said Tuesday the White House "was calling all over the United States during the Easter recess" seeking votes to prevent repeal of the plan. Johnson had endorsed the plan last year.

The current law would provide up to $30 million to each major political party in 1968, with the money coming from income tax payments. It allows each taxpayer specifically to deduct $1 of his income levy to a fund to be split between the parties.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., author of the measure, has suggested amending it this year to eliminate the taxpayer "check-off" system and substitute a system of direct contributions to the major parties.

But Gore is leading a drive to repeal the measure altogether. He is trying to tack his repeal amendment onto a bill restoring tax breaks to business.

Kennedy, attacking Long's proposed amendment as "a monster," said "it could lead to destruction of our local political parties and their domination from Washington."

He suggested national leaders could withhold funds generated by the measure from states whose leadership refused to do so.

Further spotlighting Kennedy's clash with the administration was a letter to Long urging defeat of Gore's amending legislation by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler.

As the Senate headed for a possible showdown today on the campaign financing issue, the House Foreign Affairs Committee opened its hearings on Johnson's request for $1.1 billion in foreign aid for the year beginning July 1.

Some committee members predicted the President's aid

Single Houses Not Being Seen By Inspectors

Town Manager Robert Weiss

inspected about the town's Building Code inspection policy, said that only rental units were being inspected at present, and not single-family units, unless a complaint is received.

He said that, under a policy established last summer, inspectors do not enter a dwelling if an objection is registered. His explanation followed a question by Town Director John Garande, who said that he has had complaints from the public on Housing Code inspections.

Weiss said that the program is basically educational, and not "enforcing."

He explained that the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development required Housing Code enforcement programs in cities and towns which receive federal grants for such projects as redevelopment and housing for the elderly, among many others.

The requirement, he said, guarantees that no new situations will develop even while the federal funds are being used to clear blight areas.

He asked the directors to refer to him all requests from town residents who do not wish their properties inspected. He promised to honor all requests.

However, he asked the property owners to cooperate with the inspections, saying that many necessary improvements have resulted from the program.

30 Expected At Workshop On Retarded

About 30 Connecticut high school and college specialists in the education of mentally retarded children are expected to attend an all-day meeting at the Manchester Sheltered Workshop on School St. Wednesday.

The meeting, originally scheduled for March 7, but postponed because of snow, is being sponsored by workshop personnel in cooperation with the State Department of Education's Bureau of Pupils Personnel and Special Educational Services.

In charge of arrangements are Norman Fendell, workshop director and Joseph Lavender, bureau consultant.

The session will begin at 9:45 a.m. with coffee and donuts followed by an hour tour of the workshop, which provides occupational training for adult retarded.

Fendell, Raymond Thompson, workshop manager, and Joseph Lavender, supervisor, will conduct a question period after the tour. Mrs. Jean McElroy, a supervisor, will discuss work to be done at the workshop.

After luncheon at Benne Junior High School, David Dawson and Gabriel Simchen, consultants for the state education department, will discuss new legislation and regulations on the emotionally disturbed, socially maladjusted and perceptually handicapped children.

Regulations requiring all public schools in Connecticut to begin offering special services for these children will take effect in September.

television was undoubtedly the television scoop of the year.
 First, CBS presented Chet Huntley and David Huntley together, off the air, as they were to be together on their nightly NBC news program.
 While CBS had Huntley, it interviewed Huntley about the comments Walter Cronkite, the CBS news chief, had made about Huntley for his failure to join the rest of the national commentators on strike.
 Finally, CBS completed its masterpiece by using its tremendous resources to find Cronkite somewhere, get him before its cameras, and interview him about what Huntley had said about Cronkite.
 The compositional ingredients of this greatest of all television news scoops were, to repeat, Huntley, Cronkite and Cronkite. The newscasters were the news.
 There are, occasionally, times when one news medium must be modest, and this seems to us, in one of them. The newspaper still has to get along primarily with the facts and opinions it can get. It does not often, except in exciting movies or in occasional television fiction, find itself in one happening, it one here, the other there, we are afraid, — perhaps content—brings the news.

Hoops!
 It is not on record that there was ever very much fun had rolling a hoop. Perhaps that is why the hoop, never graduated into anything useful for mankind.
 April, when the wind is blowing the dirt lanes gradually dry, and when the whole world is alive with the tumult of things running, and the hoop is the hoop. And in the days when there were hoops, and boys to run with them, the hoop came not from any store, but off some barrel. They could be of steel or wood, and the prod with which one ran and steered them could be of either material. The metal combination was the more musical, and we doubt that, for all the modern oddities of concussion, more purely musical tone than the ascending whistle of metal good on metal hoop as they picked up speed on a good level run.
 The steel combination could make music; the wood on wood produced a sound that was a low, steady, peaceful humming, of some tone always about to begin but never brought to the definition of an opening note. The steel combo called to others to come and join in the race; the wood note contained philosopher who was willing to be lonely on a long run down a lane.
 It has been the policy which has chosen to make a military ally out of one half of Germany at the expense of German unity. It has been the policy which preferred to line everything up in readiness for the next war rather than make the peace which should have followed the war just finished.
 The historical debate about whether this was ever necessary, even in the most naked kind of power politics, is just beginning to warm up, and the world which has for 20 years been instinctively obedient to the Churchill "iron curtain" speech in Moscow has now begun to wonder whether the menace of which he warned would the greater share of its size to plans in Moscow or to the fears in our own heads.
 Whether we ever needed such a thing as NATO has, however, become almost strictly an academic question. The creation of NATO confirmed and stimulated the cold war which was its own supposed premise; it dictated that continued division; it dictated that continued the shape of cold war whichever really came first, the cold war or Fulton and NATO, the cold war has had them inspiring and nourishing and continuing one another.
 That has been the story for 20 years. Lately, history, and realities, and new power politics distractions elsewhere have begun to warn that the story has just about played itself out. Both the United States and Russia find themselves facing sharper power politics challenges elsewhere. Both Europe and Germany have been growing more and more disloyal to the concept that they must keep themselves divided forever. The historical necessity is, perhaps, for getting rid of NATO and letting Europe and Germany resume some kind of natural shape. But the theory and the superficially conditioned reflexes of 20 years still cling to the empty shell of NATO, as if it were something sacred and necessary which must still be beyond change or question.
 Originally, one supposes, the present trip of Vice President Humphrey was designed to provide some sort of god-handed, quick-tongued assurance to those people in Europe who do not know how to give up the NATO myth that we have no intention of giving it up, either. The myth, he was supposed to keep reassuring them, is still real.
 But the fact that neither Europe nor the United States still really believe in the terms and assumptions of the past has been illustrated, at every Humphrey stop, by the fact that both his and his hosts have talked more about the harsh reality of the present and the future—Vietnam—than they have about the nagging and also apparently unsolvable problem of how to end their life of mutual pretense in Europe.

Mission To An Unreality
 A few days ago, C. L. Sulzberger, in his New York Times column, reminisced about the beginning days of NATO. One of the things he recalled most vividly was the day in 1961, when Dwight D. Eisenhower, already holding the position of top Allied commander in Europe, suddenly changed his own personal policy position and came around to open support of that theme of Western European military and political unity which his own subsequent administration and its successors have since been loyal.
 This was, if hindsight may be ventured, another of those instances in which Eisenhower, after arriving at a sound and intelligent position out of his own thinking and his own instincts, abandoned his own soundness and his own intelligence and settled for a concoction of lesser but more persistent minds.
 For the American policy in Europe to which Eisenhower finally became the obedient convert has been, of course, the policy which made inevitable the partition of Germany, and the policy which has kept Europe divided.
 It has been the policy which has chosen to make a military ally out of one half of Germany at the expense of German unity. It has been the policy which preferred to line everything up in readiness for the next war rather than make the peace which should have followed the war just finished.
 The historical debate about whether this was ever necessary, even in the most naked kind of power politics, is just beginning to warm up, and the world which has for 20 years been instinctively obedient to the Churchill "iron curtain" speech in Moscow has now begun to wonder whether the menace of which he warned would the greater share of its size to plans in Moscow or to the fears in our own heads.
 Whether we ever needed such a thing as NATO has, however, become almost strictly an academic question. The creation of NATO confirmed and stimulated the cold war which was its own supposed premise; it dictated that continued division; it dictated that continued the shape of cold war whichever really came first, the cold war or Fulton and NATO, the cold war has had them inspiring and nourishing and continuing one another.
 That has been the story for 20 years. Lately, history, and realities, and new power politics distractions elsewhere have begun to warn that the story has just about played itself out. Inside Report
 LANSING, Mich.—Just when his Presidential prospects can least afford it, Governor George Romney is facing serious trouble on his homefront that dwarfs anything encountered during his four previous years in office.
 What Romney confronts today has, in fact, destroyed the political future of many a governor. Fiscal crisis. He lost the first battle in his most fiscal war last week—and lost it badly. The Republican-controlled state Senate rejected, 25 to 14, Romney's tax reform package (levying a new 2.5 per cent income tax).
 That defeat in itself scarcely affects Romney's chances for the Republican Presidential nomination. But unless some tax plan is adopted by July 1, the state will enter the new fiscal year with an uncontrollable deficit around $220 million. At worst, that would threaten payoffs to state government. At the least, it would mean protracted conflict in Lansing. Either condition could be disastrous for Romney.
 Moreover, chances that Romney will get his tax plan through now seem somewhat less than ever. That explains the gloom suddenly enveloping the Governor's office.
 Running a high-level after the Senate vote, a Romney cabinet member told us ruefully: "I wonder if anyone outside of a large industrial state can run for President any more."
 On a mechanical level, the need to be in Lansing fighting fiscal wars disrupts Romney's gradually succeeding campaign. His scheduled trip to South America in May (the first of three contemplated overseas journeys) may be postponed.
 But far more important is what will happen to the Romney image if the Senate defeat in Lansing is followed by a similar one in the state. In response to past criticism of Romney's fumbling on Vietnam, his supporters will rush up to the local pro (rabbi) and ask him urgently, "Please tell me! What little things am I doing wrong so that I can correct them?" and then rush out to put into practice the advice he gives them.
 People who are capable of such mistakes on the golf course should have no trouble transposing these same attitudes to the home, the temple, and the office. "Fore!"—RABBI ISRAEL GERBER IN THE NEWSLETTER OF TEMPLE BETH EL IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.

 Huber, leader of right-wing forces in Romney's own Oakland County. That combination of unadmitted Democratic opposition and Republican defectors defeated him in the Senate last week.
 More enlightened Democrats say they will support tax reform if Romney makes concessions such as shifting more of the income tax burden to business more Republicans than it gains him Democrats. Thus Romney for now will continue to concentrate on making Republican support—turning next to the House, controlled 55 to 34 by Republicans.
 But optimism is in short supply. One key political adviser privately urged that Romney try to return Robert J. McIntosh to the job of legislative liaison, who performed masterfully during the Democratic-controlled legislature of 1965-66. Once intended to run Romney's campaign for President, ex-Congressman McIntosh is 75.

Connecticut Yankee
 By A.H.O.

The lady wore the atmosphere of an average, ordinary person who was finding her feet in an involved in an improbable adventure. During the long process of time during which the legislative committee on Public Utilities was hearing testimony about the long list of bills which preceded the one she was interested in, she sat brightly and eagerly, obviously conscious of her own prospective dating, obviously suffering and triumphing vicariously with the up and down performance of the committee, microphone.
 Finally, after something like an hour during which the committee and Connecticut seemed in some imminent danger of having a whole network of pipelines explode under them, the committee came to the bill which had brought the lady to the scene. The defunct was, indeed, that House Bill 5025, an "Act Concerning The Jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission over Certain Private Water Companies," had been introduced by her, and by the representative whose district includes the Eastern Connecticut town of Winook.
 House Bill 5025 would have the effect of placing the jurisdiction and regulation of the Public Utilities Commission over the state's water supply, at which any resident of the state has a right to appear, in a private possession, even though it is also its long hours of tedious, even though it seems a very heavy burden on the time and energy of our legislators.
 "When she could this woman go and find herself entitled to a hearing for her story? For her, as it has been for other individuals and causes of infinitely various weight and merit over the years, the legislative committee hearing was the only forum where Mother Connecticut had to be sure to her speak and advance her cause for what it might prove to be worth.
 "Creative Living"
 Laurence Sterne once said: "The four duties of man are to build a house, to plant a tree, to write a book, and to have a son."
 This is just one man's way of saying that a person is meant to be creative; he is meant to share in the Creation of God, of which he is a part. "To build a house" means that a person is meant to add something of family life; "to plant a tree" means that a person is expected to add something of beauty to the created order; "to write a book" means that a person is expected to discover and describe some new truth for the education and edification of his fellowmen; and, "to have a son" means that we are expected to contribute to the ongoing life of the world.
 Obviously, we cannot all, literally, do all four of these things; but surely there is not one of us who cannot make some kind of creative contribution. We become creative when we have in our lives something of God's love for people, and for the world; when we begin to see the hidden possibilities in people around us; when I have the desire to share God's redemptive purpose for them; when I am willing to wait for God's guidance as I work, and pray and hope.

9 Railroads Fined $127,500 For Delaying Mail Delivery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department has fined nine railroads $127,500 for delaying mail delivery by regional offices and records were not kept in Washington. The operation now is handled at Post Office headquarters.

The fines range from $12,500 against the Chicago & Eastern Illinois to $35,000 against the New York Central. The latest fine was $20,000 against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy.

A Post Office official said the fines were imposed after the department decided to "take a closer look at train schedules" in an effort to find out whether late arriving passenger trains were slowing mail deliveries.

The official was unable to say if the fines would be imposed on other railroads.

Budget Hearing Orderly, Concern Shown over Tax

By SOL R. COHEN

By all comparisons with hearings of previous years, last night's public hearing on the town budget was a quiet, orderly, subdued affair, sometimes, dull session.

But the concern expressed by the 23 persons who spoke at the hearing was not less than that of previous years.

The session, at 11:30 p.m. at the Junior High School, attracted approximately 200 persons, about 50 of whom were municipal and school department heads and employees, and about 100 of whom were members of the newly-formed Manchester Property Owners Protective Association (MPOPA).

The speeches ranged in length from the 22 minutes taken by Dr. A. B. Moran to the 30 seconds needed by Mrs. Leon Bolton.

The orderly tempo of last night's hearing can be attributed to Mayor Nathan Agostinelli, who, at the very start, announced his ground rules. He addressed to them, and the meeting never got out of hand.

He announced that he would not tolerate any personal attacks. If there were any, he said, the speaker would be warned and, if he persisted, would be silenced.

Agostinelli warned only two speakers in the four-hour session — one was Wilbur Little, president of the MPOPA, when it appeared that he was about to probe into what he called "working conditions"; the other was Frank Lupien, when he spoke of the "MPOPA's" plan to sue the town for a $100,000 settlement.

He warned, "If this spending continues, your increased future tax bills will be your own fault. The plan of setting up a regional government."

Two main criticisms and one principal suggestion were repeated many times last night. One was that the town was repeatedly criticized for abandoning a January and said that while showing an indication that he would hold the budget to a five per cent increase over the current budget.

He accused the department heads of showing no respect for the budget.

Atty. Dominic Squatrito, chairman of the Action Commission for the Aging and, at the same time, a member, made a strong plea for retention of a $12,400 item for senior citizens activities.

"Let's make our Senior Citizens Center an Action Center," he pleaded.

Squatrito spent considerable time listing the possible activities for the aging and over group, including "Meals on Wheels."

He was interrupted at one point by Charles Riegel, who requested, "Will the speaker please limit his remarks to the budget?"

Mayor Agostinelli ruled Riegel out of order and permitted Squatrito to continue.

Lupien, who spoke next, pleaded, "Put the brakes on this spending, or the retired citizens will have to take a job to pay his tax bill."

He too reminded the directors of the January proposal to hold the line at a five per cent increase and be hit the proposal for an $8,000 assistant town planner.

He received a proposal for a "huge raise and high salary for the town planner, (Joseph Tamm) who is not even a town resident."

Applause greeted his next remark, "Let him devote his full efforts to his job in Manchester, or let him terminate his services and be on his own."

College Use of High School Costs $20,000 Study Shows

Preliminary study indicates gym and pool. It also has its own office.

Some costs for maintenance and miscellaneous supplies remain to be figured and have not been included in the total estimate.

Rogers noted that the continuing joint building use by the college will put considerable wear and tear on the physical plant and that the informal agreements that have existed during the past years of operation are not adequate to mitigate the stress and strain.

In order to determine areas of responsibility and to establish a set of guidelines and operating procedures for use of the building in eight separate categories in a "reasonable capacity."

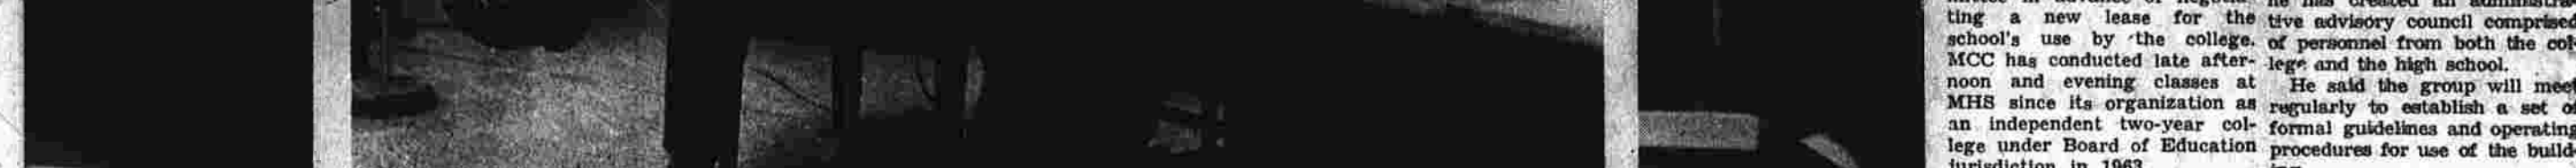

He noted that 650 additional students in the Manchester Adult Education program, sponsored by the town, are also currently using the building.

Because of confusion resulting during the time after the high school day ends at 3:30 p.m. and before college classes begin at 3:30, Rogers recommended that the college start its classes at 3:30 p.m. and move up to 4 p.m.

Other recommendations relate to easing parking and maintenance problems, tightening building security and lessening conflicts among the facilities arising from joint use of the same rooms.

To make long-term cleaning and maintenance easier, the principal is urging that the high school and college vacation schedules be coordinated.

Because of a series of uncertainties and delays concerning the high school's own campus, President Love has predicted it may have to continue using the high school four more years.

Frank Lupien gives chalk talk of the effect of Town Manager Weis's budget on individual tax payments.

Hayden Recalls Debate Before War Declaration

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fifty years ago today the United States entered World War I — called the Great War until a greater one came along — and stepped toward a role in world leadership.

SEN. CARL HAYDEN

On that day, Lyndon B. Johnson was an 8-year-old in a Texas hamlet. Hubert H. Humphrey, 6, was learning his ABC's in Wallace, E. D. Robert F. Kennedy was not born until some eight years later.

But there is one man who was in Congress when war was declared April 6, 1917 who is still here — Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz. He'll be 90 next fall.

Hayden came to the House in 1915 on admission of Arizona as a state. He served there until elected to the Senate in 1926.

In a year anniversary interview, Hayden recalled long hours of debate before the House passed the war resolution 378 to 50 in the early morning hours of April 6.

But of that was said, Hayden related, "I remember most distinctly the remarks of Jeanette Rankin, the lady from Montana."

Miss Rankin, a Republican and the first woman elected to the House, did not respond until her name had been called four times on the roll call.

"Three members joined before (President) Woodrow Wilson issued an executive order to prohibit any more of us from joining," Hayden continued.

"By the middle of 1918, when this ban had kind of been forgotten, four of us went down and enlisted and served until after the armistice."

He named the other three as retired Judge Marvin Jones of New Mexico.

Among the first U. S. actions were seizures of 91 German ships interested in American ports and the arrest of dozens of suspected German spies.

calmly described the abduction and the ransom payment. Police theorized that Kenneth was kidnaped as he slept by someone who knew that an outside state case on the large white house led to a glass door near the boy's bedroom.

"The next call was about 3 a.m. Kenny was on the phone and said he had been drugged with three sleeping pills and was in a man's apartment in Santa Monica. Then a man named to the phone and said, 'I have your son here; he's fine, but he's tired.'"

Young did not disclose how many abductors his son described. He said Kenneth would return on Monday to his fifth grade classes at Beverly Hills elementary school.

"As soon as we read that note, my wife and I agreed that the thing to do was to call the police immediately," Young recalled. The family and authorities maintained the secret while scores of policemen and FBI agents went to work.

"I had half a dozen phone calls Monday but the party at the other end never spoke to me," he said. "Last night I did as the letter said and drove to the phone booth. The call came at 8 p.m. and the man said, 'are you Herbert?'"

"He spoke in a slow, soft voice. He sounded very intelligent. I then drove to the gas station and waited beside my car. About 45 minutes later a white Chevy Impala slowed down right in front of the station. The individual motioned me to follow him."

"He had his left hand free but his right hand was in his jacket. I didn't know if he was armed. I gave him the bag. Then I came back to the car."

"I followed the man's car to a clear gravel area. The man asked for the bag."

(Continued from Page One) day was not immediately known. The attacks centered on the provincial capital which is near the coast and about a dozen miles north of Hue. There are few U. S. Marine units in the immediate area.

The U. S. command in Saigon reported all-weather jets from the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise carried the war deep into North Vietnam Wednesday with a raid on the country's most modern power plant only 20 miles from Hanoi.

Returning pilots reported the Communist ground fire was so heavy it lit up the low-hanging clouds and the speedy jets as they made their bomb runs.

The power plant raided was the thermal station at Bac Giang, rated the newest power station in North Vietnam. It was the seventh time it has been hit since it was cleared for bombing by Washington on Feb. 24.

Pilots of the all-weather Intruders said they "walked" their 500-pound bombs over the station and reported target coverage excellent despite what one pilot called "a hailstorm of enemy fire."

There were no U.S. losses reported, however.

Vernon Article Sparked Mothers' Corps

The block mothers program of the Skinner Road School PTO was formed from an idea in a magazine. The purpose is to protect children on their way home from school.

The PTO approved the program last November and a committee was formed and given money to go ahead, according to Mrs. Hilda Meher, president of the PTO.

Finally, by mid-March, there were 33 mothers with bright orange flags on their lawns all along the major routes to and from the Skinner Road School.

When two kindergarten children were stopped by a stranger earlier this year, PTO members were frightened. But no one knew what to do.

Mrs. Meher said she remembered an article in the Sunday paper "Parents' Desires" describing a block mother program in the Midwest. She introduced the idea to the PTO.

Mrs. Meher stressed that the block mothers, in case of emergency, provide a place to go for the children.

The PTO members made flag stands from paint cans, cement and poles. They wanted them to be flexible.

The bright orange flags are weather proof and are a donation.

Mrs. Martin's safety program has involved more than the block mothers.

She has looked into local laws, contacted police, had fire lines put down and generally watched out for all types of hazards the children might encounter.

There are 33 mothers who are ready for emergencies every school day, morning and afternoon. For each mother, there is an alternate.

The homes are picked for their positions and availability of telephone. The flag stands are portable for easy switching to homes of the alternates.

Nothing has happened to any of the children since mothers put out their flags, Mrs. Meher notes.

She has worked as a chief medical record librarian at Southside Community Hospital in Farmville, Va., and the Veterans Home and Hospital in Rocky Hill.

Health Panelist
Dr. Jefferson McAlpine, psychiatrist and superintendent of Hartford's McCook Hospital, will serve as a panel member at a discussion of community mental health problems at Rockville Methodist Church on Grove St. at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Panel moderator will be Dr. Joseph Kristian, Vernon health officer. Other panel members will be Miss Ruth Hoy, supervisor of nurses of the Rockville Public Health Nursing Association, and Miss Beverly Cochran, head social worker for the Vernon school system.

A member of the Vernon police department also will be on the panel.

The discussion is open to the public and coffee will be served.

New Fire Warden
Vernon Fire Chief Joseph H. Driffin has announced that the new fire warden is G. Nelson Skinner.

People wishing to do any open outside burning may obtain permits by calling any fire warden number listed in the phone book.

Chief Driffin asks that no requests for fire permits be made through the police department or on the fire emergency phone. The calls will only be referred back to the fire warden.

"Any person who does not get burning permit is subject to arrest and a fine. All trash barrels and outside fireplaces must have a screened cover before burning."

Verbal Pact Ends Strike Of Operators

At the Hamden quarters of the Connecticut local of the International Union of Operating Engineers, a spokesman said the negotiations with representatives of the industry groups were successful and that "the strike is settled."

Further details of the agreement were not disclosed.

Flickets at various projects were withdrawn soon after word of the agreement got around.

The old wage scales for equipment operators were said to range from $4.10 to $5.25 an hour.

Frank White, executive vice president of the Connecticut chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC), said a marathon negotiation session ended at 4:30 a.m. with a verbal agreement.

The strike was against the AGC and the New England Road Builders Association.

Work at most of the large construction and highway building projects in the state, as well as at sand, gravel and concrete companies, had been halted by the strike.

LIU Students Apprehended in Narcotics Raid

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Ten Long Island University students and a 25-year-old Nassau, N.Y., man were arrested early today in narcotics raids that turned up quantities of LSD and other drugs.

Some of the raids by 12 two-man police teams were made on the Southampton campus of the university. Others were on motels and private homes where the students were rooming.

Three of the youths were from Manhattan, one from Queens, one from Yonkers and the other from Long Island.

Two autos were impounded. The confiscated drugs were listed as hashish, marijuana and the hallucinatory drugs LSD and DMT.

The raids were conducted by Suffolk County detectives and Southampton town police. They dubbed the crackdown "Operation Sigma Pot."

Children cannot obtain equal education and opportunities when both students and schools are separated by racial and social class differences, a Hartford school principal said last night.

This was the core of an hour-long speech by John J. Glennon, principal of Brackett-Northeast High School, before a packed enrollment in 99 per cent Negro.

Glennon, principal of the North End school, said that about 40 Waddell School PTA members that came to the school to hear Glennon's speech.

Glennon said that 95 per cent of the parents of students in his school are on welfare, and at least two-thirds of the students come from broken homes.

These are the obstacles which prevent students from getting the best education possible, he explained.

"We have everything to make for a good educational program," said Glennon who holds a master's degree from Columbia University.

"I don't know of any school in Hartford County that has a better staff or educational facilities than we have," he said.

The school's enrollment, now between 1750 and 1800, has grown from 28 per cent Negro in 1945, to its present 99 per cent, he said.

Glennon conceded that he has a discipline problem but he is not as "tense" as "those board junks." He added, "Sometimes I think I'm a warden rather than a principal."

Glennon said he didn't know what advantages students get from the bus ride to and from the school, but that "education is an all-encompassing thing."

The principal prefaced his speech, entitled "The Educational Gap," by quoting from a recent report from the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights which urged that federal government to rid schools of racial segregation.

The commission's report was included in another report by Medill Blair, Hartford Superintendent of Schools.

The commission's survey showed that both Negroes and whites suffer educational deprivation when raised in racially segregated schools.

Negroes who attend predominantly Negro schools do not learn as well as those who attend integrated schools, Glennon quoted the survey.

UConn Schools to Attempt Mock Trial Without Script

WEST HARTFORD — Students of law and theater are teaming up here to stage a "mock trial" this month which its creators believe may be unique in the realm of legal education and drama.

In laying the groundwork for the "trial," drama students at the University of Connecticut's Hartford Branch have nominated a fictitious fact situation which culminates in criminal prosecution of a medical secretary for tax evasion.

Some of the trial will be held at the state reimbursement court auditorium at the UConn School of Law, April 28 and 29 at 8 p.m.

The "situation" leading to the court case revolves around the secretary's failure to pay taxes on the provision. My students are very excited because they don't get a very much trial court experience in the classroom.

The legal educator also was pleased with the prospects that "the play will be video-taped and the students will be able to see their own performance in a student reporter who expresses the hope that it is the first of many plays to be jointly staged.

Assembly to Air Police Education Bills by Barry

The General Assembly's education committee will conduct public hearings tomorrow on two police education bills, both introduced by State Sen. David M. Barry.

The hearings will be at 10 a.m. in Room 408 of the State Capitol.

Senate Bill 1627 would authorize the state's common colleges to incorporate curriculum of law enforcement-related courses into their curricula. The bill carries a $20,000 recommended appropriation.

Senate Bill 1627 would require any member of a regular police force, state or local, to attend a community college, tuition free.

Manchester's patrolmen's association is backing both bills.

Principal Sees Good School Impossible in Integration

Tolland County Repko Asks Tax Break For Elderly

Connecticut residents 65 years of age and over who own their own homes would receive a $4,000 assessment exemption annually under a legislative bill submitted by State Senator Andrew Repko of the 5th District.

The towns would not experience any loss in property tax revenue because the bill provides for the state to reimburse towns and cities for income lost by the exemption.

Repko's bill does not put a ceiling on income or the assessment value of the home to qualify for the exemption.

Gov. John Dempsey has recommended a $1,000 exemption for those over 65 years of age, and a $2,000 exemption for those over 70 years of age qualifying for single home ownership and $3,000 for couples sharing a home.

The governor's proposal also guarantees the $1,000 exemption in most cases, need greater assistance in coping with the growth of local property taxes.

Repko pointed out, "Unless we give our proper help, many may be forced to sell their homes."

The Republican senator from Tolland County noted that 198,000 of the 370,000 residents in the 65-and-over category live in "owner-occupied homes."

A substantial number of senior citizens living in his 13-town district would benefit under his bill, Repko said.

Around the Grapefruit League

Earl Yost
HERALD SPORTS EDITOR
Today's Team—
Minnesota Twins

ORLANDO, Fla.—First 1965 and second in 1966, Minnesota's Twins hope that winter trades will bring the club back atop the pack in the coming American League race.

"The only man in the American League with a chance of hitting 60 or more home runs is Harmon Killebrew," Manager Sam Rice of the Twins reported when queried. "I don't think he will, but if he went up to the plate every time with his dog set on getting a home run or nothing, I think he could hit 60," he added.

Mele is well aware of the newspaper business, at least from a reporting standpoint. For a number of years he has been a columnist with the home town daily the Quincy Patriot-Leader.

"They used to call the column the Mele Ticker but now he's changed to Ank Mele. They run it three times a week. I answer all baseball questions," he told this well-known North-south visitor on his final day around the Grapefruit League.

"I just hope that we can put two good halves together this season," he added when asked about his permanent chances. "We got off slowly last year due to injuries and we didn't hit our stride until the last half of the season, but it was too late," he added.

Great Las Vegas Sunout New 'First' for Baseball

NEW YORK (AP)—It was former Dodger pitcher Billy Loos who once explained an error by claiming he had lost a ground ball in the sun, but that could hardly be said about the baseball world for the great Las Vegas sunout.

It happened Wednesday when the Chicago Cubs and California Angels were locked in a fierce exhibition struggle in the gambling capital of the world. The score was 10-10 and Angels pitcher Clark R. Landis came out to take a look. Landis agreed the situation was intolerable and called the game off.

Billy Williams batted in five runs for the Cubs, two each on a double in the 10th and 11th, and a three-run homer was the "big blow" in Houston's 10-3 victory over Los Angeles.

Paul Schaal and Jimmie Hall hit home runs for the Angels. Schaal's home run was the "big blow" in Houston's 10-3 victory over Los Angeles.

Clark called umpire Stan Landes to come out to take a look. Landes agreed the situation was intolerable and called the game off.

Detroit, Minnesota Given Best Chances of Upset

DETROIT, Minn.—The Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins are given the best chances of upsetting the New York Yankees in the first round of the American League playoffs.

The Yankees, who have won 103 games, are the favorite to win the pennant. The Tigers and Twins, who have won 95 and 94 games respectively, are considered the best chances of upsetting the Yankees.

The Yankees' pitching staff is considered the best in the league. The Tigers and Twins have strong batting lineups and are expected to be competitive in the playoffs.

Orioles Picked to Repeat, Boast Too Many Robinsons

BALTIMORE has too many Robinsons for the rest of the American League and should win the pennant in this year's season, according to a columnist.

The Orioles' pitching staff is considered the best in the league. The team has a strong batting lineup and is expected to be competitive in the playoffs.
