No Judges, No Show, No Title!

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)-After two hours of argument between organizers, contestants and parents, 17 beauty contestants folded up their formal gowns and bathing suits and went home yesterday.

Three other young women decided to stick with it. Dorothy Lee, an organizer, assured them they would be entered in the Miss Missouri and Miss Kansas finals at St. Louis in July.

The contest here was to have chosen a Miss Kansas City, a Miss Raytown-Independence and a Miss Johnson County, Mrs. Lee said she represented the Miss World and Miss International beauty pageants.

The contestants and 100 parents and relatives, who had paid $2 each to see the show, arrived, and waited for the ceremonies to start. No judges appeared, the organist failed to show up, there was no official photographer, and no master of CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)-Packing its own little shovel to plow the moon's soil and crack open lunar rocks, America's Surveyor 3 sailed through space today aiming to softly land Wednesday at a site chosen for U.S. astronauts.

The 10-foot-tall spacecraft most complex robot ever tossed toward the moon by the United States - blasted off at 2:05 a.m. EST today aboard an Atlas-Centaur rocket to begin a planned 65-hour, 237,000-mile trip.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said sensors aboard the craft successfully locked onto the sun. The sun and the star Canopus were to guide Surveyor 3 to the moon. The hookup with Canopus was

WHO GETS A KICK OUT OF LIFE He may not shoot in the seventies any more, but he can still teach his son a thing or two about golf-a lesson in sportsmanship and a lesson in just plain fun. He wants the boy to have all the good things in life. He is able to provide these now, but he knows that sometime in the future they may have to be provided by life insurance.

A few things you should know about the phone that was invented in 1974.

It comes in three economy sizes.

These are just some of the sizes Volkswagens come in. Regular, large and giant economy size.

The one on the right, our big bus-like box, and the one in the center, our medium sized Squareback sedan, are only about 7 inches longer than the beetle. Bet don't let their size on the outside fool you about their size in the inside. Just open a door and you'll find enough room for more than enough Then there's the familiar bug. While it's not as big as the other two Volkswagens, it has plenty of room for 4 people and a small dog. Plus a suitcase

All three Volkswagens do everything you expect from a Volkswagen. Except look silly. One of them (the Squareback) looks exactly like a car. They have aircooled engines in the rear that won't freeze up in the winter or boil over in

They won't use any anti-freeze and are very easy on gasoline. (The bug and the Squareback average about 27 miles on a gallon of gas. The box about 23 And they all go about 35 to 40,000

So you see, no matter what size we make VWs, they're all pretty economical. Why not come in and size one up?

The Cruel Absurdities Of War

The first thing to remember, in trying to achieve some perspective on those tragic incidents in Vietnam where we kill our allies, or innocent villagers, or our own men as the result of somebody's mistake in geography or computation, is that the same sort of thing has happened in other wars, but without instant publicity.

In other wars, such happenings were ironic memories the veterans brought home with them, to be related only when they compared notes with fellow

In the curious kind of savage but undeclared war we wage in Vietnam, the tragic mistakes-or at least most of them-hit the world news almost in-

So we know more, this time, about the cruel absurdities which are part of the game of war.

These absurdities in themselves are not new. What is new is that we know about them, while the war itself is still in progress. We are invited to make a udgment about them. We are invited to accept some degree of responsibility for

And it is also true that while we, the general public, are invited to form judgment on and accept some responsibility for such tragic mistakes, those who actually conduct the war for us are continually being put on some kind of spot. They must be asking themselves, in their more tender and civilized moments at least, whether there is anything practical they can do to decrease the likelihood of such incidents.

From all this circumstance so particular to this war, there arises the general question. It is the question of what this new experience and new invitation to some responsibility is doing to us as a people, both in our civilian and our war-making capacities.

The answer that seems to be developing is that we are not being very deeply stirred, and that we are hardening our hides.

We are all assuming that the same sort of thing is going to keep on happening. That is, perhaps, the big one certainty of the war.

Wednesday, an Air Force board of inquiry in Saigon announced that three officers were being fined and reprimanded for the biggest single bombing mistake of the war, that on March 2, when the peaceful mountain village of Langvel was hit, with casualties of at least 105 people killed and 200 wound-

Saturday, our bombers hit a South Vietnamese Army battalion in Bindinh Province, killing, according to the South Vietnamese, 41 of our allies, according to our own Air Force only 28, and wounding at least 50 seriously.

Sunday an American bomber hit Trucgiang, a provincial capital in the Mekong Delta, 50 miles south of Saigon, killing 14 civilians and wounding

There could be no part of the war more cruelly absurd than this, in which mistakes bring about the deaths of the people for whom we claim to be fighting, the deaths of people fighting at mir side, or, in other instances, the death of our own troops.

To the crucial question, that of what this experience is doing to all of us, the answer seems to be that we grow more and more resigned to it all. We may have some faint instinct to regard such events as unspeakable. But nobody except a few extremist peaceniks ever suggests that the tragedy and the absurdity involved are so reat that somebody really ought to ry to do something about it, like stop

After all, what real difference does It make whether, once a war has started, people get killed by intention or by

Our only real problem, for successful living in the world's present age and ircumstance, is to forget that we are suman beings. That is a large and trouome order, but we seem to be doing etter at it all the time.

True Even If Communist Says I

With all due deference to the special talents of the Communist propaganda ine, that Communist party official who spoke to some 400 students over at Trinity the other day had moments when he was close to the truth.

It takes no Communist, for instance, to alert many of us to the danger that, if this country does not solve the Negro problem, the Republic itself will be de-

That is a proposition which is almost as self-evident as anything else funda-. mental in our way of life. This nation is now confronted, in the problem of the relationship between its various internal groups, with a situation which goes down deep into its founding creed. We still live, one hundred years after the Civil War, with a cruel anachronistic failure to honor in practice our own best principles.

We cannot, as a nation, survive a continued failure to put our own house in civilized, moral, decent, human order. This is so deeply, fatally inevitable that it remains true even when a Communist says It.

We cannot shake the problem. We can merely try to answer it. If we have any choice, it is perhaps merely that of seeing who does most to give the problem the civilized kind of answer.

We cannot expect any certain percentage of our population to endure forever conditions and presumptions which the rest of us would find unspeakable and intolerable.

Practical Applied Biocybernetics

You must never allow modern highsounding scientific phraseology to discourage your natural ouriosity. Sometimes it may lead, after a momentary initial difficulty, to some great social boon, like, for instance, the instant banning of all the legion of deodorant commercials on television this

Begin, let us say, with cybernetics. Cybernetics is the science of automatic control and communication. Now progress to biocybernetics. Biocybernetics is the study of "biological control functions that operate without conscious awareness." Don't linger in admiration of the way one simple prefix coins a new word and a new meaning. Get inside biocybernetics.

The first law of biocybernetics save that the response of a biologic receptor to a stimulus is characterized by "unidirectional rate sensitivity." Don't leave us now. We are getting close to something understandable and important.

"Unidirectional" means in one direction only. If your sense of smell smells something, it smells only a one-way change in the intensity of the smell. Or, in the words of the high priest of vbernetics, a New York state scien tist named Dr. Manfred Clynes, "smell receptors respond only to smells and not to the absence of smells, and they respond only when a smell is introduced or intensified." If the smell stays the same, the small receptors adapt to it, and no longer no-

So, if those television commercials could only be forced to wait a few minutes, nobody would ever need a deodorant because, as soon as noses get used to smelling any particular smell, it always turns to roses.

> Beer Cans And Daffodils Now that spring's finally decided to arrive, it's coming in with a rush. The snow disappeared in the face of the warm sun and the warm wind with the comic speed of a turned-up movie film. All in the period of a couple of weeks we've gone from winter blizzard through March thaw, into spring floods, and out

Now it's the flowers' turn to catch up. Gold and purple crocuses spring from the ground and burst into bloom during a noon hour. The daffodils are snapping at their heels, crowding through with fat buds. They'll be lucky if they can hold onto more than a day or two for themselves. The tulips are right behind them, and they're in such a hurry they're threatening to pass out he hyacinths on the way. There's only one blooming that is rivaling the daffodils, and that's the blooming beer cans. We can't remem ber a year when there was such a tremendous mess of empties by the roadside. Perhaps it's because the snow covered it till now and the full magnitude of the crop burst upon us suddenly. If beer cans could be transformed into things of beauty this would be one of the most scenic communities in the state. If we could somehow convince ourselves of their decorative value we could give ourselves a special medal for beer-can beautification - stamped, no doubt in the shape of a canopener, or a

But beer cans aren't beautiful, and no changes in beer car design or in rainwashing are in sight to make them so. Such being the case, the meanest job of the season is collecting those mpties and dumping them somewhere where they'll do the least harm. It's a job for the Beautification Com mittee, for the service clubs, for youth groups, and for just plain citizens who are willing to clear the land along their borders even though, technically, it may belong to the city.

It's not a thankless task, either, For board, and finally by the Army. induction center none found every beer can picked up and disposed of, a daffodil somewhere will bloom the any evidence to epilepsy. finally, however, the Sur-

The most significant change was an insertion on page three serman. of the speech which committed Romney to the use of "military nouncing and President's visit force as necessary to reduce or cut off the flow of men and supplies from North Vietnam. Party leaders who wanted Romney to come out of the speech with an identifiable war position slightly to the left of President Johnson felt these words could be interpreted as a bid for more bombing in the North.

Some of Romney's own advisers also argued against adding these words. They were lifted from draft of a Republican Coordinating Committee recommendation issued last December, which established official party doctrine on the war.

The sudden immersion of Dr.

Martin Luther King in the anti-Vietnam movement, together with his implication that Negro youths are carrying more than their share of the fighting, caused immediate repercussions in the White House Oval Office. In a telephone conversation with a prominent Southern Governor within two days of Dr. King's seech in New York on April 4, President Johnson specifically asked if there were any cases on record of a draftage Negro being discriminated against by local draft boards. A quick check turned up the answer: Only one case, a Negro youth whose family claimed he was an epileptic. The youth's appeal for deferment on medical grounds had been carefully examined and turned down by the draft board, by a local medical appeal board, by the state appeal

The world around us is always changing, and so are we. It's the only way we can progress. That basically is what "repent" means: to change our thinking, for the better.
