Air Force pilots pressed their war against the Hanoi area with unrelenting fury today, bombing a key railway and highway bridge across the Red River four miles from the center of the North Vietnamese capital. The steel and concrete bridge carries the only rail line between Red China and the North Vietnamese capital, the U.S. Command said. U.S. spokesmen were unable to give an immediate assessment of damage to the bridge. They said it was a steel and concrete structure with five spans, 738 feet long and 20 feet wide, and with the center span is movable to allow passage of Othec Air Force raiders from Thailand made the second attack in two days of an electrical transformer site seven miles north of Hanoi. An Escalation Toward Russia The latest escalation in the war in Vietnam is not, as Senator Percy seemed to think in his remarks before the newspaper publishers in New York, headed primarily in the direction of Communist China. Senator Percy's theory was that if we bomb on the ground the planes the Russians have been sending to North Vietnam, this will force the North Vietnamese to move these planes into Communist China for safety, thus bringing closer the day when we will be engaged with China as well as with North

To Senator Percy, perhaps, the chief challenge in our new bombing policy thus seems to be logistic, a matter of

There is another phase of the new escalation which is, in our opinion, more powerful and more important. This is an escalation which is directed at Russia, even more directly than at either North Vietnam or Communist It is directed at Russia - this new bombing of the air fields on which the Russian-donated MIG's are stationed and serviced, probably serviced by some Russian personnel-in the sense that it represents a long range confrontation of wills with Russia. Only a few weeks ago, there seemed a chance that Russia might actually be a broker for peace between North Vietnam and the United States. But when that chance disappeared, and the United States set out on a new escalation of the war itself, then Russia began making new statements that whatever we did in the way of escalation would be matched. It is this proclamation from Russia, plus the apparent sending of more milltary aid from Russia through China, apparently by new agreement between Russia and China, which we are hitting at when we now bomb the air fields on which Russian-donated planes are sta-Our psychological, our emotional, our test of wills engagement, when we do this, is not with North Vietnam, and not with Communist China, but with

Once Russia might have had the idea that it would be a clever thing, for Russia, to have Communist China and the United States both mired down in Vietnam for the next 10 years. One can be completely certain, at any rate, that the one thing Russia has never wanted has been to become deeply involved in Vietnam Itself.

But American policy, with a large continual handful of help from fate, may succeed in drawing Russia deeply into the Vietnamese conflict after all. We may make it seem to Russia the same way it has seemed to us-impossible to stay out. We may succeed in creating for Russia the same kind of situation we have created for ourselves -a situation of no choice.

How do we progress to such an escalation? How do we finally begin putting the challenge of will directly to Russia? How do we lock ourselves, and perhaps the whole world with us, into a situation in which a rational consideration of alternatives and consequences has been made impossible?

Perhaps the most important part of han a "board of censorship." the answer—the psychological part was suggested by a statement General Westmoreland made during his question and answer period before the nation's publishers Monday. "I was delighted," se said, "to learn that the MIG airfields had been bombed, at least two of them today. This was a military target on which was based aircraft that had been used offensively against our fightof its merits. In this particular case, the cause on examination, seems to have no merit This was, we think, the first time i United States history or in United States rhetoric that an American military or diplomatic leader ever resorted to the claim that to attack bombers over one's own territory constituted an offensive" action. If we can really say and really believe that General Westsoreland's use of the word "offensivewas just and accurate then there obviously no limits to which we will tion because it promised peace," this speaker said. He warned the President that unless he acted quickly for peace in Vietnam, he would "alienate Democrats to such great numbers as to make his re-election impossible."

"We did not intentionally elect a Vice President to walk arm in arm with either Marshal Ky or Lester Maddox. "Nor will we remain responsible for a Secretary of State who repeatedly informs us that he will not allow public opinion to alter that course of foreign policy he deems best for our country."

The report of this meeting and this speech in the New York Times volunteered the information that other "Reform Democratic clubs" in New York are also restive about the war, and that "most of them" endorsed the peace demonstration the week before.

All this, which took place as the annual dinner of an organization calling itself the "Ansonia Independent" Democrata, we read without disapproval, There are all kinds of Democrats, and some of them have sense enough to question the perfect wisdom of the President. And this whole country is divided as to the rightness and necessity of fighting the war in Vietnam as the President has chosen to fight it.

What we object to about this occasion down in New York was the presence, on the platform during these speeches, and as a speaker himself later in the program, of Associate Justice William . Douglas of the United States Supreme Court. The speech he himself devered when the program got around to him was probably a good speech. At least it argued the one biggest and the one total necessity of our time, which is that we find some way to substitute

But here, in a meeting of a political club, in an atmosphere where many elements of national policy were being discussed, was sitting, and participating, a distinguished gentleman who, as a member of the highest court in the land, has already been called upon to help decide questions which are related to these same national policies. We make a very flat statement about such things. No member of the nation's highest court-no member of any court for that matter-should ever attend a meeting of any kind of political club. The higher the court, the greater the offense to taste and to the prestige of the court itself. And the prohibition should apply without any regard to the particular politics of the club in queshow non-political a speech the judge may deliver on such an occasion.

There is one elemental duty and responsibility which ought not to need stating to any recipient of high judicial appointment: honor the office, respect your own court.

"Mockingbird" Still Sings

Parental objections were not strong enough "To Kill a Mockingbird" for advanced reading for eighth grade students at Lewis S. Mills Regional High School in Harwinton. But the school board said that parents may have their children excused from reading or studying any material that is objectionable to them and equivalent material will be

The furore over the Harper Lee novel started when Mr. and Mrs. Harold Humphrey, who have a 13-year old laughter in Lewis Mills, sought to get the book removed from a list of English Department approved books at the school. They also requested that a screening committee be set up to select the literature to be used in the English

They lost on both counts. The Pulitzer Prize winning novel will not be renoved from the approved book list. Nor will there be any screening committee. Surely qualified teachers are in a better position than a group of parents to judge what is suitable and what is not in the matter of selecting reading material. It is easy to see what might happen if a screening committee composed of the wrong individuals should sit in judgment on what literature students may or may not read.

Under certain standards and restrictions most of our classics would fall under the "banned books" proscribed list, It seems nearly incredible in these enlightened times that any student could be "made sick" after reading a book as Mr. Humphrey alleges happened to his daughter. But, that being the case, the option which permits a substitute book for study certainly seems to satisfy the demands of the situation rather

Although Mrs. Humphrey says that enough mail has been received so that a nucleus has been formed which will spark a formal organization to get the Mills school board to reverse its stand, we trust that the board will not be pressured into any unwise action. It is not much of a trick these days to get mail in support of a cause, regardless

Speaking of support, it is interesting note that 400 pupils at the school and the school board, stand firmly in back of Miss Winifred Sanders, chairman of the English department, who is responsible for having placed "To Kill a fockingbird" on the approved reading ist for advanced eighth grade students. Incidentally, the petition was circulated by two of these students .-- BRIS-

What is?

Trying to describe the beautiful new packages for our A&P Frozen Baked Foods. You'll just have to see them to appreciate our problem.

This we can tell you:

Delicious as they look, they taste even more delicious.

What are the products like? Well...

There's an Apple Strudel so tender and flaky, the most accomplished German baker would be jealous.

There are Devil's Food Cakes you'll say only angels could bake...the taste is that heavenly.

There are All Butter Coffee Cakes and Pound Cake as delicious as their names sound.

An Orange Cake whose batter has been kissed with an orange tang and topped with a smooth icing.

There's a Cream Cheese Cake. The creamiest thing that ever sat atop a graham cracker base.

And All Butter Chocolate Brownies so good they're almost a confection.

We could go on and on. But why tease you any more? Know what your biggest problem is going to be? Which one to buy first.

Here's a suggestion. Buy them all.

It is sensible—and fun—to shop the ads and pick the best buys for your family's table. But don't be misled into thinking that the prices in the ads tell you much about the prices in the stores.

Any store can scrape together twenty or a hundred "specials" for an ad. But no store that "gives" stamps or games can have low prices all through their store. These gimmicks simply cost too much -their cost must be passed along to you.

You'll find great specials in our Stop & Shop ads. You'll also find the lowest possible regular prices on thousands and thousands of quality foods . . . when you get to our store. These are the low prices that mean you'll always save money at Stop & Shop—no matter how alluring the specials may seem in the stamp-store ads. A word to the wise is sufficient.
