Rubinow Nominated For Superior Court

Chief Circuit Court Judge Jay E. Rubinow of Manchester has been nominated by Gov. John Dempsey to the State Superior Court for an eight-year term beginning July 1.

Judge Rubinow was one of seven nominated for Superior Court judge hips by the governor who sent the nomination to the General Assembly for ap-

Judge Rubinow's salary would be $27,500 a year. Circuit Court judges are paid $17,500 annually, but Judge Rubinow receives $20,000 as chief judge.

Judge Rubinow, a Manchester native, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rubinow of 192 E. Center St.

He was named a Circuit Court judge in 1959 by former Gov. Abraham Ribicoff and Rubinow is regarded as "a was appointed chief judge on lawyer's lawyer," one who has of needy school districts. "Honesty is the best policy." Really? We have been taugh this is so, but a growing number of people think differently We see more and more evidence of lessened morality, lo personal standards. There is ample evidence to justify the opinion of a prominent newspaper columnist who states so-ciety today cares less about morality than any preceding generation in 200 years . . . It causes one to wonder whether present day society is skidding toward a Babylonian obituary Both business and religious leaders point an accusing finger ward the growing number of dishonest people. They de ore and condemn the unconcerned attitude of our suppose educated, supposedly cultured society. Some people say this corruption is a form of social sick ess. If so, it needs surgery. What Killed Renewal Last Fall What killed Downtown Renewal by a narrow margin when it went before the voters of Manchester last fall was, in our opinion, less a straightforward evalnation of the project itself than a confusion of fiscal fears. It may be remembered that, as Man chester approached its voting season, there were three separate and distinct bonding proposals which had been prepared for submission to the voters. One was for the Globe Hollow School, the need for which was generally ac-

The second was for the town's financing share of the Downtown Renewal

The third was a proposed omnibus bonding bill designed to finance a wide variety of municipal public works and acquisition projects, including some projects Manchester people have traditionally preferred to have financed out of current tax incomes.

Taxpayers who found themselves faced with these three prospective demands on their pocketbooks also knew that they were in process of having their tax assessments re-evaluated. Confronted with four financial threats or obligations in a short span of time, a good many taxpayers reacted with understandable nervousness. Not knowing what their new property assessments and their new tax rate might be, they obviously hesitated over the amount of future municipal spending to which they were willing to commit themselves.

When they went to the polls to give their verdict on the first two propositions put before them, they approved the bonds for the new school. But, by a narrow margin, they shrank back from bonds for Downtown Renewal. So doing, the taxpayers demonstrated a mood which, as it was read and interpreted at the Municipal Building, resulted in the speedy withdrawal of the omnibus bonding measure which had been scheduled for a vote at the November state election.

Subsequently, the reevaluation process has been completed, with routine and non-controversial results for most Manchester taxpayers, but with grievous addition to the burdens of some. And there is now a new tax rate which represents a slight general increase.

Had the municipal air been clear last fall of two of the great uncertainties then present—the outcome of a reevalpation, and the threat of the large omnibus bond issue-we believe that Downtown Renewal would have been able to win judgment and decision on its own merits, and that, on its own merits, it would have received the clear approval of Manchester voters. It was killed, in our opinion, by an uneasiness and fiscal fear to which the reevaluation and the omnibus bond issue were the chief con-

Unfortunately, in such an atmosphere, far too little attention was paid to the fact that the Manchester Downtown renewal project was noteworthy precisely because it was so much more clearly a conserving and improving type of project than it was a project which called for the razing down of great blocks of existing buildings. It was, in its own sensible, conservative, but nevertheless very appealing design, engineered in advance to avoid the long periods of wasteland agony which some other communities have experienced in renewal projects. We all ought to resolve to take our second look, and, in an atmosphere free of competing approaches to our thought and our pocketbook try to reach a decision which does more justice to the facts of the project, and pays more heed to Manchester's still desperate need for it.

It is to be noted that all the suppose on, from their decisions to seek asylum even though there may be an unpleas antness here and there which seems a spot even to some Americans. This should make us feel a little warm about ourselves, a little more comfortable, perhaps, about ultimate outcomes as between the two showcases of ideology in the world. In fact, it is to be noticed, and to be hailed and admired, that we have come far enough out of our worst cold war nervousness and fear to take such distinguished triumphs in a key which is deliberately polite and restrained.

One wonders and hopes about the possibility of a similar degree of sophistication, or acceptance of variable fates, on the other side of the world. If we are getting so we can take these little victories with more poise and less shouting, are the Communists learning to take their occasional and inevitable losses with something of a better

One hopes, in particular, that the Communist world has grown out of that early insecurity and fear in which, confronted with desertions, it would redouble its own security efforts to keep dissent from growing and to make it impossible for dissent to escape across any border. This is the technique America itself imitated during much of the cold war, trying to put everything, even the feelings of human beings, under

There are stages in which faiths and ideologies consider it impossible to live together in the same world, and then comes the more civilized and reassuring phase when ideologies realize that it is not really necessary, or possible, to kill or convert everybody outside themselves. Next they accustom themselves to the further idea that there are always going to be some members of one division of party or culture who go over to the other. The less we crow over our recent triumphs, the better. The less the other side of the world tries punishment, or retribution, or sterner disciplines to prevent repetition, the ever to set foot on his own soil again.

He could do everything he needed to do from his seat in the tractor. Now, with the advance of comuterization, the farmer is about to be iberated from any necessity even to ride over his own fields. No more will he be forced to go out and plow the spring-wet earth alongside the budding maples to the tune of the buntings and the flash of the tanagers. No longer need he feel, on his back, the warmth of that waxing June sun, or contend, in the harvesting, with the lush dews of July mornings or the burnished brass of August drought. Nor need he even ever ride abroad in September to remember how each field did, or to look his gratitude upon it. on that front porch attached to some computer which will set it to rocking once in a while, for this farmer is not likely to retain very many instincts for such exertion, having himself been reduced pretty much to the status of another vegetable waiting to be harvested.

and House members seemed to have cooled in their appreciation of the law's objective, or at least its execution. Besides requiring the screening of junkyards within 1,000 feet of interstate and primary highways, the bill also bans billboards within 660 feet of the specific roadways except in commercial and inment of the law - as opposed to those who are just against it - seem to lean toward a limited approach. This group believes that a small percentage of the federal roadways, say about 10 per cent, be declared scenic strips where bill boards and junkyards would be controlled. But such an approach is quite inadequate. It must be remembered that all industrial and commercial areas are already exempt from the legislation and it is in these areas that the public may well need direction to this or that motel, restaurant, or other service. There is no necessity to create wholesale exceptions or enter into a national battle over what 10 per cent of the roads should be considered scenic. Junkyards are a blot on the landscape. They should be screened. Billboards can serve a purpose in comnercial areas, or even in industrial areas, but in general they should not be allowed to intrude on every vista.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

you don't suffer from male slick bald, how can you be sure pattern baldness, you can what is actually causing your now stop your hair loss . . . nair loss? Even if baldness and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a proof of the cause of YOUR firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is both men and women, that is both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If they believe that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days, at their risk and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this no-risk trial unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . now is the time to do something about it befor it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory consultants, inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation.
