Senatorial Ethics

If the Senate follows the recommendations of its Ethics Committee and votes censure of Connecticut's Sen Thomas J. Dodd, that individual car best serve his country, his Congress, his conscience by resigning his seat and retiring to private life. Even though the Ethics Committee did not go so far as calling for his unseating, any man who is so formally charged with conduct 'contrary to accepted morals," is moralobligated to remove himself from public office.

To fail to do so, to hang on in the hope that the voters will "exonerate" him in 1970 (it is, of course, impossible for an election to remove a moral stigma) would show an unawareness of the wrongness of what he did that could only increase his unfitness for office. The fact that the Senate committee itself did not demand his unseating, it nowise relieves Senator Dodd of taking an action commensurate with his betrayal of public trust. A man who would, among other things, divert $116.083 from campaign funds to personal use, is utterly unditted to be in a position of lawmaking and judgment on his fellow citizens. This will be all the truer if the Internnal Revenue Service finds that this diversion of funds should have been reported as income but on which no tax The Senate is to be commended for having set up the committee and carried through it shamefully dragged its feet before taking the step. We also believe that the two Washington newspapermen - Drew Pearson and Jack Andersonwho dug out the whole affair have done a public service. Without their plugging away, it is doubtful if the affair would ever have gotten off the ground.

Frankly, we believe that a strong case for Senator Dodd's unseating could have been made. True, he is charged with stealing from his constitutents rather than from Congress as is Har lem's Representative Adam Clayton Powell; true the latter is also in defiance of a New York court. But if there were grounds for refusing Representative Powell his seat, there are also grounds for taking Senator Dodd's away from him.

It is absolutely essential that members of Congress (and their official associates) meet a rigid standard of ethics. Progress is being made in that direction, as the Dodd, Powell, and Bobby Baker cases bear witness. But a great deal more needs doing. There must be stiffer laws, quicker and sharper investigation, and clear public disclosure of the financial status of all members of Congress. — CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

"I get my share," says Doug, "because a lot of people are interested in what it's like to be the son of a famous player. It's my standard interview." Doug's dad is Dolph Camilli, who established himself as one of the game's great sluggers during a major league career that spanned 1,490 game mostly with the old Brooklyn Dodgers, 238 home runs and a lifetime batting average of .277. That's a tough act to follow. "I'm not the type to let something like that bother me,'

OKLAHOMA CITY urnaments, Jack Rule Jr. and Kermit Zarley should inish well at the $66,000 Oklahoma City Open. On a hot, windy day Thursday Rule, who won here in 1965, and Zarley, a former NCAA champion, shot three-under-par 69: claim a one-stroke lead. Gary Player, Miller Barber and unknown Larry Ziegier were at 70.

The tournament appeared headed toward the highest cutoff this year, with the wind pushing the projected cutoff to 151, seven strokes over par. "I think my game has matured greatly in the last few months," Zarley said. "I'm ready to win a tournament." Zarley missed a three-foot putt ave given him the lead. on have to like the course and ertainly like it here." Rule is the only former cham pion playing this year. And now comes evidence that it isn't just the paunch, but the sag, that brings on the pallbearers-that the girdles that give the ladies their girlish figures may also be extending

The idea that control under shorts, tightening the abdominal mus-cles and expanding the chest, improve not merely appearance but health isn't exactly a new one. Long before modern drugs came on the market, doctors prescribed abdomi-nal belts for men with heart ailments. But new research, reported in he Journal of the American Medical Association, tends to show that the new drugs may be no more offective than the old-fashioned belt-or the modern control shorts. Scripps nstitute scientists found that "application of the belt previous to enercise reduced or prevented the abnormal postexercise increase in the amplitude of the A-wave of the apex cardiogram," just as popularly-pre-scribed glyceryl trinitrate.

How do control shorts help the heart? One famed medical writer, Dr. P. J. Steincrohn, writes that it chelps the circulation of the blood, and "thereby takes an unnecessary fand off the heart. And when one multiplies this by the heartbeats which add up to a few billion in the ormal Efetime, one can understand night add years to a man's life." Many doctors are suggesting increasingly popular new types tuen's control shorts to their paents, and finding back and breath-
