In fact, very little of Stravinsky's output since 1927 has been much of a bargain. That was the year he composed his "Symphony of the Psalms," which is the last really significant work he wrote, at least in my opinion. Two compositions of later date get rather frequent performances, but I'm not impressed.

In fact, very little of Stravinsky significant works he continued but for his influence on compositions trived, but for his influence on composers in general.

Many of the labor unions involved have authorized strikes if negotiations do not produce satisfactory contracts.

This influence was not strong in England or Germany, however. In Russia, he remained virtually unknown until after against a possible strike and partly because of increased use. Stravinsky has always had a prefer where.

Strike Adding to Costs The continuation of the Teamster's Union strike has involved road construction crews and operating plants and has delays on maintenance work," Town Manager Terry V. Sprenkel said today. "Public works crews are leaving at 5:30 a.m. daily and traveling to Bristol and, in some cases, to Springfield, Mass., to obtain the usual truckload of six tons of patching material." the manager noted.

Commenting on the loss of time because of travel and detays due to the large number persons seeking material, Sprenkel said this "results in an undue loss of man hours and time permitted to apply the matain the patch material is not within the limits allowed by state for the use of state aid funds and the usual bulk bi prices. "As a result of the dis tance and tack of local plants operating, the materials are be ing paid for from town funds,"

Sprenkel said. Terring programs were scheduled to be undertaken late last week, but will be delaye until the end of the strike. Th town has placed orders for ap proximately 90,000 gallons of tar and has been assured of de livery at the end of the strike. The orders were placed by the town and approved by the state more than six weeks ago, the manager commented. The bituminous concrete sur facing program was ordered and approved in April for placement in mid-May. The work, involving some 6,000 tons of material will be applied by contract at the end of strike, Sprenkel said.

No Magic Formula

The United States has sidled and blundered its way into a dead end commitment in Vietnam, and Russia has adventured its way into an equally unhappy position in the Near Bast. Each has committed its prestige and faith and face to each situation. Neither can really win in either situ-

The longer they stay committed to such impossibilities, the more they find each other facing each other in such impossibilities, the greater the danger their great power lashing about in search of some solution will flare off the kind of world conflict which will leave neither nation a great power, and which will leave their local clients in a state of total ruin.

What has just been explored, in two prolonged meetings between the heads of state of these two great powers, is the possibility that they might somehow discover, between themselves, some magic formula for loosening their own dead end commitments in both theaters of origin.

What has been discovered is that not even the good people of Glassboro, with their sudden and touching revelation of how ordinary people genuinely want peace, can rescue great powers from the ard lines of policy and power politics confrontations. People are people, and this includes President Johnson and Premier Kosygin, but they do not count, as people, and Johnson and Kosygin when they function for their states, are no longer people.

The meetings did no harm. They could not really have had any effect but to the good, for they did seed the possibility that, before they cross the last sense less bridge, these two men might have one last word together, and somehow decide to put humanity first. Perhaps, at some important moment, they will remember the simple, wholesome mood of the people of Glassboro.

Not Minding Its Own Business While the members of the crew of the United States ship Liberty keep getting it into the news that they believe Israeli planes and torpedo boats attacked their ship deliberately, and not by any mistake, the Arabs have come up with their version of what our communications ship was doing there, just 15 miles off the coast of the war between Israel and Egypt.

According to the Arabs, our ship was there to help the Israelis, and the way we were helping the Israelis was by jamming the radio communications the Egyptian troops were trying to maintain among their various units and

Why, if we were helping the Israelis, should the Israelis want to shoot up our

Because, the theory of the deliberateness of the Israeli attack suggests, we had been monitoring Israeli military radio, and had recorded, from it, messages which indicated that Israel had been the first to attack. This has since become something Israel hardly bothers Perhaps there will never be a full, valid explanation, of why the ship Liberty was attacked, or even, for that matter, of why it was where it was when it was attacked. Only one thing seems fairly certain. The Liberty had absolutely no business being there, polcing its electronic nose into somebody else's war.

The Significance Of Jerusalem In the twelfth century, the Jewish thinker Maimonides, wrote down his definition of the special sanctity of the land of Israel. There were 10 degrees of sanctity there. Thus, walled cities were more sacred than other cities because from them the lepers were sent out and were not buried within their walls. Jerusalem was more sacred than any other walled city because of the special fulfilment there of the laws. In Jerusalem a dead person had to be buried on the day of death, a custom still observed in present-day ewish Jerusalem. And the hill of the Temple was the most sacred spot in erusalem. It was the apex of sanctity It lies in what has been since 1948 the Jordanian part of the city.

To the Gentile, the pictures of tough Israeli soldiers kissing the Wailing Wall, the only surviving remnant of Herod's temple, may have looked theatrical. The statement of General Moshe Davan tha "we have returned, never to part from Jerusalem" may have sounded agores-

To observers who like to think themselves unbiased, the case for an internationalized Jerusalem might seem a good one, especially if it set a pattern of Israeli magnanimity which could be th biggest contribution of all to a real settlement in the Middle East. But the protagonists of such a case would be totalignoring the emotional and symboli significance of old Jerusalem to Israel and to the whole Jewish people. This significance is transcendent. Three times a day orthodox Jews the have prayed: "And to Jerusalem, thy city, return in mercy, and dwell therein . . . rebuild it soon in our days or an everlasting building." And three times a day Orthodox Jews have prayed: "May it be Thy will, O

Lord our God, and God of our fathers, that the temple be speedily rebuilt in our days. . . . And there we will serve Thee with awe, as in the days of old, as in ancient years." The psalmist's "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, then let my right hand forget her coming," is said at grace after meals. Another of the meal-time blessings is: "Have mercy, O Lord our God, upon Israel, Thy people, upon Jerusalem Thy City." And yet another: "And rebuild Jerusalem the hold city speedily in our days."

The return to Jerusalem the holy city, has been completed by the capture in battle of the old city. What rebuilding there is to be done, however, will be mainly in the Israeli part of it, which the Jordanian forces shelled for three days. But the chance to rebuild the temfaith, has been provided by Arab aggression, for the first time since its ruthless destruction by the Romans in A.D. 70. Can Israel renounce this

To all Israelis, to all Jews, it must seem inconceivable. There is a sense of fulfilment, almost apocalyptic, in the capture of Jordanian Jerusalem. The prayers of nearly two thousand years have been answered. There is also an overwhelming sense of God's dispensation and mercy

For Israel did not go to war willingy and knowingly. She was driven into war-a war which she believed would bring immense suffering to her people. And Israel hoped that King Hussein of Jordan would stay out of this war. So that no question of an Israeli planned action to capture the holy places, arose until the misguided king threw in his ot with Nasser. Who, then, should plame the Israelis for believing, today, that the hand of God has been instrumental in achieving Israel's crowning

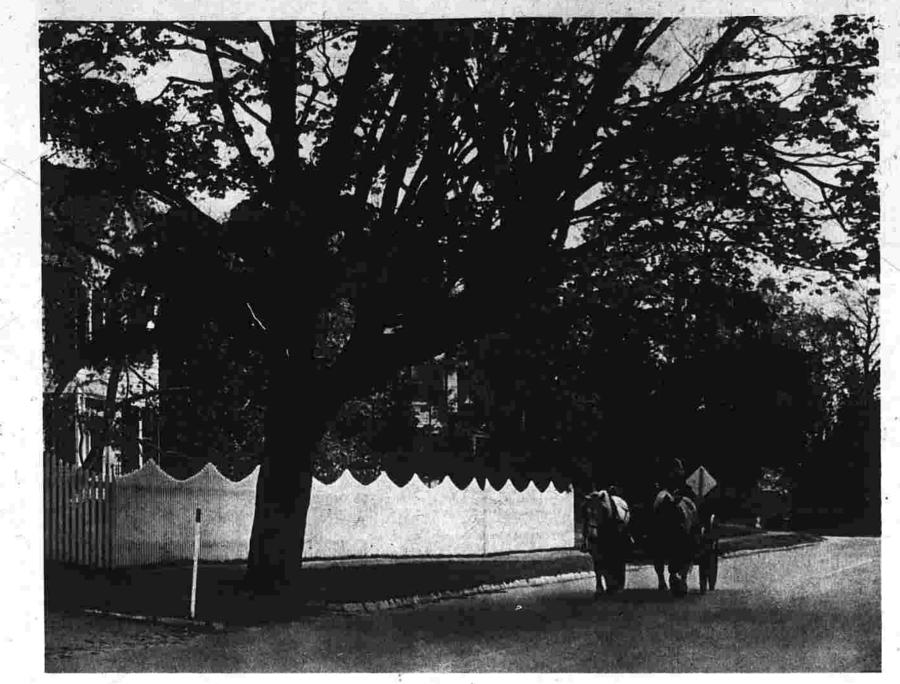

To a Gentile, again, it might seem the height of superstition that a war-unnecessary, damaging, brutal - should have given fresh impulse to the Messianic legend. But the war has brought talk among the orthodox Jews of the Messiah's coming. In Bnei Brak a suburb of Tel-Aviv, a woman began hoarding flour. Against the possibility of defeat? Not a bit of it. She believed that she should have enough flour to bake cakes for the Messiah's coming, or at least for that of the great prophet heralding Him. That woman was doubtless a highly religious, orthodox Israeli. But even the non-religious Israelis have been smitten with the same fire and fervor. To them too; Jerusalem the golden is the only feasible gate to heaven. For the past 19 years Jerusalem has been inaccessible to Israelis. However correct the Jordanian trusteeship of the holy places has been, Jordan made a cardinal error in refusing Jews access to the Wailing Wall, to the tomb of Absalom, to the pool of Siloam. It is an added reason, as Israelis see it, to unite Jerusalem under Israeli sovereignty. And sovereignty, of itself, matters far less than the thought that the holy city has returned to its people, Israel will certainly make the holy places accessible to all, Arabs of every Arab country as well as Christians. She may well propose some sort of international religious authority to safeguard the rights of all Israel has had major development plans for her part of the city. She will evolve different plans for old Jerusalem, delivered to her by Nasser's calculated aggression and Hussein's providential foolishness. The Walling Wall will come back to its people. Other critics have pointed to the amateur film taken by braham Zapruder on Nov. 22 1963, in Dallas, which also puts CBS said in the first of a fourpart series on the assassination that it concluded "a Mannlicher-Carcano rifle can be fired as accurately and rapidly — and by Zapruder "was quite possi-bly running slower than the ommission thought." Blurs on three of the film frames indicates "something startled Mr. Zapruder," CBS said. It said evidence showed "a rifle shot is what startled him." CBS News' analysis of Zapruder's film "suggests strongly that the first shot was fired at frame 186" while "the commission said only that the first shot to hit came between frames 210

CBS said its investigation suported Warren Commission indings that Oswald owned a fle, took one to the depository ding, and Oswald was in the ding on the sixth floor when three shots were fired. Walter Cronkite who narrated the program, said the network's second and third telecasts would
