Fair at Wapping School Approved by School Board

The board of education last night approved the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Charles Warner...

Noting that the fair is the largest gathering of town residents held in the town, the fair association said that more than 4,000 people attend the event...

The main object of the fair, according to the fair association, is to improve agriculture, stimulate interest in domestic science and creative arts...

Although school will be back in session on these dates, the booths and fences will be set up after school and adequate police coverage will be maintained at all times...

The superintendent will notify Donald Henry, chairman of the public building commission, by letter reaffirming the board's consensus on the need for the school to be completed as planned for the last semester of next year.

Approval was given by the board to a motion granting credit to town teachers for previous experience. Supt. Warner noted that previously teachers hired into the school system were given credit for a maximum of five years of experience, regardless of the number of years they worked in other school systems.

Two contracts are at present for these positions. On the middle school level, one science and one remedial reading teacher are still needed. Special teaching positions still to be filled are for a psychological examiner, a speech teacher and a social worker.

Hippies Got 5,000 Samples FDA Probing Use of Drug More Powerful Than LSD

WASHINGTON (AP)—An official of the Food and Drug Administration says his agency is investigating the reported use of a new drug called STP which supposedly is more powerful than LSD.

The report came from John Pinlator, director of the drug abuse control bureau, in testimony Tuesday before a House Government Operations subcommittee.

Pinlator also indicated the criminal organization known as Cosa Nostra is becoming involved in the distribution of LSD, the so-called mind-expanding drug.

Dr. David Smith, physician in charge of the drug abuse Wadsworth Veterans Hospital, said that five users of STP were hospitalized.

Dr. Sidney Cohen, chief of psychosomatic medicine at Los Angeles, told newsmen that "underground contacts have told me it's around."

Conversation At Low Ebb These Days

NEW YORK (AP) —Practically everyone admits that conversation in America is in a bad way. It consists largely, as a matter of fact, of three basic sounds: the holler, the murmur, and the grunt.

People holler when they're angry, murmur when they're listening at all but wish to give evidence that they are still alive and in the room.

None of these three sounds really help conversation, of course. Actually, they hinder it.

Why has conversation gone into such a decline in a country where it was formerly a powerful and ornamental verbal art form?

Some say it's because of television. Some believe it's because we live in such an age of conformity that the once outspoken American now prefers to button his lip lest it get him into trouble.

But an even more fundamental reason may be that there's so much bad news going around that people are afraid to get into a conversation anymore for fear that all they'll hear about is more trouble.

Perhaps, to get the conversational ball rolling again, we need to put a moratorium on gripes, complaints, accusations, and gloomy forecasts and replace them with happy talk.

Tell a fellow some good news today, and he's likely to be so surprised and relieved—and grateful—that he'll prattle on cheerfully with you the rest of the day.

Here, for example, are a few conversational techniques that are guaranteed to make the other person feel better, and thus put him in the relaxed mood conducive to good talk:

"Remember, dear, I thought sex had gone out of my life forever, and then I looked across the room and saw you standing there in your new miniskirt, lovely as a green gazelle."

"I've only got a couple of small pairs, Jim. I guess your three sizes take the pot."

"Don't leave now, boys. The house wants to buy you a round."

"I'm from the Internal Revenue Service, sir. It's about that letter we sent telling you to report to our office next Monday with all your expense account receipts and vouchers from 1966 through 1964. I'm afraid it was a bureaucratic blunder. My chief has asked to take you to lunch—on the government, of course—and explain how the mix-up happened."

"Reginald, that Gen. de Gaulle has been acting like such a Mr. Smarty Pants lately that I think we should call off our vacation trip to Paris. What do you say if we stay home this summer instead, and you can go golfing as much as you want?"

"The accident was all my fault, Mac. I know I didn't signal for a left turn. I'm a claims adjuster and carry plenty of insurance. What do you think it'll take to iron out that dent in your tender—$500, $600, $700?"

"Since I arranged these blind dates, Paul, I'll take the homely one, and you take the pretty one. She seems stuck on you already, anyway."

"I guess we'll have to take in the pants, str. Your waist has gone down from 44 to 37 inches since I sold you your last suit."

"Don't spread this around the office, Jake, but you've done such a good job lately, we've decided to give you a special midyear bonus as well as the usual Christmas bonus. Do you think an extra $2,000 would help you celebrate the Fourth of July?"

"That's all that's needed to revive conversation in America—a few things really worth talking about."

WASHINGTON — Federal, state and local governments spend a little more than $4 billion a year on criminal justice.

This includes $2.8 billion for police, $1.08 billion for corrections and $550 million for courts and prosecution.

Feeling of Drift, Paper Says New Brazilian Government Seen Accomplishing Little

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The government of President Arthur da Costa e Silva has completed its first 100 days, and the general impression is that it has achieved little.

"There is a feeling of drift," says the newspaper Jornal do Brasil.

"They haven't moved from dead center," says a diplomat. "A job goes: 'A man was arrested for planning an attack on the president. He was going to throw an alarm clock into his office.'"

It made the rounds after Costa e Silva's office in Brasilia announced that the president takes a long lunch period and a siesta each day.

Since the retired army marshal, now 64, was sworn in March 15, political activity has been at a virtual standstill, and Costa e Silva's Cabinet members have operated their ministries pretty much as independent fiefs, with little coordination. Some have been busy sniping at each other.

Activity in Congress has been limited to intramural squabbles in the absence of major problems or legislative programs to discuss. Only the opposition has been talking in terms of broad issues, but it has no power to do anything but talk.

Costa e Silva was elected last fall by the government's majority in a lame-duck Congress. The opposition—outnumbered 2 to 1—boycotted the election.

The jovial former cavalry officer and tank commander had imposed his candidacy on President Humberto Castello Branco, using his position as war minister for leverage.

With representatives from virtually every faction of the government's heterogeneous National Renewal Alliance (ARENA) in his Cabinet as well as several army men, Costa e Silva has tried to give his government a broad foundation. But he has ended up instead with a ponderous structure that hardly moves.

Unlike his predecessor, who spent hundreds of hours commuting between Rio de Janeiro and Brasilia, Costa e Silva has spent most of his time in the ultramodern but isolated capital of Brasilia.

This has kept him from regular contact with both his ministers and the country's main centers of political and economic activity. Both are still concentrated in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

The administration's lack of activity and the penchant of its members for traveling extensively within the country and abroad has already brought sharp criticism from virtually all segments of the press, including those which normally support the government.

With the president in Brasilia and his Cabinet scattered all about, the tank commander's government program has a little kerosene or commercial appeared. There is already speculation that a Cabinet reshuffle may be in the works, although the president has denied it.

However, a deep recession has given way to gradual improvement in business conditions, and plentiful crop promises still greater benefits to the economy. Interest rates have dropped, and retail sales are reported growing.

Inflation is still a problem but appears to have abated somewhat from last year's rates. The cost-of-living rose only 15.5 per cent during the first five months of the year, against a rise of 1.8 per cent during the same period last year.

But these developments were already in the cards March 15, and the Costa e Silva government can claim little credit for them, although it obviously will benefit from them.

Receives Grant

Ward Barry Krause son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward C. Krause of 87 Walnut St. has received a research assistantship from the department of mechanical engineering at the University of Rhode Island for the 1967-68 academic year.

Krause, who received his B.S. this month in mechanical engineering from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will be continuing his studies toward a master's degree in ocean engineering.

During his undergraduate years he was a co-op student at NASA in Houston, Tex., and a member of Pi Tau Sigma, the national honorary fraternity for mechanical engineers.

He is a 1962 graduate of Manchester High School and is married to the former Mary Upham of Virginia. They are living for the summer at 87 Walnut St.

Teamsters O.K. Pact With Road Builders

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Teamsters prepared to return to work at Connecticut's long-idled construction sites today after five Teamster locals voted 728 to 474 Tuesday night to accept a 5-year contract with the industry.

A dispute between about 2,100 Teamsters who are drivers at construction jobs and the road-building and concrete-mixing industries had crippled an estimated $750 million worth of construction in the state for six weeks.

Industry sources had estimated that about 30,000 workers associated with the industry had been thrown out of work by the dispute.

Fred J. Roberto, chairman of the union bargaining committee, said the new contract provides improvements in wages and fringe benefits worth from $1.70 an hour to $2 an hour.

The Teamsters had struck 18 of the firms in the 150-member industry bargaining group in May, and the other companies shut down a day later in a "strike one, strike us all" move.

A critical hurdle was cleared 10 days ago when Edward Metz of the operating engineers union ordered his idled equipment operators back to their jobs despite Teamster picket lines.

No skirmishes were reported, however, from this division in labor's previously untried front.

"This should prove to the public that tough as the Teamsters may be, they are law-abiding and peaceful citizens who are prepared to use all peaceful means to settle their disputes," said Roberto Tuesday night.

He also heads the Bridgeport local.

"We realize that our dispute has caused many people loss of wages," he said, "but we know that only in unity is their strength."

"We have supported many of these locals and we intend to continue to support those who help us," he said.

The new contract provides an hourly wage hike of $1.35 over the next five years from May 1. Present wage scales run from $3.50 an hour. In the last year of the contract, wages will be $4.80 to $4.95 an hour.

Roberto said changes in vacation benefits and pay for work on holidays and Saturdays will mean about 30 cents more an hour.

Employers' contributions to the pension fund will be increased from $1 a week to $14 a week, and employers' contributions to the union welfare program will increase from $6.60 a week to $11 a week, Roberto said.

Two Steps Undertaken For Handicapped Pupils

The Board of Education Monday took two separate actions designed to help it meet legal state requirements for educating children with hearing and neurological impairments.

Beginning in September, all boards of education in Connecticut are required to offer special classes, instruction or services for such children, as well as for those with social and emotional problems, by virtue of legislation passed by the 1965 General Assembly.

In its first action, the board unanimously agreed it would continue to offer special classes for pre-school deaf children at the Congress Center in West Hartford.

In its second, it approved a set of proposed regulations for the education of neurologically handicapped children which have been approved by a local committee of teachers and administrators.

The board said it will consider the regulations as a "basis and guideline" for its later development of actual educational policies.

The board also directed School Superintendent William Curtis to prepare budget estimates for the hearing classes and for reimbursement for transportation costs.

Speaking briefly in support of the program were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Gorman of 74 N. Laurelwood Circle and Mrs. Eji Mathews, teacher of the pre-school classes.

The three had also appeared before the board last November when it first agreed to sponsor the program.

Under the arrangements for next year, the Manchester board has agreed to serve as the program's sole sponsor, and it will charge tuition to boards from other towns wishing to send children to the classes.

During the past year, Manchester sponsored only the morning session and West Hartford took responsibility for the afternoon classes.

Gorman told the board the change was requested by the State Department of Education. One board acting as the sole sponsor would give the program more flexibility, Gorman said.

If Manchester agreed to become the sponsor, Curtis noted, the state next year would reimburse the town 100 per cent of the cost of the classes for Manchester's children.

This past year, all towns in the program received two-thirds of the cost, with the board supplying the remainder.

Other towns sending pre-schoolers to the program will continue to receive two-thirds reimbursements.

Before taking their vote for sponsorship, board members noted that under the law they would be required to make some provision for education of the hearing impaired child in any event.

"I've seen tangible evidence of the program and agree this is the way to do it," said Atty. Herbert Phelan.

The set of regulations relating to the perceptually handicapped was presented and explained by Walter Roth, Washington School principal, and Miss Beth Hoffman, chief social worker for the town schools.

Roth and Miss Ethel Robb, Waddell School principal, are co-chairmen of the committee drafting the regulations and studying ways to implement the recent state legislation.

Damages Sought In Crash Suit

In an action stemming from a May 17, early morning, rear-end crash on the Wilbur Cross Highway, a Stafford Springs man, Lynn Hayes, is suing Hugh and Theresa Hayden of 200 School St. for $15,000. Hayes has placed an attachment in court against the Haydens' home.

Embassy Denounced

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya's Vice President Daniel Arap Moi denounced the Red Chinese Embassy today for an attack on the United States and accused the Chinese of meddling in Kenya's affairs.

The embassy in a statement issued Tuesday accused Development Minister Tom Mboya of siding with the United States in a National Assembly debate and pushing off the pavement.

He stated that his car was pushed off the pavement through a guard rail fence and into a ditch, and that he suffered severe head, neck and back injuries.

He is seeking reimbursement of hospital and medical expenses, loss of wages, and cost of damages to his car.

He is asking the court to attach the earnings of the defendants.

The suit is returnable in Hartford County Court of Common Pleas.

Dominican Agents Succeed In Foiling Red Extremists

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The New York-bound jet was ready for flight when a surveillance team emerged from the terminal, walked swiftly toward the plane and handed a black bag to the last passenger on the ramp. Although there seemed little chance of a search, the plane was quickly boarded and the three passengers and their luggage.

The rampside delivery of a bag was what they were expecting. A few hours later they had what they suspected. Among the contents of the black bag were four letters to Communist parties abroad, two of them messages of thanks for help to the Central Committee of the Cuban Communist party and the Committee of Peace of Communist China. Rolled up tightly inside a tooth-powder can were 200 35-man negatives of aerial maps of the Dominican countryside. There also were reports on local Communist activities.

This was last Jan. 15. On May 2, security agents and national police raided an apartment in downtown Santo Domingo and arrested Jose Ignacio Marty Polanco, 30, amateur radio operator with a license made out under the alias of Luis Pina Baez. Officials said he admitted training in Cuba. Under a wall switch in the apartment, police said, they found a tiny booklet of white plastic sheets with serial numbers in red and black. Officials here identified it as a "one-time pad," a coded and communications. The man arrested had three transmitters in his room, one a small 75-watt unit man emerged from the terminal, which, police said, he probably used to contact Cuba.

In between these operations, security agents and national police have seized an impressive quantity of weapons and Communist documents that show, says President Joaquin Balaguer, the hand of Red China and Fidel Castro in attempts to subvert order in this Caribbean nation.

The material seized also points up the determination of Dominican left-wing extremists—notably the Castroite 14th of July Revolutionary Movement and the pro-Chinese Dominican Popular Movement—to infiltrate peasant ranks and open guerrilla fronts in the northeast, central and western mountain ranges.

The record of successful raids in recent months also is viewed as indicative of the growing effectiveness of the government's internal security forces. These have undergone sharp reorganization and modernization since the 1965 revolution, with the help of U.S. public safety programs under Alliance for Progress auspices. The program provides equipment and technical assistance from veteran American police and peace-keeping officers assigned here.

For the first time, authorities say, patrols are going into lowland areas, not only to seek out lawbreakers but to perform minimal "civic action" tasks. Every day from various stations throughout the country, gray

Weight Raised On Parcel Post

Matters will be able to send 25-pound parcels between first class post offices which are 100 miles or more apart starting July 1, Postmaster Alden Bailey remained patient today. The present weight limit is 20 pounds, he said.

This is the first of five increases scheduled to take effect annually until 1971, when a 40-pound, 94-inch maximum size will be authorized between all first class post offices. Size limitations are now 72 inches in combined length and girth. The next increase, on July 1, 1968, will raise the weight limit to 30 pounds. On July 1, 1969, the weight limit will be increased from 30 to 40 pounds; on July 1, 1970, the size will be increased to 78 inches, and on July 1, 1971, the size is scheduled to be increased to 84 inches.

Postmaster Bailey also reminded mailers that parcels weighing up to 40 pounds can be mailed between first class post offices less than 150 miles apart. Packages addressed to and from second, third, and fourth class post offices, Alaska and Hawaii are not affected by the increase in size and weight provisions of the Postal Law 89-973, which became effective Jan. 15, he said. Parcel post must be sent to and from these offices remain at 70 pounds and 100 inches.

Stephens of 45 Green Manor Rd., has received his degree of doctor of medical dentistry from the University of Pennsylvania's School of Dental Medicine. He served in the U.S. Navy from 1966-1967 during which time he received his aviator wings and was commissioned. He also served aboard the U.S.S. Saratoga (CV-60) in the Pacific from 1964-1965. He is the former Barre Ann Hall of 34 Middle Pk., they have three children and plan to live in Middletown, Conn.

Banks of Healthy Teeth Seen in Dental Future

Back in the Revolutionary War era, a wealthy man's teeth would be another man's tooth. It would be a healthy tooth. A man would pull it, and then place it in the purchaser's jaw to replace a missing front tooth, by a molar for a better attack on a molar.

Unhappily, the borrowed tooth lasted only a matter of months. Some 6,000 years earlier, wealthy Chinese had tried the same experiment, with similar failure.

But now an explosion in scientific research is bringing a revolution in dentistry. For it may come.

—Tooth banks to give you healthy living teeth when needed.

—Vaccines to prevent tooth decay. Researchers are already identifying certain germs that appear involved in decay.

—Reductions of 50 to 60 per cent in present rates of decay through new or more effective ways of using protective fluorine compounds.

—More effective prevention and treatment of pyorrhea, periodontal disease, the destroyer of gum and bone tissue, and the reason why many lose their teeth after age 35.

—Dentistry is maturing to become a true health science.

Dr. Robert J. Nelson of the National Institute of Dental Research, Bethesda, Md., developed the first successful high-speed water-cooled turbine drill.

Now, he and others explain, dental research is being pushed through enlistment of cooperative skills of engineers, biologists, polymer chemists, physicists, bacteriologists, metallurgists, crystallographers, and other specialists as well as dentists.

This year some 3,700 research projects concerned directly or indirectly with tooth and mouth health are in progress in this country alone. The range is tremendously varied.

Baronets are one interest. These creatures exude a liquid that hardens in water to form an unbelievably tenacious cement, as any sailor knows.

By solving the baronets' secret, scientists hope to fashion new dental cements that will hold indefinitely and prevent new decay from occurring beneath fillings. Similar cements might be found to serve as filling materials themselves or as protective coatings for the tooth to last a lifetime.

Long-lasting dentures are promised from findings by Dr. George G. Paffenbarger, senior research associate of the American Dental Association at the National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C.

He and associates applied a new silane glue to bond porcelain teeth to acrylic resin denture bases. Tests show the denture is made stronger and the food and bacteria cannot seep between the teeth and base. This technique also may eliminate the need for gold alloy pins to attach front teeth, thus promising savings up to $3 million a year. The dream of borrowing a natural tooth is being pursued at several centers, including the National Institute's clinical section headed by Dr. Harold S. Stanley.

Human volunteers are aiding the cause. Dentists to lose some teeth because of gum disease or other reasons, they agreed to have them extracted, and then replaced in the empty sockets after the teeth have been cleaned.

At first, the reimplanting stimulates growth of new alveolar bone, which holds teeth in place, Dr. Stanley reports. But after about nine months the teeth are rejected. The research is aimed at learning why. Perhaps, Dr. Stanley says, the teeth might be treated with some material that stimulated strong and enduring new bone growth and permanent retention.

These studies may help explain why living tissue borrowed from another person—be it a kidney, tooth, or skin—is rejected as foreign, much as invading germs are. Ways to overcome this rejection mechanism must be found to make tooth banks feasible.

Basic questions as to what happens to teeth during drilling, or in reaction to certain fillings, are being answered in Dr. Stanley's laboratory by detailed tests of healthy human teeth.

So far volunteers across the country have contributed to the project some 6,000 teeth due to be lost for various reasons.

The findings are aimed at getting reliable standards that dentists everywhere could use for benefit of their patients.

Detection of tooth decay also is far easier to correct—is the goal of a new device developed at the National Bureau of Standards and now being used in further studies at the American Dental Association's new multi-million-dollar research facility in Chicago.

Called a fluorometer, it examines teeth under ultraviolet light. Destruction of protein elements in enamel in initial stages of decay makes such spots fluoresce differently from healthy enamel, explains Dr. Harvey Lyon, clinical director.

Genovesi Fund Now at $1,371

A total of $1,371 to the Genovesi Memorial Library fund, it was announced today by sponsors of the fund. The goal is $5,000.

It was also reported that very few books for Grades 6, 7 and 8 reading levels, including technical textbooks, had been donated at this time. Those wishing to have books picked up may contact George Brooks of 71 Westford St., or Edward Vilga of 618 Waterbury St.

New Dam Tool Very Sensitive

The sensitive new device is a radial seaking test unit that can be used at sites of proposed dams to determine whether the surrounding rock structure can support the extreme pressure generated by the dam and the water it impounds.

Victim of Polio Says, 'Yes I Can'—And Does

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The strogan phrase in the life of Emma Flores, who was crippled by polio when she was 7...

After she was struck by infantile paralysis, doctors told Emma would be bedridden the rest of her life. She refused to accept it.

In a persistent, difficult campaign, she worked to help her daughter overcome the handicap. She was treated by the Bloor-Kenny Foundation and later admitted to Rancho Los Amigos, a Los Angeles County rehabilitation center.

At the center she underwent operations to fuse her spine, suggest to get around in a wheelchair, and finally began to walk.

And at graduation ceremonies last Saturday, while other students were receiving gifts, Emma gave one—a carefully constructed, colorful scrap book she had put together for a friend, Sandy McIntyre of Newport Beach.

The book ends like this: "Thank You for love, thank You for grace, thank You, Lord, thank You."

Vermont Ghost Story Keeps Getting Larger

CUTTINGVILLE, Vt. (AP)—It's an arresting sight for the summer tourist traveling along the main artery from Bellows Falls to Rutland.

Anyone coming over the rise of this former mill town is confronted with a marble figure in a mourning coat, about 10 feet tall, standing in a tomb fashioned like a Greek temple.

A widow with a fortune built the tomb in honor of her husband, a wealthy merchant who died in 1850. He placed the remains of his family inside the mausoleum and daily mourned their deaths.

But most unusual are the fanciful stories associated with the John P. Bowman Cemetery known as Laurel Hill.

Here are a few of the local people tell.

—Prior to his death, Bowman talked about reincarnation. The three-story Victorian mansion across the street, according to some, was kept as he left it to await his family's return from the grave.

—No one but caretakers lived in the house until 1963. And the servants were instructed to set a place every night in case Bowman returned.

—Some remember people who claimed to have seen some figure walk around in the cemetery at moonlight.

—Others say the place is haunted.

The Victorian Bowman mansion is an imposing structure that looks like a setting for Charles Addams cartoons.

Inside there are rowed arch windows and stained glass windows. Ornate wallpapers and large spacious rooms complete the Victorian theme.

Nowadays the stables trust fund Bowman left to keep the property intact is starting to decline. And reality is creeping in to some of the Laurel Hill tales.

For example, an auction was held more than 10 years ago and the contents of the house were sold. The Bowman mansion was demolished in 1963.

—If they do come back—will not have their furnishings.

Moreover, a part-time resident has moved into the house and pays rent to the estate to live there during the summer.

—Mrs. Sadie Hamilton, town clerk of Strawberry and a curator of Bowman memorabilia, has published a pamphlet about the Bowman story.

—"I've had so many questions about the place," she said, "that I don't have time to answer them. I've had to put out the pamphlet."

She is forced to smile when confronted with the stories of servants putting out the plates. She gives the following explanation:

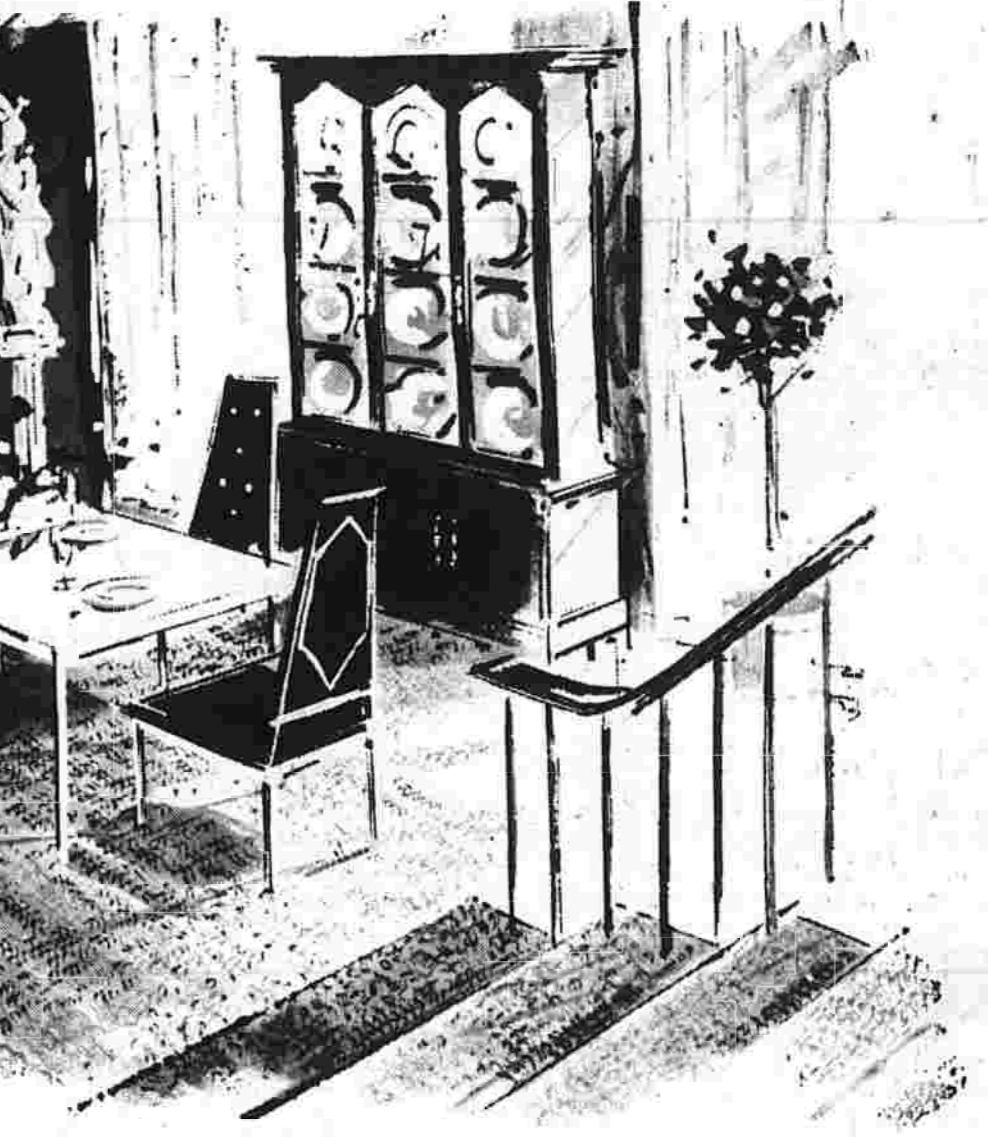

—"Why? George Jones was the caretaker of that place for a number of years. Reporters from New York kept hounding him for a story and he decided that if one such is shows Thursday wanted a story he'd give them a good one."

Wedding

Davidson - Bartholomew

Whitehall, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore pink. Beth Ann Munger of Benson was flower girl. She wore a white gown of whipped cream fabric, styled to match the adult attendants.

James O. McCuin of Thompsonville served as best man. Ushers were Edward Davidson of Manchester, brother of the bridegroom; Wendall Bartholomew of Lake Placid, uncle of the bride; Thomas MacCormick of Burlington and Donald Chase of Brattleboro, Vt.

A reception for 200 was held at Walt's Restaurant, Whitehall. After a wedding trip, the couple will live at 85 Willard St., Burlington.

Mrs. Davidson is a 1961 graduate of Fair Haven (Vt.) Union High School and a 1966 graduate of the University of Vermont, Burlington. She was a teacher of home economics at Orleans (Vt.) High School.

Mr. Davidson is a 1962 graduate of Manchester High School and a 1967 graduate of the University of Vermont, where he was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He was recently commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army and will begin his career in September.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Howard Bartholomew, Whitehall. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davidson of 73 Walnut St.

The Rev. Edward Jones of Shabazzton, Vt., performed the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Warren Nelson of Benson was organist and Mrs. Wendall Bartholomew of Lake Placid, N.Y., sang. The bride wore a white gown, styled to match the adult attendants.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full-length gown of white linen, fashioned with empire waistline, scooped neckline, three-quarter length sleeves trimmed with Venetian lace, and lace accents at the waist and on the chapel-length train. Her elbow-length veil of bridal silk was adorned with a headbow, and she carried a corsage bouquet of daisies with a white orchid in the center.

Miss Susan Mae Bartholomew of Whitehall, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an aqua chiffon over tulle gown, fashioned with empire waistline and A-line skirt, a matching pillbox hat with net veil, and carried a bouquet of daisies.

The bride attendants' gowns, hats and bouquets were styled to match the bride's gown. Bridesmaid Mrs. Thomas MacCormick of Burlington, Vt. wore a mint green, and Miss Cynthia Brown, also of Burlington, wore a yellow. Miss Lynn Bartholomew

Transport Plane, Pigeon Collide 9,400 Feet High

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP)—A Navy transport plane flying at 9,400 feet collided with a 12-ounce pigeon the night of April 20. The collision 50 miles south of San Jose, Calif., was the first of its kind since World War II.

The tangled bird "stopped next to my foot," said the pilot, Lt. Joseph Rotic of Butler, Pa. "My first assumption was that we'd had a collision with another plane. There was a loud, slightly muffled explosion. The whole plane shuddered, but there was no decompression. The damage to the plane was terrific."

He landed the C-124 transport with 10 men aboard at Alameda without further incident. The bulletin of Golden Gate Audubon Society printed Rotic's account Monday in an article by Oakland Park naturalist Paul F. Cove. He identified the pigeon as a bandtail and said it can fly at 8,000 feet but usually doesn't, especially at night.

$6,400 for Education Board Approved at Town Meeting

With 21 people present the executive board and teachers town meeting voted last night to approve the request of the board of education for $6,400. There were no nay votes.

During a brief discussion Mrs. Agnes Kroyag stated that under state statute 7-348 there are statutory penalties for expenditures which exceed appropriations.

Waddell also asked that the money not be taken out of next year's budget. That budget has already been cut $12,000.
