

Newark Quiet, Violence Spreads

Policeman Killed In Jersey Rioting

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—With most businesses shut voluntarily, Newark police and National Guardsmen started a careful building by building search today in the riot-torn but now peaceful Negro slums for snipers who had fired an occasional wild shot during the night.

This city of 400,000, New Jersey's largest, started efforts to return to normalcy, with major attention to hauling away piles of rotting garbage and debris. Collections were halted Thursday after the first night of rioting that brought death to 24, injured more than 1,100, resulted in the arrest of around 1,800 and caused property damage of over $5 million.

As the violence in Newark subsided Sunday, after five days and nights of killing, burning and looting, the racial terror that it spawned spilled over to neighboring Plainfield, Jersey City and East Orange.

Only in Plainfield, 18 miles southwest, did gunfire crackle and looting erupt, resulting in the death of a white policeman Sunday night. Guardsmen were dispatched to assist state troopers and local police in quelling the disturbance, mostly by roving bands of Negro teenagers.

A group of youths in Jersey City smashed some windows.

Minimines Are Sought On Beaches

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Secrecy surrounding a new "minimine" being developed by the military went up in little puffs of smoke Sunday. Thousands of the tiny explosive devices drifted onto a public beach in northern Florida.

Several hundred servicemen were ordered into the area to gather up the bombs along some 120 miles of beach. A canister loaded with the brownish disks was reportedly dropped accidentally into Choctawhatchee Bay along the Florida panhandle. The disks are the size of a quarter with knobs protruding from each side.

When squeezed or stepped on they explode with the force of a large firecracker. The secret device, being developed for use in Vietnam as alarms against sneak attack, became unsecret when Donald Spinell of Fort Walton Beach found one.

Spinell, 24, was treated for eye and hand injuries after he tried to pull one apart with his fingers and it exploded. Military spokesmen said the explosion would be painful, but would not mutilate a hand or foot. The spokesman said security on the devices had been "sensitive."

In an official release the Air Force said the device had been "sensitive."

Extra Worry

ASHLEY, Pa. (AP)—The railroad strike gave residents of this small eastern Pennsylvania community something else to worry about today besides the loss of transportation.

Ashley's only fire and ambulance sirens normally are powered by the compressors at the Central Railroad of New Jersey yard.

When the railroad strike began shortly after midnight, Ashley's sirens were silenced.

Police arranged that sirens in nearby Newtown and Preston could call Ashley firemen to duty.

Ribicoff Asks Remodeled Bureaucracy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., called today for a ceiling-to-floor remodeling of the federal bureaucracy he helped build as a member of the Kennedy administration.

Ribicoff said in a speech for the Senate that the executive branch is overloaded with well-intentioned but duplicating programs that often cause the nation confusion, frustration and delay.

"Good ideas have withered on the bureaucratic vine because we have not taken time to clear the underbrush," the former secretary of health, education and welfare said.

Ribicoff introduced a bill to establish a nine-man presidential commission to recommend ways of overhauling government organization.

He said piecemeal modernization plans are common. "But so far we have looked only at the parts," Ribicoff said. "We have not carried this effort to the executive branch as a whole."

Many federal agencies are still pursuing the missions they were assigned 30 years ago. Ribicoff said in an interview. The mission often is obsolete and the agency incapable of adjusting to new problems, he said. "The federal bureaucracy is a creaking one-horse shay and doesn't have the horsepower to do the job it should," Ribicoff said.

He said, for example, that job training programs have increased by 800 per cent since 1961, but are administered by 10 separate agencies in three cabinet-level departments.

Ribicoff said his reorganization study differs from others.

B52s Pour Bombs On Five Targets

SAIGON (AP)—Giant American B52 Stratofortrs unloaded close to a million pounds of bombs on five major Communist concentration areas in South Vietnam Sunday night and today.

The heavy raids were scattered from the Mekong Delta to the northern provinces just below the demilitarized zone. They included a strike at the infiltration route used by Red troops entering the central highlands, where a Communist offensive is threatened.

The air war over North and South Vietnam cost two more American planes, but both pilots were rescued, U.S. commanders said.

A Navy Skyhawk jet was downed by ground fire somewhere between the Hanoi area and Thanh Hoa. It was the 160th U.S. combat plane announced last week over North Vietnam. The pilot remained hidden overnight and was listed out by a helicopter this morning, a spokesman said.

The second loss was an Air Force F100 jet downed Saturday by ground fire from a Communist stronghold in South Vietnam's War Zone C, near the Cambodian border. It was the 194th U.S. combat plane reported lost to enemy fire in South Vietnam.

Only light and scattered ground fighting was reported. Operation Hickory II, a three-day U.S. and South Vietnamese sweep to clear out North Vietnamese troops southwest of the muck-battered Marine post at Con Thien, ended with less than 100 enemy reported killed.

Fourteen of the 51 prisoners inside the burning building were rescued. Five were hospitalized at nearby Century with burns. One was taken to the intensive care unit at a Pensacola hospital and eight were transferred to the jail at Pensacola.

The fire was set by prisoners, said Louis Wainwright, director of the State Corrections Division. A guard saw two prisoners one a Negro and another white — touching lighted matches to newspapers, Wainwright said.

G. C. Mayne Jr., assistant warden at the camp, earlier had said the barracks erupted into flame when battling prisoners, a Negro and a white, broke a gas lamp and smashed a fluorescent lamp.

Wainwright, after conferring at the scene with three agents of the state fire marshal's office, said vapor from the broken fluorescent lamp was ignited by the burning newspapers.

"I'm sure they didn't anticipate what would happen," Wainwright said.

Florida Camp Fire Kills 37 Prisoners

JAY, Fla. (AP)—Thirty-seven prisoners were killed at a recently integrated state prison road camp Sunday night, state officials said today, when disgruntled convicts fired scrap paper and inadvertently turned their locked barracks into a flaming oven.

Forty-four of the 51 prisoners inside the burning building were rescued. Five were hospitalized at nearby Century with burns. One was taken to the intensive care unit at a Pensacola hospital and eight were transferred to the jail at Pensacola.

The fire was set by prisoners, said Louis Wainwright, director of the State Corrections Division. A guard saw two prisoners

one a Negro and another white — touching lighted matches to newspapers, Wainwright said.

Rail Service Blocked By Massive Strike

Don't Kid, Says Boyd; 'It's Chaos'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's biggest rail strike in 20 years virtually wiped out commuter service, cut ties between farm and market and partially blocked the flow of arms for Vietnam today. Chances for quick congressional legislation that might end the walkout fell considerably.

Senate and House conferees, who have been unable for several weeks to agree on legislation to prevent the strike, gave up again today on legislation to end the strike after one hour of talks and tossed the problem back to both houses.

The walkout by 137,000 shopcraft union workers completely shut down 30 railroads—virtually the nation's entire rail complex, with only scattered parts of New England and the South escaping the strike.

Nearly 400,000 commuters used to catching trains into New York City, Chicago and Philadelphia fought their way instead onto highways or simply checked into city hotels to wait out the dispute.

Most of the commuter automobile traffic into New York moved slowly but smoothly although police reported that on some highways traffic was three times heavier than normal.

In Chicago, the traffic snarl was monumental. Three major expressway routes into the city were torn up for massive repairs and even before the rush hour began, officials had predicted the worst jam in the city's history.

Philadelphia and other Northeast cities also reported automotive traffic considerably heavier than normal, but there were no insurmountable delays.

Chicago's expressways, torn up for massive repairs, were reported bursting with traffic as the rush hour began.

Police in New York said only a "slightly heavier" than usual number of cars was heading for Manhattan.

Philadelphia, where 57,000 commuters were displaced, reported no exceptional delays.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said the strike already had interrupted the weekly movement of 1,000 ammunition-carrying freight cars to the West Coast for transshipment to Vietnam, and called the

Quick Move by Congress Expected in Rail Tieup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Swift action by Congress to end the rail strike was paced today only by delays of congressional procedure. All should be washed away by nightfall and a bill placed on President Johnson's desk.

The Senate-House Conference Committee—which had stalled for a month—broke up to permit new votes by the Senate and House under pressure of a nationwide strike that was slowly freezing the economy and shipments to the Vietnam war front.

The Senate was scheduled to vote first. Then the bill would go to the House where Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., who had battled against any form of compulsory settlement, said he looked for final action today.

After a House-Senate conference failed to reach agreement on a compromise of bills each had passed, Sen. Mike Mansfield, of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, predicted legislation to end the strike would be enacted within two or three hours.

Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., said he thought the House would go along with whatever bill the Senate passes.

The House-Senate conference broke up after a last unsuccessful effort on a Senate labor situation and a House bill trying to avoid compulsion.

The way thus was opened for the Senate to re-pass its bill, with technical amendments relating to the strike, and then send it to the House for action later in the day.

The House, which last month rejected the Senate proposal, is expected to go along this time, sending the measure to President Johnson and giving him an opportunity to sign it and put into action the machinery to stop the tieup which has halted most of the nation's rail traffic.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., the first conferee to leave the room, told reporters, "The Senate delegation voted unanimously to break up in disagreement."

The result, he said, is that the bill will be brought up in the Senate for re-passage soon after that body convenes at noon.

He said it would be necessary for the measure to be amended because some of its original language was not applicable now that a stoppage is on.

30,000 Within State Search for New Rides

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Some 30,000 commuters had to scrape for alternate means of transportation this morning as the New Haven Railroad lay paralyzed by the nationwide railroad strike.

About 24,000 persons normally take the line to reach their jobs in New York and some 6,000 depend on the road for daily transportation to Boston.

The shutdown, begun at 12:01 a.m. today, meant agony for the long-suffering bankrupt line as well as for its passengers and freight customers.

"If this strike lasts more than a few days, the New Haven railroad will not operate in its present system," Richard Joyce Smith, a trustee for the line said Sunday evening. "We have no money and we can't afford the drain on our very slim cash resources."

State police at the Westport barracks reported that traffic on the Merritt Parkway was about twice as heavy as it was last Monday. But on the Connecticut Turnpike, traffic volume was about normal, state police said.

The parkway has fewer tolls, an officer noted.

Norwalk Mayor Frank N. Zullo called a meeting with commuters for Monday night to discuss ways of getting transportation to New York City.

Virtually all the railroad's 9,300 employees are idled by the strike. Only a small contingent of supervisory personnel came to perform routine maintenance chores and to stand watch over the immobile rolling stock.

The New Haven, fifth largest passenger line in the U.S., carried 24 million passengers last year.

The New Haven had originally announced its intention to maintain at least partial operations in the face of the nationwide strike. Sunday afternoon it had announced that it was canceling its New York passenger trains, but that it would try to keep most of its freight service and other passenger service going.

"But the unions wouldn't buy it," a railroad spokesman said today of the attempt to keep some freight service operating. The spokesman said the super-

McNamara's Viet Visits Recall Vast Differences

An AP News Analysis
By HELMAN MORIN
NEW YORK (AP)—Since 1962, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has gone to South Vietnam nine times and after each visit a statement was issued on the war as it appeared then and an official estimate of the future course of events.

A vast difference stands between the first and ninth statements. It indicates three things:

1. The ability of the Vietnamese—demonstrated repeatedly in 2000 years—to confound their enemies.

2. In years of independence, they defeated the Chinese in the distant past and the French in the 1850's. After 1962, Vietnamese Communists escalated the war more rapidly and more effectively than American officials apparently anticipated.

3. Misplaced optimism in Washington.

In 1963, the White House issued a statement saying the "major part" of the U.S. military effort could be completed "by the end of 1965."

"The problem of how much to report about the war and how frankly to report it.

Military men usually claim they must fog over the facts, or not state them at all, so as not to reveal information of value to the enemy, and to avoid damaging the morale of troops in the field and civilians at home. For example, in 1963 the New York Times quoted an official as saying, "I admit the press was sometimes lied to in Saigon in the past, but that does not mean that lying has continued and that the official word can never be taken at face value."

In any event, here are the nine statements issued following McNamara's trips and the events that followed:

1962—After a visit of two weeks, the secretary said the United States had "no plan for introducing combat forces into South Vietnam." He said he was "tremendously encouraged" by developments there. American forces then amounted to 8,000 men.

President John F. Kennedy defined their role as "training and transportation, and we are assisting in every way we properly can the people of South Vietnam." He touched on the problem of official disclosures in saying, "This is an area where there is a good deal of danger and it's a matter of information."

In October, six months later, American troop strength rose to 10,000. More significantly, they no longer were engaged solely in "training and transportation." Correspondents noted that the soldiers were firing first and not merely returning enemy fire.

1963—On Oct. 2, after a survey in Vietnam, McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor reported to Kennedy. The White House then issued a statement which said:

"(They) reported their judgment that the major part of the U.S. military task can be completed by the end of 1965, although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of U.S. training personnel.

"They reported that by the end of this year the U.S. program for training should have progressed to a point where 1,000 U.S. military personnel assigned to Vietnam can be withdrawn."

American military forces then were reported to total 14,000, an increase of 4,000 in a year.

On November 2, Ngo Dinh Diem, president of South Vietnam, was assassinated.

In a news conference Nov. 14, a reporter asked Kennedy if the

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

Last week we talked about the same vague, watery tone colors as Debussy. Debussy is much freer in his musical structure than Ravel; in fact, Ravel frequently displays an almost classic involvement with form. This is generally lost on the average concert-goer who usually knows nothing of musical structure.

In the early 19th century, France went in strongly for opera, and Meyerbeer ruled the roost in the country. He wasn't French, except by adoption, and he wasn't a great composer. He did manage to establish the form of French opera, which is generally very long, in five acts, with a ballet in the third act.

Similarly, "Perechere de Perse" and "Carmen" are the two sole survivors of Bizet's output. Who hears anything by Bizet, Lehar, Spontini, Auber, Boieldieu, Berlioz, and Liszt? Yes there are streets in Paris named for very few of these more popular composers.

Among these are "Psyche," which is about the only French symphony you are likely to encounter, and it is played far more frequently than it deserves. There are a number of excellent symphonic poems by Franck, however, which are thoroughly neglected.

There are other French composers such as Satie, Poulenc, Milhaud, Honegger, and so on. They are not in a class with Debussy and Ravel, and in general their music is dying out just as the composers themselves have died out in recent years.

Railroads Cannot Be Free

The way we run our railroads hasn't made sense for a very long time. They are a national necessity which are nevertheless allowed the status of a private enterprise. They are a private enterprise which are nonetheless subjected to a greater degree of public regulation and control than would be contained in any ordinary definition of the status of private.

Their ownership finds its freedom always mixed with some degree or form of public subsidy.

Their labor enjoys the freedom to strike if Congress indulges that particular brand of inaction which permits it to strike.

Our catalogue of the mixed characteristics of the railroad business has now reached the point where we stand today.

Congress has been too busy—with other matters and with vacillating—to take a positive vote renewing its denial to the railroad unions of the right to strike.

Under Congress under the system, has little choice to act in a hurry and renew its denial of the right to strike.

When the railroads are struck, the result is instant emergency which establishes, clearly and dramatically, how absolutely essential they are to the normal business life of the nation.

Our instant reaction to the moment strike does occur, ought to be enough to sharpen policy and help create a system for running the railroads, which will be free of the political drama in which railroads, unions, public and government almost regularly repeat soap opera roles which have the unfortunate property of being momentary only.

It ought to be a system which does not depend upon perpetual new action by Congress to keep it in effect and keep it working.

The evident contradiction inherent in the very nature and importance of the railroads—neither their management nor labor can have the full freedom that might exist in another industry—has to be tightened down and made firmer.

In Dodge City, Too

We commented here, the other day, on the mounting tide of revolution and against and criticism of the war in Vietnam in very high places.

What we noticed at high political level has been paralleled, at the grass root level, by a Wall Street Journal correspondent's report on sentiment in Dodge City, Kansas.

The correspondent, Everett Groselove, acknowledges the gun-slugging tradition of the town, and the fact that it has historically been steeped in "shoot-outs" folklore.

"But you wouldn't guess it now," he writes, "talking to them about the Vietnam war."

Here are a few of the quotes from his report:

"After a year's absence, a visitor quickly detects a change in public opinion when he returns to assess once again the impact Vietnam is having on this town."

"The town is no more of doubt, but neither does it display the basic-idea spirit it did a year ago. Many Kansans who staunchly backed U.S. Vietnam policy not long ago now aren't sure that policy is right."

"There's a strong undercurrent of change here," says Mayor Frank B. Maple. "People are beginning to question everything—especially what our leaders tell us and the wisdom of going ahead in Vietnam."

"Outright doves are appearing in the Dodge City scene, which wasn't the case a year ago."

"As doves and other discontented people come into the open, hawks are starting to feel lonely and uneasy."

Israel Looks At The UN

Under the harsh desert sun of Palestine the harsh desert God of the Old Testament takes on a new reality. In Westminister or even First Street, the doctrine of eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth seems crude and static. On the Syrian heights, whose guns beat the kibbutzim in Northern Galilee at their mercy until a few weeks ago—or in the Gaza Strip where the Israeli Army held absolute sway—some roomful of anti-Jewish paintings, which might have been produced by the SS and were in fact produced by 12-year-old Arab schoolgirls—it has, if only for a moment, the plausible symmetry of a religious doctrine.

The astonishing thing about Israel at present, then, is not that there may have been cases of looting by Jewish soldiers or that refugees from the West Bank of the Jordan may have been driven to the kibbutzim of the Allenby Bridge. Still less is it the universal determination to keep Jerusalem a religiously neutral zone from the occupied territories until the Arab States make peace. The astonishing thing is the almost total absence of desire for revenge which most Frenchmen felt about Germany in 1918 and those bloody days two years ago and which, for that matter, most Arabs have been taught to feel about Israel since 1948.

Israel's current mood, it is true, is not one of universal sweetness and light. Like most small and beleaguered peoples, the Israelis are apt to assume that the world revolves around them. Life in a ghetto, which takes the form of a brilliant and articulate center of officials of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, who mixed with some degree or form of public subsidy.

Their labor enjoys the freedom to strike if Congress indulges that particular brand of inaction which permits it to strike.

Our catalogue of the mixed characteristics of the railroad business has now reached the point where we stand today.

Congress has been too busy—with other matters and with vacillating—to take a positive vote renewing its denial to the railroad unions of the right to strike.

Under Congress under the system, has little choice to act in a hurry and renew its denial of the right to strike.

When the railroads are struck, the result is instant emergency which establishes, clearly and dramatically, how absolutely essential they are to the normal business life of the nation.

Our instant reaction to the moment strike does occur, ought to be enough to sharpen policy and help create a system for running the railroads, which will be free of the political drama in which railroads, unions, public and government almost regularly repeat soap opera roles which have the unfortunate property of being momentary only.

It ought to be a system which does not depend upon perpetual new action by Congress to keep it in effect and keep it working.

The evident contradiction inherent in the very nature and importance of the railroads—neither their management nor labor can have the full freedom that might exist in another industry—has to be tightened down and made firmer.

In Dodge City, Too

We commented here, the other day, on the mounting tide of revolution and against and criticism of the war in Vietnam in very high places.

What we noticed at high political level has been paralleled, at the grass root level, by a Wall Street Journal correspondent's report on sentiment in Dodge City, Kansas.

The correspondent, Everett Groselove, acknowledges the gun-slugging tradition of the town, and the fact that it has historically been steeped in "shoot-outs" folklore.

"But you wouldn't guess it now," he writes, "talking to them about the Vietnam war."

Here are a few of the quotes from his report:

"After a year's absence, a visitor quickly detects a change in public opinion when he returns to assess once again the impact Vietnam is having on this town."

LOS ANGELES—"We don't know how many unemployed we have. We don't even know how many people live here." That was the bleak commentary to the brilliant and articulate center of officials of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, who mixed with some degree or form of public subsidy.

A Thought for Today

The Word of God Recently, a minister in our town told me he thought the Bible was "full of baloney." When more sophisticated language is employed the Bible is said to be full of myth, saga or folk legend. Many so-called biblical scholars believe the Bible to be full of scientific and historical error. They should be frankly admitted from the pulpit in order to make the Bible more acceptable to modern man with all his enlightenment.

Graduates Late Problem Delays UN Suez Observation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The five-nation Arab summit conference in Cairo (saw) the Egyptian and Israeli negotiators who agreed to take "effective measures to erase the consequences of aggression" and called for a cease-fire stand. They also renewed the Arab charge of U.S. and British collusion with Israel in the war.

The leaders who attended the meeting were Presidents Gamal Abdel Nasser, Abdel Rahman Aref of Iraq, Houari Boumediene of Algeria, Nouruddin Atassi of Syria and Ismail El Ashari of Sudan.

Boumediene, who contributed only a few planes to the Egyptian military force, is expected to send war equipment and men to aid the shattered Egyptian military force. Iraq reportedly will continue its embargo on oil shipments to the United States and Britain, while Sudan will send farm commodities to Egypt.

In New York the emergency session of the General Assembly was a month old today. The Soviet Union, which demanded that the session be adjourned for at least two more days in the hope of negotiating a resolution calling for withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab territory.

The Egyptian government announced it has informed all Israeli attempts to move boats on the Suez Canal would be considered a violation of the cease-fire and Egyptian forces would immediately open fire.

On the Egyptian side of the canal, five U.N. truce officers and seven assistants were set up in headquarters in a hotel at Ismailia, midpoint on the 164-mile waterway.

The observer unit on the Israeli side raised the blue and white U.N. flag over a headquarters at El Qantara, and a large Israeli escort took three observers on a tour of the canal to stake out spots for observation posts. The first unit was made up of four officers and seven U.N. civilian employees.

The Australian leader of the group at El Qantara, Maj. Ronald Skinner, said there would be a grand building of observers along the canal.

The observers moved into the canal area after the three-day cease-fire of fighting following the June Arab-Israeli war and a new cease-fire worked out Saturday night at U.N. headquarters in New York.

The Egyptian government said 50 Egyptians were killed and 134 were wounded in the fighting Friday and Saturday and that many were civilians. The Israelis reported eight of their soldiers and 40 wounded.

The Israeli newspaper Haaretz linked the fighting to Israel's supply lines to the Suez Canal from which Egypt has barred Israeli ships and cargo bound for Israel since the Jewish state was founded in 1948.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said he would permit Egyptian boats to use the canal if Egypt does not interfere with Israeli use.

At the moment the canal is blocked by several ships sunk in it during the war. Egypt says it will do nothing about removing them.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent Alport to Salisbury to "take the temperature" for possible reopening of talks with the breakaway regime. The envoy was to meet with Wilson today, and the prime minister will tell the House of Commons later whether talks will begin again.

WASHINGTON—About 90 per cent of the population of the United States lives in areas where the sale of distilled spirits is legal. All 50 states permit liquor sales, but many counties and other governmental divisions within the states are "dry."

But another cold front is expected to move eastward during Tuesday, possibly reaching Western Connecticut during the day.

Five-day Forecast
Temperatures over Connecticut Tuesday through Saturday are expected to average below normal with daytime temperatures in the 50s and low 60s and overnight temperatures in the 40s and 50s.

Vernon Two Retired Town Employees First to Get New Benefits

The first two men to benefit from the town retirement plan since it went into effect with Vernon's consolidation two years ago received their first checks last week.

Lewis D. Skinner of 4 Loveland Rd. and George Goff of 56 Hammond St. were the first to receive their checks.

Skinner has been at Vernon Elementary School since 1962. Goff, who started at the same school in 1951 when it opened, moved to the high school in 1954.

Both men were employed by the town before the consolidation. Skinner was a janitor and Goff was a custodian.

The town's new retirement plan provides for a pension of 50 per cent of the employee's salary at the time of retirement.

The plan also provides for a lump-sum payment at the time of retirement. The amount of the payment depends on the employee's age and years of service.

The town's new retirement plan is one of the best in the state. It provides for a high level of protection for retired employees.

The town's new retirement plan is a result of the town's consolidation. It allows the town to pool resources and provide a better benefit for its employees.
