UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg today asked North Vietnam for a definite and specific statement as to whether the U.S. bombing would lead to meaningful negotiations with the North.

Movie Maker Shot to Death

Filming Scene

WHITESBURG, Ky. (AP)—A prominent Canadian film producer was shot to death Wednesday as he and a four-man production crew filmed scenes of poverty in this mountainous eastern Kentucky area.

Hugh O'Connor died soon after being hit with a .38-caliber slug in his chest. Robert Iton, 69, of the Jeremiah community, was charged with murder. A hearing was set for this afternoon.

The 46-year-old Montreal native was on leave from the Canadian National Film Board to produce a film on "All Walks of Life in the United States" for Francis Thompson, Inc., a New York City firm that specializes in educational documentaries.

Iton owns a cluster of houses at a coal mine camp about five miles north of here on Ky Route 7. It was this cluster of houses that the crew was filming when O'Connor was shot to death.

The O'Connor crew told this story to state and county authorities. They stopped to take pictures of some people beside the road.

After 40 minutes of picture-taking, when they were winding up their session, a car drove up and a man who had never been seen before yelled, "Get off my property!"

The crew members and O'Connor began gathering their gear when the man fired two shots above them.

Shainwold on Bridge

By ALFRED SHAINWOLD

Two leading English bridge writers, Terence Reese and Albert Dormer, are hard at work on a book on the play of the cards, to be published next year. See if you can learn anything from their book by sampling one in their hands.

Opening left-Jack of Clubs. You win the opening club lead in dummy with the ace and lead a low heart to the ace. Mind reader would lead dummy's queen of hearts, but the actual play is the better choice. You are more likely to find the singleton king in either opponent's hand than the singleton Jack specifically in the West hand.

You continue with the king of clubs, a club ruff in dummy and then a trump to the king. East returns a low spade, and you wonder whether to play the king or the jack. Do you decide, or do you just guess? If you guess wrong, you'd be better off putting your order in for that Reese-Dormer book than this article.

Indirect Method
 Short of peaking, there's no direct method to locate the ace of spades. The indirect method depends on the ace of diamonds. You don't know which opponent has the ace of diamonds but you must play on the assumption that East has it; otherwise you will eventually lose two diamond tricks and your contract.

The opening lead indicates that East has the queen of clubs, and he has shown up with the doubling king of hearts. If, in addition to these and the ace of spades he would have opened the bidding with his 13

Buenos Aires Tourists Can Easily Afford Taxis

Buenos Aires (AP) — You can take a taxi ride for an hour across this sprawling city and the price will be less than $1.50.

The cabbie will complain about traffic and the bus drivers who cut him off at intersections. He'll talk about Vietnam and New York cabbies, but surprisingly he won't complain about his income.

Despite the low fare and the stiff competition from buses and taxis, the Buenos Aires hackie is a prosperous middle-class businessman. Most own their cabs and take home about 75,000 pesos ($215) monthly—well above the average white-collar wage.

Some 20,000 taxis serve nearly eight million people in metropolitan Buenos Aires, according to the Taxi Owners' Association. Many Argentines, unable to afford their own cars, rely on cabs for commuting. The drivers say business booms the first week of each month, when wages are paid.

"The trouble is, people spend their money fast in this city," says one driver said. "After two or three days they take buses."

The average fare is 80-100 pesos (24-30 cents). To insure good profits, the owners work hard, usually putting in 10 or 11 hours at the wheel each day.

Government regulation has provided uniformity. Licenses are required and rates are standard. The Argentine peso is so often in the past few years, however, that meter prices are obsolete. The number shown on the meter at the end of the ride is used only to compute the actual, higher price, from a standard chart issued periodically by the city government.

Cars of all models and colors are used for cabs, but European compacts seem to be the most popular.

Probably the toughest job the driver has is trying to get into the business. The price of a license is nominal, but the red tape is devastating.

Traffic control in Buenos Aires is rather informal. At some of the busiest intersections there are neither traffic lights nor cops. Side and speed decide the right-of-way, with size prevailing in a showdown.

A taxi driver interviewed and stopped at an intersection, nearly bowled over three pedestrians, then stopped in a near-skid as a sluggish but unheated bus ambled across his path.

"You see that," said the arm driver waving one arm. "They have no respect at all."

Hunt Pressed For Attacker

Police pressed their search today for a man described as 40 who attacked and cut 12-year-old Marilyn Dyer yesterday as she walked across a vacant lot at Center St. on her way to the church of the Assumption.

Det. Lt. Joseph Sartor, head of Manchester's detective bureau, said detectives have questioned several suspects and are continuing the investigation. The victim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Dyer of 45 Fairview St., was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital yesterday for cuts on both arms and released.

DeMolay Sets Installation

The Fayette Chapter, Order of DeMolay will hold a semi-public installation of officers this Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Masonic Temple on Orchard St. in Rockville.

The Master Councilor-elect is William R. Dumas Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dumas Sr. of 18 Fox Hill Dr. He graduated from Rockville High School and is a freshman at the University of Connecticut.

Marilyn told police she left home about 7:22 yesterday morning and walked across Center St. to a vacant lot between Gentler's Market and Comet Gas station.

She was walking down a path in the lot toward Coolidge St. when she saw the attacker toward her near some trees.

The man said, "Come here, kid," she said.

The youngster then started to run but fell. The attacker, described as a white male, five feet seven and six feet tall, caught up to her. Sartor said and married up her legs with some sort of instrument.

Police do not believe it was a knife, however.

The man, wearing a grey sport jacket and grey cotton work pants, then ran to the Marlyn, an 8th grader at Assumption Junior High School, went to school after being released from the hospital.

Sunken Gold Found Off Scilly Islands

LONDON (AP)—Divers have found a sunken blanket of gold and silver coins believed to be part of a $23 million treasure that disappeared into the Atlantic's grayness with three ships of Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovel's Mediterranean fleet in 1707.

Fortune-hunters had been searching for it ever since.

A private expedition, supported by a Royal Navy unit, hauled up 1,600 gold and silver guineas, crowns and pieces of eight Wednesday from about 100 feet of water off the Scilly Islands, some 25 miles from England's extreme southwestern tip.

"This is only a fraction of what is down there," a diver said.

The first coins discovered were English, French and Portuguese, some carrying a date later than 1717.

Diver Geoffrey Upton, 34, told of finding the treasure. "It was a very dark and uninviting hole. The only way to get through was to take off my breathing set, plug it through first and swim after it. It led to a deep gully and suddenly I saw a carpet of silver coins stretching in front of me."

Some naval historians have estimated the fleet carried worth a million pounds—$15 million—on Shovel's fleet was lost on its voyage home from a successful naval engagement with France off the coast of Spain.

The story goes that the fleet became confused about its position and the admiral called a conference of his officers to figure out where they were. A presumptuous cabin boy suggested that it was somewhere near the rocky Scilly Islands and was hanged from a yard-arm.

At dawn the following day, the fleet set sail again in fog. Within hours it rained the Scilly reefs and sank, taking 1,600 men to the bottom. The admiral, who was washed ashore, was said to have had his throat cut by an old woman who wanted his diamond rings.

Sunken Gold Found Off Scilly Islands

LONDON (AP)—Divers have found a sunken blanket of gold and silver coins believed to be part of a $23 million treasure that disappeared into the Atlantic's grayness with three ships of Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovel's Mediterranean fleet in 1707.

Fortune-hunters had been searching for it ever since.

A private expedition, supported by a Royal Navy unit, hauled up 1,600 gold and silver guineas, crowns and pieces of eight Wednesday from about 100 feet of water off the Scilly Islands, some 25 miles from England's extreme southwestern tip.

"This is only a fraction of what is down there," a diver said.

The first coins discovered were English, French and Portuguese, some carrying a date later than 1717.

Diver Geoffrey Upton, 34, told of finding the treasure. "It was a very dark and uninviting hole. The only way to get through was to take off my breathing set, plug it through first and swim after it. It led to a deep gully and suddenly I saw a carpet of silver coins stretching in front of me."

Some naval historians have estimated the fleet carried worth a million pounds—$15 million—on Shovel's fleet was lost on its voyage home from a successful naval engagement with France off the coast of Spain.

The story goes that the fleet became confused about its position and the admiral called a conference of his officers to figure out where they were. A presumptuous cabin boy suggested that it was somewhere near the rocky Scilly Islands and was hanged from a yard-arm.

At dawn the following day, the fleet set sail again in fog. Within hours it rained the Scilly reefs and sank, taking 1,600 men to the bottom. The admiral, who was washed ashore, was said to have had his throat cut by an old woman who wanted his diamond rings.

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

BY DORIS BELDING
 Beef and Rice Oriental is a favorite recipe of Mrs. John (Gail) Hinchon of 36 Jean St., who says she usually serves it when entertaining guests.

Beef and Rice Oriental
 2 pounds lean beef, chuck or round, cut into 3x1-inch cubes and trimmed of all fat.

Marinade
 1 cup lemon juice
 1 tablespoon cooking oil
 1 tablespoon grated onion
 1 clove garlic, peeled and crushed
 1 teaspoon celery salt
 1/4 teaspoon powdered cinnamon

The day before serving beef mix ingredients for marinade in bowl. Add beef cubes and stir, making sure that each cube is covered with marinade. Cover bowl tightly with plastic wrap or aluminum foil to retain odors, and refrigerate overnight.

On the day of preparing Beef Oriental, have on hand the following ingredients:
 1 teaspoon instant meat tenderizer
 1 1/2 cups water
 4 teaspoons soy sauce
 2 teaspoons salt
 1 tablespoon sugar
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 3/4 to 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 2 (one-pound) cans bean sprouts, drained
 1 (five-ounce) can water chestnuts, drained and sliced thin
 1 (five-ounce) can bamboo shoots, drained
 2 (nine-ounce) packages frozen Italian green beans or frozen snow peas
 1 ripe tomato, peeled and sliced
 4 to 4 1/2 cups hot, cooked rice

Stir meat in marinade and sprinkle meat tenderizer over beef. Pierce each piece of meat deeply and many times with a fork. Transfer meat and marinade to a three-quart kettle. Add water and seasoning. Simmer until just fork-tender, about one and one-half to two hours. Thicken slightly with a thin paste of cornstarch and cold water. Allow contents of kettle to boil one to two minutes.

Add bean sprouts, green beans water chestnuts and bamboo shoots. Simmer 10 to 15 minutes.

State Is Asked To Help Provide Job Potential

WATERBURY (AP) — The state has been asked by a New Haven neighborhood group to help organize a factory to provide jobs for young people and to help develop housing units for low-income families to own.

The Hill Group, represents about 600 residents of the neighborhood hardest hit in recent violence in New Haven.

The group made its plea Wednesday to the State Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities.

The commission was also asked to support a plan for opening up new job opportunities for the Hill neighborhood and to help review policies of the private industry and the state in hiring Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

Harry Jefferys, president of the Hill group, asked the commission to help "work to encourage the State Board of Education, State Health and Welfare Departments and other state agencies to get poor people, especially poor Negroes and Puerto Ricans—into policy-making positions."

Jefferys said several young persons from the Hill "have expressed a real interest in police work."

He said his group was glad to hear that because "one of the real problems with the police is that they don't have enough Negroes and Puerto Ricans."

Jefferys said the Hill group proposes that the industrial plant to be set up in the Hill neighborhood be run by 15- to 25-year-olds.

"They would be their own bosses, sell their own products and declare their own dividends. There would be no dead ends," he said. "We plan to contract with manufacturers to make some of their tools and products."

As for the low-income housing, Jefferys said his group would use several methods including establishment of a rent-receive program.

In other action Wednesday, the commission decided it would establish a branch office in Bridgeport. The commission's main office is in Hartford.

 The section, a common business in an election year is something the administration can not take into consideration when it works out such foreign policy agreements in advance.
 Congressional votes are an instance of one way in which domestic politics interferes with foreign policy. It is not the most vicious or serious, perhaps, but it is one of the most senseless.

Re-Collecting
 Children collect things from summer and put them in their pockets. Adults collect memories.
 Children's memories will be there when they need them, but somewhere along the way adults lose the habit of picking up a shell, a stone, a flower—maybe because there was no longer anyone to bring them home to, maybe because grown-up brings things back from gift shops instead.

Perhaps it's just as well everyone doesn't comb the beaches and hills for bits of summer to carry through the winter. Certainly no one should strip a live white birch for a curl of bark.
 But one small handkerchief can recall the whole silent forest, and a handful of yellow and orange jingle shells, re-discovered when cleaning out a desk some wintry evening, can strengthen the hope that sand and surf will warm again.

A spring of sea lavender, a stalk of peary everlasting, collected, wait in the corner of a ready fern coollecting when the salty marsh is ice, the mountain pasture under drifts of snow.

High Cost of Higher Education
 Should the nation provide a free college education to everyone who wants it?

While that question would have seemed merely quaint a few years ago, it's now often posed in all seriousness—and frequently answered in the affirmative. The issue may influence more than just parental emotions.

Two of the nation's larger political subdivisions, New York City, and the State of California, already offer residents a higher education on a no-tuition basis. An increasing number of community junior colleges furnish two years of free college. And recently a committee of New York State's constitutional convention endorsed the idea of free higher education for all New Yorkers.

To many of the advocates of free colleges they are a logical extension of the secondary schools. The extension is necessary, they contend, because highly trained graduates are in ever greater demand in many lines of endeavor.
 One objection to that argument is that no one appears to know just how to pay the bill. The existing system in New York City and California have been so strapped for funds that some politicians have been known to guess what they might be able to do for them to start thinking about charging tuition.

As for New York State, there has not even been an attempt to guess what its free-college scheme would cost. With the state already taking of higher taxes to pay for its past freshness on medical care, however, taxpayers may question whether now is the time for higher-education largesse.

Another reason for free colleges is that economics bars many (the advocates claim) to be precise about how many) potentially productive citizens from higher education. Some deservingly students may indeed be so denied, but a great deal of scholarship and loan money is also going unused every year; perhaps what's needed most is a better way to bring the students and the money together.

In any case, there's reason to wonder whether the country's college facilities and staff could cope with any huge new influx of students. Even without a general free-college system, around 6 million Americans enrolled in institutions of higher education last year, well over double the figure for a decade earlier. In any such expansion, it has inevitably been extremely difficult to maintain, let alone improve, educational quality.

Marine casualties in the seven months up to Sept. 1 total 8,826, including 723 dead. Considering that roughly seven times that many regular North Vietnamese troops were also killed and wounded, the marine-enemy ratio is high in our favor.
 The trouble is that the enemy can replace his casualties from a reservoir of manpower now estimated at the better part of three divisions on or just north of the DMZ and another two divisions held in reserve in the southern portion of North Vietnam. The marines do not have that luxury without detaching essential units from elsewhere in the First Corps area.

That's why the district capital of Hoi An and the provincial capital of Quang Tri are more vulnerable today than at any time in the last six months.
 Quang Tri is hanging by a thread, a wa-thin U.S. official told us here. As for Hoi An, the Vietcong guerrillas are skilfully exploiting the shortage of U.S. and South Vietnamese forces by gradual expansion of their large holdings in the countryside—a reverse application of the "oil slick" theory by which our side had hoped to pacify the countryside in ever-expanding concentric circles.

But that is only half the story. The vast and crucial Danang Air Base, now one of the busiest airfields in the world, is actually more vulnerable today than six months ago. The reason is the 120-mm. enemy rocket, first used last May. This tactic mobile weapon (45 weights in total only 235 pounds, including its remote-firing device) has a range of seven miles, almost one mile further than the older 140-mm. rocket.

One of the most straightforward and crudest political maneuvers took place recently in the House of Representatives when that legislative group wrote into an appropriations bill a provision which would deny the British the right to submit bids to construct seven minesweepers.
 The object was to protect the interest of a couple of shipyards in Wisconsin against foreign competition. There is no telling what prompted House members to go along with it despite the fact that it embarrassed the administration in the conduct of its foreign policy. More important it put the United States in the position of backing out of a government with an ally, an agreement which carried at least as much advantage for this nation as for the British.
 The agreement was one under which the British would put work on the costly development of a high-speed fighter-bomber and buy the American F111 at a cost of about $3.6 billion. In exchange the British were to be permitted to sell DANANG, South Vietnam — The U. S. position here in the critical northern provinces of South Vietnam is deteriorating as the Communists press their remorseless campaign of attack, parry, and retreat.

With the rainy season beginning to subside the land under a cover of dark clouds, reducing U.S. air support, the odds rise for a lightning enemy thrust in regional strength to capture and hold for at least a few hours a provincial or district capital—Quang Tri, perhaps, which lies a few miles south of the border, or Hoi An, south of the marine bastion here at Danang.

While access of such a bold and ambitious plan would have little military influence on the war, its psychological impact could scarcely be exaggerated.
 "Our purpose," said North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, "is through a program of all-out attacks, to cause many casualties and so erode the U.S. will that the anti-war influence will gain decisive strength."

Prises for Project 67

To the Editor,
 We are deeply honored to be chosen by the Brotherhood in Action and the Manchester Business and Professional Women's Club as the beneficiary of their annual Charity Ball. It is my hope that the Charity Ball will be so successful that it will become an annual event as one of the leading social events in the city of Manchester.

"Project 67" will provide us with a very badly needed clothing store for our boys and girls. This will give mentally retarded young children and young adults the opportunity to select their own clothing as they would in any typical clothing store. This will include the opening of a complete and modern clothing store and will make available a great variety of clothing and provide the opportunity for selection to our boys and girls.

 Noting that Atty. Fuhr has already been developing plans about the 701 project in Manchester, Wholley said Fuhr's 17 years of legal experience "will enable the commission to tackle this federal program and all its legal ramifications in a realistic way to quickly bring the statute's benefits to South Windsor."
 The Democrats also noted that they are pleased to have Wholley as a candidate for the commission. He was elected to the commission in 1963.

South Windsor Trewhella Asks Better Use Of Experts in Government

Robert Trewhella, GOP candidate for the town council, today urged full use of the technical specialists available to the town.
 "One of the factors in the delay in the construction of the town hall was the lack of coordination of bond counsel activities with those of the architect and public building commission," he said.

Trewhella observed that the quasi-judicial nature of the zoning board of appeals is making decisions that affect property rights and values of many residents.
 "The legal concepts involved in making these decisions are becoming increasingly complex, yet the town's attorney is not in regular attendance to guide in the law involved in these decisions," he said.

Indicating that many thousands of dollars in bonds have been sold by the town, Trewhella questioned whether full use was being made of town treasurer and local banking authorities.
 "A practical Republican town council will press for closer supervision of hired technical specialists and better coordination of experts for the benefit of the town," he said.

"This must be done to see that we receive maximum benefit and proper utilization of available talent," Trewhella concluded.

Candidates Cited
 Democratic candidates for the planning and zoning commission have received added endorsement by the Democratic party.
 Morris Puhly, Joseph Wholley have been cited by the town committee and the party for their experience and dedication.

A Democratic candidate for the town council is also being cited by the party, saying that "Atty. Fuhr is the best planning and zoning commission candidate to be nominated for this office in a long time."

Wholley, a member of the zoning commission for some four years said of Atty. Fuhr that he will bring to the commission the legal mind of the commission has needed.

Continuing the incumbent Democratic said, "Fuhr is first of all, a legally trained individual of wealth and experience on administrative boards. He has worked extensively with the Federal Reserve Bank and has often found himself as the sole legal advisor on its boards."

Pan Am Crews End Short Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pan American World Airways was operating normally today following a brief walkout by several thousand workers.
 After a strike Wednesday of about 12 hours, the 7,000 Pan Am workers were recalled to work by the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks at the request of the National Mediation Board.
 The strike ostensibly involved a wage issue but an underlying issue was a representation dispute, still to be settled, between the clerks union and the Teamsters Union.
 Pan Am maintained it could not negotiate a new wage contract until the union issue was settled. The airline unilaterally granted a five cent per cent increase after the old contract expired.

Columbia
Zoning Commission Denies Charges by Peter Beckish

In recent weeks a controversy has raged in town over the proposed application of the town druggist, The Landmark, for a zoning permit for the full use of the premises, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Beckish, which is the subject of the Landmark's zoning application. The zoning commission has denied the permit because of the "discrimination" against the town druggist, which is a sign on the town green.

The zoning commission has not yet held a hearing on the application. The commission is expected to meet on Sept. 22. The commission's decision is expected to be final.

The zoning commission, in reply to Beckish's accusations, has released that information. A number of unjust charges have been made recently by Mr. Peter Beckish, owner of the Landmark, which reflect on the integrity of the Planning and Zoning Commission members.

Opposition denied. The commission has been reluctant to answer these charges since the members felt that to become involved in the resultant controversy would serve no useful purpose.

"It should first be noted that the zoning commission initiated the amendment which would allow low full use of the Landmark because it felt that this use, under proper control, would benefit the residents of Columbia. This is proof that the commission is not operating in principle, in the full use of the Landmark, as Mr. Beckish has so indicated.

"It is correct that a number of applications have been submitted by the Beckishes over the past several months. However, up until the first week of this month, not one of these applications submitted to the commission could legally be used to set up a public hearing, since either the site plans and/or applications were either incorrect or did not contain sufficient information on which the commission could proceed.

"Special meetings were set up for the Beckishes and their attorney in order to expedite their application."

The statement continued, "In anticipation of a corrected site plan, the commission proceeded to set up an Aug. 15 hearing date. This date was set forth by the Beckish's attorney, who

The state has agreed to put the project up for bids again if certain conditions are met. These include the entrance of the contractor, the entrance of the contractor, the entrance of the contractor.

Interstate Road Links Joining Across Nation

From Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Tampa, Fla., from Greensboro, N.C. to Barstow, Calif., the word is out: interstate is coming "in."

In bits and pieces stretched like broken chains from coast to coast and border to border, a checkerboard pattern of interstate highways are already crisscrossing the map.

Harried motorists plagued by narrow roads, numerous detours, stop signs and traffic lights may be in for smooth driving, sooner than they think.

The key, however, is money. Especially federal money. Interstate costs are met 90 percent by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and 10 percent by the states.

One of the longest transcontinental routes, Interstate 40, which runs from Barstow to Greensboro, is not expected to be fully completed until 1973.

While long stretches of these and other interstates are finished and open, bottlenecks remain.

The North Carolina Highway Commission, which is in the process of rescheduling its building program to meet recently revised federal requirements, has not even fixed estimated completion dates for two sections of Interstate 40 near Asheville.

Arkansas has 130.7 miles of Interstate 40 in use—and 118.7 miles to finish. Arizona has 126.3 miles completed and 82.4 miles under construction. Work hasn't started on several sections and highway officials have set tentative completion dates from 1970 to 1973.

States along Interstate 75 also have reported varying degrees of progress. By the end of 1970, if current construction plans are met, drivers should have a continuous road from Canada to Knoxville, Tenn.

Heading south, however, motorists would face construction bottlenecks between Denver City and Cleveland in Tennessee and in the Cartersville-Marionetta area of Georgia probably until 1973.

Despite the detours now, it looks like the finished interstates of the 1970s may bring frustrated motorists a better chance to see the United States—without getting lost.

Queen Mary In N.Y. on Final Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — The aging Queen Mary — fast enough to outrun Hitler's U-boats as a troopship a generation ago but unable to keep pace with jet age travel—arrived under gray and amber skies today on the first leg of her 50th and last transatlantic round trip.

She carried 1,500 passengers—many of them Americans who flew to England for the sentimental journey.

She carried 1,500 passengers — many of them Americans who flew to England for the sentimental journey. Friday the 31-year-old one-time sea queen sailed home to Southampton where thousands saw the British national ensign, raised and waved. She departed last Saturday on her last trip to New York.

And next month comes a 35-day final passenger cruise around Cape Horn to Long Beach, Calif., which has bought the Queen Mary for $5.5 million to use as a floating hotel and museum.

The Queen Mary, whose first class passengers felt as if they were floating in Buckingham Palace during the ship's days of splendor, has been losing 2.1 million a year for the Cunard Line in recent years.

She and her sister ship, the Queen Elizabeth, which will retire next year, are being replaced by the Cunard Line's Queen Elizabeth II at Clydebank, Scotland, Wednesday.

The $1,000-ton Queen Mary, second biggest passenger ship in the world next to the 25,000-ton Queen Elizabeth, cost $30 million. She was the fastest on the transatlantic run until the United States of the United States Lines took the title from her in 1952.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a few minutes beside the White House, the conflicting psychology of protesting humans and law-enforcing police seemed to precipitate a hot-weather riot.

Some 100 partisans of the Women's Strike for Peace, angry because new regulations limit picketing in front of the White House, announced they would picket the White House, though their weight Wednesday against a thin, bluish line of the 86-degree weather.

The officers were stretched across the White House side walk, arm linked in arm, to make sure the allowed maximum of 100 pickets already on the scene would not be joined by their colleagues in front of the executive mansion.

The women showed and pushed, blood showed on the shoulders of one police officer and feelings apparently ran high on both sides of the skirmish line in the 86-degree weather.

A hand-batted motorcycle sergeant from the Park Police, watching his colleagues try to fend off the assault of the women who were not part of the Vietnam war, rushed up to a superior and said: "These men can't continue to take this. Let's get some gas and break 'em up."

Another side budged until, long after the two minutes had expired, a deputy chief of police of the District of Columbia took over the same microphone and said: "If the ladies, he said, would simply cross Pennsylvania Ave-

Gals' White House Protest Nearly Ignites Violence

Speedy Trains Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department is postponing until the first of the year the start of the new passenger service between Washington and New York.

Service had been set to start Oct. 29.

The system involves the use of self-propelled electric cars on the 20-mile trip, but not enough of these are ready, department announced after a meeting with spokesmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Budd Co., manufacturer of the cars.

In addition, the announcement said, performance and reliability tests must be completed.

The federal government is providing $11.5 million for the project while the Pennsylvania Railroad is contributing $45 million.

Nes Gets New Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has assigned a new job to the diplomat who three months ago claimed the administration ignored his warnings about the coming of a Mideast war. The war erupted in June.

David Nes made his charge after he and most other diplomats were expelled from Cairo when Egypt broke diplomatic relations with this country.

Nes will report to work Monday at the department's bureau of intelligence and research, analyzing situations in foreign countries and evaluating diplomatic and other reports.

Nes, 50, has considerable experience in affairs of Arab and Southeast Asia and the Middle East but it wasn't known which area he will specialize in. He was head of the U.S. Embassy in Cairo as charge d'affaires between March 1967 and May 21, when the newly designated ambassador, Richard H. Nolte, arrived.

CAPITAL FOOTNOTES

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are taking turns as acting chairman at their three-weekly meetings in the absence of the chairman, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, who's on convalescent leave. A recent hospital examination showed that Wheeler suffered minor heart damage during the past year.

CAPITAL QUOTE

"We're not gonna go!" — Members of the Women's strike for Peace to police who told them only a limited number could picket in front of the White House in protest against the Vietnam war.

DRIVERS, BE PREPARED

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — It's still officially summer, but they take the changes of seasons seriously—and early around here.

The operator of a downtown garage has a sign on the wall: "Prepare to Meet Your Winter."

MRS. GRASSO INVITED

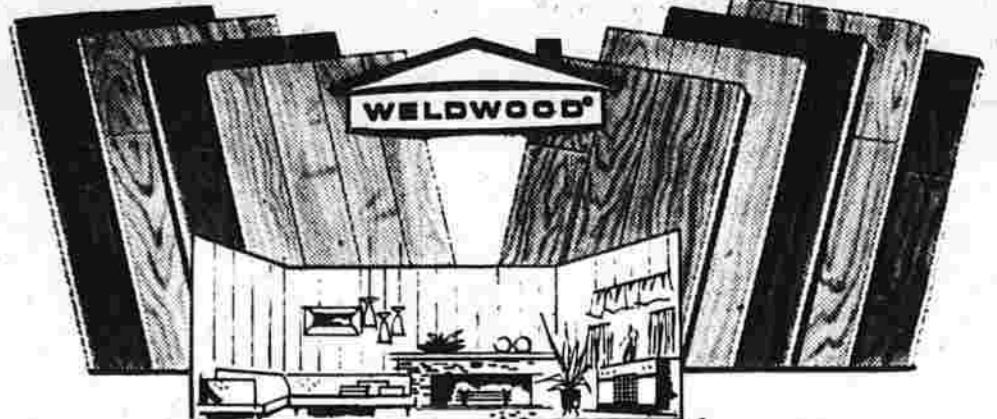

HARTFORD (AP) — Vice President Hubert Humphrey has invited Secretary of the State, Eliot T. Grasso to attend a luncheon Tuesday honoring Giuseppe Saragat, president of the Italian Republic.
