

Through These Doors . . .

Young Men's Christian Association

Through the door of 32 fathers in Manchester pass 32 sons (some bringing more than one lad) as they participate in the YMCA program "Y-Indian Guides". This Y program is a national YMCA program which has been a part of the YMCA service since 1926. Its main purpose is to increase the number of activities that fathers and sons can do together at an age when a boy thinks his Dad is the greatest man in the world.

Youngsters at the YMCA

A tribe is composed of eight fathers and their sons who are six years of age and over. These tribal meetings are held in rotation in the homes of the fathers "Y-Indian" once a month. In addition once a month "Dads and lads" as a tribal unit participate in an extra-curricular activity. The program is planned by each unit to meet the interests of the group but there are suggested programs and activities available through the County office and a staff secretary works with the groups. Since its program is designed to reach a boy at an early age, it lengthens and enriches the time a father and son spend together and helps exclude the possibility of outside influences becoming the confidants of the son.

The first Hi-Y Club in Hartford County was organized in Manchester and has played an important part in the community life. Now that the county staff has been increased this year, this secretary's assignment is to reactivate this oldest of YMCA programs in Manchester. This is the Y program that has such activities as Youth and Government which provides vital training in leadership and understanding of the working of government.

The YMCA offers many other programs including educational and recreational trips (examples: Trips to West Point, the Connecticut submarine base, Burton, New York City, college football games, skiing in Vermont), track training classes, family swims at the Plainville YMCA building and the camping sessions at the YMCA Camp Woodstock. Many Manchester residents participate in these programs but it is hard to always pinpoint the community from which a person comes since the YMCA of Hartford County serves residents of 23 communities in the county.

Camp Woodstock has three sessions during the summer: The first session is for boys only, the second for girls only, and the third is for family camping. About 100 registered for each session. Four Manchester residents were on the unit of Camp Woodstock this summer.

The Hartford County YMCA has been in Manchester since 1918. In fact, many Manchester people helped organize the county YMCAs: Charles Holman served as president for many years and other organizers were W. Case, J. V. Lamberton, Charles S. Burr, Charles Kimball, Justice Charles S. House, Clarence Quimby, and Dr. Eugene David.

Manchester laymen serving on the Hartford County YMCA board of directors are attorneys George Katz Jr., and Donald P. Richter. John Bengston of Manchester is chairman of the directorate. Sheinwold on Bridge DELIGHTFUL BOOK "EXPLAINS DECEASE" By ALFRED SHEINWOLD Students of the game will find W.W. Kelley's book "Killing Defense at Bridge" both delightful and instructive. It will give you valuable practice in working out the location of the unseen cards—and then picking the right play.

West opens with the ace of diamonds, a very shrewd choice, and does some thinking as he looks at the dummy and his own hand. West should feel sure, Kelley points out, that South has both black aces and at least ten black cards to account for his very strong bidding. Since there is no trump, West must mentally assign South a reasonable hand which can be beaten.

West mentally gives his partner K-K of clubs and goes on with this thinking. If South is allowed to reach dummy with the king of hearts he will take a trump finesse and draw another round of trumps. The rest of the hand will be easy.

South Windsor Rescue Markers for Homes Are Offered by Fire Chief

Fire Chief Philip E. Crombie said today that rescue markers are now available to the aged, blind, bedridden and other handicapped citizens of South Windsor.

Chief Crombie pointed out that these markers will prove most valuable when fire equipment responds to a home where such an emblem is displayed.

Markers are available to anyone who has a home with a fire alarm. They are printed in fluorescent red and black, and are for easier visibility at night when a spotlight is turned on them.

Any resident interested in obtaining rescue markers for their home should contact the fire chief at 231 Main St., South Windsor, or Fire Marshal George C. Foster St.

A fire officer will call at the home and place the markers on the entrance and rear doors and on the door and window of the disabled person.

The service is free of charge.

Open Space Funds

The town of South Windsor is making its first application to the federal and state governments for participation in the open space program.

State and federal funds are being requested for the acquisition of additional land for the site of the new town hall, and if approved, these funds could reduce the cost to the town of the $70,000 project by some 75 per cent.

The federal department of Housing and Urban Development has received 50 per cent and the state an additional 25 per cent.

Taxes Paid

John W. Brown, collector of revenue for the town, reports that $1,646.72 in taxes have been paid as of Aug. 31 on the 1967 grand list. Some $1,747,142 remains outstanding.

Under the two installment plan, one-half of all taxes of $50 or more may be paid not later than Aug. 1, and the other half not later than Feb. 1, 1968.

Brown said delinquent taxes, which were due on the 1966 grand list, amount of $2,149,444 and that the total back taxes for the past 15 years total $47,800. One tax bill for $7.29 has remained unpaid since 1952.

Dr. Kuehn Named

Dr. Paul G. Kuehn of 729 Ellington Rd. has been installed for his second term as president of the Hartford unit of the American Cancer Society.

Paul Cassarino, Grand Knight of the Rev. Rosenberger Council, Knights of Columbus, has appointed Roland Desmarais chairman of the men's picnic to be held Saturday afternoon at the Kooc Clubhouse, A to Z Plaza, Sullivan Ave.

The menu will include a steak dinner and all Brother Knights and their guests are invited.

The council will also hold an "Italian Night" Oct. 28 in honor of Past Grand Knight Paul Bianucci. The affair will be held at the Village Lantern, Tolland Tpk., Manchester.

Tickets may be obtained from any council member. Set-ups will be provided. The public is invited.

and more of them are now circulating.

Many persons have saved halves as souvenirs of the late President John F. Kennedy whose likeness appears on the month's meeting of the Commission on the Coinage. It was the late President's 100th birthday anniversary that the commission decided to issue the silver halves.

Next year the commission will decide whether to recommend continuing using silver in halves after the Treasury assesses its silver stockpile.

Any decision on the metal content of halves or the future of the half dollar is ultimately up to the president, it was noted.

Bishop Pike Recalls Voice, 2 Cats, Names Are Seance Elements

NEW YORK (AP)—A voice called "Fletcher," two cats, the names of people who knew him at turning points in his life—these are some of the elements in the seance Bishop James A. Pike believes he communicated with his dead son, Jim.

Bishop Pike, resigned bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, took part in a Sept. 3 seance in Toronto telecast over CTV, the private Canadian network, on Sept. 17. The bishop said he received at the seance messages he considered authentic.

There are some of the names that appear in the transcript of the seance: Allan Spraggett, program moderator and editor of the Toronto Star. The Rev. Arthur Ford of Philadelphia, a widely known medium and ordained minister of the Diocese of Christ Church. "Fletcher," the deceased French-Canadian friend of Rev. Mr. Ford, called a "spirit guide" to bring forth third-person messages through the mouth of Ford when Ford is in a trance.

ly when Mr. Dau had not yet appeared even after the critical political week-end was over, and recalled that "the matter of Mr. Dau's detention is of no consequence."

On The Way

The X-15, piloted by Air Force Major William J. Knight on an eight minute flight from Edwards Air Force Base in California, attained a speed, the other day, of 4,834 miles per hour, with a peak altitude, for the flight, of 59,000 feet.

We are waiting, patiently and philosophically, for the inevitable day when the pilot of some X-15, successful as the X-15 is, is finally allowed to pull back the throttle and fling himself out into orbit, leave his way around the earth a time or two, and then point his nose down to earth again, and fly his way back to Edwards Air Force Base.

Thoughts On A War

Disenchantment with a war, by itself, is not new in our history. Even the revolution that gave us birth was not a unanimous uprising. The later embolism of the war, as it were, was usually referred to by many as "Mr. Madison's war."

At that time our internal civil war was century ago have seen anything quite like the impassioned feelings and outspoken criticism of a war in progress. In the other foreign wars the doubts may not have been banished, but once the battle was joined the vast majority of the people at that time stood aside and rallied to the government until the fighting was over. This time, as the war continues, the home-front is also strife-torn.

At this late date the extent of the disenchantment hardly needs documentation. You need only read, listen to the debate in Congress or, for that matter talk to your neighbors. But perhaps there is some need within the Administration in any event, for a better understanding of the disaffection.

A part of it no doubt is just the rebellion of mavericks, the spoiled young who don't want their lives discomfited much less put in peril. A part, perhaps, is the alienated feelings of the middle-aged whom another war brings a sense of despair. Some is the thoughtfulness of the young who suppose that if the U.S. would just ban the bomb and go its peaceful way the rest of the world would leave it alone.

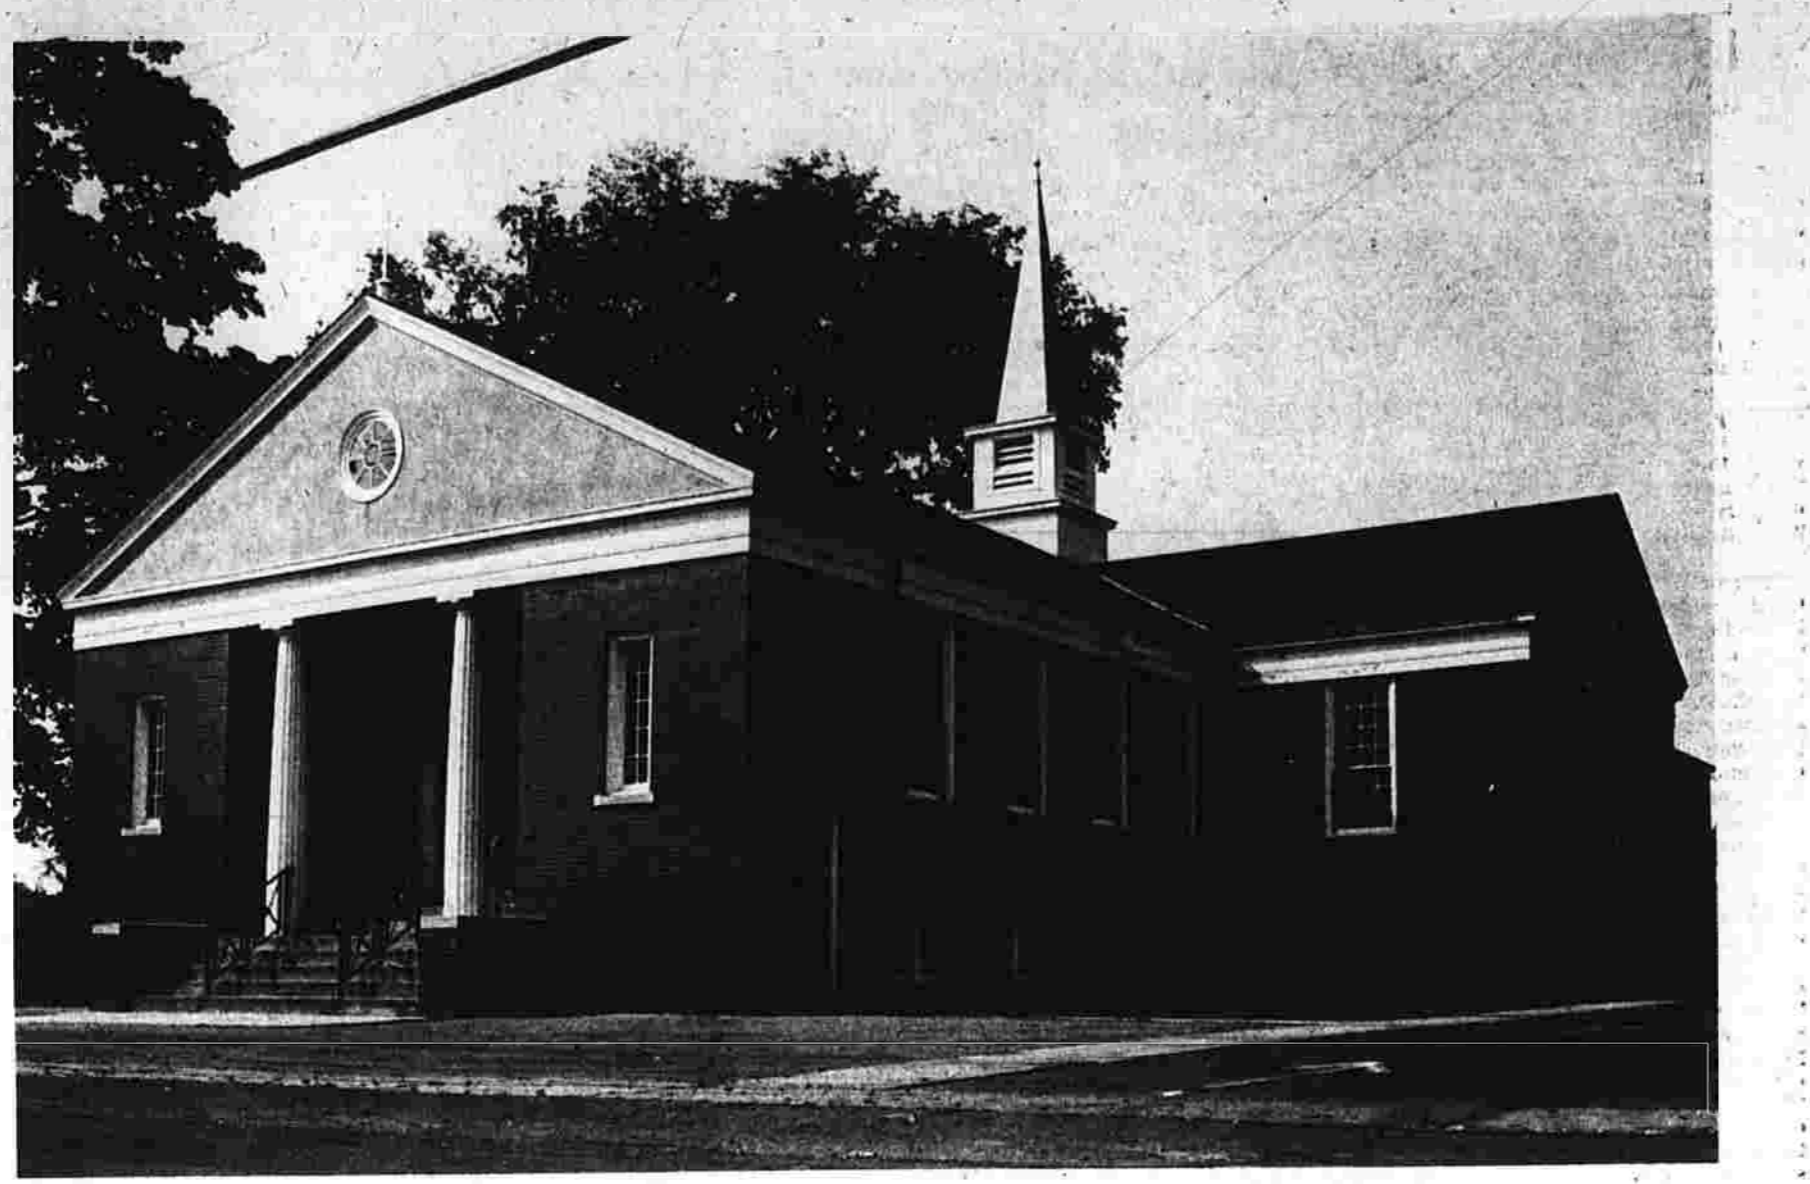

None of this would be consequential; in war there are always weary men, crackpots and draft dodgers. What has the Wisconsin people to do with the war is something of a different order. To the most part it is a practical doubt. The American people, for all that they dread war, will certainly still accept the Vietnam war if the U.S. would just ban the bomb and go its peaceful way the rest of the world would leave it alone.

The doubt that now assails the American people is whether Vietnam is worth the cost to be made to stand up against the future assaults by the union and against future soft-heartedness on higher courts.

The harsh facts are that the teachers of New York know they are violating the law, that they expected to get away with it, and that the present decision from Justice Neugebaur is, so far as their union leadership is concerned, merely a passing bit of unionism which will be cancelled out by one maneuver or another. Certainly the punishment itself is no deterrent; the money involved is insignificant; there would be no consideration of 15 days in jail a wonderful opportunity for a charade in martyrdom.

But the vitally important thing is the threat itself, not only from the question of legality, but from the point of view of philosophy. And, although the hard-boiled leaders of the union may scoff and deride, the philosophy Justice Neugebaur seems to us not only a valid interpretation of the specific law, but an eloquent statement of principle and morality our American society must somehow manage to preserve if we are to continue evolving as a society rather than a jungle. The direction in which this administration now has to be made is indeed ironic.

Haig Social Notes
 The weekend social news from Saigon included an item to the effect that Frank Din Dau, the "peace" candidate who surprised everybody by running second in the South Vietnamese elections on Sept. 3, was spending the weekend in jail, while the Constitutional Assembly was reaching its decision to accept the result of the election.

Growth Of The Clinic

MILWAUKEE—Just before Governor Ronald Reagan left California for last week's three-day, three-state speaking tour, a highly placed Wisconsin Republican leader telephoned Reagan's key political advisers in Sacramento with a significant message.

That same message was pressed upon Reagan by other state party leaders last Saturday afternoon (Sept. 30) when Reagan arrived in Milwaukee. It boiled down to this: Governor, if you really don't want to run in the Wisconsin Presidential primary next April, then let us go to work for you to crawl through Reagan.

Reagan fished the issue at his Saturday press conference by saying he hadn't fully studied the matter. In fact, the effort by the Wisconsin leaders failed. It is almost certain that a bipartisan state commission will put Reagan's name on the primary ballot, and that Reagan will not sign the affidavit necessary to remove it.

However, the Wisconsin ploy is less important for its failure than for two interrelated political issues it brings to light. The regular party hierarchy in Wisconsin has the support of the regular party hierarchy in Wisconsin has the support of the regular party hierarchy in Wisconsin.

None outside the councils can truly judge the battle. Anyone can see that the people are beginning to mistrust what they are told, to question the cost of what is done and even to doubt the wisdom of the doing. That fact is ignored in council if it holds almost as much peril to the nation as a defeat in arms.

With the growing interest in Milwaukee as Columbia, its anti-government, anti-spending, anti-welfare, anti-intellectual themes received thunderous ovations. When Reagan describes how he saved California $192,000,000 by eliminating government printing of state road maps, he evokes sustained applause.

Nixon never will ignore a Republican audience. Reagan does, but his Wisconsin leaders—along with Drake Edens in South Carolina—want him here to address the party faithful. They deplore his present policy of avoiding partisan meetings (though he will bend this rule enough to address a fund-raiser in Waukegan, Wis., Oct. 28 for Representative Glen Davis, an old Nixon crony).

Yep, politicians here believe Reagan today might carry Davis' wealthy, conservative district north of Milwaukee. In the three-way race with Nixon and Romney, since Nixon must win all the primaries to be nominated, that chilling report from the grass roots might get him back on the Republican stamp before long.

The Clinic must continue to grow. The United Fund of Manchester has been one of the major factors helping the Clinic's growth. Prior to the United Fund, a committee of Board members conducted a campaign amongst a small number of interested citizens to help support the Clinic.

Bolton Class Grouping by Ability Is Scored in Annual Report

The annual report of the Board of Education concludes with a statement on homogeneous, or ability, grouping. The report was summarized at Monday's annual town meeting by board member Harold Brush, who said he feels "strongly" about "homogeneous" grouping, meaning he is against it.

According to the statement by Acting Superintendent Ralph Conlon, the grouping "is not being done in the elementary school, but in the secondary school." The statement also notes that the grouping is done in the secondary school, but in the elementary school, it is not.

Set of Brakes Fail As Railway Resumes

Earlier Thursday the state Public Utilities Commission had given the line permission to resume operation. Gerard Bergwin, who spoke for the commission, said the locomotives and cars have "adequate braking power and the equipment is safe and suitable for operation."

Among those aboard the train Thursday were senior citizens from Virginia on a foliage tour. The accident happened there Sept. 17.

None of the estimated 50 persons aboard was injured, however, and the trip was later completed.

He was a native of Tilton, N.H., and was graduated from Bowdoin College.

He said each car has two sets of brakes "and at no time was there any danger."

tion and the others for $100,000 each. They are payable to the bearer and thus readily negotiable but one bank spokesman said that in practice it would be difficult for anyone to cash them.

The disappearance reported Thursday marked the third major loss of securities from a Wall Street institution within a month.

On Sept. 14 the investment firm of Hayden, Stone, Inc. listed the loss of $1.5 million in securities and a week ago police arrested a former bank clerk in the Sept. 2 theft of $1 million in IBM stock certificates from the Wall Street branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

The notes reported missing Thursday belonged to the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. A spokesman said a messenger took the notes to the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. Monday afternoon.

He was to bring back securities of equal value but with different due dates, in what the banks call a swap. "But the messenger made a mistake," the spokesman said. "He was supposed to give the securities to the clerk at the exchange window at Morgan, but instead gave them to the man at the delivery window."

Astronaut Killed In Airplane Crash

you said which mission I would most like to have, I'd say the first lunar flight you can take from the standpoint of personal satisfaction and accomplishment."

Williams, who had responsibilities in the area of range operations and crew safety, said the crew of the spacecraft was "99 per cent safe."

"Really more so," he replied. Williams had been scheduled to spend Thursday at the Gamma pad in Bethpage, N.Y., where the Lunar Module was under construction. A spokesman at the space center said Williams flew instead to Grand Forks, N.D., Wednesday and to Cape Kennedy Thursday for an astronaut's meeting.

But the Cape Kennedy meeting was canceled, sending him on his flight which ended in his death.

Williams was at a luncheon at the home of the neighbors in Dickinson, Tex., when astronaut Jack Louma and his wife brought her word of her husband's death.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton C. Williams of Mobile, Ala., were making plans to fly to Houston to be with his wife and child.

The space center said it would be late today before funeral arrangements for the astronaut are announced.

Accidental death has plagued the team of spacemen.

The prime crew for Apollo 11 died in a tragic fire during a test on the launch pad at Cape Kennedy. They were Air Force Capt. Roger B. Chaffee, Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

Air Force Maj. Edward U. Givens Jr. was killed in June 1967 in a traffic accident at Houston.

Air Force Maj. Charles A. Bassett II and Elliot H. See Jr., a civilian astronaut, were killed in February 1966 when their jet crashed in bad weather in St. Louis, Air Force Capt. Theodore C. Freeman was killed in October 1964 when his plane crashed at Houston.

Russian cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov died in April of this year when the parachute on his spaceship malfunctioned as the craft returned to earth.

Scouts in Clothing Drive Sent Thanks from Vietnam

Columbia Boy Scout Troop 28 earlier this year conducted a "Clothing for Vietnamese Children" drive and have received their thanks in a letter signed by Lt. Cmdr. R. F. Delivery, a U.S. Navy advisor in Vietnam.

A letter to scout Stephen Philimore reads: "Dear Steve, Your first fifteen boxes of clothing arrived last week and the remaining fourteen a couple of days ago. I was delighted to receive them but I assure you my delight was nothing compared to that of the children of the Vietnamese navy personnel who are now proudly wearing them."

"In this strange little war in a foreign country, winning the hearts and minds of the people is far more important than winning battles. Gestures of friendship such as yours and the rest of Scout Troop #2 not only contribute significantly toward ensuring our ultimate victory here but also add to the assurance of us in the U.S. forces that our nation is indeed the greatest in the world."

"On behalf of the children of Vietnam and all of us in the U.S. Navy please accept my sincere thank you for making our task here a little easier."

Robert Taggart, Scoutmaster, expressed his troop's wishes to thank the townspeople and the local Lions Club, who understood the shipment costs.

Building Permits

C. Prescott Hodges, zoning agent, announces permits amounting to $27,700 were issued during the month of September.

The secretary said she cried "Please don't kill him. Leave him alone."

Police said the hands of 50th Street and York St. were bound by tape. Afterward, the composer was treated by his personal physician and left in the care of a nurse.

His wife was the former ballerina and choreographer Ann Raach, 76, who died Monday night at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital.

The couple met at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, where both were working. She came to the West Coast to supervise motion picture musicals. Once a premiere ballerina, she had formed a ballet company in New York known as the Albertini-Raach Dancers.

They were married in 1928. Earlier Thursday, Tomkin had attended a funeral service for his wife. He had been in Moscow preparing production of the film "Czechoslovakia."

CLERKS 'WIGGING OUT'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's one thing they're doing in the criminal division of the county clerk's office these days—shaking out 12 wigs and keeping them fresh.

The hairpieces were stolen in a Jan. 28 burglary at Mrs. Billie Bell's wig shop in Burbank. They were later recovered, and Austin V. Tasse, 38, has been sentenced to 180 days in jail on his conviction of receiving stolen property.

Still the case is given final disposition, the county is ordering Mrs. Bell's wig that the wigs be removed from plaster bags daily and "shaken out thoroughly and exposed to some air."

Once you taste the Solera sherries and ports Great Western has just finished ageing, you'll be glad they come in half-gallons.

No other American sherry or port—even some imports at double the price—comes close to the taste of the new sherries and ports from Great Western.

We made them a new way. The old way. The traditional way of Spain and Portugal known as a Solera.

Now, after years of ageing and blending in barrels of oak, our new Great Western Solera sherries and ports are ready to be tasted and tried.

They're mellow. They're smooth. They're rich. They've a difference you'll taste right away.

So that you can get enough of this great new taste (and save a little money, to boot), we've put up all our new Solera sherries and ports in our take-to-the-table half-gallon decanter (and the usual fifth). Try our new Solera Sherry or Dry Cocktail Sherry tonight before dinner. After the meal, sit down with a glass of Solera Cream Sherry, Tawny Port or Port.

As for the dinner itself, try one of our fine dinner wines: Burgundy, Sauterne, Pink Catawba, Rose and Rhine, all bottled in fifths and half-gallon decanters. Jist like our great new Solera.

Curionis Body Found in River

The body of a man identified as Joseph Curionis, 57, of 54 Perkins St. was found floating in the Connecticut River early yesterday evening.

Two East Hartford youths saw a man jump from the Bulkeley Bridge Tuesday night. A packet belonging to Curionis and his identification papers were found on the bridge.

Police said the body was identified by an American Orl Co. harge as an unidentified employee of an American firm working on the bridge at Hartford.

The body was found floating 100 feet out from the east bank of the river.

Al Jurick, a member of the Trinity College boat crew, notified East Hartford police that the body of a man had been seen on the river practicing with the crew.

The body was removed to the Talarki Funeral Home in Hartford. It was later identified as that of Curionis by a relative. Curionis was last seen alive on Tuesday in Manchester where he had been staying with a relative. He did not come home Tuesday night as expected.

It was Tuesday about 10 p.m. that John DeMonte, 20, of East Hartford, saw a man jump from the bridge abutment. He and a companion, Leonard Foss, 19, also of East Hartford, had seen the man standing on the bridge abutment moments before.

Both divers and draggers from Hartford searched the river Tuesday and Wednesday but found nothing.

MHS Classes To End Early Next Monday

All Manchester High School students will be released from classes an hour early Monday, at approximately 1:35 p.m.

The early dismissal will permit teachers and administrators of MHS to begin planning for a self-evaluation of the program of services offered by the school.

The self-evaluation is required as part of the comprehensive evaluation of all member secondary schools conducted every four years by the New England Association of Colleges and Schools as a requirement of their accreditation by NEACS.

"In the self-evaluation, the school is not compared to others, but staff members scrutinize the program to determine its scope and quality—in other words, how well they are doing the job they are supposed to be performing for students and the community."

Mr. Gertrude Hitchcock, director of guidance, is chairman of the steering committee on the self-evaluation and will guide the self-evaluation and prepare reports on the findings.

The Bolton Junior-Senior High School Education Council is inviting all parents to a "back to school" night Wednesday, starting at 7:30 p.m. Parents will have the opportunity of attending the same classes that their sons and daughters do during a regular school day and of becoming acquainted with the teachers and the present educational program offered.

About MHS

MHS Squad Beaten; Platt Team Strong

The high spirits of MHS football fans took quite a dip Saturday night as the favored Indians were upset by Platt High School 24-14 at Meriden's Cape Field. The loss gave the Indians a record of 1-1, while the Panthers from Meriden chalked up their third victory against down on a pass play. Leading offensive player was Bryce Carpenter '68, who gained 68 yards rushing. This Saturday at Meriden, the Indians will play their first home game against defending league champion Platt. The team members will have plenty of incentive as they try to make up for last week's upset and also to avenge Platt's victory when it tried the middle of the Indian line, but when they passed or ran the ends, their speedy backs or ends were too much for the Red and White defense. In all, Platt scored 4 touchdowns and 4 extra points in the second half. Most of these were scored on long runs or long pass plays.

The Red and White kept fighting, and with seconds remaining they nearly missed a touchdown on a pass play. Leading offensive player was Bryce Carpenter '68, who gained 68 yards rushing.
