As His Fame Increases So Does Tenor's Tension

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP News Columnist

NEW YORK (AP)—Franco Corelli, tall, romantically handsome, dramatic tenor, probably the highest paid tenor in the world, with undoubtedly the largest following of fans, was tense and nervous during the days of rehearsal before his first appearance this season at the Metropolitan Opera.

The opera was Charles Gounod's "Roméo et Juliette," premiered 100 years ago and last done at the Met 20 years ago. Corelli sang with the part, appealing soprano Mirella Freni.

Many opera houses offer Corelli his choice of opera; if he will only sing for them, he can sing the Met, where he sings regularly, and sometimes ask him what he wants to sing. As well as singing the standard opera repertoire, Corelli likes to find opera to revive and he does research into mood and more of these operatic historical periods. This revival was his idea. He says:

"It like this character of Romeo, I like the music. It is very romantic. Gounod's best moments are during the duet of the second act; the music is very, very strong. Some of the rest is too sweet, too soft. There is a beautiful love duet.

"We are working very hard because 'Roméo et Juliette' is an opera also for the actor. We must act very well because everybody knows the story.

"But that still doesn't explain the production of Gounod's 'Roméo et Juliette' this season. Corelli says the reason why the voice has become so well known is that audiences expect to hear an Opera. In November he will peak of perfection every time he sing in Verdi's 'Requiem' for singing. 'The higher you go, the more the public asks. You be-goes Philharmonic.

"Asked whether he is the highest of your career he is the highest of your career in the world, Corelli puts on the ell shrugs. 'The important thing is that the public is satisfied. This is true, but I was very young and I did not have to find my name. I didn't even believe at this moment that I was right away. I only began singing for a joke, because my friends were amateur singers. My hobby was always the fast car—vroom, vroom. I didn't get into the presentation of the opera.

Later, speaking about his practice of going to the opera, he says: "When you go on the stage, house only a half hour before you are trembling, you are certain time, Correll points up again how his concern about a performance has increased with his fame."

When he made his debut at La Scala, in Luigi Spontini's "La Vestale," he arrived at the theater at 8:45 p.m. "I was certain the performance began at 9 o'clock. But not that night. The performance was broadcast, so it was beginning at 8:45. I got ready in 10 minutes, but being late was a tragedy for a radio station.

"The director, an old man, later said terrible words to me. He said, 'Not even Correll would come as late as you did.' This is true, but I was very young and I did not have to find my name. I didn't even believe at this moment that I was right away. I only began singing for a joke, because my friends were amateur singers. My hobby was always the fast car—vroom, vroom. I didn't get into the presentation of the opera.

Corelli, son of an Ancona, Italy, shipyard worker, then himself studying naval engineering, moved to the Manchester area because a friend invited him to see, which led to a 1952 debut at the Spoleto Festival in "Carmen," then to Rome, 1953; La Scala, 1955; Covent Garden, 1957; the Met, 1961.

Next year he'll open both the Met season, "Ariadna Lenkova," and the La Scala season, in "Ernani." It will mark the second time to open both houses in the same season, something no other tenor has done twice.

Corelli taught himself to sing opera, by listening to recordings of famous tenors and recordings of his own voice. He still studies by recording himself, listening, correcting and recording again. He also vocalizes in his New York apartment—frequently causing a gathering of neighbors in the hall outside his door. They hear arias, Neapolitan songs and ah, up and down his scale. When he is on the Met's spring tour, Corelli puts towels and bedding over hotel room walls and cracks the door around doors to muffle his vocalizing. "The American people are very nice," he says. "I never push my doorbell and say be quiet."

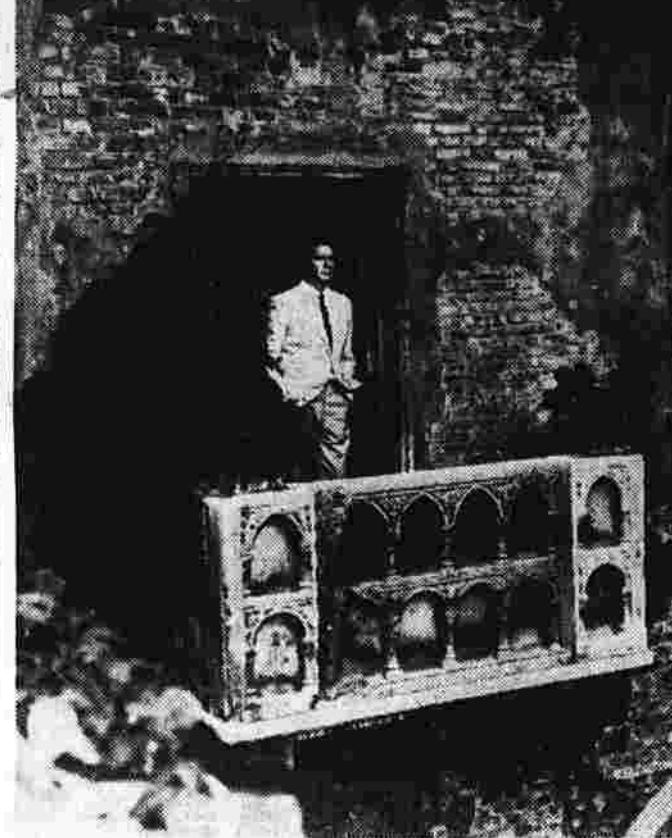

At home in Italy, "I study with pleasure and joy in the mountains of Cortina, in the middle of the woods, 3,000 feet high, every time near a big waterfall. I lost many days finding this place. I am ashamed for people to hear me because I make so much noise."

The beauty of Corelli's voice and its aptness for heroic roles is not disputed, but he is sometimes criticized for other things. It has been noted that he upstages sopranos by forcibly turning their backs to the audience and holding high notes longer and louder than they do, both of which he is physically able to do with ease. However, he does neither opposite Miss Freni in "Roméo." It also is noted that he sings in a ringing fortissimo. Recently, he has begun using a pianissimo.

Corelli is said to have a fiery temperament. The last widely publicized manifestation of this came over five years ago. He is accused of having a paid clique, which he denies, of sometimes disappointing audiences by being indisposed, which he readily admits, and of being indisposed in his living room, with his wife Loretta, Corelli is disarming the opposition by saying that he struggles to express himself in his newly learned English.

About the "indisposed" problem, he says that he is prepared to much to say that he will sing that he agrees, finds later that he has booked appearances to close together and has canceled some of them. One opera stars treated many days before a performance, the last two days without speaking.

Corelli says, "I try to remain quiet for one day before, but it is hard to do."

What do you say?
Answer: Bid one club. Most experts avoid an opening bid in a very weak 4-card major suit. (Some experts would bid one heart, and others would bid one nortump on this hand.) If you open with one club, you are ready for any response and can find a good major suit fit if there is one.

BUILDS CHARACTER

Both sides vulnerable

It takes a certain amount of character to refuse a finesse. You can't rely on merely putting the finesse off in the hope that it will go away if you pay no attention to it. The opponents may force you to make up your mind.

Opening lead—Jack of Diamonds.

Declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew trumps with the ace and queen. Then he led a low spade, losing dummy's jack to the king. He hoped to set up dummy's fourth spade to get rid of a club. Then he wouldn't need the club finesse.

East returned a diamond to the king, and South ruffed the queen of diamonds in dummy to lead a spade since any other return leads dummy ruff white South discards a spade. Cat Gets Bravery Award

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP)—A white and ginger tomcat, which saved the lives of two young Port Elizabeth children by attacking a cobra ready to strike, was awarded a medal for bravery by the Eastern Province Cat Club at its championship show.

Loole, the cat, was lying in the shade of a tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boette Gramman in the suburb of Westering, while their son Frederick, 6, and daughter Jennifer, 4, were playing in the garden.

Suddenly a five-foot-cobra slithered between the children. Jennifer tried to kill the snake by stamping on it. She stood on its tail and the cobra reared for attack.

Loole, seeing the danger, leapt up and charged the snake. Swiftly the cat pounced on the cobra, biting it behind its hood.

The children dashed into the house to call their father. The snake eluded the cat and headed after the children. Once more the cat attacked, preventing the snake from chasing the children. The cat kept the snake at bay until Gramman came from the house and killed it with a stick. The excitement over the leap, seeing the danger, swoop up and charged the snake. Swiftly the cat pounced on the cobra, biting it behind its hood.

My Window on the World

By Rev. Clifford O. Simpson

Part of the fascination of foreign travel is the variety of experiences that await around the next corner, or in some cases, in the next hotel. It was impossible for us to get hotel reservations through the usual channels when we went to Düsseldorf, Germany, because of a new law in Hannover, rented a car at the airport, drove to the center town, and there we found a registry of nearby hotels where we were able to find a room.

We were sent to a "quality" hotel about ten miles out of the city in the town of Göttingen. There our window looked out on a narrow cobble street topped with red-tiled roofs. Every second window had a sign that read "Each householder buys union rubbish barrels that fit into the two months in a truck which automatically raises each barrel and returns it to the ground without any small or dust in process but with considerable noise." To have a bath in this hotel we had to get a key, not for the bathroom, but to turn the water on in the faucets. In our next hotel it was necessary to get the key from the chambermaid in order to get into the bathroom and we found later that each bath was entered by a hotel bill which we charged for three marks (75 cents). The charge for a double room was as low as $4 per night but there are many "extras".

A variety of experiences await the traveler. Our trip was a Bonn provided "my window on the Rhine" looking out upon a shifting scene of puffing and panting trucks and barges with "The Seven Hills" in the background. Beneath our little balcony was an historic wine terrace owned by the same family for over two hundred years. It was in this hotel that Queen Victoria met her husband and it was here that they returned for their honeymoon.

Here Heinrich Heine wrote some of his poems, one of which is about the hotel. It was here that Konrad Adenauer came for a rest. His signature, along with those of many other famous people, is inscribed in a highly treasured guest book that I was permitted to see.

Almost directly across the river, high on one of the seven hills, we could see the hotel where Hitler and his entourage first met before the historic meeting in Munich.

On top of the seventh hill an abandoned castle has been converted into an outdoor eating place. On a Saturday we ascended this hill, called Drämlen, up a cog-rail that reminded us of Mt. Washington.

Woman Tribal Chairman Seeking a New Seminole Image

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Miami Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Behind a modern desk surrounded by businesslike file cabinets and "in" and "out" baskets in the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs in Hollywood, Seminole Tribal Chairman Betty Mac Jumper is to create a new image for her own women.

Jumper is the first woman elected chairman of the Tribal Council of Florida's 830 or so Seminole Indians.

The nation she helps govern has citizens whose concerns range from keeping the Great Serpent's secret deerskin medicine bundle with its burden of herbs, stones and dried animal parts, to preventing their teenagers from drug-ragging on the streets.

Mrs. Jumper takes in her amiable stride the dramatic gap between old and new. She wears a white man's 20th century business suit with a white blouse and a white tie.

"It's a challenge," she said simply, echoing every ambitious woman new to her job. She met her first challenge years ago when she was elected first Seminole to get a high school diploma, over violent opposition from her father.

"Woman have never held public office in Indian tribes. Men have been the chiefs, the medicine men, the thinkers who planted, grew, clothed and clothed, said the 44-year-old woman.

"I was three. She is the daughter of a Seminole Indian and a white woman.

Chairman Jumper's duties include presiding over the power of the tribe, making decisions about the welfare and betterment of the nation's people, and making decisions about the tribe's future.

She worries sometimes about her own son, Moses Jr., who like every boy in high school would like to own a motorcycle and now drives his own car. She pointed out proudly that he is a nurse or a secretary.

"My grandmother was sure I'd come to harm mingling with whites, as the women in her family had. She thought the only fit life for an Indian girl was helping her with her corn, bean and pumpkin garden until I married."

But unlike the children of other ethnic groups being absorbed into the American culture, young educated Seminoles are loyal about living among their people. They want to leave the reservations, the council chairman believes.

"What we need are more arts and crafts and clothing industries, and more modern agricultural techniques so they earn a better living."

Mrs. Jumper isn't hanging by her thumbs waiting for her youth to become rich from the $40 million federal claims court in Washington, D.C., she has decided Seminoles are due.

More importantly, she visits with older people, sympathizing in their Miccosukee language (a blend of Indian tongues and Spanish idiom) with their dismay over the youngsters who have left.

Her platform was much like any civic-minded woman concerned about juvenile delinquency, better education and welfare, progress in housing, irrigation and creation of more industry.

Her platform, and frame houses are replacing the old open-sided thatched roof child-hood houses with modern homes, but not as rapidly as she'd like. Sewing machines are plentiful, but the primitive

Arm Restored

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Maurice Thomas' right arm, restored to his body two months ago, reportedly has feeling and good blood circulation now.

The arm was torn from its socket Aug. 14 while Thomas, 21, was working in a laundry. The arm was severed at the elbow and taken to the hospital with him. Doctors worked five hours to reattach the arm.

Doctors expressed cautious optimism Friday that the limb will survive. They said the arm had no use of the arm, but is able to twitch muscles and the hand.

For the time being, Thomas is learning to write with his left hand.

Woman Tribal Chairman Seeking a New Seminole Image

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Behind a modern desk surrounded by businesslike file cabinets and "in" and "out" baskets in the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs in Hollywood, Seminole Tribal Chairman Betty Mac Jumper is to create a new image for her own women.

Jumper is the first woman elected chairman of the Tribal Council of Florida's 830 or so Seminole Indians.

The nation she helps govern has citizens whose concerns range from keeping the Great Serpent's secret deerskin medicine bundle with its burden of herbs, stones and dried animal parts, to preventing their teenagers from drug-ragging on the streets.

USSR Celebrating

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the red-hot passion of Communist ideology, romance reached its zenith when the boy fell in love with his tractor—and anything still be supplied by the quality of its stock? But now, after a half-century of Communist rule, the Soviet Union is instituting a five-year plan which is aimed at supplying Soviet citizens with goods from Soviet life and giving the citizen some frills.

In 1965 Soviet warehouses had $5.5 billion worth of such unwanted goods. Stalin said there was no house with a tractor—and anything still be supplied by the quality of its stock? But now, after a half-century of Communist rule, the Soviet Union is instituting a five-year plan which is aimed at supplying Soviet citizens with goods from Soviet life and giving the citizen some frills.

Man Wakens, Thief Flees

An intruder fled the home of Joseph Then at 62 Grandview St. early yesterday morning when Then woke up and saw a flashlight beaming into his bedroom.

Then got up and the intruder fled through the front door with about $60.

Then told police the thief had taken some bills from his wallet which was on a living room table, and an unsigned check for $24.

Police cruisers checked the area, but with no results. Houses in the area were also checked, but no sign of forced entry could be found in the area homes, police say.

The thief was seen in through an unlocked front door.

Tools and a special radio valued at $325 were taken from the Plaza Coin Laundry at 698 E. Middle Tpk. sometime this week.

The victim, Alfred Amell of 122 Elizabeth Dr., said he discovered the theft on Tuesday. He told police the tool box and tools were valued at $125, and the special radio, which was hooked up to a speaker system in the building, cost $200.

The items, he told police, were in the bathroom at the place, and the door is always locked. Police say there was no sign of forced entry into the bathroom or the building.

About $20 in bills was taken from a file cabinet at the International House of Pancakes. The file cabinet is in an office, and entry into the office was gained by removing screws from the door hinges. Police say no forced entry was apparent into the building.

Police said Prew's car hit Gotti's head on while it was stopped to make a turn, sending the Gotti vehicle into the bus, which was passing to its right. James Prew was thrown into the windshield by the impact, shattering the safety glass.

Driver of the Connecticut Co. bus was Wilfred W. Boyd, 56, of Windsor.

No one on the bus was reported injured and it was towed, police said.

Man Wakens, Thief Flees

An intruder fled the home of Joseph Then at 62 Grandview St. early yesterday morning when Then woke up and saw a flashlight beaming into his bedroom.

Then got up and the intruder fled through the front door with about $60.

Then told police the thief had taken some bills from his wallet which was on a living room table, and an unsigned check for $24.

Police cruisers checked the area, but with no results. Houses in the area were also checked, but no sign of forced entry could be found in the area homes, police say.

The thief was seen in through an unlocked front door.

Tools and a special radio valued at $325 were taken from the Plaza Coin Laundry at 698 E. Middle Tpk. sometime this week.

The victim, Alfred Amell of 122 Elizabeth Dr., said he discovered the theft on Tuesday. He told police the tool box and tools were valued at $125, and the special radio, which was hooked up to a speaker system in the building, cost $200.

The items, he told police, were in the bathroom at the place, and the door is always locked. Police say there was no sign of forced entry into the bathroom or the building.

About $20 in bills was taken from a file cabinet at the International House of Pancakes. The file cabinet is in an office, and entry into the office was gained by removing screws from the door hinges. Police say no forced entry was apparent into the building.

Diplomacy Saves Mayor's Meeting With the Firemen

Diplomacy between the town's mayor and the Rockville firemen made Thursday night's meeting a friendly get-together instead of a dispute.

The firemen recently voted unanimously to fill the empty position of fire chief with Donald Maguda, one of the firemen. Mayor John E. Grant refused and said he will wait for a report on the structure of the two town fire departments from insurance study group.

The report is not expected for several more weeks at least, the mayor said yesterday.

The mayor told the firemen at the meeting in Fitton Fire House he wanted to meet Maguda. The fireman stood up among his nearly 40 fellow firemen and an informal introduction was made.

Mayor Grant assured the firemen he would recommend Maguda to the Board of Representatives as acting fire chief until he takes action on the insurance study report.

A sidelight to the meeting came afterwards and was related by the mayor's wife, Beverly.

One of the more vocal critics of the mayor at the meeting can play the guitar, she said. Her husband asked him home to talk.

The two, the mayor and the irate fireman, had a music session until midnight, she said.

Two Houses Head For Clash on Cuts

Mundt told a reporter refusal of the committee to approve any formula for reducing expenditures was "a gratuitous insult" to the House and could create "a hopeless situation."

But another member of the committee, Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., said the "intolerable" House-passed resolution was an abdication of the President's responsibility for appropriations.

And other senators said the House's approach would give the President "a massive veto" on appropriations voted by Congress.

The stopgap financing resolution approved by the committee is not expected to be taken up in the Senate until Tuesday, even though the spending authority of departments will expire at midnight Monday. While these departments will technically be pen-ness, Senate leaders foresee no immediate crisis. It could turn out that no temporary financing resolution will be passed and that, instead, Congress will be spurred into completing action on the remaining appropriations bills.

Economy forces in the House had voted to require that government spending this year, with some major exceptions, be held to last year's level—action estimated to force a cutback of $1.5 billion on spending this year. This would force a cut of at least $2 billion.

Adopted by the House, 238-164, these restrictions were an unexpectedly severe blow to the administration.

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., tried to win approval of Bow's proposal in the Senate Appropriations committee but was defeated, 14-8.

Object to Bearing Arms... The naturalization petitions of three conscientious objectors—two of whom Manchester residents—were held up in U.S. District Court, Hartford, yesterday, when the three, all Jamaicans, refused to swear to bear arms for the U.S.

U.S. District Judge T. Emmett Clarke said that he was postponing action on the petitions to determine whether the three object to all wars, "or to a particular war, such as the one being fought in Vietnam."

The three are Albert H. Dixon, 47, and his wife, Thelma, 39, of 153 Adams St., and Kenneth T. Williams, 39, of New Britain.

The Dixons are members of The Plymouth Brethren, which meets in Manchester. Williams is a minister in the Miracle Revival Fellowship.

The three, yesterday, refused on religious grounds to take that portion of the naturalization oath on bearing arms.

Judge Clarke, before postponing a decision on the three, had granted naturalization papers to 81 other applicants.

Naturalization Examiner Paul Moran, who had reviewed the Dixon and Williams petitions, recommended their admission to citizenship. He suggested to Judge Clarke that they be given a permitted alternate oath, which waives the requirement of an oath on bearing arms.

The Dixons had noted in their petitions that they would not bear arms, but that they would serve in a non-combatant capacity, if necessary.

Williams had indicated in his petition that he would neither of previous wars. He associated them with rioters and draft card burners. He wound up by saying that there was "treasonous partisan" about the resolution.

Romney spoke up during the ensuing session to say that the conference was no place for foreign policy decisions. He said that past resolutions had been misled by the president as indications of strong support by the governors for the course he was taking in Vietnam.

On the issue of government spending and taxation, Reagan won a victory by moving to strike out of a pending resolution language he said would endorse Johnson's proposal for an income tax surtax.

TRAIN HITS BUS... ULMERS, S.C. (AP) — A freight train slipped the back of a school bus as it crossed tracks on a dirt road near Ulmerville, Friday, but the dozen children in the bus escaped injury.

Networks Get Out the Ax

THE NIELSENS
By CYNTHIA LOWEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Television network executives are shopping industriously for new programs and huddling nervously about alling old ones.

The time has come, earlier than in most years, to pronounce death sentences on feeble entertainment series, to take some chances that a few alling shows will mend and, above all, to look over the bull pens for replacements.

Usually such frenzied activity does not start until mid-November, but this year, with big, important movies capturing the attention of audiences, the Nielsen handwriting appeared almost from the very beginning.

"Dundee and the Culhane" was the first victim of the Nielsens, given a death sentence by CBS a couple of weeks ago. ABC's "Good Company" is not given much of a chance to survive beyond December, if that long. The future looks blacker than little bighorn for its "Legend of Custer." NBC denies furiously a rumor that its "Maya" is not long for TV world, but has nothing much to say about the disappointing showing of "Accidental Family," a new comedy series, or "Star Trek," whose popularity has slipped since last season.

It is certain that a number of shows will be involved in complicated switches within network schedules in efforts to save shows. ABC's "Hollywood Palace," for instance, has done poorly since it was shifted into a Tuesday evening spot. It is probable that it will be moved back to Saturday nights—and no one is prepared to say what will happen to "Iron Horse," which has been quietly dying in its vision-for four two-hour movie blocks captured spots in the top-10 list. The other six shows were old favorites—"The Lucy Show," "The Andy Griffith Show," "Gomer Pyle," "The Dean Martin Show," "Bonanza" and "The Ed Sullivan Show."

"Gente Ben," with a black bear for its star, was the highest rated new program—in 15th place. The "Carol Burnett Show" and "Ironside" were 21 and 22 respectively.

ABC, unhappy about the way "Off to see the Wizard" has turned out will have to stay with the show for awhile, but already is playing down its title and playing up the film features that will appear within its format.

CBS has an option on a new British-made series starring Patrick McGeehan, late of "Secret Agent." It may pull it out as an emergency midseason replacement. Jonathan Winters will head a variety show to replace "Dundee."

ABC, with more problem shows than the other two networks, can fall back once again on the British-made "Avengers." It also has access to a new science-fiction show, "Land of Giants," and a new action-adventure series, "Magnificent Thiel."

National Nielsen ratings made public Wednesday and covering the first week in October once again show that televised movies are the hottest things in television.

Anne Baxter Takes To the Bandwagon

NEW YORK (AP) — The public will be seeing a lot of Anne Baxter, the film star and 1946 Oscar winner, during the next couple of weeks.

She will be one of the stars of an NBC "world premiere" show on Oct. 31, one of those made-for-TV film features called "Stranger on the Run." In order to publicize the show, Miss Baxter was persuaded to take on a two-week assignment that is one of the grueling penalties of acting success and is called a "P.A. tour." That means a personal appearance tour and when it is over and Miss Baxter is back home in Hollywood, she will be a tired woman.

The film studio that turns out the NBC feature movies arranged Miss Baxter's journey and set up her schedule. The most time was spent making a week's supply of a syndicated, taped daytime variety show in Philadelphia. It will appear on the TV screens next week. She also spent some time in Cleveland and Chicago.

Stars on tour are invariably routed to what are called "big Nielsen" areas, places where there are large TV audiences as well as TV and radio stations for local appearances and newspapers for interviews.

Miss Baxter reached New York City—a great spot because of the size of the population and the multiplicity of the communications media—and started her first working day at 5 a.m.

That meant getting her hair done, submitting to an assortment of interviews and appearing on a number of TV and radio shows. When she concluded the day with an appearance on the Johnny Carson program, she had been on the go for 18 hours and, she admitted later, "I'd just about had it."

Miss Baxter has a light touch with the sales pitch and a useful assortment of opinions and anecdotes with which to fill in the spaces around publicity material.

The studio press agent accompanying her looked anxious during one appearance as she wandered happily away from the basis subject. She said she thought feature films for television should be no different in quality from the kind made for theatres. She spoke of problems of returning to a full-time Hollywood career after four years spent largely in Australia and Mexico. She talked of her grandfather, the great architect, Frank Lloyd Wright. She related with gusto the fun of playing a villainess in "Batman."

Slow Rise

Ronnie Schell bills himself as America's Slowest Rising Young Comedian, but Ronnie Schell, Star Maker, would be more accurate.

Right now he is hoping that the Star he will make will be himself. He is costarring in CBS-TV's new series, "Good Morning, World," after leaving the comparative security of a supporting role on "Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C."

But, while he was on his slow rise to the top, as he tells it, "I was working in San Francisco on a bill with a folk group and a little later they got a hit and became The Kingston Trio. Then I went on the road and on the same bill was a comedienne breaking in an act. She was Phyllis Diller. Then I got to Chicago and there was a trumpeter on the bill and he became Al Hirt. I went back to San Francisco and there was a trio in support. One of them got fired, and the two left became The Smothers Brothers. Then I got a call to go to Houston because they had a comic on the bill who wasn't doing too well. He went on to become Bob Newhart."

Ronnie worked a lot with the Kingston Trio. "It was a fantastic association. I liked the way they sang and they liked the way I did their shirts. I have al-
