Cruisers Waiver Signed by Board

The Board of Directors has signed a waiver to purchase six 1968 police cruisers, Plymouth Fury, from Manchester Plymouth, Teletecrite.

The waiver was necessary because an agreement has been reached with Manchester Plymouth by negotiation, and not by legally advertised bids.

The Teletecrite dealer's price is $9,200 net for the six cruisers and includes the trade-in of six used police cars.

A contract will not be awarded, however, until the disposition of two used 1967 cruisers is determined. Town Manager Robert Weiss has the approval of the board to retain two of the used cars for town use, and Manchester Plymouth's $9,200 price will have to be adjusted.

Whichever town department acquires the two used cars will have to transfer their value in funds to the Police Department budget.

Weiss had asked the directors for approval to retain two of the used cars.

The car involved is owned by Charles Miller of 168 S. Main St., who parked it on Hartford Rd. and later discovered it missing.

Arsonist and Ward were stopped in the car at about 4:15 a.m. on Parker St. north of Lydall St.

Three drivers were charged yesterday with failure to obey a stop sign. They are Michael Pihlari, 18, of 116 Wadwell Rd.; Richard Bissin, 23, of 22 Hartford; and Michael Dekonardis of New Canaan.

adopted a stopgap resolution condemning all violations of the cease-fire without fixing the blame for either the sinking of the destroyer or the shelling of Port Suez.

Council members have generally agreed that a U.N. representative should be sent to the Middle East, but they have differed on whether he should operate under a detailed mandate or under a set of general principles.

The Israelis strongly oppose a hard and fast mandate which might work against Israel's campaign for direct negotiations with the Arab governments.

A number of men have been suggested as nominees for the special U.N. representative. Those most often mentioned are Ernesto A. Thalmann of the Swiss Foreign Ministry, who made a special fact-finding trip to Jerusalem for Secretary-General U Thant last summer; Paul Ruegger, former chairman of the International Committee of the Red Cross, and Gunnar Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow and former ambassador to the United Nations, who went to India and Pakistan for the United Nations 10 years ago to try to work out a settlement of the Kashmir dispute.

Witnesses who gave chase said Meyer's car struck the rear right door and right quarter of a car driven by Mrs. Jewel Baldrach of 52 North St., which was traveling east near the Center, spun around and sped off without stopping.

The two other drivers followed Meyer on a long, circuitous chase that led down Center St. and through the McKee St., Hartford Rd., Waddell Rd., Keeney St. and W. Center St. areas.

The chase ended when Meyer turned into the driveway of a home off Hackmatack St. and one of the pursuers, John G. Tice, 23, of 202 Hillard St., blocked the driveway with his car. Tice and Robert E. Olshefski, 19, of 51 Flower St., the driver of the second pursuit car, then went to neighboring homes and called police.

Taken to headquarters and processed, Meyer was released on a no cash bond of $150 pending appearance in Manchester Circuit Court Nov. 13.

William H. Fyler, 22, of 11 Holl St., was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with breach of peace by assault. He was released on a $500 bond for court appearance at Manchester Nov. 20.

The arrest stemmed from a complaint made early Tuesday by Robert F. Sullivan of Hartford, who alleged that Fyler, a bartender at Ray's Restaurant on Oak St., had beaten Sullivan about the face while he was visiting the restaurant with his wife and some friends.

Stanley P. Novak, 22, of 383 Oakland Rd., Wapping, was charged early today with breach of peace upon a complaint from Robert Stephenson of 170 Oak St., after allegedly causing a disturbance at the Stephenson home. Novak's court date at Manchester was set for Nov. 13.

ed in fair condition at Elmhurst Hospital with a head wound.

Police and eye witnesses said the gun battle lasted 5 to 10 minutes before two of the gunmen climbed into a car driven by a woman and fled.

Six of 10 plate-glass windows in the one-story bank were shattered by bullets. Also shattered were windows in police cars and several autos parked in front of the bank.

A witness, Leonard Pokorny, 19, told police that when the first police car pulled up "everybody around ducked for cover."

"When the shooting stopped, I walked over to the bank. One police car was all shot up and the cop sitting in the right-hand seat was dead. The other dead policeman was lying in front of the bank," Pokorny said.

Sgt. Orin Deckert, who was at a nearby shopping center when the fight started, said he fired at the fleeing trio with a 12-gauge sawed-off shotgun. The shot, he said, splattered the windows on the driver's side of the auto.

A blood-spattered getaway car was found in a parking lot about two blocks west of the bank.

shed near the converted hotel called "the Quarters" where the Richardsons lived in a small apartment.

The sack was found in the shed, Sheriff Frank Cline said, when a neighbor called to direct officers to search there. Officers said it hadn't been there the day of the deaths.

The parents were picking oranges in a grove 14 miles from home when the children were stricken. Five of the children, the oldest 5 years old, had been left home alone during the day.

A mass funeral has been planned for 3 p.m. Sunday to be held in the gymnasium of Smith-Brown High School in Arcadia.

Funeral director Eugene Hixon Sr. said the school was chosen because "there's not a church in town big enough to handle the crowd."

Emergency crews worked to restore service in many scattered locations throughout Erie, Niagara and northern Chautauque counties.

The three boys, John P. Songer, 11, Terrance Sweeney, 12, and Gregory Lambix, also 12, all of Hamburg, were reported missing by their families at about 7 p.m. Friday. Police said the three had been seen playing on a beach near the barge, the Wiltrane, earlier in the day.

Police said the barge had been grounded Wednesday on the beach about 10 miles south of Buffalo and drifted about 500 yards offshore during the storm.

An attempt to reach the craft was suspended temporarily about 1 a.m. because of the high winds.

Steady winds were classified by the Weather Bureau as a gale, ranging just below hurricane level, which begins at 75 mph.

NORWALK PILOT CREDITED SAIGON (AP)—Capt. Alan A. Lavoy, 27, of Norwalk, Conn., is one of two 7th Air Force pilots credited with downing one of three MIGs over North Vietnam on Thursday.

The Air Force announced today that Lavoy and Capt. Larry D. Cobb, 28, of Lambert, Miss., were the crew of an F4 Phantom jet that hit a MIG-17 with air-to-air missiles.

Organist

Dick Delaney, young organist and recording artist, will present a program of organ music Tuesday at 8 p.m. at East Hartford High School. The event is open to the public free of charge. It is sponsored by Watkins Bros. and the Hartford Hammond Organ Club.

The program will include popular show tunes and popular music.

The organist has presented organ concerts throughout the United States. He appeared at the New York World's Fair and at numerous night clubs in the East. He has recently released two albums of popular organ music for Embassy Records.

He began his musical career at the age of 6, and in the 11 years following received his musical foundation at the piano. Later he studied organ with Ralph Woodworth Jr. of Boston.

Obituary

The Manchester Red Cross First Aid Unit is offering a class in Standard First Aid training to begin Wednesday in the Red Cross office, 237 E. Center St. Weekly sessions will run from 7 to 9 p.m. for five weeks.

Instructors assigned for this class are Raymond Peck, Steve Dzielnaki and Karl Kehler.

Points to be covered in the Standard course include dressings and bandaging, artificial respiration, shock and burns; also bleeding, poisoning, broken bones and common emergencies.

Anyone interested in registering for this program is asked to contact the Manchester Red Cross office.

Lions Sponsor
Banner Contest

The Manchester Lions Club is sponsoring a design a friendship banner contest. Entries must be submitted by Nov. 10.

The prize will be $10 cash or $20 in art supplies to be selected at the Sherwin-Williams Paint Store, 981 Main St.

The requirements call for a 7x9 inch vertically arranged color drawing using a maximum of six colors, showing a design for a friendship banner for use by the Manchester Lions Club. The winner will be required to furnish an additional black and white drawing of the winning 7x9 inch design. The design should identify Manchester, Connecticut, and Lions International.

Manchester is known as the "City of Village Charm" and has several identifying features, any of which may be incorporated in the over-all design.

Entries may be submitted to Benjamin Shankman at Leonard's Shoe Store, 881 Main St.; Willard Marvin at Sherwin-Williams Paint Store; or to the Manchester Lions Club, P.O. Box 614, Manchester.

Planning Ahead for Renewal
Rybczyk Sees Merchants Showing More Initiative

Edward Rybczyk, executive director of the Manchester Redevelopment Agency (MRA), said Wednesday that he now is working with the Chamber of Commerce, with the Downtown Special Taxing District officials and with the individual business owners to develop a cooperative building design plan, in conjunction with proposed Downtown Renewal.

Rybczyk told the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC), "The attitude of downtown merchants has changed since the October 1966 defeat of Main St. renewal."

"They now realize that they can't sit back and wait for public improvements and that they must make improvements on their own."

Rybczyk, Tuesday night, was given the green light by the Board of Directors to continue preliminary planning for the proposed renewal project.

The voters, last year, turned down the 120 per cent profit increase to the modernization program.

Among the major improvements were increased drying facilities at the corporation's Lydall and Foulds division, and new building with a new finishing line at the Colonial Board division, and the over-all efficiency of a new plant for the corporation's Shufibre division in Tennessee.

Colonial has about 1,000 shareholders and its stock is traded on the over-the-counter market.

Modernization Pays Off,
Colonial Profits Zoom

An effort by Colonial Board Co. last year to plow earnings into plant modernization has begun to pay off in increased profits despite a slight drop in sales, a financial report by the firm shows.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30 earnings totaled $307,859, or $1.69 a share. For a comparable period last year, the earnings were $182,165, or 77 cents a share. The sales totaled $4,656,803, this year as compared with $4,726,205 for last year.

Art Professor Puts Religion Into Plain Line Drawings

NEW YORK (AP)—A young man finds a wounded bird and he nurses it to health. Thereupon, it pecks him viciously in the eye and flies away.

"That's the way things are," says Jim Crane. "The reward for a good deed may be a kick in the shins, but you still have to do the right thing anyhow. Maybe another bird will turn out better."

That ambiguous situation and a stream of similar ironies of life provide the subject matter for the tragicomic cartoons of Crane, a 40-year-old Florida art professor who puts religious profundities into his plain line drawings.

It's "a way to help people think unthinkable thoughts," he says.

It's also a new form of philosophical exposition, seasoned with humor and dispensed by a growing number of contemporary cartoonists ranging from Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" to Jules Feiffer's contemplative characters.

As Crane sees the world in his sketches, it's out of joint, badly cracked, often paralyzing goodness, flawed by human self-centeredness, yet craving love, and trying, clumsily, to cultivate it.

"You look at the world, and you don't know whether to laugh or cry," he said in an interview. "It's all mixed up. You see the kind of blundering mess people are in, but also the possibilities for good. We sometimes blunder things right."

In Crane's pictorial parables, a growing flower often symbolizes the promising note—even though it sometimes withers, or under artificial fertilizers to rush its growth, turns into a man-eating plant that devours the greedy gardener.

"But we have to water the flowers—and hope," he said.

Crane's cartoons may appear in several religious publications, including the Roman Catholic weekly, Ave Maria, the Methodist youth magazine, Motive, and the United Church's official fortnightly, United Church Herald.

Several collections also have come out in book form, including the latest volume, "Inside-Out," published by Harper & Row.

His cover cartoon shows a patched-up, lopsided, explosive world, with an anxious inhabitant, hammer in hand, trying pathetically to mend a hole in it while other breaks erupt around him.

The bursting, splitting world is a recurring theme.

"So are the boxed, stacked packed, pent-up, their square shapes and entrapment in mass patterns rendering them immobile, unable to move, change or grow, making them impotent victims of collective forces enclosing them."

In one drawing, a lone individual stands beside a skyscraper of boxed humanity and shouts at the "incorporated" sign at the top. "Hello! Is there a person up there?"

In another, a forlorn figure sits at the top of a ladder, encased in a cloud of success, encased alone in a dark box. Another figure builds his simple foxhole into such a fortress of security that he's imprisoned in heavy armament.

As in Judeo-Christian teaching, what appears to be useless defeat may turn out to have positive values in the end. For example, one figure beams an apple gone rotten, fit only for flies, but another comments that it may have the seed of a whole new tree in it.

"Sometimes things look terrible," Crane said, "but may contain the makings of something very beneficial."

A native of Michigan, Crane was graduated from Methodist's Albion College and now teaches art at Florida Presbyterian College, St. Petersburg. He said his theologizing via cartoons was "completely unplanned."

"I was already doing it before I realized the ideas paralleled Christian existentialist thought," he said. "It came out of my own concern with who I was, what kind of world it is, how a person fits into it and what can be done with it."

"I've always been very interested in theology, but I don't try to justify my work from a theological stance. I just look at a situation and see what can be made of it to clarify and illuminate it."

The resulting cartoons tend more to probe and question than to pass judgments, to point up the paradoxical nature of truth rather than one side of it, to see the pathos both in villains and victims, and to puncture rigid, pat assumptions.

"Frozenness of thought is getting awfully prevalent and we need to find fresh ways of looking at things," Crane said. "That's what Christian thought is all about. Jesus did not preach didactically, but simply gave parables about situations, to make people see the world in a fresh way."

The negative consequences of spurious achievements show up in many of the cartoons, along with the blurred distinctions between right and wrong, between "good guys" and "bad guys" and the seeming uncertain results of decency.

"Kids are idealists until the first time they stub their toe, and then they become cynics," Crane said. "They think that because the world is not perfect and doesn't respond the way it should then the world is all bad. They need to realize that there's a lot more to it than that, so they won't give up their ideals so quickly."

North Says U.S. Planes Downed, Pilots Captured

Thursday and one Friday, bringing to 27 the number of Soviet-made jet fighters reported destroyed or damaged in aerial combat or on the ground this week.

Enemy ground fire brought down three American planes Friday, the U.S. Command said and four more aviators were listed as missing. This raised to 720 the number of U.S. combat planes reported lost over North Vietnam in the war.

U.S. losses for the past six days: the North now total 14 jets and 15 fliers missing. The most costly seven-day period of the air war for the United States was Aug. 21-27, when 16 American planes were shot down and 24 fliers were reported missing.

U.S. pilots flew 144 missions over North Vietnam Friday.

American jets in a return attack Friday bombed the Canal des Rapides Bridge five miles northeast of the center of Hanoi. Fliers reported damaging the center span of the bridge on one of the main rail and highway routes between Hanoi and Communist China. The bridge had not been hit since last August.

One challenging MIG17 went down to cannon fire from a U.S. jet during the strike on the bridge and the kill was credited to Capt. Gene I. Basel, 31, of Lakeside, Calif.

U.S. pilots also hammered for the first time at a sprawling compound containing 19 barracks and 19 warehouses three miles southwest of Hanoi's center. Fliers reported numerous fires and secondary explosions as they dodged heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Navy pilots from carriers in the Tonkin Gulf reported fires and heavy smoke after bombing runs on two oil storage depots eight and ten miles northwest of Hanoi.

Other fliers from the carrier Oriskany pounded the Long Bi electrical power plant 13 miles northeast of Hanoi. They reported damage to the transformer yard, the generator building, the boiler house and pumping station, with heavy smoke rising 6,000 feet from one section of the plant area.

U.S. Marine pilots from Da Nang claimed destruction or damage to 48 fortifications and bunkers just north of the demilitarized zone. They also hit the Yen Bai storage area 65 miles northwest of Hanoi.

On the political front, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu announced that nearly 5,000 political prisoners and 500 criminal prisoners would be granted amnesty next week on the occasion of his inauguration as president and South Vietnam's National Day.

U.S. Agencies Begin Drives For Economy

And the agency isn't inviting any new bids on projects other than those under the weapons program or involving the installation of radioactive waste storage tanks.

The foreign aid money bill, under which AID and the Peace Corps operate, and the controversial one to finance continuation of the anti-poverty program are the main ones hanging.

A $4.6 billion public works bill, including funds for the AEC, needs only final Senate clearance before going to the President for signing. The only other bills pending are those covering the D.C. government and military construction.

The logjam of money bills cracked a bit more Friday when the Senate sent to the White House by voice vote—with only five members present—a $13.3 billion money bill to finance the Labor and the Health, Education and Welfare Departments.

It's also a new form of philosophical exposition, seasoned with humor and dispensed by a growing number of contemporary cartoonists ranging from Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" to Jules Feiffer's contemplative characters.

As Crane sees the world in his sketches, it's out of joint, badly cracked, often paralyzing goodness, flawed by human self-centeredness, yet craving love, and trying, clumsily, to cultivate it.

"You look at the world, and you don't know whether to laugh or cry," he said in an interview. "It's all mixed up. You see the kind of blundering mess people are in, but also the possibilities for good. We sometimes blunder things right."

In Crane's pictorial parables, a growing flower often symbolizes the promising note—even though it sometimes withers, or under artificial fertilizers to rush its growth, turns into a man-eating plant that devours the greedy gardener.

"But we have to water the flowers—and hope," he said.

Crane's cartoons may appear in several religious publications, including the Roman Catholic weekly, Ave Maria, the Methodist youth magazine, Motive, and the United Church's official fortnightly, United Church Herald.

Several collections also have come out in book form, including the latest volume, "Inside-Out," published by Harper & Row.

His cover cartoon shows a patched-up, lopsided, explosive world, with an anxious inhabitant, hammer in hand, trying pathetically to mend a hole in it while other breaks erupt around him.

The bursting, splitting world is a recurring theme.

"So are the boxed, stacked packed, pent-up, their square shapes and entrapment in mass patterns rendering them immobile, unable to move, change or grow, making them impotent victims of collective forces enclosing them."

In one drawing, a lone individual stands beside a skyscraper of boxed humanity and shouts at the "incorporated" sign at the top. "Hello! Is there a person up there?"

In another, a forlorn figure sits at the top of a ladder, encased in a cloud of success, encased alone in a dark box. Another figure builds his simple foxhole into such a fortress of security that he's imprisoned in heavy armament.

As in Judeo-Christian teaching, what appears to be useless defeat may turn out to have positive values in the end. For example, one figure beams an apple gone rotten, fit only for flies, but another comments that it may have the seed of a whole new tree in it.

"Sometimes things look terrible," Crane said, "but may contain the makings of something very beneficial."

A native of Michigan, Crane was graduated from Methodist's Albion College and now teaches art at Florida Presbyterian College, St. Petersburg. He said his theologizing via cartoons was "completely unplanned."

"I was already doing it before I realized the ideas paralleled Christian existentialist thought," he said. "It came out of my own concern with who I was, what kind of world it is, how a person fits into it and what can be done with it."

"I've always been very interested in theology, but I don't try to justify my work from a theological stance. I just look at a situation and see what can be

North Says U.S. Planes Downed, Pilots Captured

Thursday and one Friday, bringing to 27 the number of Soviet-made jet fighters reported destroyed or damaged in aerial combat or on the ground this week.

Enemy ground fire brought down three American planes Friday, the U.S. Command said and four more aviators were listed as missing. This raised to 720 the number of U.S. combat planes reported lost over North Vietnam in the war.

U.S. losses for the past six days: the North now total 14 jets and 15 fliers missing. The most costly seven-day period of the air war for the United States was Aug. 21-27, when 16 American planes were shot down and 24 fliers were reported missing.

U.S. pilots flew 144 missions over North Vietnam Friday.

American jets in a return attack Friday bombed the Canal des Rapides Bridge five miles northeast of the center of Hanoi. Fliers reported damaging the center span of the bridge on one of the main rail and highway routes between Hanoi and Communist China. The bridge had not been hit since last August.

One challenging MIG17 went down to cannon fire from a U.S. jet during the strike on the bridge and the kill was credited to Capt. Gene I. Basel, 31, of Lakeside, Calif.

U.S. pilots also hammered for the first time at a sprawling compound containing 19 barracks and 19 warehouses three miles southwest of Hanoi's center. Fliers reported numerous fires and secondary explosions as they dodged heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Navy pilots from carriers in the Tonkin Gulf reported fires and heavy smoke after bombing runs on two oil storage depots eight and ten miles northwest of Hanoi.

Other fliers from the carrier Oriskany pounded the Long Bi electrical power plant 13 miles northeast of Hanoi. They reported damage to the transformer yard, the generator building, the boiler house and pumping station, with heavy smoke rising 6,000 feet from one section of the plant area.

U.S. Marine pilots from Da Nang claimed destruction or damage to 48 fortifications and bunkers just north of the demilitarized zone. They also hit the Yen Bai storage area 65 miles northwest of Hanoi.

On the political front, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu announced that nearly 5,000 political prisoners and 500 criminal prisoners would be granted amnesty next week on the occasion of his inauguration as president and South Vietnam's National Day.

Not Soap, but Habon

MEXICO CITY, Mexico—(NEA)—Your first thought as you walk into the television studio where a popular Mexican "habon" opera is about to tape several episodes is that an invasion of vampires has been successfully repelled.

Everybody in the studio is wearing a tiny flesh-colored bandage.

Then you notice the thin flesh-colored wires running into the bandage and finally the tiny earplug everyone is wearing. You are seeing an "apunador," a Mexican invention. It's a closed circuit walkie-talkie and the actors who are wearing them are getting their lines and stage directions from a prompter sitting above the studio in a tiny room.

"I think everything is against the actor here in Mexico," said Raphael Banquels, a respected stage star appearing in the series "Adriana." "We have bad production. We don't have time to learn our lines. The pay is very bad and so we also have to work on the stage and in films to make a living."

Soap operas are the most popular form of viewing in Mexico. They run for something like 60 episodes when the cliff-hanging story concludes. The titles could be misleading. They sound like headlines from lurid magazines. "For Love," "Anguish for the Love."

"Love in the Desert." (Even Adriana began life as a love-ly. "The Love You Did Not Want.")

Despite the titles, the rule of Mexican television is not to air anything that could offend a child of 15.

The stations have their own watchdogs, in addition to the government censor. The station watchdog gets a soap opera script and blue pencils everything he might think is objectionable. Then the script goes back to the producer who rewrites it. Back to the censor and then to the set where chances are the script will be rewritten again.

Violence is not allowed, and the scissors are used liberally on some American products. Over 20 pages of script were once cut from a "Wild, Wild

With Love, Andy

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA)—Andy Williams is both hesitant and excited.

He's hesitant to say that his first of three NBC specials is great, because he hasn't seen it. But he's mighty excited, because he was after all, there when they taped it.

The show is called "Love Andy" and it's set for Nov. 6.

"We worked very hard on the show," Andy said, talking by telephone from his Hollywood office. "It doesn't have the usual musical-variety format where you can always tell what will happen next and when the commercials are coming. We don't start the usual way, for example. There is 20 minutes of music uninterrupted by commercials. In this music, 10 different styles are represented. We have an enormous set, the biggest ever constructed at the NBC studios here. It's a labyrinth and as the music changes, we move from one set to another. They are all keyed to color, too. For instance, for baroque music it's all blue."

Henry Mancini, Erroll Garner and Claudine Longet, Andy's wife, are guests, but the show is built around Andy to the extent that he works with them all, there are no formal introductions, and much more music than usual.

Kaye: After TV, the World

By JOHN GALE Associated Press Writer

COPENHAGEN (AP) — It's been nearly 30 years since Danny Kaye arrived on Broadway, but time has treated him gently.

Public acclaim and a larger-than-life existence have yet to dispel the 54-year-old entertainer's curiosity or enthusiasm.

In Copenhagen to give a lift to the capital's 800th anniversary celebrations, Kaye owned up to a restlessness that has kept him moving round the globe since making his last TV show in April.

"The restlessness built up during the four years I was doing the show," he said. "I just had to be in one place in California for months at a time."

"When I finished, I played in Vegas but cut that short, went to Israel for a month, went home for five days and then to the South Pacific for 16 days."

Kaye was asked what, if anything, worried him about show business these days.

"Success," he said, "that comes too quickly and by the same token brings about its own demise just as quickly."

"Longevity is not nearly as prevalent these days as it was years ago when you had to go out and really work hard. People now hit the top almost immediately. When they slide, they hit the bottom. There's no question of coming down a rung, regrouping and getting up there again."

"For my money, what it takes is talent, desire and experience in that order. You have got to have it."

For a man in his sixth decade, Kaye is showing pretty strongly on longevity.

"The word 'entertaining' explains just what I do," he said. "I'm not really a singer, dancer or actor. Entertaining comprises all the things I do.

"You are basically born with a talent. A lot of the rest depends on what kind of person you are because talent is not something you take out of a box in the morning and use when you go on stage."

"If you grow and develop as a human being, then your talent develops along with you. Sure, the years go by but you quite unconsciously begin to pace yourself a bit."

"I've always remained fairly fit, probably weigh the same today as 20 years ago. I drink very little, eat when I'm hungry."

Kaye looked at the half-smoked cigarette in his hand and stubbed it out. "Twenty-a-day," he claimed looking wry.

"Eating habits are important too. Sometimes, I get up in the morning and eat a steak. Sometimes, it's just coffee."

Back home in Beverly Hills, the entertainer has what he called a whole Chinese kitchen and likes giving dinner parties for six or eight guests. Other things he enjoys are flying (he holds a commercial pilot's license, jet rated) and taking out his daughter Dena, still in school at Stanford.

The man whose career has prospered on making people laugh does not believe that he has a more sensitive funny bone than the average person.

"The same things that amuse me would probably amuse you."

WINTERS SHOW

Jonathan Winters will get a weekly show of his own starting Dec. 27. It will replace "Dundee and the Culhane" which has not done well on the popularity charts. Winters' show will be a comedy variety hour and will be shown 10 to 11 p.m.

THURSDAY TV PROGRAM

Henry Fonda is an itinerant laborer in the new film, "Stranger on the Run" Tuesday 9-11 p.m. on NBC.

'Family' Breaks Up

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC is expected to replace "Accidental Family" with another comedy series or perhaps a night time version of one of its day-time game shows. The notice that the Jerry Van Dyke series, which languishes around the bottom of the Nielsen lists, will not be renewed beyond the original commitment, has already been sent out.

Another NBC show in rating trouble is "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," a big loser in its time spot this season. It is a likely candidate for midseason cancellation, with its Monday hour filled by "Star Trek." This shift would open up a Friday night period for a return, perhaps, of the British-made "Saint" series. The network's morning "Today Show" will vary its format on Nov. 3 by devoting two full hours to "Pot in America," a study of marijuana, its uses and users. There will be interviews with, among others, Dr. Timothy Leary and a California school teacher dismissed for using the weed; and there will be a film report on the use of marijuana by servicemen in Vietnam.

TV Highlights

Today: Deborah Kerr and John Mills in "The Chalk Garden" 9-11:15 p.m. on NBC.

Sunday: "Hud," with Paul Newman and Patricia Neal, winner of several Academy Awards, 9-11 p.m. on ABC.

Monday: "Justice and the Poor," a look at legal inequities, 9 p.m. on Channel 24.
