WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today declared Maryland's loyalty oath for public employees unconstitutionally vague.

The 8-3 decision was given by Justice William O. Douglas. It stressed a provision in the oath requiring state employees to swear that they are not engaged "in one way or another" in an attempt to forcibly overthrow the Maryland or federal governments.

Douglas questioned if someone could be considered involved in an attempt to overthrow the government if he belonged to a subversive organization but was unaware of its objectives.

"We do not know," Douglas said, "nor could a prospective employer know save as he risked a prosecution for perjury."

Besides, Douglas added, "the continuing surveillance which this type of law places on teachers is hostile to academic freedom."

The three dissenters, speaking through Justice John M. Harlan, said: "The only thing that does shine through the opinion of the majority is that its members do not like loyalty oaths."

Harlan and Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White added that they found nothing unconstitutional about the Maryland loyalty oath.

The challenge to the loyalty certificate was brought to the court by attorneys for Howard J. Whitehill, a Johns Hopkins University professor who was denied a visiting teacher's post at the University of Maryland last year when he refused to sign the certificate.

It called on him to swear that he was not "engaged in one way or another in any plan to overthrow the government."

The oath stems from Maryland's 1949 Ober Law.

Since 1964 the Supreme Court has also struck down loyalty oath requirements in the states of Washington, Arizona and New York. In the light of these actions Maryland had revised its oath to eliminate a requirement that the job applicant swear he was not a member of any subversive organization.

Two Enemy MIGs Downed U.S. Planes Bomb Storage Area

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. warplanes bombed a military storage area on the edge of Hanoi for the first time today and a covering U. S. Air Force Phantom jet shot down two MIGs that came up to challenge them.

The storage area that came under attack had been on the Pentagon's out-of-bounds list. The downing of the two Korean War-vintage MIGs by the fastest plane the Air Force has, brought to 86 the number of MIG kills for American airmen in battles over North Vietnam. The United States has lost 26 planes to MIGs.

It was the fifth time a single U.S. jet had reported knocking down two MIGs in one day.

The announcement came after the command reported that U.S. Air Force jets had raided the Gia Thuong storage area less than a mile north of the Gia Lam air base, which is across the Red River from the heart of Hanoi and is North Vietnam's main civilian air field.

A spokesman said the MIGs were shot down by a 20mm cannon slug under the belly of the Phantom.

Credited with bringing down the two MIGs were Capt. Darrell D. Simmons, 33, of Vernon, Tex., the aircraft commander, and Lt. George H. McKinney Jr., 24, of Bessemer, Ala., the pilot. Both crew members are assigned to the tactical fighter wing at Ubon, Thailand.

Gia Lam is also the only MIG airfield U.S. warplanes have not yet attacked and one of about five major targets still on the Pentagon's restricted list.

Among the others are the Hai Phong docks and railroad terminal and the power plant in Lao Cai, on the border of Communist China.

The Gia Thuong storage area is on the main northeast railroad and highway from Communist China to Hanoi over which military supplies come for North Vietnamese troops fighting in South Vietnam. The area Doumer, both of which have been repeatedly attacked by American bombers.

The American F105 Thunderchief pilots reported MIG 17 and MIG21 interceptors in the area, and one F106 had a brief clash with one of the Red jets, but the U.S. Command said neither plane was hit.

A U.S. spokesman said Gia Thuong is considered one of the largest military storage areas in North Vietnam, with 72 storage buildings, 11 support buildings and eight administration buildings in the compound. He said the American bombs impacted on the buildings and on anti-aircraft sites protecting the area.

The spokesman said both the Canal des Rapides and Doumer bridges had been knocked out in previous raids and there apparently was a backlog of military supplies in Gia Thuong, making it "a lucrative target."

In another major strike Sunday, Air Force Thunderchiefs again raided the Phuc Yen MIG base northwest of Hanoi and reported damaging at least two MIG17 interceptors on the ground. In South Vietnam, meanwhile, South Vietnamese infantrymen battled Viet Cong troops near Loc Ninh.

One American F106 was shot down during the Phuc Yen raid, but two propeller-driven A1 Skyraiders drove off two MIG17s while a "jolly green giant" helicopter rescued the pilot.

"It was one of the deepest rescue penetrations made in the war in North Vietnam," a U.S. spokesman said.

The F106 was the 72nd U.S. combat plane announced lost over the north.

The northeast monsoons cut heavily into the air activity, and only 72 missions were flown Sunday, about half the normal number in good weather.

The attack on Phuc Yen was the seventh since it was taken off the Pentagon's restricted list and hit for the first time on Oct. 24.

In the attack Sunday, pilots said in addition to the two MIG17s hit on the ground, they cratered the runway in 36 places, destroyed a hangar and damaged revetments for protection of parked planes and a taxi-ment installations and villages up and down the country.

About 250 miles north of Saigon, an armed band of Viet Cong guerrillas invaded five Montagnard villages in the central highlands early today and kidnaped 245 of the mountain tribes people, a U.S. spokesman reported.

An estimated company of Viet Cong—perhaps 100 men or more—made the raids on a cluster of refugee villages six miles west of An Khe.

A U.S. spokesman said most of those kidnaped were men, and seven of them were instructed in government.

The Air Force said recent aerial reconnaissance showed the airfield had undergone extensive repairs. U.S. pilots who made the first strike Sunday said the runway was smooth and apparently serviceable, but photographs taken during the strike showed "strings" after a string of bombs hitting the main runway," the Air Force said.

The pilots also attacked the administration and operation buildings as well as the control tower.

In the south, the Viet Cong continued attacks on government installations and villages up and down the country.

Campaigns in 3 Cities Highlight State Elections

By DON MEEHLE Associated Press Writer

A strong bid by a woman Republican for the title of Mayor of Hartford, the emergence of Bridgeport's mayor as a figure of statewide stature in the Democratic Party, and a court-ordered aldermanic at-large election in New Haven are highlights of Tuesday's 53 municipal elections in Connecticut.

"In Hartford, the state's largest city, its capital—and, incidentally, the hometown and birthplace of John M. Bailey, the Democratic state and national chairman—Councilwoman Ann Uccello just might oust Democratic Mayor George B. Kinsella.

There seems to be little chance that the GOP could also wrest control of the nine-member council away from the Democrats (in fact, the Republicans could lose one of their four seats)—but if Miss Uccello gets the most votes of the 18 council candidates, she will score a kind of public relations victory for the GOP.

As mayor, she would have little power but lots of prestige and public attention. And being saddled with a Democratic majority on the council could also rebound to her advantage, since she would not have to take the blame for anything.

Hartford's voters are being asked to cast ballots on charter changes this year as well as for candidates, and if approved, the changes could mean creation of a strong mayor who runs for that office instead of for the council. The voters may also discard the nominally non-partisan election system for an openly partisan system.

Miss Uccello led all 22 candidates for the council ticket last month in the nonpartisan primary, and traditionally the primary leader is also the top vote-getter in the election.

She was aided by the rivalry for the mayoral title between the two top Democratic candidates, Mayor Kinsella and Councilman George Ritter.

In Bridgeport, Mayor Hugh C. Curran may achieve statewide stature by racking up a whopping victory in a three-way race. Curran has unified the local Democratic party and should win bigger than any other Democratic mayoral candidate in the municipal elections Tuesday. He did quite well two years ago, winning by 11,000 votes in a four-way race, but this year he should do even better.

Meanwhile, Connecticut's most famous mayor, Richard C. Lee of New Haven, appears to have slipped somewhat, and, while expected to win an eighth term, probably will not come any where near his 16,900-vote margin of 1965.

Over 250 Dead or Missing As Global Disasters Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Disaster struck often and hard over the weekend and more than 250 persons were reported dead or missing in a typhoon, floods, a train wreck and three plane crashes from the Philippines to Britain.

In the Philippines: About 200 persons were believed dead or missing as casualty counts poured into Manila after Typhoon Emma rampaged across the island and sank an inter-island passenger ship.

In England: 51 were dead and 111 injured when an express train careened off the tracks coming into London Sunday night. Another 37 died in the crash on Saturday of a Spanish airliner arriving in London from Malaga, Spain.

In Hong Kong: Only one person died as a huge Cathay Pacific Airlines Convair 880 tilted on takeoff and slid into Hong Kong harbor. The other 128 persons aboard escaped unhurt from the floating fuselage.

In New Guinea: All seven persons aboard a light plane died today when it crashed while taking off from Goroka Airport in the New Guinea highlands.

In Italy: At least 11 persons died in highway crashes during hard rains that pushed rivers in Venice and the Po River Delta over their banks to flood roads and highways.

The owners of the Philippine ship reported 67 persons are missing and presumed drowned while 14 others are known dead after the sinking of the 300-ton Mindoro in rough central Philippine seas churned up by Typhoon Emma two days ago. They said 124 passengers were rescued.

The vessel sank at the height of Emma's fury. Her howling winds, up to 126 miles an hour, cut a swath of destruction across the Philippines. The Philippine News Service reported 108 others dead or missing in five provinces, and the Red Cross listed 16 dead in two other areas.

The Red Cross said at least 24,000 families or close to 140,000 persons were left home-

Four Years in White House

Lady Bird Tells of Family's Life

Editor's note: Nearing the completion of four years' residency in the White House, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson talks in the following interview about her husband, her children and her own life as the nation's first lady.

By FRANCES LEWINE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson says the President has a reasonable, searching reaction to mounting criticism and "keeps his head high, his feet on the ground and goes on working the best he can."

"He doesn't want to be rigidly bound into one set of thinking," the first lady said. "He's always trying to learn and explore."

Approaching the anniversary of four years in the White House, Mrs. Johnson said she has never lived so intensely.

"Awareness of this house is like a shot of adrenalin—intensifying the desire to do the best you can to live up to what this country wants its first family to be."

The President's hair is whiter, he has more lines in his face: "It has taken a lot—it's been worth everything it takes," his wife said.

The family has "drawn closer together than we ever have been in our lives—there's just four of us in the same boat."

Asked whether she wants President Johnson to run again, Mrs. Johnson said: "I want him to do everything of useful work that he can for his country."

Mrs. Johnson is urging the President to relax at golf, and says she hopes someday he'll retire to Texas and teach young people about "the years of government that he has lived."

In the historic second-floor White House treaty room, Mrs. Johnson thoughtfully discussed the White House and her family.

She recalled "a lot of things I've loved," like dining by candlelight on the Truman balcony with the President and their oldest daughter Lynda; running the family's dogs and wheeling her grandson's carriage on the south lawn; "spine-tingling moments" like seeing youngest daughter Luci's wedding gown stretched out across President Abraham Lincoln's massive bed; and "earnestly dramatic things" like the signing of the civil rights bill "with the lifetimes of hope and striving that went into it."

Here are Mrs. Johnson's responses to other questions:

Q. How do you feel about the forthcoming White House wedding of Lynda to Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb?

A. A heightened sense of excitement...and mostly a warm, happy expectancy that it will be just one of those great days to remember...Luci's was and it will always be one of the benchmarks, the great days in our life together. I hope this wedding will take its place as a dignified and well-loved occasion in this house.

Q. How do you feel about your future son-in-law going to Vietnam?

A. Like any mother or mother-in-law, I feel concerned and I'll be praying. But I'll always be very proud. I like that young man and I'm glad there are folks like him fighting for us.

Q. What did you think about the recent antiwar march on the Pentagon?

A. (Mrs. Johnson revealed she and the President drove around Washington after church on the weekend of the Pentagon march.) I was thinking, by gosh, what a big cleanup bill this city was going to face. It must be ankle deep in the trash they left...to some extent that demonstration was the fruits of affluence and permissiveness...it was about as unconstructive a work as I can remember seeing.

...I feel boiling up in me the feeling I think is shared by millions of Americans—that we've got to start having more respect for the law—that we must start more firmly enforcing the law.

Q. The President frequently quotes from the troubles of his predecessors in office. Does this give you solace?

A. It helps to get it in perspective. You know it's not the first time it's happened and certainly not the last.

Q. How do you feel about the fire department and five engines, a hook and ladder, and other vehicles arrived on the scene.

$5,600 Gift Donated for Elderly Plan

WATERFORD (AP)—A $5,600 donation by a group of private citizens has given a doomed foster grandparents program a new lease on life—at least for two more weeks.

The program at the Seaside Regional Center for retarded children was terminated formally Friday because of the lack of federal funds.

The program was the first war-on-poverty project to collapse because of lack of federal funds.

Then a group called the Seaside Association of Parents and Friends gave the program $5,600—originally for a new dental unit—raised by cake sales and other projects.

Power Line Breaks WOODBRIDGE (AP) — A 115,000-volt electric power line broke and fell across the Litchfield Turnpike Sunday night, tying up traffic for about 45 minutes.

The breaking line hit the ground with a flash near policeman Nicholas Uberti, who was waiting at the side of the turnpike for a service truck to fix his cruiser's flat tire.

The high-voltage line sliced through a local power line and a telephone cable and ignited a small fire on the ground and another fire about a mile down the turnpike.

Firemen Not Needed DANBURY (AP)—Fire equipment rushed to Danbury Hospital today—but it wasn't needed.

It seems a new heating system for a renovated wing was being tested, and paint steamed upon the pipes in the basement.

The steam went up an elevator shaft and collected on the hospital's seventh floor.

Somebody called the fire department, and five engines, a hook and ladder, and other vehicles arrived on the scene.

The Bomb In Orbit
 Defense Secretary McNamara is, in our judgment, quite right in not losing his cool in the slightest over the prospect that the Russians are well on the way to developing a system by which they will eventually be able to put nuclear war heads in space orbit around the earth, triggering them down on selected targets as they please.

The simple logical truth is that this, even if it works out perfectly, will be only one more of the many capacities of the great nuclear powers of the world now possessed for their own mutual self-destruction. We can now do it from real atomic submarines. We can now do it with intercontinental missiles launched from deep inside the earth. We can do it with the bombs which unless things have changed recently, are constantly in flight somewhere. So to be able to do it from an orbit out in space adds to the imaginative drama of the situation, but not to its seriousness.

What is our answer to our situation? It is, unfortunately, nothing better—although it is vastly more expensive and resource-consuming—than that same balance of armaments which nations have always fancied as the best guarantor of peace.

Under this system, great powers coolly and deliberately match weapons for weapons, capacity for capacity, hoped-for defense against new type offense, size and terror of killing processes against one another.

In the past, this system has never proved a guarantor of peace, but merely the preparation for a war which has always awaited.

The great powers tell themselves it will be different this time, because, this time, they all know, or are supposed to know, that this would be the last time for anybody.

This is too precarious an assumption. Meanwhile, as Defense Secretary McNamara holds his own cool over what he reports the Russians to be doing, he will find himself, on one side, by the exhortations and pressure of those who will want to be sure that he is doing everything the Russians are doing, and then more. The tragedy is that neither he nor other responsible national leadership will find any equal pressure building for some other system of life for the world which is not just balance of terror. The impossible war cannot be relied upon to prevent itself. It can be prevented only by the growth and development of law to which both armaments and nations will be subject, a system of law which not merely forbids war itself, but supports and helps build positive alternatives to it.

General Vietnam
 Saigon has a relatively small item in the day's news told quite as much about a great and powerful country as the item which, the other day, told of the arrival in South Vietnam of Lieut. Gen. James M. Gavin, Army, retired.

General Gavin happens to have been the first military man to appear in open questioning and criticism of the strategy the Johnson administration has been following in Vietnam. In his public writings, in his appearances before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and in his growing flirtation with the political scene, General Gavin has established himself as a consistent, lucid, often persuasive opposition to what the Commander-in-Chief at Washington and his advising generals have been doing and propose to keep on doing in Vietnam.

The general principle of what General Gavin recommends—that, in effect, we content ourselves with having obtained a stalemate behind which the government of South Vietnam can develop secure, and leave any insistence on future military action up to the enemy—has the recommendation that it may be the only thing we ourselves can do unilaterally, which has a chance of opening the way toward an eventual honorable escape from our predicament.

So, this formidable and eloquent foe of the policy the President and the Chief of Staff are following in Vietnam may now be here as the guest of Gen. William C. The Last Pleasure Of Nutting
 It seems almost without point to recall these days the pleasure and profit that a New Englander of another era used to extract from the natural growth of his hickory nuts. For the obvious reason, in the pleasant occupation of nutting, and all its equally pleasant winter evening sequelae, does not stem from any complete disappearance of the hickory tree, but from the pressures of modern living.

These modern pressures simply do not allow time for the gentle process of searching for hickory nuts, or that of processing such small and fragmented meats for the embellishment of winter diets.

But boys of another era were not ashamed to spend an afternoon or a twilight shuffling among the fallen leaves for the unshucked nut, or for the occasional glimmer of the white already shaken by its own fall. One of the tough, white-clothed bags salt came in was the status thing for a young nutter to carry these things home, and he could be filled so many times the big nut storage chests out in the workshop would be nearly full.

The nut harvest, pursued among the crispness of the frost-touched leaves, in the brittle coolness of the late October or early November, was a pleasant, closing outdoor rite of the year, coming unbelievably soon after the hot August days in the blackberry swamps, when the Philadelphia Democratic party in their comfortable cocooning of farm family life, seen suddenly very near.

After a month or two storage, the nuts would be put into a bucket, and, depending on the size of the harvest each year, would then be available for family use. There would be evenings just for cracking a few nuts around the parlor stove, or on the kitchen table. The mere lack of the proper kind of fatiron, one with a nut-sized hole in its broad end as a result of the cracking of generations of hickory nuts there, would forestall any 1967 attempt to set up this kind of evening.

When nuts were plentiful, there would be seasonal holiday spurges—into candied, into cakes, and nutbread, all of equal desirability, he changed his mind. But, of all the lost things the year, best, in retrospect, was that of shuffling through the thick brown leaves in search of the white gleam, when all the world, ahead and forever, seemed clean and crisp and cool.

What Action Will Be Taken By Federal Reserve Board?

NEW YORK (AP) — The pressing economic question of the day is: What action will the Federal Reserve Board, that semiautonomous group that regulates the nation's money supply?

Some analysts now are betting that the war will determine board policy. Regardless of inflation, they say, the board must provide money for fighting the war.

This would mean a continuation of current policy of "easing" or "active easing" in the flow of funds. "We're standing on a fence and we can't fall to either side," said a Federal Reserve Bank official.

The alternative to traditional action are few. Last year the board tried an innovation, asking banks to restrict loans to certain customers voluntarily. It could try something similar this year, although banks rarely do this as interference.

Wartime restraints on credit, wages and prices are a possibility, but no regulations exist now that could be implemented quickly.

This leaves the board in a very difficult position, for it means that if present policy continues inflation will be tolerated. As conditions stand now, inflation is as welcome, but inevitable, as war.

Unpopular decisions, and decisions that lead to no clear cut, easily understood resolution of problems, are nothing new to the board. It has faced them time after time, sometimes with poor results. But it has made them.

Seldom, however, has it been faced with a predicament that makes decisions nearly impossible. As a result, ordinary economic growth and a stable dollar, which are the board's responsibility, may have to be forsaken.

Poet's Corner
 November, Again
 And now, the wind brings Microphonic sound.
 The clear, high notes in minor keys are set
 To float through listening trees.
 The air around
 Is filled with astringent sadness and regret.
 As oak-leaves curl their faded,
 bronzy tips,
 Each forms a fragile, papery cup, to hold
 The chill November rain.
 Like muffled drums beating in the damp and cold.
 Prepared to make their seasonal offering.
 The least-cups heed the urgent wind. They go.
 Turned upside-down, rims broken,
 offering
 A bonus shower to thirsty ground, below.
 Only the leaves of straggly
 stems remain.
 Clinging to dark, wet branches,
 in the rain.

Branch School Board's Step

The Branch Board of Education and the town's teacher organization have agreed to take an unbiased step in the world of contract negotiations, whether the public or private sector.

The school board has voted to admit the press to its bargaining talks with teachers, and the latter, through their Personnel Policy Committee, seconded the action.

Miss Jo Ann Donadio, chairman of the committee, made the comment that "anything we do should be open to the public."

She cheer the board and teachers for charting a bold new course across that path that separates government and its citizens over just how much the latter are entitled to know about how they're being governed. Even this day of new and better "Right to Know" laws, closed door attitudes persist among government officials and their Republican counterparts in 1965 to run successfully.

At the same time, we are quick to acknowledge that in conducting discussions on salaries and other teacher matters in the open before press and public, Bradford is venturing upon a highly sensitive activity, one with no end of pitfalls. There is even opinion in education circles that the board has made an imprudent move and will only succeed in "handcuffing" itself.

In the least, this could be regarded as an experimental attempt from which much could be learned whether there is really any value to secrecy in contract talks, whether for teachers or other government employe groups.

Who knows, school officials may discover that the more they let education matters in open rather than executive session, the more understanding education needs are likely to gain in the community. NEW HAVEN REGISTER

Mishaps Kill Seven in State On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Connecticut accidents during the weekend left dead two fishermen, two pedestrians, a boy and a woman, and injured seven others.

In Middletown, an unidentified blond-haired driver of a 1966 Ford Mustang was driving on a large pond a half mile from the town when he was struck by a car.

In Bridgeport, Edward R. Albert, 23, of Bridgeport died Sunday in a Bridgeport hospital after he was struck by a car driven by John Cook, 34, of Bridgeport.

Fishermen, Martin S. Clippard, 42, of Stratford drowned accidentally while fishing, authorities said. His body was found about 100 yards off Milford Point Saturday night after he was reported missing.

In New Milford, Herman Howard, 62, of Middletown drowned Saturday night after falling from a railroad bridge into the Housatonic River.

According to police, he was fishing with some friends when a train approaching from the north jumped to safety but Howard lost his footing, police said.

In Danbury, Andrew King, 60, of Fairfield died Saturday night after he was struck by a car while walking across a street.

In Fairfield, 18-year-old Walter A. Barzylo Jr. was fatally injured Saturday night apparently while wrestling on a porch near the town line.

ROAD CLOSED FOR CARPET PORTLAND, Maine (AP) They had to close Portland's principal business street Sunday so a carpet could be laid in a jewelry store.

The carpet was 80 feet long and 16 feet wide. A dozen workers had to lay out the half-ton carpet in the street, cut it to size, then pull it into the store.

Soviets Need To Compete In Fashions

By JEAN SEBRAN WILSON AP Fashion Editor NEW YORK (AP) — During the 60th anniversary year of the Bolshevik revolution, designers the world over have been using up a lot of fashion ideas.

Adopted Anthem The Star-Spangled Banner was composed by Francis Scott Key in 1814 during the bombardment of Ft. Mifflin, but it was not adopted as the official national anthem until President Herbert Hoover signed a congressional bill authorizing it as such on March 3, 1931...

LANGUAGES HELPS PORTLAND (AP) — Portland fireman Al Oliverio made the job easier Saturday when 21 units were called to fight a fire aboard the freighter Goldstone, docked in the Willamette River...

By the time women do get the pointed-toe shoes or slouch dresses they have been demanding, the fashion world has long ago abandoned those for something newer, observed Mollie who, while in her office, while at the same time supervising the steaming of a black lace dress to be delivered to 1000 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C.
