Riot Cases
Are Still On Docket

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The summer riots in Newark and Detroit look place nearly six months ago, but courts of both cities are still dealing with hundreds of the arrests which resulted from the outbreaks.
Clearing the dockets is likely to take at least until next summer.
In Detroit, where 4,200 persons were jailed, the trials of 1,200 accused of felonies will commence next spring.
In Newark, where 1,200 were taken into custody on riot-connected charges, 300 cases remain to be heard.
Detroit disposed of misdemeanor cases arising from the riots within two to three weeks after peace was restored. More than 4,000 defendants pleaded guilty to charges ranging from drunkenness to disorderly conduct. Most were sentenced to five to seven days in jail.
About half of an original 3,200 felony cases in Detroit were settled by the prosecution's acceptance of guilty pleas to lesser charges if the defendants had no prior criminal records.
Bill in jail are 40 persons accused of serious crimes who were either denied bail or were unable to find sureties for their pleas.
Most of these were held in high bail because they already had charges pending against them for other crimes when they were arrested in the rioting.

But American Officials See Unproductive Outcome
Hanoi, U.S. Seen Closer to Talks

By JOHN N. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam and the United States apparently have narrowed somewhat their differences over starting peace talks. But U.S. officials see little prospect in the North without a reciprocal scaling down of military activity.
This is one of three questions which the United States is reported seeking clarification from North Vietnam before deciding on its next move in response to a statement made last weekend by North Vietnam's foreign minister, Nguyen Van Trinh.
So far, Trinh's statement is regarded here as being primarily a step to explore every possible lead... clarification of the terms of the process.
The key sentence in the Trinh statement which has set off a new round of diplomatic activity talks "can be held.
The most recent definitive has ended unconditionally the bombing and starting talks with against the DRV (Democratic Republic of Vietnam or North Vietnam) — the DRV will on Sept. 29. He said the United States is "willing immediately to stop aerial and naval bombardments of North Vietnam when this will lead promptly to a productive discussion."
To this the President added: "We would assume that while the bombing was held up conditionally and permanently talks 'can be held.'
The President thus appeared to drop the previous condition that North Vietnam would have to stop the bombing of U.S. military bases in South Vietnam and to stop the DRV's support of Viet Cong forces in South Vietnam.

Heart Patient Is 'Very Well'

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Dr. Phillip Blalberg, the world's third heart transplant patient, was "doing very well" today, a hospital spokesman said.
The 58-year-old retired dentist regained consciousness Tuesday night and in his first words since the operation said: "I am thirsty. Please give me water."
The heart beating inside the white denturist's chest belonged to Clive Haupt, 24, a mulatto, but there was no objection from the chief defender of apartheid—South Africa's policy of racial segregation. Said Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster: "I am very glad to hear that the operation was successful."
Dr. Christian Barnard, who again headed the surgical team for the operation on Blalberg Tuesday, said today there is no possibility of his team performing another transplant operation in the near future.
He did not explain why.
Barnard reported that the operation on Blalberg went as well as the epochal first transplant on Louis Washkansky and "perhaps a little better in that in this case we didn't have to shock the heart (electrically); it started by itself."
In addition," he added, "the first time we stopped the heart—machine the circulation took over. We didn't have to start the heart—lung machine as we had to last time."
Barnard was cheered by a crowd of spectators and journalists when he came out of Groote Schuur Hospital, after the five-hour operation and a number of persons shook his hand and gave him a warm embrace after a stroke while playing rugby on nearby Fish Hoek Beach with his wife and friends.
After the operation on Washkansky Dec. 3, Haupt had tonsillitis. He will fly to Kinshasa, the Congo, Thursday.
Volta Dam hydroelectric and industrial project, one of the largest in Africa. The United States and Britain contributed a substantial part of the $200 million cost.

U.S. Again Transfers More Gold

This raised to $25 billion the amount of gold transferred during December from the money stocks to the Exchange Stabilization Fund from which sales of gold are made to foreign buyers when he came out of Groote Schuur Hospital, after the five-hour operation and a number of persons shook his hand and gave him a warm embrace after a stroke while playing rugby on nearby Fish Hoek Beach with his wife and friends.

Cubans Await Coupons

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban motorists lined up today for coupons to buy 8 to 20 gallons of gasoline a month under rationing ordered by Prime Minister Fidel Castro on the ninth anniversary of the victory of his revolution.
In a speech at the big anniversary celebration in Havana Tuesday, Castro said the rationing was needed to conserve fuel supplies from the Soviet Union. He said his Communist government was forced to dip into the armed forces fuel reserves in 1967.
For the first time on such an occasion during his regime, Castro avoided the expense of parading tanks and rockets the Soviet Union has furnished him. About 80,000 Cubans marched to support his forecast, he pointed to empty bottles which had contained champagne and imported beer.

Mayor Asks Details on School Error

Mayor Nathan Agostinelli has called on the school board for a more detailed explanation of "how it was possible to make a three-year error of $11,008 in subtracting per-pupil summer school grants from the state."

His remarks were precipitated by a letter from Superintendent of Schools William Curcio, dated yesterday and delivered to the Board of Directors last night.

In the letter, Curcio takes full responsibility for a three-year miscalculation in summer school enrollment, a miscalculation which resulted in the state's overpayment.

Curcio informed the directors that the entire $11,008 must be repaid from the General Fund by June 30.

Agostinelli said, "There is no question concerning the fact that we must and will repay it. However, the school board must know how it (the directors) are concerned."

Agostinelli said after last night's board meeting that the school board appeared to accept the error in a routine manner, passing it on to the directors of the school district almost as if it were a minor matter.

The directors avoided involvement last night in another problem facing the school board—a request from Mr. and Mrs. Rose Fagette of 111 Constance Dr. for a permanent fence between their property and the Buckley School play area.

The directors, several months ago and after repeat requests by the Fagettes, had offered to appropriate a sum of money for the fence, provided the school board would promise to use the sum for that purpose only.

The school board declined the offer and on Nov. 27 adopted a motion, declaring the problem solved. Its declaration was a storm fence there each winter.

The storm fence is up but the Fagettes contend that it is inadequate and broken. They are pressing for a permanent fence. It was the consensus of the directors last night that they do not intend to become involved with the school board in a jurisdictional problem.

Weather in The Nation

By The Associated Press. Subzero cold stung a vast stretch of the country from the Rockies to New England today while snow, sleet, and freezing rain hobbled motorists from Texas to New York.

The mercury tumbled to 29 below zero at Hibbing, Minn., as the latest in a series of Arctic invasions that began before Christmas settled deep in the midcontinent. Denver registered 4 below before dawn and it was 7 above zero at Kansas City.

The Weather Bureau had indicated Tuesday night that readings of zero or below could be expected in parts of 25 states.

Sleet or freezing rain brought travelers warnings for portions of eight states from Texas and northern Texas across Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky and Tennessee. Scores of traffic accidents were reported, and there were reports of motorists being stranded on Tennessee's hilly roads.

Light to moderate snow blanketed the region north of the icy pavement belt and extended northward into Pennsylvania and New York.

Rain soaked much of the South from central Texas to Georgia.

In contrast to the bitter cold numbing the plains and Midwest, unseasonably mild, clear weather warmed Florida. Temperatures climbed into the 70s and 80s Tuesday, and Fort Lauderdale registered an early morning low of 65 degrees.

Some early morning temperatures and conditions around the country: Boston 17 partly cloudy. New York 25 snow, Philadelphia 20 snow. Washington 25 cloudy. Atlanta 28 rain. Miami 66 clear. Detroit 40 cloudy. Chicago 19 snow. Minneapolis-St. Paul 11 partly cloudy. St. Louis 21 cloudy. Kansas City 7 clear. Dallas 47 rain. Denver 4 clear. Phoenix 40 clear. Los Angeles 54 clear. San Francisco 59 clear. Seattle 31 clear. Anchorage 36 snow. Honolulu 13 clear.

GLASTONBURY (AP) — Police said a "huge natural gas leak" from a new pipe system caused the closing of three streets and threatened a Glastonbury neighborhood.

The gas, police said, came out of manholes Tuesday night on Hubbard and Williams Streets, where the new system had been installed.

About 800 students watching basketball games at Glastonbury High School on Hubbard Street were not forced away, however, and were let out a back door after the game, police said.

Workers plugged the "potentially dangerous" leakage at about 10 p.m., police said.

The accident happened as Brooks and his family were returning to Beaumont after a two-hour flight from Dallas. The driver of the second car, L. D. Creel of Kountze, Tex., also was uninjured.

About 800 students watching basketball games at Glastonbury High School on Hubbard Street were not forced away, however, and were let out a back door after the game, police said.

Workers plugged the "potentially dangerous" leakage at about 10 p.m., police said.

POLITICIAN, WIFE HURT SILASSEE, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., received a broken left hand and his wife, Charlotte, was bruised and cut on her forehead Tuesday in a two-car collision on Farm Road 93 miles north of here. Both were treated at a hospital and released.

The accident happened as Brooks and his family were returning to Beaumont after a two-hour flight from Dallas. The driver of the second car, L. D. Creel of Kountze, Tex., also was uninjured.

GLASTONBURY (AP) — Police said a "huge natural gas leak" from a new pipe system caused the closing of three streets and threatened a Glastonbury neighborhood.

The gas, police said, came out of manholes Tuesday night on Hubbard and Williams Streets, where the new system had been installed.

Blue Note On New Year's Day

President Johnson, with all the elaborate fanfare and emphasis reserved for the office of the Presidency, took the first day of the New Year to strike a note which was both blue and serious.

There are some who take oxygen, either from a tank or a walk in the country, and pretend that they are cured. Others throw a slug of litter into a cold beer and say that makes them feel better. Vinegar and raw eggs, with a pat of butter, are also recommended. Practically no one to our knowledge has ever recommended that a little humor can brighten even a godly life.

There are, of course, substantial differences between the two Congresses. Truman's target was the national convention of the AFL-CIO? When Harry McPherson, the President's White House counsel, was asked to draft the speech, there was no thought that it would be televised nationally. Thus McPherson, with the help of top Administration politicians, drafted a one-shot speech hitting at the political nerve center of the ears of organized labor.

The speech was specifically written, for example, with an eye to its reproduction in hundreds of labor newspapers and newsletters across the country. It was in short a special interest speech to a special interest group. Johnson audience that wanted raw meat.

The decision to carry the speech live on TV instantaneously transformed it from a local special interest effort to a national policy pronouncement. To Mr. Johnson's own surprise, he suddenly found himself under attack not only from Republican leaders in Congress, speaking by his bars, but also leaders of his own party.

The real reason the President won't allow himself to repeat that Bal Harbor performance (for which he later offered a half-hearted apology to the Republicans) is his embattled legislative program for the second session of the 90th Congress starting next month. Led by the 10 percent income surtax bill, which is still gathering dust in a House Ways and Means Committee pigeonhole, his program will need Republican votes to pass Congress before the Presidential election.

If President Johnson orders his name taken off the ballot in the April 30 Massachusetts Presidential primary election (State Democrats have chosen Lester Hyman instead to place it on the ballot) he may find himself in a very tight spot.

The reason is that if the President himself doesn't make a fight against Minnesota's Senator Eugene McCarthy—an announced entry—O'Brien is the obvious stand-in.

Schools today are not a humdrum nor an educational force as much as a credentialing agency, sorting people out who do not fit into the regular channels of educational development. strated a great capacity for that self-denial and that self-sacrifice which could make the effort at governmental restraint unnecessary. The President, if he means business, will have to try to compel the various elements and interests of American life to do what he would like to have done voluntarily. Finally, will he have a long time getting any real help from Congress. In summary, the magnitude and the reality of the problem as outlined by the President on New Year's Day can be conceded; their seriousness is compounded, moreover, by the lack of any real prospect that the President can lead, persuade, or compel us to the kind of cure he recommends.

Our Guaranteed Hangover Cure

We noticed, in one of our last acts of reading for the old year, considerable expert speculation as to the best cure for a New Year's Eve party hangover.

There are the experts who, despite occasional sad experience, insist that at a hair of the same dog is the best remedy available.

1967: A Year of Steady Habits

By LAWRENCE MOSE

Connecticut is called the land of steady habits. Andover, with about 2,100 people of the state's approximate three million, maintains the steadiness of state membership but on the language of the deeds issued years ago.

The population remained about the same and people registered as voters showed no increase. Marriages numbered 28, the same as 1966 and births were 40 compared with 37 last year. Deaths were 15 in 1966 and eight last year.

Permits for new dwellings were only nine and no other permits for apartment housing. Permits had a stated total value of about $178,000 for the year, down about $28,000 from last year.

The town does change in that families do move out and new families come in to live in the same homes. There were about 80 transfers of property, about 50 of them for dwellings during the year. Last year '66 was the tally. Thirty of the transfers covered land only, lots and acreage. One significant transaction was the sale of 220 acres of land owned by the Stanley family which was sold to the state of Connecticut to be added to the Nathan Hale Forest. Another sizable transfer of land was a 60-plus acre plot on Hendee Rd. to Lawrence Flinn for a subdivision of some future date.

Zoning Decisions Not wanting to change very much was reflected in two decisions of the Planning and Zoning Commission. A petition of the Connecticut Real Estate Society for a change from residential to garden apartments was turned down. The commission also turned down the petition for the erection of a clubhouse, was denied. Also denied was its petition to make the zoning of a clubhouse in a residential zone a permissive use.

After a public hearing on July 24, asking permission to build garden apartments in two locations not zoned for them, two petitions were turned down. E. J. Plouffe wanted a tract of land on Rt. 6 rezoned to light industry, and Ralph and Irene Edles asked about six acres of their land be rezoned from residential to garden apartments.

There was not much change in the political picture and how that picture was reflected in the town. Percy B. Cook was re-elected First Selectman in the May biennial election. This made the ninth time that Cook, a Democrat, has been elected to that office in 28 years. Frank Munson, a Republican, was re-elected town clerk by the large margin. E. J. Plouffe was appointed to the vacancy. Larry Scanlon, Democrat, won a close race for the post of Town Treasurer from Yo Anson. Leon Plummer, Democrat, won and joined Cook on the Board of Selectmen.

Martin Sauer, owner of the Andover Service Station, mounted an experiment in non-profit operation. He let the Andover Fire Department run his station for one day and keep the profits for their equipment needs. The firemen washed cars, serviced them and came out at the end of the day, with $18 for their treasury.

Many Young old were recipients of well-earned honors. Howard Stanley was given a 56-year pin, along with Olga Lindholm, for service to the Grange. His daughter, Mrs. Hermon, also received a 25-year pin. The Stanley family had further reason for satisfaction when Mr. and Mrs. Stanley, non-irving became a Doctor of Dental Medicine at the Tufts' graduation exercises in June.

Two other young people from town, among perhaps other worthy young people, were honored for scholastic achievements. David Urdin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Urdin, Rt. 6, received a B.A. degree from Northeastern University in June. Walter Mortlock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mortlock of Townsend Rd., was awarded a B.A. degree from Ripon College in Wisconsin.

Andover was made a more beautiful town in 1967 by events, at least. The disposal area was converted to the sanitary land fill method of operation in January and functioning so well that a demonstration of the method for town officials throughout the state was held here a few months later.

To further beautify the town and clear the decks of junk automobiles Ken Chabichoff bought a car crushing unit and did away with a few hundred junk vehicles at the town's expense. Included in the operation was a dozen or more junk cars from the Howard residence on Shady Hill Rd.

Bylot Decisions Issued And as the year drew to a close the long-awaited court action in the case of the Rev. William Pilgrot of New Haven was issued. Judge Samuel Good ruled that the Negro minister did not have to belong to the Andover Property Owners Association to use the lake. He ruled that the deeds to the minister's property implied an easement to the lake.

The people of the town above the facilities of the school. All of their willingness, even though the project was delayed by a higher court, could mean that use of the lake will be longer depend of ALFOA membership but on the language of the deeds issued years ago.

"yes" to plans for expansion of Andover is not a wealthy town, but families who have so much to contribute in the way of knowledge, training, and good will.

Wives Invent Projects for Handy Men

By VIVIAN BROWN

For example, "wretched husbands" time of the year when women get together for a coffee bash...

There are wretched husband stories galore... For example, there's the woman who can't have a picture window at the back of her house because her husband is determined to stare at the neighbor's garage...

Actually, her husband provides the answer: "Never, never put a picture window where you won't appreciate the view..."

Another woman is in a tizzy because her annual neighborhood pay-back party is on the rocks...

"I've been trying to get him to do this for years," she wails, but he has been putting it off...

Confusion says there is no accounting for man's perversity. Women must cope. Postpone the party or drape the walls in ivy or psychedelic posters if the shoe must go on...

Another woman is having her floors scraped. She says, "I could sell my husband over my head for a few dollars more suggested by decorator..."

He's never even noticed the floors before but is holding out for bowling-alley shiny-finished floors. I don't want old-fashioned floors any more...

Actually, she slipped on this one! His ideas are newer than hers although some people refer to the new slick floors as "gymnasium finish..."

This is a handsome finish for white, black or any color floor, so she can have her dark floors with an up-to-date look...

You may find he'll go on and on, and where he'll stop nobody knows. Her husband has used up vacation money for the next four years...

There are women who push their husbands too far (like out the door) on a woman's outburst. Her husband is not a do-it-yourselfer, and she's glad.

Doctor Fears Too Many Pills by WERNER VOLLMANN

Spending Restriction Not Seen Curing Ills

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Though as they are, President Johnson's plans for restricting American spending abroad offer few long-term, permanent solutions to the nation's balance of payments ills...

At the most, they are emergency measures, parties in the realm of politics rather than economics, very likely temporary, and could, in the long run, do more damage than good to the balance of payments and the nation's economy...

Two of the very basic factors in this nation's adverse balance of payments have involved government rather than private policies: first, costly military and financial aid; second, the financial aid...

The solution of the first has eluded this administration since it took office. The inflation is to a great degree the result of the war. The weakness is not in the private sector of the U.S. economy...

At the present time the United States has a balance of trade in its favor. That is, the American economy continues to produce more goods for sale abroad than are imported for American use...

He's Back from 13 Month's Polar Research

By JOHN STANKIS

Peter Frederick Brattis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Brattis of Swamp Rd., Coventry, recently came back from the South Pole. He spent 13 months of the large chunk of ice and snow where the temperature went to zero, never once in the 13 civil months again. He said that after living with a bunch of men who got into certain habits where you tend to speak from fear and instinct, each other without the slightest thought.

The 1962 graduate of Manchester High School went to the pole to study cosmic ray activity. The study was sponsored by the government and under the guidance of the Bartol Research Foundation of Swarthmore, Pa.

At the pole, Brattis said, his job was to record cosmic ray activity on machines and send the results back to the states. He also did a report on his studies, which he has turned in to the foundation already. He said that the study was a lot of fun, but he wouldn't do it again. Brattis had one inconspicuous detail which remained from his

The "shack" in which Peter Brattis lived for over a year at the pole. It is one of the few buildings found above ground there, and had to be on the surface because Brattis' data-gathering equipment was inside, measuring the cosmic ray activity on the icy face of the polar area. The steel poles on the left support telephone lines which lead from the "shack" to the main barracks.

His commitment to the foundation to finish, he said.

Cosmic ray research is done at the South Pole because the magnetic lines surrounding the earth converge at the pole in such a way as to permit the rays to enter ground level with least resistance. Brattis said that there is a "larger intensity of cosmic rays at the pole, and there are more of them," because of the lesser resistance from the earth's magnetic field there.

Another reason for the pure and intense activity of the cosmic rays there is that the pole station where Brattis and the other men were stationed is at an elevation of 9,000 feet above sea level. They were not on a mountain top, Brattis said. The large blob of snow just simply rises slowly to that high elevation.

The camp where the men were parked was 750 miles from the water and "about a quarter of a mile from the true pole," that point of the earth which sometimes is designated in cartography as a strip of ice rather than a pole sticking out of it. Brattis said that there is a marker on the spot, and this is the American flag. The pole is where the imaginary lines of the time zones of earth all come together.

trip to the pole—a reddish, blond mustache to match the brown hair on his head. He said he had shaved a beard off in New Zealand and that the beard was in itself funny because "it had all white flecks in it."

Last week the remaining remnant of the trip disappeared. He shaved off the mustache. Brattis said he has been back from his odd venture about three weeks. The hardest adjustment is learning "to keep a phenomenon of the South Pole, the aurora australis, as an hour, Brattis said. Scientists do not know what causes these "polar lights," according to Brattis. He said the aurora appeared "about a month before sunrise—in August."

Brattis said that of the 21 men there, he was the only one studying cosmic rays. Some men were meteorologists, some were doing ionospheric research, and some were with the coast and geodetic survey teams of the government. Eight of the men were civilian; thirteen were U.S. Navy.

At the Pole, time as we know it loses its meaning. While talking, Brattis used such terms as "one month before sunset" and "one month after sunrise," to designate time.

Being used to 12 hours of daylight and 12 hours of night in a 24 hour period, it takes a bit of adjustment to get used to six months of light and six months of black night.

"The first few days it was easy to forget what day it was," he said. "It was also strange to wake up, look at a watch and see that it's four o'clock, but not knowing whether it was afternoon or morning."

The hardest adjustment to time was "seeing the sun low over the horizon all the time. It moved in a circle around the sky," he said, "but never up and down. And it was always there when we first got there. Always at the same, low level above the horizon line. It was there when you got up, when you went to sleep, when you had lunch."

The highest temperature at the pole when he was there was one below zero, the lowest was 100 degrees below. Frostbite, he said, could come fast and deadly at the pole in such extremely low temperatures.

During the "day" though, when the temperature of 40 degrees below was there once in the sunshine, he ventured out in just his top shirt. He said you would never do this at "night," when there was no sun to evaporate the sudden cold.

In the summer, the temperature was generally about 30 below zero.

Brattis' "shack" at the pole was one of the few structures above ground. All his food, measuring instruments and data gathering equipment were in his shack, which measured 20 feet by 20 feet in area.

Most of the buildings at the pole are under the snow, he said. They are built by digging a large hole in the ground, putting in a barracks building, and then letting the wind cover the whole thing with snow. Brattis said this type of building was most practical, since the snow gave it good insulation.

Food heat in the buildings was provided by electricity, supplemented by oil. One of the most annoying things during the stay there was that in the six months month sessions have been short, he said, and these lasted anywhere from one minute to over two hours.

It does not snow at the South Pole, Brattis said, "but an amount of snow which falls is so small as to be immeasurable. The

The building which houses this room is surrounded on all sides, including the roof, with snow. The main barracks was built under the snow and ice of the South Pole for warmth. Relaxing inside is John Bower, (left) who replaced Peter Brattis at the South Pole and continued Brattis' cosmic ray activity study. With Bower are two meteorologists.

METRO Seeks Federal Sum To Establish Math Program

A $96,000 federal grant is being sought to establish an experimental mathematics laboratory program in Manchester, West Hartford and Waterbury.

An application for funds to finance the program, designated Project REMODEL, has been submitted to the U.S. Office of Education, John Allison, director of METRO, announced yesterday.

The funds will enable personnel involved in the project to do research, conduct workshops and purchase supplies and equipment.

A major goal of the project will be to develop a resource book for teachers that will enable them to put the mathematics program into their classrooms.

The fathers of Project REMODEL say their program will be designed to complement, not replace the existing math curriculum.

ANTARCTIC SKIING GOOD WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — The ski areas in Bob Koons' home state usually have a good snow base but nothing like where he's skiing now. Koons, of Waterville, wrote Koons that he is spending his time skiing six feet of base "on 8,500 feet of base." Koons is in the U.S. Antarctic research program at Byrd Station—600 miles from the South Pole.

ground attack. Initial reports said 11 cavalrymen were killed, 70 were wounded and the fight was continuing. There was no 2. Earlier, before dawn, the enemy raked the flight lines at the big Di Nang base with 46 of the big 122mm rockets. It destroyed a $2-million Phantom jet and two light spotter planes, and did minor damage to 20 other aircraft. Four American soldiers were wounded in the 10-minute barrage and 19 others were injured as the sleepy airmen tumbled into the darkness and dashed for bunkers.

The coordinated hit-and-run assaults raked South Vietnamese outposts within a 30-mile radius of Di Nang. Casualties among the defenders were reported light.

Some U.S. officials in Washington explored the latest North Vietnamese statement on peace possibilities, the Viet Cong leadership declared today its forces "are resolved to fight, however long the struggle, so as to achieve at all cost independence and freedom" in South Vietnam.

The New Year's statement, broadcast by Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency, did not refer to the offer by North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh to talk peace if the United States halts its bombing raids and other war actions against North Vietnam.

Some U.S. officials in Washington considered Trinh's statement a change in North Vietnam's position. But they said it did not appear to be a total answer to President Johnson's offer in a San Antonio speech to halt the bombing if it could be assured of prompt and productive talks with Hanoi.

Johnson said it was assumed that North Vietnam would not attempt to take military advantage of the talks by reinforcing or resupplying its forces during a peace negotiation.

State Department press officer Carl Barth was authorized to say only that Trinh's statement is being studied and the United States is making an effort to explore it as it does all possible leads to peace.

South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Du told newsmen in Tunis: "I believe that Hanoi accepted negotiations permanently and unconditionally, this would constitute a very appreciable change in attitude on the part of Hanoi."

Some U.S. officials in Washington investigated Trinh's statement a change in North Vietnam's position. But they said it did not appear to be a total answer to President Johnson's offer in a San Antonio speech to halt the bombing if it could be assured of prompt and productive talks with Hanoi.

Coordinated U.S. Marine-South Vietnamese civic action platoon near Ho An was overrun and all wiped out. Seven of the Marines attached to the platoon were killed along with their Navy hospital corpsman and four more Marines were wounded. From 10 to 20 of the South Vietnamese militiamen unit were killed.

Three other Marine-South Vietnamese combined action platoons came under attack, including one less than five miles from Hue, the old imperial capital. Government casualties in the attack near Hue were reported moderate, meaning the government troops were hit hard. It was believed there were some Marine casualties also, but initial reports were sketchy.

The rocket attack on the Di Nang base was the sixth on the big allied installation, and the defenders were prepared. A twin-engine A-1J "Spooky" mounted with quick-firing missiles was on combat patrol overhead when the firing started. Within minutes it was attacking the Red rocketeers four miles away in what is called "Happy Valley."

The Red gunners got off 46 of the three foot, Soviet-supplied projectiles which in another attack last July 15 killed eight Marines, wounded 178 other servicemen and wrecked 42 aircraft.

Although the two 10,000-foot runways were cratered by a few rounds, they were quickly repaired and put back in operation.

Near the Cambodian border 62 miles northwest of Saigon, Red mortars raked a bivouac of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division this morning, wounding one American, but made no attempt to renew the battle there Monday night and Tuesday night which 14 Communists and 23 Americans were reported killed and 183 Americans wounded.

That battle, which the U.S. Command said the Communists launched two hours before the expiration of the Viet Cong cease-fire and seven hours before the allied truce period ran out, rained the casualties during the 88-hour period set by the allied truce period.

Police investigation revealed no forced entry, though the station was locked all day Sunday. There were employees there on Monday, Gong told police.

A food-dispenser type of truck was stolen from the A-1 Industrial Caterers was stolen from in front of the company's birthday last May, when U.S. soldiers were killed and 97 wounded. Comparative South Vietnamese and Communist figures were not available.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam Tuesday 22 of the enemy and eight Americans were reported killed in two battles.

Two companies of American Division air cavalrymen reported killing 39 North Vietnamese soldiers in a clash in rice paddies of the Ly Ly River valley east of Saigon. They reported three Americans killed and five wounded.

About 30 miles to the south, 1st Air Cavalry troops fought a day-long battle on the east shore of Dam Trao Lake and said they counted 48 enemy bodies there. Five Americans were reported killed and 29 wounded.

The air war against North Vietnam also resumed in full fury after the New Year's truce. U.S. Headquarters reported that despite heavy clouds Tuesday, Air Force and Navy jets were launched today when the weather unexpectedly improved.

The two MIG kills were reported by Air Force F-105 pilots flying cover for F105 Thunderbolt pilots from Thailand who were in low to high altitudes and road targets near Hanoi.

U.S. Headquarters in Saigon said the pilot's claims were "officially confirmed" yet confirmation was expected soon. This would bring to 103 the number of MIGs claimed by American pilots, compared with 72 U.S. planes credited to Communist pilots.

It was the first air battle reported since Dec. 26, when a U.S. Command made no mention of any American losses today but reported a Navy F-4 Crusader went down to "unknown cause" on Thursday. The

A total of $145 in cash was stolen from the Paul Dodge Pontiac Service Station at 373 Main St. sometime Sunday or Monday. The money was in a life-type bank pouch and is kept hidden in a fire, the service manager, Anthony Gong of 694 Koenig St., told police.

In the missing pouch were also credit card sales receipts for $175.

Wig Business Big in Korea

By M. H. AMIN

SEOUL (AP) — The wig business has become big business for South Korea.

In 1962, it had not occurred to anyone to use the abundant supply of human hair exported to the United States and Europe.

But someone determined that the wig-making business was far more lucrative than the hair exporting trade.

Pioneer firm in the Korean field was the Seoul Trading Company, whose president is Choi Joon-kyu.

Korean wigmakers claim their workmanship is among the highest in the world, particularly in dyeing dark hair into light or shades.

The United States gave a big boost to the Koreans in 1968 when the American Treasury Department forbade the importation of any wigs made from Red Chinese raw material.

The hair is collected in Korea by thousands of individuals; needy housewives, traveling rice candy merchants and others who make door-to-door visits around the peninsula.

Most of the longer hair comes from girls out in the country who permit their tresses to grow longer and more abundant than their city sisters.

There are the inevitable O'-Henry-like stories of a beautiful maiden who is forced to shear her mane in order to buy medicine for ailing parents or a holiday present for boyfriend or husband.

The on-the-street collectors sell their gatherings to brokers who in turn bargain with the wig firms, based mostly in Seoul, where they are woven into the final product.

Wigs come in four basic sizes: short—shortly, four to six inches long; shorty, six to 10 inches; regular, 10 to 14 inches; and full, 20 inches or more.

More than 100 shades are produced, ranging from raven black to "pastel blonde."

Surprisingly, the darker shades are most popular in the United States.

Report prices, due to inexpensive labor and ready availability of the raw material, range from $8 to $12 for machine-made wigs and $12 to $20 for the handmade article.

They go on sale at beauty parlors and women's stores in the States for around $50 to $80, sometimes more.

Wigs come in four basic sizes: short—shortly, four to six inches long; shorty, six to 10 inches; regular, 10 to 14 inches; and full, 20 inches or more.

CREOLE INFLUENCES
PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Although English is spoken and understood throughout the island, the popular language in Haiti is Creole. According to etymologists, Creole is three-quarters Norman French, brought to the island by buccaners 300 years ago; a few words of modern French; some Spanish; a little English; Caribbean Indian; and a hint of African, all stirred with the softening influence of the tropics. Haitians also enrich Creole with imitations of sounds. If a man falls down lightly, they say "La tomber bag," the falls down bag. If he falls with a great crash, it is "La tomber boum!"

Indians Start Slowly but Finish Fast to Top Hall High

Gain Fifth Straight in CCIL Warfare

By HARRY COWLES

Getting off to a very slow start in the first quarter, the Manchester High Indians came on strong in the second half to squeeze by Hall High of Hartford, 28-20, for the CCIL title. This was the Indians' fifth straight triumph as the season record now stands at 5-1. It was expected to be a close game, with the small gym, ringing constantly with the cheering and stomping for the starting encounter.

Dick Cobb was the man of the hour, shooting 11 points to lead the team in scoring, making vital shots in the first half and finishing off the game for the Red and White. Hall, however, was in unusual form, shooting 12 points for the opening period led by Mike DeFoe.

In previous encounters the Warriors have been the slow starters, averaging only six points in the first quarter.

Strong shooting of Tim Coughlin and Dale Ostrow, set the Indians in the second half, being only one point down at the halftime 17-20. Coughlin shot eight and Ostrow seven with Cobb adding the only basket.

Renewed spirit and better ball control paid off in the third quarter as the Indians opened the game by seven points at the sound of the whistle. The Indians defense held the Warriors to one point while the locals doubled their points in the second quarter. Cobb started to get real hot late in the game and tallied 11 points in the final quarter.

Whites in the game.

Cobb carried the pace into the fourth quarter, scoring nine points, four of which came in the last two minutes and proved to be the margin of victory over the Whites in the game.

Dixon also had signed Roger Taylor of England, Nick Pile of Yugoslavia, Stuch Buchholz of St. Louis, Dennis Rabala of Bakerfield, Calif., and Piero of the West Coast. The Indians are expected to win the title at least $200,000 in prize money.

"Even with the new rates of six cents for first-class mail and 10 cents for air mail, postal services is still a real bargain," Postmaster Bailey declared.

"For six cents you can send a letter to any of the 50 states, to any United States territory or possession, to Canada or Mexico, or to an American serviceman stationed anywhere in the world."

Postmaster Bailey pointed out that the new rates for post cards will be five cents and for air mail post cards eight cents.

The Eastern Apprentice degree will be conferred when Friendship Lodge of Masons meets tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple.

1968, when package weighing between eight and sixteen ounces were transferred from fourth to third-class mail.

There will be no changes in the charges for special delivery, special handling, registered mail, certified mail, cash on delivery or insurance, Postmaster Bailey said.

"We have an ample supply of one-cent stamps on hand," Postmaster Bailey said, "for those people who have five-cent stamps and need one-cent stamps to make up the postage required under the new rates."

Higher rates also will go into effect Sunday for all categories of second-class mail, bulk-rate third-class mail, controlled circulation mail, and the educational materials category of fourth-class mail.

Mailing units using these classes who need information on the new rates should contact the local Post Office, Postmaster Bailey said.
