At Texas Ranch

LBJ, Israel Head to Meet

SAN FRANCISCO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson shifted from budget work today to Middle East problems, preparing for an informal, private and low-key meeting Sunday and Monday with Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol. Peace in the troubled Middle East was reported to be the prime topic on the agenda for the two leaders. Eshkol will be at the ranch only about 22 hours, according to the schedule. But there will be no time spent on ceremonial.

The Israeli Embassy has sent word to leaders of the Jewish community in San Antonio that there will be little time for them to meet Eshkol when he and his wife arrive at Randolph Air Force Base here Sunday at 4:30 p.m. EST. It was explained officials do not want to slow the prime minister's journey to the LBJ Ranch, 75 miles north of here. The San Antonio Chamber of Commerce was dissatisfied, too, from launching any special welcome for Eshkol and his wife. Miriam. However, the air base has a large population of its own that can produce a sizeable crowd for special visitors. Johnson aides said the main purpose of the meeting was a discussion of Middle East peace. But a wide range of topics are expected to come up, including water desalting projects and Israel's request for American jet fighter planes to offset Soviet arms supplies to Arab nations.

The vice president said the United States' condemnation of apartheid is a "moral imperative" and that the United States will continue to support the African people. Humphrey also reiterated the United States' condemnation of apartheid. He said the United States will continue to support the African people. Humphrey also reiterated the United States' condemnation of apartheid. He said the United States will continue to support the African people.

More than 500 delegates and officials from virtually every independent African country except those ruled by white minorities were on hand for the meeting. Humphrey also reiterated the United States' condemnation of apartheid. He said the United States will continue to support the African people.

Vote Analysis Shows Absent Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — While and other personal considerations have not been taken into account, a vote analysis shows that 100 members of Congress were absent from the session on Monday. In some cases, members at committee meetings do not appear to roll calls because they consider the immediate committee business more important than the session. Dr. Christian N. Barnard said, "I don't see how we can do it. We're given him something."

Warns of Another Riot

Detroit Negro Head Rejects Ford Grant

By GENE SCHROEDER Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A proposed $100,000 Ford Foundation grant has been rejected by a militant Negro leader with a warning that Detroit may face another devastating riot in the summer. The money was turned down by the Rev. Albert Cleage, a Black Power advocate who heads the Federation for Self-Determination, a group established to help rebuild Detroit's Negro community. Cleage told newsmen Friday that the offer of $100,000 in matching funds had too many strings attached. The offer was made through the New Detroit Committee, a blue ribbon group appointed by Gov. George Romney and Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, to coordinate rehabilitation efforts following last summer's costly riot. The riot, worst in modern American history, resulted in 43 deaths, hundreds of injuries and thousands of arrests, charges ranging from murder to arson to looting. Property damage ran into the hundreds of millions of dollars. Cleage, who preaches separatism, said there will be another riot unless the city allows the black community to run its own affairs. "If the white community is intelligent enough to transfer power to the black community so that self-determination can be a reality, then there will be no necessity for a rebellion," he declared. "But if the white community does not do that, there will be another rebellion. That will not be my fault, that will be your fault." Dual grants of $100,000 each were offered to Cleage's federation and another Negro group, the Detroit Council of Organized Negroes, which advocates an integrated approach to the city's problems. Reds Overrun Viet Village SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces killed 10 Communists, troops overran a village six miles from the big U.S. air base at Bien Hoa today and held it for five hours in an attempt to score a propaganda victory. The U.S. Command reported the loss of four more jets over North Vietnam, boosting the number of combat losses in the war to more than 1,200 aircraft. U.S. forces drove the enemy out of the village of Tan Uyen, 23 miles north of Saigon, at the break of dawn but the Communists had burned down 11 homes, killed six civilians and eight government soldiers. Eleven civilians and 30 soldiers were wounded. Counterattacks forced killed 10 Communists. One wounded Red prisoner said U.S. interrogators the attacking force was a North Vietnamese battalion that infiltrated the country in September. U.S. advisers at Tan Uyen said the Communists shot and killed the village chief and a member of the provincial council. They said the aim of the attack, in which a new market place was destroyed, was to show the villagers that the Communists were in control. Another aim may have been to make a show of setting a village so close to a big American installation.

Humphrey at Meeting

Ethiopia Students Protest

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — About 300 university students changed President Johnson's strategy today and cheered anti-American slogans while waiting for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to come and talk to them. The students carried dozens of signs assailing the U.S. role in Vietnam, such as "Americans hands are red with the blood of Vietnamese children." Humphrey, delayed by a two-hour meeting with Emperor Haile Selassie, cancelled plans to address the students. This caused one student leader to say: "We are very disappointed in the vice president in that he did not address the students. This caused one student leader to say: 'We are very disappointed in the vice president in that he did not address the students. This caused one student leader to say: 'We are very disappointed in the vice president in that he did not address the students.'"

Transplant Patient In Cheerful Mood

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Dr. Philip Blalberg was reported in satisfactory condition and cheerful today after his heart transplant operation. The head of the operating team said he now wants to do a heart transplant on an African. On the fifth day with his new heart, the 55-year-old dentist is "enjoying life better now than before the operation," Dr. Christian N. Barnard said. "I don't see how we can do it. We're given him something."

1968 Debut For Stocks Optimistic

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made its 1968 debut on a confused but optimistic note, part of the list rising in hopes of Vietnam peace and another part falling because of President Johnson's proposals for curbing the nation's worsening. As the week ended, enough investors were betting on Vietnam peace so that many peace-oriented stocks such as utilities, finance companies, papers, publishing companies and others made dramatic gains. This followed equally sharp declines by airlines because of the President's proposals for curbing U.S. tourism in Europe and by gold mining stocks because of his avowed determination to uphold the strength of the dollar. A surprising highlight of the week's trading was a 4-point spurt by badly battered American Telephone & Telegraph, which shaped up much better as an investment if a drop in military spending resulted in lower interest rates and made its high dividend rate proportionately attractive. E. F. Hutton & Co. at the week's end named these as the "positive aspects of a peace settlement: easier money, lower interest rates, withdrawal of the proposed tax increase, better control of inflation, improved balance of payments and withdrawal of possible restrictions." Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Dr. Benjamin Spock
Dr. Spock, Yale Chaplain Are Among Five Indicted

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock, Yale University Chaplain William Sloane Coffin, Jr., and three other opponents of U.S. policy in Vietnam have been indicted on charges of conspiring to counsel young men to avoid the draft. The indictments were returned in federal court in Boston for arraignment. That date has not been set. Conviction of conspiracy to violate the Selective Service Act carries a maximum penalty up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Hershey, director of the Selective Service system, said he takes "no pleasure in seeing anybody get indicted," but said the action, initiated by the Justice Department, was necessary because "if they are not guilty they ought to get a chance to show it and if they are, they ought to be punished." The indictments listed 11 overt acts as a basis for the charges allegedly having taken place during four events. A press conference in New York City last October where Coffin, Goodman and Spock allegedly told of their opposition to the war and encouraged Arlington Street Church in Boston in which draft resisters allegedly burned their draft cards at the church altar during a protest ceremony. Distribution by Spock and Coffin in New York City last August of a statement titled "A Call to Resist Illegitimate Authority." Ethiopia Students Protest

"We intend to take our case before the American people. We intend to let them decide the course we shall follow in the outside world. I know my countrymen. They will not turn away from their responsibility to others, including Africa."

At a private meeting in Accra earlier this week, Humphrey told Ghana's chief of state, Lt. Gen. Joseph A. Ankrah that U.S. foreign aid, now cut to an annual $2.3 billion, should be doubled or tripled to meet U.S. world responsibilities.

His speech in the Addis Ababa headquarters of the U.N. Economic Commission for Africa was one of the highlights of his mission. African good will tour. He has three more countries left to visit—Somalia, Kenya and Tunisia.

He condemned what he called the "illegal regime" in Rhodesia, adding that no country in the world has recognized the small minority which denies to the great majority of the Rhodesian population effective participation in the governing process.

"In the long run, such reactionary behavior cannot succeed—neither in Southern Rhodesia nor in the other parts of southern Africa under 'self-determination' is still denied."

Note: Rowanians And Kitarians

If you are a Kiwanian or a Rotarian, you probably would like to know just what the right program will be for your meeting Tuesday. Errors, compounded, have cropped up in The Herald, even as late as yesterday's paper. So, here's the right schedule:

Girls Invited To Vye for State Title

Sponsors of the Connecticut Junior Miss Pageant are seeking contestants to vie for the title of the state's "first lady of youth" and to represent Connecticut at the America Junior Miss finals, held annually in March at Mobile, Ala.

The contest, which benefits the March of Dimes, is open to any high school senior girl between 16 and 18 years of age. Connecticut pageant finals will be held at the State Armory in Hartford Feb. 24. The state winner — to succeed Miss Deborah Luben of Bristol, Connecticut's Junior Miss for 1967 — will be selected from among 16 semi-finalists.

They will be chosen at preliminary judging Jan. 28 at the Hotel America. Contestants must display some form of talent and are also judged on the qualities of poise, personality, intelligence and attractiveness.

Last year more than 125 girls from throughout the state competed. Two years ago, Miss Patricia Ann Flouk of Glastonbury, a senior at East Catholic High School, became the state winner.

The deadline for entering the contest is Jan. 15. Entry blanks may be obtained by writing pageant headquarters, 299 Farmington Ave., Hartford, or the Hotel America.

Goodman said he believes President Johnson "is losing his cool" about draft protests. Raaskin, at his home in Washington, and Coffin, in Washington for a meeting, both declined comment until they saw copies of the indictment.

The Institute for Policy Studies, of which Raaskin is a codirector, is a private organization that conducts research in economics and social and political sciences and other fields.

Until five years ago Spock stuck rather close to pediatricians. But with the 1962 U.S. decision to resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere he joined the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and began devoting more and more time to the peace movement.

He is a leader of the march on Washington last October and was arrested in New York Dec. 5 during an anti-draft sit-in.

In Washington, Justice Department officials said the indictments were not part of any national crackdown on the anti-draft movement.

Engaged

The engagement of Miss Anne Marie Warfel of Bolton to Ernest Edward Denby of Thompsonville has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Claire Warfel of School Rd. She is also the daughter of the late Robert A. Warfel.

He is taking advanced studies in accounting at American International College, Springfield, Mass. He is vice president of Tippett, Inc., Chicopee, Mass. The wedding is planned for Feb. 17 at St. Maurice's Church, Bolton.

Three Merchants Named to Board

Three local merchants were elected this week to three-year terms with the retail executive committee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce. They are Edward Beardon of Burton's, Salem Nassiff of the Nassiff Camera and Photo Shop, and Alfred L. Perrault of Sears Roebuck and Co.

The retail executive committee is responsible for the overall supervision of the activities of the Retail Division of the Chamber.

Thomas to Compete

BOSTON (AP)—John Thomas, former Boston University star, tops the high jump field announced today for the 42nd Knights of Columbus track meet next Saturday at the Boston Garden.

Thomas, who holds the meet record of 7-feet, 2-inches, will be opposed by Ed Caruthers of California, Stan Albright of Cleveland and Chris Erasmus of the University of Texas at El Paso. Caruthers won the Pan-American title last summer at 7-2 1/4.

Ambitious Schedule Set Up for Board

Portrait of a woman, likely related to the 'Engaged' article.

Manchester's Board of Directors faces an ambitious schedule of meetings this month, to discuss a host of town problems, some new, but most pending for some time.

It held its regular meeting last Tuesday and has a special meeting scheduled for next Thursday. In addition, it will hold informal meetings on Jan. 9, Jan. 16, Jan. 23 and, if another is needed, on Jan. 30.

Mayor Nathan Agostinelli said today that he has scheduled the informal meetings for discussion purposes only. Actions on the items will be taken at the board's Feb. 6 regular meeting.

All of the board's sessions are at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room. On Jan. 9, the board and a host of town officials, plus representatives of almost all town agencies, will be briefed on the implications of the state's new Department of Community Affairs.

James S. Klar of Bolton, the department's assistant director, will explain how Manchester may qualify for state and federal funds and the procedure for submitting a Community Development Plan.

On Jan. 16, the board will discuss long-range proposals for solving Manchester's refuse disposal problems. The discussion will concern a possible facility (incinerator, composting plant, or some other), and will have nothing to do with the Laurel Lake controversy.

Police Check Many Crashes, Some People Involved Hurt

A man and his wife were slightly injured when the Volkswagen they were in hit a pay-loader on Spruce St. near E. Center St. last night.

The two, Francis F. Daly, 60, of Dale Rd., driver and Al Daly, wife, were both taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital treated and released, a hospital official said.

Police say the payloader, involved in snow removal operations, was parked on the west side of Spruce St. and was waiting for a driver in it, but its lights were on, Police said.

The payloader was not damaged. The Daly car was towed away, having sustained front end damage.

An East Hartford woman was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital after a car mishap last night, but did not want to be switched to a ranch-bound helicopter. Otherwise, she has been one of our welcoming arrangements announced.

LBJ Preparing To Meet with Israel Leader

The ranch welcome was low key, too, with emphasis that this is a private, informal visit. There was to be Sunday dinner with the Johnson family and some staff members, plus Monday breakfast and lunch together for the two leaders.

Although no social events were scheduled, no visitor ever gets away without the Johnson tour of the ranch, with its white-faced Hereford cattle, deer and assorted animals.

The woman was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital after the car she was driving was hit by a truck driven by Joseph Sala, 56, of 365 Olcott St. at Olcott St. and Trebbe Dr.

A car driven by Barry D. Guizano, 17, of 160 Birch Hill Dr., Wapping, was struck yesterday shortly before 3 p.m. when Guizano backed out of a private driveway into the path of a car being driven by Peter A. Klacunas, 24, of 64 Turnbull Rd., police say.

Romney Sees Hopeful Signs For Southeast Asia Fate

SINGAPORE (AP)—Gov. George Romney of Michigan said today he was optimistic about Southeast Asia now that when he arrived a week ago.

"From a long range standpoint I'm more optimistic," he said before leaving for New Delhi on the next leg of his world tour, "and from a basic standpoint I'm more optimistic."

Romney, who so far visited South Vietnam, Indonesia and Singapore, said he based his optimism on the "natural resources possibilities and the opportunities for economic growth and a good, stable and prosperous group of nations in this whole area."

(Continued from Page One) these circumstances would be that the remainder of the African's body would be in good condition. There would, for instance, not be the hardening of the arteries often found in whites.

No Africans have been involved in any way in either of the first two human heart transplants performed here, although the heart of a mulatto man was used in Bialberg's operation.

This heart, taken from the body of Clive Haupt, 24, after he died from brain hemorrhage, was grafted into the body of Bialberg.

By Michael A. Pettit, M.D. WHAT SHOULD YOU DO FOR SOMEONE WHO IS HAVING A CONVULSION?

"I think it is clear that the economic development of the area, and political stability depends on some assistance from the developed nations," he said.

"I've developed the realization that the problems in this area extend beyond South Vietnam, and that we must not ignore the problems that exist elsewhere," he added.

1968: More 1967

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The books are closed on 1967, and while it seems to have been a singularly lackluster year in television, it had its moments—some very good moments indeed.

It was, for instance, the year of "The Final War of Olly Winter," premiere program of "CBS Playhouse," and a fine sensitive play by Ronald Ribman. Hal Holbrook was able to bring his remarkable "Mark Twain Tonight" to television, too.

There was a glorious scene in the production of "Anastasia" created by two superb performers, Lynn Fontanne as the grand duchess and Julie Harris as the girl. There was Harry Dolan's "Losers Weepers" in NBC's "Experiment in Television" series that explained the anger and frustration of Watts in searing terms.

Melvyn Douglas came on with great power in "Do Not Go Gentle into That Good Night," in which playwright Loring Mandel brought home painfully the tragedy of old age.

It was the year in which the Smothers Brothers were tossed into a spot opposite powerful "Bonanza" on Sunday nights and managed to do what no one else had—survive for a second season.

There were some especially bright and imaginative variety specials—"C'est la Vie," shot in Paris with Maurice Chevalier and Diahann Carroll, and Herb Alpert and his Tijuana Brass—both memorable for the production values.

Rock Hudson was the singing, dancing star of a variety hour, and surprised his fans with unsuspected talents. It was a year in which two Sinatras scored well—Frank Sr. with Ella Fitzgerald in another satisfying hour of song, and daughter Nancy in a bright young program full of novel ideas.

Raymond Burr, after a short holiday, returned in a new character, a crippled police chief, and had no trouble persuading his fans that he was not, after all, "Perry Mason," but a gruff, lovable crime fighter named Ironside. Carol Burnett, who had had her problems with a variety show two seasons back, made it successfully in her own show. Sally Field in "The Flying Nun" came up with one of the season's big hits. "Damn Yankees," which was a good Broadway musical, was not so hot as a TV production, and "Androcles and the Lion" stubbornly resisted transfer from a show play to a Richard Rodgers musical.

Barbra Streisand's annual special was greeted, for a change, with very muted hurrahs, and a series on the 1967 phenomenon, Twiggy, caused only a few ripples of embarrassment. It was the year when the joke of "Batman" wore thin, but when CBS and NBC introduced simultaneously a couple of more supermen, "Mr. Terrific" and "Captain Nice"—and soon wished they had not.

It was a year when thousands of hours of programming was turned out, and a lot of it, naturally, was pretty bad. But it was also a year when the viewer, if he would pick and choose, could see some exciting, moving drama, funny comedy, all manner of sports, and news—sometimes as it was made. He could also see a lot of old movies he missed when they were playing at the local theater.

Next year? Probably the content will be pretty much the same as 1967. Except that there will undoubtedly be even more old movies around.

Peter Noone, whose Herman's Hermits will be seen in a half hour musical documentary next Tuesday night on NBC, remarked recently that although the Beatles are generally credited with opening up the field for young musicians and launching the new sounds and new beats, it was really isolated off by Englishmen inspired by America's Elvis Presley, then an international rage among the teenagers.

"The sound really started as an American sound," said the 20-year-old Noone who is the Herman of the British quartet. Presley even started the mod look—remember his long hair and sideburns? Most of us stuck with instruments like the guitar, drums, bass and piano because we couldn't afford to have somebody like a saxophone

All About Sharks

NEW YORK (AP) — The usual scientific expedition sets forth on a mission with a photographer—sometimes a part-time photographer—to get whatever pictures he can without interfering with work in progress. The resulting record is strictly a by-product.

But in the making of "Sharks," an hour-long television program which is the first of a dozen or so undersea programs, the photographer is the important man of the project. The series is an account of the work of Jacques-Yves Cousteau, explorer of the deep, scientist, inventor of the aqualung and writer. The series will be shown on ABC, the first will be broadcast next Monday night.

"The expedition was planned primarily to make the series—and was paid for by the television series," said its chief cameraman, Philippe Cousteau, 26-year-old son of the leader. "As far as I know it is the first time television has financed a scientific project. And it is the first time, in my experience, that the photographer was not considered a sort of necessary nuisance.

The making of the series will take five years—it started last February—and will explore all sorts of subjects from ocean floor treasure hunts to underwater agriculture. Most of the work is done from the ship Calypso, an old American minesweeper converted into an ocean-going laboratory.

Young Cousteau, an expert diver and a recognized specialist in undersea photography, participated with his father and a crew of 30 expert divers and scientists filming and observing sharks in the Red Sea, Indian Ocean and Gulf of Aden—and was very relieved when the assignment was safely over.

Sharks, he said, are really as dangerous and unpredictable as they are reputed to be.

"After a while, we learned to feel the atmosphere—to know when it seemed safe to go out of our cage to work. And other times when it was not safe," he said. "But I think it was good that we finished without trouble because I think perhaps we were getting overconfident."

In the course of filming the shark program, they experimented with various repellents and devices to protect victims from the ferocious fish. A frightening but rewarding experience was filming the terrifying sight of a shark "feeding frenzy," when the creature tore into wounded fish, even other sharks.

When this scene was made, the unprotected divers were cut off from the ocean surface and their ship by a shark pack and were rescued by having their steel cages lowered to them. Then they were pulled up through the churning waters.

Philippe Cousteau, who attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology for awhile, was in the United States briefly en route to Baja California to start filming another program in the series, this one about gray whales who go to one lagoon on the Pacific Coast to have their young—and teach them how to swim.

The senior Cousteau, based on the Mediterranean shore of his native France, has been exploring the ocean for 30 years. His son took his first aqua lung dive at the age of four and later, with his father, developed the special cameras and equipment necessary for undersea film making and photography.

He has had some thrilling adventures under the surface including living for prolonged periods on the ocean floor in special structures. But he believes that tomorrow's "Great Adventure" will be in space.

"I would like some day to do up there the same sort of exploring and studying we are doing now under the ocean," he said. "Every time an astronaut goes up there I am a little jealous."

OLD FAVORITES
NEW YORK (AP)—With the football season behind, some old favorites will soon be turning up in Sunday afternoon and early evening network schedules. Both "College Bowl" and "Animal Kingdom" come back Sunday to NBC. The former will be celebrating the start of its 10th year.

LEAVES 'PATROL'
NEW YORK (AP)—Justin Tarr, one of the brave desert fighters in ABC's "Rat Patrol" has given notice that he plans to pull out of the series at the end of this season. Since the action series has had good enough ratings to be renewed for a third year, his spot undoubtedly will be filled soon so that shooting can proceed in the spring.
