Nixon Declares Candidacy

tered a new age. And I ask you to join me in helping make this an age of greatness for our people and our nation."

The letter was signed "Richard Nixon."
He plans to take off next on a six-day campaign swing through New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Oklahoma.

New Hampshire holds its first-in-the-nation primary on March 12 and Wisconsin's primary follows April 2. Oklahoma convenes the first GOP state convention on Feb. 24 to elect delegates to the August Miami Beach convention.

Nixon, current leader in all the polls of GOP voters, carried all three states in his narrow 1960 loss to John F. Kennedy and they will give the first indications of his strength in the present campaign.

Nixon's New Hampshire manager, State Rep. David Sterling, said he will write the deadline Wednesday night to put the former vice president's name on the primary ballot.

His entry set the stage for a battle with Michigan Gov. George Romney, the only other major candidate on the ballot. There may be write-in candidates for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, both avowed noncandidates.

Nixon's schedule calls for a new conference in Manchester, N.H., on Friday, and on Saturday he attends a Manchester reception with his wife and daughters and speaks at a Nixon for President dinner in Concord.

A charter jet will fly the party from New Hampshire to Wisconsin on Monday, where he has set up a new conference. On Tuesday he will broadcast a television interview and dinner speech in Green Bay.

On Thursday he will visit in Appleton, address Wisconsin State University students in Stevens Point and speak at a Lincoln Day dinner at St. Mary's school in Fond du Lac.

Wednesday he flies to Oklahoma City to appear on a program with former Gov. Henry Bellmon, chairman of the Washington-based Nixon-for-President Committee. Bellmon is expected to declare Nixon as a candidate.

Dempsey to Talk With Accused in NAACP Dispute

HARTFORD (AP)—Gov. John Dempsey says he will confer with directors of state agencies accused by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People of permitting discrimination against non-whites.

Dempsey announced the conference Wednesday after the state NAACP leader threatened the state with legal action if it did not curb discrimination.

Wilbur Smith, state chapter president, told Dempsey that many companies, unions and associations licensed by the state or involved in state business discriminate against non-whites.

Under federal law and a key Supreme Court decision, the state has an obligation to cancel contracts of such agencies which refuse to remedy the hiring inequity by forcing to resign.

Smith said he was making the demands in order to head off another summer of racial disturbances which several Connecticut cities experienced last year.

Wesleyan Gets Bequests

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Three estates have bequeathed $40,000 to Wesleyan University. Of that, $28,000 is for a scholarship fund and the rest will increase general endowment.

Wesleyan President Edwin Eberington announced the bequests Wednesday. They came from the estates of Charles Green '27 of Greenwich, Edwin Kemmerer '39 of Princeton, N.J., and Nora Seides of Sparta, N.J., sister of an alumnus.

Beautiful Girl Cook Wanted, Bachelor Students Succeed

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Wanted: Girl cook and part-time dishwasher. Must be a college student, 18 to 22 years old, single, with fantastic disposition and cheerleader smile. Free meals but no pay.

"Think you would get an answer to an ad like that? Two bachelor medical students at the University of Florida did."

Fed up with their own cooking, Henry Arch, 24, of Memphis, N.Y., and Dave Klapper, 23, of Miami, ran an ad in the campus newspaper for a girl to cook their meals. They preempted 33 applications for the job.

They chose Sara Leigh Wakefield, 21-year-old education major. They chose her because they liked the way she walked.

"She sort of kneads the dough," Arch said. "She's a dream and a tremendous cook."

In the beginning, Arch added, "I was looking for a good cook. Dave was looking for a pretty girl. What I interviewed was a girl, Dave just sat and stared."

"It looks like it will last. Dave made some passes at first but was rebuffed. Now he keeps his seat at the table."

The final decision was tough, Arch said, "but we chose Leigh when we saw her walk down the hall."

FINE DEFENSIVE PLAY FOLLOWS ONE MISTAKE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
One advantage of playing against experts is that when you make a mistake you find out all about it. They won't say much, but tricks speak louder than words.

Opening lead—five of spades. When today's hand was played a few months ago during an international tournament on the island of Majorca, two of the best players of the Netherlands put up an exhibition of fine defensive play after South had made one small mistake.

Peter Booder opened the five of spades, and dummy's eight won the first trick. This was not a promising start for the defense, but the situation changed dramatically when declarer led a low heart to the three hearts. It is a couple of points light for a jump to 2-NT (although this bid was chosen by an experienced player in a recent international tournament).

Ho Chi Minh Observes Tet

North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh takes part in observance of Tet, the New Year holiday, according to the caption with this photo radioed from Hanoi to Tokyo. It says: "As the whole nation wishes, President Ho Chi Minh has entered the New Year—and also his 78th year—in his best health. He has written a New Year's poem greeting—and rejoicing—the people and fighters throughout the country." (AP Photofax).

School Officials to Testify At Hearing Over Hair Rift

BRIDGEPORT (AP)—The Norwalk public school system will be asked to show cause in Common Pleas court here next week why boys suspended from Brian McMahon High School for wearing long hair should not be reinstated immediately.

It is expected that the hearing will be at 2 p.m. Monday. The Fairfield County chapter of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union, affiliated with the American Civil Liberties Union, sought the order.

More than 50 boys were suspended Monday from the high school for having their hair long enough to cover their eyes, ears and collars.

By Wednesday 23 or 24 boys were still under suspension, but the rest had gotten haircuts and returned to school.

Publicly about the situation drew a hair stylist from New York City's Fifth Avenue Tuesday to suggest how the boys' hair could be cut so it would be in style and still meet the school's requirements.

Pupils picketed the school Wednesday with signs which read "Is hair unfair?"; "Unconventional Hairstyles"; and "Long Hair Does Not a Hippie Make."

Wesleyan Gets Bequests

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Three estates have bequeathed $40,000 to Wesleyan University. Of that, $28,000 is for a scholarship fund and the rest will increase general endowment.

Wesleyan President Edwin Eberington announced the bequests Wednesday. They came from the estates of Charles Green '27 of Greenwich, Edwin Kemmerer '39 of Princeton, N.J., and Nora Seides of Sparta, N.J., sister of an alumnus.

Beautiful Girl Cook Wanted, Bachelor Students Succeed

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Wanted: Girl cook and part-time dishwasher. Must be a college student, 18 to 22 years old, single, with fantastic disposition and cheerleader smile. Free meals but no pay.

"Think you would get an answer to an ad like that? Two bachelor medical students at the University of Florida did."

Fed up with their own cooking, Henry Arch, 24, of Memphis, N.Y., and Dave Klapper, 23, of Miami, ran an ad in the campus newspaper for a girl to cook their meals. They preempted 33 applications for the job.

They chose Sara Leigh Wakefield, 21-year-old education major. They chose her because they liked the way she walked.

"She sort of kneads the dough," Arch said. "She's a dream and a tremendous cook."

In the beginning, Arch added, "I was looking for a good cook. Dave was looking for a pretty girl. What I interviewed was a girl, Dave just sat and stared."

Officer, Ex-Sailors at Odds With Teacher on Tonkin

HARTFORD (AP)—Did North Vietnam patrol boats fire six months after the Tonkin Gulf incident and asked him destroyers in international waters in the Gulf of Tonkin in 1967?

White said the man said he was in charge in the Maddox sonar room at the time and saw "no sonar tracks of torpedoes."

But Kenneth Corone, a sonar man aboard the Maddox at the time said Tuesday they were certain there was an attack.

They disagreed with former Navy officer John White, now a schoolteacher in Chelsea, who has questioned publicly whether any shells or torpedoes were fired.

White was nuclear weapons officer aboard a submarine in the 47 which was the first American ship to reach the destroyers Maddox and Turner Joy after the incident.

It prompted Congress to enact the Tonkin Gulf resolution which immediately preceded the first U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

The four men were interviewed Tuesday night by station WTCV-TV.

White based his charges on classified messages he said he saw which indicated confusion about whether the destroyers were under attack and on a conversation with a man in Delaney said he saw three blips on the radar scope which he said he was chief sonarman aboard the Maddox during the alleged attack.

White said Tuesday he met evidence of torpedoes being

Glamorous Sea Otter Fur Returns to Fashion Houses

SEATTLE (AP)—A flick of the finger marked the return of the glamorous sea otter fur to fashion houses Tuesday with a record bid of $2,300 a skin.

The top price at the first legal sale of sea otter pelts since 1911 was paid by George Liebes, vice president of Neiman-Marcus of Dallas, Tex., for four skins.

They will be made into a lady's coat which Liebes will design.

The $2,300 was called a record by Michael Decker, president of the Seattle Fur Exchange, which handled the auction of 904 skins for the state of Alaska.

More than 100 international fur brokers representing the major furriers of the world attended the sale. The first lot to be made from his top-end pelts. The average for a single skin was $170.

Valued for its velvet softness, warmth and durability, the long, nearly black pelt, sometimes edged in silver, were made into capes for the mandarins of China and Russia's czar. International competition in Alaska and along the West Coast of the United States brought the herds to the edge of extinction a century ago.

The last big auction of sea otter fur was held in London in 1911. That also was the year the taking of sea otter in international waters was banned by treaty.

Federal Court Rules Against Tucson Newspapers' Pact

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A federal judge ruled Wednesday an operating agreement between two Tucson newspapers was in violation of the Sherman and Clayton antitrust acts.

U.S. Dist. Judge James Walsh ruled that a 1940 contract between the morning Arizona Daily Star and the afternoon Tucson Daily Citizen to combine their commercial operations violated antitrust laws.

Judge Walsh also ordered Tucson Daily Citizen owner William Small Jr. to divest himself of ownership of the Arizona Daily Star and also to modify the 1940 operating agreement.

The two newspapers formed Tucson Newspapers Inc. in 1940 to act as an agent in the management and operation of advertising, printing and circulation departments of the two papers.

Judge Walsh said the 1940 agreement constituted price fixing, profit pooling, and market allocation agreements. He said the formation of Tucson Newspapers Inc., gave the papers monopoly power over the daily newspaper business in Tucson.

Officials at the newspapers declined to comment, saying only that their attorneys were studying the decision.

Similar contracts exist between newspapers in 21 other U.S. communities. The Tucson case has been considered a test case.

The Arizona Daily Star was purchased by the Arden Publishing Company in January, 1965. The Arden Company was formed by Daily Citizen owner Dallas, Tex., to purchase the Star. A suit was filed shortly after the sale by the U.S. Justice Department challenging the sale.

During the trial, testimony indicated the Citizens by March, 1966, owed debts of more than $100,000, while the Star was reportedly making a profit.

Small testified that Tucson Newspapers Inc. was formed to prevent the afternoon paper from folding. Under the operating agreement, the two newspapers would share publishing, advertising and distribution facilities, but would have separate news and editorial departments.

Small said he organized the Arden Publishing Company in 1964 to purchase the Star to prevent an outside party from buying it. Small said he thought he would be unable to cooperate with Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., who had offered $10 million for the Star.

At the time of the sale, the Star's circulation was listed at 42,000 and the Citizen's at 42,000. The combined circulation is now 80,000.

Walsh said because of the lack of competition between the two papers, the newspapers

State Police to Start Using Memory Bank Computers

HARTFORD (AP)—The State Police will begin this month using memory bank computers to sort, file and remember information which might help solve crimes.

Les J. Mulcahy, state police commissioner, said Wednesday that the computers will be put into service Feb. 26.

Mulcahy said also that plans have been formulated to assure the state's eligibility for grants when the President's law enforcement and assistance act is enacted by Congress.

Mulcahy said that 30 tele-processing terminals will be installed in state police barracks and local police stations in the state.

Mulcahy said a national crime information center terminal will be installed at state police headquarters on Washington Street.

The center, Mulcahy said, will enable all law enforcement agencies in the state to list their wanted criminals, stolen cars, stolen guns and other missing property on an FBI computer in Washington.

Within 10 seconds, police will be able to ascertain whether a person under arrest is wanted in another state and whether a gun or auto seized in the arrest has been stolen in any other state having terminals with the FBI computer.

Mulcahy said 24 agencies and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are equipped with terminals and have listed their wanted felons and stolen property with the computer's memory bank.

He predicted all the states would adopt the device.

Wesleyan Applies For FCC License

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission announced Wednesday receipt of applications including one from Middletown, Conn., for assignment of license of WESH-TV from Wesleyan University to Wesleyan Broadcast Association, Inc.

Wesleyan said a national crime information center terminal will be installed at state police headquarters on Washington Street.

The center, Mulcahy said, will enable all law enforcement agencies in the state to list their wanted criminals, stolen cars, stolen guns and other missing property on an FBI computer in Washington.

Ford to Finance Education Plan in New Haven

NEW YORK (AP)—The Ford Foundation, announced yesterday it will finance a six-year program in selected New Haven, Conn., elementary schools to get close cooperation, among child psychiatrists, social workers, parents, and teachers for improving education.

The foundation gave $62,225 to the New Haven board of education and the Yale University Child Study Center to administer the program.

A key feature, the foundation said, will be getting parents and community figures to advise on new plans and programs in the still-to-be-selected schools.

Edward J. Meade, foundation program officer in charge of public education, said a major aim of the project is to better educate more children "as a part of the regular school program, not in remedial or compensatory efforts as is now chiefly the case."

The program will seek to fit education to the individual strengths and needs of pupils, the foundation said.

The selected schools will operate as a sub-unit in the New Haven system with its own administrative and instructional

Angry Governor Demands Action At Exit of I-91

HARTFORD (AP)—An angry Gov. John Dempsey has demanded fast action from the State Highway Department to eliminate hazards at the Founders Bridge intersection on Interstate Route 91.

He also gave the department 30 days Tuesday in which to study all interstate highway intersections in the state to determine whether engineering or enforcement changes are needed to increase safety.

The governor made a personal inspection of the Founders Bridge intersection in Hartford, where five persons have lost their lives in auto accidents since last August.

Dempsey ordered installation of flashing warning signs there, improved existing directional signs, increased state police patrols in the area, and installation of lane-separating cones along with signs for a considerable distance south of the intersection to halt last-minute lane changing by motorists.

The governor said the older man stopped and asked the girl if she were well and able to drive. The girl said she was, and Wakefield suggested that she park her car in a less dangerous spot. Gormley said, and Wakefield returned to his car. Minutes later he returned to her car and noticed a man ap-

Danbury Man Gets Prison In July Maiming Incident

BRIDGEPORT (AP)—A 24-year-old man has been sentenced to two to eight years in prison after he claimed he was under the influence of "pep pills" when he twisted off the foot of a 64-year-old man the night of July 9.

Superior Court Judge Sidney A. Johnson imposed the sentence Wednesday on Francis R. Greer of 6 Pocono Point Road, Danbury.

Greer pleaded guilty two weeks ago, before his trial was to begin, to a charge of maiming Wakefield, also of Danbury.

The attack was described by Greer's counsel, Norman Bush, said, and Greer was influenced by "pep pills" and didn't realize what he had done.

Not Dienbienphu But Algeria
 The enemy is now hitting in two ways in Vietnam. One hurts us much more than the other.

Among the speculations as to what the North Vietnamese may be trying to bring about at Kheanh there is usually this: that Hanoi has an idea that if it can inflict some kind of defeat, or even especially heavy casualties, upon American units, that will influence American public opinion and Johnson Administration election year policy toward compromise and the peace table.

Hanoi, of all capitals, and the North Vietnamese, of all people, ought to know how mistaken and foolish a dream that is.

The great United States would prove to be no more willing to negotiate in a time of reverse and defeat and military pressure than small North Vietnam has proved to be.

The people of the United States have never been very enthusiastic for the war in Vietnam, but very few of them would recommend that their country should quit and run because of some new rearmament of Dienbienphu. To the contrary, such a possible defeat for American arms might be the greatest thing which would heal a great portion of the dissent at home, rather than increase it.

The law for the great United States is pretty much the same as the law for little North Vietnam.

The best way to get either of us to the negotiating table is to give us the feeling that we are somehow managing to hold our own in a stalemate which cannot possibly be resolved in favor of either of us without tremendous cost to both of us.

Nevertheless, this truth is hard for powers, big or small, to realize.

But we don't think the war in Vietnam is ever going to end for us the way it ended for the French, with any imitation of a Dienbienphu.

The other phase of the current enemy pressure in Vietnam is more dangerous to the American mission and to the American will to maintain that mission. When they exhibit their freedom to move into the very centers of our power and presence in Vietnam, the North Vietnamese and the Vietcong are being much too successful in giving the impression that the whole countryside, even in its supposedly most secure areas, is at least as free to them as ours. When, after three years, they can force us to fight for parts of Saigon itself, they are making a tremendous propaganda point. When they can blockade the face of our new, security-guaranteed embassy in Saigon, they are embarrassing and encouraging the dislike and jealousy the heavy weight of our presence has already begun to create among the ordinary people of the country.

The parallel which suggests itself here is not that of the French failure in Vietnam, symbolized by the loss of the pitched battle of Dienbienphu, but that of the French failure in Algeria.

The French failed in Algeria because, although they had a crack modern army of 500,000 stationed in that small country, they nevertheless could not guarantee themselves the security of any street in any city in the country. And the reason they could not do this, with all their force, was that the people of the country were more sympathetic to the cause of the rebels than to that of the French.

This is the way—in our opinion the only way—we could ever lose in Vietnam. We cannot win there, though we should stay forever, with millions of men, unless the population itself really wants us there. It is the pattern of Algeria, not that of Dienbienphu, which offers the real threat to us in Vietnam.

Licenses To Break The Law
 The federal law which required a gambler to obtain and pay for a federal license to gamble—even though the gambling he would then be about to undertake would be an illegal activity—was always mainly a gimmick. If the police couldn't pin anything else on a professional, they might get him for failing to have a license. The real absurdity of it was that, in order to get a license, the individual had to declare himself guilty of intent to break the law.

During the 15 years it has been on the books, the law itself has had few valuable results. It hasn't produced, for the federal treasury, the income of tainted money originally estimated. And not many real gamblers ever chose to advertise their profession quite that formally.

Now, in any case, the Supreme Court has struck the law down, on the very common sense basis that it is, after all, nothing but a law which unconstitutionally requires an individual to perform the act of incriminating himself.

We don't know the perfect way for the government to keep gamblers from operating on the American scene. But we do suggest, as one basic principle for any effort at law enforcement, that government keep itself free of those laws and those strategies which tend to make government look ludicrous. And any government which sells licenses to break its own laws looks ludicrous.

For A Union That Has Everything
 At last it was discovered and demonstrated, the other day, what to give the labor union which already has everything.

It already had wages as high, work weeks as short, pension and benefit plans as handsome, vacations as frequent and as long as any union could conceivably ask.

In such a state of affairs there was an obvious danger that the union would have nothing more to ask, the employer nothing more to give, and that there might not even be any valid reason for having a dispute over a new contract.

Then somebody thought of the question of paid washing up time during the noon hour. The union formulated a demand that the company pay for six minutes of wash up time. After hard bargaining, the negotiators agreed on three minutes paid wash up time.

As they say of the Christmas gift for the man who already has everything, it's not so much the gift itself as it is the spirit of the thing.

No More Gunboat Diplomacy
 We are no longer in the era of gunboat diplomacy.

The terms of power have changed. Time was when a great nation like the United States could have sent a small force of marines to Wonsan Harbor and tied up the matter of the Pueblo in short order. But today, behind the exercise of power by great nations like the United States or the Soviet Union, lies the specter of the thermonuclear cloud. It is a mighty deterrent.

Small nations like North Korea, with minimal physical power, are thus able to act with impunity as they have hardly ever been able to act in the history of the modern world. The power of the great nation is infinitely difficult and dangerous. It is basically inhibited.

There are considerations to keep in mind when it is decided to station surveillance ships like the Pueblo off hostile coasts. There isn't much you can do about it when they get into trouble.

Certainly American public opinion, and possibly official judgment as well, has not caught up with the changes in terms of power. Possibly the Defense Department authorities should have thought long and hard before they placed craft like the Pueblo a few miles off North Korea, or deep in the Tonkin Gulf, or in other such exposed places. The dangers of hijacking are real and present.

Few of us know how valuable the use of spy ships really is. Perhaps the operation is of the essence. Perhaps it is of peripheral importance. The risk is certainly very great. It is to be hoped that the returns are comparable.

Presumably many of the Russian trawlers which hover diligently off Cape Cod, and other parts of the United States coast both Atlantic and Pacific, have an espionage mission along with their take of fish. But rarely have they crossed the 12-mile limit, or anything like it. When they come closer in, they get permission. Realistically, of course, we must assume that submarines are gathering data anywhere there is deep enough water.

There is a lot to be said for the value of all this spying. President Eisenhower's open-skies proposal at Geneva was based on the false assumption that the more each nation knows about the observable military dispositions of the other the safer it will be. For the United States to see any unusual troop movements or their absence—in Eastern Europe is important. Uncertainty breeds fear. The Soviets to know something of the reconnaissance satellites may well be a factor for peace.

For the Soviets to know something of the United States capacity for instant retaliation in the event of a nuclear attack, and vice versa, helps preserve the balance of power. And perhaps similar information about the disposition of the North Korean forces—at a time when assassins and saboteurs were invading the South Korean capital—would be helpful to evaluate the scale of the crisis.

But all this information does not provide the United States with the means of invading Wonsan and recapturing the Pueblo. Indeed, as American public opinion vividly reflects, the United States is having trouble enough coping with its military problems in Vietnam.

For this reason, it would seem that most Americans are not demanding the kind of action which an American President would have asserted freely in the good old days. "Pueblo alive or Radio dead" is now an empty and unrealistic threat.

The state of the small nation is here. And while this relative immunity from big-nation force has its embarrassments for the United States now, this is the kind of world in which the United States believes. If great war has become too dangerous, too suicidal, for the human race, and if lesser wars have each their share of insupportable risk, then the world has come into a new period.

There are circumstances in which force is used, as in Vietnam and in Korea 18 years ago. Or in the Middle East last summer. But a great power has to be very prudent as it embarks upon the use of force.

It is a strange new world in which we live, but despite present chagrins it has stirring possibilities.—ERWIN D. CANHAM IN THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

A Thought for Today
 Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

"And he told them a parable, to the effect that they ought always to pray and not lose heart.—Luke 18:1.

The Day Is Done
 Tonight the sun goes down. The day is done.
 Put down the load, whatever load you bore,
 and come unburdened to your waiting door.
 When sinks the sun,
 Tonight the sun goes down, and let it take
 Upon its journey all the daily cares,
 The irritation of life's small affairs,
 The little ache.
 Tonight the sun goes down. Tomorrow morn
 Refreshed, restored, again you will arise,
 And find the clouds have drifted from the skies,
 The day reborn.

"I DIDN'T LET THE AMERICAN GET AWAY WITH HIS SIGH OF RELIEF — I SIGHED MUCH LOUDER"

Connecticut Yankee
 By A.H.O.

Democratic State and National Chairman John Bailey is known to have referred to Mayor Uccello as the "Connecticut Yankee" in the first major skirmish of the new Mayor's first term suggests that Bailey's Republican counterparts share and endorse his appraisal.

The course of this first skirmish has suggested, also, that Bailey might do well to communicate not only his appraisal, but some of his most mature political wisdom, to political apprentices who are trying to run the Democratic show in Hartford.

One thing that was noticeable about the skirmishing over the preliminary organization of a Model Cities City Demonstration Agency was the remarkable degree of coordination between the maneuvers of Mayor Uccello, a local Republican official, and the state leadership of the Republican party, symbolized by Republican State Chairman Howard Hausman.

The Democratic majority on Mayor Uccello's City Council in Hartford got the skirmish off and running with a vote to set up the Council itself as the interim agency in charge of the Model Cities planning program.

By opposing the decision within the Council itself, and by then waging a crusade against it all the way down to Washington, Model Cities legislators and officials Mayor Uccello was able to create widespread feeling that the Democrats had been so eager to grab power and patronage for themselves they were unwilling to share the direction of a supposedly great civic program either with other civic leaders or with representatives of the ordinary people supposed to be most interested in the direction and accomplishments of the program. The Mayor's crusade thus took on the character of a being something for the people and for Hartford's highest civic interest rather than anything of power or prestige for the Republican party or a Republican mayor.

But while Mayor Uccello was thus functioning as a civic crusader, in a matter which primarily concerned only the city of Hartford, the Republican State Chairman Hausman acted on the fact that the State Commissioner of Community Affairs had consulted with the Democrats of the Hartford City Council in their hiring of a temporary director for the Model Cities program, and, on that relatively slim basis, dispatched a letter to the Governor of the state inviting him to explain why his commissioner should be part of a "brazen free-out" of other potential applicants for the post in question.

The point was not that the Republican state high command had, on this occasion, perhaps a little less traction than usual for trying to joust with the Governor. The point was that the effort was made, regardless, in order to complete the logical team play exploitation of the opening so thoughtlessly provided by the Hartford City Democrats.

With such total strategic communication obviously in existence on the Republican side which thus demonstrates its appreciation of a valuable property it has in Miss Uccello, perhaps the Democrats of various levels ought to get together too. Perhaps the first thing Bailey should impart, as wisdom to all those less-than-mature young geniuses on the Hartford scene, is that it is sometimes better to try to smother a lady with civilities than atarve her by ecduations.

Heart Attack More Probable

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Police said today a 63-year-old member of the ultraright-wing National Democratic party, which claimed he was "murdered" by leftists at an anti-Nazi rally, probably died of a heart attack. An autopsy was scheduled.

A preliminary medical examination of the body of Carl Hoffmann showed no external injuries, officers reported. He collapsed at the entrance of the German Museum's Congress Hall where the rally, organized by anti-Fascist groups, was being held Wednesday night to mark the 30th anniversary of Hitler's coming to power.

Right-wing demonstrators shouted and heckled. The NDP, often accused of being "Nazi," claimed Hoffmann was beaten to death by "leftist radical terrorists."

massive Communist buildup around the American held fortress of Khe Sanh.

Exactly at the time the Communists began massing around Dien Bien Phu in the winter of 1954, Communist agents began their major peace offensive with secret contacts in European capitals leading to the Geneva Conference the following summer. On the very day the conference opened, the Communists overran Dien Bien Phu. The resulting rearmament in France and failure of the Americans and British to come to France's help ended the war.

In basic respects the situation today is far different for example, the overwhelming military mobility and air monopoly of U. S. forces. Nevertheless, Hanoi's "talk-fight" policy today is a carbon copy of the Communist "talk-fight" policy

Richard M. Nixon Personality in the News

NEW YORK (AP)—On his 50th birthday on Jan. 9, Richard M. Nixon was in Philadelphia, meeting behind closed doors with Republican leaders.

It was typical of Nixon, the inimitable politician since he was sent to Congress from California in 1946. Still the youngest of the speeches for GOP congressional candidates.

Writers talked again of the "new Nixon." He seemed more relaxed and sure of himself. "Nobody is going to believe me," he said in Milwaukee in 1964. "but I want to build a party so the nomination will mean something in 1968."

The polls indicate he has something in mind.

Nixon is ready to leave the new world he's carved out in New York—a $200,000-a-year law practice, a plush apartment on Fifth Avenue, the best of both worlds and serving in on President Johnson.

He says a racial "war-in-making" at home is more important than Vietnam. He lambastes Johnson's domestic and foreign policies equally.

He goes into the primaries knowing he's got to win them to get the nomination. "If I enter the primaries, I expect to campaign hard," he said in November. "And I would expect to win them."

Two years later he apologized at a Washington gridiron dinner. "I hope that a man can lose his temper once in 48 years and be forgiven for it," he said.

Now Nixon is picturing himself in the middle—between Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California; on Vietnam between individual reporters. He was living down his premature swan song after his 1962 California defeat, when he said: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any more because, gentlemen, this is my last press conference."

John D. Rockefeller IV, nephew of the New York governor and husband of GOP Sen. Charles H. Percy's daughter, was reported ready to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state in West Virginia.

Rockefeller, 39, now in West Virginia's House of Delegates.

State Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, long a Democratic power in California politics, told newsmen he is seriously considering seeking his party's nomination for U.S. senator.

Unruh said he probably could have the nomination "for the asking" to oppose the expected re-election bid of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, Senate Republican leader.

A possible write-in campaign for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller still appeared in the planning stages.

Nixon's name was officially entered in the primary Wednesday. He was expected to announce his candidacy today.

Nixon's initial campaign swings will be in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Oklahoma. As the lineup for the New Hampshire primary solidified, the Gallup Poll reported its latest nationwide survey of Republicans showed Nixon with a 3-1 lead over Romney and a 3-2 margin over Rockefeller.

The name of former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace—who has strongly indicated he'll mount a third-party presidential bid—was among those missing from the New Hampshire candidates' roster.

In Montgomery, Ala., Wallace said he'll next attempt to qualify for Pennsylvania's presidential primary. His American Independent Party already has qualified in California and Oklahoma.

Johnson, Nixon Rate as Favorites

Political Scene

President Johnson isn't officially among the 15 entries in New Hampshire's March 12 presidential sweepstakes but he still rates as a favorite along with Republican Richard M. Nixon.

When the entry deadline for the nation's first primary closed Wednesday, Johnson was ranked as a favorite to win the Democratic side of the race with a write-in campaign in backwaters are conducting.

His main challenger remained Sen. Ed Brooke, D-McCarthy, D-Minn., campaigning on a platform of opposition to Johnson's Vietnam policy. McCarthy was the only prominent Democrat to enter the primary officially.

Another write-in campaign is being conducted by supporters of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. But he has disavowed the drive, saying only "unforeseeable circumstances" could make him oppose Johnson in any primary.

On the Republican side, polls have shown former Vice President Nixon holding a sizeable edge over Michigan Gov. George Romney, although in the state is believed to have slimmed the margin.

'Intimidation' In Local Law
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The tactics of "intimidation and intimidation" are being used in an attempt to force local law enforcement by "some clandestine groups and individuals" Director J. Edgar Hoover declared. Hoover, in an address to the FBI's monthly "Law Enforcement Bulletin," singled out "some" but did not name names — the American Civil Liberties Union's connection with a pending law suit in Newark, N. J.

Last August the ACLU, accusing the Newark police department of a long and continued policy of brutality, asked a federal court to place it under a form of receivership, and appointed special master to administer it.

"The courts could do this great service," Hoover said, "if they would promptly, and with finally, slip down such schemes to undermine and destroy local law enforcement."

Anti-Smoking Poster Campaign Delayed
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Act. Health Service, the Post Office Department has held up a nationwide anti-smoking poster campaign because of a national-wide fleet of postal delivery trucks.

The delay is to allow adequately prepared paper strips to be prepared to place a qualification on the slogan which now reads "No more doctors and quit smoking cigarettes—Maybe you know something you don't." The slogan, now being printed, will explain the figure in an "estimate based on survey" by the National Opinion Research Center and the Public Health Service.

A Public Health Service spokesman said the change is made following some sharp questioning from some of the more interested congressmen. "Most of these are from tobacco-producing areas."

One of them, Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said the slogan is a "scare tactic and declared: "It is not the function of the federal government to attempt to brainwash the American people concerning their personal habits in respect to smoking or anything else."

Capital Footnotes
 The State Department has officially refused to say whether arms aid is being given to the allies in the Vietnam war, stating such release would be "prejudicial to the defense interests of the United States." Other allies besides South Vietnam are Australia, New Zealand, South Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand.

Harvard Man Defends Saigon Home

With Pistol, Rifle
 SAIGON (AP) — The tall young American civilian crunched behind the high concrete wall, a pistol strapped to his thigh and a high-powered rifle in his hands. His clothes were dirty and he hadn't shaved for two days.

Ron Fleming, 26, a Harvard graduate, was defending his Saigon home, who comes from Auburn, Maine. "We have bullet holes in the end of the friendly neighborhood sniper."

Coentry
EAC Asks Injunction To Stop Salary Talks
 The Education Association of Coentry (EAC) is seeking an injunction against the Coentry Federation of Teachers (CFT) and the Board of Education in an attempt to stop salary negotiations between the CFT and the board.

The defendants, who also include acting superintendent of schools David MacKenzie, must appear in Superior Court of Tolland County on Feb. 9 to show cause why the injunction should not be issued against them.

MMH Librarian Passes Exams
 Mrs. Lois Becker, medical record librarian, at Manchester Memorial Hospital, has successfully passed a national examination and is now a fully accredited record technician. This, according to the American Association of Medical Record Librarians (AAMRL), which administers the examination, qualifies her to add the initials ART after her name as proof of her high qualifications.

Friends Start Nadolny Fund
 A fund for the education of the four surviving children of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Nadolny, former Manchester resident, has been set up. Contributions may be sent to the Rev. Robert Potter at Asylum Hill Congregational Church, Hartford.

Friends Start Nadolny Fund
 The couple and one of their children were killed in a three-car crash near the Torrington-New Hartford line. Mrs. Nadolny, a 1960 graduate of Manchester High School, was known during her high school years as Alice Martin. The fund was started by one of her classmates, Mrs. Doris Chivvis of 104 Hubbard St., Glastonbury.

 Ocala, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Elise Davis said her 45-foot mobile home, a weekend retreat deep in the Ocala National Forest, was missing when she went there recently. Authorities said they have no suspects in the disappearance, no witnesses and no leads.

Goodrow's Hoop Secures Win for Cheney Quintet

Down by one point with five seconds remaining, Cheney Tech went to snap a five-game losing streak when Johnny Goodrow's desperation basket try split the nets and produced a 39-38 victory over East Granby High.

Dependable Dan Scavetta with the way, Cheney battling 10-11 in the quarter and 21-19 at intermission. The visitors went ahead at the half, 23-21, and the final eight minutes were hectic, the lead changing hands several times.

Goodrow, Cheney's best all-around performer, had been all over the court with his lightning shot. Although not up to par, he supplied the spark needed to snap the losing chain.

Cheney now boasts a 2-10 win-loss record, the same as East Granby.

Also returning to the Cheney lineup after being sidelined with a hand injury was Mike Ryan. The latter did a fine job off the boards and contributed six points, two less than Goodrow.

Leading the local offense, the only lad in double figures, was Dan Scavetta.

BASKETBALL SCORES

Y SENIORS

Last night's opener saw Moriarty Brothers set a scoring record at the Y hitting 112 points to beat Ansaldo's, 112-90. The previous record of 104 points was held by Ansaldo's over the Gas House Gang all the way with its strongest quarter being the second, sinking 26 points. No shooting percentages are kept but it is estimated that they hit at least 65 per cent from the field. Dave McKenna (29), Dan Pinto (24), and Buzz Kenney (20) led the way while Lou Cyr (16) was the big man for Ansaldo's hitting on his outside set from 25-30 feet.

Closing the night the Top City Blues finally pulled away from the Hawks to win 85-55. It was a nip and tuck ball game with the fourth quarter when Jim McKeenan and Dick Provost came out of the bench to hit for 18 points on give and go fast breaks. Top guys for Top City were Dave White (24) and Jim Matrella (18). Ray Penneck (28) played a great game on the boards to lead the Hawks while Bill Vot added 21 points.

Coaches' Hopes Drop with Loss

The comeback hopes of the University of Connecticut basketball team were lowered by a 65-43 defeat administered by the University of Massachusetts Wednesday night.

Both schools now have two losses in Yankee Conference games. In the previous game, the Huskies defeated Southern Connecticut 82-79 behind the play with only a small chance of catching league leader Rhode Island. Connecticut is 6-8 in all games.

Billy Tindall of Massachusetts sank a 20-foot jump shot as the final buzzer sounded to give the Redmen the victory over Mass. Tim Smith of UConn led all scorers with 23 points while Tindall, Dave Ellerbrook of UConn and Fred Milan of UConn each had 16. UConn Capt. Bill Corley had 14.

Larry Kuharich Grabbed by Minnesota Pro Football Draft Rolls for 22 Hours

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a certain giddiness that overtakes pro football people after months of waiting for the national pro football draft. Larry Kuharich, a defensive back from Boston College, was selected by the Minnesota Vikings in the 17th round of the draft.

There is, however, a catch. Kuharich was not listed on the Boston College roster. He was a walk-on player who had been on the team for a while but had never been officially registered.

Minnesota coach Bud Grant was not pleased with the selection. He felt that Kuharich was not good enough for the 17th round.
