Pitkin Street Needs A Light

Another accident at East Center and Pitkin St. suggests that our traffic authorities take another look at this location, with a new consideration of the advisability of traffic light there.

A traffic signal light at the diagonal Pitkin-Cone location would not only serve to eliminate this sudden speed dip from driving on East Center St., but would also be a welcome assist to traffic trying to enter or cross East Center St. from either Pitkin or Cone.

If our traffic authorities take to pleading that they already have enough traffic lights on East Center St., we would agree. But that does not mean they are in the right location.

There are too many traffic lights, too intricately timed, down at the Center. There are too many traffic lights, too intricately timed, down at the Center.

But a single signal, out at the Pitkin St. location, would slow traffic down in harmony with the uniform pace dictated by the traffic lights at the other end of the Green, and contribute to the peace and safety of the route.

There were Americans who suffered with France through its crises in both Vietnam and in Algeria. There were Americans who suffered with France through its crises in both Vietnam and in Algeria.

Mount American interest in the Algerian problem turned to applause when Charles de Gaulle, brought back to power in a coup by military officers who thought he would lead them to a firm, victorious solution in Algeria, gradually turned himself and the military around until he produced negotiations which resulted in the French withdrawal from Algeria.

The trouble with Everett McKinley Dirksen is that he has made himself such a lovable old dog that practically the whole nation has given up direct methods of judgment at him. It does not matter whether he is right or wrong on any particular issue; he will change his mind as often as the wind.

There are too many traffic lights, too intricately timed, down at the Center. There are too many traffic lights, too intricately timed, down at the Center.

By A.H.O. No self-appointed guardian of the all-important purity of the names of human individuals can expect any holiday from his Quixotic labors these days.

By the Governor's decree, it has now become a condition of employment by the state, Connecticut—or at least a condition of the use of the state car which may happen to go to or from either Pitkin or Cone.

Drivers Fired, Said Roads Bad For School Buses

CHESHIRE (AP) — Four women who drive school buses report they were fired Friday after refusing to drive over roads they felt were too slippery.

The women said they were fired by Manchester Bus Service, which provides the school buses under contract to the town of Cheshire.

The Manchester Bus Service is operated by Elmer Thrall of Spring St., Manchester. He declined today to comment on the firing.

One of the four, Mrs. Michael Zello, said that her car skidded as she was driving to her bus early Friday. Mrs. Zello, who said she had been driving buses for seven years, reported that back roads in the town had not been cleared of a mixture of rain and snow which fell Thursday night and Friday morning.

The other drivers, Mrs. Robert Race, Mrs. Richard Staples, and Mrs. Amos Allen, all reported driving troubles on their way to their buses or observing other cars involved in accidents.

"We're responsible for the children, and the roads are too slippery," one driver said.

Drivers Warned In Bus Mishaps

A pair of minor accidents involving Manchester Bus Service school buses occurred yesterday, with both drivers receiving warnings.

Romeo H. Dube Jr., 27, of 10 Oliver Rd. received a written warning for failure to yield the right of way at an intersection, after the school bus he was driving was struck in the left side by a car operated by Barbara V. Bell of Wapping.

Dube was making a left turn onto Avery St. from Elberta Dr., at 3:09 p.m.

Seven children, ranging in age from 6 to 11, were passengers in the bus. No injuries were reported.

Robert D. King, 24, of 76 N. School St. was attempting to negotiate a left curve with his bus at 7:35 a.m. on Croft Dr. when it skidded out of control into a utility pole.

King received a verbal warning for driving too fast for conditions.

There were 12 passengers in his bus ranging in age from 15-18; again no injuries were listed.

Juvenile Court Sets Hearing on Joseph Lucas

The "alleged delinquency" of 15-year-old Joseph Lucas will be the subject of a Juvenile Court hearing in Hartford March 14.

Young Lucas is accused of the murder of his 12-year-old sister Sherry on Jan. 16. Vermont police have stated the girl was beaten on the head with a hammer and stabbed twice in the back at the family home on Merline Dr.

The accused boy has undergone psychiatric examinations prior to the setting of the hearing date. He has been held in the juvenile detention home in Hartford since being charged with the crime.

Lucas, pleaded "not responsible for the act as charged," when arraigned before a juvenile judge Jan. 26. The plea is equivalent to a plea of "innocent" in an adult court and was made on advice of counsel, according to a court official.

If the youth is judged legally sane after the hearing and his plea remains unchanged, the court spokesman explained, Lucas will be required to stand trial in closed proceedings before a juvenile court judge.

Police have also claimed the youth attacked his father, who arrived home shortly after the daughter was killed. The father was a patient at Rockville General Hospital for several days after the attack for treatment of head injuries.

Six from Town Hear Edwin May Join in Race

Six of Manchester's top Republicans were at New Haven's Park Plaza Hotel today, to hear Edwin H. May Jr. of Wethersfield announce his candidacy for the GOP nomination for U.S. senator.

The announcement, forecast for months, was made at a noon luncheon. May is expected to receive the nomination without opposition at the Republican State Convention, scheduled for June in the Bushnell Auditorium, Hartford.

The Democratic nominee will be incumbent U.S. Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff.

The Manchesterites at today's luncheon were Mayor Nathan Agostinelli, Town Treasurer Rosalind Quiah, Town Counsel and State Central Committee member John F. Shea, GOP Town Vice Chairman Saundra Taylor, Harlan Taylor and M. Adler Dobkin.

Public Nursing Program Reaffirmed in Town Vote

The generalized public health nursing program was accepted for the second time last night at a special town meeting.

An estimated 200 townspeople attended the meeting in spite of the cold windy weather. The question was moved at 9:45 p.m. and voting was done by paper ballot. The question was whether to rescind the action of the Jan. 15 town meeting which had accepted the generalized public health program.

Of the 149 ballots cast, 69 were in favor of rescinding the action and 76 were against the rescinding.

Mrs. Alice Stone, Rham High School nurse, was spokesman for the group who wanted to rescind the former action. A possible projected budget for a new town public health agency was passed out before the town meeting by the petitioners.

On the same notice, more suggested questions were listed about full-time nursing and health education in the schools; also included was a fact sheet about the present school nurses' health service and education program conducted in the elementary schools.

The public health advisory committee also passed out fact sheets giving the information on the generalized program.

Mrs. Stone made the motion to rescind and then pointed out that the petitioners felt the public health program was not adequate and the schools had a good nurse now. Her main point was that public health in the school would cut the health education and nurse time in the schools by one half.

Mrs. Ann Nist, from the State Department of Health, was present and was asked to read the statutes covering the generalized program and department regulations, which made it mandatory the schools be included in the program in order to get reimbursement.

The meeting, under moderator Hedley Hill, was controlled although questions and answers kept coming for one and half hours.

Several townspeople were concerned about the petitioners not being known to the town so that questions could have been directed to them before the meeting. They wanted to know who prepared the possible budget given out and who sent the unsigned "Why" postcards in the mail during the week.

Mrs. Stone said the budget was prepared under the direction of a public health supervisor from Williamette. Mrs. Dorothy Kallack, Hebron Elementary School secretary, said that she and the others who had circulated the petitions were responsible for the mailing of the cards.

The Board of Selectmen will in area towns to discuss ways Manchester Community College can help solve their problems and meet their needs, James noted.

In this way, the college hopes to use its academic know-how to assist the community in solving problems and serving persons who might not ordinarily seek its aid, he said.

The towns to be served in addition to Manchester, will be East Hartford, Glastonbury, Bolton-Coventry, Rockville-Vernon, and South Windsor.

The community service program is an outgrowth of a Problem Identification Survey conducted at MCC earlier in the year.

Identified in the survey as requiring attention by the college, the state commission said, were needs for a regional approach to regional problems, more solutions to the problems of young people, and improved recreational programs and resources.

Stock Market Down After Week's Rise

The market reflected expectation that additional troops, perhaps involving a further reserve mobilization, might be required," said Pershing & Co. as the week ended. "Economic news was mixed and concern developed that the Federal Reserve may continue to tighten credit."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week declined 4.3 to 840.44.

Of 1,637 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 1,134 fell and 398 rose.

Former glamor stocks in the conglomerate, data processing and other "science" fields, issues which have made the biggest gains, took the widest losses. Some mutual funds were reported dumping such stocks and slowly picking up blue chips.

College Given Federal Grant

An $8,567 federal grant has been awarded Manchester Community College to conduct a community service program, the State Commission on Aid to Higher Education announced.

The funds were made available under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, and will be matched by the college, the commission said.

Heading the program will be John W. James, assistant to the president at MCC and director of community services, who said the college hopes to establish closer and better communications with surrounding towns served by the college.

Five members of the MCC part-time faculty will be chosen to serve as "municipal agents" who will meet weekly with municipal and school officials.

Hebron

inform Andover and Columbia of the action taken last night in the near future. Columbia has yet to decide whether to join Hebron and Andover in a three-town agency. They are presently working under a one-town agency, but the board of directors indicated earlier that they would not be opposed to discussing such a proposal. If they agree to the three-town agency, they will recommend the change to the town and it will go to a town meeting.

Reuther Calls Caucus to Blast Meany

She says she "believes that the moderator did not follow caucus regulations and the endorsement of the candidates should be invalidated."

She says she has asked for a ruling from the State Central Committee.

Charles Lathrop, town committee chairman and moderator of the caucus, told The Herald today that "if she wants to challenge this vote I'll be happy to have her."

He added that she would not be aiding party unity. He said that Mrs. Butterfield as a member of the old town committee sat at the last committee meeting, listened to the list of 25 names being endorsed as the new slate, and raised no objections.

He said that before the caucus convened Mrs. Butterfield informed him of the need to remove one name because the candidate is ill. Another name (Dana Hanson) had to be replaced because his new job precludes political activity.

Lathrop said that it was agreed that the names of the Rev. Douglas Theuner and John Morianos would be added at the caucus to complete the slate.

Names Read Off

The caucus then convened, and the names of the 23 town committee endorsed candidates were read off. Nominations were asked for from the floor, and Theuner and Morianos were nominated along with six others.

Lathrop said the nominations were then closed and that he asked how the caucus wanted to vote. Someone suggested that the persons at the caucus cross out those names they didn't want on the list which had been distributed, and leave those names they did (including any of the candidates nominated from the floor).

As the ballots were being collected, Lathrop said, someone asked if it were necessary to vote for a total of 25 names, and Lathrop said that it was not necessary, that voters could vote on any number (up through 25). Lathrop emphasized that no vote on this ruling had been taken. There was an objection that decision on how the voting should be done could not be taken once the voting started.

As the ballots were being tallied (with totals compiled for each name), Lathrop said he held up one ballot containing 31 names and said he would have to throw it out because it was illegal.

Lathrop said today that about half of the ballots, which he has saved, contained votes for 25 persons. The other half voted for less than 25.

Over 25 Votes

When the tally was completed it was announced that all those with 25 votes were on. The Rev. Mr. Theuner was elected. Mori-

Schultz Arrested In Gun Mishap

Police have charged a 21-year-old Manchester youth with breach of peace, following a Jan. 30 incident when he shot himself in the arm with a .22 caliber revolver.

Theodore Schultz, 59, Birch St., was taken into custody yesterday afternoon by Manchester police detectives at the Veterans' Hospital in Newington.

Schultz was admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital on the night of the shooting after two patrolmen administered first aid to the profusely bleeding left arm in a girl friend's Wells St. apartment. He later went to Newington at his own request.

Schultz was allegedly target shooting in the apartment following an argument with the unidentified girl.

Schultz has been released on $1,000 bond and will appear in Manchester Circuit Court 12, March 18.

Talbot New Vice President Of State Ambulance Group

Roger Talbot, co-owner of the Ambulance Service of Manchester Inc., was this week elected vice president of the Connecticut Ambulance Association.

Some controversy has been stirring lately on laws to control ambulance service, and this has caused a split in the association.

"The trouble with the laws passed on ambulance service is that they apply only to professional groups and not volunteer groups," Talbot said.

Talbot, who is parts manager at Dillon Sales & Service, owns the Ambulance Service of Manchester Inc., with Stewart Johnston.

Talbot calls the Ambulance Service of Manchester a professional group, which charges for its services; volunteer groups are ones which operate in various towns from town funds. Groups like these are found in Tolland, Ellington, Vernon and Coventry.

Talbot said that even the volunteer groups charge for services. Tolland, which is reported to have the finest volunteer service east of the Connecticut River, does charge if the person is from another town. According to a reliable source, Vernon does charge for the service also.

"In Tolland we get about two calls a week," the source said. "We have sent bills to persons out of town but we have never received any payment on these."

Talbot said that the volunteer groups have no way of enforcing the payment of bills. A professional service does have, he said.

"Some of the volunteer groups do not bill the persons they aid," Talbot said. "What they do is ask for a contribution."

Talbot was elected vice president of the Connecticut Ambulance Association at a meeting reportedly marked with some slight explosions of emotion.

The former vice president slammed out of the meeting after voters were counted; the former president resigned from the association several months ago. Talbot said, after his term expired.

An East Hartford man, Maynard Cague, was elected president.

Talbot said that several men walked out and that there was some talk that they would try to form their own organization.

Bolton

Mrs. Butterfield May Contest Endorsements by Democrats

anos did not glean enough votes, but Mrs. Claire Wartel, a past committee member nominated from the floor, did.

It appeared at this time that endorsed town committee members Paul Brown and Fred Gaal had lost, each having received 21 votes.

The causes then went on to nominate delegates to various convention, with only one change. Registrar of voters Mrs. Mary Morgan, endorsed by the committee for delegates to the State Convention, was replaced by William Andreovich.

This reporter, counting up the names on the new slate, discovered that only 23 names received 25 votes or more, that the slate was short two names.

This was verified by committee member Aloysius Ahearn, who brought it to the attention of the moderator, who then declared that Brown and Gaal had been elected also.

Mrs. Peterson Rejects Post

It was announced at the selectmen's meeting last night that Mrs. Catherine Peterson does not want to take the position of Republican registrar of voters. Mrs. Mamie Maneggia, present registrar, has asked that she be replaced, and the town committee agreed on Mrs. Peterson.

She has subsequently decided that she does not want the post.

The two selectmen present at the meeting, First Selectman Richard Morra, and Democratic Selectman Joseph Licita, discussed the role of town committees in filling vacancies occurring on boards between elections.

Morra said that it "eliminates a lot of friction" if boards that own name their own replacements do so. He said that the Republican Town Committee had been "badly hurt" twice because its candidates were ignored.

Licita said that it was his feeling that "the wishes of the town committee should be adhered to as much as possible."

The finance board has recently ignored a Democratic Town Committee candidate in favor of one of their own—for the second time. Licita said that this was dictation by the Republicans on the board, even though the choice had to be a Democrat.

Licita said that the two party system is necessary in running the town, and that political procedures must be followed.

Dog Warden Reappointed

In other business, Frank Pagnoli was reappointed dog warden.

It was decided to notify the Child Guidance Clinic that Bolton would insert $500 in its budget (to be voted on by the town) as a contribution. The school has been making referrals to the clinic and the town has not been contributing. The clinic requested $608 from the town this year.

Licita, who is familiar with the clinic because of his work on Manchester Community Chest, spoke in favor of the contribution.

Ray Cocconi, chief assessor, asked the selectmen to set up a five-member land committee for next year's reevaluation and to set up a expert in revaluation expertise. This will be done.

Correction

A birth certificate or baptismal certificate is most certainly needed for registration for kindergarten. (A child must be five years old on or before Jan. 1, 1969.) This should be brought to kindergarten registration next week.

Due to a typographical error it was printed yesterday that a certificate is not necessary. It is not necessary to bring the child, since an orientation will be provided later.

Richard Vizard, an economics instructor at Manchester Community College, spoke to the club on the causes of inflation and the need for a surtax to help curb further erosion of the dollar. His talk was sponsored by MCC's Speakers' Bureau.

The Public Clark Gable: 'One Helluva Man'

By LAWRENCE LAURENT The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Irwin Rosten and Nicholas L. Noxon moved from David L. Wolper Productions about 14 months ago to set up a documentary department at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios. For their first project, and without a moment's hesitation, they chose Clark Gable.

The result, their "Dear Mr. Gable" will be telecast Tuesday (8 p.m. on NBC).

They chose Gable, Rosten explained during a recent visit to Washington, because of the sudden, unexplainable Gable fad that has erupted in the 1960s. College students are giving him the same kind of attention that earlier was given to Humphrey Bogart. Photographs of Gable and even huge posters of his likeness are hot items in the novelty business.

An 11-year-old of my acquaintance, who was four years old when Gable died in 1960, sleeps with Gable's picture on the bedside table. She has never seen him in a movie at a theater, indicating that the Gable fad has been created by exposure of his movies on television.

Another good reason for choosing Clark Gable, of course, is that M-G-M was his home studio. This meant that the Rosten-Noxon production team had access to the 60-plus movies in which Gable appeared.

They also got permission to use—for the first time on television—action scenes from "Gone With The Wind," which was made by David O. Selznick. Producer Rosten and writer Noxon found an unusual problem: Too much material, far too much for an hour-long documentary. Another problem is the fused, inseparable mingling of fact, press agentry and myth that developed over the 30 years that Gable reigned as "The King" of Hollywood.

The team spent a year on the show. They interviewed about 100 persons who were Gable's friends. They looked at 184 hours of motion picture features, newsreel footage and even home movies. Out of this they chose 51,000 feet of films that was edited, finally, to 5000 feet.

Clark Gable in 'It Happened One Night'

They discovered in the viewing room that one of the most frequently told stories about Gable is, at best, a wild exaggeration. In the story, Gable is supposed to have given Norma Shearer a hard right to the jaw in the film, "A Free Soul." The film made a star of Gable and tons of material have been written about the appeal of the new, treat-women-rough, star.

In looking at the film, Rosten and Noxon could find no hard right to the jaw. But there is a scene in which Gable gave Miss Shearer a slight shove into a chair.

Their research also turned up an unpublished manuscript by Gable's first wife and dramatic tutor, Josephine Dillon. It is an account of the years before Gable won public attention.

He was, Rosten argues, a most unlikely idol. He had jug ears, false teeth and no education. He was insecure in his profession, determined to preserve his privacy and rarely read a book for pleasure.

During World War II, neither M-G-M nor the Army Air Corps wanted Gable in combat. He was too valuable, in dollars, to the studio and too great a recruiting source to the Air Corps. Gable did fly five combat missions in Europe, as a commissioned officer and gunner, but he was let out of service before the end of World War II. Rosten claims that Gable was greatly embittered about the way he was used by the armed forces.

The magic never returned. His movies did make money, but the world had changed. He died in 1960, three months after completing "The Misfits" with Marilyn Monroe. Until the end, when the strong features had sagged and he was 60, Gable continued to play a romantic leading man, often with actresses 30 or 40 years his junior.

"He was," concludes Rosten, "a far better actor than sophisticates ever gave him credit. Mostly, he reacted to others. The public, apparently, never cared whether he was an actor. The public saw him as one helluva man and that was enough."

New Series For Diahann

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC, announcing what it called "a firm schedule" for next season, says it has included a half-hour comedy-drama series starring Diahann Carroll, the Negro singing star of Broadway's "No Strings," and frequently a TV variety performer.

The program is called "Julia." The network also said that the variety show it has planned for late Sunday nights starting in September will be hosted by Phyllis Diller. The comedienne will work with guest stars.

Other new programs scheduled include "Adam 12," a police series; "The Outsider," a private-eye show; "The Name of the Game," action-adventure; "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," comedy.

GRIFFITH MOVIES

Andy Griffith, who finished shooting his series last week, plans to make two motion pictures and one television special a year in the immediate future. He picked Ken Berry to star in "Mayberry R. F. D.," which will replace his seven-year-old series on CBS next season.

Although Griffith and members of his current TV family will appear a few times in the new series which is set in the same locale, only George Lindsey, who now plays Goober will be a regular in the forthcoming show.

SMOTHERS VACATION

The Smothers Brothers show, during their summer vacation, will be taken over by Pat Paulsen and Glenn Campbell. Campbell is a guitar-playing singer from Arkansas who although not well known to television audiences is a popular recording star. Dean Martin's summer show will star Joey Heatherton and Frank Sinatra Jr.

AND JERRY TOO

NBC apparently has decided to give Jerry Lewis and company a summer vacation. It has announced a half-hour series, "Showcase 68" which will start on June 11 and run until early September. Each show will present young professional musicians, with winners picked each night by a panel of judges. These winners will wind up the series with an hour show on Sept. 3.

Pianist Artur Rubenstein plays a concerto in its entirety on "S. Hurók Presents—Part II" Tuesday.

From 'Tevye' To 'Hatful'

From Sholem Aleichem's "Tevye" in "Fiddler on the Roof" to a role as an Italian father in the ABC adaptation of Michael Gazzio's "A Hatful of Rain," airing Sunday, 9 to 11 p.m.

This is the theatrical route most recently traveled by Herschel Bernardi.

Aside from the fact that "Tevye" is Jewish and from a small Russian village and is basically a sadly humorous role and the father is Italian, from

New York's Lower East Side and a rather tight, dour, heavy individual, what are the other differences in these two characterizations for Bernardi?

"For a character—like me—"Tevye" is universal. His happiness is mine and everyone's; his sadness is mine and everyone's. It was ice cream—a dessert—all I ever dreamed of in a role.

"This 'father' role," Bernardi continued, "is entirely defined. As 'Tevye' I was expansive and free-wheeling. The 'Hatful' characterizations is infinitely more difficult. Here there is no room for expansiveness; here we must condense everything in order to present the intense feeling of a man confused and in terrible torment."

$30 Million for '68

RADNOR, Pa. —The Nation's three commercial television networks expect to spend an estimated $30 million covering the 1968 Presidential campaigns, and Public Television also plans additional special coverage, TV Guide magazine reported this week.

The magazine said NBC News has budgeted and estimated $12.7 million, CBS News "close to that" and ABC News will spend about $7 million. There was no estimate available of how much Public Television would spend.

The major innovation for viewers this year will be full color coverage.

"CBS and NBC say the total air time they expect to allot to reporting the primaries, next summer's political conventions, the fall campaigns, and Election Night next November probably will approximate the coverage they gave the '64 race. ABC, forced to retrench in the wake of International Telephone and Telegraph's decision not to absorb the network into its affluent empire, will for the first time eschew gavel-to-gavel convention coverage and limit its pickup of the nominating affairs to 90 minutes nightly," said the magazine.

Network costs are being increased, the magazine said, because they will have to cover the Republican convention in early August in Miami, then shift their staffs and equipment to Chicago for the Democrats. The possibility of protest against the Administration's war and domestic programs at the Chicago convention is not being overlooked by the network newsmen. "At least one network is so sure of trouble that three mobile 'crash units' are being readied for quick on-the-spot coverage," TV Guide magazine reported.

Season Sleeper: Hamilton Camp

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — One of this season's sleepers is Hamilton Camp, who plays the all-thumbs superintendent on CBS' "He and She." In some ways, Camp is like his character Andrew, but in age he's not. Andrew is supposed to be in his 50s; Camp is 33.

Camp is a folk singer as well as an actor, and now he's making some records on the side — melodic moonlighting.

He was born in England, moved to Canada at 9. Two years later, his father and mother separated and his father went back to England.

"I haven't heard from my father since," Camp says. "My dream is to find him and show him his grandchildren."

There are five little Camps — 7, 5, 3, 20 months and 10 months. That would be a lot for a grandfather to take all at once.

Life a Class For Blonde

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Life is just one big classroom for bright girl like Beth Brickell, the resident blonde of CBS' "Gentle Ben." After studying here and abroad to go into foreign service, she switched to acting and that's been an education, too.

Beth is an Arkansas-Texas bred gal, and she found herself at the Actors' Studio in New York and one of her first instructors was Raymond St. Jacques, a Negro.

"I had had no contact with Negroes back home," Beth says. "And I still had a thick Southern accent. And I think Ray handled the situation beautifully. He sensed my problem, and he didn't try to force things. He let me realize in my own sweet time that Negroes were people. He was just great."

"But I'm such a rebel. If I was a Negro, I'm sure I'd either be in jail or dead by Feb. 13."
