Bear One Another's Burdens

World Day of Prayer Topic "What we give of ourselves to communicate, we must not what really matters." Miss Hazel Kuhnly of Rockville told about 140 women Friday at a World Day of Prayer service at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

She said that through a prayer relationship with Christ we are given the ability to bear the burdens of others, and added, "We underestimate the value of prayer for the power of prayer; through prayer we receive God's love, His promise of life, and the power to help ease the burdens carried by those who don't know Christ."

A total of $151.85 was received from an offering at the service and from envelopes distributed to Protestant churches in the Manchester area. The money will be used for worthy world-wide projects under the direction of the National Council of Fellowship of the Least Coin.

In her talk, the speaker said, "We pray for the unfortunate, the hungry, the sick, and when the opportunity comes to bear one another's burdens through helping to beautify a world. The 'least coin' of each country has been taken as a tangible token of sharing and, they said, in this way the poorest women and the richest share alike. In this country, it means that each woman participating in the fellowship will set aside a penny each month while she thinks of the meaning of the fellowship. Next year the collection will be forwarded to the Asian Conference of Church Women for distribution.

At dessert time, Mrs. Glenn Law of North Methodist Church and Mrs. Norman Svensson of Trinity Covenant Church donated the meaning of the Fellowship of the Least Coin.

Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lautenbach of 50 Sumner Circle. Miss Chapman is a 1965 graduate of Manchester High School, and a graduate of the Hartford Hospital Licensed Practical Nurse Program. She is employed at the office of Dr. Marjorie A. Purnell, Rockville.

Mr. Lautenbach, a 1963 graduate of Manchester High School, is attending the University of Connecticut, Storrs.

The wedding is planned for Aug. 31 at North Methodist Church.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna, until recently a top political officer of the Czech army, has been admitted to the United States as a refugee, officials said today.

Sejna, a former official in the defense ministry and a member of parliament, fled Czechoslovakia last week with his 18-year-old son and a 22-year-old girl. Authorities here said they understood the girl is his son's fiancée.

Sejna and the two young people were reported to have traveled through Hungary, Yugoslavia and Italy en route to the United States.

The general fled while Czech courts were taking away his immunity as a member of parliament. Press dispatches from Prague reported he was accused of misappropriating state funds.

Washington authorities said they believed he had wound up on the "wrong side" of a political controversy which has unsettled top Communist officials in Czechoslovakia.

On Friday, Czechoslovakia's chief military prosecutor Jan Semeck, said Sejna had crossed the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border by car on Feb. 25.

"The search for him has so far remained without results," Semeck added then. Sejna would be the highest ranking official to be arrested in a Warsaw Pact power to have defected and would have much knowledge of interest to Western intelligence. (See Page Eighteen)

21 Miners Trapped After Fire

CALIMET, La. (AP) — Twenty-one miners were trapped deep in the eerie caverns of a salt mine early today after fire broke out in a shaft and severed an elevator hoist.

The last word heard from the men, about 100 feet down, was: "Pull up the cage!" After that, communications cables were burned and set afire by those on the surface unaware of their fate.

Emergency units swarmed into the remote marshy area bordering the Gulf of Mexico, where salt mining is a multi-million dollar industry in large domes that reach like smokestacks into the earth.

State Police Sgt. Thomas Burbank said troopers at the scene reported workers were trying to build another shaft in an attempt to reach the isolated men.

"We believe that the fire is still hot," a spokesman for the Salt Mines said at mid-morning. "We did have a fire which damaged a hoist cable that's why we can't get the men out."

At his headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn., a Cargill spokesman said his safety director, Roy Greizer, reported that emergency oxygen equipment, masks and lighting was situated in the mining area where the men were located.

Greizer said the Federal Bureau of Mines, whose nearest location is Dallas, had been informed and that an emergency crew from the bureau was preparing to go to the scene.

The Cargill spokesman said the night crew superintendent had called from the mining level about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday and reported a fire in the shaft, presumably near the cage lift. It was at this point, the superintendent said: "Pull up the cage!"

Rescue units expected it would take several hours to reestablish communications, since it was not known exactly where the men were stranded. Shafts reach to different depth levels and the miners could be as deep as 1,200 feet.

All 63 Passengers Killed In Guadeloupe Plane Crash

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — Rescue crews reported the wreckage of an Air France 707 Boeing jet today and reported that all 63 persons on board, including a woman identified as the wife of real estate Pointe-a-Pitre's Rabellet Airport, died when the jet burst into flames and exploded.

En route from Santiago, Chile to Paris, the plane "just disappeared from the radar screen" while making its landing approach, Luis Guillermo Medina, an airport administration official said.

The plane had left Caracas, Venezuela, at 6:27 p.m. after stops in Lima, Peru, and Quito, Ecuador, and was due in Guadeloupe, Air France's main service area in the Caribbean, about 55 minutes later.

Officials said the weather was good at the time of the crash and that they had received no emergency messages from the plane in Lima.

In New York, Miss Marjorie Campbell, Zeckenrodt's secretary, said Mr. and Mrs. Zeckenrodt were to have met in Guadeloupe Tuesday night and then sailed on the SS France for a Caribbean vacation cruise. Mrs. Zeckenrodt had boarded the plane in Lima.

Air France also listed Joseph Rosenbluth of Philadelphia among the passengers. Rosenbluth, 44, was a partner in a travel agency and had three children.

Two newsmen from the French magazine Paris Match were on board, returning from an assignment in South America. They were reported photographer Tony Sautner, 42, and reporter Hubert Herzog, 43, a brother of Maurice Herzog, the mountain climber and former minister for youth and sports in France.

There was no indication here of refusing and servicing the plane at Antonio Maceo Air port in Santiago de Cuba.

Elsewhere, U.S. forces killed 110 enemy soldiers in three sharp clashes. U.S. spokesmen reported, as the Communists shelled provincial capitals and military posts for the third straight day. The U.S. Command said the shelling caused 110 deaths and 23 wounded.

American officers said 50,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have been killed in their operations against cities and other major centers in South Vietnam from Jan. 30 until mid-

Spanking Good Move

CORRY, Pa. (AP) — The kids said it was a sympathy demonstration. But the principal said it was plain old hockey.

So he lined 70 students in front of the Corry High School auditorium and spanked each one of them — girls and boys alike — three times.

"They think there's safety in numbers," said Principal Leo Peck, who personally administered the lickings.

Peck said his theory is that the pupils were miffed when some other schools in the area in northwestern Pennsylvania were closed to allow teachers to go to Harrisburg to demonstrate for higher pay. So they decided to take a vacation on their own.

In little groups and on by one they began slipping out on Monday. On Tuesday, the culprits were lined up in the auditorium and given the punishment.

"Physically we didn't do much to them," said Peck. "If they're embarrassed enough, it won't happen again."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top U.S. civilian adviser says the national law you get into the question of sovereignty nations. In South Vietnam's government because, he insists, there aren't honest Viet namese officials to do the job.

Tolland Selectmen Given Petitions Against a Middle School

Petitions calling for the halt to further planning on the proposed middle school were presented to last night's meeting of the Board of Selectmen by its circulators Walter Beaton and Raymond Ludwig.

The Jan. 31 town meeting would have to be rescheduled if the Board of Finance were to authorize the appropriation of $60,280 to permit the preparation of preliminary plans for the middle school.

Texas Fires Kill Nine; Arson Seen

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Nine persons perished in two residential area fires on Houston's East Side during the night, and investigators said an arsonist may have started both blazes.

Both fires occurred in a low income area verging on the industrial district about three miles east of downtown Houston. As the last unit was leaving the scene of the first fire, fire Capt. Donald Hanks spotted a glow in the sky and summoned more equipment.

Major Efforts Under Way To Urge Morton to Run

Los Angeles Times—The two Republicans given Washington Post News Service the best chance to win the nomination in November—Cook and Louisville—Congressman Morton and his home state in Kentucky Sen. Thurston B. Morton to seek re-election this year.

Republican Morton's announcement Feb. 23 that he was retiring from public life created a chaotic situation within the Kentucky Republican Party. From all accounts, Morton checked the national constitution anxious for him to remain a member of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Accordingly, the Republican National Committee last Saturday voted unanimously to urge Morton to change his mind. Other resolutions are being applied by Lee Nunn, staff director of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, and Nunn's brother, Louis, who is the governor of Kentucky.

"This far they have met with no success. Morton said he had no intention of changing his mind. 'This my ribbon,' he said.

It, as seems likely, he sticks to that position, it will leave Gov. Nunn in an embarrassing situation.

The reason is that Morton's choice of a successor—Cognate Judge Marlow Cook of Louisville—has long been a political adversary of the Nunn. Cook opposed Morton in the 1964 bitter primary election last year, an election that created deep divisions within the Republican Party. It also created lasting personal antagonism between Morton and Nunn.

As a result, sources close to the governor insist that it would be virtually impossible for him to support Cook for the Senate this year.

A second complication was the entrance into the Senate race this week by Eugene Siler, a 67-year-old former Republican congressman from the mountain towns of Eastern Kentucky. Siler is not considered a formidable candidate but if he stays in the race, Governor Nunn, his associates say, would be compelled to support him, Siler campaign.

A third complication has been the awakening of Democratic interest in the Senate race. Morton had been considered unbeatable and the Democrats had shown little inclination to seriously challenge him this year. Now that he has withdrawn, however, there is increasing speculation that former Governor Edward T. Breathitt who has close ties to President Johnson, will get into the race.

The present assumption is that Breathitt could beat Siler.

Wedding

Stackpole - Fredrickson
Miss Ellen Christine Fredrickson and James Dick Stackpole, son of James Dick Stackpole, of 27 West St., were united in marriage Saturday at the Congregational Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Fredrickson of 27 West St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Minor B. Stackpole of the home at 24 Morse Rd.

The Rev. Kenneth W. Steere, associate pastor of the Congregational Church, performed the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Laura Fobbs of Manchester was maid of honor. Gary, a 67-year-old former Republican congressman from the mountain towns of Eastern Kentucky, Siler, is not considered a formidable candidate but if he stays in the race, Governor Nunn, his associates say, would be compelled to support him, Siler campaign.

A reception for the immediate family and friends was held in the Fellowship Room at the church.

After a wedding trip, the couple returned to their respective schools until June. Mrs. Stackpole is a sophomore at Southern Connecticut State College and the Democrats had shown little inclination to seriously challenge him this year. Now that he has withdrawn, however, there is increasing speculation that former Governor Edward T. Breathitt who has close ties to President Johnson, will get into the race.

The present assumption is that Breathitt could beat Siler.

South Windsor Hospital Notes

Public hearing on zoning regulations has been set for April 10.

At a meeting of the zoning board Feb. 15 petitioners requested a change from R-2 to R-1 zones in the South Rd. area. This request was spured by a proposal by Lawrence Flano to build an apartment complex on South Rd. near Stony Rd. Multiple dwellings, or apartments, are permitted in the R-2 zone.

Donald Tofford, zoning agent, said that the entire R-2 zone in town will be reviewed at the hearing.

He said that a request, which came to him by letter, to discuss Flano's application for a building permit, cannot be considered at the public hearing.

The zoning board will meet with Town Council Harold Laws, Atty. Arthur Barrows, a zoning expert from New London, and the planning commission before the hearing.

Michael Spretini of Riga, La. has resigned from the Public Building Commission, effective the first of this month.

In a letter to the town clerk he said that because of pressure of business he felt that he was unable to distribute constructively to the commission.

A Democrat, Spretini, was appointed to fill an unexpired term.

At a meeting of the zoning board Feb. 15 petitioners requested a change from R-2 to R-1 zones in the South Rd. area. This request was spured by a proposal by Lawrence Flano to build an apartment complex on South Rd. near Stony Rd. Multiple dwellings, or apartments, are permitted in the R-2 zone.

Donald Tofford, zoning agent, said that the entire R-2 zone in town will be reviewed at the hearing.

He said that a request, which came to him by letter, to discuss Flano's application for a building permit, cannot be considered at the public hearing.

The zoning board will meet with Town Council Harold Laws, Atty. Arthur Barrows, a zoning expert from New London, and the planning commission before the hearing.

Michael Spretini of Riga, La. has resigned from the Public Building Commission, effective the first of this month.

In a letter to the town clerk he said that because of pressure of business he felt that he was unable to distribute constructively to the commission.

A Democrat, Spretini, was appointed to fill an unexpired term.

Defense Rests Case In Bomb Plot Trial

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Defense attorneys rested their case in a trial Tuesday, lawyers for three defendants and two hants and Judge Devin denied the motion. Each of the lawyers maintained that the prosecution had not produced sufficient evidence that the three had been involved in the alleged plot.

The three were arrested Dec. 23 with two others at a local motel. Voice said they had uncovered dynamic and incriminating evidence in the building and drove the down with pneumonia.

Donald Walsh, a public defender assigned to represent 25-year-old Ronald Johnson, made one of the motions for a directed verdict.

He contended that the state had failed to produce any evidence that Johnson, called the rightlander by an undercover agent testifying for the state, was capable of carrying out the bizarre plot he was charged with carrying.

Attorneys for Curtis Belton, 22, and Willis Brooks, 31, made similar motions for the state to dismiss the charges.

Easy To Lose One's Way

Jackie Robinson spoke for the experience of many American parents, and for the fears of countless others, in his recent comments on the fact that his son, Jack R. Robinson, Jr., had been picked up in Hartford allegedly in possession of heroin, carrying a revolver.

Because of his opportunities and responsibilities as the first of his race to break into big league baseball, the former Dodger hero has devoted much of his career to civic causes, and especially to efforts to give helpful, inspiring stimulation to the young people of his country.

There will now be no denying, nor cancellation of the good work and good effect that may have resulted from Jackie Robinson's work among the youth of America.

But everyone has to be brought up about by the example of his own question to himself, in the light of his experience with his own son.

"How," he asked, "can I assume that I have been of help to others when I haven't been able to help my own son?"

That son was a high school dropout. He dropped out in the Army, and served a year in Vietnam, which may have been where he picked up the drug habit. He was wounded. When he finished his service, he would have none of his parents and their luxurious home in Stamford. His father's last previous near contact with him had been to leave a message for him at a pool hall he was believed to frequent, making him to call home, which he didn't do. He had said, according to his father, that "he had to stay away from us and figure it all out."

All of this will be quite familiar to all professional students of the current American scene—the police, the social workers, the psychiatrists, the probation officers, the judges.

It is different only when it comes home to some particular home. Jackie Robinson's humble, anguished confession of his own inadequacy becomes his. So, likewise, does his intention to "stick by him" now, not to deliver him from consequences, but to try to make sure he knows there is still love and hope for him in the world. There ought to be some measure of comfort and reassurance for the father, too. This sort of thing seems to happen for the best-intentioned parents. It is an experience shared in some degree of actuality or in some degree of fear by millions of American parents. It is easy to lose one's way when one is trying to lead a child one loves.

First, we suspect that this simulated day of play and relaxation is actually, for him as well as for his staff, the hardest work of the Presidential week. Second, we are not sure how reassuring to a nation which is worried about his poise and balance such a suddenly unbalanced absorption in new weekend routines is being proved. The sad thing about a leader in Mr. Johnson's present position—commander-in-chief of a war which can't be won and which is unpopular anyway—is that it becomes hard for him to do anything right. Whatever he does, there are unfriendly analysts to pick it apart. Nor is his playing of various roles, and his shifting from one role to another, anything to be classified with the greatest acting of our time. The one thing that really applies to him consistently is that he tries desperately hard with everything, even his new idea that he must seem capable of play on his weekends in order to prove himself a normal fellow.

The American Burden

An important article by Senator J. W. Fulbright appeared recently in the "International Herald Tribune." Entitled "Of Destiny and Choice," it can be read as a manifesto for the new isolationism.

Since their nation was born in rebellion against imperialism, the United States has been an article of faith with most Americans that empires are by definition bad. The old isolationists were not alone in denouncing the empire-building of others without a tremor of moral uneasiness. It never occurred to them that the U.S. itself could be suspected of imperial tendencies. The huge expansion of their own heartland, even the feasting of copper and oil on the American continent, could be justified, they felt, either as part of the natural order of things or as a necessary consequence of the Monroe Doctrine.

In attacking the idea that strong nations are fated to become empires, Senator Fulbright has fallen into a determinist trap of his own—that of assuming that empires are fated to be harmful to themselves. The truth is more complex. Sheer exploitation is bad, and so is the maintenance of alien rule for its own sake or when a majority on the subject population clearly resents it. But there have been, and are, imperialist nations of which history can approve, and nations, like individual people, are not always corrupted by power.

Common to both the old and the new isolationism is an overinflated, indiscriminate, rejection of the imperial idea. In the case of the new isolationism, the pious phrases that nations have used to justify the exercise of power beyond their own frontiers—those phrases, even when used hypocritically, have often had some basis in objective truth. The Roman Empire was a major civilization. Its conquests were not only widely felt, and the same will probably be said in future ages of the British and French empires—and of the American.

Moreover, the Senator is on doubtful ground when he suggests that great nations have necessarily lost their virtue after taking to empire building. Sometimes they have. Sometimes they have not. Athens, Spain, and the Netherlands, for instance, were at their cultural best when they were empires. The Roman Empire was hardly a nation turned in upon itself, yet it achieved a level of cultural creativeness seldom equaled, if ever equalled.

The new isolationism recognizes, with some reason, that the U.S. is not exempt from original sin, but on the contrary shows every sign of yielding, as others have yielded, to the temptations of excessive power. Senator Fulbright sees his country going the way of ancient Rome, of Britain, of France. But, he asks, is it too late to turn back? Can the U.S. escape the fate of other empires?

Accepting the gloomy determinism of the responsibilities of power, it is difficult to see how the United States can avoid its present predicament. It is not that it cannot. They do not, of course, prize their decline and fall, only the extension of power, the drain of material and human resources, and the neglect of domestic requirements that precede and precipitate the fall of empires.

But Senator Fulbright points to an alternative course: "... we are free to use our vast resources for the enrichment of life, for the improvement and enjoyment of things for the setting, if we will, of a civilized example to the world." It is certainly a good thing that Americans are being made to see that the United States in the world is imperial—even though it lacks some of the traditional stage properties of empire (plumed hats, durbars, etc.). Since 1945 the American ambassador in many countries has been as powerful as any victory. The wealth and military might of the U.S. have thrown those countries into a state of dependence scarcely distinguishable from outright subjection. In Europe the colonial period is coming to an end, but in Asia it is bound to last until the nations of Asia are able to stand on their own feet, or until the U.S. decides to pull out.

Senator Fulbright is asking that American power be withdrawn from the imperial outposts and that American resources be deployed almost exclusively on the home front. Above all, he is concerned about the massive involvement in Vietnam, and his concern is understandable. But even if it can be demonstrated that the U.S. should never have got involved in Vietnam; it does not follow that the U.S. should withdraw from the rest of the world. The U.S. should never have got involved in Vietnam; it does not follow that the U.S. should withdraw from the rest of the world. The U.S. should never have got involved in Vietnam; it does not follow that the U.S. should withdraw from the rest of the world.

It would be dismal to live without words of art, but it might be a good discipline if we tried living without the word "art." For a while at least. "Whatever I point to," says the modern artist, "is art, even if I did not make it. In fact, the less I have to do with it, the more likely it is to be art. All things are esthetically equal, from answered to the Warner Brothers posters of Ed. G. Robinson, and it might be as artistic as the philistine—to transmute them into anything else. Accidents, if they happen to me, are my business. So sorry you have to split. Close the art-form behind you as you go out."

Inside Report

WASHINGTON—Gov. George Romney's audacious attempt to deprive Richard M. Nixon of an overwhelming victory in New Hampshire and propel Gov. Nelson Rockefeller into the race was not a failure, followed by the political bungling and miscalculation of modern Republicans.

For this grand design of Romney's dramatic withdrawal, the essential roles were to be played by Romney, the Republican Governors, and Rockefeller. But in turn, each bocked his part.

Thus, Romney's withdrawal from the Republican Presidential nomination is wider than ever. Monroe and apprehensive. Romney's withdrawal last Wednesday (Feb. 28), Nixon strategists were supremely confident by week's end.

The original strategy behind Romney's withdrawal was sound. With Nixon's only competitor in the March 12 New Hampshire primary withdrawn, his big win there could be drained of meaning.

By Romney's press conference Friday, those who two days earlier wanted his endorsement of Rockefeller were delighted that Rockefeller did not publicly endorse Rockefeller. But Romney was noticeably cool toward him, running exactly opposite to the original strategy.

Even so, Rockefeller might have won the day by not waiting for support from the governors but instead declaring he would immediately begin political travels to test sentiment—the final part of the original plan. Instead, he waited apparently committed himself to the Psychological Theory of winning the nomination as a non-candidate.

Conceivably, it could work. Rockefeller's ratings in the polls are probably will rise with Romney's withdrawal. But those frustrated moderates who hoped for a more accurate public presentation.

Of course these ladies must also know by this time that while the checks for the program emanate from Hartford, all the money to operate Project Concern was pumped in by the Ford Foundation, the State of Connecticut, and the Federal Government. If one just considers the latter two sources for a moment, he should realize that his Federal Income Tax money and all his State Tax contributions was also pretty much involved.

1. The word "ultimately" as used in criticism, where it was replaced by the word "eventually" (and equally senseless) "in the final analysis." No doubt you can find examples of both in my own work, in which case the hell about everything I write is meaningless to divide things into categories of good and bad.

2. The LWV thus takes the position that this town must lose $60,000 profit from Project Concern during its two year span. Really now ladies, do you expect us to believe that it has cost nothing to educate these 62 Hartford pupils in our schools these past two years? You can't be serious when you allege that whatever money came to our General Fund was all profit.

In order to set the record straight there are a few facts from a Manchester School official. During the first year of the Project, Manchester received money approximately equal to our own per pupil operating expenses. However, for this year while our per pupil net operating expenses is $56.11, the contract for the Hartford pupils is but $22.00 per pupil. This means a deficit of about $44. per pupil. Multiply this $44. by 62 and the deficit to Manchester is $2,728 this year. No matter how you slice it—whenever you spend more than you take in, you are going in the hole.

So, ladies, let's get the facts and figures presented clearly and objectively in all your future press releases.

Frank U. Lupien Editor's Note: The alleged "deficit" of about $44 results from an acknowledged difference in calculating the cost properly to be assigned to these special out-of-town pupils. The difference in this case is interest expense on Manchester school building bonds was not included. Actual-ly, we do not think either side of the busing controversy should be very much concerned with the dollar argument either way.

If it is a good program we would consider it worth even a little Manchester money, and we certainly can see no reason why Manchester should wish to continue to receive a "profit" from it. If the program is of no value in itself, it doesn't deserve to cost anybody anything any where.

Artist Creates Work of Art on Phone

By KENNETH TYNAN The London Observer LONDON—The other day I heard a successful young artist creating a work of art by telephone. He called up the manager of a factory near London and, riffling through a handful of acrylic plastic samples, dictated a series of numbers and measurements and instructions for assembly. In perhaps three minutes the apologetic foreman had called and I suggested him not to fuss the operation was over.

Chamber Group Selected to Act As Official Body

The City Beautiful Committee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce was made the official clean-up and beautification committee for the town.

Governor John Dempsey requested that each town establish and maintain a clean-up and beautification committee, and recently Town Manager Robert Weiss gave the designation to this Chamber of Commerce Committee.

The state is starting an extensive clean-up and beautification campaign. Gov. Dempsey asked the towns to establish beautification committees so that the state can work with an efficient designated group.

The past three years Manchester has won a Distinguished Achievement Award in a national contest sponsored by the National Clean-Up, Paint-Up, and Up Bureau in Washington, D.C. This was achieved through the efforts of the City Beautiful Committee of the Chamber.

Garden Column Seeds from China Developed The Bradford Pear in U.S.

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

In 1918 the late Frank Meyer, a United States Department of Agriculture plant explorer, collected 100 pounds of seed from pear trees he found growing in the mountains near Ichang, China. He was searching for something that would produce better rootstocks for commercial pear varieties in North America. Meyer died in China. Those seeds which he sent back were used to develop a beautiful flowering shade tree, the Bradford Pear, Pyrus Calleryana.

The seeds were planted and the seedlings were watched. One unusual seedling was transplanted to a permanent site on the grounds of the plant introduction station at Glenn Dale, Md. This tree became the original Bradford Pear. It was so named to honor the late F.R. Bradford, horticulturist in charge of the department's plant introduction station for many years.

The Bradford Pear can now be purchased at a few nurseries, including Triangle Nursery Co., Pittsford, Md. 21850, which has a catalogue.

Bradford pears may reach a height of 30 to 40 feet with a branch spread of 20 to 30 feet. It is not a fast-growing tree. At eight years of age the trees are usually large enough to put on an effective display of flowers.

Bradford is one of the earliest trees to bloom in the spring. When in full flower in early April, it is covered with slightly off-white blossoms peppered with darker stamens. The blossoms are a wonderful contrast south as Brooksville, Fla.

to the yellow and purple color of early blooming buds.

During the spring and summer, the dark, glossy-green leaves present a pleasing picture, particularly as they alternate yellow to bronzy red. Leaves color well in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. They remain on the tree until early winter, long after those of elm, maple, eyecane and others have fallen, and they finally drop over a short period.

The numerous, small, inedible russet-colored fruits remain on the tree until they are eaten by birds, particularly as they alternate yellow to bronzy red. Leaves color well in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. They remain on the tree until early winter, long after those of elm, maple, eyecane and others have fallen, and they finally drop over a short period.

The tree at Glenn Dale has twice experienced winds of hurricane violence with only minor damage to tree form. The roots of the tree have not surfaced. With its mountain ancestry going back to China, where the Pyrus Calleryana may be found at elevations up to 4500 feet, the Bradford Pear thrives under a wide range of soil and climate conditions in the United States. It has been tested and found to grow well as far north as Boston, Mass., and as far south as a wonderful contrast south as Brooksville, Fla.

Maker of Horror Films Says Fears Don't Change

By WAKA TSUNODA
NEW YORK (AP) — It's almost half a century since "The Cabinet Dr. Caligari," the first successful horror film, set the shivers in German movie audiences.

"Today this genre of movie industry—always beloved by the public but usually belittled by critics—is rolling along just fine, its box office attraction unabated.

"In a sense, an international, which replaced Universal as a major horror producer a decade ago, tried a swing recently to a more sophisticated, more adult, but it is returning to the good old horror by popular demand.

"Vincent Price, who often has been called king of horror movies, discussed the subject in a recent interview in his hotel suite near Broadway.

"Actually, only 10 out of his 50 films are 'horror.' But he did the job so horribly well, emerging from the London fog, casting the elongated shadow of his 6 feet 4 frame on the walls of a mysterious castle, starting out evilly from under arched eyes, dark blue stripes, looking like a condescender of art education in Europe and America, which he said, he said that the elements of horror remain essentially the same through the ages.

"Introducing current themes like monsters from outer space after a flying saucer scare is just a gimmick," Price said, his famous granite voice a bit hoarse from singing lessons for the Broadway musical, "Darling of the Day."

He said he found all the elements of fear in the works of Edgar Allan Poe.

He has starred in such Poe stories as "The Fall of the House of Usher," "The Pit and the Pendulum," "The Raven," "Tales of Terror," "The Masque of the Red Death" and the "Hunted Pleiades."

"You know, different things frighten males and females," he said.

"Cobwebs and snakes frighten males. Of course, I'm a male, but I've gone now. I also was, I had an absolute fear of height. But after I lived in a place where people killed lots of snakes, the fear disappeared. I realized we are the makers.

"Females are frightened by a man, talking very quietly, suddenly hangs a table. The audience went up in the air. I could see people jump out of their seats.

"Also things unknown frighten through it but you don't know what. If played right, this can make up a whole movie.

"And in 'The Thing,' a black and white movie I did in 1959, I had an absolute fear of height. But after I lived in a place where people killed lots of snakes, the fear disappeared. I realized we are the makers.

Events In Capital

No LBJ Riot Comment
WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House has indicated President Johnson does not intend to comment on conclusions of his special Commission on Civil Disorders until they are studied and evaluated. Press Secretary George Christian said Tuesday Johnson "intends that the executive branch carefully evaluate the report and check every phase of the report."

Christian would not comment at a news conference on whether the executive branch might that part of the report is open to challenge represented the administration's view. Humphrey said the commission's conclusion that America is becoming a racially divided nation "may be true although it is open to some challenge."

Explorer in Orbit
WASHINGTON (AP) - The sun - studying Explorer 37 spacecraft is reported in orbit around the earth after repeated launching delays at Wallops Island, Va. The National Aeronautics Space Administration said the 18-pound satellite will measure solar X-rays and selected ultraviolet emissions from the sun. The data is to improve forecasting of ionosphere conditions which affect short wave radio transmission, and to warn of major sun flares that could be hazardous to manned spacecraft.

Capital Postpones
Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr., D-Va., a newspaper publisher, says military restrictions are justified on news of damages inflicted by the enemy on fixed targets in Vietnam. Byrd said in a Senate speech that news media should show greater restraint and said some newsmen have "gone far beyond the call of duty" in reporting troop morale, strengths and weaknesses of American positions and probability of enemy success in over-running outposts.

Vietnam veterans could not be sent back to the war until they had spent at least a year in the United States under a resolution offered Tuesday by Reps. Garner E. Shriver, R-Ill., and Edward J. Burke, R-Pa. A bill to extend the federal school lunch program to day care centers in low income areas passed the House 398-0 Tuesday and went to the Senate. The White House says Franklin H. Williams has resigned as U.S. ambassador to Ghana effective June 1.

Capital Quote
"I've never voted for a Democrat for president yet. And if people want to convince me they have changed their spots, I can be convinced." - Barry Goldwater, indicating he could support Nelson A. Rockefeller for president if the New York governor got the Republican nomination.

Hebron Democrats Pick Their Delegates

The Democratic Town Committee held its caucus last night at the Hebron Elementary School with an estimated 64 persons in attendance. The 33-member town committee endorsed slate of candidates won election for the next two-year period.

Nominations were received from the floor for membership on the town committee; they were: Mrs. Jean Rowley, David Albee, Richard McDonald and Mrs. Evelyn Quog. All four candidates were defeated. Those elected to the town committee are Marcus Atkinson, Ralph Boyington, Mrs. Beatrice Andrews, Wilbur Daniels, Joseph Kearns, Joseph Fornier, Donald Coates, Frank Nicolo, Aaron Reed, Robert Craig, John Grumell, John Kutynek, Edward Patroski, Bruce Keefe, Howard Porter, Richard Keefe, Tom Sullivan, Joan Keefe, G. Earl Porter, Gordon Lassow, Paul Blaw, Elmer Anderson, Raymond Hall, Gerald Porter, Dennis Shea, James Robinson, George Smith, Robert Griffin, Carl Frankel, Wayne Miller, Dian Kearns, Howard Sweeney and Joseph Hill.

The three candidates elected to be delegates to the Democratic State Convention in Hartford on June 21 and 22 were the committee-endorsed candidates, Aaron Reed, Dian Kearns and G. Earl Porter. Nominations were also placed on the ballot from the floor and included David Albee, Mrs. Evelyn Quog, who has been urging support of the local McCarthy campaign, William Heughan and Richard McDonald. The four nominees from the floor were defeated.

The delegates to the Congressional Convention on June 29 will be Joseph Keefe, Wayne Miller and Richard Keefe. There was no opposition.

The delegates elected to go to the Senatorial Convention on June 18 in Stafford Springs are George Smith, Marcus Atkinson and Donald Coates.

The delegates to the 52nd Assembly district convention on June 25 will be Edward Patroski, Robert Craig and Carlman Frankel.

In other action, the Democratic Town Committee was authorized to fill any vacancies that occurred.

Freer Advice In New Leaflet

WASHINGTON - What would you do if your home freezer stopped working? Keep it closed to retain the cold, opening it only to add dry ice or take out food for moving to a locker plant. But when the current is on again, how do you know if the food is safe to eat?

"What To Do When Your Freezer Stops," containing a lot of tips can be obtained free by sending a postcard to Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

EXCEPT FROM ARMY BASE FT. HOOD, TEX. (AP) - Six persons were ejected from the Army installation Sunday for passing out antiwar literature at box checks and a service club. Ft. Hood officials said the pamphlets advertised a "prayer for peace."

Military sources said they were read a letter which officially barred them from returning to the post in accordance with Army regulations and then were escorted to the main gate. The Army did not know who the persons were, where they were from or where the "prayer" was to be held, a Ft. Hood official said.

Added Costs For Drains Irk Bayer

The Bayer subdivision, which first hit the agenda of the Town Planning Commission August 22, 1967, is, after numerous completed planning stages, still under fire from the town of Manchester.

An unqualified no was placed upon the storm drainage plan for the 70-acre tract located adjacent to Vernon St., by William O'Neill, town engineer, during executive session of the town planning commission last night.

The big issue, according to O'Neill, is that the Bayers have planned only to resolve the runoff from their own project, leaving a danger of flooding from 300 adjacent acres, when they are developed in the future.

O'Neill wants the developers to install larger pipes than the 18" size presently programmed. Atty. Philip Bayer, speaking for the developers, categorically stated to O'Neill and the commission that they would not spend the estimated $25,000 to do this.

Town Planner Joseph Tamsky reported to the commission that the subdivision regulations are not clear as to whether the developer must pay for such a change, but that the commission is bound by the regulation to accept the engineer's approval of the sewer design, having no choice, but to disapprove the entire subdivision unless the matter is resolved.

At this time commission chairman, Adlai Dobbin, who has a personal interest in the Bayer tract, excused himself from discussion.

"There's not a court in the land that wouldn't declare what you're asking unconstitutional," declared Bayer. "You are stretching the language of the regulations here to suit your own purpose."

"The real issue here," Bayer asserted, "is that you are asking the developer to do the town's work for free."

Bayer went on to say that he realized other developers had been "pressured and coerced" into doing this before smaller scale, but that $25,000, in his opinion, was not "child's feed." He asked the commission how it would rule if it were $250,000, or if he had only five acres instead of 70 to develop.

"Would we still have to pay for the draining of 300 acres into five," he asked, "if this case we'd have to pay for the drainage of all of Vernon?"

O'Neill again addressed the commission, "My hands are tied," he said. "They can't expect me to approve a drain system which I visualize, one or two years from now, as a 12-inch pipe full of water."

"I don't see how you can approve the project on the basis of the engineer's negative report," Tamsky told the commission. "In this case you have a moral obligation to back him up. It's in the regulations and we have discussed it with Mr. Shon, (Town Counsel John F. Shon, Jr.)"

Bayer again spoke to the commission stating that he felt it was the town's responsibility to pay for the improvements to the sewer system.

Tamsky replied, "It would certainly be equitable if the town pays, but at the present time I just can't see the board of directors approving such an appropriation."

In response to a question from a member of the commission Tamsky said that he felt it would be the upstream developer who should pay if concurrent developments were before the commission.

Tamsky suggested the commission look at the state policy or that of surrounding towns like East Hartford for some enlightenment on the matter.

The commission requested the opinion of the board of directors on the matter and tabled further discussion of the problem until the next regular commission meeting.

In closing chairman Dobbin remarked, "I think the commission has now received enough background on the problem to discuss it intelligently."

Boy, 3, Reads Grocery Ads

By KATHRYN MORRIS
Hobbs News-Sun

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — When Chris Austin was 3 1/2 he climbed into his father's lap and began reading the grocery ads.

"I've said something about Libby's ketchup 26 cents, and I didn't pay any attention to him," said grandfather Ralph Winkler of Hobbs. "Then he said, 'Del Monte corn, 23 cents a can, and I almost fell out of my chair. I began pointing out other items in grocery ads and he read them off.'"

Chris, who won't be 4 until March, still is reading grocery ads, as well as other parts of the newspaper. He does not always pronounce a word correctly and has a tendency to slide over unfamiliar words.

The boy really created a stir at the Hobbs News-Sun when he was shown a page of type in the composing room and rattled off the words of a truck that takes some adults quite awhile to learn since metal type is backward from the way it appears in a newspaper.

When he was 3 months old, Chris paid unusual attention to television, his mother, Mrs. Conrad Austin, said. The child's "Letter Game" one hour each day and his mother believes that is how he learned to read. He reads material prepared for children from first through the third grades and discusses the book with his mother.

"Playing with his mother's typewriter, he sometimes takes one of his books and reads a few pages from it. He does not space, indent or capitalize but he gets the letters in the sequence with few mistakes."

"I try not to make too much of a thing of Chris' reading because I don't want him to get the idea he is special," his mother said.

"He wants to go to school very badly, but in Missouri he will not be able to start until he is 6 1/2. Several people have told me they are afraid he may be bored when he goes to school. But I'm hoping he will not, because there is so much to be learned in school, and because he is interested in everything."

Old Farmer Wages Battle With Plants

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — A. J. Burkett is patient in his private war. His adversary is the big sugar beet plant in the area. He is fighting for 60 years.

"The sugar beet plant exacts very high wages for the farmer and the Lord meant for them to be hard to get rid of," Burkett says. "But I think it can be done if a person will stay on the job long enough."

Burkett farms, ranches and runs a dairy herd. With other members of his family he operates on 640 acres.

Burkett said that beargrass, a plant with spiky leaves, takes up moisture and crowds out grass in pasture land. He claims that he has seen cows with badly damaged eyes from encounters with the needle-like stems.

Over the years, Burkett has tried digging, chopping, grubbing and plowing with little success. The beargrass thrived when he poured three or four cans of salt in the major patches. Kerosene was ineffective.

The situation began to change when commercial chemicals in powder and liquid form came on the market. He found chemical sprays that would kill cactus and beargrass.

Now he finds that dead cactus in a pasture is about as bad as live plants.

"The best way to get rid of cactus is to dig them up by the roots and haul them to a place where they can be burned when they get dry," he said. "The best place to pile them is on a rock hill where they can't take root. They surely will if piled on the ground."

"Don't think when you have killed all the old crop of beargrass and cactus plants that you have finished the job, for you will likely miss a few. And, a new crop of plants will come up next year to further plague you."

FRENCH INVEST IN BILLION

PARIS — The French chemical industry plans to invest nearly $2 billion in production machinery, equipment and improvements between now and 1970.

Selkirk's Remarks Draw Attention

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Howard may get a lot of surprises before the 1968 baseball season ends, but none is likely to be more satisfying than seeing his salary dispute with the Washington Senators and up in the Congressional Record.

The big left fielder signed for about $475,000 early this week after a holdout and Tuesday John P. Taylor of Pennsylvania rose on the floor of the House of Representatives to take note of the negotiations "for possible future reference."

Saylor was talking about statements made by George Selkirk, the Senators' general manager.

Selkirk was reported as saying, "It might be pleasant to see someone out there in left who can throw, run and field."

Saylor replied, "In view of management's enviable position whereby a player, bound by the reserve clause, cannot contract with more than one professional baseball club, it is unfortunate that he should be subjected to a salary reference."

Howard said the next move was up to Selkirk, who is still trying to get his star outfielder, Vada Pinson, to sign a contract. The Reds did sign two of their holdouts, though, as outfielder Pete Rose and reserve infielder Jim Maloney agreed to terms. The Pittsburgh Pirates signed up their last player when Matty Alou arrived in camp from the Dominican Republic where he said he had trouble getting a visa. Pitcher Bob Humphrey also signed with the Senators Tuesday.

Brundage Not Ruffled Boycott Bandwagon Threat Laughed Off

CHICAGO (AP)—Russia's newest implied threat of boarding the Olympic boycott bandwagon if South Africa competes in the October Games at Mexico City has every Brundage.

The Soviet Union demanded Tuesday that the International Olympic Committee stand and bar South Africa.

The Central Council of Soviet sports clubs and the USSR Olympic said in a statement at Moscow that the decision is irreconcilable to the USSR. Brundage said in a statement at Moscow that the decision is irreconcilable to the USSR. Brundage said in a statement at Moscow that the decision is irreconcilable to the USSR.

Taylor Retains Pass Catching Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—Charlie Taylor of the Washington Redskins won the National Football League's pass catching title for the second straight year in 1967, statistics released today by the league showed.

Taylor caught 70 passes, two less than in 1966, though he missed three games with injury.

Ben Hawkins of the Philadelphia Eagles led in yards gained per reception with 22.3 yards against Washington.

Walter Robert of the New Orleans Saints caught the longest pass, a 96-yarder from Bill Kinser in a game against Philadelphia.

Submarine Pitch—Cincinnati's Ted Abernathy lets go with his unorthodox underhand pitch at Tampa, Fla., spring training camp. He developed pitch after injuries and operations hampered his throwing overhead.

Notes from the Little Black Book

Two members of East Catholic High's basketball team, sophomore Tim Kearns and senior Doug Meloy have been named to the All-Hartford County Conference all-star squad. Jim Reynolds of East, also a senior, received honorable mention.

Chuck Toomey has announced his retirement as a baseball umpire. The local man will continue to work college football games in the fall.

The pick here is for Don Russell to head the Double AA Baseball Tournament game to be held in West Hartford. . . . Bob Healy, director of athletics at Ellington High, reports Bob Joy will handle varsity basketball this spring. He'll substitute for Don Therrin, currently out with injuries suffered in an auto accident. . . . It seems a shame that Manchester has to go through another fall season without any public ice skating at Center Springs Pond.

Don Russell In New Post At Wesleyan

Don Russell, head football coach at Wesleyan University, has been named to succeed Joseph McCurdy as chairman of the Physical Education Department, it was announced today by Wesleyan President Edwin Etherington.

McCurdy, who is retiring June 30 after 46 years at Wesleyan, said he "could not think of a better man for the job." He was five and has been coaching for more than 20 highly qualified candidates.

Russell, who came to Wesleyan in 1966 as freshman football coach, has been the head coach of the football team since 1964. He will keep his football coaching duties while serving as chairman of the department.

In his new post, Russell will play a key role in determining the athletic policies, and in long range planning of new physical education facilities. He will also be concerned with an immediate evaluation of the physical education curriculum and its relationship to the current university-wide Study of Education Programs and Policies.

A native of Quincy, Mass., Russell served in the U.S. Coast Guard in 1946-48 and later at Bates College, where he was assistant coach of the football team and major in history, receiving his B.A. degree in 1950. He began his career as a coach and teacher of secondary schools in Maine before coming to Wesleyan, where he served for four years as teacher, coach, and athletic director at Turner Falls (Mass.) High School.

Since joining the Wesleyan faculty, Russell has coached three freshman sports, served as the varsity football line coach and before coming to the Intramural Athletics Program. He was promoted to assistant professor of physical education in 1961 and to associate professor with tenure in 1967.

Ski Notes

Had a chat with Spider Sabich, a member of the U.S. Olympic ski team at Stratton last weekend. Sabich started skiing when he was five and has been skiing the past 17 years in all parts of the world. He's a quiet and unassuming person in a crowd, but when he puts those skis on, he sure does make his presence felt. A hard controller, he always goes all out for win. The boys to beat in Sunday's slalom were Charlie Kiste and as a result he lost to Chaffee by a second. Sabich and his teammates have been in training since June. He hurt his shoulder just prior to the Olympics, and it still aches a bit and the result was not a peak performance. Sabich is 5-11, weighs 165; a well built and muscular young man, and is of Swiss-Slavic parentage.

He thought the skiers in this country showed more courtesy than those of Europe. Sabich says he finished college in '68. He and his mates now head for the West Coast, Crystal Mountain in Washington, for the National Alpine Championships this week. The off to Aspen and Sun Valley, for the international team races on the famed Roche Ronc, to Rossland, Canada, and Heavenly Valley, for the World Cup races, in the giant slalom and slalom events to be held in the latter three areas.

While at Stratton I saw the Misses Kabanaukas and Matunas coming in from the frigid cold to warm up a bit. Most ski areas in Vermont had excellent snow conditions. The Ralph Macomber and Chris Parke were at Round Top for a while, but difficulties with the chairlift caused a refund of the fee to the skiers and many went elsewhere. This group went to Fogback.

Here's There

Springfield Kings in the American Hockey League attracted over 10,000 fans to last weekend's games at the Danston States Coliseum. The Kings played before 4,838 fans Friday and hured a record 5-0 Saturday night for the second. Buffalo invades Springfield Saturday night with action starting at 8 o'clock. Leo Diana is off to a great start in his term as president of the Manchester Amateur Athletic Union. He took over the club before coming to the meeting. . . . Manchester High basketball member, Fred Hyde is currently serving his second year as president of the Central Connecticut Soccer Officials' Assn. It's the first time a man held office two years running.

One of Manchester's finest, Sam Malaspina, recently completed 20 years with the Police Department. He's a former professional boxer, has best fighting weight in the 160-pound (middleweight) and 175-pound (light heavyweight) class. . . . Annual Little Three County Club's Sports Night is set for Friday night with John Trow, UConn football coach, the speaker. Social hour starts at 6:30 with dinner at 7:30. . . . Much interest has been generated for the New England Amateur Speed Skating Championships Saturday, March 16 at the Hartford Skating Arena. Sponsors will be the South Windsor Lions Club. . . . Veteran Hartford basketball official, Jake Greenberg, still going strong at 69 — was honored recently by the Greater Hartford C.Y.O. and presented a plaque for dedicated service to the hoop program. . . . Third annual New Haven Boat Show opens Thursday at the New Haven Arena. Total of 128 different kinds of boats will be on display. . . . North Daniels is preparing for his 20th season as head baseball coach at Wesleyan. One of the standouts with the defending Little Three champions will be junior right-hander Jim Martello of Vernon who posted an impressive 0.86 earned run average last spring.
