Downtown Renewal

A large and increasing segment of the Manchester population is becoming aware that the town will soon decide whether it will change the face and revitalize the function of its downtown business district.

Until recently downtown renewal has seemed a mere concept if not a sweet dream, impractical and unlikely anyway. It has seemed too vast and visionary to merit any serious thought, and too vague to grapple with. Anyone who did dwell on it posed questions for which there were no answers or at best, frustrating guesses and speculations. The very idea of downtown renewal struggled against a defeatist assumption that "downtowns" as institutions were dead or dying anyway and that treatments prescribed for them were merely to prolong life awhile and ease the pain of a terminal illness. For some people, this attitude will

But for many more the notion of a renewed and distinctive downtown, convenient, attractive, accessible, and pleasant to be in is catching on. It's concrete now, even though there are still questions about it which cannot be given unequivocal answers. The time to form an opinion on its merits is short. On Oct. 3 the voters will have to make a decision. They will have to say whether they will commit $2 million to the bold and daring projdoes not propose to level half of Main St. and then wait, watching a gaping one will come along to build it up again as too many communities have done. It dares to challenge the notion that the growth of the town is something beyond the control of its ordinary citizens and must be left solely to the economic accidents which usually determine the when and where of commercial de-

This measure of control offered by renewal has two chief appeals. One advocate of downtown renewal, a welltraveled and observant man, remarked that a community is identified, for better or for worse, by its downtown area.

Suburban shopping centers, he said, look pretty much alike all over. However useful they are and however much they contribute in taxes and to the commerce of a town, they do not say to the resident or visitor: This is Manchester, Without considering the specific merits of the renewal proposal depicted in the models which are being displayed in town banks, it is obvious that it presents a plan for a distinctive shopping and cultural center.

One advantage to citizens in the measure of control brought by renewal, then, is aesthetic. The other is a hard economic advantage. To a renewed downtown, Manchester taxpayers will contribute $2 million. The fact that other governments will be contributing about four times that much does not necessarily make the $2 million any less, but it does ease the pain of spending. The real advantage is not in the federal-state bargain, however. It lies rather in the fact that in spending the money, the town will be anticipating and solving in advance the traffic. engineering, and utility problems which will be generated by the growth.

This contrasts sharply with the condition that arises when a shopping cen-, ter goes up or expands, encouraging expansion on its fringes, and generates or aggravates traffic and utility problems. The town is faced ultimately, for instance, with a big expenditure to break up the bottleneck at Broad St. and Cen-

Thus renewal offers a chance to expand the tax base and boost the town's commerce without creating costly and annoying problems.

Beyond that, it has been calculated that a good many improvements, at public expense, will have to be made in the downtown area over the course of years whether or not renewal is approved. It is impossible to say just what proportion of the $2 million would have to be spent anyway. But the sum is obviously not all "extra" money.

Control over the town's character and sconomy is one of the reasons downtown renewal should appeal to voters when they go to the polls Oct. 3. Reaction so far has been generally avorable. The town's future will be righter if that favorable mood governs se townspeople on election day.

Kissing In The Wrong Place

Nelson Rockefeller has been in poli tices as an office seeker for eight long. actionful years. He has, during this period, learned how to consult and follow the oracles of the public opinion polls. He has exhibited a cast iron capacity for the indigestible delicacies each ethnic minority insists on watching him eat. He has exhibited folly and he has exhibited guts; he has been right and he has been wrong; he has profited and grown by his experience.

But after eight years of this, he ought to have arrived at some technique better than that described in the New York Times the other day.

The Times was describing a moment in a campaign rally up in the Adiron-

The Coming Of Quad

Quad is the new word that keeps poppoing up in mid-Atlantic literary reviews. It criss-crosses the tables of the new culture cafes in Paris (le quad rhymes with pad), floats above the cheese eclats at London dinner tables where it rhymes with plod, hod and Ken Dodd, and in New York people like Susan Sontag and Margaret Mead say it over the tables of Lindy's and Rappaport's where it rhymes with gored (almost anything would with your mouth full of pastrami). If you have not heard of quad, then haven't got very good taste. Quad s the successor to camp and, although the logical successor, it is in many ways its direct opposite in that it is calm rather than hysterical: the ultimate in cool, and just to prove it in the current issue of 'Esquire' Tom Wolfe spells it with only five exclamation marks. Basically, however, quad's essence is: He, she, or it is so good that he, she, has all the earmarks of a real philosophy like other modern or pop philosophies with their similar tenets: It's so had it's good (amp). The medium is the message (inclu-

No matter how you slice it, it's still baloney (logical progressionism). If camp says pleasure derives from doing something bad artistically-i.e. painting a picture of Superman-quad says pleasure derives from doing something that is hard artistically-i.e. painting the Sistine Chapel-especially when you stop. Like camp, quad is divided into low and high quad. Low quad is George Orwell and the relief of Mafeking while high quad is Franz Kafka and Gordon at Khartum. Quad is antianti-heroism: seeking the unknown end without a thought for recognition. It is ed, distilled, and raffine. The word quad, though, with its implied four sides, is not merely an academic form of the old slang word "square." Nor is it, as one weekend sage claimed, "the reverse of the teenage thing', a counter-revolution by the mature, for the mature."

everything mature, weathered, season-

Until now, of course, we in Britain have been unable to see the quad phi losophy really at work in an artistic sense and have only had the articles of avant-garde journalists to go by. Be cause of this we cannot really be blamed for thinking all there was to quad was never changing your socks and asking the barber to put hair down the back of your neck. If this is, indeed, quar all, it is very low quad, almost le maleolm-muggeridgisima. (The mone pinning puritan has no place in quad. The foremost chroniclers of quad, the American couple Mary and Andrew Mc-Havon, in their "Not Necessarily Recangular," mention that quad as a philosophy was expressed by Michael Taker, the ill fated very high quad

English poet who died of starvation in Berlin in 1906. Of course the ideally difficult circumstances of Taker's historic high quad death are not unfortunately, universally available. Modern scientific advances. lowever, allow for such circumstances to be simulated under close laboratory control. The American Wall Experience experiment gave it a scientific basis. Five thousand staudents from a numper of universities were asked to beat their heads simultaneously against the wall in an experiment controlled area. Upon completion only six said it did not feel good (the stopping) and those aix, upon regaining consciousness, said they couldn't remember a thing but it probably did (feel good stopping)."

It is, perhaps, superfluous to mention that Professors Wall and Experience also processed 5,000 students from number of universities in a controlled experiment in which they (the students and not Wall and Experience who are real high quad and a little past it to boot) experimented with wine, sex, and song for four days and nights and all the students reported "a general lassitudinous depression (weltschmerz) upor completion." ("Quad" quipped "Time" magazine, "beat the Swingers, six to

But quad is not New Stoicism, New Puritanism, or a new form of the old German school of Beissen und der Kugel (the nearest I can get to this in English is "to bite on the bullet"), because, unlike these, the end of quad is basically hedonistic. One finds pleasure in the absence of pain but one does no actively seek pleasure because of the eventual let down. Neither does one merely sit down and wait to be let down.

School ended in the middle of July, though my two younger sisters (aged 14 and 15) attended for another two weeks to take exams. One of my favorite memories is of the weekend which 14 AFSers in the Tokyo chapter and some members of their "families" as well as members of a mountaineering club spent climbing Mt. Fugi. Starting the climb at 2:30 a.m., we struggled upward by flashlight until above the clouds, we watched the sun rise as we munched breakfast of onigiri (a sort of rice cake wrapped in dried seaweed). We then continued on to the summit (12,385 ft.). My 8-year-old sister Megumi and were the first ones to reach , beating the members of the mountain climbing club as well as the other AFSers. ### As Columbia University Reopens

Radical Students Plan Protests

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

NEW YORK (AP) - A campaign by student revolutionaries and activists to cripple Colum-University again begins Tuesday with two planned dem-onstrations at the 214-year-old Ivy League school.

The radical Students for a Democratic Society has planned its first major actions to coincide with the arrival of freshmen on the Morningside Heights campus. Many classes start

So two contending forces, those in the university hoping to avoid further disruption on campus and the band of student radicals, begin acting out a dra-ma to see whether Columbia can reopen in peace this term.

Student activists and college Student activists and college administrators throughout the country are expected to follow the developments closely. After the earlier outbreaks at the Uni-versity of California at Berke-ley, Columbia has become the symbol of student unrest in the United States.

in chaos last spring following clashes that involved administration, students, faculty and New York City police.

A sit-in that began April 28 spread, and students quickly oc-cupied five campus buildings. Right days later, 1,000 city poarrested more than 700 persons.

There were nearly 200 in-jured. Some students and faculty, outraged over the use of police force, supported the strike.
Formal classes ended.
Three weeks later, another demonstration was held, to pro-test the suspension of leaders of the earlier protest. Columbia President Grayson Kirk called in the police early the next morning, May 23.

More than 100 arrests were made without incident at first, but rows of helmeted policemen. swept across the campus, Stu-dents tossed bricks. Several policemen were seriously injured and nearly 100 students were

During the summer, the uni-versity administration and trustees, agreed to a series of libertees, agreed to a series of liberalizing moves.

And Kirk, a symbol of intransigence to militant students and many others, retired, raising hopes among some in the school that major change in university policy would follow.

The student critics, however,
say the changes so far do not go far enough. "The university as it exists now really shouldn't be allowed to function," says SDS.

The central question remains:
Will the relatively small band of activists win enough support in the general student body and the faculty, as they did during the spring disorders, to parsiyee
the university snew?

The first planned action took place last Thursday, a demonstration at a meeting of some 700 senior famulty members.

The contract for the 24-unit state-financed project will be signed tomorrow morning at 11 by the low bidder, Alea Construction Co. of Hartford. The cowner of the company Joseph Calciera expressed a desire to start work immediately.

Architects Galliher, Schoen, and Hardt had to revise the plans twice to bring the costs within the amount allotted by the state. It still runs some $20,000 with the bid being $278,000. The state has given approval for the additional funds needed. Present at the groundbreaking ceremonies tomorrow will be representatives of the housing division of the State Department of Community Affairs as well as local town and housing officials.

What Will Test Prove?

It becomes increasingly obvious in the New York City school strike that no one is really in control of the situation and that even a stopgap solution will require infinite patience of everyone involved. New York City's immediate problem is to get the teachers back to work and the schools open for the thousands of youngsters who cannot long afford to be without them.

It also has the long-range problem of setting forth, in terms as clear as possible, what will be the responsibilities of local district governing board in the hiring and firing of teachers and what authorities will rest with the city's Board of Education.

The crux of the present dispute is whether teachers have adequate job protection when the central board's authority over that of the district governing boards, set up as an experiment in deentralization, is cloudy and subject hallenge. An arrangement to reinstate

When the decentralisation plan start-

The present impasse is bad enough when viewed as a kind of nightmarish accidental outcome of a job protection

It is even worse when viewed as a feliberate confrontation. Those who are convinced that the quality of gnetto ednestion depends on control of policies and personnel by people within the locality may have pursued this as a "test."

Such a test is premature in a decentralization experiment in New York City's vast school system. If tests over community control like this persist; the experiment may end up determining how good an education children can get by not going to school. As a matter of fact any such test in any school system could have that re-

The Fireproof Fire What is the worst kind of fire the firemen of today encounter? The answer is a fire in a fireproof This sounds like -and is like -one of the typical tail-lashings our modern inventiveness and our modern progress is always feeling, just about the moment it thinks it has some problem solved. Eventually, of course, the tail-lash problem will be solved.

Momentarily, however, it can be severe enough to make those involved with it wonder whether all the progress which led up to it was worth while, after all. The problem of the fireproof building is that, once a fire does get started in it, the built-in characteristics which are designed to guard against the spread of the fire also complicate the fighting of When a fire does get going, all the solid walls, the solid windows, and the sealed-off stairweils of the modern fireproof building operate not merely to keep the fire from spreading. They also operate to keep its smoke and heat concentrated inside whatever section of the uliding has the fire. And when firemen have no way to let the smoke and heat escape, not even their masks can ally help their bodies stand the extreme high temperatures they encounter. In fact, the penned up heat sometimes comes so intense it buckles floors and cracks walls that might not have been seriously damaged by a more open kind It may also purge your file and give you

Eventually, as we say, the same genius which evolved the fireproof building will also evolve the combination of change in the building and in fire-fighting techsiques which will make it just as easy tinguish a blaze in a fireproof buildng as in any other kind of building. while, there is this momentary stand-off, perhaps a little bit chaster-ing, and challenging, to the progress ego

to develop "ldiot systems" and I have heard of no evidence to suggest any improvement since my own experiences with them. One Christmas time, succumbing to the advertising of an "easy" Christmas gift, I decided to subscribe to a children's magazine with a Philadelphia publishing company. The order was ed for my own children and in a fit of generosity I solved my Christmas gift problems for three other families ometimes see how the situation I shall describe can develop, but they can all be avoided by careful systems design It is just as easy to design a "per-sonalised" information system as to design one that is impersonal and deficient. In July of the following year I received a suggestion that I might do my Christmas shopping early and renew my several subscriptions. But I made two mistakes, the first by changing my address by moving from Calgary to Winnipeg, and the second by renewing my own children's subscriptions but not my "gift" subscriptions all in the same month. Such an unprecedented sequence of events all occurring simultaneously was beyond the sys tems capabilities. In August, Septem requests for renewal. Also in December and at Christmas my boys received a card saying they were to receive a gift subscription from their dad. In January received a bill, which I paid, along with a request for renewal. February produced a notice saying that unless renewed my subscription future copies of the magazine would not be delivered. What Will Test Prove? It becomes increasingly obvious in the New York City school strike that no one is really in control of the situation and that even a stopgap solution will require nfinite patience of everyone involved. ### The Fireproof Fire What is the worst kind of fire the fire-nen of today encounter? The answer is a fire in a fireproof This sounds like -and is like -one of the typical tail-lashings our modern inventiveness and our modern progress is always feeling, just about the moment it thinks it has some problem solved. Eventually, of course, the tail-lash problem will be solved.

Momentarily, however, it can be severe enough to make those involved with it wonder whether all the progress which led up to it was worth while, after all. The problem of the fireproof building is that, once a fire does get started in it, the built-in characteristics which are designed to guard against the spread of the fire also complicate the fighting of When a fire does get going, all the solid walls, the solid windows, and the scaled-off stairwells of the modern fireproof building operate not merely to keep the fire from spreading. They also operate to keep its smoke and heat concentrated inside whatever section of the nullding has the fire. And when firemen have no way to let the smoke and heat escape, not even their masks can eally help their bodies stand the exreme high temperatures they encounter. In fact, the penned up heat sometimes becomes so intense it buckles floors and cracks walls that might not have been seriously damaged by a more open kind diventually, as we say, the same genius which evolved the fireproof building will also evolve the combination of change in the building and in fire-fighting techliques which will make it just as easy extinguish a blaze in a fireproof build ng as in any other kind of building. anwhile, there is this momentary stand-off, perhaps a little bit chastening, and challenging, to the progress ego

It is of concern to me that my profes sion as a designer of computer-based in-formation systems is being undermined by the proliferation of ill-conceived information systems which interact with the public, and create an extremely poor public image. I have outlined here some of the ridiculous things which have hap-pened to me personally in dealing with several North American companies who had implemented computer-based information processing systems.

Publishing companies are very prone to develop "idiot systems" and I have heard of no evidence to suggest any imrovement since my own experiences with them. One Christmas time, suc-cumbing to the advertising of an "easy" Christmas gift, I decided to subscribe to a children's magazine with a Philadelphia publishing company. The order was aced for my own children and in a it of generosity I solved my Christmas gift problems for three other families with whom we exchange gifts. Little did I realize what that simple act would

Being in the systems profession I can sometimes see how the situation I shall describe can develop, but they can al be avoided by careful systems design It is just as easy to design a "per sonalised" information system as to design one that is impersonal and deficlent. In July of the following year I received a suggestion that I might do my Christmas shopping early and re new my several subscriptions. But made two mistakes, the first by chang ing my address by moving from Cal-gary to Winnipeg, and the second by renewing my own children's subscrip tions but not my "gift" subscriptions all in the same month. Such an unprecedented sequence of events all occurring simultaneously was beyond the systems capabilities. In August, September, October, and November I received requests for renewal. Also in December and at Christmas my boys received a card saying they were to receive a gift subscription from their dad. In January I received a bill, which I paid, along with a request for renewal. Februar produced a notice saying that unless of the magazine would not be delivered.

First of all let me stress that these poor systems designs are costing you money. Moreover, they are a distinct affront to your dignity. The answer is not to punch holes in the cards with spiked heels, or crumple the cards in disgust, this only costs you extra money as special procedures have to be carried out to remedy this. One answer is to write to the president of the company,

Another method, if this does not work, is to cancel your subscription (where this is appropriate), obtain a refund, then renew it soon after. Explain your can-cellation reason. If trouble persists repeat the exercise. This does two or three hings. It builds up cancellation statistics, with reasons, which no president ignores. Watching the Detroit pitch—
Indians three at the Orioles and left left hander struck out last two weeks could give a hitter an inferiority complex. But Jim Northrup, Bill Freehan and Willie Horton took care of that little problem in a hurry.

While Mickey Lolich was stretching the Tigers' complete game string to mine with a three-hitter, Northrup and Freeham walloped two homers each and Horton hit one in Detroit's THEERSA'S—

The victory, combined with pitcher since Sept. 4 and Lolich gave the bullpen another day off. The left-hander struck out off. The left-hander struck out 12 and ran his record to 18-9.

It was Lolich's second complete game in the Tiger staff's loss in Boston.

It was Lolich's second complete game in the Tiger staff's string. Denny McLain, who won his 30th game Saturday, has three, Earl Wilson has two and three sach.

Northrup tagged a two-run hits with the Angels packing 10 singles and all their runs into the first inning and Hor to followed with his 36th of the season. Freehan had two-run homers in the third and fifth, a sacrifice fly by Bob Rogers raising his season's total to 24.

THEERSA'S—

The Tigers, who have won six and 19th of the season touched straight, haven't used a relief off a four-run Tiger sixth.

annum from the date of the completion of the work, if not paid by such owner prior thereto, shall be charged to the owner of such property on the next regular tax bill forwarded to such owner of the Town, and said charge shall be due and payable by said owner at the time of payment of such bill d. Recorded Statement Constitutes Lien.

Where the full amount due the Town is not paid by such owner within thirty (30) days after the disposal of such litter, as provided for in subsections a and b above, then, and in that case, the Building Inspector shall cause to be recorded in the Town Clerk's office a sworn statement showing the cost and expense incurred for the work, the date the work was done and the location of the property on which said work was done. The recordation of such sworn statement shall constitute a lien and privilege on the property, and shall remain in full force and effect for the amount due in principal and interest, plus costs of court, if any, for collection, until final payment has been made. Said costs and expenses shall be collected in the manner fixed by law for the collection of taxes per cent (6%) in the event same is not paid in full on or before the date the tax bill upon which said charge appears becomes delinquent. Sworn statements recorded in accordance with the provisions here of shall be prima facie evidence that all legal formalities have been compiled with and that the work has been done properly and satisfactorily, and shall be full notice to every person concerned that the amount of the statement, plus interest, constitutes a charge against the property designated or described in the statement and that the same is due and collectible as provided by law.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in an amount not exceeding twenty ($20,00) dollars. Each day such violation is committed or permitted to continue shall constitute a separate offense and shall be punishable as such hereunder.

If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or por-tion of this Ordinance is for any reason held invalid or un-constitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, such porton shall be deemed a separate, distinct and independent provision and such holding shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions hereof.

Sec. 23. Ordinances Repealed. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict with the provisions of this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

This Ordinance shall take effect ten (10) days after this publication in this newspaper provided that within ten (10) days after this publication of this Ordinance a petition signed by not less than five (6) per cent of the electors of the Town, as determined from the latest official lists of the Registrars of Voters has not been filed with the Town Clerk requesting its reference to a special Town election.

Three stories tall, jeweled by silver bronze carvings, the room is lined with glossy pati-"She will know her greatest fate when she never sails another room is lined with glossy patinaed woods, with a three-story mural titled "Merrie Engiand" (by Phillip Connard), and lovely silver-brass carved doors.

They'll keep all that, and the sturdy, stocky hardwood stairs (but they won't be bolted to the floor as they were when the Queen sailed the rough Atlantic seas), and the polished wooden tables (with little rails around them so dishes wouldn't slide to the diner's laps).

Behind floor doors, in the cavernous galley which will someday be a modern kitchen to serve that main room, another room aft and four restaurants on upper decks, the Queen's original crockery, glass and china is being counted and stored away, some 800,000 pieces of it.
