Liu Dropped By Peking

TOKYO (AP)—The Chinese Communist Central Committee announced today it has kicked President Lin Shao-chi out of all his posts after finding him guilty of crimes that generally spell imprisonment and possibly death.

Israelis Hit Nile Targets Across Canal

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israeli commandos, retaliating against recent Egyptian attacks, crossed the Suez Canal and penetrated 125 miles into Egypt Thursday night to bomb two Nile bridges and a power station, the Israeli army announced.

The daring raid came five days after 15 Israeli troops were killed and 34 wounded in a battle across the canal which U.N. observers reported was started by Egypt. Israel claimed that at one point Egyptian commandos crossed the canal and engaged the Israelis, and made vain attempts to cross at two other points.

The Egyptian army claimed that an Israeli plane had carried out the Nile raid and said one civilian was killed and two wounded. Israel sources scoffed at the Egyptian explanation, saying President Gamal Abdel committee, meeting in Peking Oct. 13-31.

The conference—first since party chairman Mao Tse-tung moved against Liu in August, 1966 with his cultural revolution—gave Mao a renewed vote of confidence and promised to "continue to settle accounts" with Liu and his accomplices.

Attended by members and alternate members of the committee, leaders of the cultural purge group, delegates from revolutionary committees and chiefs of the army, the conference apparently was able to muster the required two-thirds vote needed to oust Liu from the party.

The report on the committee's action was strangely silent, however, on the fate of party general secretary Teng Hsiao-ping—often described as Liu's chief aide. Peng was mentioned neither by name nor by inference.

Officially singling out Liu by name for the first time since the intensified campaign against him began in 1966, a communique failed, however, to indicate whether the 70-year-old chief of state is free at the present time or under arrest.

Liu replaced Mao as president in 1959 and, the Maoists charged, embarked on a campaign of liberalization that threatened the existence of Chinese Communism. The communique said the Central Committee had voted to expel Liu from the party and "dismiss him from all his posts both inside and outside it."

Mao presided over the session and made "a most important speech," followed by one by his heir apparent, Defense Minister Lin Biao, the agency added.

But May Come Too Late

Halt Aids HHH, Strategists Feel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic and Republican strategists agreed, at least privately, today that the decision to halt bombing of North Vietnam gave Hubert H. Humphrey's presidential campaign a lift.

But few were willing to hazard a guess on whether the lift was enough—or in time—to put Humphrey over the top Tuesday against Republican Richard M. Nixon.

This was the second and biggest boost of the closing days for Humphrey's late surging campaign.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, whose legions of antiwar followers had deserted the Democratic cause in droves after their champion was defeated for the party's nomination, endorsed the vice president Tuesday.

President Johnson's anouncement of the bombing halt over nationwide television and radio Thursday night could serve as a sort of one-two punch, removing a major reason for antiwar voters refusing to tip the Democratic lever Tuesday or perhaps ignoring the election altogether.

Only one thing appeared certain: That unless the North Vietnamese reject Johnson's test of "good faith" with a major military action before Tuesday, each voter will cast his ballot with the knowledge a glimmer of peace in Vietnam has been offered.

President Johnson couched his announcement that he is stopping the limited bombing with the cautious report that "progress has come" at long last in the Paris peace talks.

Candidates Won't 'Seek Advantage'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The presidential candidates indicate it will be politics as usual and say they won't seek political advantage from President Johnson's order to halt the bombing of North Vietnam.

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, who, as Johnson's vice president, has borne severe criticism for the war policies, said Thursday night: "This is going to help people. I don't think it has much to do with candidates as such."

Said Republican Richard M. Nixon: "As a presidential candidate—and my vice-presidential running mate joins me in this—neither he nor I will say anything that might destroy the chance to have peace. I hope and pray that whatever the President or whatever those in Paris do is successful," said American Independent

George C. Wallace. "I am more interested in the conclusion of this war honorably and the bringing of the American servicemen home than I am anything else I can think of."

Johnson, who has kept the candidates briefed ever since the campaign started, informed all of them of his decision in a conference phone call two hours before his prerecorded address was aired to the nation.

Wallace's running mate, Curtis E. LeMay, declined comment on Johnson's statement, although he had said earlier in the day he feared a bombing halt would be politically motivated.

"I think they might make some small concessions hoping that it will help the present administration politically, which

Bombardment Ends in North But War Goes On in South

SAIGON (AP)—American air, naval and artillery bombardment of all of North Vietnam ended tonight on President Johnson's orders, the U.S. Command announced, but it said there would be no letup in operations in South Vietnam.

The Viet Cong also showed no sign of de-escalation in the South. In the 12 hours before President Johnson's broadcast announcing the bombing halt, an enemy mine blew holes in a U.S. Navy LST and killed 16 American sailors and a South Vietnamese, rocket attacks killed 33 Vietnamese civilians in Saigon and Hue, and 69 North Vietnamese and 12 Americans were killed in fighting north of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

American warplanes continued raids on North Vietnam's southern panhandle today but were ordered to quit the skies north of the demilitarized zone before 9 p.m., or 8 a.m. EST, the hour Johnson set for all attacks on North Vietnam to be halted.

The U.S. Command said operational reports on the final raids would not be available until Saturday, and it was not immediately known if any bombers were lost during the final day.

The orders to halt the bombing by 9 p.m. were sent down the military chain of command an hour after Johnson broadcast his decision.

Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander of American forces in the Pacific, announced from his Honolulu headquarters 12 hours before the deadline.

"As a result of instructions received from the President, orders have been issued halting all bombing in North Vietnam effective 9 p.m., November 1, Saigon time. Pacific Command forces are now in the process of carrying out these instructions. Every member of this command will act in consonance with the President's orders and his desires to seek peaceful solutions to the war in Vietnam."

A spokesman for the U.S. Command in Saigon said: "The President's statement describes the extent of change in our military activities. Operations in the South will continue on the current basis."

He said all American troops that had been operating in the southern half of the demilitarized zone had been pulled back into South Vietnam about a week ago. Asked if they would be moving back into the DMZ, he replied, "No comment."

Four hours before the President's broadcast, explosions tore open the side of the 384-foot LST Westchester County as she swung at anchor in the My Tho River 34 miles southwest of Saigon. The blasts ripped into the landing craft's sleeping compartment, killing or wounding most of the men as they slept. Other sailors were killed at their watch stations.

In addition to the 17 known dead, 22 Americans were wounded, and seven Americans and one Vietnamese army interpreter were missing. Some of the latter were believed trapped in two compartments that were flooded.

"It is almost definite that the damage was caused by an underwater explosive device," said Capt. Robert S. Salzer of Falls Church, Va., commander of Navy forces with the Army-Navy Mobile Riverine Force.

A Navy spokesman said the LST suffered major damage but was reported in no danger of sinking.

Little more than two hours before President Johnson's broadcast, Viet Cong gunners slammed a 100-pound rocket into a small Roman Catholic Church in the Saigon dock area, killed 30 worshippers and wounded 84. The big Russian missile sent large chunks of the walls and roof into the congregation as early Mass was nearing its end.

NLF Joining Paris Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three years and nine months after he started the bombing of North Vietnam, President Johnson has ordered an end to all attacks against that country in the hope that this will "lead to progress" in ending the war in Southeast Asia.

Announcing his decision Thursday night, Johnson said he acted with the full support of his military chiefs and diplomatic officials, with the agreement of South Vietnam, and upon "confirmation" from North Vietnam of "the essential understanding" of U.S. terms for his action.

The Johnson order injected a dramatic new element into the presidential election contest less than a week before the voters go to the polls.

Political observers said it could give a lift to Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign, although it might have come too late to make much difference in voter opinion.

Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon, third party candidate George C. Wallace, and Humphrey all said after Johnson's television-radio broadcast they hoped the step would mean progress in the Paris peace talks.

Johnson had notified all of them of his decision about 6 p.m., two hours before he went on the air.

Johnson himself, obviously aware of speculation that he might time a bombing halt to help Humphrey, declared that the action was determined by responses from North Vietnam to his terms.

He said these began developing Sunday night and continued through Monday.

A round of consultations within the government and with South Vietnam followed, and he made the final decision to order that "all air, naval, and artillery bombardment of North Vietnam cease as of 8:00 a.m., Washington time, Friday morning."

Informants said North Vietnam was officially notified of the decision.

Johnson warned that his arrangements with North Vietnam are not foolproof and he held open by implication the possibility the bombing would be resumed if the North Vietnamese went on the offensive.

"We could be misled—and we are prepared for such a contingency," he said. "We pray to God it does not occur."

Johnson started the bombing of North Vietnam Feb. 7, 1966. At the heart of the deal he made to bring it to an end is an agreement that the Paris peace talks will enter a new phase next Wednesday.

At that time representatives of both the South Vietnamese government and its enemy, the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam, take their places at the negotiating table.

The President did not say specifically why he thought the North Vietnamese had finally decided to make terms on ending the bombing, but he suggested that they might have acted because they no longer saw a chance of victory in South Vietnam.

He said the Saigon government had "grown steadily stronger" that South Vietnam's army was increased to a million men, and that U.S. troops under Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, Jr., and his predecessor, Gen. William C. Westmoreland have "produced truly remarkable results."

"Perhaps some, or all, of these factors, played a part in bringing about progress in the (Paris) talks," Johnson said. Serious negotiations on the bombing issue began during the second week in October after the North Vietnamese in Paris began to ask direct and obviously interested questions about what Johnson had in mind.

Johnson said the decision was "very meaningful, very hopeful" and added, "Peace is closer tonight—thank God!"

Third-party candidate George C. Wallace said, "I hope and pray" that the halt will bring an early and honorable peace in Southeast Asia "so we can bring the American servicemen home."

Congressional doves saw the halt as the opening of a path to peace which hawks questioned stopping the bombing without specific assurances on reciprocal action from North Vietnam.

Sen. John M. Stennis, D-Miss., ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee, said, "We should be able to judge their good intentions within two days, and unless this is shown, I think we should resume and step up the bombing."

Stennis added, "I am inclined to doubt that there is any real change of position by North Vietnam."

On the other hand, three of the leading Democrats who had opposed administration Vietnam policy expressed pleasure over the move. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas and George S. McGovern of South Dakota all said the halt probably would speed peace talks.

Fulbright, who as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations

Archives of American Art Film Nation's Art History

By Miles A. Emitt
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The Archives of American Art have captured on a few thousand rolls of microfilm a whole mountain of material on art and artists in America—and the mountain keeps growing.

There's a letter by colonial artist John Singleton Copley, giving his recipe for paint.

How does a researcher go about using the materials? "Suppose he is interested in a contemporary artist Ben Shahn," says Wolfenden. "In our card index he will find general entries under the name. 'We have six reels of film—about 6,000 items—of Shahn's own papers, including letters, clippings and photographs. Other kinds of records include all kinds of written records—news, societies and institutions.

"Our collections are changing so rapidly we cannot keep up with them," said William E. Wolfenden, director of the Archives, in a recent interview.

One project which was recently completed was to film every art auction catalog issued in America since the first one in 1786," he says, "and now we are completing a file of American art exhibition catalogs."

Some documents are donated to the Archives, others are loaned temporarily. All are put on film. The donated items are kept in storage and art researchers work from the film.

The Detroit headquarters has a research center from the beginning. A New York branch was established as a collecting point in 1960, but now has become a second research center through the installation of a duplicate set of microfilm.

The materials are not available to the general public, but to "anyone with a serious interest in art in America," says Wolfenden. This includes faculty members, graduate students, museum curators, dealers, collectors and free-lance writers.

Clifford said the inability of the Communist to "achieve military success" as well as the situation at the Paris negotiations led the United States "to not attempt to take advantage of this bombing halt."

But Clifford declared that "the American people can be sure that we will allow nothing to increase the jeopardy of our military and those of our allies."

Clifford Says Halt Supported By Joint Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford says he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff supported President Johnson's halt of the bombing of North Vietnam as a "perfectly acceptable military risk."

The defense chief said Thursday night he "strongly recommended to the President that he make this further move toward peace in Vietnam."

"The American people should know," Clifford said, "that in taking this action, the President had the full support not only of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but of the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

Clifford said the inability of the Communist to "achieve military success" as well as the situation at the Paris negotiations led the United States "to not attempt to take advantage of this bombing halt."

Two Sides of Controversy: Fathers in Delivery Room?

EDITOR'S NOTE: July Jackson, Detroit News staff writer, took a look at the controversial matter of the presence of fathers in the delivery room during the birth of a child and decided there are two sides to this interesting story. Here are both.

NEW YORK (AP) — "We had a baby," the husband proudly announced. He feels that he, too, had an important role because he was in the delivery room for the birth of his child.

"I saw the delivery," Stuart Trager will add casually when talking about his second child, Danny.

"And now he's more a proponent than I," says his wife Bina, who was the one originally interested in natural childbirth and in having her husband present for the delivery.

All the fathers who talked with who had watched the deliveries of their babies had attended local Childbirth Education Association classes and had seen the film on natural childbirth. But as Trager says, "There's quite a difference between the film and the real thing, especially when it's your wife."

Most of those who wish their husbands to be in the delivery room feel that both the man and woman created the child, hence they should share his birth.

However, the practice of allowing fathers into delivery rooms still isn't widely accepted in the medical profession. Some states have laws prohibiting it.

Although Michigan has no such law and the Detroit Health Commission leaves that policy up to the individual hospital, few Detroit area hospitals allow it.

Even if the hospital gives permission, both the obstetrician and expectant mother must grant permission too.

Mr. Peter Hummel, a registered nurse and head of Detroit's chapter of the International Childbirth Education Association, thinks that the practice will be accepted more widely here when more doctors have seen it in operation.

Chester E. Pearson, associate administrator of South Macomb Hospital, where fathers have been allowed in the delivery rooms without fanfare since it opened in March 1964, explains his hospital's stand.

"It's our policy to work with the family and physician as much as possible. If both decide it's a good idea, we let the husband into the delivery room."

It is also understood when a man enters the delivery room that he must leave immediately if asked to do so. "We'll back the doctor right down the line," Pearson adds.

As Dr. Thomas N. Evans, professor and chairman of gynecology and obstetrics at Wayne State University School of Medicine, explains, "Generally, a doctor needs the freedom to do what must be done without worrying about a visitor, even a father," he says.

"You can never predict what an individual father will do. Will you hold his hand?" asks Dr. Ethelene J. Crockett, who recently was named director of the maternal and infant clinic at Crittenton Hospital.

"A hospital delivery isn't the same as a home delivery where everything but that experience is familiar. All the procedures, people and instruments are new to the father, and it's too much to be absorbed at once, especially under the strain."

"If there ever was a place where you can have unexpected emergencies, it's the delivery room," she continues. "And they crop up fast. We don't need any unqualified hands in the delivery room."

Avoiding contamination is another reason. "Society demands that delivery rooms be as aseptic as an operating room," Dr. Crockett says. "This is one of the reasons we've been able to cut down on maternity deaths."

Fewer doctors would object to a father's presence if delivery rooms were equipped with glassed-off partitions from which visitors might watch, she adds.

Even though most fathers have some orientation, such as the films and lectures in natural childbirth classes, some aren't prepared for the actual experience, according to doctors.

As one obstetrician says, "A man wouldn't watch his wife's appendectomy, so why should he want to see a birth?"

Criticism of the policy also notes the likelihood of an increase in malpractice suits. "There have been cases that resulted from the presence of any visitors," Dr. Stevenson says. "and a father would be overly critical."

Dr. Thomas N. Evans, professor and chairman of the department of gynecology and obstetrics at Wayne State University School of Medicine, is in favor of allowing fathers to attend their children's births in selected cases in delivery rooms. "The Detroit Health Department leaves this policy up to the individual hospital. All but five hospitals have fathers in the delivery rooms."

Although Michigan has no such law and the Detroit Health Commission leaves that policy up to the individual hospital, few Detroit area hospitals allow it.

Even if the hospital gives permission, both the obstetrician and expectant mother must grant permission too.

Mr. Peter Hummel, a registered nurse and head of Detroit's chapter of the International Childbirth Education Association, thinks that the practice will be accepted more widely here when more doctors have seen it in operation.

Chester E. Pearson, associate administrator of South Macomb Hospital, where fathers have been allowed in the delivery rooms without fanfare since it opened in March 1964, explains his hospital's stand.

"It's our policy to work with the family and physician as much as possible. If both decide it's a good idea, we let the husband into the delivery room."

It is also understood when a man enters the delivery room that he must leave immediately if asked to do so. "We'll back the doctor right down the line," Pearson adds.

As Dr. Thomas N. Evans, professor and chairman of gynecology and obstetrics at Wayne State University School of Medicine, explains, "Generally, a doctor needs the freedom to do what must be done without worrying about a visitor, even a father," he says.

"You can never predict what an individual father will do. Will you hold his hand?" asks Dr. Ethelene J. Crockett, who recently was named director of the maternal and infant clinic at Crittenton Hospital.

"A hospital delivery isn't the same as a home delivery where everything but that experience is familiar. All the procedures, people and instruments are new to the father, and it's too much to be absorbed at once, especially under the strain."

Almost Forgotten Laos War Seen Snag in Peace Efforts

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Special Correspondent The almost forgotten war next door in Laos, once supposed to be settled by agreement with the Communist side, still poses on and on a present and future snag in efforts toward peace by negotiation in Indochina.

"That other war in Laos, in some ways more complex and confusing than the one in Vietnam, presented a sticky international crisis in 1961-62. The United States chose negotiation as the least dangerous of a set of alternatives."

Laos serves as a reminder that settlements negotiated with the Communists are not necessarily lasting. Laos' population is only 2.3 million but its location is strategically important to South Asia's future. The little kingdom's geography thrust it to the center of the world stage.

France in 1963 recognized Laos as a sovereign kingdom within the French Union at a time when the French were still fighting a bitter war over their vanishing Vietnam colony near the capital to overt civil war. France in 1963 recognized Laos as a sovereign kingdom within the French Union at a time when the French were still fighting a bitter war over their vanishing Vietnam colony near the capital to overt civil war.

Fourteen nations, including Russia, the United States and Red China, registered more than 100,000 signatures in support of a coalition government for Laos of conservative Communists and neutralists. The United States and Red China, registered more than 100,000 signatures in support of a coalition government for Laos of conservative Communists and neutralists.

A pro-Western regime ruled Laos until mid-1960. Then a neutralist coup seted Vietnam, the capital. To overt civil war. France in 1963 recognized Laos as a sovereign kingdom within the French Union at a time when the French were still fighting a bitter war over their vanishing Vietnam colony near the capital to overt civil war.

Should there now be movement toward a Vietnam settlement, the United States would face another set of alternatives. It might support a return to the three-way coalition. It might seek general elections, even Communist participation, or it could let Laos' future be settled by yet more war.

North Vietnam's Communists have indicated they felt themselves in a commanding position regarding Laos' future. They would be unlikely to want to surrender what they consider their advance base. This would make negotiation of either of the first two alternatives extremely difficult.

But unless a peaceful solution is found, the fighting likely will continue in Laos, vastly complicating any effort to bring about a meaningful settlement for Vietnam.

Goal Is Speed, Accuracy Citizens, Computer System Will Report U.S. Election

NEW YORK (AP)—The vote throughout the United States Tuesday night will be reported by an army of reporters and a sophisticated computer system. The job will be done by the News Election Service with a goal of speed and accuracy—the emphasis on accuracy.

As the polls close the vote will be speed within minutes from precinct to collecting center to NES computer center in New York to the news services and radio and television networks.

When the voting is completed, for example, in Virginia at 7 p.m. EST, waiting for the results at the Horsepasture precinct in Henry County will be sophisticated computer systems. He will walk—perhaps run—to the nearest telephone and tell the operator, "This is an election call" and give her the number of one of seven regional collection centers in each of the states away an operator will answer. "NES, only. Go ahead, please."

If Newsmen can get to a telephone set that enough he will be able to use his totals posted. More than likely, the totals will be in the offices of newspapers, radio and television stations before Newsmen can get home.

Newsmen is one of 125,000 citizens recruited by NES for election night duty. Most are members of civic groups, church members, business leaders, women and even polling place officials. They will report directly to NES or to local collection pools which cooperate with NES in all 50 states.

NES tabulates this stream of thousands of precinct reports into totals for president, Senate, governor and U.S. representatives in every state, every county, which compute intensity of each state and each of the 435 in that field.

The entire NES operation is headed by J. Richard Eimers, executive director. Eimers took over direction of NES in 1965, leaving his post as Associated Press bureau chief in Baltimore. He had previously been AP bureau chief in Portland, Ore., where he was NES state manager in 1964.

The NES tabulation system produces only factual reports. It offers no analysis or interpretation. That is done by the news, which compute intensity of each state and each of the 435 in that field.

Another team of reporters contributing to the NES system is smaller but even more important. These are the 4,000 county reporters made up mostly of working newsmen and county officials. They report the totals of their counties, or in New England, cities and towns.

Their totals are compared throughout the evening with the precinct totals as an accuracy check and their final reports are the standard for complete returns.

To Manchester Property Owners And Manchester Taxpayers

If the Taxpayers of Manchester think they have heard anything, they ought to take a good look at Question 3 — whereby they will be asked to float a Bond Issue of $112,000.00 to buy among other things — we are told, includes footballs, baseballs, basketballs, bows and arrows and many other sports equipment. We are not against our students having this sports equipment, but it is beyond our comprehension that we should borrow money on a bond issue for these items! These items certainly should be bought on a pay-as-you-go basis! Mr. Wiggin, we are told, presented the request for a Bond Issue of $112,000.00. $7,600.00 would be used for providing individual lockers equipped with combination locks. We can not find out how many individuals would get lockers; anyway $7,600.00 is a lot of money to be spent for lockers, when it is reported that the roofs of some of our schools are leaking! The crowning item in this request is based upon the statement that for 13 years NO EQUIPMENT OF CONSEQUENCE has been purchased, so $66,000 is requested. During these 13 years, the taxpayers of Manchester have appropriated OVER 60 MILLION FOR EDUCATION! If physical education is an important part of education, and we grant that it is — how come that of the sixty million dollars, no equipment of consequence was purchased? Of course, Mr. Wiggin has only been in Manchester about three years. This Question 3 on the voting machine is loaded with non-essential items and should be voted down, as it was in the last referendum. VOTE NO ON QUESTION 3! He is asking for the taxpayers to approve of borrowing $112,000.00 on a Bond Issue, and he expects to get a blank check on spending the money, just as he sees fit—and the Taxpayer cannot do a thing about it—if they vote to give him the money!

Over the weekend two propaganda sheets were distributed in Manchester; one of them contains a part of a newspaper clipping headed "Heating System Trouble Closes Bennet For a Day." The clipping points out that "trouble" with the heating plant caused the cancellation. The propaganda sheet infers that because of this trouble, we should have a new heating plant. THE REAL TROUBLE WAS THAT A VALVE WAS ACCIDENTALLY LEFT OPEN! Not long ago, all of the Northeast United States was blacked out because of a malfunction of a circuit breaker out near Niagara Falls. Accidents will happen, but the Electric Companies of New England are not going to replace everything... many times during winter storms, our schools are closed for a day. The propaganda sheets did not recommend that something be done to stop the snow. The Manchester Property Owners Association realize that it is important to have our schools operational as far as possible, and are therefore RECOMMENDING A YES VOTE ON QUESTION 2—however, we believe that the estimate of $568,000.00 need not all be spent, as this estimate is based on a study made 10 YEARS AGO, and increased by 33 1/3 per cent to supposedly bring it up to date. While we do recommend a yes vote on Question 2, we pledge to the Taxpayers of Manchester, that none of the $568,000.00 will be spent unwisely—if it is possible to stop it! We repeat, that we also urge a NO VOTE ON QUESTIONS 1 AND 3 for the reasons already given. Mr. Wiggin, alongside his photo as Director of Physical Education — asks this question in the propaganda sheet: "Did you know that since 1953 only $965.00 has been spent on Physical Education?" We would like to pose another question: Did you know that $51,000.00 was approved for this year alone to take our teachers from their classes during school hours, and take them down to the Nature Center on Oak Grove St. to "learn about the outdoors?" This $61,000.00 is supposed to be FREE Money from Washington. Why didn't Mr. Wiggin point out that Physical Education equipment was needed more than teaching the teachers about the outdoors!!!

Status Symbols Vary with Time And Location

By Vivian Brown AP News Service Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Interior designers are the first to spot status symbols in the home of their clients.

In Cleveland, status means original paintings and sculpture, says C. James Hewlett, president of the National Society of Interior Designers.

"People interested in status are collecting not only paintings and sculpture, but porcelain, glass, antique rugs and choice furniture items," he says.

In Los Angeles, the home, rather than automobile or yacht, has returned as a status symbol, says Charles Stillinger, another N.S.I.D. member.

'Most Influential Men in Country' Tuesday to Thursday Club, Name Given 'House' Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tuesday to Thursday Club has a list of 50 of the nation's most influential men in the country, all of whom have incomes of at least $50,000 a year.

The Tuesday to Thursday Club is the mocking group of those members of the House of Representatives who take full advantage of the fact that the House rarely conducts major legislative business on Mondays, hardly ever meets on Fridays and never, except in really exceptional circumstances, on Saturdays.

There is no easier way to start an argument among a group of congressmen than to mention the club. Its critics come mainly from two groups: those who are presiding for a thoroughgoing revision of House customs and procedures and those whose districts are so far from Washington that even the lure of a four-day weekend has to be balanced against the time and cost of travel.

Hardly anyone, though, attributes congressional absenteeism — of which the brief work schedule is only one symptom — to just plain laziness.

Two factors are mentioned over and over again: The House for only two-year terms, members must campaign almost continuously for reelection.

Congressional seasons now run almost the year around; historically, special sessions have been held only once a year, and that only in the case of a presidential veto.

However, Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okl., who is the majority leader, has been mainly responsible for the scheduling of legislative business since the passage of private affairs is not a very important consideration.

"Of course, it's the need to get back to the district for campaigning, or just to keep in touch with constituents' needs and feelings that accounts for the trips away," Albert said in an interview.

"It is possible to schedule minor legislation on Monday, major legislation on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and not meet on Friday and Saturday unless it is necessary, there's nothing really wrong with the arrangement," he continued.

He said the House keeps up with its committee, handling bills in reasonable time after the committee put them in shape — but the committees often are handicapped by tardy arrival of the executive branch's recommendations and position papers.

"Congress gets some undervalued blame," he said. "If we don't get the executive papers until March or April, we start off that far behind."

Committee schedules pretty much follow that of the House, Albert doesn't believe a longer congressional work week would speed up committee work. "I don't think Friday meetings would keep committee members here."

The founding fathers didn't conceive of a congressman's job as a full-time one, and for about a century and a half, it wasn't. The early congresses set a pattern of alternating long and short sessions — four or five months one year, three or four the next. Slowly, the long sessions stretched out to about eight months, while the others stayed short. There was some stretch-out during the bustling New Deal years of the 1930's and then World War II brought in year-around sessions.

But the July 31 deadline has been met only twice in the succeeding 22 years. For the past seven years Congress has never adjourned earlier than Oct. 15, and then World War II brought in year-around sessions.

Congress enacted the last comprehensive reorganization law in 1946. It provided, among other things, for adjournment by July 31 each year except in case of war, national emergency or similar urgency.

"Sloppy scheduling," said Rep. James C. Cleveland, R-Ohio, argued that a year-around session adjustment would force Congress to handle organization and procedures. It is bipartisan, but Republicans were most vocal in the unsuccessful effort to bring it to a House vote this year.

The bill would restate in stronger terms the requirement for July 31 adjournment except in times of crisis.

Hartford Teachers Set Up Picket Lines

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Association, which claims it represents Hartford public school teachers, set up picket lines today, signaling the start of a strike despite a court injunction under which they face fines of $1,000 each.

The decision to strike was made Thursday by members of the Hartford Federation of Teachers (HFT), official bargaining agent for the teachers with about 800 members, to submit a list of contract issues so mediation can begin. State-mediated bargaining can start the day after he receives their replies.

Robb who is on duty in Vietnam, came to the White House from Bethesda Naval Hospital where the baby was born last week.

association would support a strike if mediation fails. Federation president Arthur Brouillette told the teachers his little teachers from striking over wages, reportedly one of the issues in earlier bargaining.

Temporary injunction was obtained by the school board from Judge James McGrath of the Superior Court on the charge that the federation "has been making arrangements" for a work stoppage without any consideration of mediation. State law prohibits the teachers from striking over wages, reportedly one of the issues in earlier bargaining.

Copper Orders Fewer

WASHINGTON — Partly because of a long strike, copper kept only 82 per cent of its order in 1967, as compared with 1968. Consumption fell from 2.86 billion pounds in 1966 to 2.79 billion pounds last year.

Yes, Reluctantly, On School Bonds

The people of Manchester, and The Manchester Herald, have a constant desire of being supported with their advocacy and their votes, the construction and improvement of buildings and equipment for Manchester's educational system.

Three educational capital expenditure proposals will be on our voting machines next Tuesday. Both The Herald and some of the people of Manchester find these three proposals involve troublesome questions of principle, and, were it not for the fact that children sometimes seem more important than principle, might have some inclination to oppose them.

The first proposal authorizes bonding up to $1,000,000 for the construction and equipment of the "Center Springs Elementary School."

There isn't the slightest question about the need for facilities to replace those of Lincoln School.

There is some question whether the site for the new school has to be taken out of the town's existing park land. The sad thing is that if we try to hold to the principle that existing park lands should be protected, we will inevitably delay the provision of the new facilities so urgently necessary.

The decision, here, is that we ought to go along with the existing plans, even if we think they are wrong with regard to site, in order to get the new facilities in existence in time. We hope we can feel the same way and make the same decision.

The second item on the voting machines Tuesday will authorize bonding up to $500,000, to finance modernizing of the heating plants at Bennett Junior High and Nathan Hale Schools, and to install electronic boiler controls in Ewers, Highland Park, Robertson, Verplanck and Waddell Schools.

The third item on the voting machines Tuesday will authorize bonding up to $12,000 for the purchase of equipment for the physical education program, and to finance improvements in the language laboratory at the high school.

Questions 2 and 3 represent, again, improvements everybody should want to make in the present school plant and equipment.

There is, once again, however, a question of principle in getting across the main issue. In this case, the principle is that by which the town and its voters have repeatedly refused to permit the issuance of bonds for purposes which might more properly be considered the direct responsibility of present tax rates and present day taxpayers.

Here, once again however, the voters are being asked to authorize the town to borrow money for purposes which might properly be classified as the responsibility of the present tax rates and present day taxpayers.

We are all supposed to forget about the principle, in these instances, because it happens to be our children, involved. The proof of the need for these improvements, these upkeep and maintenance and equipment items, is overwhelming. This is the way to get them, or get them done, now. Which is more important, getting these things to the children, or haggling over the principles that ought to govern town policy?

We have an idea that principles may really be more important than we yield to the pressure of the need, and to the easiest, quickest way of meeting it, and we hope, after the voters have approved these three questions, our town boards will be grateful enough to promise not to put the voters in such a bind between the principles of good government and the needs of children again.

Another Worst For 1968?

There is little real hurry about breaking the bad news, for it will be, of course, some little time before the product begins to reach us. But our tongues had better begin preparing themselves;

There was too much rain and too little sunshine in the vineyards of France and Germany this summer of 1968; this may have the distinction of being classified as the worst vintage year in all wine history.

To the proper connoisseur, much of this 1968 product will probably be undrinkable.

What that will mean, in practical effect, is that the world's supply of potable wine has now been conserved, and that the possible or excellent vintages of preceding years are now the more to be prized, in the marketplace and on the table.

What interests us however, is not so much the plight of the connoisseurs of fine wines as it is the disclosure of one more area of lack of distinction for the year 1968. No year can be all that bad. There must be going to be something good about 1968!

Split-Level Nixon

Two Richard Nixons have been campaigning for President this fall. Or more precisely, one Richard Nixon has been campaigning on two levels.

And that's too bad. For while the high-level Mr. Nixon has been creating an impression that could undermine or at least complicate that task.

Mr. Nixon is, as always, more quickly criticized by the press than are most candidates. This may be a hangover from the swarming of news stories about the people of Manchester find these three proposals involve troublesome questions of principle, and, were it not for the fact that children sometimes seem more important than principle, might have some inclination to oppose them.

Whatever the reason, Mr. Nixon is bitterly berated for actions or omissions, errors or omissions that might be shrugged off or mildly giggled in a more sympathetic candidate. Consider, for instance, the complaint that he has spent the entire campaign talking in platitudes and generalizations, and that he knows where he stands on major issues.

Actually, if the editor were interested and willing to take the time, it could easily discover his stands on a vast variety of subjects—at least as many as the people of Manchester find these three proposals involve troublesome questions of principle, and, were it not for the fact that children sometimes seem more important than principle, might have some inclination to oppose them.

It is against the other Nixon—the one who is the candidate for the office of Vice President—that the editor is claiming meaningless assertions at party rallies in shopping centers and high school gymnasiums that charge about platitudes and answer-free arguments rests with more justification.

These speeches, particularly those of the last weeks, have not been everyday attacks on the "im" and routine appeals to get out there and vote for the Grand Old Party, but harsh and strident efforts to capitalize on deep-seated discontent and frustration.

This is the Richard Nixon who tells a whistle-stop rally in Des Moines, Iowa, in the 40 minutes since his train left Lima, one murder, two rapes and 45 minutes of ranting and raving about the "im" and routine appeals to get out there and vote for the Grand Old Party, but harsh and strident efforts to capitalize on deep-seated discontent and frustration.

Inside Report

by Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

EN ROUTE WITH NIXON — The first faint case of stomach-butterflies has now penetrated the surging confidence that has been rocking Richard M. Nixon toward the White House ever since the Democrats' free-for-all in Chicago two months ago.

The former Vice President was closed in his suite on the 25th floor of Detroit's Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel until well after midnight on Monday (Oct. 28) dictating notes to a handful of his top speechwriters for a series of major speeches he delivered over nationwide radio last night (Wednesday).

The subject: A demand that Vice President Humphrey resign as a Democratic presidential elector to support the popular winner in the Nov. 5 election, thereby eliminating any chance of a deadlock in the Electoral College that could lead to a dangerous Constitutional crisis.

Nixon intimates he is speaking as a political play to exploit Humphrey's insistence that if the Electoral College deadlocks, the election should be settled in the House as provided in the Constitution.

These speeches, particularly those of the last weeks, have not been everyday attacks on the "im" and routine appeals to get out there and vote for the Grand Old Party, but harsh and strident efforts to capitalize on deep-seated discontent and frustration.

This is the Richard Nixon who tells a whistle-stop rally in Des Moines, Iowa, in the 40 minutes since his train left Lima, one murder, two rapes and 45 minutes of ranting and raving about the "im" and routine appeals to get out there and vote for the Grand Old Party, but harsh and strident efforts to capitalize on deep-seated discontent and frustration.

Open Forum

— Unlike Some Candidates —

To the Editor, The voters of the 19th Assembly District have the opportunity of electing one of the hardest working and most conscientious legislators presently serving in the General Assembly. Bob Stavinisky has dedicated himself to serving the best interests of his constituents in the legislature.

Unlike some candidates, he does not support to have a simple cure-all solution to all of the problems existing in our state. However, he does pledge to bring to his office a dedicated and sincere effort to continue to work toward the solution of our problems.

Those who witnessed him at the recent League of Women Voters forum were impressed by his honest and sincere approach to the issues. For continued capable representation, I urge the electors in the 19th District to cast their vote for Bob Stavinisky.

Very truly yours, Mrs. Wella C. Dennison

The True O'Neill Record To the Editor, We in the small towns that make up the 52nd Legislative District who read your paper rely on your editors to check the items that concern us for accuracy. I am reasonably certain that in your issue, Mr. O'Neill's accuracy of statements, published by you, made by State Representative William O'Neill's opponent opposing Mr. Pannos.

You published the "fact" that Mr. O'Neill voted "no" on three bills in the last Legislature that benefited the people of the district. The truth, as you must now be aware, is that the record shows he voted "yes" on all three bills. Mr. O'Neill did vote "no" on an amendment to the bill after the voters in the district, meeting in his factories, shopping areas, and at computer tracks on their way to and from work.

Had your editors checked the record or even phoned Mr. O'Neill I feel sure they would not have published this misinformation. While I feel it important for any aspirant for public office to avoid distortion of fact, no matter how heated a campaign, I feel it far more important for The Herald to avoid lending space to an article that misrepresents the electorate.

I hope you will appreciate this well intended reminder that you have a responsibility of any good newspaper to check out their information in order to avoid errors that can be harmful to the success of this process.

Sincerely, Bertram L. Bisantz East Hampton, Conn.

"Has His Own Mind" To the Editor, I was very interested in the idea set forth by Mr. Charles Boggett in the recent "Meet the Candidates" night. He felt that there should be two separate bills for the Board of Education: One for educational matters, and one for maintenance.

This would mean an end to the taking of money from maintenance accounts to fill out others, such as salaries, etc. There would be no more robbing Peter to pay Paul, or perhaps maintenance of schools should be handled by the Department of Public Works.

Mr. Boggett was also the only candidate who was enough of a gentleman to congratulate his opponent for waging a clean campaign. Judging from his past voting record as a member of the Board of Education, Mr. Boggett has his own mind and follows the dictates of his own conscience. Very truly yours, Henry Becker

"Ed May Is That Man" To the Editor, Edwin H. May Jr. deserves the support of all voters in his campaign for the U.S. Senate. He has visited nearly all of the voters in Channahon, meeting in his factories, shopping areas, and at computer tracks on their way to and from work.

Every place he goes, he speaks out on the issues: Crime and violence in our streets, the war in Vietnam, government spending, and gun registration, to name a few. He has made his position clear, and what he wants is what every citizen wants—a restoration of law and order, an honorable end to the war, and less government spending and control.

Ed May is a personal friend of mine. He is in Congress together when Ed was in Congress and Mr. Nixon was Vice President. Ed May knows his way around Washington and he knows how to get things done. Don't miss the opportunity to elect a man who cares about the people in his state, and who is close enough to the President to have an influential voice in the closing matters facing our nation.

Ed May is that man! Mr. Nixon will need Ed May's help in the Senate for the sake of our country, and you need Ed May for the sake of Connecticut! There is indeed a "better way" to get things done in these perilous times, and for this reason I strongly urge all voters to cast their ballots on Nov. 5 for Edwin H. May Jr. for the U.S. Senate. Very truly yours, Anita Murphy

BOY SCOUT Notes and News

Boy Scout Troop 342, St. Bartholomew Church, held a camp-out at Times Farm Camp the weekend of Oct. 26 and 27. Scouts and committee men from Troop 107, St. Bridget Church, were guests of the St. Bartholomew Scouts for the weekend.

In addition, four members of the congregation of Notre Dame, faculty members at St. Bartholomew Parochial School, were guests of the troops on Saturday, including Sister Mary Mar, Sister Monica Leonard, Sister Linnea Fribold, and Sister Mary Ann Gariah.

After viewing all competitors, the stators were served a steak dinner cooked by Com. Willard Waterfield, U.S. Navy and troop committee man.

The stators and both troops conducted Evening Retreat, following the stator dinner.

During the day the stators and both troops participated in a five-mile hike and in several classes, including woodcraft, plants, and knife and axe.

The boys attending the camp-out from Troop 342 included: Paul, Doug, Stevenson, George, Foe, Frank Jaworski, Joe Balar, Bill Walden, Jeff Padden, Curran, Fire Patrol, Jim Cook, John Greene, Dan Hays, Bill Keegan, Bob Latham, Curt Hamilton, John Cook and Ken Moquin; and Gertie Paul, Doug Hainschield, Jeff Padden, Dave Sheridan and Matthew Meloy.

Scoutmaster Herb Stevenson, Dave Stevenson, Riccardo Salazar and John Blake. Committee men from Troop 342 attending the camp-out were: Camping Director Col. George Blake, U.S. Army, formerly around Washington and he knows how to get things done. Don't miss the opportunity to elect a man who cares about the people in his state, and who is close enough to the President to have an influential voice in the closing matters facing our nation.

"Make no mistake about this: God is not to be fooled; a man reaps what he sows. If he sows seed in the field of his lower nature, he will reap from it a harvest of corruption, but if he sows in the field of the Spirit, the Spirit will bring him a harvest of eternal life. So let us never tire of doing good, for if we do not slacken our efforts we shall in due time reap our harvest. Therefore, as opportunity offers, let us work for the good of all, especially members of the household of the faith." Galatians 6: 7-10 (New English Bible)

(Rev. Douglas E. Theuner, St. George's Episcopal Church, Bolton)

At the camp-out, Scoutmaster Keegan announced that the next scheduled troop meeting for Troop 342 would be held on Nov. 7 and would be a field trip to Bradley Field where the troop will view the controls tower facilities and the Connecticut Aeronautics Museum. Today's Jewelry Conveys Individuality, Designer Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Big, bold, chunky, colorful, eye-catching with movement and even sound—today's jewelry conveys the individuality of the wearer as never before, says one of the country's top costume jewelry designers.

New materials and new techniques, combined with freedom of thought in clothes design, have brought about the most revolutionary changes in jewelry design in art's long history, believes Bill Smith, head designer for a costume jewelry house (Richelieu).

Smith's own designs veer far afield from the traditional use of metal and gems. He works not only with copper, silver and brass, but with plastic, glass, lead, coiled wire, hardware, mirrors, wood paper, and feathers.

"You can use anything you want to," he points out, "but don't make it look like what it is. Give it another dimension." One of the outstanding innovations he has introduced is the use of color. Designing long-traveling merely on the presence of semi-precious stones provided by nature.

"Now," says Smith, "there is no limit to the color of things we can create." The 30-year-old Negro artist, who has reached one of the top positions in the jewelry industry, believes that jewelry should be a statement, much as a painting is, and let a point across.

During the day the stators and both troops participated in a five-mile hike and in several classes, including woodcraft, plants, and knife and axe.

The boys attending the camp-out from Troop 342 included: Paul, Doug, Stevenson, George, Foe, Frank Jaworski, Joe Balar, Bill Walden, Jeff Padden, Curran, Fire Patrol, Jim Cook, John Greene, Dan Hays, Bill Keegan, Bob Latham, Curt Hamilton, John Cook and Ken Moquin; and Gertie Paul, Doug Hainschield, Jeff Padden, Dave Sheridan and Matthew Meloy.

Scoutmaster Herb Stevenson, Dave Stevenson, Riccardo Salazar and John Blake. Committee men from Troop 342 attending the camp-out were: Camping Director Col. George Blake, U.S. Army, formerly around Washington and he knows how to get things done. Don't miss the opportunity to elect a man who cares about the people in his state, and who is close enough to the President to have an influential voice in the closing matters facing our nation.

Ed May is that man! Mr. Nixon will need Ed May's help in the Senate for the sake of our country, and you need Ed May for the sake of Connecticut! There is indeed a "better way" to get things done in these perilous times, and for this reason I strongly urge all voters to cast their ballots on Nov. 5 for Edwin H. May Jr. for the U.S. Senate. Very truly yours, Anita Murphy

A Thought for Today Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

"Make no mistake about this: God is not to be fooled; a man reaps what he sows. If he sows seed in the field of his lower nature, he will reap from it a harvest of corruption, but if he sows in the field of the Spirit, the Spirit will bring him a harvest of eternal life. So let us never tire of doing good, for if we do not slacken our efforts we shall in due time reap our harvest. Therefore, as opportunity offers, let us work for the good of all, especially members of the household of the faith." Galatians 6: 7-10 (New English Bible)

HUD Okays Housing In Renewal Project

The 76-unit housing for the elderly complex in the North End Renewal Project was approved today for a $1,183,000 grant from the Washington, D.C. office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

"We finally got the money and we're going to start now," was the comment from the Manchester Housing Authority chairman, John E. Cronin.

Word of the approval reached the Herald from the Washington office of Sen. Abraham Ribicoff and Rep. Emilio Daddario this morning. It followed yesterday's approval by the Federal Housing Administration of a $1,200,000 loan for the 181-unit moderate-income housing on the east side of Oakland St.

The MEIA will meet next Wednesday night to map out action, Cronin said. This will include instructing the architects, Lewis J. Drakos and Associates of Hartford, to go ahead with detailed schematics for HUD's approval.

"This should be good news for the more than 100 eligible applicants who have been waiting patiently for so long," Cronin said.

The time it will take to open the doors of the new housing to the elderly is hard to even guess, Cronin said. It took available in 1960 when the Westhall Gardens funds were opened until June 1962 before the 100-unit complex was opened.

There will be 52 efficiency units in the North End complex. They will have a combined livingroom and kitchen with rods for putting up partitions or curtains. The kitchen will all have a built-in refrigerator.

The 24 one-bedroom units will have a living room and kitchen. The rents will be $42.50 and $52.50 per month.

Seeking GOP Votes Hausman Charges Ribicoff Using 'Deceptive Tactics'

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — and independent for Ribicoff are Republicans Walter Wheeler of Stamford, former board chairman of Pitney Bowes, and West Stokros, Wangung's next-door neighbor in Westport and a former president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and former president of Bridgeport.

An attack on a committee called "Republicans and Independents for Ribicoff" said he needed Hausman's charge and challenged the chairman to prove that the committee was composed of Republicans.

"I voted straight Republican on my absentee ballot," said John Wassung of Westport. Wassung noted that he was clerk of the Republican-controlled State House of Representatives in 1966 and 1967 and said he is still a Republican and intends to remain one.

Hausman had said in a statement: "I have been informed that individuals representing themselves as Republicans are canvassing Republican voters by telephone in Meriden and other areas."

"I am informed that when a voter indicates he supports Mr. Nixon, the canvasser says, 'That's fine, but please sign for Abe Ribicoff.' When questioned about their Republicanism, the canvassers claim to be 'Republicans for Ribicoff.'"

"I would urge all Republicans not to be misled into thinking that any Republican party organization is supporting Ribicoff," said Hausman. "Republicans are supporting Ed May 100 per cent, and the fact that Ribicoff resorts to these deceptive tactics shows the May campaign for the Senate has made remarkable progress in recent days."

Wassung scoffed at the claim that Republicans are "100 per cent" behind Ribicoff's opponent, Edwin H. May Jr., co-chairman of Republicans day.

Assorted Witches, Goblins, Spooks—and Cute Kids The Kiddie Korral, a child day care center and nursery school on Delmont St., staged a costume parade and Halloween party yesterday for more than 40 youngsters who attend the center. After a block parade the children were treated to cider and cup cakes and Halloween sweets.

How to Decorate Windows That Are Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't let windows ruin an otherwise good decorating project. Give thought to odd-shaped windows, French doors, and windows that are badly spaced. You may need to take a particular look by adding architectural panels.

One such idea involves putting a trim-out plywood from ceiling to floor around a high single window. The plywood redesigns the window to fit other windows or changes the proportions.

A decorator used a black and white toile, Calathea acetate blind fabric, over the entire wall and plywood and added a narrow black and white stripe (Tooties) with black gimp draperies trimmed at top and bottom with black gimp and outlined the scalloped shade. When lowered the black and white shades provided an attractive background for a chair in brilliant red cotton.

The commo-problem of two thin windows on one wall may be solved by covering the walls in an airy floral pattern, and using the same pattern on a double set of window shades. Light-in-scale easy chairs may be set in front of the windows for conversational groupings.

ATHENS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis got Greek government approval today for an industrial investment totaling $400 million in the biggest single industrial deal in Greek history.

Details of the agreement initiated by the two parties were disclosed at a news conference attended by Onassis, who said the deal was "final and binding." He added that signing of the agreement will follow in a few weeks, after minor details have been worked out.

The project involves an oil refinery with an annual capacity of seven million tons, an aluminum plant with an annual output of 500,000 tons and an aluminum and a former president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and former president of Bridgeport.

Among intercepted smuggled goods were $10,000 worth of nylon suits, highly prized by Indian women.

Athens area, including an air terminal. A government announcement described the agreement as "unprecedented and the biggest in Greece's history."

The 62-year-old shipping magnate who controls Greece's national airline, Olympic Airways, also was given exploitation rights of the only state refinery near Athens because, the announcement said, "this terms were the best offered."

Onassis, who married the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy 12 days ago, interrupted his honeymoon twice to complete the negotiations.

Tolland Re-election of Sen. Repko Urged by Republican Head

The re-election of Tolland County's Republican State Senator Andrew Repko has been urged by Tolland Republican Town Chairman Russell Stevenson.

Stevenson cited Repko's endorsements by the Connecticut Teachers Association, State highway foremen, Republican Labor League and instructors of the state technical schools.

He described Democratic candidate Robert Hodge of Vernon as a "well publicized novice who uses big city tactics."

"I ask the voters of Tolland County to consider these plaudits awarded to a very moderate progressive state senator," Stevenson said. "Andy Repko has served his constituents with actions, not ego building newspaper headlines."

Stevenson pointed to Repko's service as chairman of the Public Personnel Committee and also a member of the Rules Committee, Liquor Committee and Public Utilities and Corrections Committee.

"Repko's seniority status in the State Senate makes him an invaluable representative for our country," according to Stevenson. "He has presented quality legislation to the State Senate and has fought hard to curb wasteful spending by government."

Don't Let Democrats

Manchester the best possible schools for the least cost to the town. At the recent League of Women Voters meeting I asked Mrs. Lattin what her stand on deficit spending was since her proposals all called for increased spending. Her answer was that the main duty of the next Legislature will be to look for new ways to find tax money. All true Democrats made the same type of statement, none of them even suggested cutting expenses. She even warned the state to pay for all children to go to nursery school even if their parents can't afford to pay for them. She not only won't cut expenses but is dreaming up new ways to spend.

As a Local Director, Mr. Mahoney's main complaint was that the budget was too low. He voted against the budget this year because of the cuts made by the Republicans. When I asked how this kind of thinking would help cut out the foolish luxuries in the state budget he answered by stating it was a foolish question and he couldn't take the time to explain. He said he should be elected because he really knew and understood them when they did vote so heavily against everything on a referendum. He said he would have him go farther to ignore Mr. Boggioli, at the League meeting, spent most of his time extolling the virtues of the NEA and other labor unions. the safety of the students (especially those being dismissed when there is no officer on duty) but also a menace to their health and instruction. Leaving the school on this site and expanding it will only insure continuance of a very unsatisfactory condition. Improved ventilation will help but this would cost a considerable amount of the $400,000 suggested. This would not alleviate the office space including work need of several classrooms and instructional areas for special teaching, a kitchen, cafeteria, auditorium-gymnasium combination, health suite and office space including work area. A safe vehicular entrance and adjacent parking area is also badly needed. At the present time we are using the Congregational Church covered driveway and parking area. Although it would not be possible to construct these units in the identified area, there would be little room left for parking or the play area Mr. Lupien suggests. Such construction would exceed the areas listed above would cost approximately $40,000.

The Mechanics of Voting

There seems to be considerable confusion on the part of Connecticut voters about how to use the voting machine under the provisions of our new state Constitution. The only change is the fact that the use of the machine is now optional and the voter may vote by ballot or by machine. Tolland County $100 Per Pupil Grant Proposed by St. Onge

Democratic Congressman William St. Onge yesterday formally announced proposed legislation calling for a flat $100 per pupil grant for each primary and secondary student in the country.

Speaking to a businessmen's luncheon in Vernon yesterday, St. Onge admitted the program would be costly, totaling a $5 billion price tag on it.

"The future of our nation rests with our young people," he told the gathering of leading area Democrats, "and their ability to fulfill this promise depends in large measure upon the extent to which we are willing to allocate our resources to ensuring the excellence of their education."

"This is a responsibility which our local taxing authorities are no longer able to adequately meet without making significantly greater demands upon our already over-burdened property owners," the Congressman explained.

"To assist our state and local education authorities I propose introducing in the next Congress, legislation which would provide a yearly federal grant to local school boards of $100 for each primary and secondary student enrolled in school district," St. Onge stated.

"When we consider that per capita income and the Gross National Product will increase at a higher proportionate rate, funding of such assistance should be budgetarily feasible."

The 2nd Congressional District would receive almost $11 million annually from St. Onge's proposal, he claims.

"Such federal aid should make possible impressive additions to the quality of our education at the primary and secondary school levels," St. Onge maintained.

"Some of the immediate results would be better teacher training, the adoption of the most advanced teaching aids, and the opportunity to give extensive counseling to less gifted students," said the Connecticut lawmaker.

St. Onge was introduced by Lt. Governor and State Central Committeeman Attilio Frustilli, who spoke optimistically of the party's chances on Election Day.

"There is no reason why of the six Senatorial Districts in the 2nd Congressional District only Tolland County has a Republican State Senator," he stated.

"There is so much confusion about this election, the pollsters are up a tree," St. Onge commented. "The school polls are fabulous," he added explaining, "they have been accurate in the past and are now showing a Democratic landslide."

Planning to campaign until the last minute Monday night, St. Onge stated that the "dust is settling now. The Democrats are getting back together."

He lashed out at the "slick Madison Ave. ads of Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon." While admitting they are good ads, he added, "We're voting for a president not buying a box of detergent."

He hit at the "law and order" appeal of the Republicans which does not "bring justice." Every dictatorship in the world has obtained power by calling for protection of law and order, by frightening people to vote for them.

St. Onge asked those attending whose finger they would rather have on the nuclear bomb trigger, Curtis LeMay, Spiro Agnew or Edmund Muskie. "We must be very careful about our choice for Vice President these days," he stated.

County Campaigning - St. Onge is participating in a heavy two-day campaign of Tolland County yesterday and today. He toured Vernon yesterday and area towns yesterday and was scheduled to appear at the Student Union building at the University of Connecticut today, as part of a motorcade and personal appearance schedule through the county towns.

You bet there's a better way! I'm running for the U. S. Is there a better way to fight crime...to work for peace...to spend your tax money...to offer leadership in these times? You bet there is!

Steps Prove Obstacle to Trick, Treat

MANCHESTER, Pa. (AP) — From our front door we watched as we have for many Hallows — witches, space-men, princess and hoboes amaze along the street.

They dragged their brilliant-colored masks, shrouded, "Trick or treat!" and got their piece of booty.

The costumed youngsters then walked past our house—even though the cupboards were stocked full.

My father sells candy.

But every Halloween has been the same—and this one followed the pattern.

Because our home sits on top of a slight hill with 30 steps between the street and the front door, few Hallows were able to climb 30 steps—even for five or six candy bars.

From the street we could hear, "Boy, I'm too beat to go all the way up there."

A friend of a neighborhood child replied, "Yeah, but Ricky told me they give you six bars apiece—different kinds."

It's not that trick of treaters were awkward.

A rotund Jack-o-lantern flashed a toothless smile from its perch on the railing of the side porch; a skeleton covered with a luminous paint jiggled in a front window and a bright light was aimed at the stairs to guide the Hallowsers and prevent accidents.

The largest number of masked faces appearing at our door was 20 this year—the most — 27 youths trekked the three flights. Neighbors got 100 to 150 trick-treaters.

Although saddened by the absence of visitors my father grinned broadly as he tossed the candy into the orange-and-black bags.

"Be careful going down," he said, "and don't forget to come and visit us next year."

There was a chill in the air this October 31st, but the trick treaters didn't keep the temperature down—our door—just those 30 stairsteps.

Eye of Newt and Other Stuff Like That

Stirring the witches brew in the play, "The Halloween Spell," is Mrs. Anne Robinson, (right), who played Gertie. The residents of Crestfield Convalescent Home put on the play yesterday at the home. Other characters in the play from left to right were Mrs. Minnie Byers as Miss Emma Black Cape, Mrs. Josephine Anderson as Lulu, and Miss Hazel Trotter as the TV set. Acting as weathermen in the play were Joseph Forgarty and Clarence Roy, also residents at the home.

Saigon Priest Eludes Death

SAIGON (AP) — If Nguyen Van Tri had moved the other way at the moment the rocket struck, "I would have been killed," he said today.

But he didn't move the other way. And as a result, the priest, known to his flock as Father Thomas, was around to count what remained of his blessings after a 120mm Viet Cong rocket smashed into his little Roman Catholic church on Saigon's south side at dawn.

"Twenty of his parishioners were killed and 40 others wounded," he said.

"It was terrible," he said. "Some people died, and some people ran away."

The priest was about 15 minutes into the service, and the 100 worshippers who filled Xom Chien church to overflowing were standing and praying. Another 300 of the parish's 4,000 were outside, listening.

"The rocket came in over the rooftops and slammed into a wall of the modest, one-story yellow stucco church.

"The missile blew a huge hole in the wall and hurled red roof tiles in all directions. Shrapnel and debris cut a murderous swath through the crowd.

"It was a big noise, and people cried out," recalled Father Thomas. "In the Mass, I must make turn by turn. If I had turned in another direction at the time, I would have been killed."

The Mass stopped immediately as Father Thomas, along with other unhurt, rushed to the aid of the wounded.

A Times survey among publishers showed they were divided over the commercial value of the President's memoirs with some believing they may not sell well.

"The people who buy books are the very people who don't like Lyndon Johnson," one major publisher, who declined to make a proposal, was quoted as saying.

Another executive said those not bidding were "true" adding: "Anybody who's been at the top has something to say. That view is reserved to very few people and if he tells his story it will sell."

Teacher Claims 'Exclusive'; 28,223 Motorcycle Miles

By DEE TAYLOR

A few years back a lot of people were flying airplanes solo around the world. Now the big thing is to sail a yacht around the globe single-handed.

But I claim membership in an even more exclusive solo club. I have ridden a motorcycle around the world.

I rode 28,223 miles, crossing the continents of Europe, Asia, Australia and America. Including oceans crossed by ship and plane the distance was 45,000 miles, and took one year.

Why did I do it?

To see the world. I like fresh air, and I like people. On a motorcycle you are close to both.

In an automobile, you are too often categorized as a "rich foreign tourist." On a motorcycle you are readily accepted as a traveling sportsman.

I met all kinds of people. Ranging from a mechanic's helper in Greece to the governor of a state of 48 million inhabitants in India. Everyone was friendly in all the countries I visited.

People seem to warm up to you if they see you working on your motorcycle.

Hands and feet all covered with grease. Most people are honest and helpful and will do anything in their power to see that you enjoy your visit to their country.

Once in Afghanistan I punctured a tire and ruined my inner tube. I knew I would have to spend the night in the desert. Some passing shepherds pointed to the mountains and made of a state of 48 million inhabitants in India. Everyone was friendly in all the countries I visited.

I encountered no mechanical failures and repair work consisted only of routine maintenance and fixing three flat tires.

How many people have ridden around the world on a motorcycle? The editor of a leading motorcycle magazine in New York said he knew of no one who had done it before, though many have attempted it.

As this trip was to include both the northern and southern hemispheres, it was timed to catch the summer on both sides of the equator. In July and August, I toured Western Europe, and spent September along the flat tire in a flat tire, in any Mediterranean. In October the

The Rham team was to enter the quarter finals today in a game against Woodstock. The playoff field will be a neutral site to be announced.

The Schems have also won the Tri-County Soccer award by defeating Bacon Academy of Colchester, Va., and East Hampton High school twice. The team, coaches and cheerleaders will be honored at a Tri-County dinner to be held at the Marlborough Tavern on Nov. 7.
