Stocks Post Another Gain During Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week posted its second straight weekly advance to moderately active trading.

Stocks marked time for the first couple of days. The inaugural address of President Richard M. Nixon left a completely neutral impression on Wall Street. It was a foregone conclusion that the president would make some reference to his inaugural address to the number one economic problem: Inflation. But he didn't.

The result was that on Monday and Tuesday there was little change in stock prices. On Wednesday, however, the market was down slightly and trading was dull as the street waited for some definite clue as to Nixon's policies regarding business and finance. By Wednesday, Wall Street seemed to be coming to the conclusion that there would be no swift and drastic pronouncements from the White House on inflation or other important problems until or unless changing events compelled such a move.

The advance gathered power on Thursday when stocks made a substantial gain in the wake of the former's move to the Northampton Hospital in Massachusetts, said the case was of a "delicate" nature. "We look great pains to insure that our efforts to free Mr. Tolson are not hampered by the government being the target of public pressure, it might have a negative effect on the case," he said. "Had the Yugoslavians been carried out without the glare of publicity," Conte said. "Had the Yugoslavians been carried out without the glare of publicity," Conte said.

The annual "Show Case" will be presented in September. To date, no selection has been made for this event. In the past it has been a series of one act plays followed by a reception for the subscribers and their guests.

The annual offering of the season in November will be the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "Carousel." Now an American classic, the musical play is based upon the Miller drama "Lilium" which was first presented in the United States by the Theatre Guild in 1928.

WEAK TWO-BID BEYEVES TWO BIDDING PURPOSES

The weak two-bid, used by almost all American experts, serves two bidding purposes. Since the hand is not quite worth an ordinary opening bid, it tends to interfere with the enemy when the hand belongs to them.

Work upon the king of hearts and coverts the suit. South ruffs and leads the ace of trumps. When only small spades appear, South must avoid the error of leading the king of trumps next.

South leads a diamond to dummy's king and returns the next trump from dummy. East usually plays low, and South may try a finesse with the ten or nine. This "made by finesse" cannot cost a trick, and may gain a trick.

If West is unable to win the trick (the actual case) the finesse is used to prevent the loss of two trump tricks. East could not protect himself by putting up the jack of spades since South would win and return the ten of spades to drive out the king of spades.

At the same time, there was some difference of opinion among economists interpreting the complex monetary picture. Some felt that the rate of interest rates had reached levels were rarely damaged the business boom or whether it was not. The net result seemed to be an increase in inflationary expectations even though some sources expressed the opinion that the market may follow the economy in any period of "indistinction" that lies ahead.

After carrying through a good part of Friday, the rally tapered out and the session was mixed at the close; but this did not keep the averages from making clear gains on the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose 3.06 to 908.69.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week rose 4.0 to 307.6, equalling its advance of the previous week.

Volume for the week totaled 20,000,000 shares, down slightly from the previous week's total of 20,300,487.

The sub is the NR-1, whose estimated cost has more than doubled to $67.5 million since it was first proposed nearly four years ago.

The launching has been scheduled for 3:15 p.m. With a crew of seven, the sub will be able to move over the ocean floor "for periods of time limited only by the amount of food and other supplies it carries," the Navy said.

LTM Lists Four Works For Season

The program for the 1969 season has been announced by president Frank Minutello of the Little Theatre of Manchester, Inc.

The opening performance of the year will be the Pulitzer Prize and Drama Critics Award winning play, "Picnic" by William Inge. Under the direction of A. William Austley, this play will be presented on Feb. 27, 28 and March 1 at the Balliet Auditorium in Manchester High School.

Second on the bill scheduled for the first week in May is the Broadway comedy hit "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Theater" by Neil Simon. Originally starring Sandy Dennis, this delightful comedy deals with a woman who falls in love with a man whose paths cross each other's.

The annual "Show Case" will be presented in September. To date, no selection has been made for this event. In the past it has been a series of one act plays followed by a reception for the subscribers and their guests.

Fairfield Gains Revenge By Bombing East, 82-62

By TOM BARRETT

Determined to settle an old score, a talented Fairfield Prep fulfilled this ambition by stamping East Catholic High last night, 82-62, at the Fairfield University gym before a screaming throng of nearly 2,000 spectators.

The last encounter between the two powerhouses, and the only meeting ever took place last March in the final game of the state Class I competition with the state title at stake. East came home a winner. Fairfield was similarly disappointed the previous year and this season the down-staters are determined to go all the way.

The spirit generated by the game was overwhelming and competition between the two groups of supporters at times rivaled that existing on the court. The East defense was almost strong as the Fairfield attack, which must be a record for a regular season road win.

especially in light of the traveling distance involved.

Outstanding is the only way to describe Fairfield's pride and joy, Jim Fitzsimmons. The quick forward netted 41 points on the board with a basket, but it may be considered to be the best in New England. Most of the game's remaining points were claimed by Harold Smith with 24.

The hosts were in complete command from buzzer to buzzer. After building up a 14 lead in the first two minutes, Tim Kearns finally put East in on the board with a basket, but it was clear that the Eagles would have a long, hard struggle.

Kearns was not the only Fairfield player to string up six points, and the locals were able to counter but two free throws.

East rallied at the start of the second period but Fairfield bounced back and created a comfortable 42-27 margin at intermission.

Kearns was the frontrunner in the East attack, connecting on 75 per cent of his floor tries.

Sports Viewing

By DEAN YOST

There weren't too many fans in attendance at Bristol Central's gym last night but the hearty 200 were treated to a spitting, tingling, decided in the final 20 seconds when Manchester's Bob Kiernan scored a CCLL encounter.

Scoring-wise, East fared best in the last stanza. Fresh reserves from the Eagle bench sparked the winning but was impossible to come within 20 points of the home five.

Besides the untiring aggressiveness exhibited by the winners rebounding was a key, too. Their shooting was not red hot, but the rebounding was a key, too. Their shooting was not red hot, but the rebounding was a key, too.

Kiernan Hero Again In Indians' Victory

Manly reported, "Kiernan kept his cool and controlled the team when things started to go bad."

If Bristol doesn't see Kiernan again it won't be too soon. He's the man who led his team to the winning basket with but seconds left against Central, moved to a 20-17 first period margin, and on the edge at half-time and was still up after three periods, 49-46.

Then the fun began with the lead changing hands several times.

The Silk Towners grabbed a seven point lead early in the second and kept it until they were tied with a 21-21 tie.

Vigil Given Prison Term In Fatality

David Vigus, 37, of 77 Main St., charged with willful misconduct with a motor vehicle after a fatal accident on Oct. 21 last year which claimed the life of 11-year-old Ann O'Brien of 98 Oakland St., pleaded guilty to the charge yesterday and was sentenced to a prison term of 18 months to four years.

The sentence was delivered by Superior Court Judge Walter J. Sidor in Hartford. Vigus originally pleaded not guilty to the charge in Manchester Circuit Court 12 on Nov. 18 and had his case bound over to Hartford Superior Court. On the same day, charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or both, and operating a motor vehicle while license was under suspension were rolled.

According to police Miss O'Brien was crossing Oakland St. near Edwards St. about 6:55 p.m. when Vigus's car, traveling south, struck her down. She was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital with multiple head and body injuries, and was pronounced dead on arrival.

Police say Vigus was speeding and was operating while under the influence of alcohol at the time. According to authorities, a test of Vigus's blood taken after the accident showed an alcoholic content of 21 per cent. State law sets .15 per cent as prima facie evidence of drunk driving.

A coroner's report filed by Deputy Coroner William J. Shea after making an inquiry concerning the death of Miss O'Brien states that "the death of Ann O'Brien was caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of David D. Vigus."

CRPA Seeks Accord With Other Agencies

A considerable percentage of the activities approved by the Capitol Region Planning Agency for next year is geared toward improving the relationships between the various regional groups now in existence. The CRPA met in East Hartford Thursday.

Included in this goal are preparations for a second Town Meeting for Tomorrow in cooperation with the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce.

Also included is seeking cooperation with other groups, including the Capitol Region Council of Elected Officials (CRCEO) and the Regional Advisory Committee (RAC) and the Connecticut Interregional Planning Program (CIPP).

Work will be completed on several studies now in the preparation stage including the regional plan for utilities, another for airports and a regional plan for housing.

New projects will include the modification and adoption of a proposed regional air plan, the participation in the design of demonstration projects for mass transportation improvements, and the designing of future regional planning studies in the areas of mass transportation and intertown arterial roads.

The modification and adoption of the proposed regional utilities plan will be undertaken by the Natural Resource Planning Committee. Hearings, review and modification and adoption of a preliminary regional plan for housing will be done by the Land Use Committee in cooperation with the Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

Also to be undertaken by the Land Use and HEW committee is the design of future housing studies and a re-evaluation of the adopted regional land use plan in relation to the present development of the UConn Medical-Dental School and Battersman Park area of Farmington.

The Governmental Functions Committee will investigate various aspects of preparing a preliminary regional public investment plan to determine ways to

Ruling by Shea On College Lease

College was to review the allocation of these and all other additional costs of operation necessitated by the use of our facilities by the Community College. The question of telephone service has become academic, since this is paid directly by the College.

In accordance with the provision calling for a review of costs, the Board of Education complied a tabulation of additional costs incurred by the Town because of the use of Manchester High School by the College for the year 1967-1968. This amount totaled $28,297.00.

Although it is conceded that the State may have challenged some of these items, it has proven impossible to find anyone within the framework of the Regional Community College who has either the authority or a willingness to seriously review these figures and arrive at an agreed result.

Admittedly, the terms of the Lease are somewhat vague and leave much to be desired in terms of specificity. However, even giving this document its strongest possible interpretation against the Town's interest, the very least the Town is entitled to is reimbursement for additional custodial costs necessitated by the use of our facilities by the College. For the year 1967-1968, such additional custodial costs amounted to $10,692.00.

In July of 1968, the State made a payment of $9,240.00 for the year 1967-1968. This check was accepted by the Town only as a partial payment, with the understanding that negotiations were to continue. This payment was based on a formula unilaterally adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Regional Community College figured at the rate of $30.00 per full-time student. This formula bears no relationship to the lease and is not contemplated by it. Despite continued efforts and discussions, no further payment has been received for the year 1967-1968.

In a letter addressed to the Superintendent of Schools dated December 12, 1968, President Lowe of the Manchester Community College has advised that for the current year the Regional Community College contemplates paying the Town the sum of $6,000.00 for the use of our High School facilities. Dr. Lowe has indicated that this is the limit of the authority to make payments thus far granted by the Board of Trustees of the Regional Community College. This figure is again based on the $30.00 per full-time student formula unilaterally adopted by the Board of Trustees. Our additional custodial costs necessitated by the College use of our facilities will exceed $11,000.00 for the current year. In addition, there are numerous other costs incurred by the Town arising out of the College use, for which we feel we are entitled to reimbursement.

Therefore, it is my opinion that the Manchester Community College is in default and has broken the terms of the existing Lease. There is no doubt that if the College were a private tenant of a different nature, an Order to Quit Possession would be properly called for.

However, considering the nature of the occupant and the benefits derived from the location of the College in Manchester, I feel that any further course of action should be determined by the Board of Directors and the Board of Education. Any decision to allow the Community College to continue to occupy the Manchester High School facilities under the present conditions will have to be justified as a matter of policy rather than any alleged compliance with the existing Lease.

Yesterday, Town Council John F. Shea ruled that Manchester Community College has broken its lease with the Town of Manchester for use of high school facilities.

He declared, in a legal opinion, that the college is in default of the terms of a five-year lease, executed as of Sept. 1, 1965 and due to expire Aug. 31, 1970.

He stated that, were a private tenant involved, the town would be justified in issuing an Order to Quit Possession.

Then he stated, "However, considering the nature of the occupant and the benefits derived from the location of the college in Manchester, I feel that any further course of action should be determined by the Board of Directors and the Board of Education."

He said that, were a private tenant involved, the town would be justified in issuing an Order to Quit Possession.

Shea stated that MOC president Frederick Lowe had informed him that the state is willing to pay the town $6,000 for 1968—use of the high school facilities.

The school business office, Shea stated, has calculated that additional custodial services alone, necessitated by college use of the building, will be in excess of $11,000.

"In addition," Shea stated, "there are numerous other costs incurred by the town, arising out of college use, for which we feel we are entitled to reimbursement."

The full text of Shea's legal opinion follows.

Some time ago, the problems arising out of the Lease between the Town of Manchester and the Manchester Community College for the use of space by the College at Manchester High School were referred to this office for our attention. Of particular concern was the question of rental payment.

Tolland Gym Program To Continue

The after-school gymnastic program at Tolland High School will continue in its present form, despite the serious injury of James West earlier this week.

The accident was described yesterday by Physical Education Director William Holley as a "freak accident."

Superintendent of Schools Robert Brairton termed it a "one in a million" chance for injury.

West, a 16-year-old student at the high school, remains in critical condition at St. Francis Hospital in Hartford, suffering from injury to several vertebrae at the back of his neck.

He is able to talk but movement of portions of his body is reported to be limited.

The accident occurred when West was attempting a front somersault from a standing position, according to school authorities. The feat is a standard one in gymnastics class and has been mastered by West, according to Holley.

Bevel Offer To Aid Ray Is Declined

It would have been impossible for Ray to have killed King. Bevel, an official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference founded by King, declined to discuss any evidence he had.

King was shot to death last April 4 as he stood on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel. He had come to Memphis to lead a march in support of the city's striking sanitation workers. An earlier King-led march erupted into brief and sporadic violence

Although the walks can be sanded, O'Neill said, salt or other chemicals should not be used because of the danger of spalling (chipping off in thin layers) and general deterioration caused by the chemicals because the concrete has not yet cured.

Another Situation Comedy, Another Sermon

NEW YORK (AP) — Had William Shakespeare been around 500 years later, knocking out material for what is known as "The media," it is very probable that his line about "sermons in stones" would have rolled out of his electric typewriter as "sermons in situation comedies."

By order of the television code, the lesson that "Crime doesn't pay" is implicit in every program involving crooks and the law. There also seems to be some unwritten rule about packing a neat little lesson in everyday living in among the laughs of our people—next-door comedies.

On a single night—Tuesday—viewers learned painfully from "Julia" that pride must never be confused with self-righteousness, and, 30 minutes later, "The Doris Day show" was a demonstration about interfering parents.

All things considered, NBC's "Julia" and its helpful hints are considerably easier to take than CBS's homilies wrapped around the person of Miss Day. For one thing, the former is a wittier, more urbane half hour which, while hardly a realistic portrait of the home and office life of a registered nurse, still has plenty of spirit and that elusive quality called charm.

Miss Day can handle broad comedy with the best of them—she survived several undignified knocks in the seat of her tailored slacks and was thoroughly smeared with raw eggs in the most recent outing. But the series is beset by the kind of bucolic, tired stories that were predictable as far back as "The Donna Reed Show." It is further afflicted by a loud and misbegotten laugh track.

One of the great pluses of "Julia" is, of course, its forthright handling of Negro-white relationships. In the Tuesday night show, the attractive character played by Diahann Carroll encountered a touchy, militant football star obviously on the lookout for slights and put-downs. At the climax, Julia read the young man off, of course, and changed his life.

Somehow Miss Carroll's winning ways, and the persuasive writing permit what could be pretty sticky stuff to come off nicely. "Julia" week in and week out, remains a bright new series that really deserved its niche among the top 30 shows.

CHILDREN'S PLAYHOUSE
CBS hopes to provide young audiences the same type of entertainment treats that its "Playhouse" has given adults. The network plans to start a "Children's Playhouse" with one or two specials on Saturday mornings during the 1969-70 season. The shows will consist of original scripts or adaptations of books and according to the programming vice president Michael Dann, the network will spend between $200,000 and $300,000 for each production.

The network does not expect to make money on its uplift effort, but the announcement comes at a time when the Saturday morning schedules of cartoons have been under heavy critical fire.

LATEST RATINGS

NBC's "Laugh-In" climbed back into first place in the most recent Nielsen ratings report, covering the period between Jan. 8-12.

Other entertainment shows in the top ten were, in the following order, NBC's "Bonanza," CBS's Gomer Pyle and "Beverly Hillsbillies," NBC's "Dragnet," CBS's "Gunsmoke," NBC's "Dean Martin Show," CBS's "Family Affair," NBC's "Ironside" and ABC's "Bewitched."

NBC led in the week, average ratings, pulling a 21.2, followed by CBS with 20.5, and ABC, 16.5

Gilou Pelletier and friend in "Clown," French children's film Sunday 1:30-2:30 p.m. on CBS.

'Little Women' Becomes Ballet

"NBC Children's Theatre," in keeping with its philosophy of portraying ideas and emotions through the various art forms, will present the story of "Little Women" as a ballet. The one-hour live-on-tape special program, to be adapted from the classic of the same name by Louisa May Alcott, will be shown in early spring on NBC.

Sixty young dancers from the Children's Ballet Theatre in New York, ranging in ages from 6 to 15, will perform the story of Mrs. March and her four daughters—Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy—the family that has been loved for a hundred years. This will be the first time "Little Women" has been interpreted as a ballet. Christine Neubert will be the choreographer.

"Little Women" is the 12th production in the award-winning "NBC Children's Theatre" series.

Dan Blocker Farmer at Heart

"My father was a farmer" said Dan Blocker, who stars as Hoss Cartwright on NBC's "Bonanza" series.

"Shack Blocker cleared 80 acres of Red River County timberland all by himself," he continued, explaining why he will step out of his Hoss character to serve as storyteller of "Down on the Farm" a one-hour program to be broadcast on NBC today from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

"I felt this special was something I was obligated to do. It concerns the American farmer, past, present and future. I'm part of this; I'm sensitive to this."

Blocker himself had his roots in farm life. As a youngster in the rural community of O'Donnell, Texas ("We had 800 people and a cotton gin for every 50 people"), he picked cotton, humped bales in a gin, operated a grain elevator.

"That town has pretty much dried up and blown away since Dust Bowl Days," he mused sadly. "While it was blowing away, we watched the evolution from small farms to agricultural empires directed by gentlemen farmers and worked by

Is Chelsea Brown Token of the Week?

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — "I'm Chelsea Brown," the beautiful Negro girl said, as the "Laugh-In" camera closed in for a tight shot. "I'm your token of the week."

I was just a one-liner, but "Laugh-In's" one-liners often have a lot of truth. Some of television's black stars think the current trend is tokenism. Strangely, Chelsea Brown doesn't.

"I don't feel like a token," she says. "They gave me most of the racial jokes at first, and that bothered me, but gradually they've let me do other things."

Chelsea is married to a white publicist, Gary Stromberg. They even have an integrated dog — a black-and-white cockerpoop (a cross between a cocker spaniel and a poodle) called Miss Ceg-nation. They call her Sody.

She is a distinctly unflinching person — "I don't understand hate of any kind," she says, "but I do feel that I want to be judged as just another human being."

Ivan Dixon of "Hogan's Heroes" thinks the usage of black actors today could be called tokenism, "but that's a phase we have to go through."

There are some complaints that, during this phase, too many of the parts for black actors are too good — the characters they play are always exceptional people. On "Peyton Place," Percy Rodriguez plays a brilliant neurosurgeon, but he doesn't object to it.

"I don't object to being called an Uncle Tom," he says, "and I don't object to the blacks on film being what we call 'super-coon.'" Some people don't like me playing a neurosurgeon. What do they want me to be, a ditch digger?

"I think it's fine for me to be a neurosurgeon. We can show the young black boys who watch the show that it's possible to dream of something big, like neurosurgery, and that it isn't impossible to achieve that dream."

The black actors are divided on the subject of "Julia," Diahann Carroll's show.

"It doesn't tell it like it is," says "Star Trek's" Nichelle Nichols. "She's just a brown-skinned Doris Day."

"Julia preaches too much," says Ironside's Don Mitchell. "It should just show things as they are, without preaching about them. But it's still a good step."

"Julia?" says Ivan Dixon. "No comment—Diahann is a friend of mine."

Whatever they think of the content, they agree that it has been useful in giving employment to many black actors. And employment is something every actor—black or white—wants. In this area, there is no question but things are looking better. Particularly, the Negro actors appreciate the fact that today there are fewer "Negro" parts and more parts where they compete as actors, not necessarily Negro actors.

"I know," says Mission: Impossible's Greg Morris, "that if I hadn't gotten the part, the next actor in line was a blue-eyed blond Scandinavian. Forty actors or so tried out for the part, and there were only two or three Negroes. It didn't matter."

To the black actors, that's the key—they don't want it to matter any more. More and more, it doesn't.

machines and modern methods. That's what this show is all about.

"The agricultural industry felt the industrial revolution last. It took Europe 25 centuries to make the transition from farm to city. We're making that transition here in just 30 or 40 years."

Blocker early became part of the to-the-city trend. Opting for a non-farm career, he studied physical education and political science in college, earning a bachelor's degree. He studied English and drama for his master's, then taught briefly at a Texas high school. (Reflecting the diversity of Blocker's educational background: During his first years as teacher, his students won two statewide championships—in football and in drama.)

"Our people started moving out of Texas in 1933. Many displaced by the Dust Bowl came to California. I stayed, became a teacher, then moved West in 1956 to work on my doctorate at the University of California in Los Angeles."

It was while studying for his doctorate and teaching in the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale that Blocker was urged to try out for a guest role in "Gunsmoke." He won the part, appeared on many other Westerns, then launched his 10-year career with "Bonanza."
