Sheinwold on Bridge

CULTIVATE SIMPLICITY AT THE HERALD TABLE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
"Some performers admit technique for its own sake," an eminent violinist remarked recently. "They execute brilliant tricks where the music calls for absolute simplicity, and they expect a pat on the back when what they really deserve is a kick somewhat lower down." I tried to admit that the same eminent artists some of our best bridge players.

When today's hand was played in a recent tournament, East took the ace of diamonds and returned the ace of diamonds. South kept a rather flamboyant young man, took a finesse with the jack of diamonds.

West knew all about South's cleverness and managed to resist the temptation to lead the ace of diamonds. West shifted to the queen of spades. This was the killing defense. South had to lose the heart finesse, and then the opponents would defeat the contract with a total of two spade tricks, two diamonds and one heart. South had given the opponents time to beat him.

The winning line of play was simplicity itself. South should take the king of diamonds at the second trick and should lead hearts at once. Even though the finesse loses, South is sure of four hearts, one spade, one diamond and three clubs.

Paper Raps Communist Churchgoers
Should 'Pot' Be Legalized?
It's Proponents Are Growing
By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Blakeslee, the writer of this series, has also written a large, illustrated booklet called "What You Should Know About Drugs and Narcotics," which incorporates much additional material and which you can obtain for $1. It is suitable for reading either by parents or by teen-agers.
Should "pot" be legalized? Or, at least, should severe penalties for possessing it be relaxed?
Proponents of legalizing it are apparently growing in number. They argue that it is less dangerous than alcohol, which kills thousands of Americans each year. No one becomes physically addicted to pot, they say, and it doesn't kill anyone unless it accidentally harms himself under its influence. Marijuana, they assert, is safer than hard liquor and alcohol, and it is a recreational drug and helps back the development of society," the editorial said.

Police Identify Bodies of Girls in Cape Graves
NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Investigators have identified the bodies of two girls found in shallow graves where two Providence R.I. young women were buried in Truro, Mass. Atty. Edmund Dineen announced that the first body to be found was that of Susan Edgeworth Perry, 18, of Providence.
Searchers came upon her body Feb. 8 while looking for the two Providence girls who disappeared in January while on a weekend visit to Provincetown.
When the bodies of the Providence girls, Patricia Walsh, 22, and Anne Wysocki, 23, a senior at Rhode Island College, were found March 8, searchers found the remains of a fourth body.
The letter was identified by Dineen as Sydney Lee Mason, 19, a sophomore at the University of California at Berkeley, who had been missing since May 24, 1968.
In both cases, Dineen said, identification was made through fingerprints of the two girls taken several years ago and filed in the Bureau of Criminal Identification as part of a Cape Cod civil defense identity project.
The two Providence girls were shot to death. The cause of death of the other two could not be determined.
All four bodies were dumped before they were discovered in shallow graves in an isolated wooded area near the Cape Cod National Seashore.
Antonio Costa, 28, of Provincetown, was arrested the day the bodies of the Walsh and Wysocki girls were found, and was charged with their murder. He was sent to Bridgewater State Hospital for observation.

Winchester Closing
Trap Shooting Range
HAMDEN (AP) — The Old Marlborough Chemical Corporation's Winchester Gun Shop has announced that its public shooting center, now open for shooting from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. three days a week, will be closed down Friday.
The skeet and trap shooting range opened in 1966 but curtailed its hours in January following a court decision that the center constituted a noise nuisance. The decision came after protests from Hamden and North Haven residents.
Winchester has 86 shooting centers operating in 29 states. In the announcement Thursday the company said it will continue to study other possible shooting sites in this area.

Dance Chairman
James A. Stratford, senior warden, has been named general chairman for the annual dinner-dance of Manchester Lodge of Masons, to be held April 12 at Glastonbury Hills Country Club.
Robert W. Ferguson has been appointed secretary-treasurer. The appointments were made by Richard W. Spiller, master of the lodge.
There will be a social hour, dinner and dancing to the music of the Manhattan. Masons and their friends are invited, and reservations can be made with any lodge officer or with Ferguson at 11 Brent Dr., Vernon.

Has Lung Tumor Sen. Russell Plans To Keep Working

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Russell, 53, plans to continue working while undergoing cobalt treatment for what doctors believe is an inoperable tumor on a lung.

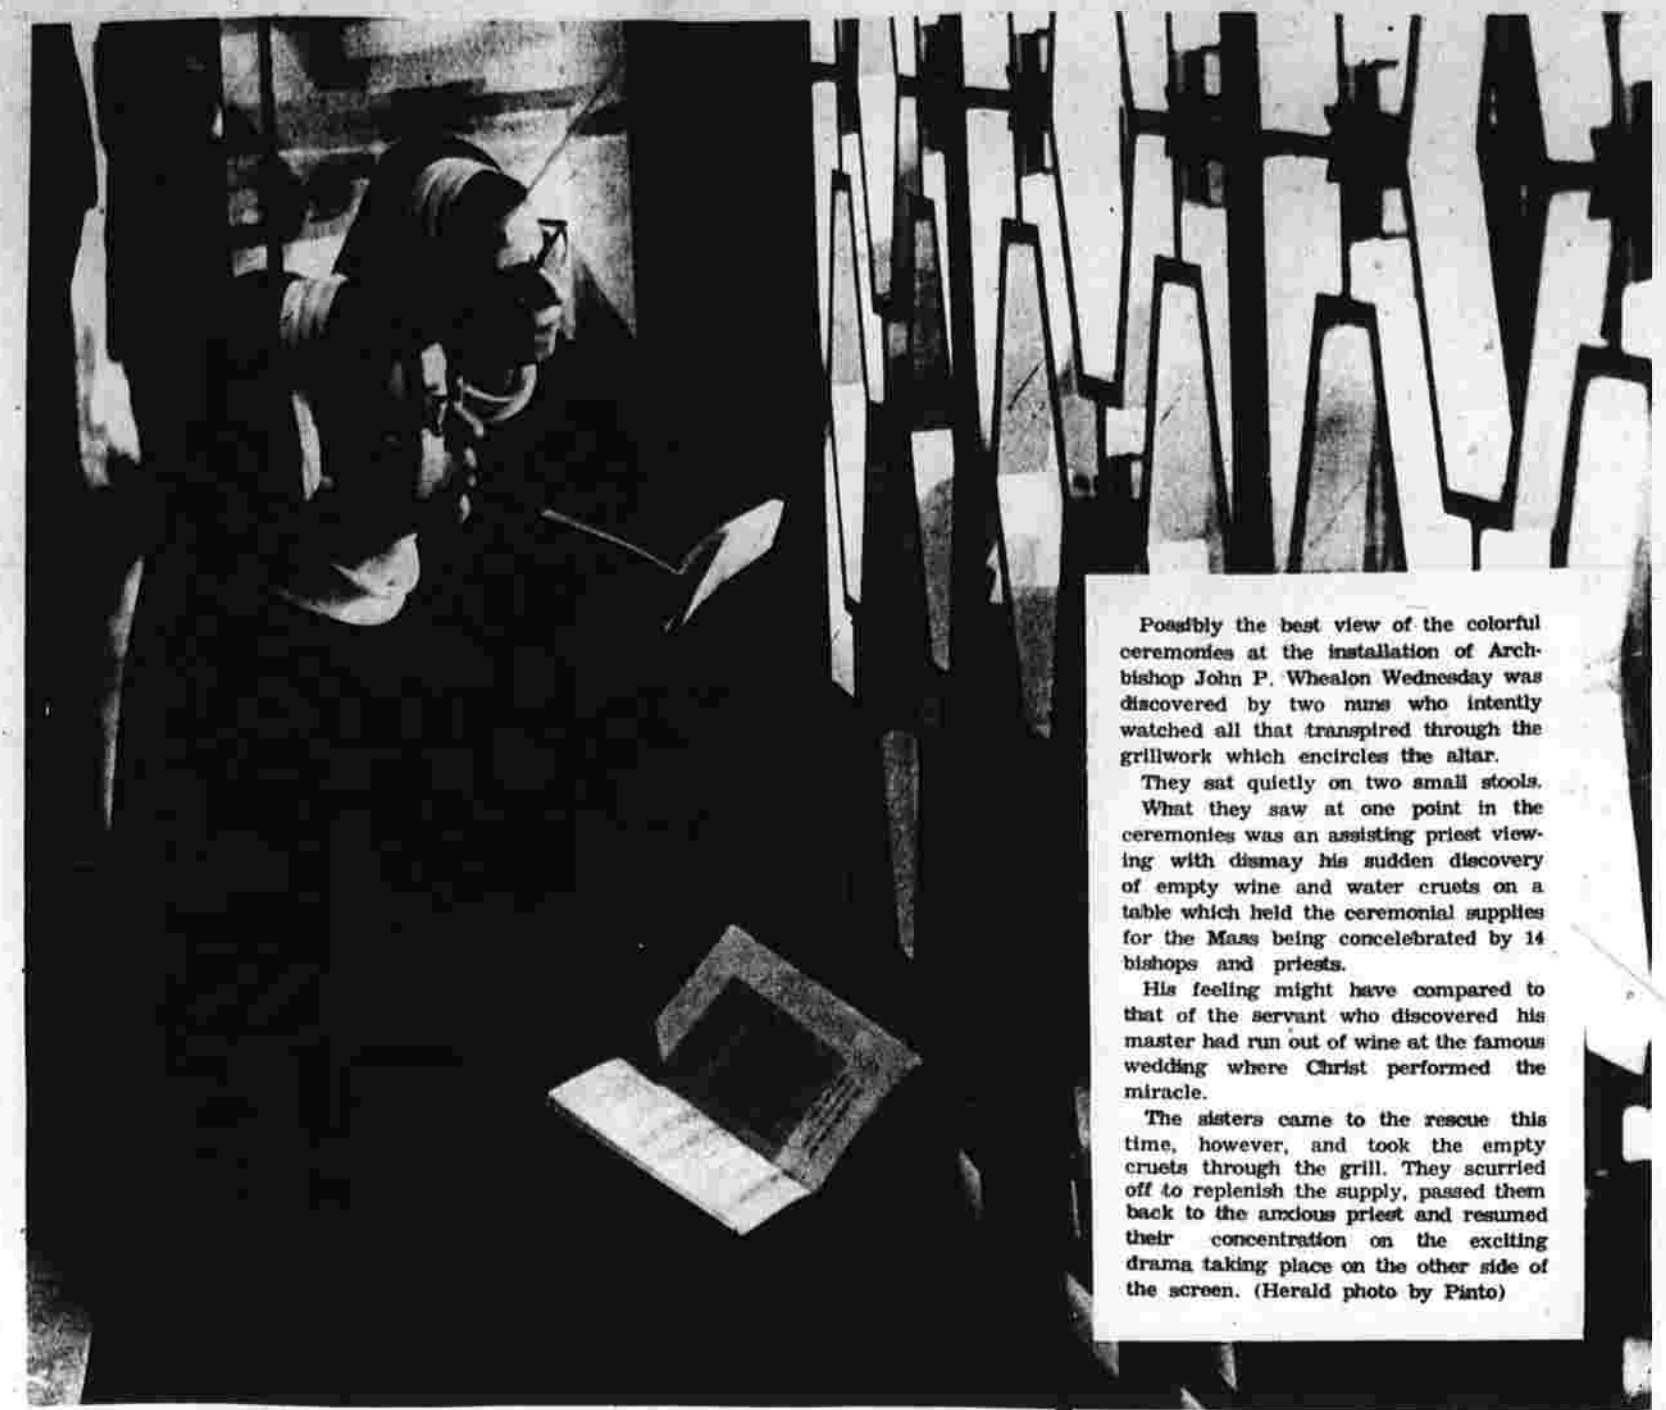

The doctors advised the senator to continue his work and to wait the outcome of treatment, Russell said Thursday. "I've decided to take that course," he said.

Russell, who at 71 has spent more than half his life in the Senate, said the cobalt therapy will last about six weeks. He said he would undergo treatment on an out-patient basis a few minutes each day.

In a tape recording played for newsmen by an aide, Russell said doctors discovered a tumor while he was undergoing an X-ray checkup for the emphysema he suffers from.

"It is fair to assume it is malignant," Russell said.

He said the tumor is inoperable because of damage to his lungs from the emphysema. With his appropriations chairmanship and standing in the Senate, plus his strong support of the ABM, Russell is a nearly indispensable ally.

Possibly the best view of the colorful ceremonies at the installation of Archbishop John P. Whealon Wednesday was discovered by two men who intently watched all that transpired through the grillwork which encircled the altar.

They sat quietly on two small stools. What they saw at one point in the ceremonies was an amazing priest viewing with dismay his sudden discovery of empty wine and water cruets on a table which held the ceremonial supplies for the Mass being celebrated by 14 bishops and priests.

His feeling might have compared to that of the servant who discovered his master had run out of wine at the famous wedding where Christ performed the miracle.

The sisters came to the rescue this time, however, and took the empty cruets through the grill. They hurried off to replenish the supply, passed them back to the anxious priest and resumed their concentration on the exciting drama taking place on the other side of the screen. State Okays $3.5 Million In Financing

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The State Bond Commission has approved a number of financing programs, most of which will provide funds for urban renewal and community projects.

Included in the allocation, which was made Thursday, is $3.5 million to meet the state's share of continuing urban renewal costs throughout Connecticut.

Meanwhile the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council (CPEC), in a statement to the legislature's Finance Committee, charged that the state is using borrowed money to finance programs that should be financed by appropriated money.

The CPEC said borrowed money should be used for acquiring land and buildings. It questioned whether borrowed money should be used for research grants or for planning or to finance operating costs of state agencies.

In other action the bond commission also approved bond issues for community projects making $23,171 available to the Department of Community Grants.

The commission freed $40,000 to pay for the first steps to creation of a beach at Silver Sands State Park in Milford.

Another $300,000 was approved for acquisition of land by the Norwalk river Flood Control project.

Business Mirror

NEW YORK (AP)—At suburban real estate agencies and in corporate offices they call it the crime rate rather than the crime rate and no more than a couple of years ago the description might have been accurate.

The prime rate today is 7.5 per cent, meaning that is the lowest borrowing rate for the bank's best customers for the very latest purposes. All other rates, for homes, automobiles, travel, boats, rise upward from this base.

Neither than being a crime, however, the situation Americans see evolving each day is a crime, a shortage of lendable money, a shortage of lendable money, a shortage of lendable money, a shortage of lendable money.

It's tough enough to get money at any time, but with an anti-inflation battle going on it could be impossible for some people and businesses and governments. Many of them will think it a crime.

Catholics Considering Membership In National Council of Churches

By BENNET M. BOLTON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishops of the United States have taken major steps toward official negotiations with the predominantly Protestant National Council of Churches for what could become a historic Christian alliance at the national level.

A small team of experts from both sides will be named in about a month to study administration of the Catholic Church into the council, it was learned.

The council is a voluntary fellowship of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox denominations with 44 million members.

The Roman Catholic Church, which has kept itself aloof from the council since it was formed in 1906, claims 47.4 million members.

Catholic inclusion in the council, still regarded as a few years away, would thus bring together the leaderships of 81.4 million of the estimated 126 million Christians in the United States.

The council holds annual meetings, elects officers and takes policy positions about secular issues but has no control over the creeds of its member churches.

Although the doctrinal and moral tenets of the member churches are not the council's concern, Catholic membership one day could cause difficulty in trying to develop a council stand on such matters as contraception, where Catholicism and the rest of Christianity sharply disagree.

District Plans Ladies Night

Completed plans for the 8th District Fire Department's 18th annual Ladies Night have been announced by co-chairmen Richard Golmeister and Robert Topf.

The event will be Saturday March 29, starting at 6:30 p.m. at the District Firehouse, Main and Hilliard Sts. A hot buffet will be served at 6:30 and cold cuts will be available throughout the evening.

Dancing to the music of Johnny Tryka will be from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Each lady will receive a gift and prizes will be awarded.

Golmeister and Topf have announced that the event is only for past and present members of the 8th District Fire Department and their ladies.

"To thank the loyal women who support their firefighters so well, they are willing to pay for a well-earned night out," said Golmeister.

Other members of the arrangements committee are Steven Lucas, Frederick Gagnon and Joseph Bernard.

Tickets are available from any of the committee members.

Lt. Col. A.J. Nealon said nine other confirmed cases of meningitis are now in the base hospital, but officials do not consider it an epidemic. Two noted died of the disease last year, Nealon said.

Stock Exchange To Be Relocated On Landfill Site

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange said Thursday it would make its first permanent move in more than 100 years to a landfill site to be built by the city in Manhattan's East River.

The exchange's board of governors authorized signing of a letter of intent with the City of New York for a 99-year lease on the new site.

It will be located at the east end of Wall Street, about five blocks from the present location at the corner of Wall and Broad streets in the heart of the financial district.

The NYSE said the project, which will cost an estimated $16 million, is slated for completion by 1970.

NYSE Board Chairman Gustave L. Levy and President Robert W. Hancock said in a letter to exchange members the building "must be completed by about 1970 if the exchange is to have the space and facilities it will need to keep functioning efficiently."

Plans for the new headquarters call for a 300,000-square-foot trading floor, more than triple the size of the present floor. The building will have the capacity for more than 8,000 persons, the number expected by 1960, the exchange said.

Space limitations at the exchange's present headquarters have forced it to lease additional space at six locations.

The exchange said it had outgrown its present headquarters, where it has been since 1903 due to an unprecedented increase in trading volume. The 1968 average daily volume was 12 million shares, more than double the 1965 average. Average daily volume of 17 million shares is expected by 1970.

Coventry

Mrs. Blick To Head Robertson School

Mrs. Stacia Blick, reading prep, following an executive specialist at the Robertson School, was named teacher-in-charge at the school, effective as stated in the letter as "person Monday, at last night's Board of Education meeting. Mrs. Blick will work with departing Superintendent Thomas Crane until he leaves on April 16. She will then remain in the post until the end of the school year. Crane submitted his resignation to the school board two weeks ago, and board member Paul Boardman last night asked that the reason for the resignation be stated publicly. Since there had been some confusion in the minds of townspeople, Crane's letter of resignation had said only that he was leaving to accept a better position. Board members also authorized hiring of a reading specialist on a part-time basis at the Robertson School, to replace Mrs. Blick. O'Connor will investigate the availability of such a teacher, and report back to the board for approval of actual hiring. Mrs. Sally Johnson, second grade teacher at Coventry Grammar School, submitted her resignation to the board last night, effective immediately. It was accepted with re-penditure for the year before. Finance board members want the fourth column to contain their recommendations for the coming year. School board members questioned the right of the board of finance to do this but no action was taken. Curriculum committee members Donald Kingsley, Zellan Feuerman, Jose A. Brainard and Mrs. Donald C. Smith reported to the Board of Education last night that work is progressing very nicely and the group, with all its sub-committees, should be ready to submit the final report to the school board on the target date, Oct. 24. Brainard said that all members are very enthusiastic about the task at hand, and are at- tending it "with real relish." The curriculum committee was formed last fall, charged with carrying out a thorough investigation of local curriculum in all grades, and coming up with recommendations on how to make improvements in offerings. James T. Laddlaw, former teacher at OCS and member of the local Conservation Commission, attended last night's board meeting, and showed slides of the nature trail at OCS, which he was instrumental in building over a period of several years. It was named in his honor last year. Laddlaw would like to see more extensive school and public use of the trail, which he feels is something for the town to brag about. He would like to see board encouragement of a special classroom use of the trail, and also its designation as an open space area. During his long teaching career here, Laddlaw encouraged a love of nature in his students, and promoted such projects as student planting of rose bushes along the fence at OCS. A lot of student work was incorporated into the nature trail also, with students tagging various specimens of trees and plants. Laddlaw feels the trail is unique, because of the variety of land there. With a brook going through, all sorts of wild life can be encouraged to come in. Concert Exchange The Coventry High School Symphonic Band will hold its exchange-combined Band concert March 29 with the Allen-dale, N. J., High School Band. The event will be held at the Coventry High School gymnasium at 8 p.m., and tickets at $1 per person will be available at the door. Coventry Music Director Carl J. Salina announced that the music festival will feature no less than five performing groups that will provide a musical range from the 16th century to the present day. Feature groups will be the Allendale Concert and Dance Bands, the Coventry Concert and Dance Bands and a finale of a 10-piece Combined Coventry-Allendale Concert Band. Salina said that "the young musicians from both bands have been working quite hard for the past two months and that an enthusiastic audience would be appreciated to support these fine young musicians." Pie Sale The North Coventry Volunteer Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary will hold a pie sale tomorrow starting at 10 a.m. at Allen's Supermarket, Rt. 44A, just east of the Coventry-Bolton town line. Pies will be priced at $1 and $1.25, according to size, and the sale will last until all the pies are sold. Manchester Evening Herald Coventry correspondent Holly Gantner, tel. 742-8785.

'Lock It—Pocket the Key' Anti-Car Theft Group Mounting Campaign

Within 150 miles of New York City, you can turn on a radio and hear this: "What do they call a person who doesn't lock his car?" Answer: "A pedestrian." Or, "George, George! I told you to lock the car." Answer: "Shut up and keep walking." It's not radio comedy. It's a small part of the biggest campaign against auto theft ever initiated in a single part of the country. The goal of the experiment is to cut auto theft, a large and growing problem across the nation but particularly in and around New York City. In the city, and adjacent major urban counties 120,000 cars were taken last year. Eight million more are unlocked and out of 10 had keys in the ignition. The slogan, "Lock it and pocket the key" is bombarding eyes and ears from all media. The campaign is a pilot project of the Anti-Car Theft Committee of the National Automobile Theft Bureau. Eighteen major insurance companies finance the bureau. William Boone, a transplanted New Yorker now living in Chicago and spokesman for the committee, said, "In 1967, 655,000 autos were stolen in the United States. In 1968, the figure went up to 818,000. We're projecting a figure of one million stolen cars for 1969. "About 60 to 70 per cent were taken by joy riders, mostly youths—a lot of them from deprived neighborhoods, but not all. The rest of the problem is professional thieves," he added. "There is little we can do about the professional, but we know we can have an effect on the joyrider."

South Africa Ignores Withdrawal Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — South Africa indicated Thursday night it would pay no more attention to a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for it to withdraw from South-West Africa than it has to a similar demand from the General Assembly.

The council called for the withdrawal in a resolution adopted 13-0, with Britain and France abstaining.

"I can't see that this resolution has any meaning," South African Ambassador Matthias J. Botha said.

The government holds that the General Assembly acted illegally by Oct. 27, 1966, when it declared that South Africa's League of Nations mandate over the big territory had been terminated.

The council resolution asks Secretary-General U Thant to report as soon as possible on implementation of the assembly resolution. This is expected to take three months. U Thant will begin another assembly meeting in June to determine upon necessary steps to be taken, according to the council resolution.

Zambian Ambassador Vernon Johnson Mwanaga told the council the resolution's language did not exclude a boycott or use of force against South Africa.

But U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost said the resolution "wisely does not commit the council to the narrow path of mandatory sanctions," which would be the United States' vote for it.

The United States has favored negotiations with South Africa in an effort to get it to leave the territory it seized from Germany during World War I. But black African members felt U.S. support of the resolution would make the United States more susceptible to pressure for forceful action against South Africa.

British, Biafran Chiefs Unlikely To Meet

LAGOS (AP) — A Biafran spokesman today ruled out the possibility of a meeting between British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Biafran chief of state Odumegwu Ojukwu.

Wilson told the "house of Commons" Thursday night a meeting "would not be ruled out if circumstances appeared to be favorable" when he visits Nigeria next week.

But Heugr Ebe, information commissioner of Biafra, called any suggestion of a meeting "nonsense, adding: 'Wilson can't ever be a mediator. How can you have the enemy coming to negotiate?'

Wilson is arriving in Nigeria Thursday for talks with Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, head of the federal state, and there have been reports he secretly had been checking chances of a meeting with Ojukwu. The reports indicated Wilson's efforts to meet with the rebel leader for Gowon's approval.

Enemy Steps Up Pace of Attacks

In an attempt to catch the escaping enemy, more than 60 B-52 bombers pounded the area north of the plantation with over 1,200 tons of explosives.

One shelling apparently seriously damaged the U.S. Marine base at Chuoi Lal, south of Da Nang, where several squadrons of fighter-bombers are based.

The Foreign Office said today the request had been turned over to the National Museum.

Michelle rubber plantation where more than 300,000 Americans are trying to root out an estimated 7,500 North Vietnamese troops.

The U.S. Embassy has refused to comment on the controversy stemming from charges by a columnist for the Manila Chronicle that the wealthy ambassador and his wife were buying up cultural treasures to take home with them.

The columnist said the couple purchased a number of artifacts at a public bazaar held at the embassy residence.

Only one major contact was reported today in the big U.S. counteroffensive, known as Operation Atlas Wedge.

The North Vietnamese cut into Patton's tanks and armored personnel carriers fired 50-caliber machine guns.

The headquarters said one American was killed and 12 wounded, but damage to the armor was moderate.

Military spokesmen said the Atlas Wedge force now has U.S. international day for the elimination of racial discrimination, commemorating the signing of the Sharpeville Manifesto in South Africa in 1960.

Foster Grandparents

Their Contribution Is Love

Each grandparent is assigned to two children. The first two hours in the morning are spent with one, the last two hours with the other.

"They understand better and they do things better like coloring, playing games and other things," said Mrs. Rose Sapienza about her months at Manchester. "I enjoy being with them because I know it makes them happy too," she added.

Miss Christine Phillips, who joined the Foster Grandparent program after she retired from Fruit and Whitney foods that it is "just wonderful how these children can learn when time, money, efforts, love and affection are available." Miss Phillips plays the piano and has taught her children to sing and say rhymes.

Mrs. Ann Richards believes that "both girls and boys win in a program like this, and the grandparent too."

Some real successes have been achieved since July, Mrs. Ethel Moore was assigned to a profoundly retarded child with multiple handicaps and sight deficiencies. He never smiled, and could not walk or talk. She spent many weeks reading to the youngster, and just recently he smiled and said "no-no-no."

Francis P. Kelley, superintendent of the school said "all of the foster grandparents enjoy meeting their children each day. Mrs. Mildred Hayes said that "when a little boy runs to greet you with a big smile and ready to go with you, a brighter day begins for me."

One of the two foster grandmothers is a delightful group of people and an asset to Manchester. Robert A. Hayward, assistant director of residential care said "One makes me feel our efforts are not in vain."

Grandma Winifred Fleming said that "it is a real challenge and delight to help watch the progress of the child, and it is a job ideally suited for the senior citizens who need earning capacity that they might live in dignity and well-being."

Happy as the foster grandmothers are at being assigned to Manchester, the training school is equally delighted to have them.

Laird 'Shoots Down' Controversial FB111

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Pentagon leadership has all but shot down the FB111 strategic bomber program. The chief Robert S. McNamara insisted would be a good replacement for aging B-52 bombers.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told Congress Wednesday he is cutting plans for the swing-wing jet to only four squadrons—nominal 60 planes.

Three years ago McNamara was proposing 200 FB111s—variants of the controversial TFX design—contending it would be about as good, and less expensive, as any other advanced bomber the Air Force could develop to haul its nuclear bombs in the 1970s.

Laird made plain he was buying the four squadrons mainly to recover something from the vast funds spent on the program — "to salvage what we can of the work in process," as he put it.

Despite months of work, Laird said, the FB111 "is still experiencing difficulties and the cost per aircraft continues to mount. The FB111 will not meet the requirements for a true intercontinental bomber."

Pentagon officials said the 60 planes will cost $1.7 billion over-all, which includes heavy research and development expenses. McNamara originally estimated 200 models would cost $1.9 billion.

Laird said he would accelerate efforts to develop a completely new nuclear-equipped plane the Air Force calls the Advanced Medium Strategic Aircraft—AMSA.

Laird proposed spending $100 million to move forward the scale engineering development for an AMSA in the next fiscal year.

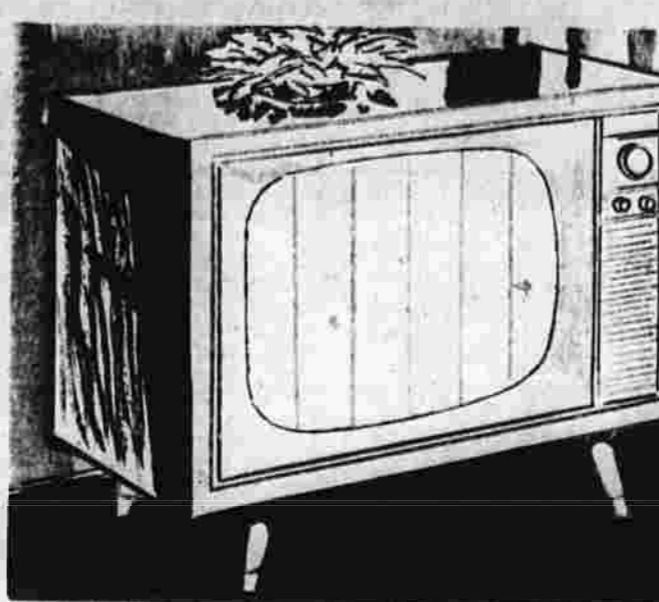

The FB111 trimming was the latest setback to McNamara's program for halting development of the services develop the planes they needed from a basic design.

The Navy tried to buy a carrier-based fighter, the F11B, from the TFX design but jumbled the program after months of development difficulties and spending more than $20 million.

The Air Force fighter-bomber version, the F11A, is coming along with fewer problems although it has created during tests, combat trials in Southeast Asia and training flights. The Air Force says F11A bugs will be worked out and that it wants the plane.

Laird apparently is also satisfied the F11A will be an asset in the Air Force inventory. Pentagon officials say he has approved a force level of more than 400 F11As, about the same

Bolton
Town Parents To Attend
Manchester Drug Program

Dr. Robert K. Butterfield, school health officer, has obtained permission for Bolton parents to attend the program, "Drugs and Narcotics," which will be the subject of a three-part series presented in April at Hill Junior High School in Manchester. It is sponsored by Manchester Adult Evening School in cooperation with the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the Hill Junior High School Parent Teachers Organization.

All concerned adults, especially parents of young people, are urged to attend. These programs have been planned to follow up on the discussion sponsored last November by the Adult Evening School. Leaders with specialized knowledge of narcotic topics have been invited for each of the three sessions.

The three parts of the seminar, for which there will be no charge, will take place in the Hill Junior High School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m.

On April 2 Frank Vogel of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, State Department of Education, will lead discussion on "The Drug Problem and How to Deal with It." He will be accompanied by a former addict.

On April 9 Allan Cone, principal of Bennett Junior High, and A. Raymond Rogers, principal of Manchester High, will lead discussion on "What Manchester Public Schools Are Presently Doing and Future Plans to Cope with the Problem."

On April 16 two students from the University of Connecticut School of Pharmacy will lead the discussion on "Why Young People Get Involved in Drug Abuse."

Bolton
Democrat Opens Campaign,
Scoring 'One-Party Rule'

Raymond J. Negro, Democratic candidate for first selectman, has called for "an end to one-party rule in Bolton," thus firing the first shot in the Democratic campaign. The town election will be May 5.

Negro called the 40 year Republican reign "an unhealthy situation" and predicted that the people of Bolton are ready for a change in the way they are governed.

The Democratic candidate, who was born in Bolton 27 years ago, is the son of the late Joseph and Mrs. Leodiana Negro who owned a vegetable and dairy farm on Rt. 85. For 27 years, Raymond, with his two brothers, George, and Gilbert, operated the Bolton Dairy. For the past seven years the brothers have continued the partnership in joint ownership of the Bolton Lake Hotel on Rt. 44.

Negro is married to the former Messeaux Sullivan and the couple has three children, a son and two daughters. He has been active in community affairs, the Democratic candidate for selectman and the school checker. They live on Hebron Rd. with their three daughters, Debbie, 14, Julie, 11, and Susan, 8. Active in community affairs, the Democratic candidate is a member of the Democratic Town Committee, the Manchester Elks and the Rockville Rotary Club. In the past he has been a member of the Public Building Commission and the Planning Commission. The Negro family are communicants of St. Maurice's Church in Bolton.

In commenting on the need for a change, Negro said, "In my 42 years in Bolton, I can't remember ever seeing anything but a small clique of 'in-Republicans' controlling the town. The blame for Bolton's present crisis can be laid right at the door of these few Republicans who have ruled Bolton all these years."

"For too long," Negro continued, "the people have been led down the path of higher and higher local taxes. But now, with 50 per cent of our citizens new to the town within the past 10 years, there is an increasing demand for a fair return on the high taxes they pay. They are no longer apathetic, no longer content to sit back and let a few individuals run the town."

Negro then listed some questions he would like answered: "1. Why does Bolton, overburdened with high homeowner taxes, discourage rather than encourage the growth of income producing enterprises?" "2. Why have the town leaders not been more active in seeking assistance—both financial and advisory—on the state and federal level?"

"3. Why does Bolton have one of the highest per pupil cost ratios in the state—especially when our children have inadequate facilities in reading, music, art and physical education, not to mention the high school's lack of a cafeteria or auditorium."

"4. Although the auditor's report every year is highly critical of the town's budget proposal,

How did the modernized system come through a severe winter's test? "It heats up beautifully," Mr. Beveridge says, and we're never cold between cycles. It's an even heat."
"Electric heat is quiet," Mrs. Beveridge adds, "and it's clean. I don't have to dust so often. Now we have sufficient hot water. We could never go back to the system we had before!"
There are many different electric heating systems. Check with your plumbing or electric heating contractor or HELCO for the one to fit your home.

In Pacific Worth $500 Million Unproven Tales Complicate Realignment of Air Routes

By G. C. GREEN JR. Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a series of political and counter-political moves, the Federal Aviation Administration today announced that it would not approve a proposed realignment of air routes in the Pacific worth $500 million.

The plan involves four new routes that would cut out one-way flights to Hawaii, the Orient, Southeast Asia and the South Pacific.

Talk of the alleged plot, circulating in the Washington news halls, came to the attention of transportation officials for President-elect Nixon.

It goes like this: The Nixon administration's decision stimulated published stories of alleged presidential campaign.

The story of the trans-Pacific air route began in 1966 when the government set the pattern of U.S. airlines routes in the Pacific.

Northwest Airlines flies the North Pacific to Japan and neighboring countries; Pan American Airways makes the same journey via a Central Pacific route through Hawaii.

All other domestic trunk airlines were left out, and now all but one—New England-based Northeast—bicker for a share of the routes.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, an independent federal agency which regulates domestic air routes and operations, explained the airlines' "bitterness" this way: "They are among the fastest growing, most underdeveloped, least competitive, highest priced and most profitable international air markets in the world."

In 1960, the CAB recommended expansion of Pacific service, but while its decision on domestic service are not subject to executive approval, the President has the final say in international route cases.

President Eisenhower vetoed the recommendation, citing foreign policy considerations, namely vigorous objections by the Japanese government to any additional competition for the quasi-government Japan Air Lines.

The CAB began its second attempt at realignment of Pacific routes in 1967. For 10 months, it held hearings extended for months, involved 16 airline applicants with hundreds of witnesses, and resulted in thousands of pages of testimony.

He pointed out further that the CAB began its second attempt at realignment of Pacific routes in 1967. For 10 months, it held hearings extended for months, involved 16 airline applicants with hundreds of witnesses, and resulted in thousands of pages of testimony.

the only 5-2 Democratic vote by the CAB was the award to American Airlines. That's the one the President vetoed.

Now for the alleged counterplot. This theory holds that Pan Am, which opposes any new competition in the Pacific, and the Johnson decision and "allowing Nixon to make the realignment of air routes in the Pacific."

Some months later, however, when the five-man CAB sent its decision to the White House, different carriers had been selected.

While adopting Park's framework of routes, the board instead of the Pacific and Atlantic International Airways and Continental Air Lines for Eastern routes on the South Pacific leg.

On Dec. 19, President Johnson adopted the CAB's recommendations. He vetoed American Airlines' route to Tokyo. Like Eisenhower, Johnson was prompted by alleged objections of all-Party competition for Japan Air.

The storm broke. The industry burst with indignation. It argued that airlines employing large numbers of Johnson's routes had been favored by the board and by the President.

The "rainmakers" were some new responsibility, it was said for the board's revision of Eisenhower Park's "model" decision.

Executives of Texas-based Transair include Johnson aide Walter Jenkins. Another White House aide, Joseph Callano, has joined a Washington law firm that represents Transair.

But a Nixon administration source said Gov. Rockefeller never said the slightest thing to us about the case.

A final facet of the counterplot theory holds that Eastern and Pan Am, which stand benefit most from any review simply because they were the big losers in the Johnson decision.

"None of the people listed as rainmakers ever came in to make rain," he said. President Johnson, being fully aware of the sensitivity of the case, avoided talking to any congressmen or airline representatives about it, the source said.

"The rainmaker talk perpetuates a myth that anything that comes to the attention of the White House is a conspiracy of officials with whom he is in touch," the lawyer said. Any argument to any additional competition for the quasi-government Japan Air Lines.

What do they represent? Logos, slogans, signs, and then one could imagine the artist didn't know. A "house show" is being held this month at the home of Mrs. Hayes' sister in Washington, D.C.

Downstairs, a Hayes rug lay on the living room floor. The texture of yarn seemed to mite the design, and the colors—black, white, yellow, green, blue, and red—were so vibrant, it seemed to bleed. The rug was comfortable. Like the few pieces of metal sculpture found casual.

Orval Faubus Gets License To Marry

BALTIM. Ark. (AP) — Orval E. Faubus, the former six-term Arkansas governor who was divorced three weeks ago, obtained a marriage license here Thursday. County Clerk L. W. Love said.

There was no indication of when a marriage might take place. The license was listed for Faubus, 59, and Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland, a native of Hallowell, Mass., who had lived at Duluth, Minn., and Madison, Wis. The license lists her age as 40.

The Rev. Daniel Bowen of St. Alphonsus College, Safford, is officiating at the ceremony. Mrs. Westmoreland, a divorcee with children ages 8 and 10, moved to Little Rock in 1967 and was a member of the Democratic party television show.

The former governor and his wife are both in the construction industry. Faubus did not contest the suit, which was handled for Mrs. Farrell Faubus.

Town, Union Sign Two-Year Contract

Town and union officials yesterday signed a two-year contract which gives an 8 per cent pay raise in each of the next two years to all town employees except police, firemen, teachers and supervisory personnel. The agreement, approved by the Board of Directors Tuesday night, is with Local 981, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO. The other town employees are covered under other negotiated contracts. The agreement provides an 8 per cent raise for hourly rated employees, and two year raises equaling 8 per cent (one July 1 of the other Nov. 1) for salaried employees. It provides for pension, vesting rights after five years employment (if low is 10 years), and provides for pension contributions based on total earnings, including overtime. Premiums, including overtime, are computed on base pay only. The weekly work week for employees of the engineering department will be raised to 40, from its present 35. Those employees will receive an additional 14 per cent pay hike, to compensate for the increased work week. The contract removes five municipal positions from union bargaining negotiations — the executive secretary to the town manager, the secretary to the town clerk, the personnel technician, and the two engineering assistants. The changes are on the basis that the first three are confidential positions, and the other two are supervisory.

1969 Band Concert Better Than Usual

David Ostrom, Editor, is seen playing the trumpet during the 1969 band concert.

Slave Day Big Success

David Ostrom, Editor, is seen in costume during the Slave Day event.

It would seem that the 1969 band concert was indeed a magnificent success. The annual Band Concert, held last Wednesday evening, was far superior to the concerts of the past few years, both in selection of numbers and their performance. Director Stephen Podgorick chose a wide variety of selections, including a few marches and light pieces as well as some very sophisticated and very different in concept.

Although the opening number, a Sousa march, was rather unimpressive, the following "Bugles in the Sky" by John Williams, featuring trumpet soloist Gary Farrell, David Hanefeld and Michael Wegman was of outstanding quality. This was followed by a more difficult — and somewhat less successful — polka by Westwood in "Bluebird." "Overture, a very difficult piece, was, however, done very well. The AHS Banders joined the band for one number with some interesting choreography and baton-twirling.

The second portion of the concert contained some of the most and some of the least rewarding selections. A woodwind quartet was featured in "The Four Seasons" by Vivaldi. Unfortunately, this piece dragged and the quartet in this respect was somewhat far from the other brass quartet did much better, however, having better material and time. The highlight of the evening was a Mozart concerto, performed by Sirka Johnson on flute, accompanied by Barbara Kelly on piano. It was indeed a magnificent performance. Sirka played off the complete title and was like a maestro. It was a delight to listen to her.

The Round Table Singers, conducted by Miss Martha White, contributed three numbers to the concert. They were a disappointment. The words could not be understood and there were many errors in the music. Their performance showed a definite lack of preparation.

The last section of the concert was very rewarding. Student conductor Steve Lewkowicz directed one number which the band did well. A long and difficult suite for military band was, considering its difficulty, done very well indeed. An arrangement of Gertrude's "Happily Ever After" by Westwood, a very difficult piece, was, however, done very well. The concert was quickly closed with a Tijuana Brass number, done with style.

On the whole, it was a good concert. I cannot help but feel, though, that with more preparation it could have been a lot better. The selections showed a good taste and an interest in the audience; in fact, the concert in this respect was most certainly last Christmas. With work to work with, the band we have now could be made really standing. I think that this last concert has demonstrated that the potential is there.

Who ever thought that there would be a day when MSB would actually have a slave market? Well, on Thursday, March 13, MSB held a legitimate slave day, where 400 visiting females and 200 male males sold themselves to the highest bidder.

Considering the fringes benefits, such as a free ticket for the master and his slave to the sports dance held Friday night, a minimum of $1 and a maximum of $25 was placed upon each slave.

With Doreen DeCormier acting as the auctioneer, the guys, the master and his slave as quickly as the girls, whose estimated auctioneer was Bob Dixon.

The bidding was generally heavy with several buyers paying for two or more slaves. The tasks of the slaves included such chores as carrying books, providing transportation, opening doors, accompanying the master on a date or just about any duty asked for.

Slave Day proved to be a huge success for the Student Council, measured by the large number of participants and the income raised.

Tests Yield New Staff For Somanhis

The University of Hartford in cooperation with the Talbot Mountain Science Center for Student Development will conduct a six-week Secondary Science Institute Program for high-ability secondary school students in the sciences of Astronomy, Earth Science, Meteorology, and Radio-electronics. Thirty students will be chosen to participate in the program, which will run from July 7 through August 15. Further details are available in the Guidance Office.

Students who plan to take the ACT examination on April 28 are reminded that applications must be received in Chicago by Monday, March 24.

The new staff was chosen on the basis of these questions, and on the background of each ready obtained. Such background included knowledge of photography and film processing by new photographers. For other members it meant taking part in art courses and having typing ability and finally availability to work on Somanhis during study halls and school.

The new members of the staff are as follows: Karen Veder, Nancy Roben, Barbara Goss and Kathy Havinitsky, all '70; new photographers are Toby Welch, Denise Bell, Lea Perry and Mike Cornish, all '71, and the members doing the art, typing and writing are Chris Benson, Bruce Rogers, Carl Oiler, Cheryl Schaefer, James Reuter, Bob Hurwitz, Sue Pierce and Julie Wells, all '71.

All of these new members have begun a training period in which they will learn the terminology and just how the Somanhis is put together. Each member of the present staff will train a new member in his respective area. By June, all major decisions will have been made and the opening section should be done.

New Course Offers Summer School—Change of Scenery Not Just Classes

What do you suppose your parents would say if they were to walk into their house, after a student for different arrangements in the living room, engaged in a newspaper, and tries to sit in his easy chair which has been moved to another spot along with the rest of the furniture?

These are the possibilities in the new course. Why? Because there is a new course in Middle-Interior Decorating, with a present enrollment of 20 girls and boys.

Previously called Home Furnishings, the class has greatly increased its enrollment since the change of name. In fact, many students have been turned away.

Studios include making a floor plan of their own bedrooms, Tuesday, Porter School of Engineering Design, Rocky Hill, Conn. 3rd period; Willington College, New Canaan, Delaware, 10:30.

Other periods are spent in design plans in two dimension on graph paper. This enables each student to cut out the pieces of furniture for different arrangements in the living room, engaged in a newspaper, and tries to sit in his easy chair which has been moved to another spot along with the rest of the furniture.

For those interested in Interior Decorating, or for all prospective homeowners this course is a worthwhile one.

Guidance Notes

Representatives visiting MSB during the week of March 24-30 are:

Monday, Windham College, Fraxley Vermont at 10:30; Bradford Junior College, Bradford, Mass., 2nd period.

Tuesday, Porter School of Engineering Design, Rocky Hill, Conn. 3rd period; Willington College, New Canaan, Delaware, 10:30.

Wednesday, Hartwick College, Oneonta, New York, at 9:30; Park College, Kansas City, Missouri, 4th period; Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., 6th period.

Thursday, Aetna Insurance Company, Elm Street, Hartford (Senior girls — employment opportunities after graduation) 2nd period.

Friday, Art Institute of Boston (formerly the School of Practical Art), Boston, at 1:30. Tests Upcoming: The College Board SAT and Achievements testing dates in May. The registration deadline at Princeton is April 8.

The Annual Teacher Recruitment Program for Juniors interested in teaching will be held from Tuesday, April 8, through Friday, April 11. To participate, Juniors must be passing in all subjects with at least a "C" or better and will be responsible for making up all work missed during these four days. Interested and eligible Juniors must have signed up in the Guidance Office by Friday, March 21, and must attend a meeting next Monday March 24, at 2:30 in the Cafeteria.

Application forms for the Manchester Scholarship Foundation are available in the Guidance Office.

Teen-Parent Relationship Panel Topic

The lack of communication between teenagers and their parents, today's changing values, parent communication, drugs, sex, and the draft were a few of the problems of the Generation Gap which were presented in a panel discussion at a meeting of the Salisbury School PTA.

The panel consisted of six speakers from Mr. David Gibson's 8th period English class. The speakers were: Cailie Albair, Dave Fletcher, Dean LaCos, Roy Miller, and panel Chairman Harold Sandals. Additionally presented their ideas on a segment of the Generation Gap problems, English and one other. Most of the studies are designed as orientation to college and give college credits.

The parents were concerned about changing values in many of these summer study programs are available in the Guidance Office.

Most of the students thought the play was quite authentic and interesting. They found it easier to understand and to follow than the written play, even though the movie was excellent in poetic form. Many thought the costumes and settings made the movie more realistic. Some felt as if they were there during the duel between Mercutio and Tybalt, the duel between Romeo and Tybalt, the fantastic party at the House of Capulet, the death of Mercutio, the death of Romeo as he takes the poison and of Juliet as she takes the poison and of Juliet as she takes the poison.

These were the words heard by some 200 students and five faculty members who watched the play at the Burnside Theatre. This movie was seen as a sup- every girl had tears in her eye.

Students See Romeo, Juliet

"O Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou Romeo? Dost thou love me? Or dost thou love thy name, or is it just the dead beetle's name, or is it just the name of a Capulet?"

A bill, raising the membership of the Connecticut Mental Health Advisory Commission from its present seven to the proposed nine, was adopted by the legislature yesterday.

Boggin, a member of the legislature's Public Health and Safety Committee, moved for its passage and spoke in favor of the bill yesterday.

He explained that the bill, introduced by the medical profession, would provide for better representation throughout the state on the advisory commission, and would make it easier for it to get a quorum for meetings.

The commission advises the director of the New Haven Mental Health Center in carrying out his duties and assisting him in making policy.

Boggin said today that he is in favor of a bill pertaining to podiatrists, still being considered by the Public Health and Safety Committee.

The bill, introduced in the past several sessions of the legislature, and always opposed successfully by the medical profession, would permit podiatrists to prescribe and use pain killers.

From all indications and from comments made by top legislators in the present session, the proposed budget, accompanied by the state income tax proposal which was not adopted by the current State Assembly.

A cut of $20 million or more is expected in Gov. Dempsey's proposed budget, accompanied by equivalent cuts in his proposed tax measures.

The State Assembly yesterday adopted two resolutions pertaining to Manchester.

The first expressed the deepest sympathy of the legislators to the parents of the late Kenneth Lavine Jr. of Manchester. He was killed in action Feb. 26 in Vietnam.

The resolution was introduced jointly by all four of Manchester's legislators—Sen. Stephen Barry, and State Reps. N. Charis Boggin, Francis Mahoney and Mark Genovese.

The second resolution, introduced by Barry and Boggin, congratulates the Town of Manchester on receiving a Distinguished Service Award for cleanliness from the National Congress of Beautification.

Manchester was one of only eight New England towns and cities to receive the award. The town's entry was submitted by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, which compiled a scrap book of beautification projects in 1966.

From all indications and from comments made by top legislators in the present session, the proposed budget, accompanied by the state income tax proposal which was not adopted by the current State Assembly.

ACCIDENTS
Patricia Oshman, 617 N. Main St., was charged with failure to carry a license yesterday, after police stopped her car on Buckland Rd. Police said they stopped her car because it appeared to be travelling at a fast rate of speed. Court date March 21.

A car driven by John H. Coyle, 24 of Glantonbury, jumped the curb in the Parkside parking lot, near the Parkside Bowling Lanes, at 2:08 this morning, and plunged down into a deep gulley, where it came to rest. Coyle, and a passenger, Peter L. Palucci, 26 of East Hartford, were taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital by ambulance where they were treated and discharged. The car was towed.

A two-car accident occurred yesterday at 3:16 p.m. in the Stop & Shop parking lot. The drivers were Ruth Lichtenwalder of Toland and Nancy Lester of 125 Main St. The latter car carried two passengers, one of them a one-year-old girl; no one was hurt.

A microaccident was reported yesterday at 4:15 p.m. on Wells St. The driver was Peter T. Murphy of Pittsford, Mass., and Warren J. Chandler of 86 Wells St.

Police received a report from Mrs. Frances Richards of 522 W. Middle Tpk., yesterday, that her garage had been broken into, but she was not sure when. Mrs. Richards said nothing was missing.

Mrs. Frank J. Ansdler, 158 Vernon St., complained to police that two newspaper delivery boys and a wooden cabinet in their home had been left on her doorstep recently. Mrs. Ansdler said this furniture had been constantly in the neighborhood.

Nixons Weekending On Pacific Coast

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon and Mrs. Pat Nixon are expected to arrive today to visit the state of California where he is thinking about buying a home and building a library to house his official papers.

The President and Mrs. Nixon, who flew here Friday, are quartered in a borrowed mansion in San Clemente, a seaside town on the Pacific Coast.

The "Nixons' five-bedroom, Spanish-style weekend home, an early-guarded dwelling on a point of land bordered on one side by the ocean and reachable by only a long, dead end private drive.

The chief executive, already known for seeking a summer White House in Southern California, also is considering selection of a site in the same general area for a library to house his presidential and vice-presidential papers.

The Nixons planned to drive seven miles to the San Juan Capistrano Mission and then have lunch at a nearby Mediterranean restaurant that was one of their favorite dining spots.

Among those who flew to Southern California with the Nixons Friday were Secretary of State and Mrs. William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, special assistant for national security affairs.

Asked why these foreign policy aides had made the trip, press secretary Ronald Ziegler said, "The President likes to use the time in flight for conversations."

Confident He'll Get ABM. Laird Proves Cool In Senate Grilling.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has emerged from Senate grilling with the image of a cool, dogged performer and an unshaken conviction he can win the White House case for a revised missile defense system.

But the question of whether anyone came out ahead in the administration's first Capitol Hill presentation of arguments for a Safeguard antiballistic missile ABM system remains to be seen.

Laird wound up three days of testimony Friday with a six-hour nationally televised appearance before the Senate defense subcommittee, a focal point of Senate ABM opposition.

Through it all, Laird smiled often, answering with methodical, well-rehearsed sentences that struck a balance between the metallic, statistic-filled testimony of former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara and the dogged repetition of policy that Secretary of State Dean Rusk displayed.

"The Soviets are going for a first-strike capability that can't be stopped," Laird said. "This is a deadly serious question, but he said at other points when he brought serious questions to the fore."

Laird's testimony was a mix of the dramatic and the technical. He spoke of the "pentagon knows it's not much good," said Arkansas' J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sharp Fighting Swirls On 3 Sides of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Sharp fighting swirled on three sides of Saigon today following 30 overnight rocket attacks on allied towns and bases. Five commandos were alerted to be ready for an expected "high point" of enemy activity around the capital this week.

Allied forces reported killing 12 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in four battles north, south and east of Saigon. U.S. casualties were six killed and nine wounded, and South Vietnamese losses were six killed and 48 wounded.

All the U.S. casualties resulted from one four-hour fight in the Mekong Delta, 40 miles south of Saigon, when a Viet Cong force attacked 150 American troops of the U.S. 9th Division in night positions around the provincial capital of Phu Tho.

The infantrymen called in artillery and helicopter gunships for support. The gunships destroyed the bodies of a Viet Cong force.

On the outskirts of Tay Ninh City, 61 miles northwest of Saigon, 400 North Vietnamese paratroopers fought a two-hour battle with North Vietnamese units and claimed killing 40. Casualties were five killed and 30 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the paratroopers also set a mortar tube, an anti-aircraft machine gun and two bazooka-type rockets.

In another fight 100 miles east of Saigon more than 100 enemy soldiers attacked a government military headquarters shortly after midnight. Spokesmen said 100 enemy soldiers were killed and 2,616 the number of the fourth attack.

The fourth attack involved Air Cavalrymen of the 1st Division participating in Operation Atlas Wedge, a 10,000-man U.S. counteroffensive aimed at preventing an assault on Saigon.

One unit was killed and another was wounded when the plane was downed in the central highlands 28 miles northwest of Kontum City. Five men were killed when the helicopter was downed 70 miles northwest of Saigon.

U.S. headquarters said 300 North Vietnamese were killed from the latest round of shelling when "light" Wedges began Tuesday, but the head of the enemy force estimated at 1,200 men. The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were pulled out of the operation today and an officer said: "It may be that they will not be able to do it right now."

More than 40 U.S. B29 bombers dropped 1,300 tons of explosives in a delayed report, heading toward an enemy sapper platoon of about 30 men based north of An Loc, aimed at catching North Vietnamese troops who may have pulled back to jungle base camps in War Zone C.

The U.S. Command reported an enemy observation post and a helicopter were shot down Friday. It failed to add the number of fixed-wing aircraft lost in the war and 2,453 the number of choppers lost.
