Weiss, Hennigan Must Fit Appropriations to Needs

The $18,610,355 General Fund budget for 1969-70, adopted Wednesday by the Board of Directors, has brought similar comments from Town Manager Robert Weiss and School Superintendent Donald Hennigan.

Both said that they will have to study the appropriations and determine how best to fit them to their needs. The budget provides a $11 million increase for school purposes and a $266,000 increase for municipal services.

However, it is approximately $438,000 less than requested by Hennigan for the schools and approximately $487,000 less than requested by Weiss for the various municipal services.

Weiss said that he is reviewing the detailed budget, "to see how it fits in with our plans." "While it's true that my recommended budget has been cut," he said, "I will always accept and live within a budget adopted by the Board of Directors."

Weiss said that he is pleased that the board went along with his recommendations for added man-power, "particularly in the police and fire departments." (The police department has funds for three more patrolmen and a mechanic helper. The Town Fire Department has funds for three more firefighters.)

Hennigan said, "I will have to re-consult with the principals who, in turn, will have to re-assess their needs, in light of the final figures allowed."

He declined to comment on the effect of the school appropriation voted by the directors. "I have said many things about what I consider to be the needs, not only as I see them, but also as others see them," he said. "And, I made many statements concerning how we could meet some of those needs. I needn't add to those statements now."

"I recommended a budget to the Board of Education. The Board of Education, in turn, recommended a budget to the town manager. That budget, in my estimation, was a good budget."

Immediately following Wednesday's adoption of the 1969-70 budget, Robert Von Deck, president of the Manchester Education Association (MEA), issued a statement, saying that he was "extremely disappointed with the majority (Republican) party."

"With the majority party accepting the manager's school cut," he said, "I believe the school situation will remain critical. Many school proposals will have to be cut."

Von Deck is a member of the Republican Town Committee.

Manchester Area Vernon Home Burglarized

More than $200 worth of articles were taken from the home of Robert Phelps of Dockery Rd., Vernon sometime yesterday after entry was gained through a front basement door, Vernon Police said today.

Phelps discovered the break when he returned to his home at 8:45 p.m.

Karen G. Pfanstiel of Rt. 87, Andover attempted to drive past the truck driven by Thomas Berwick, 43, of Thompsonville yesterday morning on London Rd. but struck the truck.

There were no injuries but she is charged with improper passing and will appear in Circuit Court 11 in Williamstown June 3, according to state police in Colchester.

The car driven by Robbin Patten, 19, of Ellington last night on the Wilbur Cross Highway was taken into the center guard rail.

The driver, Miss Lorraine A. Smith, address undisclosed, was taken by Tolland ambulance to Rockville General Hospital where she was treated for back pains and discharged.

Patten was charged with failure to drive in the established lane but no court date has been set yet, according to state police in Stafford.

John D. Lucia of Baker Rd. lost control of the car she was driving on the Wilbur Cross Highway yesterday near Tunnel Rd. and the car ran up an embankment and rolled over, according to state police in Stafford.

There were no injuries but she was charged with speeding and will appear in Circuit Court 12 in Rockville June 3.

Both cars were towed from the scene of a two-car collision yesterday afternoon at Rt. 30 and Merline Dr. after Rhonda G. Hutchins of 22 Lewis St., Rockville drove into the path of the car driven by Joan O'Reilly of 18 Olson Dr., of Ellington on West St., police said.

Hutchins was given a written warning for driving to the left of center.

Lois DeCarl of 16 Grant St., Rockville was charged with making an illegal left turn last night after the car she was driving collided with the car driven by Kenneth Graves, 16, of Ellington on West St., police said.

There were no injuries but both cars were towed away and she will appear in court May 27 in Rockville.

Ronald Slomczynski, 18, of 25 West Rd., South Windsor was charged with passing a traffic light last night, police said.

He was arrested at the intersection of West St. and South Windsor St. on May 27.

Martin School Atmosphere Is Electric

Many people have been getting a charge out of the Richard Martin School this year. The current problem in the building opened last September, is caused by static electricity when teachers and pupils walk on the wool carpeting, and then touch a door knob, light switch, or chalk tray.

It has given them quite a start, especially during the winter, when artificial heat and closed windows drop the humidity below 30.

A few experiences taught teachers and pupils to adapt to the situation. Now they slip the metal before making a firm touch.

The problem sparked a request for further information from the Town Building Committee to Richard Mankey, Assessor, who designed the school.

The architectural firm gave two solutions. One is to replace the carpeting with a new type containing an interwoven metal thread that grounds the individual. The other is to apply a chemical spray that reduces, if not eliminates, the force of the impact. The spray must be replaced at intervals.

Mankey's report was confirmed by David LaBau of the West Hartford architectural firm of Golden, Thornton, and LaBau. LaBau and Roy Thornton made a presentation to the building committee Tuesday night.

Teaching and learning in the Martin School can be a shocking experience.

Welfare System Needs Studying Barry Claims

State Sen. David M. Barry of Manchester said today that the recent U. S. Supreme Court decision nullifying Connecticut's residency requirements for welfare recipients illustrates dramatically the need for national welfare standards.

"I do not see how we can maintain the present level of public assistance without a residency requirement," he said. "Since this is now unconstitutional, it seems to me that it is time for the Federal Government to take over."

Barry said that federal standards are needed which would be tied to the economy of each state, thereby reducing the migration to states such as Connecticut.

"If this is done," he said, "perhaps some state money could be freed to get at the real causes of the welfare area of job opportunities, housing and education."

Barry said that he feels that a much more intensive study of welfare practices is necessary than was conducted recently by an outside professional company.

"An interim commission should be appointed to review the entire welfare structure and practices, with the expectation that corrective measures will be taken during the next legislative session," he said.

"Unfortunately, such corrective action may have to wait until 1971. This is another example of the need for annual sessions of the General Assembly," he concluded.

Barry was instrumental in the recent passage of a proposed amendment to the constitution to require that the legislature meet annually. The measure will be voted on by Connecticut voters in November, 1970.

Bridge May Have Answer To Mystery of Dinosaur

This summer, Mrs. Madeline R. McAwey, director of the Lutz Junior Museum, and Park Superintendent Ernest J. Turek will be parties to exploration and, hopefully, discovery that may supply the missing parts of a 75-year-old puzzle.

The scene, the Hop Brook Bridge linking Hartford Rd. and Bridge St.; the mystery, the other half of a Triassic period dinosaur some 225 million years old.

Triassic sedimentary rocks of the Connecticut River Valley are famous for dinosaur footprints. Skeletal remains, however, are extremely rare. Only four fragmentary specimens have been found so far. Three of them came from the old Charles O. Wolcott quarry about a mile north of Buckland station, in a layer about two and a half feet thick.

The first, Ammosaurus major, was found in October 1884. Later, Anhisaurus colurus and Anhisaurus solus were discovered in the same quarry. The partial specimens are in Yale University's Peabody Museum of Natural History.

Before Ammosaurus' significance was recognized, loads of the brownstones were hauled to nearby construction projects, among which were two arches. It is presumed the skulls and fore quarters of the dinosaur, and the prehistoric secrets they may unveil, are locked in a hidden niche of one of the bridges.

With the construction of the new Rt. 6 under way, and the demolition of the Hop Brook Bridge impending, the long vigil of paleontologists may be rewarded. Removal methods will be under the direction of Dr. John H. Ostrom, associate professor of geology in Peabody's division of vertebrate paleontology.

Also involved in the hunt for the dinosaur's missing links will be Sidney Quarrier of Wesleyan University; Edward Bortoff of Henry N. Loomis Associates, consulting engineers; Robert Sparks of Onegia and Geravast Construction, Inc.; and John Bear, Charles Prell and C. J. Downes of the Connecticut State Highway Department.

U.S. Informs North Vietnam It Wants To Discuss Plan

The South Vietnamese government said it would be willing to discuss several other points in the NFL program such as prisoner exchanges, re-establishment of the demilitarized zone and respect for the 1962 agreement on Laos.

Rogers in his statement did not specify what parts of the NFL program were "clearly unacceptable."

But in addition to proposing a provisional coalition government, the Viet Cong repeated their demand for a pullout of U.S. forces in South Vietnam without pledging a withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces.

The Viet Cong proposal came as Rogers was preparing for an important 17-day trip. After talking over the Viet Cong proposal with President Thieu and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon, Rogers will go to Bangkok, Thailand, for a meeting of Southeast Asia Treaty Organization foreign ministers from Thailand, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Britain. France will be represented by an observer and Pakistan by a low-level envoy.

Genovesi Hits Pension Bonding

Manchester State Rep. Donald Genovesi, Rep. of the 18th Assembly District, today attacked a proposal by the Legislative Finance Committee to borrow $60 million to help finance the State Teachers' Retirement System for the next two years.

"It's deficit financing at its worst and could lead to eventual bankruptcy of the Teachers' Retirement System," the GOP legislator contended in commenting upon the bill which was raised by the General Assembly's Finance Committee on April 29 and which was heard at a public hearing in Hartford on May 8.

"This is just another example of the Dempsey Administration's policy of borrowing to pay for current expenses that has helped to bring Connecticut to its present point of financial peril. It makes no more sense than a business borrowing money to build up a pension fund for its employees," Genovesi said.

He estimated that the State will have to pay at least $8 million in service charges in the next two years to borrow this money. With practices like this, it's no wonder the State is in debt over its head," he added.

Genovesi has long claimed credit for fighting to preserve the integrity of the Teachers' Retirement System yet his own Democratic-controlled Finance committee in the General Assembly has proposed this measure that would undermine the very foundation of the Teachers' Retirement System.

It will be interesting for the teachers and taxpayers of Connecticut to see what action, if any, he will take to stop this foolish financial proposal," he concluded.

Learning by Doing LONDON (AP) — Twenty trainee clergymen from various denominations have been getting to know the problems of London dockworkers by working with them and living in their homes.

A spokesman for the South London Industrial Mission, an inter-church body which wants to improve relations between the church and industry, said: "Most student priests do not come from this walk of life and often it is the only contact they have with it until they go into an industrial parish. Even a short spell can do much to broaden their outlook."

Zap Gag Backfires, Town in Wreckage

Sheriff Stiefel said the students "cleaned out the firehouse and burned the equipment, tore down some buildings."

He said no business establishments in Zap would be able to open. "They can't operate," he said.

He said there were many disturbances at the beer bust, some injuries and some arrests. National Guardsmen from units throughout the state gathered at nearby Beulah in the pre-dawn hours today and 508 of them moved into Zap at daybreak under direction of law enforcement officials.

Melhouse said their purpose was to clear the town and restore order.

Officials said only residents of the Zap area would be allowed into the town today. Stiefel, who estimated about 3,000 persons were in Zap this morning, said newcomers were leaving their cars outside the roadblocks and "trying to sneak up the creek into the town."

Melhouse conferred by telephone with Gov. William L. Guy about the situation.

Officials urged all students and sightseers to cancel plans to travel to Zap and to return to their homes or campuses if already en route.

Disturbances apparently grew after an abandoned town building was dismantled and the wooden planks used for a bonfire late Friday.

Mayor Norman Fuchs, who later asked that the town be sealed off, said then, "I just don't know about this darn fire in the middle of Main Street."

When the volunteer fire department arrived, about 20 youths jumped on the truck and began to disassemble it. One youth grabbed the hose and made for Lucky's tavern but Fuchs cautioned him to go back to drinking. The student did.

The first arrivals were a trio from Florida who promptly stalked out a spot among the beer ads on the walls of the town's two bars for their "Zap Happening First" signs.

The students' dress was as diverse as their college backgrounds.

Long hair, sideburns, mustaches, hillbilly hats, bell-bottoms, and related items from the current college scene were in abundance. One homestate product from Fargo came in loafers, white ducks, a straw panama hat and a grey West Point dress coat.

Most of the arrivals were male—with about one out of 10

Nixon Aides Study Strike At Hospital

K. Lowenstein, D-N.Y.; Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich.; John Conyers Jr., D-Mich.; William F. Ryan, D-N.Y. and Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y.

The march will be led by Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., and by the man who succeeded her assassinated husband as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy.

Abernathy has been among the hundreds of strikers and sympathizers who have been arrested on charges of violating a state court injunction limiting picketing at the hospitals. He is free on $500 bond. There have been almost daily marches in Charleston in behalf of the strikers, and for the last 10 days the city has been under a dusk-to-dawn curfew which followed vandalism and outbreaks of fires.

Gov. Robert McNair met for 45 minutes at his office in Columbia Friday with five union representatives in hopes of reaching some agreement.

Elliott Godoff, director of organization for the Drug and Hospital Workers Union, AFL-CIO said the meeting was not very fruitful and a settlement did not appear imminent.

Rod McKuen: How Life and Love Should Be

By WAYNE WARGA
The Los Angeles Times
HOLLYWOOD—There is a man in town who is working on his first symphony, fourth book of poems, an autobiography and a novel. He does this when he's not otherwise occupied writing the film scores for "A Boy Named Charlie Brown," "Me, Natalie," "The Salisbury Connection" and "Myra Breckenridge."

When he's doing none of the above, he mulls over studio offers for a film version of "Stanvan Street and Other Sorrows" which will star his good friend Petula Clark. The man's name is Rod McKuen. He writes about how he'd like life and love to be.

Tonight, he'll show television viewers why he's so much in demand by giving a half-hour one-man concert on NBC. His sponsors, Coca-Cola, are so delighted with the results that they optioned him for another special and installed a Coke machine in his cluttered Hollywood Hills den. It sits there along with a parking meter, barber's chair, fourway stop light and a bubblegum machine. McKuen loves Americana.

His books—three titles in all—sell an average of 15,000 copies a week. He is the first author to get three best-sellers on the publisher's weekly charts in one year since the book trade magazine began keeping records 70 years ago.

Bennett Cerf, McKuen's boss at Random House, dispelled the great glow a few weeks ago when he called to say another random house author, Philip Roth, had topped the 15,000-a-week sales record with "Portnoy's Complaint." Beware, Philip Roth—Rod McKuen has plans for dealing with you.

McKuen—in sneakers, cord-and wrinkled shirt—is sitting calmly on the sofa in his living room. His voice—which one critic described as sounding as though its owner swallowed a can of Ajax—is especially raspy this particular day.

"I think the most exciting thing," McKuen said, "has been working with Sinatra. He and Pet Clark are without doubt the two most consummate musicians in the business. They never get in the way of a song, and they can work the lyrics like nobody else."

Sinatra recently completed recording an entire album of McKuen's songs: "I really admire Sinatra because he takes chances. Who else, in this age of emphasis on youth, would record a song celebrating his 50th birthday?"

McKuen is at his typewriter 16 hours a day ("The words and the music pretty much come at the same time") and barely appears on the Hollywood party circuit.

"My social life is second, my work is first. Some people think that's wrong, but that's how it is. I want it that way.

"Besides, I don't go out at night much because I get a guilty conscience. I feel I should be at home working."

Sevareid's Son Prefers Acting

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The name is familiar: Sevareid. But this one is named Michael and he's an actor, not a news commentator.

He's 29, the twin son of CBS News's Eric Sevareid.

These days Mike looks more like 39, but only because of the nature of his first film role. He's playing a marathon dancer in ABC Palomar Productions' "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

For the benefit of youthful readers: A marathon dance was a distraction used during the great Depression, to keep folks' minds off breadlines and applesellers. It was a torture contest to determine what couple could stay conscious on a dance floor the longest.

"They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" is about such a contest, and among the marathoners are Jane Fonda, Michael Sarrazan, Red Buttons, Susannah York and Michael Sevareid.

He's the first in his family to turn to acting. "When you come from a Luthern Norwegian Midwest background, you don't find many actors in the family," he explained.

Mike Sevareid was born in Paris during the fateful year of 1940. His father had been hired by Edward R. Murrow to cover the French side of the war, but the German advance interrupted his assignment. He hurried his wife and infant sons to Genoa, from which they sailed for the United States with 6,000 other escapees from the Hitler invasion.

"My father stayed on to cover the war, and then my mother went to Europe to work for UNRRA," Mike related. "My brother and I were shipped off to live with our grandmother in Minneapolis."

"We never really saw my father until he came home after the war. When he came in the house, I said to him, 'My daddy's coming home soon.' I guess that kind of shook him up."

The reunited family settled near Washington, D.C. where Sevareid's career with CBS News continued to flourish. "It was my brother who got me started with acting," said Mike.

Oscar Show Was No. 1

NEW YORK (AP) — The year's Oscar awards show, while it still topped the most recent Nielsen ratings list, failed to attract its usual outside audience by several hundred thousand homes.

It was, nevertheless, the number one show during the two weeks ending April 20, but only by a percentage of a point. The Dick Van Dyke-Mary Tyler Moore special ran it a close second. Bill Cosby's special was in third place.

Broadway's Tony awards, also broadcast during that time, came in a weak 74th in a list of over 100 shows rated.

Next show in that category will be the presentation of television's Emmys—still the most unwieldy show of them all. This year the program will come on Sunday, June 8 on CBS and it will be something of a miracle if they can race through 45 categories and some special awards in the 90 minutes allotted to it.

Flip Wilson Fears Wealth (He Says)

By JOAN CROSBY
NEW YORK —(NEA)— It is important to a story about Flip Wilson to reveal that my middle name is Carew.

Because only if I revealed my middle name would Flip permit me to reveal his first name, and it seems that the first name of such a funny and fast-rising young comic should be public knowledge.

It's Clerow.

Otherwise, things are fine with Flip. He's been a semi-regular on "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" and he has recently been signed to a five-year contract by NBC, which is developing a series for him. This past season, Flip has twice been on NBC on three different shows ("Snap Judgment," "Laugh-In" and "Johnny Carson") on the same day. In addition, he has been on "The Ed Sullivan Show," the "Kraft Music Hall," with Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Joey Bishop, Woody Woodbury, Dick Cavett, Pat Boone, on "Operation Entertainment," the "Summer Brothers Smothers show" and a special called "Popendipity."

There is only one thing about his career that worries Flip. "I love my work and I want to work, but I don't want to be rich. I know from the bottom of my heart I don't want to be rich. I want to be secured, able to eat and if I am sick, to call a specialist. But the more I progress, the more afraid I am of becoming wealthy. I don't want people acting with me the way they do with a wealthy man. I don't want all those restrictions, I really mean this, and I hope you explain it so people won't think it's just a put on."

It's not a put on, if ever a man is sincere, it's Flip. He may be a comic, but he has his serious moments, and talking of his fear of wealth is one of them.

He's 35, but looks 10 years younger, and is a native of Jersey City. He says he always wanted a career in show business. "I still do," he smiles.

"Laughter is a key to understanding," he said. "I almost believe — and I'm feeling very serious today — the ability to make people laugh is a sacred trust. Nothing is more intimate than laughter."

Flip says it is very hard for a joke to offend him. "If it's a joke, then it won't offend me. I'll appreciate the artistic merit of it, even if it is a bad joke. Besides, the more bad jokes I hear, the more confident I become."

He writes all his own material, including that on his two Atlantic record albums, "Cowboys and Colored People" and "Flip Wilson — You Devil You."

"I keep my mind wrung out. I'm going to work very hard for another year, then I'm going to go somewhere—I don't know where—and write. Then I'll come back out and perform for a year, then I'll go back and hide and write for another year. But first I want to establish myself strongly enough so that when I come out, there'll be a crowd waiting."

He says night clubs are his favorite. "I love that intimate contact with the audience. You're removed from any restriction on time. You can relax and get to know your audi-
