The Old Club Boomerangs

The most revealing sign of how hard pressed the Senate advocates of the anti-missile-nuclear program feel themselves to be came the other day when they reached for the oldest and most familiar of weapons...

They began talking their colleagues that they had better vote for this program, whether they believed in it for itself or not, because not to vote for it would be to desert a public world position taken by their President.

These are times when such an argument—that the legislative branch is being dragged along by the executive branch—is being used to get out of the way to show this country united behind the leadership of its chief executive—makes patriotic sense.

And there are times when it is itself made more than a dozen times, unscrupulous blackmail calculated to drag down votes that couldn't be won by any other method.

When, the other day, this argument was advanced again—that the Senate had better vote the ABM program in order to back up the President's foreign policy bid—it was not only a mark of desperation on the part of the pro-ABM forces. It was also an argument being addressed to the wrong kind of United States Senate.

This happens to be a Senate which has been warring mightily with its own sense of guilt over having yielded, all down the line of decisions which took us this deep into Vietnam, to the idea that the President of the country must not be embarrassed or weakened by any public proof of disunity at home.

This was the psychology and the argument by which this same Senate justified the Tonkin Gulf Resolution without really looking either into the factual justification for it or into the real scope of its own provisions.

This was the psychology and the argument by which, for a long time, the legislative branch accepted, step by step and order by order, the constant broadening and extension of the war in Vietnam, from the business of providing "military advisers" to the final fatal lurch into the bombing of North Vietnam.

This is a Senate which has had "no to here," as the President might say, the business of sustaining the executive in whatever foreign policy position he may have taken.

And the moment in which this old blackmail argument was trotted out in behalf of the ABM program as proposed by the executive may have been the moment when, in this Senate, the cause was lost.

It may be some time before the Senate is again a rubber stamp for anybody or any program.

Not An American?

One of the religious leaders invited by President Nixon to officiate at the service for the White House Sunday morning service took as his text the theme that American history has been a "chronicle of miracles no less extraordinary than those told in Scriptures."

Time and again, the man of the cloth told the President and his guests God has sent the American nation great leaders.

He then went on, as any discreditable courteous guest in the White House might consider proper for the occasion, as follows:

"I hope it is not presumptions of me, in the presence of the President of the United States, to pray that future historians, looking back at our generation, may say that in a period of great trials and tribulations the finger of God pointed to Richard Milhous Nixon, giving him the vision and the wisdom to save the world and civilization, opening the way for our country to realize the good that the century offered mankind."

It was after these particular remarks that something of a controversy began developing over the President's new institution of White House services, and it would seem to have been the particular trend of these remarks which irritated the theologian who said:

"The prophetic edge of Protestantism, Catholicism and Judaism is dulled in this patriotic worship. God Himself, presumably, is not an American."

We hope that such a trouble-making American passes unnoticed among all those who depend, for their own security of mind and outlook, on all that circumstantial evidence which says that God must not only be an American, but a fairly well-to-do white American in the bargain.

We do not object to the White House Sunday morning services. We do think it would show a truer courtesy and gratitude on the part of the guest clergy if they should resist the temptation to create any particularly fortuitous associations between their country, their President, and their God.

Rare Statistics

That most mythical of diseases—dinner nobody has ever actually prepared—and eaten—has gone up in price again.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Statistics Sunday report beef dinner for four people now costs, the Bureau says, an inflationary $1.85 as compared to only $1.37 a year ago.

The nation's housewives, who would have to judge, from their own shopping experiences, that the sum mentioned would hardly provide the dum payment on a piece of beef large enough to feed normal people any meal.

For the day when these Bureau of Labor statisticians can be shown, say on some documentary film, eating either their own dinner or their own statistics.

Action, Not Protests, Needed

All Waterburyans must be wary. This city is on the verge of falling into the same trap which has prevented real progress from being made in the past.

The city, if it is not careful, will be engulfed in a nationwide blackery while the overall school issue is being decided and toyed with.

The issue of Waterbury today is whether or not minority children get equal educational opportunities in segregated schools. This is the only issue it involves a violation by the city of Waterbury of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

This issue is not the good intentions of members of the Board of Education school officials, parents, politicians or anyone else. The issue is not that the parents of Bishop School put pressure on the Board of Education to keep open the building and thereby set a precedent for the segregation of Waterbury school youngsters to do the same, even though the building is the worst one in the city.

Let the people of Waterbury beware of arguments over the memory of those who set up his house of school districts in previous years.

Look at the statistics for the answer on segregation.

The State Department of Education in January issued a research bulletin on the distribution of minority group pupils and staff in all the public schools of the state. The bulletin lists seven public schools out of 27 in this city as having more than 50 per cent of their students from minority groups. An eighth school has 48 per cent minority enrollment.

The schools are: Wilson, 99 per cent; Bishop, 88 per cent; Walsh, 78 per cent; Maloney, 70 per cent; Driggs, 66 per cent; Merriman, 61 per cent; Webster, 81 per cent; and Bloomin, 48 per cent.

It is a well known fact that segregated schools in and out of themselves provide unequal educational opportunity. Waterburyans need to be aware of the problems of the segregated Southern schools and to act on their own behalf.

Edge for years that a handful of grammar schools were segregated in Waterbury. It has been common knowledge for years that the Board of Education has avoided any action to eliminate that condition, other, of course, than to talk of its disappearance in the future through the magic of a middle school system.

Single opportunity was given previously to get started on an interim middle school which would not completely remove the segregation but would, at least, show good faith. Temporary or interim plans were discarded.

Warnings were given that the federal government could not sit idly by. And it has finally come to pass. Once again Waterbury's name is being smeared across the country.

New warnings must now be given. Every effort will be made to argue the inutility about the action of the U.S. Justice Department. There will be demands about intentions and being and the relative condition of buildings and equipment. There will be demands that will remain one single matter: Are the 'segregated' schools equal in all respects to those with mainly white students?

When former Mayor Joseph McNellis was mayor, a report detailing detentions in the Police Department was swept under the rug in a haste over gambling. The University of Connecticut and the School Department (which included recommended remedies which would have avoided the present problem) has been gathering dust for years.

The report of the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities was discarded. Even the probe by State Referee Patrick B. O'Donnovan was scooped at in many quarters until earnest were made.

There is only one issue to be decided. Let those who would offer or deny or shove or sweep under the rug the Justice Department edict come up with a solution. Action is needed now, not criticism or pious defenses. —WATERBURY REGISTER

Radio Travel Time To Moon, Planets

By DR. I. M. LEVITT, DIRECTOR OF THE FRANCIS AND CLARA FRANKLIN INSTITUTE

When a trouble developed about the pull of the Module, due to a procedural problem at the initiation of staging, communication between the spacecraft and earth was delayed by about three seconds.

Thus, when a command was transmitted from earth, it took three seconds for the astronauts to execute and acknowledge it.

This communication lag finally taught us that all man-made programs for distant spacecraft must be initiated from the vehicle and not from earth. We must now face reality: There is a finite speed to light and this speed will become a limiting factor in future planetary explorations.

The speed of light is one of the fundamental properties of nature. It is believed to be constant at 186,282 miles per second in the vacuum of space.

Radio signals, as a form of electromagnetic radiation, also travel with this speed. However, even with this extraordinary velocity, radio signals will take appreciable time to travel between the planets. Thus, there will be a tremendous premium on automatic controls to initiate and receive maneuvers by these spacecraft.

As an example, for the necessity of this new technique, when the Soviet Venus 3 and 4 descended to the Venusian surface, all landing operations were initiated automatically. When the spacecraft was 31,000 miles from the surface, high above the atmosphere, explosive bolts were triggered on command of the onboard computer system.

Single opportunity was given previously to get started on an interim middle school which would not completely remove the segregation but would, at least, show good faith. Temporary or interim plans were discarded.

Warnings were given that the federal government could not sit idly by. And it has finally come to pass. Once again Waterbury's name is being smeared across the country.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

The Indian Summer of John Bailey ought to be a mild and pleasant and long-lasting season, full of favorable omens and triumphs, tempered by the persistence of some continued defiance to respect for his wishes and his wisdom, and peopled by a final band of young cubs anxious to carry on by his formulas and under his label for as long as it might please him to keep easing gently into the role of elder statesman.

After all, Bailey himself hardly ever did anything against people, but usually for. He operated usually by general laws of life and let live. His conduct never bred militant instincts for long-range revenge; no one, not even Arthur Barbery, really imagined himself or anyone else in Bailey's place so long as Bailey liked to serve, and he never really and finally closed his door to anyone; he was, in fact, the softest-hearted politician boss ever to survive in Connecticut.

Also, and alas, for what the Indian Summer of John Bailey ought to be, he was a Democrat. The Democratic State Chairman has now reached what might be his point of relaxation.

He long since passed the peak of that hunger—hunger for power, for achievement, for success, for recognition—hunger that keeps politicians sharp and energetic. He has, after all, been all the way to the top of his profession. He couldn't possibly keep himself lean and driving forever.

He loves the game more than ever, but more than ever his love of the game is heavily weighted with nostalgia and sentiment. Some of the battles of yesterday, which were won, are more vivid than the battles of today, which may be being made more so.

He is not going to bring the cubbies and put out the cigars and tell him to go ahead and take it easy while they do some of the drudgery for him. Instead, they are challenging each other to pose as if with one foot on his chest, and they are whispering to one another that the old boy really isn't remarkable any more, and they are sharpening all their short little knives as if they already had the courage to start slicing the party up right in front of his disbelief weary eyes.

In politics, there is no such thing as giving up, or failing to exercise, a little power. The only safe formula is to be as tenacious to the end as one was at the beginning.

It seems inconceivable, at the very point in time when more and more people are recognizing the limitations of movement by both air and auto, that we should permit our opinions on rail movement to expire.

—David J. Goldberg, New Jersey, Transportation Commissioner

Hebron School Board Slates Vote On Funds for Wing Plans

The Board of Education decided this week to hold a special meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 at the Gilead Hill School.

The purpose of this meeting will be to approve the necessary appropriation to be submitted to the Board of Finance to cover preliminary plans for the new addition to Gilead Hill School. The plans will be drawn up for 12 additional classrooms, supporting facilities and administrative offices.

According to a report submitted by Aram Damarjian, superintendent of schools, estimated enrollment in both schools for the year 1970-71 will be 700 students. This large enrollment will require 32 classrooms, with only 20-21 at the Hebron Elementary School and 10 at the Gilead Hill School—now available. By 1974, Damarjian estimates there will be 108 children enrolled at both schools, requiring 38 classrooms.

As soon as the Board of Finance has approved the appropriation, the Board of Selectmen will be asked to warn for a soon as possible.

Residents at this meeting will be asked to approve the appropriation and to elect a Building Committee to be composed of one Board of Finance member, one Planning and Zoning Commission member, one selectman, three Board of Education members and three members-at-large.

In other business, the cafeteria committee reported that the hot lunch program operated last year with a profit of $819.77. The committee anticipates participation in the Hebron Elementary School will remain high, and an additional increase in participation is expected at the Gilead Hill School.

They are recommending that this year the program hire a full-time manager, 40 hours per week, a cook, assistant cook and three additional helpers.

The board voted that both the students lunch and milk remain at the same price as last year—35 cents and five cents respectively. Cost of adult lunches will be 55 cents and 10 cents for coffee.

land off Cape Cod when the decision came, said he never doubted that he eventually would be found innocent.

"I was given this terrible call by my mother," he recalled as my conscience told me it was right, everything would be all right."

Ferber said he also was not surprised by the decision. He added that if it makes some persons opposed to the war "think the government is far more reasonable after all, then it is actually setting them back. If they think by my acquittal, justice is done, then that's a good thing."

Spock, who was playing tennis at Yale when he learned of the decision, said he was gratified but he did not expect a "medium good" because of the order that he be retried.

Goodman said that he engaged in a smaller conspiracy. "This does not mean he should be convicted for the larger one."

Moon Landing Will Eclipse Earth Adventurers—Hillary

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Sir Edmund Hillary, hailed as the first man to climb Mt. Everest, says the first steps on the moon will mark the passing of his type of explorer.

"I regret that as a man dashes further out into space he is going to exclude a large percentage of the people who carried out exploring of the globe," Hillary said Friday in an interview.

He referred to globe-trotting explorers who lack the technical expertise needed to accomplish complex ventures such as space exploration.

Hillary said he will join the millions watching on television as the Apollo 11 spacecraft is launched Wednesday and would like to be with Armstrong and his crew on the moon.

"When those fellows finally set foot on the moon, it will be something like the summit of Everest. You're such a long way from home and there were so many problems getting there and getting back you can't afford to be swept away by emotion," he said.

"You've got to concentrate on the job you have to do and the important thing is getting down again."

Hillary and Sherpa guide Tenzing Norgay climbed Everest, the world's highest mountain, on May 28, 1953.

Hillary, in Albany for a speech, said it is hard to justify the expense of sending Apollo 11 to the moon when balanced against the needs of the earth.

"By all means progress in space, but not at the expense of the job you have to do on earth and problems of poverty and terrorism," he said.

World Girdling Yachtsman Lost at Sea Mysteriously

LONDON (AP) — British turned world yachtsman Donald Crowhurst was given up for lost today when the mystery surrounding his disappearance deepened with the disclosure that his vessel was the fourth in a series of boats in the same area within 12 days.

U.S. Air Force planes searched all day Friday for the 37-year-old yachtsman on a three-hulled yacht. Thursday, 70 miles west of the Azores.

Search headquarters then announced the search has been abandoned. "As long as it is considered a life can be saved, the search will continue. Once it is thought no longer reasonable a search can be called off, as in this case, then resources are withdrawn."

The London Sunday Times, which sponsored the around-the-world race that Crowhurst had been favored to win, announced that the $120,000 prize for the fastest voyage would be awarded to the winner of the race. Mrs. Crowhurst suggested her husband might have gone for a swim in his cabin gear and been out of sight when the 19,000-pound boat was launched. The sailor's agents rallied the crew to ask if his under-plate equipment was on board and expected a reply today.

Ghetto Count Difficult Area For Census

WASHINGTON (AP) — With many city neighborhoods in places that were a decade ago, the Census Bureau is taking greater care to count the ghetto areas.

Police also reported this week that 37 deaths were reported in the ghetto area. The police burned, and told police in the hospital she had done it because she was a witch.

France's sorcerers, seers, witches and clairvoyants do a thriving business trading tales in evening hours because that's when people return home from work.

Rockville Line Trounces Manchester in Legion Game

Police & Fire Win Medics Eliminated

Tying the score at 3-3 last night at the Verplank Field Police & Fire staged an eighth inning rally to eliminate the Medics from the Town Series 4-3. The game came when catcher Tom Fraterelli threw wild of second base and Brian Kilpatrick came running home from first base.

Moving into the bottom of the eighth inning and still 3-3, Kilpatrick had an infield hit. An error by Fraterelli allowed him to attempt stealing home. He was thrown out by the winning run.

Table with columns for Police & Fire (4) and Medics (3). Rows include statistics for Runs, Hits, Errors, and individual player performance.

Things didn't cool off though, in the bottom of the second inning Police and Fire struck back for two runs when Dave Brown advanced with a double.

Man Arrested On Drug Count

John P. Chiaputti, 22, of 30 Coleman Rd., was apprehended yesterday by State Police from the Criminal Intelligence Division (CID) and charged with possession of controlled drugs, after he received a package of what police said was LSD in the mail.

Chiaputti was arrested in an apartment in Willington where the package was delivered. State Police and a U.S. postal inspector were aware of the incoming shipment and were waiting at the apartment with a search warrant. When the package came, Chiaputti was arrested.

He appeared in East Hartford Circuit Court 12 session yesterday where he was placed under a $200 bond. His case was continued to July 23.

You Can Smell the New Series

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You can almost tell by your nose that next season's television series are going into production.

A Hollywood sound stage has as distinctive a smell as a bakery. It's the smell of fresh-cut lumber, of buckets of paint and glue.

You can smell the sets as soon as you walk through the big sound-proof doors into the cavernous stages.

At Universal, carpenters were busy putting together an elaborate, two-level operating arena for "The New Doctors" segment of "The Bold Ones" on NBC.

It may be the most elaborate and intricately detailed set for a series since the spaceship Enterprise was built at Paramount for "Star Trek" in 1965.

In fact, looking at a model of the set in art director John Lloyd's office you would almost think it was a spaceship. It has a glass-walled turret above the operating table for other doctors and students to observe the surgical procedures.

Beside it is a control room with enough computers to plot the Enterprise's course to the stars. Instead, they will be used to chart the new fields of medicine that the series will explore.

"Every piece of medical equipment on this set not only will be real, but it will be the latest available," Lloyd said. He said the operating room was partially modeled after Methodist Hospital in Houston, Tex.

How much does the set cost? "A lot more than a set for a series usually costs and a lot less than it would for a movie," he replied.

At Paramount's Gower Street studio the architecture is Spanish—both for the studio itself and inside where "Mission: Impossible" was being filmed.

It was the presidential palace of a Latin American dictator, and you can be sure that the Impossible Missions Team will do him in before the hour is up.

The cameraman was at the top of a tall step ladder filming the elaborate comings and goings in a corridor outside a code room. Leonard Nimoy, who is replacing Martin Landau in the show, was impersonating a Che Gueverra type character and was almost unrecognizable in the beard.

On the backlot of CBS Studio Center you pick up more smells at "Gunsmoke"—that of horse flesh and, if you get close enough, leather.

The "Gunsmoke" crew was filming a picnic scene on a dusty location set under the hot California sun.

Until CBS took it over to produce its own series, the lot had been Republic Studios. Between

Make It Warm!

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's a curious thing," said Ed Hartmann. "Networks seem to type producers and companies as much as actors."

"They expect action melodrama from Bruce Geller, thought-provoking shows from Paul Monash and broad comedy from Paul Henning."

Geller produces "Mission: Impossible" and "Mannix," Monash did "Peyton Place" and "Judd for the Defense" and Henning "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Petticoat Junction" and "Green Acres."

"And," Hartmann added, "from us they expect warm, sentimental shows."

Those warm and sentimental shows are the warmest and most sentimental on television — "Family Affair," "My Three Sons" and new for next season on CBS, "To Rome With Love."

The latter stars John Forsythe as a widowed college professor who takes his three daughters to Rome to live.

Hartmann, who is producer of all three for Don Fedderson Productions, said, "There is a certain pattern that doesn't come from the producers themselves. You get a reputation for success with a certain type of show and you're typecast."

Do the networks say, for instance, give us another "Family Affair?"

"Not exactly. They may see us and say they'd love to see another show from us," he said. "They don't say, do this or do that, but they do seem to be more comfortable with a similar show from a producer."

Hartmann, a balding man with a sweeping gray moustache, said that people identified with certain kinds of shows often had different backgrounds in other efforts. Hartmann has written 75 movies and produced most of them, including several for Bob Hope.

He is one man who is swimming counter to the current that takes a writer and producer from television to the movies.

"I like the action of television," said Hartmann in his office at CBS Studio Center in the San Fernando Valley, where the shows are being filmed.

"I don't like sitting around in an office writing something that won't show up for another year and when it does you don't recognize it."

Being a producer in television usually means turning out a few scripts and rewriting all the rest.

"You will find most producers are writers," he said. "A producer may be called over to a set to rewrite a script in 10 seconds. You don't have time to give it to a writer and have him return it in three days. You've got to do it right on the set and shoot it."

Hartmann said he is not anxious to get back to being just a writer. "Working in a studio with people is so much more exciting than sitting in an office and writing scripts," he added.

Have Troubles, But Will Sing

NEW YORK—(NEA)—First his father had amnesia, then his mother wound up in a mental hospital because he wanted to get married and mother was in love with the son. Then the girl he wanted to marry chose someone else, even though she was pregnant by him. She divorced her husband, finally married our hero, only now she has divorced him, too.

All the troubles belong to Bill Prentiss on the CBS soap opera, "Love of Life." Gene Bua, a handsome young man with a hit record, plays Bill.

The fictitious character keeps getting mixed up in Gene's life, since the album is called Love of Life and it is being plugged on the show.

Before Heritage released the album, Gene had approached other record companies.

Then the wife of record producer Jerry Ross saw Gene on the show and recommended him to her husband.

Gene Bua

Gene says he doesn't like the business part of show business. He charges heatedly, "There are so many in the business who don't know their job—directors who can't direct, actors who can't act and singers who can't sing." He's not one of them.

You Can

takes Ken Curtis, who plays Festus Hagan, said, "I've spent a lot of time on this lot.

"I'm going into my seventh year with 'Gunsmoke,'" he said, "and after the war I did a few musical westerns with Big Boy Williams as my sidekick. You know the kind, right in the middle of the chase you stop and do a song."

A few minutes later the crew
