Souled Out Concert Plays to Center Park Crowd of 500

By TERRY DITALLA. A crowd of about 500 gathered in Center Park yesterday evening to hear an all-black concert of soul music called "Souled Out."

from the north end of Hartford, and many planned to audition. With that, the Soul Syndicate, billed as "the best band in the state of Connecticut," was to be sponsored by the Inner City Exchange, but was canceled at the last minute for lack of funds.

audience came up on stage and sang "Oh Happy Day." The audience, which contained many dark-skinned as well as white, was very well behaved and the number of uniformed Manchester police plus some plainclothes detectives who were standing at the edge of the crowd leaning against a tree, had little to do.

Most of the performers were from the north end of Hartford, and many planned to audition. With that, the Soul Syndicate, billed as "the best band in the state of Connecticut," was to be sponsored by the Inner City Exchange, but was canceled at the last minute for lack of funds.

Woods, promised the audience, "If you didn't have soul singers, among them was used when you came here, you're good."

There were several vocal groups, but their performances were in general disappointing. They all seemed to be shy, and they appeared not to really believe in what they were doing. They seemed to be just going through the motions, rather than actually performing.

A Japanese Feast at a Yankee Restaurant

Story by Margaret Aulisio

Uncle Ben's rice seemed out of place at the Marlborough Monday night event though both typify American culture. That's because 12 Japanese college students on tour in America were using the rice to make a traditional Japanese dinner for their Hebron host families. Despite the American ingredient, the meal came out without a trace of American flavor.

There were also side dishes of such things as Imagoyaki (battered egg slices) and sobo (a rice cracker, sometimes wrapped in seaweed).
"Yes, we're going to miss Kaeko," he said. "Our little girl has a lot of fire in her."

Recipe for Tempura

Here is the recipe for the main dish, tempura, served at the Marlborough Tavern. It was prepared by Midori Ishikawa, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Boden. Tempura is a fried shrimp and vegetable dish. Midori was not specific about amounts of ingredients to be used, but she said that the cook can decide for himself, since it makes little difference.
At the Marlborough Tavern, the Japanese students seemed to be using an equal amount of each of the first four ingredients.
Ingredients: Shrimp, peeled potatoes, sweet potatoes, green pepper (or any other vegetable).

Isamu Ichimura, guest of the Fred Robsons.

While the girls were busy in the kitchen, the boys had hung Japanese lanterns in the dining room both as decoration and as the sole light source. All the Japanese and most of the Americans wore kimonos. With the room thus suffused, Japanese culture prevailed and the traditional American atmosphere faded into the background.
After the meal, served buffet style, group leader Hiroko Nakanishi thanked the hosts for three weeks "we will never forget."

The menu included tempura, norimaki, yakimashi, sake, salad, dessert and green tea. Tempura is made of fried vegetables and shrimp. The salad contained chicken, cucumbers, soy sauce and mustard. Norimaki is a rice ball wrapped in seaweed, and yakimashi is a rice patty with chop-

These serene and symbolic Japanese dances were followed by some lively folk songs led by Cynthia Robson on the guitar. Singing the soboro song and "Ode Sera" with Mrs. Robson were Isamu Ichimura, who stayed in her home, and Akira Hirose, whose hosts were Mr. and Mrs. D. Everett Stone.

The tea ceremony came across as an informal, spirited affair, although traditionally it can be more formal. As group leader Hiroko Nakanishi explained, "The tea ceremony is used throughout the country to achieve tranquility of spirit, and it is always associated with the development of Buddhism. She added it is a discipline of simplicity and meditation."

The students left yesterday for New York, Washington, and the West Coast, before returning home to Japan. Their stay in Hebron was arranged by Mrs. Thomas Soininep who participated in the international program herself six years ago in Sweden. Mrs. Soininep was aided by her co-chairman, Mrs. John LaVake.

Although their departure was two days later Monday night was considered their formal farewell gathering. The easy camaraderie of laughter and sentiment showed the close harmony these Americans and Japanese had achieved.

Tollard Town Receives Ex-State Jail

Yesterday's ceremonies off-turned over to the town in which daily turning over the keys to it was located. "Tollard State Jail to the town of Tollard, marked the end of a long era for the prison. Selectman Charles Luce said in turning over the keys and copied the jail on behalf of the community."

FBI Report Property Crime Rate Climbs in Connecticut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Criminal activity in Connecticut increased in all seven categories listed by the FBI in Uniform Crime Reports for 1968. The reports, made public today, showed Connecticut was below the national rate of crimes against person—murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault. However, Connecticut's rate for larceny and auto theft were at high rates—near the national average—during 1968.

Town's Rate Also Rises

The FBI has released its annual report on criminal activity in Connecticut, and according to figures obtained from that report and the Manchester police department, this town's crime rate has increased in most of the seven general categories listed. Figures for 1968 show an increase over 1967 figures in almost all areas, except murder and robbery. For 1968, Manchester police reported no murders or non-negligent manslaughter; five forcible rapes; five aggravated assaults; 29 burglaries; 296 larcenies over $50 and 92 auto thefts. For 1967, no murders or non-negligent manslaughter were reported during 1967, but a jump from 21,887 during 1967 and Connecticut's rate of 86.4 cases per 100,000 population was higher than the national average of 81.1 cases. Larceny cases involving $50 or more numbered 17,096, up from 12,079 the previous year, and auto theft cases in Connecticut increased from 8,366 to 11,180 during the same period. In the rate of larceny and auto theft cases the state was just above the average for the 50 states. Hartford and East Hartford types of assaults.

Drug Buyers Apply For Money Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Consumers across the country are trying to get part of a $100 million fund set up by five drug firms for users of certain wonder drugs between 1964 and 1968.

The refund program is an outgrowth of a price-fixing case, pressed by the federal government involving five leading pharmaceutical companies. The refund deadline for claims is Aug. 16.

Several thousand claims have been picked up daily at a Bronx post office by the law firm of Dickstein, Shapiro, Dennis and Galligan since July 1, when the drug companies' advertisement publicizing the refund program appeared in about 1,800 newspapers.

Along with legitimate claims, the mail also has included claims accompanied by old death certificates and false teeth, and claims whose conditions make them obviously ineligible. "One man is seeking a refund on a certain drug he purchased in 1947," commented Arthur Galligan, partner in the firm. "Not only is he not within the specified time period, but that particular drug was not produced until 1948."

Other persons are listing drugs bought after 1968, which makes them ineligible. The $100 million fund is being provided by the drug firms of Chas. Pfizer & Co., American Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers, E.R. Squibb, and Upjohn Co., and can Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers and Pfizer were convicted of the charge Dec. 29, 1967. Squibb and Upjohn were not defendants, but were named as co-conspirators in the Justice Department suit.

About 35 drug products marketed under different names, all containing tetracycline, were involved in the refund program, according to Galligan's office. The federal government had charged that tetracycline, regarded as one of most effective antibiotics, was produced for as little as 1.6 cents a capsule but retailed for 50 cents each. Claimants say they spent an average of 50 cents to 85 cents per capsule, with some paying as high as $1.

The government suit said that $17 billion of drugs were sold over the 13-year period. The convictions, now under appeal, opened the door to a number of civil suits, all for triple damages. The five drug firms pooled $100 million to settle claims by states, counties, cities, wholesalers, retailers and individual consumers. An added $20 million was offered for claims by private hospitals, and claimants such as hospital plans, the companies said.

All mailed claims are being handled, under authorization of the federal court, by Dickinson Stein firm, which is representing 20 states and two cities, including New York, in the drug refund case. The attorneys general in each state, as well as consumer protection agencies in some large municipalities such as New York are serving as co-counsel of the nationwide refund program. The firms' multimillion-dollar suit was filed in federal court in New York.

Perspective And Courage?

The way the story comes out of Washington reinforces the hopeful verdict with which the Nixon Administration's new approach to the welfare problem was welcomed.

By these Washington accounts, only a minority of the President's Cabinet and circles of advisers supported the program the President put before them.

Uter

In two months Uter has gone through an escalation in its social crisis which looks like it will be continuing for some time.

None of the criticism which has been leveled at the plan so far—some from the point of view of the taxpayers of the great industrial states, some from the point of view of welfare experts who know the new scales of benefits are not going to be sufficient or realistic everywhere—changes the basic appraisal of the new plan.

It seems that the President intended it to be a precedent-making effort to turn a problem inside out and update down and really analyze it and then try to approach it from entirely new directions.

To be sure it is going to be politically risky. To be sure the amounts and scales involved are not, expensive though they are, high enough to be realistic.

But other things are even more certain. This is precisely the kind of decision we are supposed to have Presidents for. This is precisely the kind of tonic demonstration this nation needs to give itself the idea that it need not be helpless victims to every problem which threatens to engulf it.

This is, summing up, the first major policy decision in many, many years which has not merely offered either more or less of the same old thing. Maybe we have begun to develop, from our adventurous position on the moon, perspective, and courage.

Deflation

It's an unusual wind that doesn't seem fair for somebody, and it is pleasant to read, even if one can't share in the bargains personally, that the recent behavior of the stock market has had some sensible effects on the prices of other things besides stocks themselves.

The price of yachts is down, at least temporarily, with a sample reduction being from $70,000 to $58,000. A typical New York cooperative apartment sold the other day for a mere $90, 000, as compared to $110,000 for a similar apartment only eight weeks earlier.

And yearling race horses at the August auctions must have brought an average of only $11,000 each, as compared to $19,214 a year ago.

It is nice to see such breaks in the inflationary trend, with at least a few key prices drifting back toward reasonable levels.

A System of Non Sequiturs

We are not sure we understand just how and why wonderful things are happening on the Long Island Railroad commuter service into New York City, and we would reluctantly refuse to recommend any imitation to any other railroad anywhere.

But what seems to be working down on the Long Island is a triumphant series of non sequiturs.

First, to give the chronology with as much dead-pan lack of editorialization as possible, Governor Rockefeller, addressing a group of commuters the other day, promised that within two months the Long Island commuter line would be the "finest in the country."

Second, a day or two later the Long Island set a record by cancelling 25 rush hour trains in one single day of operation.

Third, commuters interviewed after that day in which a record number of rush hour trains were cancelled reported that they had the best rides that day to long time, with almost no standees and with schedules "only 10 minutes late" which is, on the Long Island, like being early.

That's the one-two-three of the story—the Governor's promise of an impossible miracle, the railroad's response by an unprecedented collapse of schedule, the verdict by commuters that service had begun to improve.

Obviously there is in process the development of some totally new way to run a railroad.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

The behavior of the Democrats in the 1969 General Assembly indicated that they found some special pleasure in making a target of their own Governor.

This was not only a result of the old truth that fratricidal warfare is the most savage kind of conflict. It also resulted from the fact that the Democratic party is in a period when, in the eyes of various ambitious young workhorses, it suffers from a lack of room at the top.

What everybody is trying to do is to analyze or guess at the moment concerns the question of whether or not the somewhat savage attitude toward this Democratic Governor on the part of the Democratic leadership in this General Assembly, has helped the Governor make up his mind definitely with regard to his own political future.

If Governor John Dempsey was, after his reelection in 1966, a little uncertain about how many more years he would want to make and for what office, is there now a chance that his unimpaired experience and the 1969 Democratic Legislature has crystallized his personal intentions?

As we venture our answer to this question, we admit that we write from no inside knowledge, no confidential informants, and we warn both ourselves and our readers that there is a vast difference between an intention formulated in bitter and unpleasant moments and those who should be your friends when it comes to making a final decision.

Such provisos having been stated, it is our impression that the experience of the 1969 session did tip Governor Dempsey toward an end of public candidacy and an end of public office.

In our opinion, he approaches 1970 with no desire to run again for Governor and no desire to serve the purpose of a senator in the public eye.

At the moment, we don't think Governor John Dempsey has the slightest intention of allowing himself to be dragged into running for public office again. But this is still early in the game.

South Windsor Henry, Westbrook To Seek New Terms

The political unrollings continued this week as the Democrats announced that Congressman Donald J. Henry would run for a second term on the Town Council.

At the same time the Republicans announced that Deputy Mayor Howard R. Pitts would be a candidate for re-election, while Councilman Robert Trewhella has bowed out to business pressure and will not run a second time.

In addition to the council candidates, the Republicans announced that former Councilman Vernon O. Peterson has decided to run for the Board of Education.

So far the Republicans have announced three of their six Council candidates—Westbrook, Mayor Howard R. Pitts and Robert R. Blinnar, while the Democrats have named two—Henry and Abraham Glassman.

Each party thus far have one councilman who has decided not to run for re-election—Trewhella for the Republicans and Umberto Delmastro for the Democrats.

The announcements have so far centered around biographical information with the parties apparently preferring to wait for their final teams before getting their political positions.

In announcing his candidacy, Westbrook said, "Much has been accomplished in the past two years, but more development is needed. We should develop more recreational programs for South Windsor to meet the need of our expanding population."

"At the same time," Westbrook continued, "we should consider South Windsor's relationship to surrounding towns and the City of Hartford, particularly in transportation, such as the relocation of Rt. 2."

"We should strive at all times to continue the orderly and responsible progress that we enjoy today," Westbrook concluded.

Westbrook, a native of South Windsor, is president of the Exchange Club and the Wapping Community Club.

While on the council, he has been chairman of the council's Public Health and Safety Committee and the Social Problems Committee.

Henry, before serving on the council, was the chairman of the Public Building Commission for two years and recently served on the council's Education and Recreation Committee and was the chairman of a special committee concerned with housing for the elderly.

Active in a number of American Field Service, the South Windsor Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club of Columbus, the South Windsor Chamber of Commerce, and was chairman of the United Appeal in 1968.

Henry owns the Henry Agency, a real estate business, and is a president of Commercial Realty, both located in South Windsor. He resides with his wife Pat and their four children at 20 Breedy Hill Rd.

Henry indicated in announcing his candidacy that he would like to "expand recreational programs to a greater degree than has been the case during the past two years."

Most Congressmen, off for another recess, only faintly understand that their tax relief bill definitively established a long-term priority for private investment over public investment.

Administration officials are grimly pondering the fact that it may preclude their indefinitely from such pet Nixon schemes as revenue-sharing and selective tax incentives.

Indeed, the Administration must now decide whether to attempt the Herculean labor of pulling back the 2.4 billion dollar worth of tax relief in the Senate. But matters may grow worse. Given the Senate's pre-dilection for adding goodies and subtracting reforms in handling tax legislation, the bill could at least nightmarish dimensions when the Senators return next month.

Obituary

Bernard Grogan, Ex-Theater Head, Dies in Vernon

ROCKVILLE — Bernard A. Grogan, 64, of 28 Union St., manager of the former Palace Theater, died yesterday afternoon at Rockville General Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Grogan was born May 23, 1905 in New Britain, son of Bernard and Nora O'Brien Grogan, and lived in Rockville for many years. He was employed as a dispatcher at the Village Police Department before he retired in 1967. He had managed theaters in New Britain, Hartford, Waterbury, and Holyoke, Mass., before coming to Rockville.

Miss Brockhaus Takes Own Life

Mrs. Barbara M. Brockhaus, 49, of 96 Florence St. was found dead at her home last night by police.

A neighbor on Florence St., noticing no activity around the Brockhaus home for almost two days, called the police shortly after 9 last night. They discovered the body of Miss Brockhaus hanging in the cellar.

Dr. Robert Kennedy, a forensic examiner, said death had occurred about 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Miss Brockhaus was born Feb. 22, 1920 in Manchester, daughter of Frank and Margaret Crabb Brockhaus, and had lived in Manchester all her life. She was employed as a secretary at Truett Company.

She is survived by a brother, William F. Brockhaus of Granby.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home tomorrow from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Anna Rita Hedron, 74, of 20 Hillside Dr., died Tuesday at St. Francis Hospital, 300 Main St., after a long illness.

Mrs. Hedron was born Nov. 3, 1906 in Patten, Pa., the daughter of Michael and Mary Dowd Hedron, and lived in East Hartford for 15 years. She was a member of the Senior Citizens Group of South Windsor.

Survivors include three sons: Joseph Hedron of Cleveland, Ohio; Francis Hedron of Andover, Pa.; and Edward Hedron with the U.S. Army; one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Kavan of South Windsor; one brother, Andrew, of Philadelphia, Pa.; and Mrs. Mary Kavan of Cleveland, Ohio, and four grandchildren.

The funeral will be Saturday at 11:30 a.m. from the Benjamin J. Callahan Funeral Home, 1602 Main St., East Hartford, by the Mass of Requiem at St. Mary's Church in East Hartford at 9 a.m. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, East Hartford.

Friends may call at the funeral home tomorrow from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Homer J. Donahue, 66, of Enfield, brother of Mrs. Mary Leitcher of Coventry, died Tuesday night at Mercy Hospital, Springfield.

Survivors also include his wife and a daughter.

The funeral will be Saturday at 10:30 a.m. from the Leete Funeral Home, 125 Pearl St., Enfield, with a Mass of Requiem at St. Adalbert's Church, Enfield, at 11. Burial will be in St. Patrick's R.I.G. Cemetery, Enfield.

Friends may call at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 and tomorrow from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Freda Schwarm, 77, of 119 Cooper Hill St., widow of Henry C. Schwarm, died early this morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Survivors include a son, Bernard Grogan, and a daughter, Mrs. Walter Phillips of Manchester; a daughter, Mrs. Freda Zuercher of Glastonbury; and Mrs. Freda Enery of Danbury, N.H.; 11 grandchildren, and 22 great-grandchildren.

The small detention room was crowded with 10 prisoners during the noon recess between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. There were six sheriffs and three prison guards on hand but apparently none were watching as Bussiers bent back the corner of the metal mesh grating which covered the window and crawled through.

Courthouse Escape Shows More Timing Than Daring

It wasn't so much a daring escape as one requiring perfect timing.

Norman Robert Bussiers, 21, of Hartford, was being held in the detention room at Tolland County Superior Court in Rockville yesterday after pleading guilty to a charge of carrying a dangerous weapon. He was awaiting return to the Correctional Center at Hartford.

The small detention room was crowded with 10 prisoners during the noon recess between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. There were six sheriffs and three prison guards on hand but apparently none were watching as Bussiers bent back the corner of the metal mesh grating which covered the window and crawled through.

The window is located directly above the courtroom entrance and faces the main street of the town, but apparently none of the citizens was watching the escape.

Phillip said the car being taken and yelled after it. "Hey, that's my car." It was recovered this morning on Sigourney St. in Hartford. Bussiers' address here was given as 306 Sigourney St. near Main St. and struck two trees and several bushes on Hartford Rd., near Main St. at 12:30 p.m. Bussiers says he lost control of his car. He was charged with failure to drive in the established lane, and is scheduled for a court appearance Sept. 8.

At 10:15 p.m. a car was stolen from near the Union Congregational Church, a half a block from the courthouse, and it is believed, although not confirmed by police, that this is the car in which Bussiers fled.

Youth Returned From Vietnam Dies in Crash

A Coventry youth, just returned from Vietnam, was killed in a plane crash Tuesday night.

Gregory D. Malloy, 20, son of John J. Malloy Jr. of Autumn Hill, died in a plane crash Tuesday night at 8:35 p.m. near the Memorial Hospital where he died about an hour later at 8:35 p.m.

While in Vietnam, Gregory lost his left leg. He was married to a girl in Vietnam, and had lived in Manchester all his life. She was employed as a secretary at Truett Company.

He is survived by a brother, William F. Brockhaus of Granby.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

Ghetto Merchants: Exploiters or the Exploited?

Editor's Note: An estimated 200,000 white merchants still own businesses in the nation's Negro slums. Most are not making money, but most would like to leave. In this dispatch, an urban affairs specialist examines why.

By KEN HARTNETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The white merchant in an elderly store has been robbed. And the riots that swirled down Washington's 14th Street after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., looters picked the store clean, then burned it down.

Now, heavy steel grating that blocks out the sunlight protects his windows. He has no sign of insurance. The gun is his protection against bandits. His crime insurance was canceled months ago.

He would leave if he could. He says he can't.

"We have debts. We owe for the merchandise. We just can't walk away and leave the business," he said.

The liquor store owner is one of an estimated 200,000 white retailers still doing business in the nation's Negro slums.

Many, perhaps most, are making money; but many, perhaps most, would like to leave. Yet they stay, still clinging to more than 70 per cent of the business ownership in the ghetto.

They feel alone and unprotected. They admit to fear.

A study of Jewish merchants who closed down for good in the slums of Cleveland found that "the majority of them tell of sleepless nights, severe psychosomatic complaints and emotional depression which were immediately alleviated when their existence in the black community came to an end."

Liberals and militants scorn them as exploiters of the urban poor; yet, they feel they are the exploited ones.

Ghetto merchants, black and white, bear the brunt of the rioter's crime problem. One of every five confronts a holdupman at least once a year. Ninety-seven of every 100 are burglary victims.

Insurance companies shun them. Hustlers threaten them. Junkies long to get at the cash in their tills.

"I hate to come here and I love to go home," said a middle-aged druggist in a dingy drug store in lower Harlem. It was nearly noon and the druggist was gathering on the corner outside, waiting for the unceremonious hour when the market would appear.

"We're always under pressure, always under threat," the druggist said. "I try not to think about it but in the back of your mind you say to yourself, 'Thank God, the day is finished.'"

Many are leaving, just how many, no one seems to know for sure. The Small Business Administration only recently began to count the merchants still operating.

But boarded-up, abandoned and often burned out businesses reflect the trend in virtually every major city in the nation.

An official study put the Harlem vacancy rate at 10 per cent. Unofficial estimates put the vacancy rate at 40 per cent or higher in non-urban areas of Newark. A post-riot study of business along Blue Hill Avenue in Boston's Roxbury section showed 87 fewer firms in 1968 than were in 1966. Seventy-four white businesses were still in operation.

A team led by Riva Poor of the Action for Boston Community Development Inc., interviewed 53 of the white merchants. Forty-eight of them said they would like to sell but only 16 were actually seeking buyers. Buyers are scarce.

"There's no set price at all," said Sam Blanken, a Washington business broker. "This stuff can be picked up cheap. Every one wants to run away from it."

A business that might fetch $150,000 before Washington's riot might bring as little as $15,000 now, Blanken said. "The only ones buying in the city now are black," he said. "I don't remember selling a grocery store to a white man since the riots."

Greek-born George Mandes will soon be eligible for Social Security. He'll then sell the little sandwich shop he's been operating since 1940 at the intersection of 14th and U in one of Washington's poorest areas.

If times were good, Mandes says he could get at least $15,000 for his store. "I don't know what I'm going to get now," he said. "Maybe I'll get nothing."

"I'll pay me to let him go and not invite trouble," he said. "We bend over backwards to please people," said the Washington liquor dealer.

Most ghetto dwellers are dependent on bus transportation that gets around the city. In Washington, passengers need exact change. The white-owned liquor store is one place to get it.

Community people can also go to Mandes' store to get their cash, cash checks or buy the daily newspapers.

"And if someone cuts a fine asleep night, severe psychosomatic complaints and emotional depression which were immediately alleviated when their existence in the black community came to an end."

Liberals and militants scorn them as exploiters of the urban poor; yet, they feel they are the exploited ones.

Ghetto merchants, black and white, bear the brunt of the rioter's crime problem. One of every five confronts a holdupman at least once a year. Ninety-seven of every 100 are burglary victims.

Insurance companies shun them. Hustlers threaten them. Junkies long to get at the cash in their tills.

"I hate to come here and I love to go home," said a middle-aged druggist in a dingy drug store in lower Harlem. It was nearly noon and the druggist was gathering on the corner outside, waiting for the unceremonious hour when the market would appear.

"We're always under pressure, always under threat," the druggist said. "I try not to think about it but in the back of your mind you say to yourself, 'Thank God, the day is finished.'"

Many are leaving, just how many, no one seems to know for sure. The Small Business Administration only recently began to count the merchants still operating.

Antitrust Chief Favors Lifting Oil Import Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite strong pressure from the oil industry, the government's antitrust chief has recommended the elimination of importation quotas on foreign crude oil.

In doing so, Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard W. McLaren placed the Justice Department on record against two other Cabinet-level agencies on a subject that a Senate subcommittee has said could mean $4 billion in annual savings to consumers.

McLaren told a Cabinet task force on oil import controls Wednesday that the present system of quotas is anticompetitive, injurious to consumers and unnecessary to the economy and national security.

He suggested that if any import restraints are necessary a low protective tariff would be preferable.

Even so, McLaren made it clear that he favors a system whereby the domestic oil market is governed solely by competitive considerations, including the entrance of foreign products.

He also denounced longstanding industry arguments that quotas are needed to preserve the nation's reserves and to prevent foreign companies from controlling the country's oil supplies.

Instead of reducing U.S. reserves, McLaren declared, an unrestricted importation policy would allow the nation to draw from foreign sources while preserving its domestic supplies.

"Indeed, by limiting imports, it may even be self-defeating by encouraging faster use of our domestic oil," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mandatory oil import program was imposed by the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959 on grounds it was needed to prevent the United States from becoming dependent on Middle East oil.

McLaren disputed this contention, however.

"In the two Middle East contingencies of 1956 and 1957," he said, "it was found that physical facilities available—although apparently adequate on paper—were inadequate to deliver the oil to the United States."

He also criticized policies under which the United States also bears the burden of maintaining an emergency supply for its allies.

"It seems inappropriate," McLaren said, "that the entire cost of allied security needs for oil should fall on the American consumer and taxpayer."

The Justice Department thus opposed positions taken by the Interior and Commerce departments.

In the case of Interior, McLaren said, "the radical misconception they (the whites) have of what should be offered to the community."

FAA Rule Would Bar Loose Luggage in Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Passengers would not be allowed to leave loose luggage lying around an airplane under new regulations proposed by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The proposals outlined today by the FAA for transport airlines are designed to provide greater protection from impact and fire hazards in the event of a crash.

In airliners built after the new rules go into effect all passenger baggage would have to be kept in storage areas on landing and takeoff.

Similarly, all galley equipment—serving trays, serving carts, kitchenware—must be stowed during landings and takeoffs.

New design specifications would require stronger seats and seat belts, greater protection against puncture of fuel systems and stronger materials with greater fire resistance in the cargo and baggage compartments.

Information signs would be more numerous and more conspicuous and placed so that all passengers could read them and understand the location and operation of emergency exits.

Each emergency exit would be capable of being opened within 10 seconds after collapse of a landing gear or similar emergency.

Brighter interior and exterior lights would be required. Materials used within the plane would be subjected to more severe tests for qualities of self-extinguishing of fire.

Passengers would be notified after takeoff that seat belts should be kept fastened loosely throughout the flight. Occupants of seats with shoulder harnesses would have to fasten them during takeoffs and landings.

The FAA said it would accept

Because of her individuality, it is not difficult to understand that her parents would leave their native land to build a new country, one for which her brother would sacrifice his life at 18.

MRS. JOHN BROWNSTONE

Dina recalls vividly her entry into the promised land. Under the British mandate, residents of the land to become Israel could not carry weapons. Her father had presented the family a year before. Dina's mother had concealed a pistol under her arm.

By previous arrangement, at the time of customs examination, many would pinch the baby in her arms. Dina's mother began pumping her other brother. He, being unaware of the plan, would react with surprise. The clamor was exceedingly embarrassing to the customs officer who understood the family, out of Israel, with great haste completely ignoring the required customs forms.

Later, Dina was to become a member of the Israeli army. The development of Israel, aiding in the illegal entry of the Jewish people, was a duty, she voluntarily gave one year of her time to communal settlement. A professional dancer with the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra and with the opera, she has performed in any opera required of her. It might mean peeling potatoes for several hours. Work began at 5:45 in the morning and was over at 4 in the afternoon.

Dina met her husband in Israel while he was serving with the Greek army. She was married in Rhodesia where each of her five children were born. Her husband's name is Dr. John Brownstone, is now medical director of the Center for Mental Health at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The Brownstones' eldest son, David, 22, is a pre-med student at the University of Connecticut. Arnie, nearly 20, is a nurse who has deceased her uncle. The twins, Rita and Deborah, are 15 and Michael, 12.

Dina is president of Rockville-Vernon-Tolland-Hadley Women's Club, a member of the Women's Auxiliary of Manchester Memorial Hospital and serves as a volunteer in the physiotherapy department.

Dina grew with us three recipes of different origins. The first is a marvelous custard-like cake. The second is her husband's family, and the curry from South Africa.

1. teaspoon vanilla
1/4 lb. butter
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup raisins
1-1/2 cups sugar

Remove crust from bread. Mix into sauce. Add raisins and evaporated milk and vanilla. Allow to stand for a few minutes. (Mixture should be mushy.) Grease in butter. Mix well.

With electric beater, beat eggs, slowly adding sugar. Mix egg mixture with milk mixture. Strain fruit and nuts. Bake. Allow to stand for a few minutes.

In ungreased metal loaf pan, sprinkle sugar. Place on hot burner on high flame, watching constantly until sugar is liquid. You must watch carefully. Cool, very slightly. With spoon, smear evenly at bottom of pan and up sides of pan. This must be done before sugar cools off and the pan must be well covered to prevent the cake sticking.

Place cake into hot water in roasting pan, having water about half way up sides of cake tin. Bake at 375 for 1 1/2 hours. Remove from roasting pan. Cool on rack in cake pan for 15 minutes. Slowly lift pan from cake. Serve hot or cold. Mix tomato paste with small amount of water and add along with tomatoes. Add water to tomato until 3/4 full. Add water to taste and marinate bread. Bring to boil.

Wash and clean dried beans (it is not necessary to pre-soak them). Add to pot with celery when water is boiling. Do not cover pot. Simmer slowly on low fire. Watch and stir often. Beans should be cooked but not mushy, and the meat will be falling off the bones. The dish will now be thick. More tomatoes, little banana, whatever are selected by the diner to add to the curry in one's plate.

South Africans serve their curry with sides dishes of various kinds from which several choices can be made. The previous cabbage salad is one. Cucumbers can be thinly sliced, layered with vinegar, salt and pepper. Take cannot sliced beets, use one half the liquor from the can, add vinegar. Another salad combines chopped onions added to diced tomatoes with salt and vegetable oil. Potatoes salad is also good.

And now for the piece de resistance and perhaps our most unusual food of the year in Rhodesia, two native tribes eat, the Zulu and the Mashona. One of the tribespeople wait for a great delicacy. They catch flying ants by the millions and fry them in their whole until very crisp. No cooking oil is required as the ants are oily in themselves.

Small children are paid by the piece to collect the ants. A penny is paid for every 10 crickets and 100 crickets are collected. There is no problem getting workers as the insects are abundant in the area. The tribespeople wait for a great delicacy. They catch flying ants by the millions and fry them in their whole until very crisp. No cooking oil is required as the ants are oily in themselves.

Men Lose Tempers Easily
NEW YORK (AP)—The average man loses his temper about twice as frequently as the average woman, reveals an investigation of anger at Columbia University.

The report indicates that the average man loses his temper about six times a week, against about three times for the average woman.

It was also noted that white women tend to lose their temper more often than black women when someone has done or said something they consider disagreeable. The study was part of a larger study on personality differences between the sexes.

WW II Plot Aimed At Japan's Tojo

TOKYO (AP)—A group of Japanese Navy officers planned to assassinate Premier Hideki Tojo in 1944 after he refused to replace his navy minister, help end World War II, a man who claims he was the leader of the plot disclosed today.

Sokichi Takagi, a former rear admiral, said in a telephone interview that Tojo unknowingly saved himself when he resigned 48 hours before the officers planned to ambush his car in Tokyo.

Tojo, an army general, was considered Japan's No. 1 figure in 1944. He tried to commit suicide when Japan surrendered in 1945 but was saved, only to be executed three years later for war crimes.

Takagi, now 75, said that the assassination was to take place on July 28.

"All prepared secretly," he added. "We were dead sure of killing Tojo with the first round of fire."

Takagi was elaborating on the plot he wrote for the current issue of the magazine Bungei Shunju commemorating the 24th anniversary of Japan's surrender.

Tojo was chief of the Navy Ministry's education bureau. He was in one of Japan's leading commentators on military affairs.

Takagi claims he instigated the plot after Tojo repeatedly ignored demands from several navy officers that he name Adm. Mitsumasa Yonai to replace Adm. Shigetada Shimazumi as navy minister. Yonai was considered more inclined toward coexisting with the West and more able to end the war.

"He was the most nation decried," Takagi said. "I had three of his best men who had chosen to help him kill Tojo."

"Including myself, the four of us planned for July 20, but I never came after Tojo resigned as prime minister two days earlier," he said.

"If it had been carried out as scheduled, it might have coincided with the unsuccessful attempt in Germany (on July 20) to kill Adolf Hitler with a time bomb in his underground bunker in East Prussia."

However, he said the Japanese never had the nerve to attempt the assassination of the German politician, and neither did the Germans have any means to know of their names.

The three men who were to help him kill Tojo "are alive in Japan today," Takagi said, but he refused to disclose their names.

Sales Tax Record
HARTFORD (AP)—State Tax Commissioner John L. Sullivan has disclosed that the last two-year fiscal period included a record-setting collection of $4.1 million in sales taxes during the final quarter.

Sullivan reported Wednesday that one major cause for the sudden spurt of sales tax revenue must have been last year's attempt to beat the increase in the tax from 3 1/2 to 4 per cent July 1.

The 1967-68 fiscal period produced nearly $333 million in state sales taxes, he said. The biennium closed with sales tax revenues of $8.8 million more than anticipated, Sullivan noted.

Wedding

Murphy - Smuk

Miss Sonia Smuk of Williamtown was the bride of David Scott Murphy of Manchester.

The Rev. C. Henry Anderson, pastor of Emmanuel Lutheran church, performed the double-ring ceremony. Miss Jean Conklin was organist. Bouquets of gladiolus and carnations were on the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, She wore a lime green silk street-length dress, designed with pearls and crystals encircling the ring collar, the cuffs of the long sleeves and a buckle at the belted waist. She also wore a matching pillbox hat with veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Entomologists at the University of Utah and Utah State University have begun studying the problem and tend to agree that the population growth in cyclic and, hopefully, now is at the peak of the cycle and will drop next year.

Bridge Yields Fossils, Bone Ammosaurus Was There

By JOHN A. JOHNSON Scuffers, skeptics, and out-and-out unbelievers, clothed themselves in sackcloth and ashes. There were skeletons and fossilized remains of Ammosaurus major in the bridge over Hop Brook at Bridge St.

Yesterday afternoon, after two days of probing, two finds were made 100 million years ago or take a few million years — after the prehistoric creature passed on to its ancestors.

The first discovery was made in the afternoon, ironically by an amateur geologist, Richard H. Sanders of Bloomfield, who was working throughout the day with the team from Peabody Museum of Natural History at Yale University.

Professional examination by Dr. John H. Ostrom of the Peabody Division of Vertebrate Paleontology and Dr. Peter Galton, curatorial assistant, confirmed the find. They were two fossilized ribs, one about seven inches long, the other about four, lying parallel about a foot and a half apart.

The enclosed portion of the fissure contains a six-inch blue-white bone sliver from Ammosaurus major. Dr. John H. Ostrom of Yale's Peabody Museum is confident the fragment is the missing part of a femur now in the museum.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS One of two trains carrying gas across the country ran into a legal block along a scheduled alternate route.

What is the gas? It is a colorless gas that has a nauseating re-sembling musty hay.
