Tolland Annual Town Meeting Passes Three Items

Residents attending last night's town meeting passed only ten minutes to approve all three items on the call of the meeting.

The 112-page annual report was approved without revision or question at the start of the meeting.

The acceptance of Robin Cr. and Babcock Dr. was approved subject to the approval of the road superintendent. When a resident of Robin Cr. wishes to mention drainage problems he is responsible. He was ruled out of order by moderator Eugene Flynn and told to meet with the first selectman following the meeting.

The Planning and Zoning Commission has received nine-point review of the roads calling for several repairs to the road before it meets town selectmen. The report was filed by James Thompson of the consulting engineering firm of Buck and Buck. Thompson announced that he will be in town on Oct. 11 and election day on Oct. 14. Those eligible will include any person moving to town on or after April 11 and before May 2, or anyone whose 21st birthday falls in many months, alterations to some of the water pipes and sewer lines.

Thompson also notes that many instances of storm water traveling in the gutter may enter driveway areas and get behind the curbing and the street. He recommends that the builder Arthur Johnson contain the water within the paved area either by building up the driveway, or putting a return on the curbing into the driveway.

The meeting also approved the quit claiming of a discontinued portion of Mile Hill Rd. and about 2,000 square feet of land between the abandoned section and the existing road.

Deeds filed

Eleven warranty deeds were filed with the town clerk last week including five for newly constructed houses.

Also filed was a deed transferring ownership of approximately 45 acres of land to the town from James V. Buckley. The land abuts the town industrial park and has access to both H. 30 and Kingsbury Ave. Est. The property will be used as an addition to the industrial park.

Deeds for the purchase of newly built houses were issued for Yost Construction Co. to Charles P. and Phyllis C. Monaghan of Madison, property in Valley View; Tolland Hills, Inc. to Thomas J. Cashman of Yarmouth, Mass. property off New Rd. and Monroe Moses, Inc. to Brian and Mary Jane Konek, property on Robin Circle.

Also, Tolland Hills, Inc. to Richard L. and Irma J. Dronie of California, property off New Rd. and Monroe Moses, Inc. to Gary Joseph and Barbara Jane Sullivan of Manchester, property on Robin Cir.

Other deeds filed are James D. Burke to James C. and Theresa Burke of Acton, Mass., property on Tolland Ave.; Timothy and Frances A. Nadeau to Charles C. and Alma L. Sheldon of Manchester, property on Sugar Hill, and Donald T. and Nancy S. Cary to Gerald and Cynthia Zelenowski of New Britain, property on Grabber Rd.

Also, Harry P. and Elsie M. Ott of Billington to the Rockville Water and Aqueduct Co. land on the east side of Sherrill Lake, and Richard and Martha Hein to Lawrence C. and Susan L. Gleason of Manchester, property on Old Kent Rd.

An executor's deed from the will of Ira Layman to David L. and Ruth S. Cabot, for property on Old Stafford Rd. was also filed.

Tolland Juniors Notes

The Tolland Junior Women's Club Beautification Program is now centered on the Town Hall and the Hicks Memorial School on the Green.

Landscaping work is now being done by John Whittam of Whittam Landscaping and Nursery of Bolton. The Tolland Junior's conservation Committee has purchased a Miss Spruce which will be planted on the Green to serve as a focal point for Christmas decorating and observations during future holiday seasons.

On Oct. 16, members of the conservation committee will hold a work day, planting daffodil, tulip, and crocus bulbs in front of both the Town Hall and the Hicks school.

VFW Hayride

Members of VFW Post 241 and the Auxiliary will hold a hayride Saturday night. The wagon will leave the post home at 7:30, returning in time for dancing to the music of the Connecticut Country Western Association from 9 until 1.

A donation will be requested per person, and the kitchen will be open for the purchase of light refreshments.

VFW Post 241 will meet Sunday, Nov. 8 at 2 p.m. and every second Sunday of the month following, a change from the organization previous second and fourth Monday of the month meeting dates.

The Ladies Auxiliary is sponsoring the sale of candy for their cancer fund. The candy took only ten minutes to approve all three items on the call of the meeting.

Where MacDougal Should Go... We have nothing but sympathy for the task of State Commissioner of Corrections Ellis MacDougal in his effort to find properly situated Connecticut communities who are ready to welcome new jail or prison facilities inside their own territories.

As we say, we offer Commissioner MacDougal our sympathy, but not our help. If, as of tomorrow, he should reveal that his policy is favorable consideration for one of his new penal institutions, any tract of land inside or bordering Manchester, we would probably lead the movement to try to force him to go somewhere else.

Sound the Tocsin... Some thinkers are sounding the tocsin after the 1970 vote of the Representatives approving a constitutional amendment to decide presidential elections by a national ballot. This is a serious and important matter.

That would give him small encouragement in his praiseworthy effort to improve the very atmosphere of the penal system until it has a chance of curing, as well as punishing, crime.

What he needs is some town so public spirited it is willing to light down all its own natural reactions and instincts and hang out the welcome sign for the commissioner, his institution, and his guests.

Before we could urge Farmington to be such a town, we would have to find ourselves willing to offer Manchester as an alternative. We are not willing.

Our recommendation to Commissioner MacDougal and the state is that they find a few square blocks of some Connecticut city which is in the ghetto stage or slipping toward the ghetto stage, buy it up and use it, and create a spacious and attractive site for their new penal institution while they locate some other low income rate housing out on the open acreage they have been trying to get for their institution.

To have the need for a new institutional facility of a type which really needs to be centrally located and not to use this opportunity to build another mass of depressing urban blight out of the way is, to our mind, almost undeniably an obvious official blindness. Alone, the need for new penal institutional sites has to be an imposition on somebody. But the need for new institutional sites and the need for slum clearance can and ought to be attacked together, in a manner which is good both ways, and does injury to nobody.

A Case-Closing Entry? As the story of the affair of the Green Berets unfolds, in one version after another, certain possibilities keep being re-emphasized.

The Vietnamese man who was killed by the Green Berets by being morphined, hit on the head, and then shot twice in the head before the ruse were changed to his body, which was then dumped into the sea, may have been innocent, and not guilty of the double-agent activity with which he was charged.

He might not even have been the right man, if there was a man who was guilty. The way in which he was disposed of, innocent or guilty, may have been a violation of the law the United States once helped establish at the Nuremberg trials.

Such possibilities are among the reasons why the case was considered serious enough for that action which allowed it to get into the public knowledge and become a sensation, just as they also, subsequently, became reason for deciding to shut the case off without letting it go to trial.

But now, suddenly, everything is almost all right.

The sacred balm for guilt, the sop of conscience, the great hanker of grief, has been applied to this possible outrage, this potential war crime, this risk of miscarried justice, this brutal act of barbarism.

The Vietnamese widow of the victim has taken, in compensation for her loss, a total of 6,742 sound, healthy, comforting American dollars.

To tell the truth about most Americans, there will not be very many of us who will consider this payment of $6,742 to the widow a very satisfactory resolution of the case. It is, in fact, merely a bribe to increase, rather than decrease, our unhappiness with the whole affair.

But there will be those who are our detractors, both at home and abroad, who will have all too easy a time of it in portraying the United States in some posture of thinking it can get away with murder by paying out a few dollars. And, although very few individual Americans subscribe to any such calumnious theory, the fact remains that a payment of dollars seems intended to be our government's last official action in this whole matter.

Some thinkers are sounding the tocsin after the 1970 vote of the Representatives approving a constitutional amendment to decide presidential elections by a national ballot. This is a serious and important matter.

They envision countless electoral colleges and recounts and allegations of fraud and hundreds of voting districts about the country, which they predict, could throw a presidential election into such a chaotic state that it would require an inauguration day.

The proposed amendment would require a run-off election if no candidate received 40 per cent of the vote, but the critics point out that even the determination of this percentage could hinge on the results of a local controversy.

The House was spurred to favor the amendment by a two-thirds vote, it would still have to be ratified by the legislature of three-fourths of the states, in each of which these questions would be argued at length.

Once we abandon the electoral college, the state is left in its entirety to any candidate. The common candidate, one concentrating on the larger centers of population, but neglecting the under-represented, in a state may have a better chance of winning than a state-carrying potential. Suburban and rural voters will all float across state lines to register in the cumulative deciding national total where they could help elect a candidate. Some day this will diminish the clout of urban minorities and minimize the national influence of governors and other state party leaders at the White House. Who can say for sure?

It had been suggested that a better way would be to retain an Electoral College, allowing each Congressional district to choose one elector, thereby keeping the electoral college determination closer to the popular vote.

Under this plan all of a state's electoral votes would no longer go to the presidential candidate who carried the state. If a rival carried even one Congressional district, he would win its elector's vote in the college.

The House gave little heed to this plan. The Senate might favor something of the sort. Or again, it might need to devise amendments to the basic House plan calculated to avoid the frightful inevitabilities it critics so vividly envision, although frankly it is hard to discover what these precautions might be.

When the Electoral College was written into the Constitution, its framers envisioned an elite chosen by the State Legislatures picking the man they deemed best qualified. They did not even dream of such things as political parties which swiftly came into being in the young Republic. Since those days we have evolved into the fully egalitarian one-man, one-vote mentality. But there seems still to be a question as to whether the Green Berets has reached the stage at which it feels it can trust the people to elect a president directly, or whether in such a process it can or cannot adequately safeguard against the evils of tampering that could occur without a process. — ANBONIA, EVENING SENTINEL

By A.H.O. State Welfare Commissioner Bernard Shapiro, the number one target of the 1968 General Assembly, has taken the opportunity of his annual report to the Governor to begin his I told you so.

And what he has to say, in defense of his profession, in defense of his theories, and in criticism of the way the last General Assembly operated in the field of welfare, seems rather powerful stuff.

It is perhaps, a kind of summit performance on the part of a deeply dedicated bureaucrat. One of the things that makes it good is that Commissioner Shapiro somehow manages to escape losing his cool.

He does permit himself such a statement as "The passage of the Federal Act 790—The Omnibus Bill," by the General Assembly marks a giant step backward for public welfare in Connecticut."

But mainly Commissioner Shapiro manages to hit the vein of a sedately dispassionate commentator on the mistakes and follies and understandable confusions confounding the minds of people less knowledgeable and experienced than himself.

He deplores the fact that Aid to Families with Dependent Children has come to seem "synonymous with blacks and welfare." He deplores the fact that Aid to Families with Dependent Children has come to seem "synonymous with blacks and welfare."

Firemen's License, Keys Given Town's Clergymen

Richard Quinby, assistant chief, presented license tags and keys to the four Bolton firemen yesterday morning in a special fire prevention week ceremony.

The metal tags say "Bolton Fire Dept. CHARISSA" and can be mounted on the firemen's cars or can be placed in their glove compartments to be shown in emergencies so that the police will let them through the line in case of accidents and fire, Quinby explained.

The keys open the door to the firehouse on Notch Rd., signifying that the firemen are full-fledged members of the department, with all privileges except that of voting. Quinby did not say that the new members had to respond to the alarm when he falls in the middle of the night, but he did say that they will be notified when there are accidents or fires where they are needed.

Receiving the tags and keys were the Reverends J. Stanton Conover, Robert W. Cronin, Hugh Gillis and Robert Thio.

The ceremony took place in the town office building, with a nursery school mothers and children as witness. One of the fire trucks, gleaming in the sun, was parked in front of the building. The larger number of people in the fire department will continue its observance of fire prevention week from Oct. 7 to Oct. 13.

The Senior Citizens Committee will meet tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Community Hall. All interested are invited to attend.

The Planning Commission will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall.

Zone Change Requested

Second Shopping Center Sought for Spencer St.

A zone change for 21 acres of Spencer St. in order to create a better price for the land, Atty. Robertenberg also said that shopping centers would be created a severe traffic hazard. He brought in a traffic consultant employed by the State Highway Department who said Spencer St. was now running at 84 per cent capacity.

In rebuttal, Atty. Phelon said a shopping center would bring more tax dollars to the town than the land now does and he said the requested change was merely an extension of the zone change granted by the commission in July.

Tabbed until problems of water pressure and storm water drainage can be received was an application for residential subdivision of Gardner St. The land, about 18 acres, is owned by Nicholas V. and Phyllis V. Jackson. A 30-lot subdivision is planned.

Finally, the commission unanimously approved a greatly enlarged zoning map. It gave the town planning director, presented the map to the commission. The zoning map was approved by the commission.
