

Sisters' Reunion Bedlam But Fun

BY JOY STITLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Three five sisters who haven't seen each other for seven years, subtract husbands and children, and plenty of homemade pie and strong coffee, the girls literally with nostalgia and let sit several hours around the kitchen table.

That's the recipe my four sisters and I concocted last week and at the home of one of them in Washington, D.C., and we all agreed it was an unqualified success.

The principal ingredients for this satisfying combination came by plane, train and car from all over the country for the long-planned reunion, and the result was a couple of days of bedlam but not boredom.

Most of the time the place was filled with the glow of friends, and possibly a few strangers who were invited to the feast and decided to stop in and see what the excitement was about. But the really memorable moments came when we gathered late one night at the small round table in the kitchen. The five of us were alone for perhaps the first time since the long year that we shared a campus apartment when we were all in various stages of our college careers at once.

Now most of our kids are in college and we've all gone back to fulltime jobs, so interspersed with the "do you remember?" was talk about how to condense 24 hours of activity into every 24, and how to succeed in cooking without really trying.

Being close in age, we shared many mutual friends during the years we were growing up.

Bloodmobile Visit

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will pay its monthly visit to Manchester tomorrow and will be set up at Concordia Lutheran Church between the hours of 1:45 and 6:30 p.m.

According to a Red Cross spokesman in Connecticut, a pint of blood is administered to someone every six minutes every day but only one of every 25 people who are eligible donors do so.

The Red Cross urges all who have made appointments to keep them. Walk-in donors will be welcomed.

Somalia Seeks Motives For Killing of Chief

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A five-day period of official mourning for the late assassinated President Adhaji Shermarke as authorities sought to determine the motives for his death.

Authorities said Shermarke was shot by a group of men who were identified as "rebels" but whose motives were not clear.

100 Brave Rain For First Day Of Conductor Count

BAKERFIELD, Calif. (AP) — More than 100 conservationists braved rain Wednesday to hold the annual count of California condors, king-size buzzards that once numbered in the thousands and are now nearly extinct.

Under low overcast skies, the birds counted at the small round table in the kitchen. The five of us were alone for perhaps the first time since the long year that we shared a campus apartment when we were all in various stages of our college careers at once.

Now most of our kids are in college and we've all gone back to fulltime jobs, so interspersed with the "do you remember?" was talk about how to condense 24 hours of activity into every 24, and how to succeed in cooking without really trying.

Beef Consumption
CHICAGO — Per capita consumption of pork by U.S. citizens last year was up three pounds over the 48-pound 1967 average. Veal, lamb and mutton were down, but per capita consumption of beef rose from 82.1 to 109.4 pounds, a whopping gain of one-third. The increase alone, 27.3 pounds, was at least as large as the present annual per capita consumption in Japan.

astronauts to visit them after the audience and show slides from their moon mission.

A closed television circuit was set up to carry the show to other parts of the Vatican.

As the astronauts talked with the Pope, in his nearby room, the Vatican news service reported that the Pope had issued a strong condemnation of the meeting.

The Pope, who requested for an audience with the Pope earlier this week was rejected, said that the poor people of the world would interpret the Pope's refusal to meet with the astronauts as a sign of "that the Church is ready to talk lastly with power, of which the astronauts are the symbol, and that she refused to accept direct contact with weakness, of which our mission assembly is a symbol."

Within minutes after Armstrong took his first steps on the moon on July 20, Pope Paul VI said the Apollo crew this message: "We are close to you, with our good wishes and with our prayers. Together with the whole Catholic Church, Pope Paul VI salutes you."

The visit from the astronauts, which was expected to resume their discussion of the Apollo 11 mission, was interrupted by the Pope's address.

The synod's first three working sessions, a welcoming of support has bubbled up for the chief designer of the Soyuz craft, who never has been identified publicly by the name, said in an interview published today that the "main purpose" of this mission is to practice maneuvering the ships in working flight.

The mission so far has been uneventful, with no mishaps or no known new experiments. Soyuz 8 entered its sixth day in orbit today, heading for a Soviet flight duration record at midday. Soyuz 7a in its fifth day in orbit and Soyuz 8 in its fourth day in orbit.

The chief designer of the Soyuz craft, who never has been identified publicly by the name, said in an interview published today that the "main purpose" of this mission is to practice maneuvering the ships in working flight.

"For us this is a working flight," the designer told Pravda. "It is not a test flight. It is a means of carrying out scientific research and working out methods of orientation and cosmic navigation."

The designer spoke at length on the benefit this mission and other space flights will bring to the Soviet people, apparently replying to persons who have previously criticized huge expenditures on space flights while the Soviet consumer lacks so many comforts at home.

The majority of the designer is concealed for security reasons. Key people in the space program are named in the Soviet press only after they die.

Soviet correspondents, interviewing the chief designer at the Balkonur cosmodrome 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow, asked him how he felt after the third successive launching in this mission Monday.

"I had a feeling of great satisfaction and happiness," he said. "It seemed to me that the program was half fulfilled. The most responsible phase was over."

The designer said in the future "orbiting stations of great size and weight will be assembled piece by piece. This kind of work can be carried out with the presence of men in open space." He apparently meant cosmonauts outside their orbiting spacecraft.

He did not say any such tasks would be attempted on the current mission.

Americans' Divided Feelings Told in Letters

NEW YORK (AP) — The depth of division over Vietnam policy in the United States was reflected Wednesday in two letters to President Nixon on Mortar Day—one from a Kennedy family aide and the other from a Republican congressman.

Thorodore Sorenson, counsel to the late President John F. Kennedy, called for withdrawal of all American soldiers from Vietnam "at the earliest possible date" to end "an unjust, immoral, abortive war."

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., in a letter signed by 14 other Republican members of Congress, called for all-out escalation of the war "with one aim in mind—victory."

Sorenson's letter was read in the White House on Wednesday at seven Vietnam Mortar Day ceremonies in New York City.

Excerpts from Sorenson's letter:

"The war in Vietnam is killing our sons, devouring our tax dollars, inflating our prices, alienating our students, undermining our currency, distorting our priorities, devastating our cities, disrupting our military and destroying our national spirit."

"You have asked us to be patient—but neither draft boards nor death beds are patient. You have asked us for a chance to negotiate—but there are no real negotiations underway and your non-negotiable demands at Fairport have no serious chance of success."

"You may have a commitment to protect the free choice of the South Vietnamese people. Surely we do not fulfill it by destroying their land, burning their women, corrupting their children, propping up an undemocratic government and instigating that Americans instead of Vietnamese will decide what happens in Vietnam."

"You say our casualties have been reduced. But the number of American men returned under your installment plan this far this year is less than the number returned in casualties—stretchers or in wheelchairs."

"We are not asking that our participation in this war be ended. And we will never give up until this abominable war is over."

Excerpts from Steiger's letter:

"We believe this dirty little war with a third-rate power can

Kennedy Case: Justices Confer: May Give Quick Decision on Inquest

BOSTON (AP) — Five Massachusetts Supreme Court justices have had an unscheduled consultation, leading to speculation that there would be a quick decision on a proposed inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

The body of Miss Kopechne, 28, was found in Ben. Edward M. Kennedy's car in a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island July 19.

Attorneys for the senator and nine other persons involved in the case asked the Supreme Court last week to rule that an inquest should be closed to the public and that attorneys should be permitted to cross-examine witnesses.

Normally the justices consult on pending cases on the last Tuesday of the month, which would be Oct. 28. A court source said an unscheduled consultation was held Wednesday. He would neither confirm nor deny that it concerned the petition by Kennedy and his associates.

Within minutes after Armstrong took his first steps on the moon on July 20, Pope Paul VI said the Apollo crew this message: "We are close to you, with our good wishes and with our prayers. Together with the whole Catholic Church, Pope Paul VI salutes you."

The visit from the astronauts, which was expected to resume their discussion of the Apollo 11 mission, was interrupted by the Pope's address.

The synod's first three working sessions, a welcoming of support has bubbled up for the chief designer of the Soyuz craft, who never has been identified publicly by the name, said in an interview published today that the "main purpose" of this mission is to practice maneuvering the ships in working flight.

The mission so far has been uneventful, with no mishaps or no known new experiments. Soyuz 8 entered its sixth day in orbit today, heading for a Soviet flight duration record at midday. Soyuz 7a in its fifth day in orbit and Soyuz 8 in its fourth day in orbit.

The chief designer of the Soyuz craft, who never has been identified publicly by the name, said in an interview published today that the "main purpose" of this mission is to practice maneuvering the ships in working flight.

"For us this is a working flight," the designer told Pravda. "It is not a test flight. It is a means of carrying out scientific research and working out methods of orientation and cosmic navigation."

The designer spoke at length on the benefit this mission and other space flights will bring to the Soviet people, apparently replying to persons who have previously criticized huge expenditures on space flights while the Soviet consumer lacks so many comforts at home.

The majority of the designer is concealed for security reasons. Key people in the space program are named in the Soviet press only after they die.

Soviet correspondents, interviewing the chief designer at the Balkonur cosmodrome 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow, asked him how he felt after the third successive launching in this mission Monday.

"I had a feeling of great satisfaction and happiness," he said. "It seemed to me that the program was half fulfilled. The most responsible phase was over."

The designer said in the future "orbiting stations of great size and weight will be assembled piece by piece. This kind of work can be carried out with the presence of men in open space." He apparently meant cosmonauts outside their orbiting spacecraft.

He did not say any such tasks would be attempted on the current mission.

Americans' Divided Feelings Told in Letters

NEW YORK (AP) — The depth of division over Vietnam policy in the United States was reflected Wednesday in two letters to President Nixon on Mortar Day—one from a Kennedy family aide and the other from a Republican congressman.

Thorodore Sorenson, counsel to the late President John F. Kennedy, called for withdrawal of all American soldiers from Vietnam "at the earliest possible date" to end "an unjust, immoral, abortive war."

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., in a letter signed by 14 other Republican members of Congress, called for all-out escalation of the war "with one aim in mind—victory."

Sorenson's letter was read in the White House on Wednesday at seven Vietnam Mortar Day ceremonies in New York City.

Excerpts from Sorenson's letter:

"The war in Vietnam is killing our sons, devouring our tax dollars, inflating our prices, alienating our students, undermining our currency, distorting our priorities, devastating our cities, disrupting our military and destroying our national spirit."

"You have asked us to be patient—but neither draft boards nor death beds are patient. You have asked us for a chance to negotiate—but there are no real negotiations underway and your non-negotiable demands at Fairport have no serious chance of success."

"You may have a commitment to protect the free choice of the South Vietnamese people. Surely we do not fulfill it by destroying their land, burning their women, corrupting their children, propping up an undemocratic government and instigating that Americans instead of Vietnamese will decide what happens in Vietnam."

"You say our casualties have been reduced. But the number of American men returned under your installment plan this far this year is less than the number returned in casualties—stretchers or in wheelchairs."

"We are not asking that our participation in this war be ended. And we will never give up until this abominable war is over."

Excerpts from Steiger's letter:

Kennedy Case: Justices Confer: May Give Quick Decision on Inquest

BOSTON (AP) — Five Massachusetts Supreme Court justices have had an unscheduled consultation, leading to speculation that there would be a quick decision on a proposed inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

The body of Miss Kopechne, 28, was found in Ben. Edward M. Kennedy's car in a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island July 19.

Attorneys for the senator and nine other persons involved in the case asked the Supreme Court last week to rule that an inquest should be closed to the public and that attorneys should be permitted to cross-examine witnesses.

Normally the justices consult on pending cases on the last Tuesday of the month, which would be Oct. 28. A court source said an unscheduled consultation was held Wednesday. He would neither confirm nor deny that it concerned the petition by Kennedy and his associates.

Coventry PTO Starts at Grade School A Year After PTA's Demise

A Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO) has been formed at Coventry Grammar School, after a year in which there was no such group functioning at that school.

Room mothers have been organized as follows: In kindergarten, Miss Pitt's class a.m., Mrs. Wayne Blodger, Mrs. Alan May, August Kramer; Mrs. Harrison's class, a.m., Mrs. Joyce Hollister and p.m., Mrs. Fred Doyle; Mrs. Starnberg's class, Mrs. Richard Ingraham, and Mrs. Ballora's class, Mrs. Beamon Menzel.

First grade: Mrs. Slater's class, Mrs. Robert Tucker; Mrs. Gale, Mrs. Samuel Zurich; Mrs. Vitiello, Mrs. Ralph Paase; Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Robert Woods, and Mrs. Duen, Mrs. Glenn Bradley.

Second grade: Mrs. Davis' class, Mrs. Robert Tucker; Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Michael Martinkus; Mrs. Imber, Mrs. Leon and Mrs. Charles; Mrs. Dolores, Mrs. Michael Tomasi; Mrs. president, Mrs. Ralph Paase; Mrs. Wesley F. Lewis; Mrs. treasurer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lazari; Mrs. Wood.

Included in the working core of this initial steering committee are Mrs. Fred Doyle, Mrs. Michael Martinkus, Mrs. Alvah Phillips, Mrs. Alton Taylor and Mrs. Glenn Bradley.

The committee plans to meet at 1 p.m. on the first Wednesday of each month at the school with Bratton and a teacher representative. They hope that any interested parent will attend these open meetings with opinions and suggestions for this is the nucleus from which major programs and events will be planned. It is the PTO's intent to have three evening programs during the school year, of interest to all parents and teachers.

The first PTO program will be held on Oct. 29 when teachers will be in their classrooms to greet parents from 7:30 to 8 p.m. At 8, Dr. Joan Kereszles, Coordinator of Instruction in the Farmington Public Schools and a staff member at Central Connecticut State College, will talk to parents and teachers about the non-graded elementary school. Following the lecture, time will be given for discussion, questions and opinions.

The PTO has also set up room mother system at CGS. Room mothers would function for special occasions or in emergencies, such as an early school closing due to the weather. The school would contact each room mother, who would then contact the mothers in that particular class. Room mothers would also be in charge of some arrangements for a classroom was holding a party or other special event.

The room mother will be the liaison between teachers and home to maintain communication.

astronauts to visit them after the audience and show slides from their moon mission.

A closed television circuit was set up to carry the show to other parts of the Vatican.

As the astronauts talked with the Pope, in his nearby room, the Vatican news service reported that the Pope had issued a strong condemnation of the meeting.

The Pope, who requested for an audience with the Pope earlier this week was rejected, said that the poor people of the world would interpret the Pope's refusal to meet with the astronauts as a sign of "that the Church is ready to talk lastly with power, of which the astronauts are the symbol, and that she refused to accept direct contact with weakness, of which our mission assembly is a symbol."

For Peace, Peacefully

It was also the largest demonstration in favor of peace in the history of man.

In its better, more particular phases, it provided some nagging criticism of one particular individual in the White House.

It is potentially larger and more historic than any other demonstration in the history of the world.

The provision would be that the federal government would pay the network and stations only one half their normal charge for the least desirable time on their schedules. That would be much less than it would cost the stations to carry the political broadcasts.

With a certain degree of frankness, the commission itself realizes that some of its proposals seem rather strange for a democracy.

Its own report notes that there may be "those who object that simultaneous transmission is an improper infringement on the viewer's and listener's freedom of choice and the broadcaster's freedom of speech."

"Some may," the report continues, "see this provision as a step toward the big brother control of political thought portrayed by George Orwell's novel, '1984.'"

"Although we have considered this argument at length, we find it without real merit," the report states.

At the same time, however, the commission admitted that it hoped and expected many people would watch and listen to the political broadcasts who would not do so if they possessed an option.

The original object, we believe, was to liberate the political parties and their candidates from the progressively incredible and unreasonable expense of the Presidential campaign, and, incidentally, liberate the viewing and listening public from too long and repetitious a campaign.

But the commission's proposals seem less a liberation than a new enslavement. Surely a more sensible presidential campaign can be designed without quite such drastic computations.

Traveling Players

If, at the very season bird song might be diminishing, it has had a sudden jumbled resurgence in your neighborhood.

And if, trying to analyze the assault upon your hearing, you had tried to determine just which birds you have been hearing.

Then, like everybody else this past week or so, you have been honored by an unparalleled visitation of mockingbirds.

A decade ago, a mockingbird was rarely this far north. Since then, a few have taken up your round residence. But for the past few days—one has been summing even farther to the north, and have hailed here to enjoy our pleasant October before continuing their migration.

Mockingbirds have been everywhere, trying by their musical mimicry, to rally all the birds of spring and summer back together for one grand salutation to the Age of Aquarius.

For the first time, hearing their incessant and eventually rather pointless chatter, Connecticut can begin to understand why the mockingbird, for all its talent and grace, can be considered something of a public nuisance down South. Here it even stings during the night.

But for us it is still essentially a novelty to pay some attention to the teachings and principles of these great figures whom it has always honored most, with its religious and philosophical homage, and hitherto honored least in its actions.

In that sense, yesterday may have made human history far more important and fundamental than any potential influence on one particular leader in his policy in one particular war. What came in sight yesterday as the ultimate target was neither Nixon nor Vietnam, but all war and any war.

THASEL Nature Study by Sylvia Ottens

Inside Report

By Rowland Evans Jr. Robert D. Novak

JACKSON, Miss. — Cautious but unmitigated gestures of friendship by the Mississippi Democratic establishment toward President Nixon are typified by one extraordinary ticket purchase for next Monday night's Republican fund-raising dinner in Jackson to be addressed by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

One high state official close to Dixiecrat Gov. John Bell Williams has secretly pledged to buy an entire table (price tag: $1,000) for the Agnew dinner. "The man responsible for planning is advertising in Williams' 1967 campaign also has pledged a $1,000 table. Several figures close to the Governor are buying tickets for themselves and their wives at $100 apiece.

This represents a spectacularly quick turnaround by Mississippi's regular Democrats, the state's overwhelmingly dominant power. From George Wallace to Richard M. Nixon, Nor is this necessarily a transitory development. Younger Dixiecrat politicians view a Mississippi polarized between black Democrats and white Republicans with Wallace's fading away rapidly.

Thus, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell's grand design of a Republican majority combining the Wallace and Nixon voters of 1968 may not be so fanciful as it once seemed. In nine months as President, Mr. Nixon has gone far toward winning over the Deep South without offending the rest of the country.

For the foreseeable future, the Dixiecrats will maintain a public posture aligned nationally with neither Democrats nor Republicans. In private, however, key political figures are ecstatic about Mr. Nixon and disenchanted with Wallace. Plans by Wallace to challenge Gov. Albert Brewer of Alabama, his longtime protégé, for Governor in 1970 are not the way the Mississippi regulars play the game.

Because a few fiery speech-makers by Wallace down in the piney woods could quickly fire up the Mississippi rednecks, Dixiecrat politicians shrink from taking him on. But in Wallace's absence, they believe Mr. Nixon—who got only 13.5 per cent of the state vote when he lost to a poor third in 1964—actually could nose out Wallace today.

The President's boom here was climaxed by his visit to Mississippi's hurricane-ravaged Gulf Coast. But the adulation followed him there was preceded by a solid groundwork of conduct in Washington.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

We notice that the members of Connecticut's Constitutional Convention held a reunion the other night, and the atmosphere emanating from that reunion leads us to conclude that the era in Connecticut politics which produced that Convention is speedily taking unto itself the aura of a comparatively golden age.

Those—certainly in comparison to what the state has been experiencing lately—were the days.

As we lived through the years immediately preceding the Convention, the atmosphere was one of state deadlock and paralysis, as the state's political system reeled under the impact of the Supreme Court's one man vote decision.

A good many supposedly dramatic and shocking things and some supposedly very undemocratic things happened during those years, in which the courts were lashing the state toward what was supposed to be a more perfect democracy.

In the course of the wrangling to liberate the political parties and their candidates from the progressively incredible and unreasonable expense of the Presidential campaign, and, incidentally, liberate the viewing and listening public from too long and repetitious a campaign.

But the commission's proposals seem less a liberation than a new enslavement. Surely a more sensible presidential campaign can be designed without quite such drastic computations.

A special study commission financed by the Twentieth Century Fund has come up with its proposals for future Presidential campaigns, and first glance indicates that they will in their total form, deserve little chance.

Tolland Town Quiet In Vietnam Moratorium

The national Moratorium Day observance yesterday was little if any effect on the town.

Absenteeism at the high school was just slightly higher than usual and no activity was reported at local businesses, factories or schools.

Aside from occasional cars with their headlights on, indicating a stand on the moratorium (either pro or con, since there was general confusion as to what the lights stood for), the day's special observance were unnoted here.

Tolland High School principal Richard Olsen had expressed the hope that Tolland's youth would be "provocally enough not to be up-tight about the state's professed adopting a 'no war' moratorium in the school which would be much 'more comfortable for all concerned.'"

Cross Country Team chairman for the regional meeting are Carol Surtell, special displays; Debra Natale, refreshments; Kim Boyer, registration, and Anne Janell, treasurer.

Boys League Officers

Bruce Stewart has been re-elected president of the Tolland Boys League. Other officers elected are Stan Johnson, vice president; Earl Beebe, secretary; Charles Duran, treasurer; and Gerry Burnham, equipment manager.

Bulletin Board

The Board of Assessors will be a vice president of the Tolland Board of Assessors tomorrow from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. for the annual determination of property values for the year 1969.

The Tollanders Square Dance Club will hold a "Black Cat" night at the Crystal Lake Yacht Club, 1000 Main St., Tolland, Conn., on Saturday, Oct. 19, 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Three miles from the University of Hartford in West Hartford to a rally in downtown Hartford, where they were joined by others. Estimates of the rally crowd ranged from 40,000 to 50,000 at the point, but the crowd peaked as speeches began.

Abentheism in Hartford's high school ranges from 75 per cent, with many of the students going to the rally. The Hartford rally took place after about 1,000 of those at the rally split off and marched in front of the Federal Building a few blocks away.

At the New Haven rally, students led the crowd that South Vietnam should feel the South Vietnamese people. "We've done all the substituting of American money and lives we're going to do."

Lawrence said President Nixon has ignored the wishes of the people. "You don't need half the country into war when the other half thinks it's wrong."

Major Lee said the Vietnam war has taken needed money away from urban programs, and that the money is being sent to Vietnam when we have war. It's that we have to have peace.

Drug Problem Is No Subject For Speeches, Lavitt Says

Problems with narcotics are not the subject of discussion for political campaigns, according to Senator Joseph P. Lavitt. Lavitt said that he cannot agree to a subject for discussion in this campaign.

Lavitt charged McCoy with implying that the problem is serious and that "nothing is being done about it."

Our officers are doing a great job, and in this area which is so delicate, and which needs quiet operation, to be successful in every phase of the beginning of this campaign, I intend to do nothing to upset their operation."

Contending that the use of narcotics, particularly the "soft" drugs, is not a police problem, Lavitt said, "It is a problem for every citizen, and every citizen has a right to be heard."

Will U.S. Be Able to Win Political Victory in Vietnam?

Whatever the merit, or lack of it, of Mortormartyr Day, with its outpouring of respect for the Vietnam war, it has focused attention on some of the toughest questions facing Americans today.

The resolution permitted transformation of American military aid from the status of advisory to combat. Again in 1969, Johnson stated American aid in broad strategic terms and added, "We cannot now abandon our word or abandon our commitment."

Strategic values and outlooks may be changing with regard to the Vietnam war, but the problem of millions of people and the hundreds of thousands of American soldiers who are in Vietnam, to protect all South Vietnam, is not changing.

But the United States got into Vietnam on the issue of interest, and "people's war." As the United States has been in Vietnam for more than 10 years, it is now how to get out. It is made more complicated by the obvious reading of the U.S. political situation as a watershed in the history of the world.

Speakers Support, Oppose Moratorium

Miss Irma Faust, Manchester Community College student, entertains the assemblage of persons from both generations with one of several folk songs between afternoon speeches in Center Park.

Vernon Student's Essay on Peace Read on RHS Loudspeaker

In the words of one high school senior, a way of life is being fought for, not just a piece of land. People are always fighting each other, either physically or mentally. They're fighting for something that they believe is right, or they hate his religion, or his political beliefs. I could almost live with that kind of war. But when men fight each other with the sword, it's something no humane man can enjoy. It seems to me that when members of the Student Council look up a cold that make man unique, they should include the fact that man constantly fights his fellow man. And whenever some slight divides the crowd of peace, or calm, has been achieved, man looks around for something else to fight about. The essay was written by senior Anne Higgins and read by Scott Smith at Rockville High School and by Jo-Anne Davin at the Bykes Freshman Building. Here is the text: "What is peace? I really don't know. I don't live in a world of peace, or a country of peace. We don't even have peace in this little school. "Peace isn't just the absence of armies and war, but rather it must happen."

70 Area Residents Attend Service on Moratorium

After a day of peaceful demonstration held across the country, about 70 area residents met last night in the Andover Congregational Church for a Vietnam Moratorium Service. The atmosphere was one of quiet contemplation and perhaps re-dedication to basic principles for which the country stands, including the right to speak and think according to one's own conscience. The service began with an organ prelude by Mrs. Barbara Patch, followed by the invocation by the Rev. R. H. Bradley, Jr., who welcomed the moratorium committee and attendees. The attendees then sang an old Civil War song, "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," which includes such words as "Many are the hearts that are looking for the right to see the down of peace."

The evening's talks dealt with the country's apparent refusal to admit the war can be ended quickly and peacefully, hypocritically in the nation and the greed that feeds a war. Mrs. Howard Roberts said, "The war is over, but Washington hasn't heard it yet. In a way we all try to understand and kill your enemies. But the war is over, you don't have to kill your enemies. It must happen."

At UConn

Mayor Nathan G. Agostinelli of Danbury, Conn., presided over a meeting containing 460 signatures from Robert E. Richardson Jr., Manchester Community College English department chairman, at Richard Eller, MCC assistant professor of English, looks on. The mayor informed the two members of the college ad hoc committee he would convey the petitions to the Board of Directors for its action. "I had my submachine gun ready," said a large man hunched over a local restaurant counter after the march. "They didn't cause any trouble though," responded the president, had made me a starting discovery during the day. "I just went over to one little girl to ask her why she was marching, and I was surprised to know I was interested to find out, that she knew exactly why she is here."

By JOHN JOHNSTON
Anti-Vietnam War orators were hurling a winning game and had the crowd with them until the ninth inning of yesterday's late afternoon speech-making in Center Park. Then two unscheduled speakers came out of the audience to spoil the shutout.

Y. Klassen of Coventry, an electrical engineer, made it clear he stands for peace as firmly as any of the Moratorium Day demonstrators. "But true peace cannot exist unless all countries are for it," he said. Accusing Soviet Russia of setting out to commit genocide, he said U.S. presence in Vietnam is to combat the subjugation of small countries by the USSR. "What is good for Vietnam is good for all the small countries of Europe," he said. Hassen was born in Estonia. Her generation is an expert authority on immorality, irresponsibility and violence. Mrs. Walter Briggs stated, "Violence comes from reacting to what kids are doing, not from the actions of the kids themselves."

Commenting the gathering on its day-long peaceful display of dissent, Ted Cummings agreed there comes a time when people have to stand up and be counted. "When you say, 'Hell no, I won't go,' be ready to go someplace else," he said. "I'll be ready to go someplace else." He said U.S. presence in Vietnam is to combat the subjugation of small countries by the USSR. "What is good for Vietnam is good for all the small countries of Europe," he said. Hassen was born in Estonia. Her generation is an expert authority on immorality, irresponsibility and violence. Mrs. Walter Briggs stated, "Violence comes from reacting to what kids are doing, not from the actions of the kids themselves."

Prof. Henry Baskerville of the Trinity College English department asserted that the Geneva Agreement, stated the dissent was vital to the country. "We can't let the war go on for another two months," he said. "We must commit ourselves to a vital, lasting peace."

Flags, Lights Symbols For Varied Views

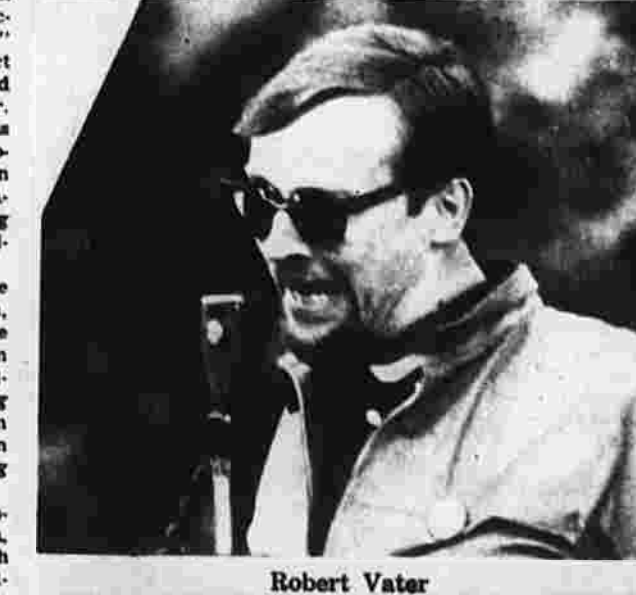

There was some confusion among witnesses and participants in yesterday's Vietnam Moratorium activities as to what various symbolic forms of protest and anti-protest actually meant. The most confusion centered around the flashing of automobile headlights. Thanks to conflicting reports in news stories and advertisements the day before as to what putting headlights on all day as a symbol of their stand. An advertisement in the Herald earlier in the week, by the MCC Moratorium committee, said that demonstrators should put their headlights on if they were protesting.

Quiet Service Ends Events

An orderly Moratorium Day observance concluded last night on notes of penance and at what was a solemn service. The Rev. Russell Allen, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in the center of the service, was the celebrant. He presided over the service, and members of the congregation to what the service was a solemn service. He led the congregation in a reading of the declaration of penance.

Injunction Sought In Teacher Strike

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. — The Board of Education today sought a court injunction to break a teachers' strike and resume normal classes for the city's 11,000 public school children.

More than 700 teachers voted to stay away from the 22 schools today because of prolonged pay negotiations with the EHEA.

The teachers' vote Thursday evening in the 22 schools was nearly unanimous. Contract negotiations have been going on for nearly a year without success.

The 126-101 vote taken Thursday afternoon clears the way for submission of a referendum to the city council.

But reports from the Senate indicated that the House is not ready to take up the bill.

Other college deferment critics including Kennedy and Rep. Otis C. Pike D-N.H., and Lucien N. DeLoe, D-Mich., don't deferments are unfair simply because they block the burden.

Teachers at San Francisco State College have been accused of giving inflated grades to students according to whether they supported or opposed campus unrest last year.

The campus newspaper Phoenix said a computer study showed that more than 75 percent of all grades given in the semester last spring were As and Bs, averaging 3.22 on a scale ranging 4 as an A.

The panel of 12 national economists forecast little or no growth in the second half of 1969, but predicted that the gross national product, in terms of dollars, will continue to rise because of price increases.

The panel forecast a resumption of real growth in the second half of 1969, providing for the year as a whole an increase in real national output of between one and two percent. The

You might find an instructor who's staying away from classes," declared Dr. Frederick Terrier, chairman of the Academic Senate, composed of 42 of the school's 1,300 full-time instructors.

Sea 140,000,000 Years Old

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — The oldest sedimentary samples ever taken from the ocean floor, tracing the ocean's history back 140 million years, have been bored from the Pacific, says Dr. M.N.A. Peterson of Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

The 1,800 feet of cores arrived Thursday at Scripps Institution, manager of the deep sea drilling project.

Peterson, project director, said the stratigraphy of the sediments laid down layer upon layer over millions of years is better for study in some respects than similar samples taken on land.

Scientists aboard the ship Glomar Challenger have bored as deep as 3,200 feet below the floor in the Pacific from California to Guam since last April. Cores were shipped here for study while the project continued.

The cores, preserved by refrigeration, range from pure white, oozy and chunky, to a jet black substance impregnated by manganese oxide.

Peterson said the cores will form the nucleus of a data collection center at Scripps to be available to scientists.

Material bored earlier from the Atlantic is housed at Lamont Geophysical Observatory at Columbia University in New York.

The project, financed by a $12.5-million grant from the National Science Foundation, is attempting to reconstruct the ocean's geological history. Also taking part are Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, University of Miami and University of Washington.

Still More Cosmonauts Return Safely to Earth

MOSCOW (AP) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 7.

Moscow Radio said Soyuz 7, carrying Anatoly Filipchenko, Vladimir Volkov and Viktor Gorbatko, landed in the Soviet Union. It was in orbit nearly five days.

Still orbiting in space aboard Soyuz 8 were veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Shatalov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The other ship in this biggest Soviet mission, Soyuz 8, was brought to earth Thursday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kuksin aboard.

Soyuz 8 is expected to land Saturday.

Soyuz 7 landed 86 miles northwest of Karaganda, in Kazakhstan, only 15 miles from the site where Soyuz 8 came down. The broadcast said search parties reached the spacecraft quickly and the three cosmonauts "felt excellent."

The mission of Soyuz 7 was declared "successfully completed," as Soyuz 7's flight had been 24 hours earlier than planned.

The only pioneering aspect of the flight announced so far has been the testing by Soyuz 6 of new automatic welding equipment to determine the feasibility of its use in the construction in space of a large orbiting station or platform, the goal of the current Soviet space program.

Reporting on the experiment, Dr. Nikolai Kazakov wrote in the newspaper Zvezda: "For the first time we obtained information on how different metals are welded and cut and how they melt in conditions of space vacuum and weightlessness."

It is still too early to sum up the results, but has already been proved that welding is possible in near-earth space," Boris P. Leonov, chief Soviet expert, wrote in Pravda.

Moscow newspapers also reported that the welding equipment used by Soyuz 6 and Soyuz 7 was a new type of automatic welding machine at a new conference in Moscow. The question-and-answer test included these exchanges:

Q—How did the welding experiments work out in weightlessness conditions?

A—The welding experiments went well. But it's a bit too early yet to speak about results. The samples will be checked on earth, and then the results will be reported.

Such a task reduction is needed here, the secretary said, and it would endanger passage of the surface extension on the repeal of the seven per cent investment tax credit.

Chairman William McC. Marshall of the Federal Reserve Board told the business leaders that the force that give rise to inflation, and "we are on the threshold of seeing real results from Kennedy's economic program."

He called on the business leaders to help in two ways: by supporting the administration's effort in Congress to curb expenditures to provide a budget surplus as an anti-inflation device, and by supporting a six-month extension of the tax surcharge at five per cent.

Under such a policy, we would not only have a more stable and once more, we would begin to experience the pain of inflation."

Kennedy conceded it would not be easy to decide the proper amount to shift in a policy of restraint to one of ease. It is the administration's responsibility to watch closely and to respond promptly when the signs are unmistakably clear that the balance of risk has shifted from inflation to recession.

Lottery Draft Fate Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to draft 18-year-olds first under a lottery system appears likely to win House approval next week but its fate in the Senate is an open question.

The House Armed Services Committee approved the plan aimed at giving 18-year-olds a 50-50 chance of their draft prospects by a surprise 310-0 vote Thursday.

House leaders, who believe they can block efforts to tack wholesale revisions on the bill, almost immediately scheduled floor action for late next week, indicating there is little hard opposition there.

But reports from the Senate indicated that the House is not ready to take up the bill.

Other college deferment critics including Kennedy and Rep. Otis C. Pike D-N.H., and Lucien N. DeLoe, D-Mich., don't deferments are unfair simply because they block the burden.

"I feel certain that if the House passes it, he (Stennis) will report it out as expeditiously as possible," Mansfield said. "And if he does, I'll call it up as expeditiously as possible."

An effort to eliminate all college deferments was ruled out of order by a 210-190 roll-call vote in the House committee that indicated the strategy that may be used to block draft amendments on the House floor.

The committee ruled that the only issue before the House is a one-line bill to repeal the 1967 Under House Rule if any other draft proposal is not germane to the one-line bill.

Inflation War Urged

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy warned today that a premature easing of the anti-inflation brakes despite current evidence of a slowdown, but the price-wage spiral he revived last week.

Kennedy addressed more than 100 top leaders of industry at the full meeting of the Business Council, as one of several high administration officials on hand to curb inflation.

"We must and shall resist the all too tempting route of moving into an expansionary posture to change course. Expansionary policy would build up to change course. Expansionary policy would build up to change course."

Under such a policy, we would not only have a more stable and once more, we would begin to experience the pain of inflation."
