In Atlanta: Mayoral Candidate Asked to Quit Race

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta's Democratic Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. has asked fellow Democrat Sam Massey to pull out of Tuesday's mayoral election...

Allen, who is not seeking another term after serving as mayor for eight years, said Sunday that Vice Mayor Massey should step down in view of allegations that Massey's brother solicited campaign contributions from night club while accompanied by a police captain.

Allen told a news conference that Massey had "sloppy misused his position" and "should immediately withdraw from consideration for an office which requires intuitive integrity."

Allen's statement was accompanied by an official police report of an investigation into the night club solicitations.

No Happy Ending

We can't say that we blame President Nixon, even having misread his way into nominating Judge Clement Haynsworth to the Supreme Court...

There was a similar trumpeting against the anti-missile-missile program, and when the President decided not to give up the ghost, he went ahead and won by a vote.

In the present instance, it has probably become the illusion that he would be the best thing that could happen to him. Obviously, there should have been a much more thorough examination of the nominee and his activities before the selection was made in the first place.

And there has, in fact, been no development on the side of Haynsworth since the drumfire against him began. The one development the Nixon Administration has tried to use in support of the nomination has been the fact that the same American Bar Association Committee which originally approved Haynsworth for the appointment has reaffirmed its support.

That is the key to the weakness of the Haynsworth nomination. The chain of disclosures which forced Fortas to his resignation inevitably imposed at least a temporary standard of cleaner than the hour's tooth for Nixon and his Southern supporters should have been able to find a nice conservative judge who would have been entirely free of any possibilities of conflict of interest.

There is no indication that Judge Haynsworth ever delivered an injustice from the bench, there is too much indication that his own attitude toward the ethical problem involved in his financial operations was too casual, and the indication is that such an appraisal of his attitude has had more importance with Senators weighing his case than any particular connection or action.

The Vision of Westmoreland. On the battlefield of the future, said General William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, in an address to the Association of the United States Army meeting in Washington, "enemy forces will be located, tracked and targeted almost simultaneously through the use of satellites, computer-aided intelligence evaluation and automated fire-control. With first-round - kill probabilities approaching certainty, and with surveillance devices that can continually track the enemy, the need for large forces to fix the opposition physically will be less important."

In the course of his speech, General Westmoreland repeated the same vision several times, in slightly different words. "It is that really too much to ask? MIDDLETOWN PRESS

Inside Report

"I see," he said, "battlefields on combat areas that are under 24-hour real-time surveillance of all types."

"I see battlefields on which we can destroy anything we locate through instant communications and almost instantaneous application of highly level fire power."

"Over two-thirds of enemy casualties in Vietnam, he said, were the result of bombardment by artillery and tactical aircraft."

"No more than 10 years should separate us from the automated battlefield."

Such was General Westmoreland's impressive and exciting prophecy.

Through it all, however, there seemed to be one curious assumption. While we thus perfected and developed our trend toward automated warfare, the enemy remained surprisingly backward, still trying to fight a guerrilla war, by hiding large numbers of foot soldiers in a jungle.

One cannot quite believe this. To the contrary, all human and military experience suggests that, just as the tactics we evolved in World War II proved outmoded for the guerrilla type of war which developed in Vietnam, so our tactics we develop to fit the guerrilla war in Vietnam may not be of very much practical advantage in whatever next war we may try to fight.

For a more likely view of the future, we should cast our eyes to the imagination of the science-fiction writers. General Westmoreland's dream of our future capacity to wage such imaginative total war finding itself opposed by some enemy system of "detailed, computer-aided intelligence evaluation and automated fire-control."

And for a newer view of the future, we would have to respectfully suggest that the science-fiction writers, who so ably represent and which has found its way in Vietnam such an exciting and opportune laboratory for experiments of all kinds, has already done as much as it can do for civilization, and can do no more.

A Day For And Of Peace

Observance of the moratorium in mid-November, which has been so impressive, but for the most part limited to the young people.

It is not evident that behind the marchers stand many who in every way would be the best thing that could happen to him. Obviously, there should have been a much more thorough examination of the nominee and his activities before the selection was made in the first place.

"Causes, Stogans and Clitches" To the Editor, I am a member of the apathetic majority and I never, never write letters to the editor.

I am a member of the apathetic majority and I never, never write letters to the editor. However, two items in Wednesday's Herald turned me on.

The statement by the Democratic Town Committee, on the withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam, takes the form of a letter to the editor.

The second article dealt with the activities at the fifth school and came under the heading of "No Loss Incredible".

As this campaign draws near to its conclusion, it is apparent that the Democratic leadership is no less incredible than that of its G.O.P. counterpart.

Perhaps the Herald did not give full coverage to the activities, but as far as I can determine, there was no discussion, nor were there any names in the list of names.

I would be no easy task for liberals dominating the Democratic National Committee to respond to the best of protesters.

I wonder, was Mr. Cummings speaking as leader of his party, or all his own? All this time, the G.O.P. leadership is strangely quiet in face of obviously provocative Democratic myths and half truths found in their pro-ads.

I ask again, where is the Town Committee leadership which on Oct. 8 crudely refused to allow the Committee to reconsider the nomination of Bill Murray in Education?

I am in agreement with the G.O.P. platform, especially its plank on responsiveness to the people. I believe the leadership would have followed through and responded to the many Republican who endorsed Bill Murray. They did not, and have remained silent ever since.

It is not likely that Bill Murray in their advertising, and have even refused to let Bill have the use of their podium headquarters. Nevertheless, it is an incident that the Republican candidate will be able to weather the arraignment of the Town Committee leadership on the strength of their past record of accomplishment and their program.

"No Loss Incredible" To the Editor, As this campaign draws near to its conclusion, it is apparent that the Democratic leadership is no less incredible than that of its G.O.P. counterpart.

Perhaps the Herald did not give full coverage to the activities, but as far as I can determine, there was no discussion, nor were there any names in the list of names.

I would be no easy task for liberals dominating the Democratic National Committee to respond to the best of protesters.

I wonder, was Mr. Cummings speaking as leader of his party, or all his own? All this time, the G.O.P. leadership is strangely quiet in face of obviously provocative Democratic myths and half truths found in their pro-ads.

I ask again, where is the Town Committee leadership which on Oct. 8 crudely refused to allow the Committee to reconsider the nomination of Bill Murray in Education?

I am a member of the apathetic majority and I never, never write letters to the editor. However, two items in Wednesday's Herald turned me on.

The second article dealt with the activities at the fifth school and came under the heading of "No Loss Incredible".

I am in agreement with the G.O.P. platform, especially its plank on responsiveness to the people. I believe the leadership would have followed through and responded to the many Republican who endorsed Bill Murray. They did not, and have remained silent ever since.

It is not likely that Bill Murray in their advertising, and have even refused to let Bill have the use of their podium headquarters. Nevertheless, it is an incident that the Republican candidate will be able to weather the arraignment of the Town Committee leadership on the strength of their past record of accomplishment and their program.

MRA Urges No Cutback In U.S. Funds

Mrs. Ruth B. Shaw, executive director of the Manchester Redevelopment Agency (MRA), urged no cutback in U.S. funds.

She said that the MRA has been successful in securing funds for the area and that a cutback would be a setback.

She also mentioned the importance of maintaining the current level of funding for the area's development.

She concluded by stating that the MRA is committed to the area's growth and that no cutback is acceptable.

Moondog:

He's a 'Peaceful Warrior' Among Warlike Pacificists'

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — At first glance, Moondog standing at the corner of the Avenue of the Americas and 53rd Street in his Viking outfit, complete with spear, appears to be just another New York City weirdo. He wears an elaborate helmet of red cloth, chain mail down to his eyebrows and two animal horns. His robe and cloak are made of old blankets and his sandals are reinforced with newspaper tied with twine. He is a six-footer and with his spear and flowing beard Moondog looks menacing.

"Actually, I'm a peaceful warrior surrounded by warlike pacifists," he says. "I just wear this costume to remind people that the government doesn't have a monopoly on violence. It's a great tradition. This harness back to the day when every man had to be his own army, navy and air force."

Moondog, otherwise known as "The Viking," is a poet and composer of some note. And he is blind, the result of an explosion of a dynamite blasting cap when he was 16. Columbia Records released an album of his compositions, but he also conducted, on its prestigious "Masterworks" label. The title: Moondog.

"I took the name Moondog in 1947 as a pen name," he says. "I was in honor of a dog I had back in Hurley who used to bay at the moon more than any dog I ever knew. I loved him so much."

Moondog attended a special high school for the blind after his accident and took as many music courses as he could. He learned to compose music and then score it in Braille. He came to New York in 1948 and joined the club projects of the sights of the city, like the Empire State Building. For years he has been standing on a window display in a downtown store showing the many phases of the moon.

"The helmet protects my eyes," says Moondog. "I'm terrified of something falling out of these tall buildings. I also have a problem walking in moonbeams on the street."

Moondog's traditionalism extends into his music. He claims to follow in the footsteps of composers like Beethoven, Mozart and Brahms. "My music is tonal as opposed to atonal, polytonal and all the other things I've heard of. I want to restore these composers to their rightful place."

Moondog bought a cabin and 40 acres of land in the Finger Lakes region of upper New York State in 1966 with the income from his early albums. The poetry he sells and his street begging. "But this year, he doesn't think he'll have enough money to keep his country place and still keep a room in an old hotel. He may have to sleep outside. "I'm thinking of getting one of those little Japanese stoves," he says. "But, I'm not taking out a mortgage on my property. I own that outright."

Dr. Harvey Pastel

Moderators for LWV Meetings

Dr. Harvey Pastel and Thomas B. Latham will be the moderators at two "Meet the Candidates" public meetings scheduled by the Manchester League of Women Voters.

Dr. Pastel will be the moderator tomorrow, when the meeting will be for the 12 candidates for the Board of Education. Latham will be the moderator on Oct. 28, when the meeting will be for the 12 candidates for the Board of Directors.

Both sessions will be at 8 p.m., at the Nathan Hale School, Spruce St. Following statements by each of the candidates, the meetings will be thrown open to questions from the floor.

The League takes no position on candidates. It conducts the public meetings to give the electors the chance to hear the candidates' views on the issues facing Manchester.

Eight Killed In Accidents On Weekend

Two young would-be hunters were killed on the opening day of the hunting season. One was brought to death by a bullet wound to the chest, and the other died of an accidental gunshot wound to the head.

An accident in New York State, in addition, took the life of a Bridgeport man, struck by a car while changing a tire. A gun accident Saturday, the first day of the hunting season, claimed the life of Michael A. Field, 11, in Litchfield. The 11-year-old boy was hunting with a cousin and a friend when a 12-gauge shotgun discharged accidentally, striking Field in the chest.

1934 Class Has Reunion

Approximately 150 persons were present Saturday night at the Manchester Country Club for the 35th anniversary reunion of the Manchester High School Class of 1934.

The general chairman of the evening was Mrs. Dorothy F. Kenny and the master of ceremonies was Atty. Anthony J. Gryk.

The honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Illing, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Emory, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Fallot and Deputy Mayor Harold A. Turkington. The 1934 class president, Dr. William Gray of New York, attended with his wife.

Illing, former Manchester superintendent of schools, was principal of the high school when the 1934 class graduated. Emory was a biology teacher at the high school then. Fallot took the class picture. Turkington was musical director then, and had organized the first high school orchestra and band.

Prizes were awarded to Ralph Smith, for traveling the greatest distance to the reunion — from Ohio; to Leland Stevens and Joseph Valenti, for having the most children — six each; and to Merritt and Dorothy Wengrovius Anderson, for being the most recent newlyweds — a few months ago. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson both were members of the 1934 Class. A contribution on behalf of the 1934 class, is being made to the Manchester Scholarship Fund.

Condition Same For Shock Victim

Andrew Wayland, 27, of 35 Marshall Rd., the victim of a severe electric shock he received in an accident while working at Allied Casting last Monday, is still in critical condition this morning.

Authorities at Manchester Memorial Hospital said today that Wayland's condition has not changed since he was admitted to the hospital early last Monday afternoon.

Meanwhile the cause of a second accident at Allied Casting last Tuesday, has been "put in order" according to the State Labor Department, division of industrial safety.

In that accident, three men fell some 14 feet when the scaffolding they were working on collapsed. The men were not seriously injured and Leo Alix, of the industrial safety division, said today "the scaffolding has been put in order."

Exactly what was wrong with the scaffolding has never been explained, however.

Wayland was working with a router last Monday when he received the shock. The router was apparently not plugged in.

He was found lying between two girders, his head bleeding. The shock knocked Wayland unconscious and caused his heart to stop beating, but hospital doctors and nurses administered oxygen and massaged Wayland's heart to revive him. However, his condition remains serious.

The labor department has been investigating the accident trying to discover the source of electricity.

Alix reported this morning that engineers were going over the router's insulation to check its conductive capacities.

Fire Calls

Saturday night, town firemen went to Cezzer and Edgerton Sts., to the scene of an auto accident to wash some gasoline off the road. The call came in at 8:43 p.m.

Yesterday at 11:35 a.m., town firefighters went to 22 S. Adams St. where they extinguished a fire in a play house. Firemen said the cause of the minor blaze was undetermined.

Tolland Democrats, in Paper, Call for Efficiency

A white paper describing the Democratic party's position regarding the issues facing the town lays particular stress on the need for efficiency and responsiveness in local government.

The position paper released today by Democratic Town Chairman Charles E. Thibault, Democratic candidate for first selectman, states, "Positive actions must be taken to protect our town and to efficiently make use of its assets."

It cites the challenges of the 1970's, and calls for an end to the 22 consecutive years of Republican-controlled government.

Brandt Is Elected German Chancellor
Bonn (AP) — The Bundestag elected Willy Brandt chancellor of West Germany today, ending two decades of Christian Democratic rule and giving West Germany its first socialist chancellor in the nation's 50-year history.

The vote in the lower house of Parliament was 231-235 in Brandt's favor with five deputies abstaining, four ballots invalid and one deputy absent.

Brandt's victory, which gives him a mandate to govern for the next four years, was made possible by a coalition with the Free Democratic party. In Sept. 22 general election, Brandt's Social Democrats won only 224 seats to the Christian Democrats' 242, but the Free Democrats control 30 seats and gave Brandt the necessary majority.

Brandt, 55, succeeds Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger of the Christian Democrats, who served Brandt as foreign minister. They had formed a Christian Democratic-Socialist coalition in December 1966.

Brandt earlier was mayor of West Berlin, a socialist stronghold.

The vote for Brandt was two more than the required majority.

Cosmonauts Snub Statue To Visit Flight Center
NEW YORK (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts canceled a visit to the Statue of Liberty and the Empire State Building today deciding to leave for the Houston Space Flight Center in Houston, Tex.

Col. Frank Borman, the American astronaut, announced they could not make their scheduled stop at Cape Kennedy, Fla., where America launches its space flights.

They gave no explanation for that cancellation, but some Americans traveling with the party speculated that Moscow feared that if the two visited the Cape, then Washington might request that American astronauts be allowed to visit the Soviet secret laboratories at Balconur in central Asia.

On their first day in the United States Monday, the cosmonauts took in a Broadway show and dined in a French restaurant. They drank only vodka.

One of them said their warm welcome "revealed humanity at its best."

U.S. Merchant Fleet Seen Going Down the Drain
WASHINGTON (AP) — Since World War II the U.S. merchant fleet has been deteriorating and today 96 per cent of imported raw materials arrive in American ports aboard foreign ships.

The situation is so serious that the new chairman of the U.S. Maritime Commission, Helen D. Bentley, says it is necessary to act now "before our own stupidity and the Russians bury us at sea."

In a Washington speech, Mr. Bentley said the Russian fleet is "of the foreign ports enter and boast of the fact that their seamen serve as ambassadors to the people of other countries, keeping in constant touch with the people of the Communist bloc and advancing the Communist view among the people of foreign lands."

The Nixon Administration has indicated it wants at least 30 per cent of the nation's overseas trade handled on American ships by the mid-1970s.

The AFL-CIO at its 1969 convention in Atlantic City bent even further, passing a resolution saying:

"We must aggressively seek a declaration by the administration and Congress that at least 40 per cent of our foreign trade should be carried in American bottoms."

Blacks Stage Sit-In At Central College

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Police routed and arrested this morning 25 black students who had barricaded themselves inside the administration building at Central Connecticut State College.

The students, who were protesting an alleged bottle-throwing incident on campus Monday night, left quietly after 15 members of the New Britain police department's tactical squad forced the main door of the building shortly after 9 a.m.

The students were taken to police headquarters for booking. The blacks apparently got into the building through the door from the inside. Once inside the building, they jammed the door to the admissions office, where they set up headquarters and drew up a list of demands.

CCSC President F. Don James and other administrators tried vainly to persuade the blacks to leave voluntarily. Then police were called in.

During the two-hour occupation of the building, Bob Brown, a spokesman for the group, was contacted by telephone and gave the following explanation for the action:

"Two black brothers, Ted Johnson, and Willie Baldwin, were creating the campus and had been bottles thrown at 9:40 p.m. last night," Brown said.

"The situation was immediately brought to the necessary authorities," he said. "After a very unfair and biased investigation they said it was an accident."

Brown said the beer bottles could not have just fallen to the ground, because they landed 40 feet from the window.

"The security police just oversteered and bypassed the rights of these black students," he said.

Brown said the black students have other grievances, too, and are demanding a number of changes at CCSC, including a freshman class next year composed of at least 15 per cent of blacks and youngsters of Spanish descent, more black teachers, Afro-American studies as both a major and minor subject, and black housing facilities.

Meanwhile, in Storrs, a black student leader praised the University of Connecticut Monday for its responsiveness to black students' requests, but said more action is needed to head off "serious trouble."

In the past, the university has expressed a favorable disposition in granting the requests of black students," Hazel Kelley told the Faculty Senate.

"Nevertheless, we are sad from the events of the past week (a reference to name-calling by white students and window-smashing by blacks), and from the increasing tension or lessened patience of black students. This response has not been good."

Hazel, who is president of the Organization of Afro-American Students, said in his daily report.

Peanut Butter With a Kick

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal drug expert says youngsters in some parts of the country have taken to injecting peanut butter and marijuana into their veins as a substitute for narcotics.

In several documented cases the result has been death, Ernest A. Caraballo Jr., a lawyer-pharmacist in the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, told a news conference Monday.

Caraballo said the information that peanut butter and marijuana would send some "on a little trip" was contained in an underground recipe book purporting to outline "cultural" recipes from reality.

Other recent finds, he said, included the use of paralytic, cleaning fluid, the local anesthetic ethylchloride and Freon, the pressurized propellant gas in aerosols.

Caraballo said users of narcotic substitutes carried the blameworthy and toxic recipes in a book titled "high" provided by such drugs as heroin or marijuana.

Hurricane Threatens Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Hurricane Laurie lumbered through the Gulf of Mexico today and is sweeping southward toward the tip of Louisiana and the storm-crushed coast of Mississippi.

The growing storm, its highest winds now whipping over open water at 70 miles per hour, drifted nearly 80 miles eastward during the early morning hours.

At 10 a.m. the New Orleans Weather Bureau located Laurie at about 230 miles south of New Orleans at 26.7 north latitude and 90.6 west longitude.

Other winds of 50 miles per hour reached the mouth of the Mississippi River—about 100 miles southeast of New Orleans—and a hurricane watch continued from Galveston, Tex., to Apalachicola, Fla.

The Weather Bureau's 10 a.m. advisory said Laurie was poking ashore at about five miles per hour with a predicted slow and erratic movement during the morning hours.

The Army said Brig. Gen. Earl P. Cole was being reassigned indefinitely to Washington in connection with the current Senate hearings on alleged irregularities in reconnaissance aircraft operations.

The Army didn't go further of the irregularities in reconnaissance aircraft operations.

Despite the growing menace from the storm, Mississippians along the 80-mile beach from Pass Christian to Pascagoula didn't appear perturbed during the morning hours.

But in the low-lying areas of Louisiana, all through the marshlands south and west of New Orleans to the Gulf's edge, evacuees moved into refuge centers of blastproof concrete.

In Lafourche Parish, where all is a big factor in the economic life, more than 20,000 residents were asked to leave homes in low spots for evacuation stations in Bayou La Batre and other areas.

Oil companies with crews working offshore rigs closed operations Monday and moved crews to land.

Schools in some of the coastal counties of Louisiana, coastal parishes and Hancock County, Miss., just across the Louisiana line, closed their schools today.

Kopeczne Probe Hears D.A. Refute Medical Examiner

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Dist. Atty. Edmund Dineen said today to contradict earlier testimony by an associate medical examiner who said Dineen had told him he did not think an autopsy on the body of Mary Jo Kopeczne was necessary.

Dineen said he had first signed an autopsy on July 20, one day after the young woman's body was recovered from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's automobile in a tidal pool on Chappaquiddick Island.

By that time, Dineen said, Miss Kopeczne's body already had been flown to Pennsylvania for burial in nearby Larksville.

Dineen testified before Judge Bernard C. Brominski of Common Pleas Court in the second day of a hearing on Dineen's petition to have the body of the 28-year-old secretary exhumed for an autopsy.
