Ending The '60s

Finally, on a cold bright Sunday morning, with the streets cleared of refuse and tear gas canisters, and the hazy haze returned to the atmosphere, and the bitter smell of tear gas replaced again by burning leaves, the Capitol of the Republic became its old implacable self again. The great stone piles of the government buildings were quiet. Men switched on their television sets, in isolated areas, the police were settling some last small arguments with their invaders, but to them the process was now one of fumigation rather than combat. It was over. All of it.

And it is unlikely that we shall see anything like it again. We will never see anything like that Saturday morning when we walked through the cold morning air along Constitution Ave., with streams of children on all sides of us, heading for the Mall of the Capitol building, thousands of them, with sweet clear faces, carrying their ponchos, duffel bags and youth, seven or eight deep on both sides of the streets, coming like tributes from some secret source heading for a wild and terrible battle. They had come from everywhere, to shout out for life. You could look at them only once and know that they were not what was wrong with America.

We will never see them again precisely like this: spreading out again through the Mall, their peers marshaling them with precision and manners, while in the distance flags billowed in the breeze, red and black, like the emblems of some Arab army in those old movie scenes about holy wars. They moved among each other without hostility, free in some strange way from the impacted resentments of my generation.

The government had made a wall of Washington buses against any mass assault on the back doors of the White House, but the marchers ignored them and kept moving, turning finally onto the great open grounds of the Mall at the foot of the Washington Monument. They came to the brow of a hill, and below us we could see the cluster of makeshift tents and platforms that would be the center of the day.

Nobody knew how many were there, neither the reporters nor the police; it could have been a half-million, or more. I had never seen so many people in one place in my life, not even when Lyndon Johnson's Asian clients were assembling entire nations, during one of his public relations marches through the Orient.

I remember this: David Dellinger, a middle-aged man who should know better, shouting hoarsely into the microphone, encouraging children to go to the Justice Dept. later, where they were certain to be harassed, arrested or worse. At his side were Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman, the Marxist-adhering boy revolutionaries; Rubin, a great non-formalist that he is, displayed the wig he wears to disguise his dread short haircut he received in prison. They would tell by looking at them that when the gas went off they would not be breathing it. But there were to be two superb moments which everyone there would carry forever.

The first came when Pete Seeger started to sing "All we are saying is give peace a chance." It started slowly, and then Mitch Miller was there, waving his arms to lead the crowd, and Mary Travers was beside them, and the crowd came chanting down, the first chant Americans have ever sung in such numbers, the crowd singing to the music, like a rippling carpet, and Seeger saying "Are you listening, Nixon? Are you listening, Nixon?" and the music going on, for eight and a half minutes, and the crowd in the place looked into it. I ran into a tough young fighter I know who had tears in his eyes, who kept saying, "I've never seen anything like it. Never."

The second moment was also musical, and it had to be. Words don't mean much to a lot of these kids, and the dreary words of the right left must mean even less, like some old form of static. The second moment came late in the day, when the grass was showing at the base of the Monument, and hundreds were already on the way to the Justice Dept. to receive their gassing for the report, "Hair" assembled on stage with beautiful Melba Moore singing out across the clamorous field, all about the age of Aquarius and then about letting the sunshine in.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

All that State Senator Wallace Barnes needs to be Governor of the State of Connecticut is the vote.

He has energy, as he demonstrated in his opening whittling tour of the state amounting to his candidacy for the Republican nomination.

He has a proper background of political experience, in his service to the State Senate, in his candidacy for Congress.

He has a wide acquaintance with the problems of the state, as evidenced on those choice occasions when the Senate has permitted itself the luxury of open debate on the issue.

He has a character respected for its decency and integrity.

On the other hand, he has been around long enough to know with a sharp enough eye and a sharp enough ear to protect the innocent people of the state from the innocent incapacity of practicing either himself or the interests of his state.

Such are some of the Barnes assets.

Being human, and being politically ambitious, it is just possible that Senator Barnes would be glad to swap all these sound, serious compliments in for one of those kind of magical appeal by his hand? Is not this the kind of magical appeal that would be the center of the day?

But he couldn't make the swap even if he chose to. He is what he is, a soberly pleasant product of a sane in Connecticut, in which private enterprise and public service lead an honorable coexistence.

He is not a swiftness, he is not a gladiator. No one, fortunately, is going to crave a look of his thinning hair, he happens to sound pretty good on radio, but he is neither dynamic nor charismatic on television.

Finally, his availability had a kind of trial run four years ago, when the consortium of houses of the Republican party could have reached for him, if he chose, instead of reaching tentatively for State Senator Pete Mariani and then finally for Clayton Grogan. We have an idea that if Governor Dempsey were told he had to run that campaign over again and could pick his opponent, he would have most respect for and most fear of Barnes.

Nonetheless, on the record, Barnes remains another of the improbabilities in the present state situation, with the addition of his own handicap of geographical speaking his ambition conflicts with the possible candidacy for U.S. Senate of Congressman Tom Meskill, who easily occupies the post of the party's most eligible 1970 candidate.

To do battle against all this improbability, Senator Barnes is reaching for a heavy use of those assets he can command his own intelligent energy, energy to hit the campaign trail immediately and incessantly, in the hope that he will both with his fellow Republicans and the public at large to make them begin to wonder to themselves, "well, why not Barnes, after all."

The chances still are that the nomination will go to somebody who seems to have a fresher, more appealing image, more personality. But now and then the palm in politics does go to the serious, deserving character who keeps plugging away all the time, including the time his rivals spend in front of their mirror.

Mark 8: 2, 3

And on the sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue, and many hearing him were astonished, saying, From whence hath this man these things? and what wisdom is this which is given unto him, that even such mighty works are wrought by his hands? Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James, and of Juda, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were confounded at him.

So spoke the fact finders of Jesus' time. Our modern world is ridden with factfinders. We have a considerable class of people who are sure that when they get all the facts they can, they will be able to solve the mystery of the human face.

The fact is that Crane has been a major force the past decade in the conservative movement that looks to William F. Buckley, Jr., for its ideological guidance. Crane was an active force in the movement in 1964 and Ronald Reagan in 1968 (the calls Reagan "a great inspirational leader") and makes

Crane may be susceptible to moderation.

Inside Report

By Rowland Evans Jr. Robert D. Novak

CHICAGO — When the Wall Street Journal recently reported that conservative Congressional candidate Philip M. Crane was looking ahead to 1972 for a challenge against liberal Sen. Charles H. Percy in the Republican primary, Crane's response was quick.

Acting on instructions from his professional campaign manager, Jerry Harkins, Crane sent off two telegrams. The first, to the Wall Street Journal, contended the report "is totally false and without basis. I have no such intentions." The second telegram, a copy of the first wire, went to Percy himself.

This incident indicates that Crane, a top-heavy favorite to win a special election for Congress next Tuesday (Nov. 25) from Chicago's lush north suburbs, will come to Washington as something more than another freshman lawmaker.

The decision to send Percy a copy of the denial without releasing it generally here reflects the high degree of professional management in the Crane campaign. That reassurance Percy was intended to forestall voting defections by liberal-to-moderate Republicans led by Percy's supporters in the district. By not giving the telegram general publicity, a speculation about a "Percy-Crane confrontation" was minimized.

Even more revealing is the fact that Dr. Crane, a 38-year-old former history professor at Bradley University who has never held office, is even mentioned as a challenger to Percy. In truth, the Wall Street Journal item reflected growing sentiment among the Bourbons of the Illinois Republican party that Crane might be the best instrument for their desired destruction of Chuck Percy.

Although a 1972 challenge to Percy by Crane now seems less than likely, Crane unquestionably will be seeking statewide office here in the near future.

PETE HAMLIN IN THE NEW YORK POST

Democrats' Reforms Would Give Varied Representation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party reformers have not secret of his feeling that the Republican party would be better off without the Percy. (The fact that Sen. Percy is far out of the mainstream of Republicanism," he told us.

Both Burch and Agnew have insisted that the criticism of network performance does not imply any desire for censorship. The FCC chairman's pointed out that the agency's formal procedure for obtaining transcripts ought to be revised since it takes 30 or 40 days.

Several Republicans on the subcommittee came to Burch's defense. Rep. James T. Brumfiel (R-N.C.) said he applauded Agnew's speech and didn't see any intention in Burch's action.

Rep. James Harvey (R-Mich.) said he thinks there is "some proper cause for concern" about how the networks handle news. Donald G. Brodman (R-Colo.) said it is clear that the house committee members do not want any undue pressure to influence the networks' news network TV news.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) told Burch that he would like to see the discussion on a conciliatory note.

MacDonald said, "If there is any fire to the smoke—and I agree the smoke was quite visible, though I don't mean to imply that there is necessarily any fire—it could be the subject of a complete investigation by this committee."

On the subject of pay TV, the new FCC chairman endorsed in general terms the regulatory agency's policy of encouraging the development of pay television operations in major cities.

When William F. Buckley, 19th-century English reformer, dared to publish a translation of the Bible in which the copies were burned and he was publicly strangled and put to the sword, he was so strong on this that we might be found climbing up your back if there are more incidents such as this.

Burch replied: "I was not attempting in any way to intimidate anyone."

The FCC chairman explained that he had washed CBS on the night of the President's speech and was interested in comparing how the other two networks handled the event. Unfamiliar with the regular procedure, Burch said, "I thought that if I wanted the transcripts, the easiest way to get them was to ask for them."

Van Deerlin said he was "lighted to hear this explanation," but a colleague, Rep. Ray and L. Ottinger (D-N.Y.), didn't buy it.

Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Mark 8: 2, 3

And on the sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue, and many hearing him were astonished, saying, From whence hath this man these things? and what wisdom is this which is given unto him, that even such mighty works are wrought by his hands? Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James, and of Juda, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were confounded at him.

So spoke the fact finders of Jesus' time. Our modern world is ridden with factfinders. We have a considerable class of people who are sure that when they get all the facts they can, they will be able to solve the mystery of the human face.

The fact is that Crane has been a major force the past decade in the conservative movement that looks to William F. Buckley, Jr., for its ideological guidance. Crane was an active force in the movement in 1964 and Ronald Reagan in 1968 (the calls Reagan "a great inspirational leader") and makes

Crane may be susceptible to moderation.

Being human, and being politically ambitious, it is just possible that Senator Barnes would be glad to swap all these sound, serious compliments in for one of those kind of magical appeal by his hand? Is not this the kind of magical appeal that would be the center of the day?

But he couldn't make the swap even if he chose to. He is what he is, a soberly pleasant product of a sane in Connecticut, in which private enterprise and public service lead an honorable coexistence.

He is not a swiftness, he is not a gladiator. No one, fortunately, is going to crave a look of his thinning hair, he happens to sound pretty good on radio, but he is neither dynamic nor charismatic on television.

Finally, his availability had a kind of trial run four years ago, when the consortium of houses of the Republican party could have reached for him, if he chose, instead of reaching tentatively for State Senator Pete Mariani and then finally for Clayton Grogan. We have an idea that if Governor Dempsey were told he had to run that campaign over again and could pick his opponent, he would have most respect for and most fear of Barnes.

Nonetheless, on the record, Barnes remains another of the improbabilities in the present state situation, with the addition of his own handicap of geographical speaking his ambition conflicts with the possible candidacy for U.S. Senate of Congressman Tom Meskill, who easily occupies the post of the party's most eligible 1970 candidate.

To do battle against all this improbability, Senator Barnes is reaching for a heavy use of those assets he can command his own intelligent energy, energy to hit the campaign trail immediately and incessantly, in the hope that he will both with his fellow Republicans and the public at large to make them begin to wonder to themselves, "well, why not Barnes, after all."

The chances still are that the nomination will go to somebody who seems to have a fresher, more appealing image, more personality. But now and then the palm in politics does go to the serious, deserving character who keeps plugging away all the time, including the time his rivals spend in front of their mirror.

Congressmen Warn Burch: 'Don't Intimidate' Networks

BY WILLIAM GREIDER

WASHINGTON—Several congressmen who oversee the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) delivered a friendly, but blunt warning Tuesday to the agency's new Republican chairman—don't "intimidate" the news operations of network television.

Dean Burch, the newly-appointed FCC chairman, responded with a firm denial that he had any intention of intimidating the networks or the news operations of network television.

Burch was making his first appearance as FCC chairman before the communications subcommittee of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee at a hearing on pay television systems. But several subcommittee members asked Burch to clarify the subject of the current rubber over Vice President Spiro Agnew's speech criticizing the networks' news network TV news.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) told Burch that he would like to see the discussion on a conciliatory note.

MacDonald said, "If there is any fire to the smoke—and I agree the smoke was quite visible, though I don't mean to imply that there is necessarily any fire—it could be the subject of a complete investigation by this committee."

Bolton
16 Coventry High Students
Visit in Exchange Program

Sixteen Coventry High School students visited Bolton High School today in an exchange program arranged through the school's student council. Each was assigned a Bolton friend, with whom he or she attended classes. The same procedure was followed Tuesday when 16 Bolton students, from Grades 9 through 12, were guests of Coventry High.

One purpose of the exchange is to promote understanding between the two schools, who are often rivals in sports. Combined dances will also be held.

Bolton High students will split up for an assembly tomorrow. The girls will watch a fashion show by Connie Trent, teen fashion consultant. The boys will see a karate demonstration by John Spencer of the Academy of Karate in Hartford.

At a recent assembly Perry Jolin of School Rd., who works for Hamilton Beach, spoke and displayed items made by his company and used by astronauts and showed a new book titled "The November issue of The Bolt, high school newspaper, has hit the stands. The Elementary and Center Schools PTO will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the new school's general purpose room.

The "Spirit of '72," sophomore class variety show will be given tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m. in St. Maurice Church.

State Warns
CRT Won't
Get Extra $

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Community Renewal Team (CRT) Hartford's antipollution agency, should not count on more funding from the state department of Community Affairs than the money has already been set aside for a department spokesman warned today.

CRT officials have said the antipollution agency will need $700,000 in additional funding from the state to carry on the programs they propose for the next two years.

Thomas R. Bodine, chairman of the CRT board of directors, said the additional state funds for the first six months of 1970 would be found, and he claimed the risk was "worth taking."

The mayor predicted that if the CRT had to halt some of the new programs it has set up in the 1970-71 budget because CRT funds are not available, many other residents' programs serve will be disappointed and their district of government will increase.

UConn Plans to Broaden Housing, Visiting Policies

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — "The Board, and we'd like to take advantage of it. Specific housing regulation based on the guidelines are scheduled to be released late in December by the same committee composed of students, faculty members and one trustee that hammered out the preliminary housing policy.

Under the current living arrangement outside of dormitories, if two-thirds of the persons in a living unit rented from the university belong to or form a fraternity or sorority, the organization may set up rules for the unit.

"We'd like rich kids living with poor, Protestants with Jew and Catholics. Everything but boys with girls, I guess."

Trustee Carl W. Nielsen said the new guidelines would not be applied.

"Some very remarkable changes in regard to campus living have occurred during our lifetime," Babblidge told the board. "We're a step behind in regard to these changes."

The trustees also approved housing policy guidelines that could jeopardize the fraternity system.

"The basic idea of these guidelines is that personal acceptability can no longer be a criterion for housing," Babblidge said. "This will probably hit hard at the fraternities."

"This could mean the end of fraternities and sororities," commented Trustee Merrill Bishop. "We have a diverse student body at the university," said

The guidelines call for "certain ethnically heterogeneous housing arrangements expressly set up so as to alleviate feelings of discomfort among minority groups within such arrangements," Nielsen noted.

Coventry Hearings on Airport Plan Expected by End of Year

HORACE WETHERELL, deputy transportation commissioner for Connecticut, has informed the local Economic Development Commission that his department hopes to hold public hearings on the proposed Bolton-Coventry airport some time before the end of the year.

In a letter to the EDC dated Oct. 27, Wetherell said the Department of Transportation, which became operative only on Oct. 1, had not yet had the opportunity to study the Harris Report, in which the proposal for the Bolton-Coventry facility is carried. Nor has the department, he said, come up with recommendations as to whether the Bolton-Coventry site lends itself as the best available site.

Wetherell added the town can be assured that it will be notified as to the hearings, which will be based on Special Act 204 of the 1969 legislature. "This legislation authorizes funds in the amount of $2,100,000 for the acquisition of Simsbury Airport, a site in the Bolton-Coventry area, and the Robertson Airport in Plainville," the letter states.

Wetherell said yesterday when contacted at his office, he has no further updated information on the matter at this time, but he said he hoped the hearings would be held at the end of the year.

The Economic Development Commission, in its Thursday night meeting, went on record as being "unilaterally opposed" to the proposed airport, which has been described in the Har-

Here Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean are making the most expensive trip of all time. They came, as the plaque said, for all mankind and that's a lot of people waiting for moon things.

There wasn't any doubt about it. The way Conrad and Bean talked in their eight hours on the surface, Wednesday and today, they wanted to bring back the whole moon. Only it wouldn't fit into the Intrepid.

Here's a "spacey" rock. Conrad showed. "A great, great dandy. Boy, have I got the grapefruit rock of all grapefruit rocks. That's got to come home in the space vehicle."

Like the tourists that they are, Conrad and Bean also snapped lots of pictures of the lunar world to show to the earthy world.

And, like tourists, one of them ran out of film.

Trial Continued In Death of Connecticut GI

PT. DEVENNS, Mass. (AP)—The court has granted a continuance to Dec. 16 in the trial of Pvt. Dennis J. Tibbault, 19, Peabody, charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of a fellow inmate at the stockade here.

Tibbault's trial opened Wednesday. He is charged with the death of Pvt. George A. Silford, 21, of West Hartford, Conn. The government says Silford's death was caused by the heart stimulant ephedrine and that Tibbault had a part in supplying Silford with the drug.

A continuance was granted after the defense attorney said he had not had sufficient time to prepare the case for trial or to secure professional assistance.

The judge also granted a defense request that Tibbault be given a sanity hearing.

School Principal Named to Post In State Group

Ronald A. Kosuch, principal of the Vernon Adult Evening School, has been elected treasurer of the Connecticut Association for Public School Adult Education.

The purpose of the state group is to give leadership to the development of adult education in the state. In addition to serving as treasurer of the CAPSE, Kosuch is a member of the National Association for Public School Adult Education, the Connecticut Education Association, and the National Education Association.

At the association's meeting here, Boone reminisced about his start as White House doctor in 1961, shortly after Warren G. Harding took office.

"Harding—a tall, handsome man—looked down at little me and said, 'We'll be seeing a lot of each other.' So I knew something was in the wind."

As the president's physician, Boone says, he treated the whole First Family, Cabinet members and their families and "whoever else was around the

A Congressional Medal of Honor winner in 1915 for his bravery during the Battle of Boisjous, he is described as "one of the most decorated medical officers in history" by the association.

Adm. Boone was medical officer for Adm. William F. "Bull" Halsey's fleet in World War II and, he added with pride, "I was the only medical man present at the official surrender by Japan."

He is particularly proud, he says, of being named chief medical director of the Veterans Administration in 1960.

The communication also is expected to cover an agreement reached by the President and prime minister at their first meeting Wednesday on the ground rules for continued U.S. bases on Okinawa after its return to Japan in 1972.

Senate Okays Bill to Update Rail Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill giving required congressional approval to interstate efforts to modernize New York City rail commuter service was sent to the House for final action.

The Senate approved the measure on a voice vote Wednesday after hearing Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., say that "commuters are suffering from deplorable traveling conditions because of old, worn equipment and years of mismanagement of railroad tracks, signals and electric overhead wires."

The purpose of the bill, which is required by the constitution since it concerns an interstate agreement, "is to give full and unquestioned legal status to the interstate operation and service over lines of the former New Haven Railroad," Ribicoff said.

The New Haven is now part of the Penn Central Railroad. New York and Connecticut have pledged $20 million between them for the modernization program and the federal government has put up another $28.4 million.

However, he is seeking additional aid from the federal Department of Transportation.

The Next Space Question — What Are the Soviets Up To?

By THOMAS O'TOOLE

The question hangs in the air, as the United States makes a second manned landing on the moon. What is the makeup of the Russian space program to day, and what do they plan to do next?

The Soviets pulled off the first triple launch of men into space last month, but apparently failed to land the three spacecraft (Soyuz AT and S) together. While the Soviets denied that a linkup was the goal of the flight, U.S. observers feel it must have been, as a dress rehearsal for building a space station in earth orbit.

It's no secret the Soviets put space stations high on their program. It is the most important of their plans still is unclear or clouded by secret.

What about the moon, for instance? When they toured the U.S. two weeks ago, Cosmonaut Konstantin Feoktistov and Georgi Beregovoy discussed Soviet space plans with newsmen on two occasions, but deliberately left out the moon both times.

A few weeks before that, Soviet physicist Peter Kapitsa held a news conference at the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) in Washington and appeared to dismiss the moon as a target for the program, if only because there would be no political gain in landing there after the U.S.

If all this is true, it might mean that the Soviet Union has scaled down the size of its manned space program. But when Astronaut Frank Borman toured the Soviet Union last summer, he was told there were 22 cosmonauts in training, which is only two fewer than the U.S. has in its astronaut program.

While numbers of cosmonauts do not necessarily reflect the size of the Soviet program, it is at least an indicator of the program's scope.

"It's hard to conceive of a program that large," one observer said, "if they don't have a manned lunar landing in mind."

Special Hearing Draws Too Few Observers

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — A special state commission was not exactly deluged with witnesses when it held a hearing Wednesday night on proposals to establish a direct presidential primary in Connecticut.

The 11 commission members on hand, including Republican State Chairman Howard E. Hauman and Democratic Vice Chairman Kathryn Quinn, outnumbered those who came to observe and testify.

Seven persons showed up for the hearing besides the commission members and only three testified. All three — Bridgeport Republican Town Chairman George W. Ganin, Democratic State Committee member Lacy B. Johnson of Greenwich and Mrs. Mary B. Sullivan of the Greenwich chapter of the Caucus of Connecticut Democrats — favored a presidential caucus over a primary.

Spacecraft's controls in the moon or fly them any- where beyond the moon they need that big rocket. The way things stand now, their biggest booster is a 2.5 million pound thrust engine, one third the size of the U.S.'s Saturn V moon rocket.

Meanwhile, the Soviets go on flying, unmanned, scientific satellites in earth orbit through Van Allen radiation belts and around the moon—all apparently to measure the space radiation they think is so hazardous in manned space flight.

Traditional Clashes Could Change Poll

BOSTON (AP) — The Associated Press weekly New England college football poll has looked pretty much the same for the past several weeks, but things could change drastically as the season comes to a virtual end with Saturday's array of traditional clashes.

Dartmouth, Boston University, Massachusetts, Yale and Boston College are the top five once again in the latest poll, but the most interesting news is that Dartmouth and Boston College are expected to meet in the Saturday contests that could make a difference.

The Indiana are hoping only to keep the status quo as they try to repeat a 6-0 record on the line against a tough Princeton squad at the latter's field. A Harvard seventh, Amherst Dartmouth victory would virtually assure the Big Green of the final No. 1 ranking, but a loss could change things around.

BU, already possessor of the best record in Terrier history, could be a beneficiary of a Dartmouth loss but could also stumble and go the other way if it falls in its finale at Temple.

UMass and Boston College collide at the latter's field in Newton in another game that obviously will have a bearing on how the voters look at things next week.

Massachusetts Yale still another ranked Harvard in still another contest which could move either team up or down a notch or two.

Connecticut was ranked sixth this week, with Wesleyan edging out of the top ten. Amherst Dartmouth is in the ninth spot and Brown, a newcomer to the Top Ten in the final poll, rounded out the ten leaders.

The Top Ten, with records and total points as a selling point, are:

- Dartmouth (6-0) 180
- Boston University (6-1) 180
- Massachusetts (6-1) 168
- Yale (6-2) 168
- Boston College (5-4) 158
- Connecticut (5-3) 158
- Wesleyan (6-0) 158
- Harvard (5-4) 158
- Amherst (6-2) 158
- Brown (2-6) 158

Other teams receiving votes are:

- Tulsa, Maine, Springfield, Connecticut.

Snappy Hat Trick by Mahovich Overshadows Bob Hull's Return

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit, Wednesday night before the NHL games, St. Louis blanked Pittsburgh 4-0, Chicago beat New York 1-1, Los Angeles and Toronto played to a tie, and Oakland beat Minnesota 4-2.

The Canadiens led 4-0 over the Red Wings in their first game since the return of Bob Hull, who had missed the last 12 games. Hull scored twice and assisted on a goal by Larry Rupp.

Frank Mahovich's snappy hat trick kept the Red Wings in contention while Ab McDonald slipped the Blues to an easy victory in Chicago. Bobby Hull didn't score any goals — but he did assist on a goal by Larry Rupp.
