Winter's Treacherous Side Leaves State, Nation Reeling

Winter's treacherous side, coming in forms ranging from near-blizzard conditions to a mixture of freezing rain and snow, hit Connecticut today.

Some schools in the state's worst storm so far were closed today, but the one-half foot near the coast where high tides were also forecast, to a foot in interior areas.

Arriving the day after Christmas, the storm was a mixed blessing: It extended the holiday vacation to five days for many or departed school and post offices were closed. But air service was halted and the mass of holiday season travelers had to rely on treacherous driving or turn to delayed public ground service.

Numerous businesses remained closed today when faced with the problem of absenteeism and delays caused by travel problems.

Philip Hewes, the state's banking commissioner, ordered banks to stay closed today under a new enabling law that places that power in his hands in cases of extreme weather conditions. Affected under the closing are members of national banking associations, state banks and trust companies, savings banks and state and federal savings and loan associations.

Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks closed at 8 a.m. and about 1,000 persons stranded at the airport terminal.

The Tweed-New Haven Airport was closed—last night—by a snowstorm. The airport was closed at 11 p.m. and about 1,000 persons stranded at the airport terminal.

Briggs Airport was open and an attempt was being made to clear the runway at mid-morning despite the freezing rain, but no flights had arrived or departed since the storm began during the night.

High winds posed added problems for snow-removal crews. A stretch of Interstate 84 between New Haven and Hartford was closed for a short period last night, and snow-removal crews were alerted to the stretch.

It does not snow in Rome at this time of year, but the Maggiori was built on a hill many centuries ago after, it is said, the people had prayed to the Virgin Mary to stop the highway department and 12 way for plowing operations, and issued, made up the plowing trucks were used to remove and sanding continued. They disabled vehicles.

At 1:15 a.m., parking spaces at a tow-rope parking garage were turning to slush. By late morning, an estimated 10 1/2 inches had fallen on streets, sidewalks, driveways, lawns, and names your own place.

Collie Only Casualty Of Blaze in Cellar

A two-year-old collie dog was the only casualty in a fire at the home of Eugene W. Ryniewicz, 42 Arcella Dr. early Wednesday afternoon.

Town firefighters were called to the one-story ranch home by Ryniewicz who pulled Box 88 at 1:15 p.m. The dog, named "Sable," was tied in the cellar when the fire broke out. She was quickly overcome by the heavy smoke that filled the cellar and seeped up through the house. Town firefighters Robert A. Lindsay untied the dog and carried her from the cellar. Town firefighter Andrew A. Gustafson then revived the dog with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. But Sable, who seemed to be fine again, took a sudden turn for the worse a little while later.

Ryniewicz said that she was having trouble breathing and he took her to a veterinarian, Dr. Edward Williams on Spencer St., at about 5:30.

Another doctor at the office said today that Sable had a burned throat and he said she had a "fair to good" chance of pulling through.

The doctor said it would be about four days before he could be sure that the dog would be all right. "Her throat and upper respiratory track are swollen and she's having trouble breathing," the doctor said. "She is responding to the drugs we're giving her."

When Ryniewicz saw the smoke coming up from the cellar, he brought his four children and his mother-in-law out of the house and across the street to a neighbor's house. Ryniewicz said he could not accurately assess the damage to the house, although it was still burning when he left.

He said all the summer clothing which was stored in the cellar was destroyed.

Although firemen, or Ryniewicz have not been able to determine the cause of the fire, both say it was not the furnace. Ryniewicz said, "The first thing I thought of, was something was wrong with the furnace, but when we examined it after the fire, we found that it had not been touched by the fire."

Many fire trucks, including the town's aerial ladder truck, was sent to the fire, but the aerial truck was not needed. Although town firefighters had a "fair to good" chance of pulling through, the fire-fighter was seen helping.

 fire in an effort to slow infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and supplies into South Vietnam, sources said.

The allied commands reported a sharp drop in casualties on all sides last week, and South Vietnamese headquarters attributed this to a 31 per cent decrease in enemy activity.

The U.S. Command said 66 Americans were killed, the lowest number since the week of Sept. 28-Oct. 4. This raised the total of American battlefield deaths to 31,988 since Jan. 1, 1961, and it appeared that the total would exceed 40,000 by the end of the year.

The U.S. Command also reported 713 Americans wounded last week, 558 less than the week before. South Vietnamese casualties were 411 killed in action, 10 less than the week before, and 1,019 wounded.

The allies reported killing 3,007 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong last week, 58 less than the week before.

One Million Fewer Americans To Work on Nation's Defense

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials predict about 1 million fewer Americans will be involved in the nation's defense as a result of budget cutbacks over the first 30 months of the Nixon administration.

Included in this calculation are reductions in uniformed members of the armed services, civilian employees of defense agencies and workers who have been employed in defense industries.

Amid indications of deeper cuts in defense, the administration is putting new year's budget in final shape for submission to Congress in January.

Although President Nixon has been office only a little more than 11 months, the new budget will run from mid-1970 to mid-1971—carrying through the 30-month period of his administration.

With certain issues still unresolved, Pentagon sources are estimating a new budget of $73 billion to $76 billion in the book-keeping year starting Oct. 1. This would cut $2 billion to $4 billion from this fiscal year's spending level of about $77 billion.

FCC Chairman Dean Burch Still Interested in TV News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Communications Commission Chairman Dean Burch, dismissing any idea of trying to muzzle commentators, says he will continue to seek out transcripts of television news commentaries.

"I have a lot of interest in things that go out on the television without necessarily suggesting that I propose to do anything about it," Burch added in an interview.

Burch is one of his first acts after taking office on Oct. 31, telephoned TV network heads for transcripts of commentaries on President Nixon's Nov. 3 speech on Vietnam.

Any suggestion that he and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew are trying to destroy the Vietnam, the Pentagon says, is "a bunch of honey."

Burch said Agnew has attacked what he termed "instant analysis" and "questionable commentaries." His purpose for reading the transcripts is "realistic."

Burch also said he has no problem with the idea of children's programs, while others have received three or four from community organizations this year.

Deberry said Wednesday that some groups with long lists of children didn't collect enough gifts, while others in more affluent areas had extras left over.

As a result, Deberry said, the Greater Hartford Community Council will sponsor a meeting of community agencies in January to draw up "a sort of giant Santa's list" for the entire city so the children won't recur next year.

As the United States has reduced its troop commitment in Vietnam, the Pentagon says, the armed services roll this fiscal year and there are hints the total force commitment could reach about 800,000 before mid-1971.

Civilian employment under the Defense Department is due to drop by about 70,000 this year and could possibly total 150,000 or more by the end of the next fiscal year.

With reductions in military procurement, officials indicate that defense contract employment may drop as much as 200,000 or so.

The Vietnam war is expected to cost the United States $23.2

In Waterbury, residents of several hundred homes in the neighborhood of the Massachusetts Turnpike were getting dirty water from the tap or no water at all. The problem occurred when a 12-inch water main broke at about 8 a.m. The storm caused the Waterbury Teachers Association to postpone until Sunday a vote on a proposed 1970 contract. It also prompted several large liquidators, including Anconda American Insurance Co., to cancel early sales. The Downtown Merchants Association went on the radio encouraging store owners not to open their businesses.

Thankfully, the day-after-Christmas traffic load was much lighter than usual in most areas because people were given an extra day off from work. And many of those who were originally scheduled to travel for the day off got it anyway because of the storm. In Rhode Island, an executive order giving state employees a holiday in view of the weather was issued. Light snow fell in the state, but it was not enough to stop the state's major highways. A state trooper said that some roads were open, but added, "It's an open question how possible they are."

Delays of 45 minutes or more were reported in making the trip from Boston to New Haven. The speed limit on the Massachusetts Turnpike was dropped to 40 miles per hour from 65. Toll takers urged motorists to avoid the turnpike if possible.

The Unsettled Power

The response to Secretary of State William P. Rogers' speech on the Near East has been about as predicted. The Arabs have accused the United States of continuing to be the advocate and guardian of Israel.

Not Peanut Butter!

To readers who have complete faith in this paper's unerring instinct for expecting the ultimate worst, it will come as no surprise at all to be told that the bayonets of the day have finally begun to point their finger of suspicion at peanut butter.

Pigs' and Panthers

If the Black Panther Party is truly being persecuted, if its leaders and members are truly being systematically deprived of their civil liberties by the nation's law enforcers, then this effort should be exposed and eradicated.

On the Basis of Principles

We believe the Rogers proposals had enough of the right in them to guarantee them life beyond the naturally uncontrollable initial suspicions of both the Israelis and the Arabs and the slanted cynicism of Moscow.

Inside Report

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

Nixon's credibility is the bad news in the battle of the budget. The fiscal 1970 budget, in deficit to the tune of $8 billion under the old-style bookkeeping system, now will probably turn from black to red under the new system with the passage of the 15 per cent Social Security boost.

The 1971 budget situation is hopeless despite Mr. Nixon's personal efforts to meet - and extenuate - requests. Even if the White House manages to avert the incoming chairman of the Federal Reserve Board - Dr. Arthur Burns - intends to reach the screws on the money supply.

The reason is the fiscal run-away. A probable budget deficit for the current fiscal year (ending next June 30) and a much larger one certain for the next fiscal year. Thus, the President almost certainly will be forced to sign a tax bill by no means to his liking merely to preserve the revenue from the 5 per cent surtax for the next six months and repaying of the costly investment credits.

This means that the Administration's economic team, whose entire office apparently continued to function as if the fiscal year would be ended by the end of the year, is in a state of confusion. In fact, the President's own staff is in a state of confusion.

What That Assures is Continuation of a Tight Money Policy for the foreseeable future as the only weapon against rampant inflation.

The House passed the amendment, 337-90, and then Mr. Nixon, who everyone knows would never have been nominated or elected without the good advice and help Mr. Mitchell gave him as campaign manager, betrayed his trust by endorsing the very proposal Mr. Mitchell had opposed.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

The only acts of Christ's childhood which are recorded are acts of obedience—obedience to His Heavenly Father and obedience to His earthly parents.

Christ, as we know, taught that the foundation of obedience to God is obedience to His parents. He said that if their children are not obedient to God, they will not be obedient to Him. Life was one of submission. He allowed John to baptize Him, though God did not need to be baptized. The temple tax was paid by Him, though being the Son of the Eternal Father. He was exempt from it. And He submitted to Caesar, and instructed His followers that they should give to Caesar what was Caesar's.

In truth, Mount Calvary banished his shadow over the town of Bethlehem; and this shadow would be cast over His home in Nazareth. And in being subject to creatures at Nazareth, though He was God, He prepared Himself for that final Great Obedience—Obedience to the humiliation of the Cross—for our salvation.

Regents To Hold Extra Meet On Dean Rusk Appointment

By BRUCE GALPHIN The Washington Post

ATLANTA — With the nomination of former Secretary of State Dean Rusk as a professor of international law at the University of Georgia stoking a major political fire, university regents were summoned Tuesday to a hasty special meeting next Monday to vote on the appointment.

The official explanation — as much as one is offered — is that the controversy is damaging to the university system, and the sooner it is over, the better for education.

It is a fact that Gov. Lester Maddox has been caustically critical of Rusk's appointment, and after Jan. 1, the governor will be able to put three more of his own regents on the 15-member board of regents.

Even if the vote is taken before the change of membership, according to one regent, "it will be close" — but Rusk is expected to win approval.

At a Harvard or a UCLA, appointment of Rusk could be expected to generate a storm of protest on the left because of his identification with the nation's Vietnam involvement.

But in Georgia, no crowd of students is demonstrating on the regents' decision because of the native son's nomination. The opposition is from the right and from the over-50 generation.

Anti-Rusk forces are being led by Regent V. H. Harris of Augusta, head of the White Citizens American Independent Party in Georgia and president of the Citizens Councils of America.

Publicly, the segregationist regents are being heavy emphasis on Rusk's role as the architect of what Harris describes as America's "brown Vietnam."

Maddox condemns Rusk as a member of the "Great Society crowd."

But the biggest back-slasher apparently is the fact that Rusk's daughter is married to a Negro.

Several of Rusk's right-wing foes deny that this has anything to do with their opposition to both Nixon and Harris and that it is on their minds.

Peter Max Dabbling In Leg Art Now

By JOY STILEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Hot on the heels of the madonnas, now have the Max fashions — semi-garbs artist Peter Max, that is.

Actually, they're not only on the heels, but also on the toes, calves, knees and thighs of a new collection of history that bears his comic design.

The 30-year-old exponent of art nouveau for the masses followed his initial success with psychedelic posters by putting his bold and colorful imprint on cloaks, tops, towels, dresses, napkins, ash trays, mirrors, stationery and even the sides of buses.

Now, looking for new spaces to conquer, Max has gone out on a limb—and given a new meaning to the term "leg art." His brilliant, hand-drawn, flower and fantasy, constellations and clouds are placed strategically at various levels from below the waist down to the toes.

In between there are designs just above the knee as well as a galaxy of stars that enhances the contour of the upper leg, a portion of female anatomy that artist feels has been outrageously neglected.

"An overall history pattern doesn't really mean anything for the leg," insists the long-haired, black-mustached, colorfully clad Max. "The structure below the knee is different from that above and the leg has to be designed, with emphasis on certain areas."

Although the daring ornamentation is admittedly "beamed at the young artistic individualist who wants to establish her own identity to create her very own version of fashion," he adds that "any woman with a well shaped leg can wear them."

The posters with which Max achieved instant fame a few years ago hang in museums all over the world, but he considers his most important galleries the store corners where items that bear his designs are sold.

"The present art trend," he says, "is to put work on neckties, cuffs and everything that can take a graphic reproduction."

Born in Germany, the self-proclaimed artist came to this country via the supply store where he studied astronomy, and France. He became interested in yoga and in Paris found Swami Satichandran, persuaded him to come to New York, and now they work together at the Integral Yoga Institute.

Though his head may be up in the clouds in pursuit of cosmic wisdom, when it comes to innovative commercialism Max's feet are planted on the ground as firm as his home feline which will be played in his star-studded stockings.

Half-Dollars Being Struck Despite Shortage of Silver

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mint is forging ahead with its production of scarce silver half-dollars despite a Treasury Department desire to make them of a copper-nickel sandwich in order to preserve the nation's dwindling silver supply.

The Denver Mint—the only one producing half-dollars—stamped 21.5 million of the silver pieces during November, Roy S. Cahoon, the Treasury Department Agency's coin management chief, said in an interview.

This is almost 20 per cent of the $100 million ceiling set by law, and Cahoon said, isn't nearly enough to go around.

Although it's not possible to judge how many of the 1.26 billion Kennedy halves minted since 1964 are still in circulation, Cahoon said, "we do know they're not circulating as they should in daily commerce."

The Mint judges a coin's circulation by the number returned to Federal Reserve regional banks by commercial banks in their areas.

Now Cahoon said, the reserve banks "have no inventory." One problem causing the limited circulation, Mint officials believe, is the notion that the silver in the coins may one day be worth more than 20 cents, making it profitable to hold them now in the hope of selling them for their silver content later.

Forecasters See Spending For Equipment Up in '70

By JOHN M. FEARLE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Businessmen plan to spend substantially more for new and replacement production equipment next year, but a new government study appears to show that the "standard" economic forecast for 1970.

In their earliest prediction of capital spending so far—the first forecast for a year normally made in February of that year—the Commerce Department and Securities and Exchange Commission said Tuesday businessmen plan to boost spending 10 per cent.

A sampling of more than 6,000 businesses in late November and early December, they said, disclosed plans for $71.1 billion in plant and equipment spending for the first half of 1970, which had spending at an earlier seasonally adjusted annual rate of $71.2 billion, the figures seem to indicate spending will increase slightly in the second half of the year.

This is in line with most economic forecasts. They contend the first half will be flat as the government's anti-inflation program takes hold and business will pick up in the second half.

The increase predicted for 1970 falls about 11 per cent below the 1969 level, but the Commerce Department's index of industrial production, which is a leading indicator of business activity, is expected to rise 14 per cent.

The reduction, combined with four consecutive monthly declines in the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production, appears to signal clearly that businessmen are feeling the pinch of the anti-inflation campaign.

The predicted 1970 increase points in the direction of a lessening in inflation but is far from an actual reduction in capital spending, a serious change in business buying habits that since World War II has accompanied each of the four recessions.

The newest survey is the first of its kind. The SEC and Commerce normally make their first forecast in February, but for four years have been gathering November-December plans on a developmental basis, and SEC spokesman said.

For 1970, nonmanufacturing industries plan much larger increases in spending than do manufacturing industries—22 per cent as opposed to 6 per cent. The relative strengths are a reversal of the 1969 experience, when manufacturing showed the larger advance.

The United Methodist Church, which presently has four computer installations—at Evanston, Ill., Nashville, Tenn., and New York—is considering a possible centralized computer system—for personnel and other purposes.

The denomination's use of an optical scanning process for feeding data into computers, rather than the conventional punch card method, has attracted attention from industrial technicians for its greater simplicity and accuracy.

"It puts the Church out in front in use of current technology," says Vernon L. Sider, the Methodist systems and procedures coordinator.

American Catholicism also is using computers, especially in its Washington, D.C., research center.

To improve methods for recruitment and assignment of personnel to overseas mission posts, eight church organizations this fall began pooling their resources to set up a new agency, the Overseas Personnel Recruitment Office.

It will gather data on potential candidates, screen them for experience and recommend qualified persons to fill specific needs of participating organizations, part of the final choice set up to them.

Among participants are the United Methodist, United Presbyterian, Episcopal, and Lutheran churches, the Church of the Brethren, the Reformed Church in America, the United Church of Christ and the National Council of Churches Overseas Ministries Division.

"We expect other denominations to join when they can work out necessary arrangements and we have had inquiries from two Roman Catholic groups," says Rev. Myles H. Walburn, director of the new inter-denominational agency.

The Lord and Computers Are Working Together

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gradually in part, the religious world is beginning to explore the ways of modern technology—its electronic brains, computers and central information banks.

At a Christian Church (Disciples) University in Fort Worth, a computer is being used to teach a course on New Testament Greek.

It is "proving even more valuable than we had hoped," says the Rev. Dr. M. Jack Sarge, professor of New Testament, explaining that it breaks the subject into small units for "maximum learning efficiency."

It has "reshaped basic communication and problem-solving processes" for the first half of the underpinnings of the subject, and also make use of the new capabilities.

"We can't kick the computer, for it will kick back," he says, citing its potential in handling church statistics, research, pastoral placement, other vocational assignments, long-range planning, program evaluation, and casting and accounting for congregations.

One of the major recent innovations was the launching by the Episcopal Church of a central statistics, research, clerical personnel records and qualifications for use in job placements across the country.

Considered a first step in overhauling the past 100-year-old practice for clerical placements, the project got started this fall. It gradually will encompass all clergy personnel and Church positions, the information being handled by a 1969 computer.

The aim is to "see to it that the right man gets into the right job at the right time with the right training and education," says Bishop John H. Burt, of Cleveland, head of a commission on clergy deployment.

Until now, finding clergymen to fill parishes or other posts has been largely on the basis of scattered, piecemeal information in many communications, with no central clearing house on available manpower or job openings.

The Episcopal Church, before acting to rectify the situation, surveyed its 10,000 parishes and found that 74 per cent of them had no clergy at all.

It made clergy placement mostly a matter of chance when, with no coordinated method of professional evaluation.

The United Methodist Church, which presently has four computer installations—at Evanston, Ill., Nashville, Tenn., and New York—is considering a possible centralized computer system—for personnel and other purposes.

The denomination's use of an optical scanning process for feeding data into computers, rather than the conventional punch card method, has attracted attention from industrial technicians for its greater simplicity and accuracy.

Hobo's Reward To Be Spent On Frivolity?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Preston Tingle, an honest hobo, has received a $25 reward for thwarting a warehouse theft.

But who needs it? Not Tingle, 30, who lives in a trailer on the 7th Street bridge across the Los Angeles River.

"Why, there's plenty of food around. There's catering companies that can keep sandwiches for a few days, you know."

Also, there are the cans of food dented during delivery and thrown away by warehouses in the district.

"There's more food around than a man can use," Tingle declared. "All I got's my cat, and he likes stuff the caterers throw away, same as me."

Tingle saw thieves steal $600 worth of lingerie from Veltman Terminal Co. warehouse where they hid it, and told police.

What will he do with the $25? "Buy some tobacco, I guess. Maybe some jeans."

The predicted 1970 increase points in the direction of a lessening in inflation but is far from an actual reduction in capital spending, a serious change in business buying habits that since World War II has accompanied each of the four recessions.

Population Is Threat to Self

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A noted ecologist says failure to control the earth's population and organize the wide use of its resources could lead mankind to catastrophe.

Distributive Education

Distributive education is not new in the secondary school curriculum, and although a club existed for a brief period at Manchester High School in the early 1960s, the program, as such, was not introduced until 1968. Since then, more than 500 students have experienced some phase of it, earning in excess of $50,000 in part-time employment.

Programs are used instead of "classes" because of its three aspects: Class, employment, and club. Distributive education coordinates classroom study with on-the-job training in fields of marketing, and merchandising goods and services. Occupations in trades, industries, and offices are excluded.

DE 3 for seniors, with 18 enrolled this year, is one of supervised work experience. Students attend classes until 12:40 p.m., and work afterwards on an average of 18 hours a week. Work periods, of course, increase during holiday seasons. Both classwork and job experience carry school credit. Starting pay is $1.60 an hour.

During the summer preceding work assignment, Carl Swartz, business teacher, contacts possible employers, sets up work stations, and programs the year's instruction accordingly. In helping to coordinate the work program, he said, the Chamber of Commerce retail board has been extremely cooperative.

For the most part, work assignments run to specialty shops, department stores, and supermarkets because of the community's nature. Chamber of Commerce statistics placed Manchester 10th in retailing among state communities last year.

Swartz confers with each student at work, the employer, and department manager at least every two weeks, and keeps a record of job progress. Questions he asks concern types of activity and learning going on, opportunities for a permanent place in the business, and what the school can do to prepare students better.

An advisory committee of town businessmen meets at intervals to discuss local needs and what the program can do to help meet them. The real values of the program, Swartz feels, lie in giving students a sense of responsibility.

Troubled Berlin University Picks 31-Year-Old President

By JOE ALEX MORRIS JR.
The Los Angeles Times

BERLIN—Rolf Kreibich, an intense young man who turned 31 a few days ago, is hardly everybody's idea of an ideal University President.

Least of all the professors at West Berlin's troubled free university.

"Why, he hasn't got a single academic title," spluttered a member of the professorial old guard, in a typical reaction to Kreibich's election to head the university. He meant that Kreibich has not yet secured a doctorate.

Kreibich was chosen president as a result of turmoil created by student radicals.

Yet despite the restive faculty and the radical students, Kreibich, an instructor in cybernetics and an avowed socialist, may be the man to save the university from collapse.

If the university goes under, it will go part of West Berlin's symbolic and an outpost of free thought deep inside the German Communist heartland.

Founded in 1948 by students and teachers who had fled the progressive Bohemianism of Humboldt University in East Berlin, the Free University has been torn apart in recent years by radicals in the 15,000-member student body have disrupted classes, occupied buildings and threatened violence. The faculty has retaliated by demanding police protection, and some members have quit.

"Red Cells" are active, with the avowed goal of destroying the university as an educational institution and transforming it into an instrument of revolution.

Disparaging for a way out, the West Berlin Senate last summer passed a university reform bill which replaces the traditional university structure with three-way parity. This means broadly that three groups—professors, students and lecturers—have an equal voice in running the university.

Last month, in a vote which clearly split along group lines, the students and lecturers elected Kreibich over the opposition of the faculty.

The opposition was only token. "Anyone who takes this job is bound to fall flat on his face," one professor commented. But Kreibich sees it differently.

"If we can set reform into motion here, we can establish a new pattern for all of West Germany," he said in an interview. "If we succeed, the Free University will be in the vanguard of revolutionary reform."

"Make that significant reforms," he said after a moment's hesitation.

Revolution is, in fact, alien to Kreibich. He is a socialist, but no Marxist. "I am against the Marxist Methodology," he says. He has been active in the Social Democratic Party in Berlin.

He describes East Germany as a "perversion of socialism."

An elderly professor described Kreibich as "a rather decent young man" and a "Leftwing Utopian."

Kreibich was born in Dresden, where he attended the Technical University, switching in 1948-50 to East Berlin's Humboldt University.

Kreibich crossed to West Berlin in 1961, and began attending the Free University. His pretty wife Renate, a modern artist followed shortly after.

Kreibich is in the unusual position of being president of the university where he is still working for his doctorate.

Before his election last month, Kreibich stood aside from struggle on the campus.

His candidacy aroused no great enthusiasm in the student body. Only 28 per cent of the students bothered to vote. The Red cells split over whether to boycott the election or to vote and prevent the professors from retaining control by default.

The key to Kreibich's strategy as president is to develop this split by offering the students a chance to do more than oppose, and to use the opportunity given them in the new law to shape the university.

"I am not fully convinced I can bring all the radicals with me," he said. "But I hope to reduce their size and influence. He has advantages. He bridges the generation gap and offers the best chance for reform," he said.

"I am attempting to convince the student that in the present historical situation, working from within the institution offers the best chance for reform," he said.

The big test came last week. For weeks, radical students had been demanding the ouster of Prof. Walter Fabat, alleging he had Nazi sympathies during the Hitler era. They called for his resignation by Dec. 15.

Kreibich persuaded Fabat and the romance languages faculty to take part in a public debate of the charges. The students agreed, and one of three moderators appointed.

The lecture hall was jammed, mainly with bearded students and long-haired girls. In the first two rows sat the faculty representatives. Kreibich was there, too, sitting slightly apart from the professors.

Fabat made a spirited defense against the charges, giving evidence of his activity in the anti-Nazi resistance in Italy during the war. He was supported by several professors.

The student activists were long-winded and often irrelevant. There was much Marxist talk of the domestic, foreign and even about U.S. "aggression" in Vietnam.

In the heat of the controversy, no one appeared to be aware that Kreibich had re-established a dialogue of sorts between violently opposed factions in the university.

There was something else extraordinary about this debate. No one threw eggs, paint, or firecrackers. Each side listened, with some heckling, to what the other had to say. Parliamentary order, of a sort, prevailed.

The result bore out Kreibich's thesis that "a new phase of national discussion had begun another way." If Kreibich (no body calls him President Kreibich, and he declines to use the title) had lost, he would have been forced to resign," he said.

One small victory, he hardly conclusive. But it gives some ground for optimism that the Free University may be on the road back to its proper function.

Plane Crash Death Toll Cut Down

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today revised downward the official death toll in the crash of a Vietnamses airplane Monday. It said 20 bodies had been found at the scene, and 14 of the plane's passengers were not accounted for.

A spokesman had said Tuesday that at least 90 persons were killed when the brakes on the Air Vietnam DC8B failed during an emergency landing at Nha Trang and the plane ran off the runway and into a school and a row of shanties.

The government said today that at least 47 of the 70 passengers aboard the plane escaped from the flaming wreckage along with all eight crew members. It said nine of the known dead were passengers while 23 others had been on the ground.

Of the latter, it was claimed that most of them were believed to have been in the school.

The government said the search for more bodies was continuing.

Investigators are trying to determine the cause of an explosion in the vicinity of one of the four engines which forced it to land. Officials have suggested that the explosion damaged the plane's hydraulic system and that this caused the brakes to fail.

Pesticide Commission Report Hopeful with Some Chill Notes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pesticide control is a major factor in man's fight to overcome pestilence, a report issued today by the Pesticide Commission said.

"We must act now or face the consequences of having acted too late," said Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch as he made public Tuesday the report of the Commission on Pesticides and their Relation to Environmental Health.

The 607-page compilation outlined the optimistic tone that there still is time to find solutions; but its most chilling note was the admission that no one—scientists included—really understands the problem.

"The field of pesticide toxicology exemplifies the absurdity of a situation in which 200 million Americans are undergoing life-long exposure, yet our knowledge of what is happening to them is at best fragmentary and for the most part indirect and unconvincing," the report said.

Among the alarms raised by the report is the possibility of global pollution, reinforced by the discovery of pesticide traces at the Antarctic.

Finch said he would take immediate steps to establish a clearinghouse for pesticide information, appoint an advisory committee on the subject, improve the department's organization in this problem area, and work toward improved testing.

Finch also said his department needs more legislative authority to intervene where pesticides are deemed hazardous to life and health.

The report list recommended elimination of all but essential uses of DDT within two years, developing standards for pesticide content in food, water and air and providing incentives to industry to develop other means of pest control.

It also called for modification of the Delaney clause, which requires removal from interstate commerce of any food containing additives that induce cancer, in an experimental animal. The effect of cyclamates on rats brought about their removal.

The commission said the clause should be modified to give the HEW secretary greater discretion to determine when evidence justifies action.

"If this clause were invoked for pesticide residues, it would outlaw most food of animal origin, including all meat, all dairy products, eggs, fowl and fish," the commission said.

Commonly consumed foodstuffs contain detectable amounts of unavoidable naturally occurring constituents which

NFL Has Edge over AFL in Team Named by Players

NEW YORK (NEA) — For the first time in professional football history, an All-Pro team was selected from both the American League and the National League by the 26 head coaches and the 26 assistant coaches from those leagues.

The balloting was conducted by Newspaper Enterprise Association and will be an annual feature.

National Football League players have a decided edge in the selections, with 14 included among the 26 players who were named.

There are 16 NFL teams compared to 10 in the AFL, coaches apparently will be influenced by nepotism. And the coaches in both leagues are familiar, with teams in the rival league since they (1) have played preseason games against each other (2) watch films of the games (3) are more concerned with the rival league since there will be interleague regular season play beginning next season. No one wants to be caught short.

The AFL team was almost evenly divided between the leagues. The NFL placed six, the AFL five. The defense was overbalanced toward the NFL, eight of 11. The two "special" positions were divided: Jan Stenerud of Kansas City is the place-kicker and David Lee of Baltimore is the punter.

Dallas and Los Angeles placed three players apiece on the team. All Dallas stars are defensive players; safety Mel Renfro, outside linebacker Chuck Howley and Bob Lilly, tackle. The Rams' fearsome offensive line was represented by defensive players; safety Mel Renfro, outside linebacker Chuck Howley and Bob Lilly, tackle. The Rams' fearsome offensive line was represented by defensive players; safety Mel Renfro, outside linebacker Chuck Howley and Bob Lilly, tackle.

Seven clubs placed two players each on the Coaches' All-Pro team. The defending Super Bowl champion New York Jets were represented with quarterback Joe Namath and center Ed Budde. The Bears' NFL division leaders Dallas and Los Angeles, the two previous season game winners, offensive tackle Winston Hill, interestingly, the Baltimore Colts, NFL defending champions, who lost to the Jets last January, placed no one on the team.

The Chicago Bears, who have suffered their worst season in club history, managed to have two players on the team, running back Gale Sayers and middle linebacker Dick Butkus. Sayers is in the running for MVP honors, and Butkus is the left knee last season and still is able to return to the top of the NFL rushing department.

Two of the AFL's strongest clubs, Oakland and Kansas City, each had two players also. Oakland's strong secondary defences, Willie Brown and Dave Grayson, made the team, along with Kansas City linebacker Bobby Bell and offensive guard Ed Budde.

Operation Clean-Up At Snowy Met Field

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — A 30-man work force put the final touches on Operation Clean-Up at snow-blotched Metropolitan Stadium today as the final few seats went on sale for Saturday's National Football League struggle for survival between the Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

The crew worked around the clock clearing the stadium from snow from the 47,000-seat park setting for Saturday's Western Conference championship game. The stadium was expected to be ready for the game by 10 a.m. Saturday.

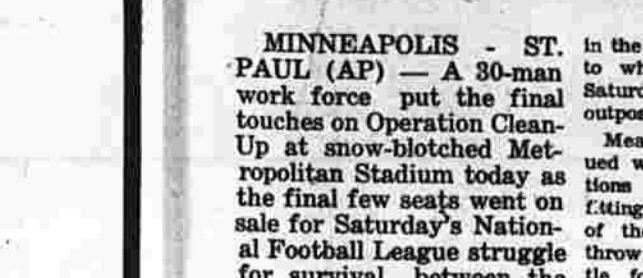

Originally, plans called for a 300-man crew in anticipation that the snow removal project would be huge. But snow which began falling Wednesday ended Thursday morning, enabling the small crew to handle the job by themselves.

"I think we're not only equal, but we're better," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant, "but similar in our style of play and our strengths."

The similarities in personality among the players of the two teams, best exemplified by the leadership qualities of the Rams' quarterback, Earl Morrall, and the Vikings' quarterback, Fran Tarkenton, were noted by Grant.

"We have a lot of solid performers on this club," said Morrall.

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — A 30-man work force put the final touches on Operation Clean-Up at snow-blotched Metropolitan Stadium today as the final few seats went on sale for Saturday's National Football League struggle for survival between the Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

The crew worked around the clock clearing the stadium from snow from the 47,000-seat park setting for Saturday's Western Conference championship game. The stadium was expected to be ready for the game by 10 a.m. Saturday.

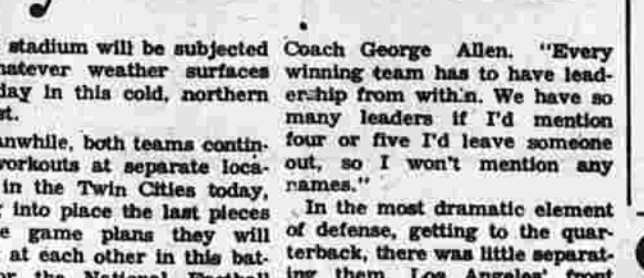

Originally, plans called for a 300-man crew in anticipation that the snow removal project would be huge. But snow which began falling Wednesday ended Thursday morning, enabling the small crew to handle the job by themselves.

"I think we're not only equal, but we're better," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant, "but similar in our style of play and our strengths."

The similarities in personality among the players of the two teams, best exemplified by the leadership qualities of the Rams' quarterback, Earl Morrall, and the Vikings' quarterback, Fran Tarkenton, were noted by Grant.

"We have a lot of solid performers on this club," said Morrall.

NEW YORK (AP) — Legalized betting on thoroughbred and harness racing zoomed to a record $5,496,999,628 in the United States during 1969 by a record 64,179,406 persons.

Despite this merry clicking of the turbines and part-musical machines, John Schapiro, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Association, believes there are some soft spots in the runners are concerned.

Any increases in attendance and betting are almost entirely to a greater number of racing days, he told the TRA at its recent convention in New Orleans.

"Sunday racing may be one of the answers," said Schapiro, who also is president of the Louisiana Race Course. "It has been a states of New York, California, great help in several areas: New Jersey, Illinois, Maryland, and Florida. This was up from the 1968 figures of $7,127,373 and $1,208,371,024."

The 1969 record totals, announced Thursday in a year-end survey by the Associated Press, compared to the 1968 attendance of $4,523,035 and bet of $4,907,601,116 for the flats and up from 1968's 52,910,962 and of this year's total, $1,602,289,892.

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — A strike hit today's scheduled opening of the horse racing winter season at Santa Anita Park as the unions picketed about 500 pickets surrounded the track at 12:01 a.m.
