ing a living soul wonder very much about one's whereabouts or welfare.

This has happened in the news, so that we know it can and does happen.

From it we learn at least one thing: we learn to understand the behavior of all those ex-champions who, in so many walks of life, sometimes seem to make a nuisance of themselves trying to keep up their pretense of past glory, to keep on surrounding themselves with useless retainers, who keep wanting to go over old times endlessly with their acquaintances, who always want to be with people, even when it may not be made clear to them that they are welcome.

The failure in life may have a lot more loneliness, but he also learns to bear it better. It is the fellow who has enough success in something to become a leader temporarily a small center of attraction for other human beings who, when his own importance dies, may find the loneliness unbearable.

Once heavyweight champion of the world, and now dead in his own home for more than a week, and not a soul missing him enough to check — that is the picture, and that's how full of emptiness fame can sometimes be.

Down To The Brochure Cow? A British chemical engineer, it is reported, has invented a mechanical cow.

It feeds and chews the nutrition out of green plants, eliminates unwanted minerals, and adds vegetable oil, sugar and vitamins to taste and formula.

What then comes out of the mechanical cow looks a lot and tastes a lot like milk.

This sounds as if it might represent a major triumph in the field of science and agriculture. It would, apparently, eliminate the long dreary chore-routines of raising frolicsome young calves and breeding nice young heifers and operating milking machines on dark mornings, and about the only thing we would need real cows for after this would be to pose them in green meadows for pictures to be used in state development commission brochures for the tourists.

For most ex-farm boys, anyway, that brochure cow, a suitable distance away in some unknown past, needing no attention beyond that occasional click of the tourist propaganda camera, has for a long time been the best kind of cow.

Responsibility Without Control For all the wretched and painful conditions of the South East Asia war, it is at least a war over which the United States is able to exert substantial control.

Such specific routes — and some more that various cities and potential passengers groups should be fighting for — belong in any guaranteed national network.

But much more welcome than any of the specific recommendations from the ICC is the fact that in its letter to the Transportation Department, the ICC expresses some general principles.

The ICC, for instance, now tells the Transportation Department that the planning for the new national passenger service network must take account of much more than its prospects for profit.

Such planning should also, the ICC now contends, pay attention to considerations like highway congestion and automotive air pollution and unusual scenery (as in the case of the Zephyr route through Feather Canyon which the ICC would have retained) and so on.

It is not always prudent to advise an adversary nation of one's contingency plans. The Soviet Union cannot know for sure what the United States would do if the Soviets engaged in major air action against Israel. Indeed, Israel cannot be sure either.

But in keeping its own counsel, and in attempting to maintain the best relations possible with both Israel and Arab, the United States has permitted a fog of ambiguity to roll in over its Middle East policies. Would the United States risk World War III to protect Israel? Nobody seems to know, including the American public. Even more worrisome, it is reasonable to infer that the Nixon Administration may not know.

Thus we have the likely setting for the great world crisis of 1971. It is almost impossible to believe that the Arab-Israeli peace talks, after all the years of blood and bitterness in the Middle East, will resolve the basic dilemma. Meanwhile the Soviets will continue to arm Egypt with modern weapons designed at the least to retrieve the large part of Egypt east of Suez that Israel has occupied since 1967. And without guarantees securing its safety as a nation, Israel can be expected to hang on to the occupied territories and to be the first to anticipate an imminent attack from Egyptian armies. Israel has, after all, done nothing to merit such a fate.

The grimness of this grim situation is that the United States can control neither the Soviets, nor the Arabs, nor the Israelis. In addition, the best efforts of Israel's advocates in the United States are being directed at further American participation — a participation that does not include a voice in Israel's decision-making in Southeast Asia, where the United States exercises both responsibility and control, is had enough. Deepening involvement in the Middle East, where the United States lacks effective control over any of the principals, is, in fact, a sure way to drag the United States into a tragedy if it deals with the Soviet and Chinese interests in the Middle East, where we have no voice, is powerless to restrain and loses its powerlessness to resolve. — NATIONAL OBSERVER.

"Need Our Help" To the Editor, I was quite disturbed by some statements which I read in The Manchester Evening Herald on Dec. 29 and 30 about the proposed regional occupational school in town.

I am a member of the Instructors of the Handicapped, a ten-year organization here in town which teaches mentally and physically handicapped people how to swim. I have personally seen and worked with retarded people, similar to those that would be attending the school, every Sunday for the past three years and I have yet to see an instance where those people would endanger any other human being.

Often times, those who have not worked with retarded people avoid contact with them as if they were anything else but human. True, they may be slow to learn, but does this mean that they shouldn't have a fair chance to make it in life like everyone else? I certainly don't think so. The retarded people in the Manchester area need our help so that maybe someday they will be able to earn a living like you and I.

According to The Herald, the site at Hilltown Rd. would require a long and involved procedure and quite possibly could be rejected.

If it is true that the Fern St. site could be more easily accepted, wouldn't it be too bad if it isn't proposed because of some unfounded viewpoints of people in the Fern St. District?

Although I am only speaking as an individual, the instructors of the Handicapped invite any one truly interested in its work to contact them at Hilltown Rd. from 1:00 to 4:00 on any Sunday afternoon.

I would like to publicly express my gratefulness to the employees of Manchester's Main St. Post Office for their efficiency and kindness towards my small problem during the Christmas rush of mail.

On the Sunday prior to Christmas, at probably the height of their delirium of mail, I called to tell them I had accidentally mailed three Christmas cards which were to go to my three paper boys. They had no address on them other than the names of the newspapers, and they each contained a gift of money. Well, the tree envelopes were returned and returned to me the next day. But what impressed me most was the way in which the matter was handled. The friendliness and genuine concern shown by these postal employees will never be forgotten. They carried out the true Christmas spirit which is so often lost amid the turmoil of the holiday season.

A grateful patron, Mrs. Roy Manna, Bolton

Federal Reserve Follows Prime Rate Downward Path

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board, putting down a twist in the downward spiral of interest costs, has dropped the discount rate for the third time in less than 20 days.

The board Thursday approved a reduction of the discount rate from 6 1/2 per cent to 6 per cent, the lowest since mid-1968. The drop also indicates a change in the pattern usually followed in discounting.

In the past, the board has taken the lead over lenders and dropped the discount rate to loosen money markets. Member banks generally reacted by cutting their prime rate—the interest they charge their biggest and best customers.

But Thursday, the discount rate slash came after major banks across the nation had cut their prime rates this week from 8-8 1/2 per cent to 6 1/2 per cent.

The prime rate is a benchmark for other, more consumer-related rates. When it falls, interest rates on home mortgages and car loans generally also drop.

Coventry CFT Is Teachers' Choice As Their Bargaining Agent

The Coventry Federation of Teachers will continue to represent local teachers in the bargaining process following last week's victory yesterday over the Education Association of Coventry.

The CFT took 66 of the 114 votes cast, with the EAC winning 48. One ballot was marked neither organization.

There were 123 teachers eligible to vote, with three absentees. The turnout was a total of 114 who voted.

The last run-off election between the two groups was three years ago, when the CFT won by a narrow margin, 54 to 49.

Local CFT officials were in strength, noting that they have more representation at the elementary level now.

CFT co-president James V. Matano and Richard Pellegrini said, "This is a vote of confidence, we stood on our record."

EAC spokesman Mrs. Dorothy Gilliam pointed out that the 48 votes cast for the EAC indicated support in all schools, not just the elementary level.

The negotiation process between the CFT and the Board of Education will begin some time this month for some of the most controversial issues.

The Zoning Board of Appeals has granted one variance in the regular monthly meeting earlier this week.

Gable Rd. was denied permission to construct two apartments on the site of a three-bedroom and four-bedroom apartment.

Prattland claimed backslap in his appeal, but the ZBA felt this was not proven. The vote on the matter was a three against one in favor and one abstention.

James Ferrigno was denied a similar request, having applied to construct apartments at 1000 Main St.

Denial of the appeal was unanimous, because no hardship could be proven.

Willie Starrist, Goose Lane was denied permission to construct a building to house commercial vehicles and on from the intersection of Merrow Rd.

In denying this appeal unannounced, the ZBA felt that information presented by the applicant was insufficient, since Starrist did not know the size or exact location of the building he wished to construct.

The ZBA unanimously granted an appeal by Stanley Harmon, Rte. 8, to erect a two-car garage on his property. Harvra claimed hardship, since unable to maintain the required rear-yard setback in building the structure.

The case of Ralph Depleto of South Windsor, appealing to construct apartments in the old Coventry Day School, was postponed due to an injury suffered by the applicant.

The North Coventry Cooperative Nursery School is now accepting applications for membership for the 1971-72 school year.

Federal Court Dismisses Suit for War Referendum

HARTFORD (AP) — A decision demonstrating any relationship between the right of voters not to be asked to support a referendum for a state-wide referendum on the withdrawal of U.S. forces and the expression of opinion from Southeast Asia has been sought here, authorized by no state or federal statute or court of appeals in New Hampshire.

Thursday, Edward F. Kumin, federal court judge, denied them here. The court plainly lacked jurisdiction, he said, and a single judge had petitioned (with the U.S. Supreme Court) for a writ of habeas corpus.

They have been unable to identify any federal constitutional right denied them here. The court plainly lacked jurisdiction, he said, and a single judge had petitioned (with the U.S. Supreme Court) for a writ of habeas corpus.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that federal court here lacks jurisdiction and that for a state-wide referendum on the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia, allow a public opinion question when the last time it was voted on was in 1964.

DCA Defended

HARTFORD (AP) — Community Affairs Commissioner Leroy Jones has defended the defense of his department, an agency which he said is essential to strengthen local government.
Jones said that you have not had the opportunity to examine closely and objectively the serious efforts made to defend the department.
A state department spokesman said "we have during the last two months made arrangements with the Executive Property Agency to increase the program of development, planning and action."
Jones, however, said the state has a critical role to play in helping our municipalities plan and act. "No strings attached," he said.

Vernon Cafeterias In Schools In The Red

All of the school cafeterias suffered stable losses during the past year, with the exception of those of the middle school and the high school, according to the recently released audit report of Lutz and Keller.

Operations conducted during the year resulted in a net loss of $5,700 which represented the largest combined loss sustained by the school cafeterias since their inception, the report notes.

The cafeterias are not supposed to operate on any gain but to be the same as they should not operate continually in the red. Cost of the meals has been increased slightly as a result of the current school year.

The auditors state that the continued loss operations during the past school year resulted in the department being unable to pay its suppliers at the end of the school year.

It was explained that the financial condition was particularly attributed to unpaid federal aid grants administered by the state, which were received with a delay of last June 30. As a result, the audit report states, little or no cash was available to finance operations which started in September.

"If these cafeterias continue to operate losses, it would appear that it would be necessary to subsidize the operations through contributions from the Board of Education, or by a further increase in meal charges," the auditors cautioned.

As of this year, all school cafeterias, including those of the middle school and the high school, were consolidated in a centralized account. In prior years the cafeteria at the high school was kept apart and operations were conducted through the school's activity fund.

Under the present method, the results of operations of each school can be determined. Even at the two schools mentioned, the profit decreased considerably from that of prior years, the report states.

Noting that the middle school accumulated earnings of $16,300 and the high school, $10,666, the audit report explained that operations over the years at these two schools, had not been profitable the cafeteria account would have been required to seek financial support from other sources.

An fact at the elementary schools are concerned, the only one not ending up in the red was the American School which reflected a small surplus of $28.26.

During the year the cafeterias received some supplies of federal surplus foods for which they are not charged. These were valued at $20,150, whereas the gross receipts from all sources totaled $24,821 of which amount $44,147, represents the sale of food products.

Noting that differences in the cash surpluses or shortages occur daily and range from a few pennies to $20, the auditors suggest that these differences be determined on a day-to-day basis and efforts be extended to keep them at a minimum.

Deluxe Shine Albee Play To Be Given On Sunday

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Gov. Elect John J. Gilligan sent his aides to Ralph Kaufman to be given a deluxe shine for the inauguration Monday in Columbus.

Kaufman operates a shoe-shine parlor at Cleveland's International Airport and said Thursday Gilligan was "an old customer."

The play, directed and produced by Jack Fogarty, Jeanne Adams, Irving Mann, Ruth Munson, Penny Richter and Jack Fogarty, has previously been presented at the University of Hartford with the same cast.

The play, which is a social commentary on the plight of the American family today, was written by Edward Albee, author of "The Zoo" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and is considered a modern classic by critics.

Little Theatre of Manchester and the Andover Town Clerk are all members of the production.

Walter J. Senkow, town engineer, and Herman Pascantelli, superintendent of highways, and Ernest Turck, park superintendent, all participated in the program.

The course covered such areas as the role of activities and decisions of the State Board of Education and Arbitration and the State Labor Relations Board; merit systems, negotiations, contracts and grievance procedures.

Eighteen municipal officials from seven Hartford area towns attended the weekly seminars.

Edward T. Dowling, assistant director of the Hartford Public Service, coordinated the course.

One of the featured speakers during the 12 weeks was Edward Gallagher who was to mediate the recent Hartford teachers strike before a settlement was reached.

Senkow said that he has fortunately had few difficulties with his department, but he wanted to find out what the laws and grievance procedures are around the state.

Turck explained that town employees have been unionized for 20 years or so. Consequently, grievance procedures and the like are pretty well established. Other towns have been unionized only for a few years, though and some of them, according to some problems, according to Senkow.

Public Act 159, passed in the 1960 legislature gives all municipalities the authority to employ teachers of the right to bargain collectively.

Town employees of both the park and highway departments are members of Local 91 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees of the AFL-CIO.

Street Map

A street map and directory of the town has been prepared for the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and advertising sponsors, and copies are available on request at the Chamber offices, 207 E. Center St., Dr. Harvey Patel, Chamber president, has announced.

The map includes streets of the town, a listing and location of churches and schools, a map of Connecticut showing town boundaries and major highway routes, information about the town, its government and the chamber and advertising agents.

The front cover of the directory features a pen and ink drawing of the Cheney Homestead, 106 Hartford Rd., with a scheduled hours it is open to the public.

Soviet Sub Tender Heads Toward Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet submarine tender, center of months-long concern about a first expressed deep concern that the Russians might be building a submarine base at Cienfuegos on Cuba's southern coast, the Pentagon reported today.

The evidence at the time centered largely around the presence of the submarine tender, a Foxtrot class submarine, northeast of Bermuda on Thursday, proceeding in a northeasterly direction. This heading would take the two vessels to westward, if continued.

At the same time, Friedman said a Soviet guided missile frigate and an other which had visited Cuba were in the English Channel as of Thursday, headed northward.
