By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — American transports flew hundreds of South Vietnamese reinforcements to the northern front today and the U.S. Command sent more helicopters to strengthen the allied air and ground drive in Laos.

The drive to cut North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh trail network began its fourth week. The intensity of the fighting eased somewhat, but an American field commander predicted hard fighting ahead.

Some of the reinforcements already are crossing into Laos to bolster the weary men strung along Route 9 and to the north and south of the highway. A spokesman in Saigon, Lt. Col. Tran Van An, said South Vietnamese strength across the border remains at 16,000 troops, but the South Vietnamese have suffered more than 1,000 casualties. Informed sources said up to 16,000 additional troops were being flown to the northern sector.

South Vietnamese forward headquarters issued a revised casualty report which said 390 Saigon troops have been killed, 99 are missing and 881 have been wounded in Laos. Field reports indicate the losses are much higher. The report also claimed that 8,227 North Vietnamese troops have been killed.

Maj. Richard Gardner, a spokesman for the U.S. Command, said 1,400 of the enemy had been killed by American air strikes.

Scores of scheduled military passenger flights were cancelled, and the four-engine C130s diverted to the reinforcement missions.

Gardner said additional American helicopters had been moved to Khe Sanh to support the Laotian operation, but he refused to say how many. Other sources said they would replace those shot down and also would increase the fleet, which numbered about 600 at the start of the Laotian operation.

Some of the helicopters came from the 1st Air Cavalry Division, which normally operates in the Saigon region, military sources said.

Lt. Gen. James W. Sutherland, commander of the 9,000 U.S. troops acting as a blocking force on the Vietnamese side of the border, said the North Vietnamese appear to be marshaling all their forces for an attempt to thwart the allied effort to cut the supply network through southern Laos.

"This is it," said Sutherland. "The enemy has chosen to react with everything he's got left so it appears we'll have to fight his right leg here."

"It's real tough fighting. It's a hard fight. Right now, we're opposed by about seven regiments plus a lot of anti-aircraft fire and artillery and some tank battalions."

A North Vietnamese regiment at full strength totals 2,900 men. Very little contact was reported.

Bid for Private School Aid Triggers Emotional Hearing

By SOL R. COHEN
(Herald Reporter)

A prolonged outburst by an emotionally charged crowd of about 2,000, threatened to bring an abrupt end this morning to a public hearing on proposed aid to private schools.

Residents from throughout Connecticut converged on Bushnell Auditorium to present their views on the thorny constitutional question of state aid to non-public schools.

At one point during the hearing cries of "no, no, no," rang out in the auditorium when State Rep. Rufus Rose, R., of Waterford, a member of the legislature's education committee, asked a speaker, "If the legislature were to vote school aid to all private schools would those private schools remove all icons and religious pictures and decorations?"

When the cries of "no, no, no," failed to subside despite pleas, the committee chairman, State Rep. Howard Klebenoff, D., of Hartford, threatened to end the hearing immediately unless order was restored.

After the incident the meeting resumed and was scheduled to continue without recess until 2:30 p.m. at the Bushnell and then adjourn, if necessary to the chamber of House of Representatives. By 1 p.m. the

Nixon in Midwest; Pushes Proposals For '71 Legislation

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Nixon, seeking support for his controversial 1971 legislative goals from the legislature of rural-oriented Iowa, said today his ideas would "lead America to a new birth of greatness."

In an address to a joint session of the Iowa Legislature, Nixon argued strongly for federal revenue sharing and reorganization of government, including the Department of Agriculture.

"I want those decisions that affect rural America made by people who know rural America, and the people who know a place best live there," he said.

"To put it bluntly I believe that legislators in Iowa know better than bureaucrats in Washington, D.C. what is best for Iowa." Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and four Cabinet members, Nixon flew to Iowa for the first in a series of regional forays to promote administration legislation.

Nixon took the occasion to announce that he is adding $100 million to the $1 billion he originally proposed in special revenue sharing for rural community development.

He said the $1.1 billion total for the coming fiscal year represents "24 per cent more for rural development programs than is being made available to the states under existing categorical grant programs."

In all, the chief executive seeks $18 billion in various types of revenue sharing, which he said would eliminate "the cumbersome restrictions that now follow federal funds."

"If the lessons of the past decades mean anything," he said, "they mean that an power has been concentrated more and more in Washington, as decisions have been made by remote control, the special needs of our rural communities and of the great heartland of America more and more have either been neglected or even gone unrecognized."

The chief executive also argued at length for cutting the present 12 Cabinet departments to eight and, in the process, abolishing the Agriculture Department and reassigning its functions.

Contending that the American farmer has changed, while the federal government has not, Nixon said:

"The farmer is a man of many talents now—a businessman, a technician, a scientist—often a man who makes his living in more lines of work than farming alone.

"The rural community is becoming increasingly diversified in its economic base and its land use and its population patterns. While all this has gone on, we have sat in Washington with the same Department of Agriculture we have had since 1862."

The key to his effort to overcome farm bloc resistance to abolishing the department was this:

"Under the present setup, only one Cabinet department represents the farmer. Under my proposed reorganization four Cabinet secretaries—half the Cabinet—will be speaking up for the farmer when his diverse interests are at stake.

"I submit that this is not less representation, but more—and more effective representation because the rural interest will be represented wherever decisions are being made that affect that interest."

The President said, "these proposals I have made are not Republican proposals or Democratic proposals. I have offered them in a bipartisan spirit and I seek bipartisan support."

Nixon today sent Congress a first annual report on government services to rural America and said it showed "important gains in the federal government's concern for the well being of rural areas."

"As examples, in fiscal 1970, we increased federal support for waste treatment grants in rural areas. We also increased support for rural extension services. We also increased support for rural extension services. We also increased support for rural extension services."

Senate Wing at U.S. Capitol Hit by Blast; Damage Heavy

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An early-morning bomb blast ripped up an interior section of the U.S. Capitol's Senate wing today just 30 minutes after a caller warned of an explosion and said it was to retaliate for the U.S.-supported invasion of Laos.

The blast caused extensive damage but no injuries. Capitol police said the bomb went off at 1:32 a.m. EST, following a call to the Capitol switchboard:

"Evacuate the building," a male voice said. "You may have received other calls like this one, but this one is real. Evacuate the building immediately. This is the real thing. This is in retaliation for the Laos decision. A bomb will go off in 30 minutes."

The Senate chamber itself was not damaged by the blast. The Senate convened as scheduled in midmorning, although visitors were not permitted in the Senate wing of the Capitol.

"This is apparently a political bombing," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, President Nixon issued a statement through press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler calling the bombing "a shocking act of violence that will outrage all Americans."

But Nixon said the Capitol should remain open to all the people.

The blast pulverized a men's room and damaged other rooms, but did not touch the Senate chamber itself.

Perhaps coincidentally, it came 47 years to the day after Puerto Rican nationalists shot and wounded five congressmen from the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives. It also caused the most extensive damage to the building since the British set it afire in 1814.

Scott said the effect of the bombing will be unfortunate, both in this country and internationally.

"It's likely to be exaggerated," he said. "They won't realize that it's one bomb in one washroom."

Scott also took the occasion to criticize federal judges in the District of Columbia, accusing them of too much leniency.

He said even if the person who placed the bomb is arrested "my guess would be they'll never go to jail, not with the type of appellate court we have in the District of Columbia."

Police, Army and FBI investigators were seeking clues to the identity of the male caller who warned the Capitol switchboard: "The Capitol building will blow up in 30 minutes."

Half an hour later, at 1:32 a.m. EST, the bomb exploded. Capitol Police Chief James Powell said one of his officers was within 200 feet of the blast but escaped injury despite windows breaking "right over his head."

The blast gutted a men's room directly across from the Old Senate Chamber, blasted doors off their hinges in several surrounding rooms, and blew out windows all the way out to home and abroad. The effect,

Nixon Terms Blast 'Deplorable'

BOARD AIR FORCE ONE (AP) — President Nixon called today's explosion at the Capitol "a shocking act of violence which will outrage all Americans," but said the buildings of Congress should remain open to all the people.

"This kind of sporadic act of violence, as deplorable as it is, should not lead to anything other than to continue to keep the Capitol open," Nixon told Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott by telephone from aboard the presidential jetliner.

Nixon called for increased security steps to guard the Capitol such as those that have been taken recently to protect the White House and foreign embassies, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Earlier, Ziegler said, Nixon telephoned FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover from the White House as soon as he was informed of the explosion on the Capitol's Senate side and received a full report on the damage.

"The President feels that this act of violence is totally deplorable and will be condemned by all Americans," Ziegler said.

On board the presidential plane, Nixon called Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield as senators expressed their amazement and outrage over the explosion.

"Anyone who would plant a bomb like that any place, let alone the nation's Capitol, has to be a revolutionary or completely mad," Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said.

"They will certainly be condemned by anyone who has an interest in this country at all," Hughes said from Chicago in a telephone interview with a Metropolitan newspaper.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., had a similar opinion.

"I don't know what group it is, of course," Dominick said. "But any group that tries to destroy something with the history of this nation behind it is obviously out of their mind—and very, very dangerous."

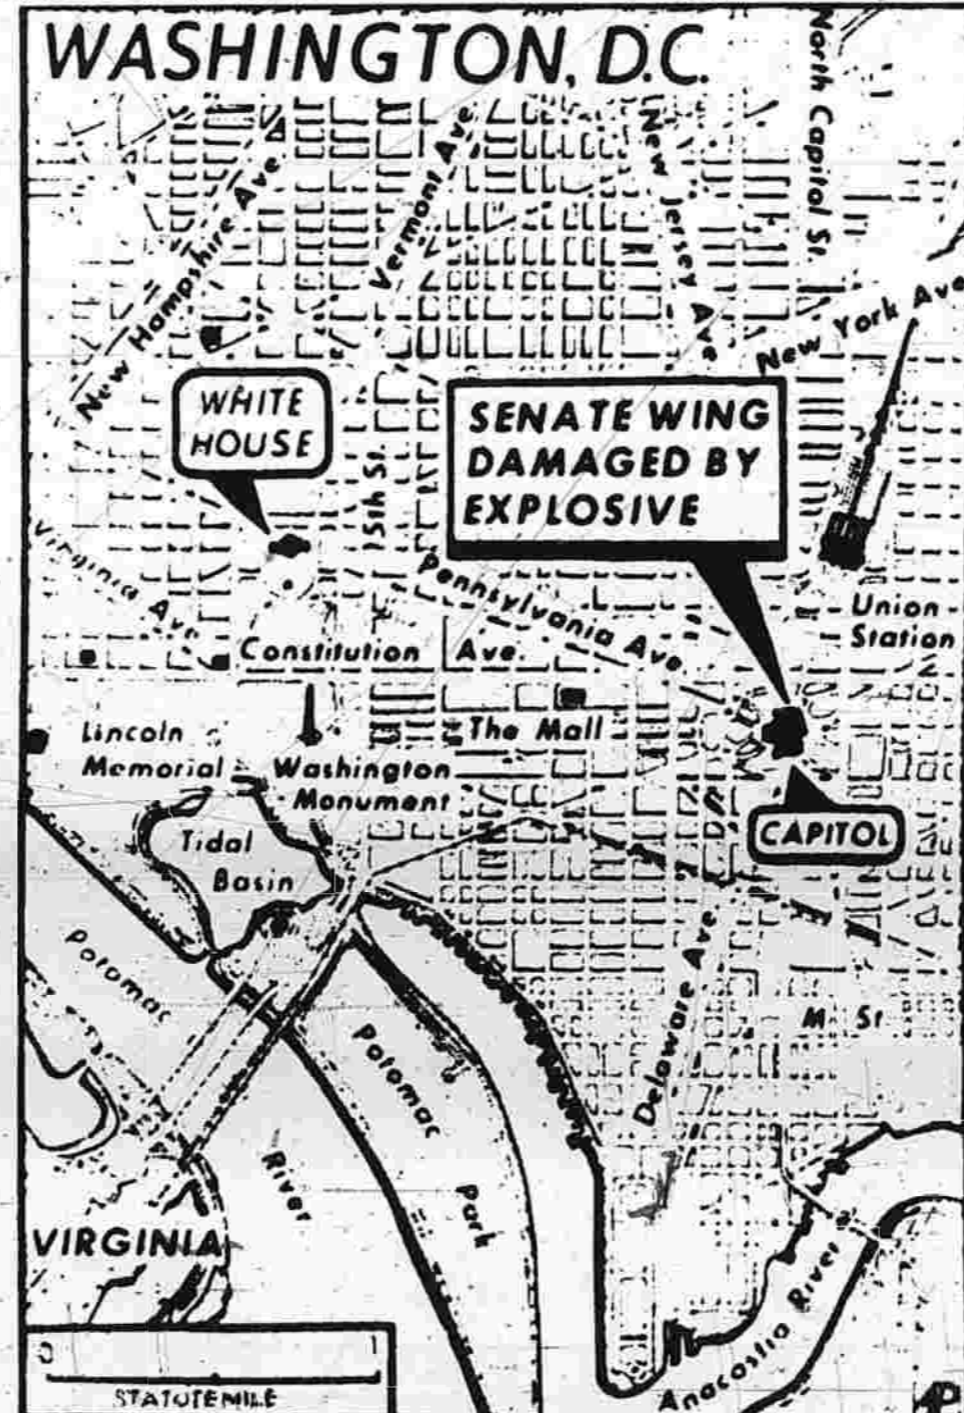

Other comments: Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.: "It might represent merely the act of a few individuals, but it is quite serious from any viewpoint. And it is to be deeply regretted that the site of our representative government would have to be guarded, as would be necessary for a time, anyway."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., an announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination: "I deeply regret it, of course. I can only say it's a tragic, barbaric thing for anyone to do."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt.: "It's not totally unexpected, as I think the police have been keeping close watch, but weekends are not good. I have to say I'm not surprised."

"This is apparently a political bombing," said Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, who said a Senate official had told him a letter had been found linked to the explosion and referring to U.S. operations in Laos.

Negotiations in Rail Dispute Reported Making Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Progress in negotiations to avert a threatened railroad strike was reported at midday today, many hours after the threatened walk-out of United Transportation Union members across the country.

The men stayed at their jobs and the trains were running.

Voluntary contract talks with the National Railway Labor conference recessed in the small hours this morning and were set to resume this afternoon at the Labor Department.

"We have made progress in setting this dispute and we shall stay at the bargaining table so long as progress is being made," said Charles Luna, UTU president, in a statement.

The UTU claims to be the largest union representing rail workers. It says 190,000 of a total membership of 262,000 are employed in operating crafts on U.S. and Canadian railroads.

Official sources have used smaller figures, however. Emergency legislation passed three months ago by Congress to halt a brief nationwide strike expired at midnight, but the talks went on.

Work rules, governing who handles individual jobs, and how they are carried out, were the last major stumbling block, said Assistant Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery, Usery and George J. Ives, a member of the National Mediation and Conciliation Service, have been guiding the talks through final stages.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said Sunday he felt the negotiations would continue past the possible walkout time.

"There will be no nationwide railroad strike tonight," he said. The UTU is the last holdout of four rail unions that struck briefly in early December. The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union reached settlements in February covering 243,000 railroad workers.

The agreements provided wage increases averaging 44 per cent over 42 months.

Congress' emergency laws banning the strike provided for

Brief Scenes Smartly Done By Players

By JUNE LINTON
It was just a few minutes of conversation on an improvised stage as an effective and quick as a summer storm. The recognition scene from "Anastasia" adapted to the stage by Guy Bolton was performed by Brown and Dolores Lawler as one part of a Manchester Community Players workshop.

The troupe also presented a comedy, "Whistle Dueller" by Ernest Kiny, which took a series of very short scenes poking fun at Jewish maternal influences in the lives of marriageable children. It was light fare by a cast of five, directed by Guy Bolton. The well by Daniel Negro and Mary Valente in the roles of mother and daughter, "If I could only count on that kind of thing..."

The most delightful sample of this presented yesterday, however, was the scene from "Anastasia" which has been the case ever since the present MHS building has been open, the production will be seen at Bailey Auditorium. More New Semantics

These columns have been trying hard, the past few days, to keep up with the semantic expansion of the war in South-east Asia.

One day "protective reaction strike" was an on-the-spot bomb reaction, by an American plane, to its detection of the fact that North Vietnamese radar had been fired on it.

A day or two later, the "protective reaction strike" had been broadened to cover a mass raid by 30 fighter-bombers against targets in North Vietnam, where we no longer bomb, officially, that is.

At the end of the week, we were being introduced to a new rationale under which we could, against all previous pledges of policy, operate American ground troops inside Laos, after all.

It was explained to us that way. When an American helicopter is shot down in Laos, we want to rescue its crew if possible. For this purpose, we will be organizing "search and rescue" missions, either by new helicopter, or by movement on land.

Next, in order to protect our "search and rescue" missions we will be sending infantry patrols into Laos.

Their mission will be to provide a "protective encirclement" of the "search and rescue" missions.

Such a use of American ground troops in Laos will not, even some members of Congress itself are said to agree, violate the supposed Congressional decree against the use of ground troops in Laos.

The best way to project forward what these new semantic rationalizations could mean is to try to remember back to when the American military presence in South Vietnam first was being begun, and was tied, at that early stage, supposedly linked to noncombatant, adviser roles.

The first great turn toward the kind of combatant involvement we are trying to draw out of us in Vietnam today came, way back then, when President Kennedy decided to authorize our military advisers in South Vietnam to fire back in self defense if, in the performance of their duties as advisers to the South Vietnamese troops, they found themselves under attack.

If any one objected, back then, the response was ready, in the same vein of logic that has been used ever since. We wouldn't do any one any harm, but the right to defend themselves, would we?

We then had a few thousand military advisers in South Vietnam. Eventually, as we have seen, it took a half a million more American troops to help them defend themselves. And President Kennedy's order was, of course, as much of a declaration of war as we have ever had for the fighting we have been doing in Asia. It is something of a worry to find the same system of semantics still being employed. We move our troops into positions where they are certain to be attacked by somebody; we then declare our right of self defense; we then supply the troops that are needed to protect the right of the first contingents to that right of self defense. At the moment, this formula is beginning to be applied in a sector where Congress tried to forbid American ground troops to be, and where the Nixon Administration itself pledged American ground troops would not be moved, just as if moving the troops would not be different from keeping them out.

Waiting For Zip

The results of the Associated Press experiment with zip code mail are what many people had already suspected, but do not damage the long range argument of the Post Office Department.

What the news-gathering organization discovered by mailing 700 letters, without zip codes, and half of them not, was that seven times out of 10 the letters without zip codes reached their destinations as fast or faster than zip-coded letters mailed at the same time and place.

The same statistic, examined from the more optimistic point of view, shows that 28 per cent of the letters mailed with zip codes did beat all the other mail to their destinations. There were also, however, zip code letters, amounting to 18 per cent of the test mailing, which arrived even later than the latest zip-coded letters. In the central statistic, 54 per cent of the letters mailed with zip codes arrived at the same time as those without zip codes.

What such statistics indicate is clear enough: the postal service itself does not always and uniformly follow the system it has been urging the public to be sure to use. And even when the postal system itself does honor the code and follow it, the routine needs obvious improvement.

Outside of satisfying that part of all of us which has been resentfully suspicious of one more new government reorganization, it is hard to see how the statistics seem to have little long range significance.

The post office department will, some day, really be operating on a mechanical zip code basis. When, however many years from now, it does reach that point, then mail which is not wearing its zip number is indeed likely to be delayed or slowed. Against that, we are supposed to keep on practicing using its code until it becomes a firm habit. By that time we will probably have computers dictating our letters for us, and the time it takes to deliver them, or whether they are ever delivered, may make very little difference to anybody.

Goodwill Vs. Violence

Why is the United States cooling off? The question refers more to Weathermen than to weather. It's been widely noted that the college campuses have not blazed up over the Laos incursion. Autumn and winter have seen a general decline in radical rhetoric and youthful extremism.

Time magazine calls this the "cooling of America." And a Rutgers professor, writing in the New York Times, suggests even the "burning of America," meaning the decline in radical rhetoric and youthful extremism.

Why has the revolutionary spirit experienced a "cooling off"? One attitude, which affects only a portion of the nation's student body, is a feeling of strong alienation from the establishment and the government and its policies. "Manchester Must Be Proud" To the Editor,

I was recently a patient in the Manchester Memorial Hospital and I want to express my appreciation of the services there. My previous experiences have been in large city hospitals and I feel I cannot speak too highly of Manchester Memorial.

I was in Room 200 and every one, nurses, nurses-aides and in Katherine you have a gem, high school volunteers, made the places of students who cannot apply to these other institutions because of their selective admissions.

At Manchester Community College we have hundreds of students going part-time. Many are housewives and many are people with full-time employment who are just able to meet the present tuition. We should be encouraging these people to attend our colleges.

Sincerely, Mrs. Catherine Y. Wolf

College Tuition

To the Editor,

I salute to the Herald for the editorial entitled, "The Education Part of the Dream."

In addition to the points listed in the editorial, opposing an increase in State College tuition, may I add a few of my own comments.

Any increase in the Community College tuition will be in conflict with the original concept of establishing the opportunity for all qualified students to attend these colleges. Raising the tuition will discriminate against many who will not be able to afford this increase in tuition; in particular, minority students who we have actively been trying to attract at our college.

At Manchester Community College which enrolls over 2000 students, I am sure a significant number of students would withdraw or at least change to part-time status in order to increase their present situation in the State.

From a counseling viewpoint, studies show that too many of the community college students already work too many hours per week. Some students can do both satisfactorily, but the majority cannot succeed in their academic studies while holding their jobs.

It is the tuition as increased significantly at the University and the four State colleges, we can expect many of the students who would have normally applied at these institutions to shift their applications to the community colleges, and take the places of students who cannot apply to these other institutions because of their selective admissions.

At Manchester Community College we have hundreds of students going part-time. Many are housewives and many are people with full-time employment who are just able to meet the present tuition. We should be encouraging these people to attend our colleges.

Tolland Middle School Open House Called Outstanding Success

Yesterday's open house at the new middle school was termed an "outstanding success" by both school administrators and by the more than 500 taxpayers and their families who visited the school.

The visitors were admittedly drawn to the event by the display to see what their $2 million investment looks like. The cost of the school were offset by a 50 per cent grant from the state for school construction which is received in a lump sum, permitting the town to bond for only half the cost.

Previously towns received the state aid over a 20-year period and were forced to bond for the complete cost of the project.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Kenneth MacKenzie expressed delight at the large turnout and the "obvious enthusiasm" with which the school was received by the townspeople. His comments were echoed by school Principal Vene Hardin.

Board of Education Chairman Kenneth Kaynor described the school's appearance as "quite functional," while First Selectman Charles Thiffault described the school as an "luxurious building."

Thiffault spoke particularly favorably of the limited number of classrooms which are separated by movable partitions permitting the holding of joint classes. He also was impressed by the color scheme of the school.

Dr. MacKenzie noted however that many people had admired the "beautiful library" but had not asked him all the books were.

The bookshelves in the school's library were noticeably bare. Those books which were in evidence had previously been part of the high school library when the two schools were housed under one roof.

Mrs. Kaynor, wife of the school board chairman and a member of the Board of Education, said the lack of books was due to the need for coordination between the school libraries and the town library.

Reactions to the school were generally favorable. The visitors were greeted at the doors of the school by home room representatives who passed out their academic studies while holding their jobs.

It is the tuition as increased significantly at the University and the four State colleges, we can expect many of the students who would have normally applied at these institutions to shift their applications to the community colleges, and take the places of students who cannot apply to these other institutions because of their selective admissions.

At Manchester Community College we have hundreds of students going part-time. Many are housewives and many are people with full-time employment who are just able to meet the present tuition. We should be encouraging these people to attend our colleges.

Rham District Supervisory Service Seen Continuing to July of 1972

Because he present Regional Study Committee has until October of this year to submit a report, Aram Demarjian, superintendent of schools, assured the Regional Board of Education at its meeting last week that state supervisory service will be provided until July of 1972.

The state presently furnishes supervisory services to all the schools in Region 1. However, the Rham school district is to hire its own supervisory service as long as the study committee is in existence, the board should not have to consider hiring a superintendent and Demarjian feels the service should not be terminated in the middle of a fiscal year.

The board authorized Demarjian to request written confirmation to this effect from Ernest O. Nybakken, chief of the Bureau of Rural Services, State Department of Education. Demarjian will be the physical education department chairman of a committee plan an open house in the spring for residents of the three district towns of Hebron, Andover and Marlborough view the new addition at Rham High School.

Mrs. Sibun will be assisted by Eugene Devine of Marlborough and Charles Phelps of Andover. Mrs. Sibun also reported that she has received inquiries regarding orientation programs from parents of sixth graders in Hebron who will attend Rham next September.

Principal J. Colin Patten stated that as has been the custom in the past, a program will be scheduled for his spring luncheon. In other action, the board elected Harry Hegson of Hebron as treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Norman McIntyre of Marlborough on Feb. 1.

They also ratified the appointment of Mrs. Sibun as Mrs. Frances Doost as a part-time French teacher. Mrs. Doost, available, Coventry's proposed sewer system, scheduled for inter-town discussion at Wednesday night's 8 p.m. town meeting at the high school, has won the endorsement of two more town agencies.

Both the Recreation Commission and the Board of Health issued statements over the weekend announcing their support, which would sever the lake and village areas.

In its statement the Recreation Commission said it "unanimously supports the Council's work and effort in developing a sewer system and urges all townspersons to vote 'yes' at the March 16 referendum.

"We acknowledge that there are still a great many areas of the program which must be improved to see that the sewers benefit the entire town, but we also realize that a start must be made to ensure that the future of our town will be one of reasonable and intelligent development."

The Board of Health noted in its unanimous endorsement that "from the standpoint of health, economy and future growth of Coventry, we find this program to be of the utmost importance.

"The new housing code will be able to be properly enforced when sewers become available and thus alleviate the health hazards of inadequate septic systems. Business and industry in Coventry are a necessity, and this initial plan is the start to both ease the unemployment problem and also to raise the tax base which will be of benefit to the entire community."

The Conservation Commission, Board of Health, Coventry Citizens for Democratic Action and the Board of Selectmen have already announced their support of the program, which will be voted on referendum March 16.

This week's town meeting is for discussion purposes only, and no vote will be taken, with the meeting to be adjourned March 16, when polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Peffer Repeats as Men's Bowling Clamm Town Duckpin Bowling Title Won by Joan Urbanetti

Cochran Banks After Big Edge, Winner Posted 145.1 Average

Combacks marked final competition in the 1971 annual Men's and Women's Town Duckpin Bowling Tournaments yesterday afternoon at the Holiday Inn. Defending men's champion, George Pelletier, down 3-0 in his best seven match against challenger George Cochran, rallied to take the next four games and walk off with his second town crown, five games to three.

Joan Urbanetti made her comeback to the game of duckpins a successful one when she whipped veteran Sylvia Stechholz, four games to one. The new women's queen gave up bowling at the age of 13—seven years ago, resumed rolling this fall and clinched her return by winning her first town title.

The men's finale was a beautiful contest to watch and the interest of the fine crowd of 200.

The 25-year-old Cochran, seeking to make a three-time winner of the coveted town title, took advantage of some subpar rolling by Pelletier to erect a surprising 30 margin after two games leading just one more win to match his victories in 1967 and 1968. Cochran slipped and Pelletier came on in the whirlwind in the stretch.

A Class A roller for 20 years and twice the No. 2 high average bowler in the United States, Pelletier, once he scored his first point in a row against a bowler like Cochran, "Pelletier said and a dejected Cochran could not help but wonder how he got the best of his opponent.

"I didn't expect to win four in a row against a bowler like Cochran," Pelletier said and a dejected Cochran could not help but wonder how he got the best of his opponent.

Last year, Pelletier averaged 145.1 in a row against a bowler like Cochran, "Pelletier said and a dejected Cochran could not help but wonder how he got the best of his opponent.

After the first three games and in total pinfall after four games, the two were deadlocked at 186. Both Pelletier and Cochran rolled a 100 in the fifth game and the two were tied at 286. Pelletier rolled a 100 in the sixth game and Cochran rolled a 100 in the seventh game. Pelletier won the match 5-3.

Both finalists yesterday started out strong, the petite Miss Urbanetti taking a 2-0 lead. Pelletier rolled a 100 in the fifth game and Cochran rolled a 100 in the sixth game. Pelletier won the match 5-3.

PGA King Nicklaus Eyes 'Grand Slam'

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — No-body has ever won the U.S. Open and British Open in the same year.

Jack Nicklaus has it on his mind.

"I've got one leg and I'm thinking about the Masters," he said. "I'd like to win it all."

Nicklaus, 35, is looking for a "Grand Slam" by winning the U.S. Open, the British Open, the PGA Championship and the Claret Cup in the same year.

Nicklaus won the U.S. Open in 1962 and the British Open in 1970. He is currently ranked No. 1 in the world.

Baseball Stars Remain Unsigned Simple Autograph Now Rare Item

NEW YORK (AP) — The pen, they say, is mightier than the sword. Maybe that's why a lot of major league baseball players don't want to pick one up.

They are afraid of the "autograph" racket.

Autographs are a hot commodity, but the price is high. A simple autograph of a star player can fetch $100,000.

Players are reluctant to sign because of the hassle and the potential for fraud.

Aid Debate Centers On Connecticut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court confronted an inevitable but formidable wall today, the one separating church from state.

Beginning with a case from Connecticut, the justices set arguments on whether the wall should stand in the way of public aid to church schools, now in excess of $100 million a year.

The first amendment, ratified in 1791, directs "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

At the Supreme Court the recent trend has been to view the amendment primarily as a command that the government be neutral toward religion.

As a result, a New York law requiring public school systems to lend textbooks to private schools has been struck down.

Last May, in a 5-4 decision, the court approved tax exemptions for church property, used for worship, child care, education, and other religious purposes.

On the practical side, resources for public schools are strained. Many parochial schools say they cannot close if public aid is cut off.

The Connecticut case concerns the approximately $20 million in federal funds given church-run colleges and universities under a 1963 federal law.

The money has been used primarily to build laboratories and other facilities.

The law specifically prohibited grants for "any facility which is to be used for sectarian instruction or as a place of religious worship."

Four grants totaling $287,726 to four Roman Catholic institutions in Connecticut are specifically under attack.

On Wednesday the court takes up two more test cases, originating in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

State aid to church schools has been on an upward climb.

Washington (AP) — W. A. "Tony" Boyle, president of the United Mine Workers, was indicted today by a special federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy, perjury and making illegal political contributions.

Boyle was charged in one count with embezzling $5,000, in another with conspiring to embezzle and to make illegal political contributions totaling $49,250, and in a third with making such contributions.

Kmetz was charged with the same conspiracy and embezzlement counts and two counts of making illegal political contributions.

Owens was also charged in the conspiracy count and on one count with making illegal political contributions.

Senate Begins Probe Of Bombing at Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — More police manpower and restricted public access to some parts of the Capitol would improve security around America's legislative shrine, the building's top guard testified today at a Senate inquiry into Monday's bombing.

Sen. Charles McNichols, chief of the Capitol Police, said he had agreed with senators seeking an upgrading of the quality of his staff and guaranteeing the public's right to visit the historic structure.

Responsibility for the bombing was claimed in a letter received today by the Associated Press and signed by "The Weather Underground."

"We have attacked the Capitol because it is, along with the White House and the Pentagon, the worldwide symbol of the government here and in Latin America and Africa and it is a monument to U.S. domination over the planet," the letter said.

The air mailed special delivery letter was postmarked Monday from Elizabeth, N.J.

The Senate Public Works subcommittee on public buildings and grounds heard Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Robert G. Duffy testify the Capitol "is a very chiseled, full of Alaska-chess. It is just a plain, a plain, a plain."

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, chairman of the subcommittee investigating the bombing which shattered a room beneath the Senate chamber Monday, said the panel "wants to determine how the security of the Capitol was breached."

He said it would study existing laws and "determine if they need strengthening to prevent similar" explosions in the future.

The building, he added, "must be protected so that the work we do here can continue without intimidation and threat, but it must also be freely accessible to the public as a symbol of the national identity we cherish."

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told the Senate that there was no indication as yet the bombing was a political act.

The Senate Public Works subcommittee on public buildings and grounds heard Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Robert G. Duffy testify the Capitol "is a very chiseled, full of Alaska-chess. It is just a plain, a plain, a plain."

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, chairman of the subcommittee investigating the bombing which shattered a room beneath the Senate chamber Monday, said the panel "wants to determine how the security of the Capitol was breached."

He said it would study existing laws and "determine if they need strengthening to prevent similar" explosions in the future.

The building, he added, "must be protected so that the work we do here can continue without intimidation and threat, but it must also be freely accessible to the public as a symbol of the national identity we cherish."

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told the Senate that there was no indication as yet the bombing was a political act.
