U.S. Diplomat Bids For a Safe Return Of Kidnaped Airmen

By NICK LUDINGTON Associated Press Writer ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Ambassador William Handley appealed Friday night for the safe return of four kidnaped airmen held for $400,000 ransom.

The kidnapers, leftist cadres of the Turkish Liberation Army, demanded payment by 6 a.m. today, Handley said.

The Turkish government refused to bow to the demand and after a meeting of the cabinet Friday night Labor Minister Seydi Ortak said "You don't bargain with bandits."

South Viet Troops Capture Enemy's Key Town in Laos

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Thick smoke from a fire in South Vietnam's largest psychiatric clinic this morning killed 28 hospitalized patients.

The blaze, believed to have begun in an electric radiator, quickly spread through the 100-year-old western wing of the complex.

Fire trucks arrived eight minutes after the first alert and fought the blaze in 14-degree cold.

Survivors were rescued by nurses and firemen whose faces were blackened by smoke.

Mr. Nixon And The Commentators
President Nixon, using language and intensity of expression and feeling which almost belied his own assertion, said the other night that he could "understand" the fact that some commentators...

Education For The Few
In proposing large tuition increases for community and state colleges, and more needed cheerfulness when we bring to some out-and-out re-run television movie we are seeing for the umpteenth time?

Camodia, however, stands as a success, in disproof of all the pessimistic judgments at the television commentators made on it last spring and summer, and the President went on, he is confident that Laos will produce the same story.

Thus the President, and it is appropriate to note that he is not the only American who has probably noticed that the television commentators — along with that matter, many of the nation's editorial pages — have almost seemed to insist on sandbagging the President day after day and night after night with not merely their fears, but their judgments, that the invasions of Cambodia and Laos are more likely to lock us into continuing and wider Asian involvement than they are to ease our way out of that involvement.

But although the almost pathological persistence of the commentators can be noticed, that, in itself, does not win the argument for the President.

There is a weakness, a perhaps unbalanced, impulsive and compulsive weakness on his side of the argument, too.

His weakness is that he talks of Cambodia as if it were a closed and finished incident, with all the auditing necessary to evaluate it already complete and certified.

The possibility which either disturbs or fascinates the commentators is the possibility that the story in Cambodia is not yet finished, and that we do not yet begin to have any surety that we are near the end of the chain of events, and reactions which may have been set off by the two invasions.

Cambodia and Laos and who would prefer, instead, not to have anybody, on whatever strategic theory, initiate additional fighting and killing in Southeast Asia.

Does Anybody Watch?
In there any possible way in which the poor viewing public of this country can express to the television networks the tremendous sense of intestinal fatigue which comes over us as we are told, from one weekend to another, that this or that program is going to offer us a chance to refresh ourselves on the views of this or that Washington figure?

Should we flout it before the programers that we have become so sophisticated and so bored that all we need, now, is an split second audio analysis of the gravel content of any voice in order to be able to predict what would be trumpeting for the next half hour, or hour, if we could force ourselves to listen?

Or shall we, after all, discipline ourselves into a higher grade of television citizenship, in which we acknowledge that these characters are, after all, the best we have, wherefore it is our patriotic duty to listen to them, and go through the weekly ritual with them and with at least some part of the much scheduled far beyond our supply of talent. We suspect that, so far as audience is concerned, many of them might just as well not be offered.

Perhaps what we really should do is face up to the plain realities, which are, that, just as there are no longer enough old movies in existence to sustain all the movie programming television tries to do, so our talk programs are also scheduled far beyond our supply of talent. We suspect that, so far as audience is concerned, many of them might just as well not be offered.

Some astronomers indicate that there are about a dozen stars near the sun that may be reasonably expected to emit radio bursts which could be detected by an orbiting radio observatory. They suggest that a radio patrol of these stars might record radio emissions of planetary systems.

This method, however, is severely limited by the accuracy of the angular resolution of the telescope used. Thus, a few telescopes are available for this program and relatively few stars have been detected which possess unseen companions circling them.

The second approach is the spectroscopic one in which the light of the star is broken up into a spectrum of increases in the tuitions by private colleges. The hard-pressed parent in the United States receives the shift in the dark lines of the spectrum to determine the velocity of the star toward and away from the observer.

The third approach uses the photometer to record the consistency of light coming from the star. If a visible star has an unseen companion circling it, the light of the visible star is dimmed by the dark companion moving in front of it. In this situation the visible star and its companion must revolve around each other so that the plane of their motion passes through the earth. Only in this fashion will the bright star be eclipsed as seen from the earth. And this method is also unreliable.

These explanations indicate that current methods for detecting small dark bodies in space are marginal at best. Thus, in special cases like Barnard's star, the limitations literally preclude success in these approaches. Recently a new method has been proposed which relates sunspot activity and solar system dynamics. These scientists believe sunspots are related to the positions of planets around the sun and they have produced charts which show this relationship moving ahead to the year 2000. When sunspots are numerous, solar storms or "flares" are also more numerous. Flares, in turn, should produce a relationship with the presence of other planetary systems.

Andover Man Is Uninjured As Car Flips
Harold J. Partey, 25, of Bunker Hill Rd., Andover, was ticketed by Colchester state police following a one-car accident early this morning.

Police said Partey's car was uncontrolled when it left the road and struck a snowbank and turned over. Partey was not injured, but he was charged with failure to drive in an established lane and will appear in Manchester Circuit Court 12 on March 12.

Other area police activity:
Fletcher Hawkins, 25, 11 Sanford St., Hartford was issued a summons for operating an unregistered motor vehicle. He was stopped, police said, because the temporary plates on his car had expired.

Barbara Ann Cristian of 41 High St., Rockville was ticketed for operating a motor vehicle without a license. She was released on a promise to appear in Rockville Circuit Court on April 6.

William Henaghan, president of the Hebron Football Association, has announced the re-appointment of Tony Alfano as head coach of the Rams football team this year.

As for the issue, it is still that of who is going to control the flow and course and use of Connecticut streams for whose benefit. Alfano said, "we cannot guarantee to win, but will guarantee to drive."

Wonders of the Universe
Planetary Systems
SEEKING PLANETARY SYSTEMS FROM SPACE
BY DR. I.M. LEVITZ
DIRECTOR
The Fels Planetarium of The Franklin Institute

A radio observatory in space offers the exciting possibility that a search could be undertaken to explore for other distant planetary systems. While, at this time, communication with a distant civilization is considered most unlikely, scientists have proved recently that amino acids that protein molecules could well exist in a foreign environment.

Three approaches to the problem of detecting other planetary systems have been proposed. The first seeks to determine the existence of a dark companion by the gravitational effect the companion has on an observed star. Prof. Peter van de Kamp of the Brook Observatory of Swarthmore College, in 1964 discovered the dark and unseen companion of Barnard's star.

This method, however, is severely limited by the accuracy of the angular resolution of the telescope used. Thus, a few telescopes are available for this program and relatively few stars have been detected which possess unseen companions circling them.

The second approach is the spectroscopic one in which the light of the star is broken up into a spectrum of increases in the tuitions by private colleges. The hard-pressed parent in the United States receives the shift in the dark lines of the spectrum to determine the velocity of the star toward and away from the observer.

The third approach uses the photometer to record the consistency of light coming from the star. If a visible star has an unseen companion circling it, the light of the visible star is dimmed by the dark companion moving in front of it. In this situation the visible star and its companion must revolve around each other so that the plane of their motion passes through the earth. Only in this fashion will the bright star be eclipsed as seen from the earth. And this method is also unreliable.

These explanations indicate that current methods for detecting small dark bodies in space are marginal at best. Thus, in special cases like Barnard's star, the limitations literally preclude success in these approaches. Recently a new method has been proposed which relates sunspot activity and solar system dynamics. These scientists believe sunspots are related to the positions of planets around the sun and they have produced charts which show this relationship moving ahead to the year 2000.

When sunspots are numerous, solar storms or "flares" are also more numerous. Flares, in turn, should produce a relationship with the presence of other planetary systems.

Connecticut Yankee
By A.H.O.
The issue really hasn't changed very much since the days when the late J. Henry Korback came down out of the Litchfield County hills to build in Connecticut a public utility empire founded on his political control of the water rights of the state.

What comes down from the northwestern corner of the Litchfield County has, however, changed. As for the issue, it is still that of who is going to control the flow and course and use of Connecticut streams for whose benefit.

Bond Prices Edge Ahead
NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate and municipal bond prices dipped and government bonds edged ahead the past week.

The modest advance in long-term government issues was the first forward movement in this sector in three weeks. Medium-term government issues continued to outperform longer issues for the fifth week. Since early February, medium-term government issues have advanced more than two points in price on average while long-term issues have advanced by almost 1 1/4 points.

Short-term rates continued to decline but at a much more gradual pace than in recent weeks. The investment banking firm of Salomon Brothers reported, Three-month Treasury bill rates were a little lower with the weekly average auction rate reaching the lowest level in four years.

Other area police activity:
Fletcher Hawkins, 25, 11 Sanford St., Hartford was issued a summons for operating an unregistered motor vehicle. He was stopped, police said, because the temporary plates on his car had expired.

Barbara Ann Cristian of 41 High St., Rockville was ticketed for operating a motor vehicle without a license. She was released on a promise to appear in Rockville Circuit Court on April 6.

Market Drifts Toward 900 In Wall St. 'Spring Rally'
NEW YORK (AP) — This compared with the previous week's recovery of 227 points and 69 1/2 advances among 1,814 issues traded.

Only 9 Big Board stocks touched new 1971 lows during the 900 level. "The spring rally has begun," the past week, while 271 set new highs for the year.

Other top activities included Fannie Mae, down 3/4 to 62 1/2; Texas, ahead 2 1/2 to 18 1/2; and Pan American, up to 10 1/2. Among the 20 most active Big Board issues of the week, 15 advanced, 6 declined and 9 were unchanged.

The Dow industrial average added 1.56, 500 close represented a 1.8 point gain, the Associated Press 60-stock average added 1.14 to 114, and Snytel, ahead 5 to 53 1/2 on 260,000 shares.

Von Braun answers questions as Herald's Glenn Gannam takes notes.

Variety of Space Topics Touched on by Von Braun

By GLENN GAMBER (Herald Reporter)
Werner Von Braun, at a short news conference yesterday afternoon, spoke on a variety of topics ranging from how satellites might eventually be used to manage the world's resources to docking of a Soviet and an American spacecraft in the United States.

He also told newsmen that he supports the SST, the controversial space plane being debated in Congress, and that the Pratt and Whitney Division of United Aircraft, one of three companies competing for a fuel cell contract which will probably be awarded soon.

When asked to comment on the recent launching of a satellite by Communist China, Von Braun said that the Chinese have tremendous capabilities and their leadership wants to join the space club, they can do it.

Many Services, Parts

More and more people are taking advantage of the many services and parts available at Broad St. Many, however, do not give much thought to the shock absorbers on their cars, and this is a mistake. They wear out so slowly that the change goes unnoticed in many cases, but worn shock absorbers are a real menace and they can—and do—cause accidents. If you have not had your shock absorbers checked lately, it would be a most sensible thing to do. One way for you to test them yourself is to press down on the back of the car. Does it bounce? Going around corners does your car sway more than it should? Many times the condition of the road for the car bouncing around, when part of the trouble lies in the fact that the shock absorbers are practically useless.

Researcher's Discovery Easing Hemophiliacs' Pain

By LEIF ERICSSON
Associated Press Writer
STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—A new discovery is helping ease fear and pain from the lives of hemophiliacs, born with blood that will not clot.
In her small lab, Dr. Judith Granich Pool found a simple way to produce a powerful concentrate of the clotting factor VIII, the missing hemophilic's blood. It is called anti-hemophilic globulin or AEG, and it is now being used to help hemophiliacs. Revolution Is Theme Of Long Series

"The American Revolution: 1770-1783," a major new CBS News project chronicling the origins of the American Revolution, will be broadcast on the CBS Television Network, it was announced today by Richard S. Salant, president of CBS News.

The series is in celebration of the United States' bicentennial, and will be broadcast from time to time throughout the next six years. Each broadcast will feature a conversation between CBS News national correspondent Eric Sevareid and key figures in the birth of American independence — the first to be portrayed by Academy Award-winning actor Peter Ustinov.

In the first episode, "A Conversation With Lord North," to be broadcast April 6, Ustinov will portray King George III's Prime Minister Frederick Lord North, the pivotal figure in the decision to resist colonial efforts at independence.

Ustinov, as Lord North, will be "interviewed" by Sevareid at Wrocton Abbey, the North ancestral home not far from Stratford-on-Avon.

Sevareid, in contemporary dress, questions Lord North as he might have done from the vantage point of an American journalist of the year 1770.

It is anticipated that at least two programs in this series will be broadcast each year through 1976. The first two, to be presented this year, will be sponsored by the Ford Motor Company.

Sevareid interviews Lord North about many of the issues that agitated the colonists and pushed them to the verge of revolution — among them the Boston "massacre," the American claim of lack of representation in Parliament, the tax imposed on tea and the crucial Declaratory Act, the chief political factor in the ultimate outbreak of hostilities.

Lord North is generally acknowledged as the man most responsible, after King George himself, for the uprising in the colonies. He has been portrayed by British historians as a failure and by Americans as a villain. Wolff describes Ustinov's portrayal as that of "a man who didn't fit neatly in either category."

"The American Revolution was a revolution of ideas," said Wolff. "There never was a time when so many talented men had a chance to exercise their wisdom. We hope to capture the intellectual turmoil that filled their days."

Among those prominent Revolutionary-era figures who will be portrayed in subsequent broadcasts on the series are Samuel Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, George Washington, George III and Generals Gage and Cornwallis.

Gerald S. O'Loughlin, now playing a sympathetic starring role on "Men at Law" on the CBS Television Network, was once described by a national magazine as "one of the six most wanted heavies in television land."

Kukla, Fran Allison and Ollie show off for creator-puppeteer Burr Tillstrom. The quartet entertains for the CBS Children's Film Festival Sundays on the popular series broadcast over Channel 3 from Hartford.

Robert Young and the Family

"Robert Young and the Family," starring the veteran actor as host and narrator of a satiric yet fond look at American marriage and togetherness in the 1970s, will be presented as an hour-long special Wednesday at 8 p.m. in color on the CBS Television Network.

The humorous spoof of today's family life in this country will be immediately preceded by the half-hour animated production "Dr. Seuss' The Cat in the Hat" making a tandem of two new entertainment specials on the same night on the Network.

These two special broadcasts will preempt "Men at Law" and "To Rome With Love" on the network on this date.

Joining Young on the comedy hour are Beau Bridges, Lee Grant, Julie Sommars, Lurene Tuttle, Jack Warden, William Windom and special guest star Dick Van Dyke. Also appearing are Cindy Eilbacher, Eric Chase and Barry Hamilton.

"Robert Young and the Family" pokes sometimes gentle, sometimes incisive fun at the problems and triumphs of the modern American clan, documenting in a variety of sketches such assorted matters as the "organized" housewife, the dilemma of a couple who suddenly find themselves alone after their children have gone out into the world, and the comedic frustrations of parents trying to cope with the generation gap.

The special is a Bud Yorkin-Norman Lear Tandem Production, produced and directed by Yorkin.

The script is by Rob Reiner and Phil Mishkin, Michael Elias and Frank Shaw and David Pollack and Elias Davis. The musical direction is by Alexis de Arvedo.

Before he turned to show business, Andy Griffith, star of "The New Andy Griffith Show" on the CBS Television Network, contemplated becoming a minister, then because a high school teacher.

Mike Farrell, Dr. Sam Marsh of "The Interns" on the CBS Television Network, grew up in Hollywood, where his father was a movie studio carpenter.

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Wedged in by the prime-time cutback, the economy, and the loss of cigarette revenue, television is most likely to stick with the tried and true next season.

Situation comedy, action-adventure and tongue-in-cheek shows in the style of "I Spy" and "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." will get top consideration as the networks trim 3½ hours a week from their schedules. The cut was ordered by the Federal Communications Commission to create more diversity in programming.

In a normal year the fall line-ups for the three networks would be out by now.

But this is not a normal year and each network is trying to outwait the others. Counterprogramming—the inexact science of putting the opposition's schedule weaknesses to advantage—will be more important than ever this year.

Some of next year's shows are already known, because of commitments to movie stars. The others will come from original movies now being aired and the remainder from pilots being viewed in executive suites.

ABC signed Shirley MacLaine for a situation comedy and Tony Curtis and Roger Moore, who play an American wheeler-dealer and an English peer in "The Friendly Persuaders."

Dick Van Dyke returns to CBS in a comedy about a TV talk show host. Glenn Ford will star in a contemporary Western called "Cade's County."

James Garner, formerly Bret Maverick in the "Maverick" series, will be on NBC in "Nichols," a comedy-drama set in the Southwest in 1915. James Stewart makes his television debut in a comedy about a college professor with a son and a grandson the same age.

Just about any made-for-television movie can be construed as a pilot. Among those for NBC are four detective movies—"Sarge," in which George Kennedy plays a detective who becomes a priest; "Ransom For a Dead Man," in which Peter Falk plays a police detective named "Colombo;" "Banyon," a 1930s-style private eye starring Robert Forster; and "Elly Queen," a revival of the detective classic with Peter Lawford.

CBS has "Crosscurrent," about a black detective in San Francisco, and "O'Hara," in which Richard Janssen plays a Treasury agent.

Tried and True Season Ahead

ABC has Ossie Davis in "Sheriff," James Franciscus as a blind detective in "Longstreet," and "Earth II," about a manmade earth station in space.

Here are some of the pilots:

ABC: "I Love You, Miss Merkle," about a Broadway star who becomes a teacher. "Big Man, Little Lady," about a 16-year-old girl being escorted across the West. "S.A.M.," about a small-town public works employe, starring Paul Sand of Broadway's "Story Theater."

CBS: "The Chicago Teddy bears," a spoof of prohibition. "Scared Stiff," a detective comedy. "Funny Face," about a college student and part-time model, starring Sandy Duncan.

Gerald S. O'Loughlin plays senior partner in large law firm in "Men at Law" series on CBS.
