Coventry Budget Hearing Due Tomorrow In School Gym

Residents will have the opportunity tomorrow night at 7:30 in the high school gym to express their opinions on the proposed budgets for 1971-72, when the Town Council and Board of Education present preliminary figures for discussion.

The purpose of the hearing is for discussion and explanation only. No budgets will be adopted. A town meeting in May will present the final figures to townpeople and a 1971-72 budget will be adopted at that time.

The preliminary budget to be presented tomorrow night reflects a decrease of $400,000 over the current $1,933,866, including both general government and Board of Education requests.

Based on these preliminary figures, the mill rate could jump from the current 88.2 up to between 79 and 80, but the Town Council is emphasizing that this is just a preliminary budget, and that these figures will be cut in all likelihood before tomorrow night's session and the May town meeting.

Breakdown of the preliminary figures shows the Board of Education requesting an increase of $296,000 over the current budget of $1,766,000. This increase, $164,478 would go into teachers' salary accounts, and $131,522 into other accounts.

The Town Council budget, containing requests from all other town agencies reflects an increase of $129,350.

This year, the Board of Education budget will lead off the discussion. Unlike other years, the board this time will not be supplying supplemental information to the public. In the past, the board has distributed sheets containing breakdowns of each line item in its budget.

This year, only the basic line items budget is being supplied. This document, together with the general town government requests, is available to the public at the Town Hall, and copies will also be available at tomorrow night's hearing.

Teen Jury Judicial In Teen Punishment

ROGERS, Ark. (AP) — A teen-ager convicted of a misdemeanor had a chance to serve his sentence in a teen-ager court. The court, which is a part of the juvenile court system, is designed to provide a more realistic and meaningful experience for the teen-ager. The court is staffed by teen-agers and presided over by a judge. The court handles cases involving minor offenses such as truancy, curfew, and possession of a firearm. The court aims to provide a supportive environment for the teen-ager while ensuring justice is served.

Another youthful offender had to wash the city's four patrol cars for four weeks in the punishment of a teen-ager who had been convicted of a misdemeanor. The punishment was imposed by a judge in a teen-ager court. The court is designed to provide a more realistic and meaningful experience for the teen-ager. A third was directed to write a theme. The punishment for each was determined by the teen-ager court. The court is designed to provide a more realistic and meaningful experience for the teen-ager. Municipal Judge Davis Duty said the Teen Jury was formed to avoid any teen-age crime problem that might arise as Rogers grows larger. He said there was a chasm between "adults and teen-agers" and he wanted to bridge the gap now. He said the Teen Jury is a "community to allow the jury to function 'our standards have to be higher.'"

Duty said the jury seems to have helped reduce the number of teen-age offenses. He said there was one three-week period when it was not necessary for the jury to hold its weekly meetings. Any teen-ager under 18 who appears before Duty and is found guilty of a misdemeanor has the option of receiving the normal fine and/or imprisonment or of appearing before the Teen Jury.

If the offender chooses the Teen Jury, Duty said 30 to 40 persons have appeared before the jury.

Drought-Spawed Fires Hit Florida Wildlife

MIAMI (AP) — Massive fish kills and persistent ground fires have threatened other wildlife were reported today throughout the vast Florida Everglades, caught tight in the grip of a six-month drought.

While officials said the fish kills were the most graphic illustration of the drought's effects on wildlife, they said the most serious problem was fires burning uncontrolled through the peat-like top soil for the Everglades.

Called muck, it covers the Everglades in depths ranging from four to five feet.

The fires burn through it in ragged lines, often disappearing a few feet only to break through to the surface again.

"Wildlife has experienced the high concentration of such as the gar have a better life in tight quarters."

"But if this drought goes on long enough and muck fires burn the level of this soil, the life into tight quarters."

"The high concentration of fish uses up all the available oxygen with the bass and bream dying off first. The tougher fish, such as the gar have a better life in tight quarters."

City Farmers PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The 1970 census says 26 farms still operate inside the nation's fourth largest city. The farms are worked as a sideline by the owners. Their chief attraction to outsiders is to provide city schoolchildren with an insight usually reserved for country children, according to the owners. The farms range in size up to 80 acres for a combined acreage of 600.

broods, every community has an obligation to acknowledge a civic duty so broad it must include opening its advantages and blessings to all comers, even though that may mean a decrease in the advantages and blessings the community has so carefully carved for itself.

Every community, as it finds itself caught in this blind, finds the experience torturous, reminiscent of testing its own principles and values and character.

We like to think that Manchester has been, up to now, and will be, in the future, a little better than some others. We hope it will continue to manage, on the economic level, some kind of open door to variety along with a reasonable protection of existing values, and on the social level, keep reminding itself that it has as yet had no real testing at all.

Dear Martha

Dear Martha Mitchell is becoming the one remaining American institution we can trust.

Congress can be a shambles, if the Presidency can become a man stock company, the Supreme Court can become what Martha says it is, but Martha herself can be depended upon to hold steady to her values.

If it weren't for Martha, one might think that the new Chief Justice, last Tuesday, was rendering a Supreme Court decision on busting of the type he had been appointed to render. One did not hear anything to the contrary from the White House.

But Martha kept things straight. She thought the Court should be abolished for its unmanly ruling in favor of busting for integration of schools, and she said so.

Those who expected such a statement from somebody, perhaps from the President, perhaps from her husband the Attorney General, were doomed to disappointment. More men politicians, in such situations, develop a cautious excess of self control. They bottle themselves up in silence, and thereby enforce an unnatural repression of their own emotions and the emotions of others. They think so many times before they speak that they wind up speaking not at all.

Martha Mitchell, on the other hand, feels and speaks simultaneously. With her, the emotion is the message, the feeling the decision, the impulse, the action.

In times of royalty, the good court jester had, among his other functions, that of saying out loud, occasionally, what other people might be thinking but did not dare say for themselves.

Mrs. Mitchell, so far, has demonstrated more virtuosity than wit, but she does manage, in her way, to say the thing that polarizes and therefore clears the air, lets us know where we want to stand, and tells everybody what time it is.

Performing such a service, she is just about the only Washington institution which might be considered really indispensable.

Save The Berkshire Line

Permit us, please, to add our feeble plea to the powerful ones of the plain-people who urge the state to rescue the Berkshire Line.

In these days when the state and the federal government seem bent on turning our gracious lanes into a concrete maze of highways, and when subsidies to airlines grow to astronomical proportions, isn't there anything left to give to the means of transportation which has made our nation great?

The railroads, once the country's greatest asset, have now become the nation's stepchild.

It is in the best interests of ecology that we spend two million dollars for a strip of highway of questionable need and permit the rail management lords of the Penn Central, to continue to subsidize their passenger services.

Never mind.

Let's get back to the Berkshire Line, one of the oldest rail lines in America. It should be saved.

When the proposed Railpax plan goes through the line will die May 1, unless state aid comes to the rescue.

The state legislature on behalf of the retention of the Berkshire Line recently. One bill, sponsored by State Representative Gordon M. Vail, (R-Goshen) would provide a state subsidy to continue the present weekend service and, in addition, create a bi-state (Conn. - Mass.) commission to study the feasibility of improved and expanded service on the line.

At a recent public hearing, several spokesmen advocated that the Berkshire Line return to its former daily schedule as a boon to commuters.

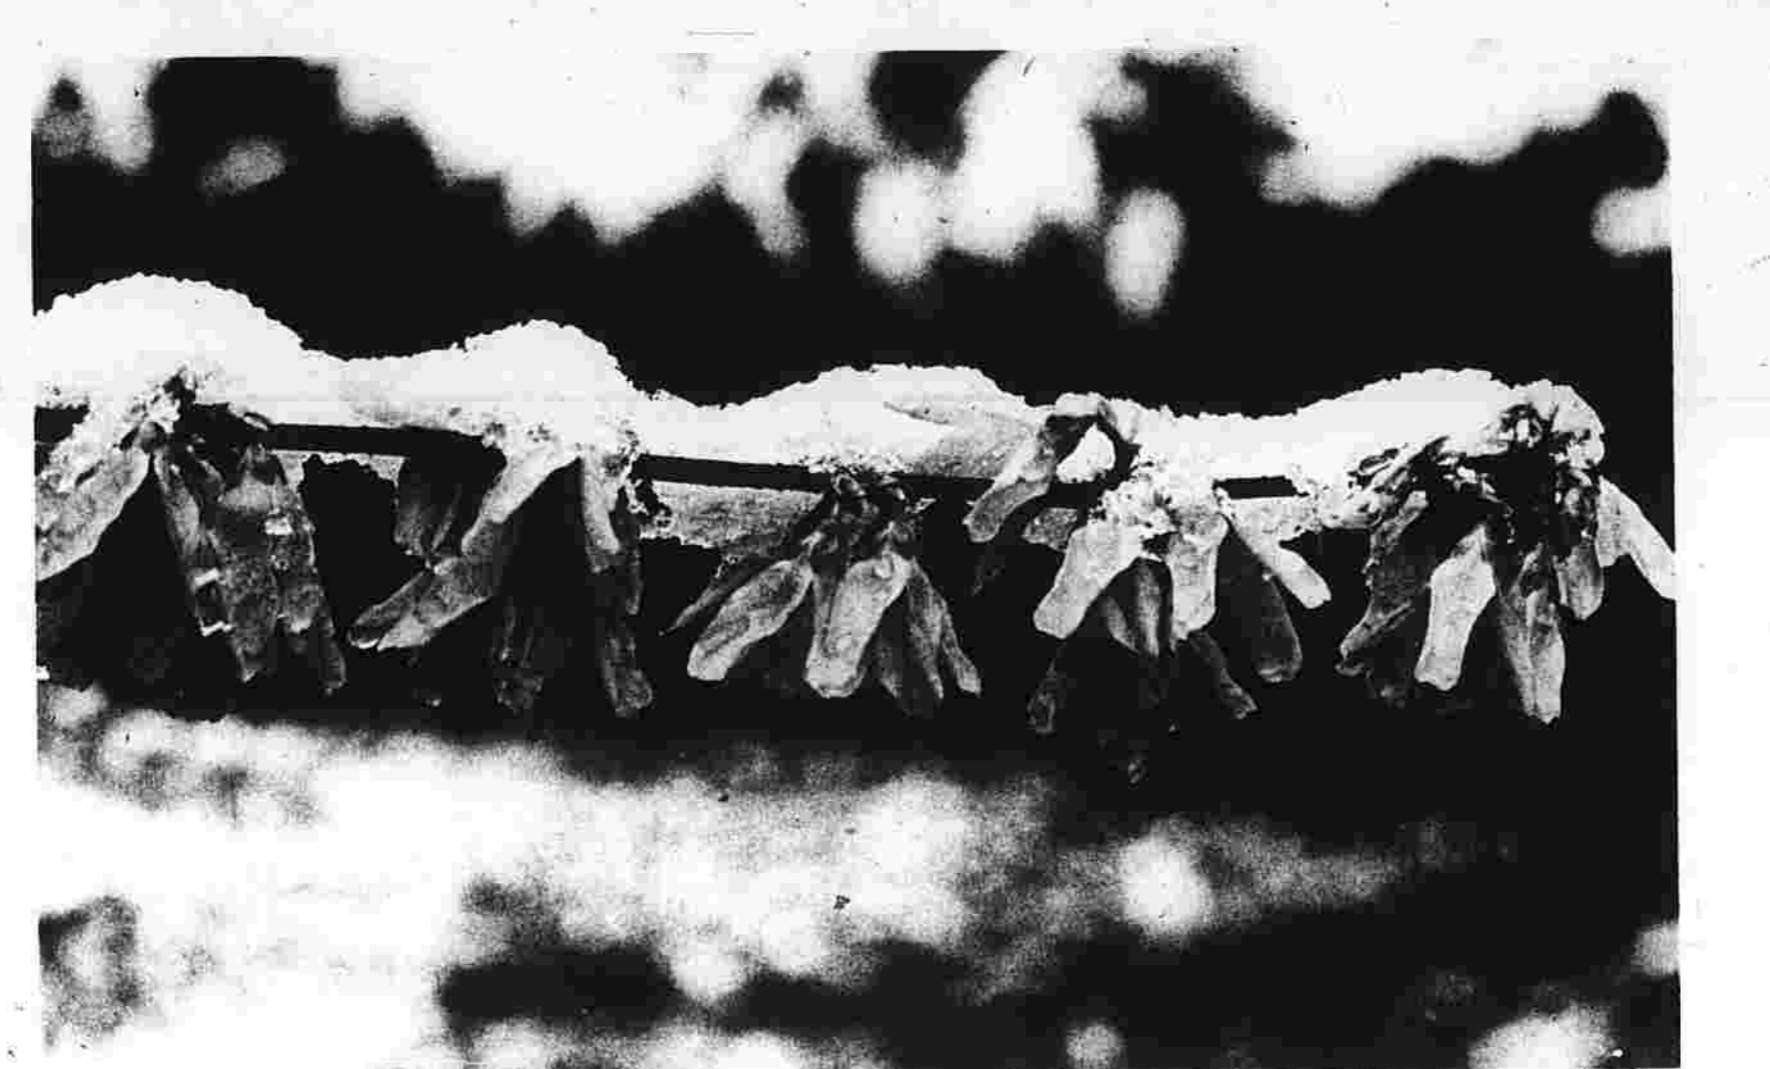

But Penn Central says that it had to discontinue because of poor passenger service.

It is wishful thinking to suppose that new clean streamlined trains would not be more attractive to commuters than the arduous task of piloting an automobile in and out of traffic jams and coming from work?

As the nation becomes more and more ecology conscious, it is completely mystifying that the federal and state governments continue to appropriate funds for concrete ribbons to accommodate more cars to contribute to the pollution crisis which now hangs over our heads.

Here's far more, not less, public transportation.

As a starter, let's save the Berkshire Line. — BRISTOL PRESS.

Inside Report

Mills Vs. Mayors

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — What was intended as a grand national strategy session of the Democratic party last Thursday degenerated into an angry confrontation between two elements of the party that seldom see each other: Congressional leaders and big city mayors.

Much to the delight of the White House, the unprecedented meeting did not unveil a Democratic alternative to President Nixon's revenue-sharing program. Rather, the mayors were outraged by adamant opposition to revenue-sharing from Congressional leaders. Affirming their own support for revenue-sharing, red-faced mayors excitedly warned they were being read out of the Democratic party.

When it was over, the mayors called on Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien (who presided over Thursday's session on Capitol Hill) to call another such meeting a month hence. But an envoy may not do much more than lower their voices. On the key issue of revenue-sharing, the mayors remain isolated from the Democratic mainstream.

Thursday's session grew out of O'Brien's efforts to evolve common party strategy, meeting first last month with senior Congressional Democrats quickly followed by a session with Democratic Governors and Governors into session with the mayors. On Monday morning, O'Brien conferred with two hours with Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, about alternatives to Nixon programs to be presented Thursday afternoon.

Then for two hours on Thursday, the alternatives were presented without a word of dissent: Unfrenzied Federal grants frozen by Mr. Nixon, as he shouted at Congressional barons not accustomed to being shouted at. "You don't have to tell me how to run my city," he shouted at Congressional barons not accustomed to being shouted at. "You don't have to tell me how to conduct my labor negotiations." Maier's outburst was fully shared by three other mayors present: Wesley Uhlman of Seattle, Carl Stokes of Cleveland, and James Tate of Philadelphia.

Moreover, three Governors—Robert Scott of North Carolina, Marvin Mandel of Maryland, and Calvin Rampton of Utah—gave nominal support to revenue-sharing, although their backing had none of the urgency of the mayors. Gov. John I. Gilligan of Ohio indicated some agreement with Congressional apprehension, remarking that revenue-sharing funds for Cincinnati might be funneled into the new municipal stadium.

Thus, the mayors are temporarily isolated in their own party, unwilling to give President Nixon the much sought support that desperate eager for Congress to pass his proposal. The mayors are not alone in their isolation. The political command of old pro Larry O'Brien may not be able to come up with a face-saver to make sure this isolation is only temporary.

The MEA Proposals

Wilson E. Deakin, Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Personnel and negotiator for the Board of Education, has stated that the MEA proposals involve either money or board policy.

The MEA proposals alleged to involve board policy is a new no-striking-attached revenue initiative. The MEA proposals also included a "working conditions" pursuant to P.A. 811. In fact, these proposals now declared non-negotiable by the Board of Education are written in the present MEA-Board of Education Agreement. It is worthy of note that a number of these same non-negotiable items were negotiated during the tenure of John Rotter, Chairman of the Board at that time. Mr. Rotter has been selected as the Board's arbitrator for the upcoming arbitration.

"One Complaint"

To the Editor,

As marchers in the April 17 Earth March we are dedicated to preserving our environment. We feel that the march and rally in Colt Park were a great service to this cause as a means of raising funds and showing our sincere concern. However, we have one complaint. We resent the interference of the anti-war speakers who used this ecology rally as an excuse to present anti-war sentiment to the young people gathered there. Regardless of the marchers' feelings concerning Vietnam, the speakers should have limited themselves to the topic ecology, but some guest speakers, particularly the Vietnam war veteran, infringed too much on our environmental movement. It is not the objective of the ecology supporters to interfere in the peace rallies; therefore we expect the same consideration.

"Very Successful Drive"

To the Editor,

I want to thank everyone who worked on the glass and paper drive on April 17, 1971. It was a very successful drive to the efforts of all concerned. First of all I must thank all the people who made the effort to save their glass and paper and then to bring it to the Municipal Building parking lot for the collection. We went from almost 15 tons of glass last collection to over 17 tons of glass this time. This shows that more and more people are interested in cleaning up our environment.

I want to say a big thank you to the men from the Manchester Rotary Club for the wonderful job they did. The Boy Scouts from troops 25 and 120 were just great with helping out wherever they were needed. Thank you, Eiler McCaughey and Matt Hennigan and their group from Bennett Junior High did an exceptional job packing the papers in the truck and handling the mess that accrues when wind and paper come together. When the men from the paper company had to empty the truck after the trailer tipped over when it was being attached to the cab, they commented that it was a great help for them that it was done so well. These boys really are an asset to the town of Manchester and to me especially during this drive.

I also want to thank the men that got stopped in and asked which way would help and stayed all day, men such as Bob Slater and others whose names

Between The Court And The Need

On page one of the New York Times the other morning, the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of a California law which requires that a majority of the voters in any local community must referendum vote in favor of any federally financed low-rent housing project before it can be built in that community.

On page 87 of the same issue, in a much shorter news story, a New York land developer volunteered the opinion that fewer than 10 per cent of the people in this country can afford new privately built housing.

"The other 90 per cent of our nation's people," said this developer, "are effectively zoned out of the new home market by the restrictive community land use laws such as those that require large lot home sites or prohibit multifamily housing. Restrictive zoning has driven the cost of new housing and apartment construction up and has driven 'middle America' — the families with annual incomes under $15,000 — out of today's housing market."

The Supreme Court, ruling 5 to 3 in support of the California law, did so in spite of the briefs and pleas filed by what are called liberal and religious groups which are engaged in housing project programs, as well as from the National Association of Home Builders, the American Institute of Architects, and the Justice Department itself.

Nonetheless, the Court, in a ruling written by Justice Hugo Black, held that the California law was a "procedure for democratic decision-making" which gives the people a voice in decisions which would raise their taxes, dilute values, and affect, one way or another, the entire future development of their own communities.

So writes Justice Black undoubtedly spoke for a hard core sentiment which exists in almost every community in the country.

As the California law has worked out, in the 20 years it has been in existence, it has led to the defeat of about half the low-rent housing projects subjected to the referendum process.

Looking forward to the potential practical impact of this Court decision, there are eight other states, Colorado, Iowa, Mississippi, Montana, Oklahoma, Texas, Vermont and Virginia, which now have similar laws on their books.

In many other states, any effort to pass such laws would probably fail. And in any case some analysis of this present Court opinion sees in it, hints that it expects the California law from unconstitutional motivation primarily because it has been on the books so long.

The Court, it is suggested, might not approve the same kind of law if other states should rush to adopt it now in an effort to fight ghetto-eliminating programs.

Perhaps, then, the Court decision is to have less practical impact than the champions of low cost housing as the device for breaking up our ghettos may fear.

The two news stories, however, indicate the kind of bind our American society is in today. Whether or not there is such a law for every community, there is a will present in most communities, and it is a will which asserts the right of that community to be its own self and to develop in its own way, defending its own chosen values and its own idea of its own economic welfare.

And there is, on the other hand, the conviction of various social and religious activist organizations that, in a time when the very survival of our whole civilization depends upon our ability to break up the ghetto and the stuff

Not Increase in Salaries

To the Editor,

It has been brought to the attention of the Manchester Association of Educational Secretaries that the Manchester Property Owners Association which appeared in last Friday night's paper, we wish to point out emphatically that educational secretaries have not received salary increases of 140 per cent in the last three years. To set the record straight, a weekly salary scale for educational office personnel in 1968-69 ranged from $171.00 for Class 3 to $265.00 for Class 1 person. In 1970-71 this scale was increased to $244.00 for Class 3 and $306.00 for Class 1.

What in the world is MPOA talking about when it asks "Did Your Pay Increase This Much?" (Mrs. Teresa Moriarty Secretary Manchester Association of Educational Secretaries)

Eddy Fears Move Toward 'Casino State'

By Sol R. Cohen

Warning against those "who would turn Connecticut into a Casino State," the legislator voted by newsmen the most outspoken and refreshingly honest, urged yesterday that the state "hold on to the traditions of honest government, which have made it the envy of the nation."

State Sen. Roger Eddy, R. of Newington, said yesterday that he has no serious opposition to a state lottery or to "horse racing as a recreation."

However, he took a firm stand against "those who have suggested that Connecticut should be open to all forms of off-track betting to the numbers and policy-making business, and that to the suggestion we should, in effect, become a 'Casino State.'"

Eddy claimed that there is irrefutable evidence that "when a state sponsors off-track betting, it leads inevitably to an influx of organized crime."

'Re-Education' Shows Bosses How the 'Other Half' Works

EDITOR'S NOTE—Lately Americans have had a brief glimpse into China—a series of snapshots built around prof.iciency at table tennis. But as this article discloses, China is also a place where many people must undergo re-education under Mao Tse-tung.

By Klaus Mehnert
"And this is the kitchen," the head of the May 7 re-education camp said while opening the door of a shack.

I shall never forget what I saw next. Around a large table nine or 10 men stood in big white aprons. They were kneading a mountain of dough into pointed dumplings. Someone in the kitchen clapped his hands in greeting, as its customary, "foreign guest," and they all turned around.

They were not the faces of cooks, but of middle-aged intellectuals, mostly bespectacled. The kitchen chief looked just like them.

Along the wall stood huge cauldrons, one of them bubbling with cabbage soup. "Our students have discovered a special method to produce a maximum of heat with a minimum of coal," the kitchen chief said. "Would you like to see it?"

We walked through a door and down a few steps into the furnace room. Three men were standing here, their eyes glued to small glass windows through which each one could watch the flame entrusted to him. Less than two yards beyond the windows one could discern, under the cauldron, a small pile of red-hot coal, fanned by a blast of air from below.

The trick lay in adding every few moments a tiny bit of coal which would then burn almost without ashes. To accomplish this, each of the three was manipulating a long iron staff welded to a scoop not larger than a hand.

As soon as the bit of coal had burned down, he had to add a fresh spoonful. The three men were so completely absorbed that I did not want to bother them with questions. The one nearest to me looked as if he had been a school principal.

Next I was shown some sleeping quarters. Each room had eight to 12 bunks—boards held by brick legs, with a mattress not much thicker than a towel. The blankets were neatly folded at the head of the bed, a pillow on top, one like the other. In each room were one table and a tiny stove, both homemade. Along the walls were many Mao pictures and quotations and one shelf, with Mao bust and Mao books.

mainly on the fields. New farmland is being created where there was a sandy stretch of land before. They dig up hillsides and use the earth for making rice fields.

In one place I saw about two dozen of them running with two-wheeled carts between a gradually disappearing hillside and the new fields. Among them were men in their 80s with inflated self-esteem.

From time to time someone shouted the beginning of a Mao quotation and all the others fell in, even those who were running, supposed to, that by this kind of work they are being purged of self-centered thoughts and overbearing pride and are thus ennobled.

"By overcoming pride and bringing into communion with the masses," I was given an example: "Or maybe they think something quite different. Impossible to say. One thing, I believe, can be merging, boring, welding. But what each one has to do. For some students this is quite an ordeal. First they push the carts 15 miles to the city. Then they fill them from the latrines in their own district where many people know them, which makes it even worse. Finally they have to push their cart full of excrement 15 miles back to the fields as fertilizer. This breaks any great speed from the hillside.

What went on behind the 1,200 faces which I passed that day? Maybe they feel, as they are supposed to, that by this kind of work they are being purged of self-centered thoughts and overbearing pride and are thus ennobled. Or maybe they think something quite different. Impossible to say. One thing, I believe, can be merging, boring, welding. But

It is easier to demand extreme sacrifices and poverty from 700 million people if there are not seven million bosses around, a "new class" lordling over them—and enjoying luxuries, albeit modest ones. Someone told me: "We don't like people riding shiny cars while we work in the dust. But it is different if we hear that they have been through a May 7 school. Then we understand that they have known hard work and we say: If they need the car to move more quickly in the service of Chairman Mao, let them have it; we don't mind."

Tolland County Superior Court Holding of Trial Evidence Can Cause Inconvenience

By JUNE LINTON (Herald Reporter) A 62-year-old Rockville man has been a victim of sorts twice in the last few months, even once when he was attacked and robbed by three men Feb. 27, and then again when the police machinery of justice decreed that his $202, which was held as evidence, be immediately returned.

John Tomko found it difficult to understand why the bills sent to him had to be kept by the police and besides, he needed his money. He appeared in Tolland County Superior Court on April 13, the same day his alleged attackers pleaded innocent, and asked for it.

The state was willing, and suggested the money could be photographed, providing the three public defenders assigned to represent the men accused of the attack would agree to such a substitute. "No way," Tomko said, "I want my money back."

Asked if something could be arranged to help Tomko, Superior Court Judge Paul J. D'Arcangelo agreed to look into it but later said he could find no source of funds which could be used. The court system does not provide replacements for any kind of material possession being held as evidence, he said.

Tomko will have to wait until the date set when they could change their pleas recently. However they could change them back again and there could be the matter of one or three trials, and there could be appeals. All through this the money would have to be held.

Vermon's Chief of Police Edmund F. Dwyer agreed that there should be funds available in such a case; however he stressed that such a situation doesn't happen often. He conducted this report on a tour of the evidence being held at local police headquarters.

There was a large closet in a locker room on the main floor which at first glance seemed to contain mostly sleepers of beer. There were also a small radio, an automobile jack, a pile of car marker plates, some new shirts in their original plastic wrap, sleeping bags, a rifle, a pair of sneakers, huggies and even two books, "The Scientific Analysis of Personality" and "The Psychoanalysis of Dreams." These last however turned out to be lost and found items and not headed for court.

Many of these things are held for only a short time, according to Chief Dwyer, as a great number of cases are quickly disposed of in Circuit Court. Drugs which are seized are kept at the state lab, where they are tested, until needed in court.

After 20 days items still being held for evidence are moved to a locked closet downstairs at the station. Here eight rifles were lined up in a rack with another on the shelf below, along with a hand revolver in its holster. There was a strongbox, clothing, beer and items similar to those upstairs, all neatly tagged and indexed. Various bags and boxes held more evidence, however the nature of their contents was not divulged by the police chief. There was an acrylic small front, something which had undoubtedly been in a fire and on the floor a small green safe with its front bent or blown apart.

Money which is being held is kept in a safe but there was none at the moment, "not a cent," according to Chief Dwyer. He said there were five mini-bikes in another storage area but no cars. He added that for a while there were a number of television sets being held but these have all been returned to owners. He didn't say how long these had been held.

Four wheels which had been stolen from a car were recovered but held only a few days. Stolen cars are usually not kept, he said. Rather, they are photographed and then returned to the owners unless they were used in committing a crime such as selling drugs, or, as in one widely publicized case, in committing a murder. A judge rules on which ones may be held.

The 1966 Chevrolet belonging to Roy Darwin, convicted twice of a 1963 slaying, is still being held as evidence. It was first seized illegally in December 1963, then returned to Darwin and immediately seized again with a search warrant. Two trials have been held and at present the second verdict is being appealed to the State Supreme Court. By this time the car probably has value no to one, even as an antique.

Business Mirror New Housing Rate Rise Encourages Optimism

By JOHN CUNIFF (Herald Reporter) NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most encouraging economic developments in recent weeks has been the rate of which new housing is beginning to rise, after a depression that has left a critical shortage of decent shelter.

The pace of private housing starts is now believed to be approaching 2 million a year—it was 1,915,000 in March—and by 1974 it should be 2,500,000, according to the U.S. Commerce Dept. The pace of private housing starts is now believed to be approaching 2 million a year—it was 1,915,000 in March—and by 1974 it should be 2,500,000, according to the U.S. Commerce Dept.

Prospects hardly seem to be improving either. "Based on the rising cost of living, this same home can easily soar to over $25,000 by 1980—thereby eliminating even a 15,000-a-year family from being able to live in a three-bedroom house."

Moreover, the upward pressure continues on apartment rents, and landlords claim they have no choice but to raise rents. The National Association of Real Estate Boards claim that rent increases have been kept pace with costs.

One of the biggest factors in the bills of apartment house owners result from what their claim are constantly rising turnover rates, evidence of great dissatisfaction among renters.

In garden-style apartment buildings, for example, the NAREB claims that turnover rose from 40 per cent in 1960 to 47 per cent in 1969. And in elevator buildings, which have the most stable occupancy, the rate rose from 30 per cent to 35 per cent in 1969.

For each move, the landlords say, they must paint and re-decorate, although there is growing evidence that this soon will become the renter's problem. And there are those ominous real estate taxes.

In elevator buildings in 1969, the NAREB claims that taxes cost owners an average of $100.38 a room, up $7.82 from 1968.

The solution? You'll hardly find a consensus, but it is the techniques of assembly line, mass production and other factory techniques used so effectively in making automobiles, will have to be employed.

While there is widespread agreement that it is necessary to keep all sorts of things as evidence there is also agreement that when even temporary loss of property, such as a car, results in hardship, some form of restitution should be made.

Meanwhile it might be well to consider possibilities for in-state to keep one's false teeth where they belong — in one's mouth. Chief Dwyer remains because the case is being appealed, it remains propped up in the pocket of a stolen coat.

Communal Life Contains Some Elements of Peril

(Continued from Page One) Rick felt restless and demoralized. He could see the work that needed doing on the 100-acre spread. He could not stir himself to do it. Nor could he bring himself to eat at the communal table.

"I feel that," he said. Rick would move on but not back to the city, not back to his family. He was committed to the land. He was also committed to communal living. If one commune doesn't work for you, find another.

There are plenty to be found some good, some not-so-good and "untidy." Some headed for survival, some toward ruin. In the alternative society, the commune is the distinctive life form. It is a social arrangement far more real than long hair, beads or hippie clothing, and far more chaotic.

It is the main support system economically and psychologically, for those who have decided to try to build their own way of life apart from the American dream. The commune is their second family where they seek to grow up new.

Like much in the alternative society, the communal life is something that has been tried before. American history is studded with utopian and usually ill-fated attempts, such as Brook Farm and New Harmony to recreate a lot of sense of community apart from the restrictions and competition of the outside world.

But, never before have communal experiments been so numerous and so far-flung. In the past three years, has yet to visit a major city without sharing with someone who is struggling to rid themselves of ego formed in childhood and needs shaped in a world they are trying to leave behind.

Now inside these urban communes, the dream is to get to the country—to Vermont, to Marin County outside San Francisco, to Northern California, to Oregon and Washington State or to the lush, dairylands of Wisconsin.

The commune movement, says sociologist Bennett Berger, author of "Looking for America," has "exploded over the past year." They are just everywhere.

For as the future is in groups of people who establish more readily human relations with each other and their environment, those who return to the land and to communal living together... those who seek to escape the waste of a decaying society for the raw materials of a new culture... those who want to escape the message from a Northern California commune circulating around the kitchen table, he makes a threat:

"Life in a commune is often periodically exhausting. It can also be physically perilous. Three cases of botulism plague were reported in commune games. I'm trying to help you," says with the same group of people. The problem as well as the great mobility of people in the alternative society add up to the a male leaders was accused of

of water. Sanitary conditions are often primitive. The hippie inflation into the country, an inflation often financed in inherited funds, rears old wounds over land rights. In New Mexico, Chicano attacks on hippies who live in remote parts of the country are common.

It's not easy to create an entirely new role and that's what they are doing," says a radical doctor in Seattle. "They were cowboys and now they've come Indiana."

Urban communes are not as perilous but they can be just as trying. John McGrane of Ecology-Action in Cambridge is a veteran of two communes. He now lives in an apartment.

"It's difficult enough to live in one and one relationship. Our divorce rates suggest that it's improbable that more than two people can live together and it's impossible that more than three people can live together unless they are very mature and very tolerant. I tend to be tolerant. But many people are not. For seven and a half hours that I don't get into my head," Frenchy said.

In a commune life tends to polarize along the lines of the cleans and the sloppies and it isn't very easy to handle. You might be able to land up in a commune in the youth culture have really deluded themselves into believing in the revolution. "Some people do it. I don't. I'm a split head," he said.

Frenchy had a special skill, he might be able to convince a parent to let a child go to at least money to a communal effort. But all Frenchy has to do is utter impossible to articulate the hostilities. They are beliefs, they are very mature and strict kinds of conflicts that are communal, where people are leveling and an explosion of one kind or another becomes inevitable.

So he must parashute to eke out a bare existence. Meanwhile, he helps form a lower class that is faced with the same kind of poverty problem that plagues the larger society's lower classes. Crime results. The faded radical enclaves such as Millard in Madison, Wis., and Berkeley take on a seedy look. Paranoia mounts.

The other residents decide to script from Milwaukee. Money is a constant problem in virtually all communes, and it is one reason why communes are unpopular. If two people can live as cheaply as one, they can live as cheaply as five. Few could handle a rent of even $17 a month by themselves.

With three or four friends, they can do it. Usually, this means that someone in the house must hold down a straight job—a task that is sometimes rotated in the interest of fairness. What comes in, whether in the form of cash or food stamps, is pooled. Claudette, 28, the ex-wife of a business executive lives communally outside Cambridge, Mass. She would never go back to her former way of life.

Not that hypocrisy doesn't remain. One reason for the demise of the Seattle Liberation Front was the outrage of revolutionary women at what they considered their sexual exploitation. One of the male leaders was accused of seducing a 16-year-old girl, giving her VD, then leaving her. The crushing blow to the SLF was the Sky River rock festival at which three women were gang raped.

In the alternative society, sex is often a way to escape boredom. And boredom can descend on a rural commune at least as easily as it can on a Manhattan apartment house.

Rick returned to Seattle last winter after about a year in the country. "At the place makes a real big difference in your life—it doesn't," he said. "To move to the country you need a better person, right? Wrong. A flood of freaks came down on the place. It became ingrown, just like Bellingham or the suburbs. Evidently, my wife and I were into everyone else's business and everyone was sleeping with everyone else's old lady."

Both Thibault and Selectman Robert Dumont paid tribute to Mrs. Meurant as "an outstanding public servant who has worked in the town clerk's office for 12 years."

In her letter of resignation Mrs. Meurant stresses the "urgent need" for a full-time assistant town clerk or the use of two part-time assistants. She noted the work load prompted by the large population increase of the town.

Mrs. Meurant's term was due to expire Jan. 3, 1972. The two selectmen agreed to notify both the Republican and Democratic town chairmen of the vacancy and to seek recommendations for filling the position.

Noting that Mrs. Meurant's resignation, coupled with the death of Town Treasurer Mrs. Eleanor Weston not yet a year ago, she said she would not seek re-election after 10 years in the post, "in a difficult situation for the town," Thibault warned the town will have to start facing these heavy responsibilities as soon as possible.

He stressed the poor salary paid to the town treasurer.

Douglas Kratz submitted his resignation from both the Capital Region Planning Agency and as chairman of the insurance study committee.

Due to a change in employment, Kratz is returning to California. Both town chairmen will also be contacted regarding vacancies caused by Kratz's resignations and asked to recommend replacements.

In his letter of resignation from the insurance study committee, Kratz recommended that the work remaining to be completed and recommended that Selectman Dumont be named chairman of the committee, complete the proposal. Several local residents representing various insurance companies have already indicated their desire to bid on the contract. The package when the specifications are finalized. The committee has gone on record as being unanimously behind pending the town's insurance in a one-step package arrangement. It is possible that a duplicate coverage.

Thibault further noted both town chairmen have been notified regarding the two vacancies on the Conservation Commission, arising from the town meeting action increasing the commission's membership from five to seven. He has been approached by three residents so far expressing interest in serving on the commission.

Annual Meeting Date The date of the annual town meeting will be changed to May 17 on the recommendation of Board of Finance Chairman Howard Wolinger.

The finance board sought the delay from the charter-set date of May 4 to permit more time to advertise the budget for the hearing and to publish the town reports.

Renovated Building Both Thibault and Dumont agreed to ask the Board of Finance for permission to use the remaining $5,000 in the contingency fund to make repairs to the Town Administration Building, making the building suitable for use as town offices on the first floor.

If the finance board agrees, the item will be put to the townpeople at a town meeting. A request for confirmation of office space approval in the administration building from Wolinger in his capacity as judge of probate, was tabled by the selectmen.

Cut Down Tree Thibault has received many complaints regarding the cutting down of a large tree in front of the new Mobil gas station on Rt. 186 next to the Shurway supermarket.

Investigating the situation, the first selectmen found approval for cutting down the tree was granted by the State Motor Vehicle Department. In accordance to state authorities in the Norwich highway department office, the tree was the way of the sight line for cars entering and leaving the gas station.

In the original approval given by the Zoning Board of Appeals, Mobil officials had promised to replace the tree.

At the time, the tree was located on property owned by the Mobil Oil Co. Thibault reported he has received "three strong complaints" regarding the junked supervisory dump it was stipulated the rubbish should be moved to any other location on the Cedar Swamp Rd. intersection.

Atty. Arthur Shargo, sitting in the audience, noted the junked cars have also been removed about Dump Superintendant Charles Heib's property (in an enclosure before zoning) need not be a Thibault and Conservation Commission Chairman Charles Mayer.

Mayer recommended the town health officer be authorized to pick up the junked cars by the Paul family c.l.u. Temporary chairman John Sullivan said tonight's meeting is open to all Manchester Democrats. He said that club membership will total about 70 tonight.

Andover LWV Will Study Further Feasibility of Town Charter

The League of Women Voters Monday night held a mini-convention for the purpose of selecting its local study items for the coming year, and the subject of a town charter was once again selected for research and action.

Each local league annually chooses topics which cover subjects on a national level, others on a state level, and lastly, subjects on the local level.

The national organization of the league sets up guidelines for making the selections. The two basic criteria which have to be met are that the issue be one on which governmental action is needed and that it meet the principles of the League.

Other guidelines ask that the item be one which requires the unique talents and make-up of the League, be of local interest, can be acted upon after study is completed, be a subject that other organizations are not better equipped to handle, and be a subject suited to this type of study, rather than an item that the league can conduct a public forum on as a voter service project.

Mrs. Mary McNamara, coeditor of the LWV's Andover study, said that if anyone needs a ride to get to a meeting of the league, they need only to call membership chairman Mrs. Gail Storm.

Meetings scheduled for the day include 10 a.m. Women's Study group at the Congregational Church, 9 a.m. to noon, tax collector at the town office building; 1:30 p.m. Young Women's League at the Andover Elementary School; 8 p.m. Andover Citizens Club at the church; 8 p.m. PTA at the school; 8 p.m. Democratic Town Committee at the home of John Storm on Wales apolis street, water resources study, voting rights for residents of the District of Columbia, civil rights, equal opportunities in home and education and integration.

She said the league founded its Overseas Education program in 1969.

On the State level, the league has long been involved with the Connecticut State League for Project Concern, an annual session of the legislature, the emotional or psychiatric causes for migraines.

Mrs. Margaret Vinkala presented to the group a recapitulation of the local study items which the Andover group has investigated.

She stated that as far back as 1960, the study was a study of regional planning as it related to Andover's comprehensive town plan.

Broken Window 'For the Birds'

The birds in Andover are at it again. Monday an unidentified bird decided to play the feeding station located 10 feet away from Mrs. Hobart Willard's kitchen window, and instead hurried itself through the window, which was closed at the time, and settled on Mrs. Willard's kitchen floor.

On hearing the sound of breaking glass, Mrs. Willard went to the kitchen to investigate, only to see the bird, obviously uninjured, fly right back through the window to freedom once more.

According to John Repas, a neighbor directly across the street, the situation is somewhat unusual since the Willards, both retired, are very fond of birds and have feeding stations around which they keep geese, chickens, turkeys, and other birds.

Something about the location of these two houses evidently attracts the birds, for in the past six years each autumn a bird has broken a window in the paring house, and it has always happened the first week of the hunting season. These birds, however, Repas stated, are usually of the variety of small songbirds. He theorizes that the birds are attracted to the scene of trees and sky in the windows as open space and dwell on the joy of his feathered friends while replacing the broken pane of glass in the kitchen window.

In the meantime, Willard can do nothing but hope that the birds will not return to her kitchen window.

Southington Votes New High School

SOUTHINGTON (AP) — Voters approved on $8 million bond issue to build a new 1,600-pupil high school here Tuesday.

Last September, the voters approved a proposal to build a 2,400-pupil high school at a cost of nearly $12 million.

The vote was 1,178 for the funds and 1,083 against. A little more than 13,000 voters are registered in Southington, making Tuesday's turnout about 22 per cent.

Thirteen voters on Tuesday defeated another proposal to include an auditorium, costing $600,000, at the school. A proposal to build a 2,400-pupil high school at a cost of nearly $12 million.

Farming May Aid Astronauts

BUDAPEST (AP) — Future astronauts may have to become farmers to survive long flights in space, a Soviet scientist says.

Biologist V.I. Yazdovskiy told the Hungarian news agency MTI that an artificial biosphere will have to be created for space flights lasting months or years.

He said a process similar to the natural cycle of oxygen, water and the basic elements will have to be used in space capsules carried out to date point to the era as being most suitable.

He said that with some exaggeration it could be said that "astronauts will live amidst plants they cultivate and will wake up to the cackle of hens like farmers."

Budapest Festival WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Nature Film Festival will be held in Budapest, Sept. 5-15, says the Embassy of the Hungarian People's Republic.

The film festival is sponsored by the Union of Hungarian Film and TV Artists, the Presidency of the Society for Promoting Scientific Knowledge and the United Hungarian Film Artists. The film will be shown in connection with the World Exhibition of Hunting.

Tolland Sex and Drug Education Backed in School Survey

Tolland parents felt their children should receive both sex and drug education within the framework of the public school system, according to results of the Board of Education committee survey.

Of the 423 replies received regarding the drug education question 397 were in favor of requiring a health instruction program "including appropriate attention to drug education" while only 12 were opposed.

The margin favoring sex education was only slightly less, with 342 residents agreeing that "sex education should be included in the school curriculum provided it is taught by highly competent personnel."

Mostly all the respondents agreed that "inspiring, intelligent teachers with the ability to win the confidence of their pupils are the basis of an excellent school."

Continues Learning The question over grade segmentation vs. a continuous learning program in the town's schools received the most evenly distributed votes of any of the questions.

At present the Meadowbrook School's kindergarten through second grades are operating on a modified version of the continuous learning concept.

Delving into the philosophical adoption of the U.S. Supreme Court decision guaranteeing constitutional freedoms to all Americans regardless of age, sex or mental nature (280-73) teachers asked their constituents for their views on the school's right to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.

The instilling of "an analysis of values aimed toward the discovery and appreciation of one's self should play an important role in our schools," (325-40).

The schools also have the responsibility for developing "in every pupil, a strong sense of responsibility for the welfare of the school, community, state and nation." (417-10).

Surprisingly most of the respondents would also place the responsibility for the moral values in the hands of the schools (283-142) along with the parents (283-142) and the church (283-142).

Students should be "taught to be responsible for their own actions and to share effectively in group planning and action." (385-16).

In addition to learning and receiving assigned lessons, "Pupils should be taught how to secure and interpret facts." (418-3).

Supporting this philosophy they later on by almost the same margin agreed that the "elementary, middle and senior high schools should offer all pupils the opportunity to experience working with their hands in such activities as drawing, painting, clay modeling, weaving, wood and metal work and ceramics." (388-22).

James T. Farrell Produces Steady Stream of Writing

By PHIL THOMAS Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — More than 40 years ago an aspiring author named James T. Farrell wrote, "I need an audience—no look out!"

It didn't take Farrell long to become a writer—he published his first magazine fiction in 1929. And while the size of his literary journal, "The Saturday Review," was not "Studs," the story finally was published in a college literary journal.

Farrell recently published his 22nd novel, "Invincible Swords" (Doubleday). "I consider it the most powerful single book I've written," he says of the novel, which deals with a married couple and their retarded child.

Farrell also has published 21 other books of short stories, poems and essays. Later this year two more of his books are set for publication: one of criticism, one of fiction.

Despite his prodigious volume of work, Farrell, perhaps, remains best known as the author of the monumental "Studs Lonson" trilogy, published between 1932-1935. The book, written in a naturalistic vein, as was much of Farrell's work, tells of the life of a Chicago boy named Lonson.

The Hot Rock NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Redford will head the cast for 20th Century-Fox's "The Hot Rock" to be directed by Peter Yates from a William Goldman script.

BE SELFISH.

Think of yourself for a change. You deserve something for bringing home the bread.

You deserve a little tenderness. A nice, quiet place and a big, juicy steak. Steak served just the way you like it. With a steaming-hot baked potato, Texas toast, and a cool, crisp, green salad.

So be selfish—for your whole family. You can afford it at Bonanza. Steak dinners start as low as 1.59

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Wasp in Your Car

Myrtle was driving a neighbor to the market when a wasp flew into the car, zoomed up her sleeve, and stung her under the arm. Myrtle hit the brakes so hard that the car landed in a roadside ditch.

The neighbor, injured, lost no time in suing for damages. "Anybody who panics at the wheel," she said in court, "has no business driving at all. A driver has to be able to keep cool in a pinch."

However, the court disagreed. The judge said Myrtle could not be held liable for reacting the way any average driver might react in a similar situation.

The need to "keep cool in a pinch" arises all too often in driving a car. As a rule, the law will forgive a mistake caused by urgent and unusual circumstances.

But even in an emergency, a driver must retain some degree of discretion. Another motorist faced a dilemma when the car ahead of him stopped suddenly.

Although the right lane was clear, the motorist chose to swing out to the left—where he collided with a car coming the other way.

This time, the driver was held liable for the accident. The court said that even in an emergency, he should have had enough judgment to take the right lane.

Nor is a motorist excused by an emergency that he himself has created. In another case, a small boy was struck down when he suddenly dashed from the shoulder of a highway into the path of oncoming car.

When the motorist was sued for damages, he protested that he had been unable to stop in time. But at the court hearing, these further facts came to light:

1) that the boy had been facing away from the car; 2) that he had been in plain sight of the driver for a considerable time; and 3) that the driver had neither slowed down nor sounded his horn as he approached.

Finding him liable, the court said: "The presence of a very young child on the shoulder of a highway is in itself a danger signal."

THE WINTER OF THE FISHER

By Cameron Langford. Norton, $5.95. In fictional form, but based on the facts of natural history, this story depicts a year in the life of a young fisher, a fur-bearing animal larger than the marten, whose habits in the north woods of Canada.

It begins with his birth and his training. Then a warden hunter kills the fisher's mother and the rest of the litter, and he is on his own. A forest fire nearby causes his death, but he is found and nursed back to health by an old Ojibway Indian, who later is to rescue him again.

When winter comes a trapper appears on the scene and establishes several long traplines. The fisher finds it easier to rob the traps than to catch his own prey, which of course makes the trapper furious. Time and again the trapper sets various devices to get the fisher, who finally is caught—but the old Ojibway sets him free, and there is a tense confrontation between the trapper and the Indian.

There have been a good many creature novels about wolves or eagles or other birds and beasts, and this is one of the better ones. It is well written and the descriptive passages are vivid.

WYETH PEOPLE. By Gene Logsdon. Doubleday, 1970. For nearly 20 years the author has been a great fan of artist Andrew Wyeth—attending exhibitions, reading everything he could find about him. Formerly an Ohio dairy farmer, he moved to Philadelphia to become an editor for a farm magazine, and that put him close to Wyeth's home in Chadds Ford.

So Logsdon, in the manner of a devoted hobbyist, began shadowing the artist's friends and neighbors and prowling around the area looking for scenes that Wyeth had painted. By chance he saw his hero one day in a luncheon, engaged him in conversation and introduced himself.

Logsdon realized that Wyeth doesn't talk about his work or his personal life. So he decided to write about him in the words of those who knew him best. Particularly those who had posed for him in both Chadds Ford and Cushing, Maine.

The result is an intimate series of word-portraits by such people as farmer Karl Kuerner (subject of a portrait, and grower of the cattle that inspired "Brown Swiss"); some relatives of the late Christina Olson (the picture "Chick is a Little World"); Adam Johnson, the big black man who posed several times; Ralph Clark, the subject of "The Patriot"; and others. He also records his impressions of a brief meeting with Wyeth's wife Betty.

The most revealing chapter in the book is an interview with Forrest Wall ("Chick from Maine"). It is valuable not only for what it discloses about Wyeth, but also as a lively sketch of Wall himself.

Of course this is a curious way to depict an artist, but it is surprisingly effective and is well written. Art buffs should find it very interesting.

HUMMING IS TIP-OFF TO CONTENTMENT SAYS REPORTER

ROCKVILLE, Conn.—When a man hums while he works, it's a pretty good indication that a lot of things are right: a right guy in the right job turning out the right kind of product.

I came across one the other day. He was one of about two hundred expert craftsmen at the largest sweater mill in New England. He hummed a little song of contentment while he worked in a pretty good tip-off that Roosevelt Mills, too.

Now what do they make and what does it do to do with you? They make the finest sweaters that fine yarn and New England know-how can produce. They ship out more than 4,000 a day to all parts of the United States.

In Florida or California you'd cheerfully pay a pretty good price for a Roosevelt Mills sweater because it's worth it.

However, if you are fortunate enough to live in this area, real sweater bargains are right in your own back yard. You can shop direct at Roosevelt Mills. The salesrooms are open to the public and stocked with over-uns, odd lots and sample sweaters at low mill prices.

It's no mystery, you've got to save when you buy direct from the manufacturer. Roosevelt Mills of Rockville, branches in Avon, Saybrook, Wallingford, Agawan and Springfield.

Records Great but Winning More Important

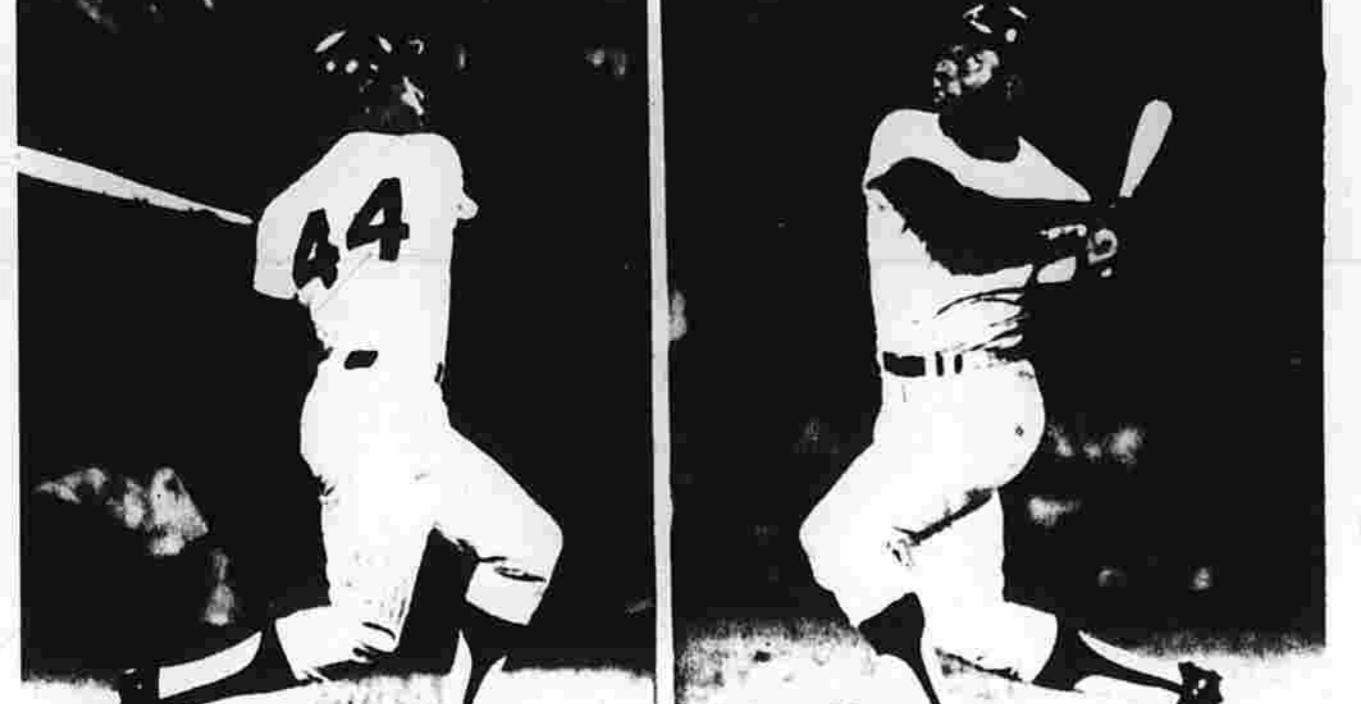

Aaron Hits 600th But Braves Lose

NEW YORK (AP)—Records are made to be broken but winning, according to Hank Aaron and Willie Stargell, is the name of the game.

I was looking forward to hitting it in a winning game," game-winning hit followed single Aaron after becoming the third player in baseball history to hit 600 home runs. Atlanta, however, lost to San Francisco on Willie Mays' 10th-inning single Tuesday night.

"So what did it get me?" asked Stargell after hitting his 15th home run of the season in Pittsburgh's 7-5 loss to Los Angeles, writing out the April record of 10 set in 1969 by Baltimore's Frank Robinson and Cincinnati's Tony Perez. "I'd rather have won."

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets edged St. Louis 2-1, Cincinnati trounced San Diego 6-1, Houston nipped Philadelphia 10-0 and the Montreal Expos due to cold and wet grounds.

Historic Home Run Follow Through of Atlanta's Hammering Hank Aaron

'Willie Spoiled My Day,' Aaron's Homer for Naught

ATLANTA (AP)—"Willie spoiled my day," said Hammering Hank Aaron Tuesday night after the Atlanta Braves wasted his historic 600th lifetime homer when Willie Mays' 10th-inning single gave San Francisco a 6-5 victory.

"I was looking forward to hitting it in a winning game," said Aaron, "I just wish it had been a home run. I wanted to hit it early because I was afraid I might see his curve or that crazy pitch, a fork ball I've never seen before. I don't know where he got that from."

Aaron said he was going for the home in the first inning when he sent another Perry fastball off the right field fence for a double, tying him for eighth on all-time list with Harry Helman.

"I read in the paper this morning where he said I'd have to wait," he said. "I guess it hit it early because I was afraid I might see his curve or that crazy pitch, a fork ball I've never seen before. I don't know where he got that from."

New York Weather All Right With Alou

NEW YORK (AP)—Raindrops were falling on his head until the New York Yankees changed the tune and let the sun shine in for Felipe Alou.

We Latin ballplayers need warm weather," says the new Yankee of the club. "And that's why I'm happy to be in New York."

The weather had nothing to do with Alou's game-winning single that gave New York a 6-5 victory in 12 innings over Chicago Tuesday night.

Alou expects the weather to be in the ballpark for the next 40-45 days in April. Danny Felsa concentrated on the fact that temperature at the point where he almost became a New York Mets goat instead of a hero.

Called on in the ninth inning to split a tying run, Alou left his mound and forced first base.

Met Reliever Nearly Goat After Lapse

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stoody took 40-40 nights in April. Danny Felsa concentrated on the fact that temperature at the point where he almost became a New York Mets goat instead of a hero.

Called on in the ninth inning to split a tying run, Alou left his mound and forced first base.

The mental lapse loaded the bases for the St. Louis Cardinals with one out, but Felsa really got into a groove and nipped down a 2-1 Mets victory.

"I never do that," said Felsa, who stopped momentarily after pitcher Lerone Lee's ground ball took Don Clendenon off the bag.

Clendenon took to second base for a possible force on the Cardinal runner Jose Cardenal, who was going to throw second.

Felsa then retired Ted Sizemore on a pop fly before facing Joe Hagie.

"I thought I was going to throw second," Felsa said, shaking his head. "Nobody was more surprised than me that I didn't keep running."

Rooman, who had halted the Cardinals on seven hits including Joe Torre singled leading off the ninth, acknowledged, "I was a little out of focus. I don't know what happened."

Felsa said he was going for the home in the first inning when he sent another Perry fastball off the right field fence for a double, tying him for eighth on all-time list with Harry Helman.

Red Sox Lose Share of First Culp Seeking Answer To Slow Mound Start

BOSTON (AP)—Ray Culp is still looking for the answer to his shaky start as the Boston Red Sox's starting pitcher in their abbreviated two-game series with the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I wish I could come up with a real good excuse but I can't," Culp said. "I don't think the weather bothered me at all. Culp said when somebody suggested that possibility, "It wasn't that cold tonight. It was much colder on opening day."

Boston fell out of a tie for first place when Baltimore beat Oakland 6-2 on the West Coast.

Culp, who has a history of losing control in warm weather, beat the New York Yankees 3-2 on opening day.

He won't start thanks to a torn hamstring by his mate, He had produced the runs, leaving the two-no-decision job in which he was knocked out before failing to pitch again Tuesday night as he took a strikeout on his first pitch.

"I was just wild—that was the biggest problem," the man who has been the ace of Boston's staff for the past three seasons said Tuesday night.

Culp said he was "a little out of order" in the first inning, but he walked Dave May and then hit him in the second.

He struck out three in the third, allowing the runner to reach second base on an error.

MIAMI BEACH—Jerry Evans, ground rule double which 17th, Nashville, Tenn., stopped bounced into the Boston bullpen. Paul Kasper, 17th, Orlando, Mike Hegan's solo homer, ja, Fla., 7.

Ellington Retains Undefeated Status

Novel Ticker Plan for Twi Fans Hartford Twilight League baseball fans this summer will have a chance each week to win two box seat tickets for future games involving the New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium.

Gene Johnson, who manages to cover a lot of ground at third base for Manchester's Moriarty Bros. entry, in addition to coaching the champion, reported this novel idea.

The plan is to have a weekly drawing for two tickets to the game. The tickets will be distributed to all Twi box fans on game nights and lucky numbers will appear.

Just how the winning numbers will be selected remains a question but both Rose and Johnson expect the giveaway tickets should help promote bigger and better collections for charity.

Manchester's M. Nebo will again be the scene of all Moriarty home games against the circuit which is scheduled to start early in June.

End of the Line

For a baseball player to tag a base runner and get a strike out is a complete answer is no.

Dan Gallagher of Manchester scored a home-run on the par three 17th hole at the East Hartford Golf Club last week.

Gallagher, who is a member of the club, has left the membership.

He was defeated by Dave Linwood, who is a member of the club.

Successes Pose Problems In College Baseball Ranks

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For college coaches these days, success poses problems.

Baseball coaches these days, success poses problems.

Baseball coaches these days, success poses problems.

Getting Ball Over East's Big Worry

"Our only problem is our pitchers aren't getting the ball over the plate," commented East Catholic Coach Jim Penders yesterday.

"They are giving up too many walks in a game."

Today's opponent is strong an independent team today at Memorial Field at 3:30.

Indiana have won their last three games of the season.

Coach Harold Parks will probably send hard hitting right-hander Baraka today.

Cheney Tech gets back in double action after 21 days of inactivity.

Indian Trackmen In Fine Showing

Pulling off one of the biggest track scores in the history of Manchester High was yesterday's 106 2/3 victory over Hill High of West Hartford which accumulated only 30 1/2 points.

Manchester won all but three events, the 1200-yard dash, the pole vault, and the 1600-yard hurdles. Their overall record is 21 and 20 in the OHSAA.

Once again one of the Indian's tri-captains, Angelo Infatigato, won three events, the javelin, high jump and triple jump.

Bill Rhodes capped off victory in the 100- and 200-yard dashes, in the 100 his time was 10.1, the 200 his time was 24.8.

High in the mile relay, the team of Beaulieu, Bailey, Schoebel and Martin for East Catholic took the throw and shot put. Duffy is coming on strong in the latter event.

East's next meet is Saturday when they participate in the OHSAA New Britain Invitational at Willowbrook Park at 12 noon.

Tom Bailey Scores Wins For Eagles

Out of the 17 track events held yesterday at Xavier High in Middletown the host Falcons captured 10 first places while East Catholic won six and South Catholic managed to pull off one first place.

For East and 20-14 for South.

Manchester's biggest challenge is Friday against Maloney High in Meriden, with Charter Weightman John Duffy also competing for East Catholic.

East's next meet is Saturday when they participate in the OHSAA New Britain Invitational at Willowbrook Park at 12 noon.

No Records Set, Pats Win Again

Coverly High opened defense of its Charter Oak Conference track championship yesterday by defeating the North Stars 15-10.

The Patriots' home grounds. The winners have now won six of their last seven meets.

They dropped their season opener.

They were the first meet in which no Coventry school record was broken.

Most of the walking routes in Manchester will be motorized next month and Edward Sauter, postmaster, expects that the change will provide better postal service.

The mailmen involved in the change will use a "park and loop" system, parking the truck in strategic spots and delivering mail on foot around loops that bring them back to the truck.

Besides ordinary mail, the carriers will deliver parcels. When no one is at home to accept a parcel, the carrier will drop it off at a nearby post office branch. Parcels will then be able to pick up the parcels at a point closer to home instead of at the Parcel Post substation on Broad St.

North Manchester Al-Anon family group will meet tonight at 8 at the Second Congregational Church parish house.
