If A Break Ever Comes—

The nature of what ought to be peace diplomats in Vietnam talks in Paris has deteriorated to such an extent that each side automatically expects the intricate worst of the other.

Most of the time, perhaps, such mutual distrust is justified. Certainly, to date, no observer can cite a single instance in which one side has proposed anything it seriously expected the other side to be able to accept easily.

It was quite natural, then, and almost automatic, that when the representatives from Hanoi made proposals at Paris 10 days ago that sounded as if they might contain something new, the reaction from our representatives on the scene at Paris should be cool and unimpressed, while the immediate judgment from Washington should be that the North Vietnamese were merely playing games.

Such automatic semi-rejection of whatever Hanoi had proposed did not, however, satisfy all observers. It did seem possible that Hanoi, saying it was willing to discuss the exchange of prisoners, was making a concession of a date for American withdrawal had also begun, was altering its previous position.

In its previous position Hanoi, with its apparent insistence that American troops must be withdrawn before the prisoner question could even be discussed, had made it quite clear it was in no hurry to break the negotiating dead-end at Paris.

The words and the arrangement of the words, had, this time, become different. That is why it is welcome news, to be approved because such a course of conduct seems our own civilized duty, not because we have any wild hope for a breakthrough that will end at Paris, the next week, a restful slightly from its automatic dismissal of the new Hanoi semantics and expressed its willingness to discuss, behind closed doors, "clarification" of what Hanoi really was intending to say.

There is in this no reason for easy optimism. At the same time, if a break does come, as perhaps it must, come eventually, it is quite likely to come through just some slight, but potentially significant change in somebody's rewording of a standing position.

The Original Railroad Bargain

One bitter aftertaste lingers on in the wake of the inauguration of Amtrak, and it centers on the realization that this nation's railroads have, by this governmental action, finally succeeded in cancelling out of the implicit bargain they made with the people of this country when they first obtained their franchises and accepted federal public subsidy to help them establish their routes.

Some people out in Montana, a state which is now virtually destitute of passenger service, voiced this bitterness the other day, as they went through one of those "last train" ceremonies. They suggested that now that the railroad question has ceased providing passenger service to the people of Montana, the railroad now proceed to deed back to the people the several million acres of land the railroad was originally given as part of the bargain by which it established its routes through Montana. This land is now considered a risk in oil and mineral resources. The railroad has ceased honoring its obligation under the franchise it obtained along with the land.

Shouldn't the railroad now deed the land back to the people?

The answer is, of course, that no one will ever succeed in unraveling the history of the private gain and the public subsidy of the railroads, and that no one is ever going to be able to corner the railroads and bring them back to a reckoning with all the public financing they received back in the days when every hamlet thought its own future depended on getting some railroad to run a track through.

All that the American public can do is keep look on the situation, past, present and future, and set it down that the railroads are now out from under any responsibility they may have had to honor the passenger side of their franchise. The government and the public have now taken over the responsibility of the railroads. Perhaps, with some honest intention to give good service, and with some change in American habits which are choking on the automobile, there may now result a revival of patronage for the passenger railroads, even to the extent where it is indicated that additional trains and the reopening of old lines might prosper. Let it be set down in the book that, in such an unlikely eventuality, the railroads are not to be allowed to reclaim the service they have been so inordinately eager to kill.

We hereby reaffirm, with loving memory of mothers now gone, with continual adoring amazement for the accomplishment of mothers now functioning in this difficult age, and with hope and anticipation in the capabilities of mothers still to be, our traditional and deeply felt stand in favor of motherhood.

Accountability And Arrogance

Why does Attorney General Mitchell continue to insist that he has the right to eavesdrop on U.S. citizens in national security cases without the court approval normally required in other eavesdropping situations? Doesn't he see the risks inherent in such a policy to democratic traditions, whatever the practical considerations?

The answer to this disturbing question, so far as we can determine from Mr. Mitchell's aides, is not very reassuring. The answer is that he believes himself to be an honorable man, a lawyer with the deepest respect for his country and his office, and that he believes himself to be a good will as insurance against the possible misuse of powers granted to him.

More disturbing still, this somewhat naive idea seems to be spreading, and to other powerful men who also should know better. For example, in a rare public speech recently, Richard Helms, director of the Federal Intelligence Agency, declared truly enough that intelligence is vital to our defense, but he added that the "intelligence" of modern intelligence work seem to create the potential for undermining democratic traditions of the nation was just to "take it on faith that we too are honorable men devoted to the nation's service."

Now it is not enough to call these statements naive, though that is obvious enough. Honor and good intentions are not the same as intelligence, understanding or even sanity. History is littered with the unfortunate acts of the stupid, the ignorant and the mad who have made the nation's history a record of goals which seemed reasonable to them.

The man like the Attorney General and the director of the CIA should be tempted to such thoughts, however, especially in the technology of the past few years that modern changes in the world, and especially advances in technology, have given man powers which tax their humanity. Science in effect has replaced the rules by which we have traditionally conducted our affairs. Leaders who must use the new powers find themselves faced with staggering moral dilemmas no man should have to resolve. A notable example of such change is nuclear weaponry, which makes it possible for one man to destroy all of human civilization. What is worth the use of such power? But more recently, it is becoming clear that advances in communications technology are giving men powers which, perhaps more subtly, tax their humanity too.

Inside Report

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — Just what the Nixon administration has in mind for the anti-poverty legal services program is really about was dramatized this week during the civil disobedience attempt to bring the nation's capital to its knees.

As part of its herculean effort to keep the government functioning, the Washington Metropolitan Police Department arrested thousands of the young foot soldiers used by the New Left extremists in the "Mayday" disturbances. Before many hours had passed, young lawyers from the Federal Finance Agency, declared truly enough that intelligence is vital to our defense, but he added that the "intelligence" of modern intelligence work seem to create the potential for undermining democratic traditions of the nation was just to "take it on faith that we too are honorable men devoted to the nation's service."

Now it is not enough to call these statements naive, though that is obvious enough. Honor and good intentions are not the same as intelligence, understanding or even sanity. Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

One of the tests of good management for an operation is, we suppose, whether it knows where it is going and consciously, deliberately plans to get there.

On that basis, this current session of the Connecticut General Assembly seems on the verge of winning for itself some sort of grand prize for deliberate, conscious selection and progress toward one of the most unusual goals in political history.

There is a heavy evidence that, this year, the regular session of the Connecticut General Assembly is almost deliberately planning to have a special session immediately following its own adjournment on June 9.

Defending The Poor Or The Violent?

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

MONTELEONE, Minn., and Republican Rep. William Steiger of Wisconsin, would even remove the present prohibition against helping defendants in criminal suits after the indictment stage. What's more, it does not clearly retain the present requirement that only the poor qualify for aid.

Normally, a special session immediately following a regular session of the General Assembly is considered something of a disaster.

But the legislators and their leadership, instead of reacting to this prospect with dismay, and sudden, dramatic bursts of activity designed to get into the seat of his pants; the New Orleans office representing Black Panthers; lawyers from Los Angeles County office helping a defendant in a Weatherman bombing case.

Hebron Budget Vote Set Monday

Eligible voters will have the opportunity Monday evening to vote on the proposed $1,676,016 1971-72 budget which despite an overall estimated increase of $188,963, only a 1 1/2 mill rate increase is now anticipated raising the mill rate to 68 mills.

The slight mill increase can be attributed to a reduction of $22,291 by the Board of Finance in the requested budget presented April 19 at the hearing, along with an $11,488 decrease in Hebron's share of the Rham High School budget.

Although the Rham budget was rejected last Monday, Board of Finance Chairman A. Harry Wirth stated "we will use the figure we got from Rham ($495,846) as an approximate of our share."

The slight mill increase can also be attributed to a 7 1/2 per cent increase in the grand list. Revenues on property tax increases are estimated at $1,008,011.

Broken down, the recommended budget which will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Hebron Elementary School, includes Hebron's share of the Rham budget, $495,846, the town's general government budget of $276,330 and the Board of Education's budget of $804,830.

According to Wirth, major increases in the general government budget occur in the payment on bonds and notes account with a $25,000 principal payment on the Gilead Hill School addition.

The Board of Education budget reflects a new school bus contract, higher salaries and increases in special education requirements.

The Board of Finance urges residents to attend the meeting and register their opinions on the services to be provided during the next fiscal year.

Also on the agenda for Monday's meeting will be a vote on acceptance of the town reports for the fiscal year 1970-71, an appropriation of $9,000 from surplus to the Board of Education budget to cover an operating deficit for the 1970-71 fiscal year, and to determine the method of payment of taxes to become due in the 1971-72 fiscal year, on the grand list of October 1, 1970.

Clinics Sited
The first of the eye and ear testing clinics to be held on May 24 at the Gilead Hill School from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. For both clinics, the testing will be done by the visiting Nurse Association.

Interested parents may call Mrs. Carol Chubb of Jan Dr. or Mrs. Chris Blotner of Rt. 18 for appointments. The Women's Club will also furnish transportation, if necessary.

The second clinic will be held on May 24 at the Gilead Hill School from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. For both clinics, the testing will be done by the visiting Nurse Association.

Poet's Corner

Mother's Day
Hug us ever so tenderly, to your bosom, mother dear,
As we present these flowers to you, each petal a tear,
Oh, joy of hurt, of sadness shed for each child,
You gently soothe our pains—always smiling.

Like an angel and hummed sweet, holy lullabies—
The very angels listened and joined you in the melody,
Dear mother, your son from you, so far away
Prays for you each and every day!

Your flower pressed in my prayer book, to heart always near
Make your son braver—makes less his fear.
Neither war's horrid thunder—nor hell's fury of hate,
Shall weaken my strength—
If I should die it will be in His faith!

O precious queen of all queens: "Happy Mother's Day!"
May loved ones, be with you this day in church to pray
For all sons of this war—hurt afflicted, so alone;
They pray for peace to come again—and the world will alone!

Managerial Maneuvers Fail to Stop Red Sox

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Despite wholesale managerial moves Friday night, the Milwaukee Brewers suffered a 5-4 defeat at the hands of the Boston Red Sox.

Brewer Manager Dave Bristol used every hitter on his bench and two of his pitchers, but was unable to halt Milwaukee's 14th defeat against 11 victories.

Billy Conigliaro did most of the damage for the Red Sox, as they opened a three-game series in the first inning and scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth.

Conigliaro's blast into the left field bleachers with two out and one of Bristol's moves in the last two innings paid off for Milwaukee.

Harper tried to burn the ball, but missed it and Rodriguez stepped to be easily trapped off the base.

The Brewers, however, batted back by scoring again in the eighth, but they were unable to score in the ninth.

Bristol gave his Hollywood best in thumbing out Rich Reichardt, the White Sox Right, Washington Manager Ted Williams listens to Umpire Red Flaherty explain why he made the call.

Gilson Snarls at Writers After Loss to Mets, Seaver

NEW YORK (AP)—knocked out in the fourth inning, his earliest kayo in four years.

Gilson is a year older, and has had something of an over-revering fastball, the play-ers say.

"He's not as fast as he once was," said New York shortstop Tony Oliva, who was hit by Gilson's fastball in the seventh.

Fregosi Predicted Homer off McDowell

NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee's Jim Fregosi has a score for and Detroit's Mickey Lolich probably has two, but the Tigers are favored to win.

Fregosi led Friday night's game after getting a fifth-inning homer off Detroit's pitcher, Fred Lennie.

When he did just that in the fifth, Fregosi had no argument with Lennie.

For the loss, Lennie was charged with two runs, two hits and two errors.

Fregosi's homer was his 11th of the season.

Lolich, who pitched six innings, struck out three batters and walked one.

He pitched a complete game.

For the win, Lennie was charged with two runs, two hits and two errors.

Nicklaus Well Along on Road To Greatest Golfer in History

NEW YORK (AP)—It is almost 10 years since Jack Nicklaus decided to become a professional golfer, and it seems quite clear now that before too long he will be acclaimed the greatest golfer who ever trod the green.

Jack Nicklaus, now 31, is the 31-year-old blind bomber from Columbus, Ohio, who has won 17 major championships in the United States and 11 in Europe.

He has won the PGA in February, the Open in May, the U.S. Open and the British Open in 1962, and the U.S. Open and the British Open in 1969.

The fourth of July came early this year as the Lanterns Home exploded for 22 runs and 28 hits as they blasted the B. Cubs last night at the Keeney St. Field. The losers managed only three runs.

Big Ron Sepowitz carried the hot stick for the Lanterns Game as he belted two distant homers and singled. Newly acquired Carl Carston paced the Home going 4-4. Rich Romano collected three hits with two homers over the centerfield barrier with Merle Shaw and Bill Callie also leading off.

Tommy Harper, Milwaukee's slumping third baseman, tried a squeeze play, but fouled off the pitch. The Red Sox tied it up in the seventh when the Milwaukee pitcher Ken Doubler in the eighth with a double that rolled all the way to the left field wall.

The Boston outfielder played out two straight pitches. Bolin said, "So I threw a slider away outside."

Harper tried to bunt the ball, but missed it and Rodriguez stepped to be easily trapped off the base.

Scene at the Capital

By Sol R. Cohen

The House, meeting yesterday for only 90 minutes in a sparsely-attended, non-controversial session, had fun passing a bill concerning the vaccination of cattle for brucellosis.

The one who made the motion for passing the bill referred to six-month-old heifers and seven-month-old bulls. When he was corrected (seven-month-old heifers and six-month-old bulls) he asked, "How does one tell the difference?"

When House Speaker William Ratchford called for the vote, he said, "All in favor say 'moo'!" There was a chorus of "moo's."

Assistant House Clerk Michael Serl then announced, "This concludes today's bill session on the calendar."

Speaker Ratchford, noting there are only 4 1/2 weeks left before the June 9 adjournment date, announced that Friday sessions from now on will probably concern controversial bills as well as routine ones.

"Now you can understand why we can't afford any more of these Friday technical sessions," he said, referring to the "fun session" just-concluded.

Under another bill passed by the House yesterday, school children under the age of 12 would be required to be vaccinated against German measles (Rubella), unless their parents objected.

The bill was sent to the Senate for final action.

The legislature's education committee has scheduled two public hearings for Tuesday — one from 8:30 to 9 p.m., the other from 7:30 to 10 p.m., both in Room 408.

The 3:30 session will consider bills for enlarging the board of trustees of the state's community colleges and technical colleges; for defining the powers and duties of the commission for higher education; and for adding students, alumni and faculty to the boards of trustees.

The 7:30 session will consider bills relating to and on regulations for guidance and controls.

The fifth grade class of the Horace Porter School of Columbia visited the State Capitol yesterday. It sat in the Gallery of the House and was introduced to the House members by State Rep. William O'Neill of the 52nd District.

The class was accompanied by its teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Taggart, and by parents Mrs. Paul Brookman and Mrs. Albert Hadjian.

Manchester State Rep. N. Charles Boggini said today he

Allied Units Ambushed By Enemy

A little more than two hours after the Viet Cong cease-fire began and less than three hours before the allied truce went into effect, enemy troops ambushed a South Vietnamese infantry company of 180 troops clearing Route 1, the Saigon to Phnom Penh highway.

The ambush occurred about 10 miles southwest of Tay Ninh City, on the South Vietnam-Cambodian border, 50 miles northwest of Saigon. Saigon headquarters said two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and five were wounded. Enemy casualties were not known.

U.S. reconnaissance missions over North Vietnam and bombing raids against enemy supply lines in Laos and Cambodia were under way despite a halt in allied offensive operations in South Vietnam.

Buddha's 2,518th birthday anniversary is Sunday and it is a holiday equivalent to that of Christmas for Christians. The Viet Cong called no cease-fire for the holiday last year, although the allies did, and fighting continued.

In the air war, U.S. fighters-bombers exchanged fire Friday with anti-aircraft batteries at three different sites inside North Vietnam.

Four Air Force F4 Phantoms carried out the heaviest attacks in two weeks over the north at points 40, 70 and 80 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Command said that in all three cases the enemy's long-range anti-aircraft guns fired first at planes bombing Hanoi's Ho Chi Minh trail supply network in neighboring Laos and at unarmed reconnaissance planes photographing North Vietnamese defenses and supply movements.

First District Cong. William Cotter will be in Manchester Friday, to confer with town officials on ways he might help in coordinating actions involving the town and the federal government.

Cotter has scheduled similar meetings with town officials in all 13 towns and cities of his Congressional district.

A measure which is picking up considerable support in the General Assembly is S.B. 1580, an act for requiring color photos on all Connecticut drivers' licenses. The bill, if enacted, would become effective Oct. 1 and would apply to drivers' licenses as they fall due.

In Massachusetts, where the photographic-license system was launched Feb. 1, 1969, all 2 million of the state's drivers had new, tamper-proof, photographic licenses March 1 of this year.

Massachusetts motor vehicle officials have reported that the new system has been called one of the biggest security contributions in the history of the state. It has drawn equal praise from police and from the business community.

Money Crisis Survived By Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Confronted with profit-taking pressures and an international currency crisis, the stock market during the past week showed a resiliency that left Wall Street clearly impressed.

In a week when what observers termed one of the gravest monetary crises of the postwar period materialized, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks lost only 4.76 points and the New York Stock Exchange index dropped moderately, declining only 60 cents.

Even before the monetary storm broke in mid-week, the market had been considered vulnerable to profit taking. The obvious reason was the extent of the gains amassed by the market since last November.

Thus, when the market managed to take the currency crisis, in stride, there was double reason for gratification.

What appeared to be a typical reaction to the market's performance came last Friday from Walter Stern, analyst for Burnham & Co., who remarked: "The market for the last three days has shown remarkable stability. If you'd asked any group of institutional investors during the last few months what they were most worried about, they would have said a monetary crisis. Yet the market's been an orderly one and nothing approaching a panic."

Monte Gordon, Bache & Co. analyst, described the market during the past week as one in a process of "very measured consolidation. The trend is almost stately," he said.

The directors of the group have endorsed a proposal that would allow men to become members.

The step was taken "with reluctance," said Mrs. Michael Agate, chairman of the Women Voters' committee, which is recommending the change. It met some resistance from ladies fearful that men might "take it thus removing much of the pressure from reevaluation."

Some sources said the United States might institute a double rate system, too. The United States also was reported ready to help mop up excess dollars in Western Europe by borrowing some back from U.S. branch banks in Europe. A start on this already has been made by both the U.S. Treasury and the Export-Import Bank.

American sources said the Treasury will wait until the Europeans decide their next move before borrowing any more.

The West German Cabinet has scheduled a meeting in Bonn Sunday following the Brussels meeting. The West Germans are expected then to decide what to do about reopening foreign currency deals, halted since last Wednesday with the onset of the crisis.

Rogers Tells Of Desire For Peace

Saragat and also scheduled meetings with Premier Emilio Colombo and Foreign Minister Aldo Moro.

Rogers was the first U.S. secretary of state to visit Israel in 18 years.

During his stop in Tel Aviv, the last leg of the tour that took him to Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Lebanon and Egypt, Rogers flew over the occupied Sinai Desert and toured the Old City of Jerusalem, both disputed areas.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said farewell to the American in the privacy of Rogers' Tel Aviv hotel suite. He did not travel to the airport because of Jewish sabbath restrictions.

Rogers pulled one surprise. He presented the State Department's certificate of honor to U.S. Ambassador Walworth Barbour at the airport.

The award, accompanied by a personal letter from President Nixon, was for Barbour's 10 year tour in Israel and 40 years in the Foreign Service.

Rogers took off from Washington April 26 with the avowed hope of "narrowing the gap" between the Arab and Israeli positions, particularly on a Suez-opening agreement.

He says an accord on reopening the canal would spur movement toward a broader settlement.

After his final three-hour session with Prime Minister Golda Meir and other Israeli leaders Friday night, a U.S. spokesman said only that "we were not discouraged" about the results of his trip.

Rogers began his trip with a SBAATO meeting in London. He stopped in Paris briefly, then flew on to Ankara for a CEBATO party. He began his Middle East tour May 1.

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda charged today that anti-American feeling "has never been stronger" in Arab countries.

The statement was published as U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers completed his tour of the Middle East.

"Washington's maneuvers," the Communist party organ said, "have not deceived the Arab people, who rightly hold American imperialism responsible for maintaining tension in that part of the world and for the continuing occupation of Arab lands by Israel."

Pravda quoted the Egyptian newspaper Al-Gumhuria as saying Rogers' trip was aimed at "guaranteeing and strengthening U.S. interests in the Middle East."

Pravda said the "sharp drop in American prestige" in the Arab world has compelled Washington to "camouflage its political purposes more subtly and change its methods of carrying out its policy."

Officials in Disagreement On Money Crisis Solution

any's minister of economics: Don't touch the price of the dollar in terms of gold, but let the law of supply and demand set the price between the dollar and the West German mark. This is what's meant by letting the market flow.

The result would probably be a small increase in the price of the mark. A floating mark also would discourage the flow of dollars to West Germany, since speculators no longer could anticipate a windfall from revaluation of the mark.

Britten Opera Is Scheduled

Benjamin Britten's "Owen Wingrave," a new opera written expressly for television and produced by the BBC, has its world premiere on the "Fanfare" color presentation of NET Opera Theater May 16 at 10 p.m. on Connecticut Public Television.

It will also air the night of May 16 in the member nations of the European Broadcasting Union, which coproduced the work.

In this country, it will be seen on the 204-station public television network.

Based on the Henry James story about a pacifist, "Owen Wingrave" marks the first time Britten has written specifically for the television medium. Britten himself conducts the work, which was taped in England.

As a voice expert and mimic, Ted Knight of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" on the CBS Television Network has done hundreds of commercials.

Stanley and Barry Livingston came to the CBS Television Network's "My Three Sons" by way of "The Ozzie and Harriet Show." When Stanley joined "Sons," Barry succeeded him with the Nelsons.
