House Vote Narrow On Divorce Law

HARTFORD (AP)—The House came within a few votes Thursday of repealing Connecticut's divorce laws to allow divorce on the grounds of incompatibility.

A vigorous attempt, spearheaded by Rep. Bernard Avonville, R-Stamford, to reform the divorce system failed on a roll call vote of 96-77.

Bingham forcefully denounced the present system as "a sham and a fiction" because it forces people to accuse one another of adultery or cruelty in order to qualify for a divorce.

The Connecticut system is also hypocritical because it can easily be circumvented by those who have the money to get quick divorces elsewhere, Bingham said.

"The fault system in Connecticut has not saved marriage; it has not prevented one divorce," he declared.

"We should not require dead marriages to continue for the sake of statistical neatness or comparison with misleading assumptions that thereby family life is strengthened," he said.

Under present laws, the grounds for divorce are adultery, intolerable cruelty, desertion for two years, disappearance for seven years, life imprisonment, or hospitalization in a mental institution for five years.

Rep. Ronald A. Sarasin, R-Beacon Falls, said divorce cases often are "games" in which one party tries to divorce evidence of physical abuse that would meet the courts' standard for "intolerable cruelty."

However, other legislators, including Rep. Bernard Avonville, D-Naugatuck, said it would be too easy for couples going through temporary marriages to get divorces if incompatibility were sufficient grounds.

Rep. Gerald Rogers, R-Trumbull, said he will celebrate his 25th wedding anniversary next year, and there will be only 25 occasions on which my wife and I felt we were incompatible.

On the other hand, Rep. Hilda Clarke, R-Stamford, said she had been married 23 years, never seriously considered divorce, and yet felt that other people should have the option of divorce through incompatibility.

National Parks Labeled Havens for Drug Users

By DELILION GRAHAM WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has been told the national parks, once havens for nature lovers, are becoming hangouts for drug users.

If the problem isn't met head-on, Park Service Director George B. Hartog Jr. told House Appropriations subcommittee members, "more and more people are going to look at the parks as a perfect refuge for the use of narcotics."

Hartog argued, in testimony made public today, with the statement by Rep. Wendell Wyatt, D-Iowa, that "young people and other potential drug users find it increasingly difficult to be circumscribed by the wide open spaces, into the parks, feeling they can get away with it there."

Hartog said the national parks are being visited by a new type of tourist. "We are getting a new visitor," he said. "We are getting the urban visitor and he is in a foreign environment when he gets to a national park."

He listed the problem parks and their locations, including Lake Mead, Grand Teton, and others.

Coventry Citizens Discuss Feasibility Of Mobile Homes Parks

The Planning and Zoning Commission held a public hearing last night to consider an application to amend the zoning regulations to allow mobile homes in mobile home parks.

The change has been requested by Richard Breen, Pucker St., and despite the fact that a zoning ordinance would be required to install a mobile home park, much of the discussion at last night's session centered on this.

Breen explained that he felt this use of the land, which contains 50 acres, would be the best use both for himself and for the town. Because of the age restrictions, which Breen pointed out can be legally through formation of an association, there would be no school-age children.

He said the plan was to make the park as attractive as possible. Speaking Against Maury Cohn, South St., was the first resident to speak against the proposal.

Congress Given Bill to Outlaw Viet Cong Flag

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation was introduced in Congress Thursday to make it a federal crime to display a Viet Cong or North Vietnamese flag while the United States is fighting in Southeast Asia.

The bill was introduced by two Ohio Republican Reps. Clarence E. Miller and Frank T. Row. "It is additional to me to be a pompous band of renegades showing the VC or North Vietnamese flag at its while waging their feet on the flag of U.S. servicemen have fought to defend," Miller said.

The legislation also would make it illegal to fly a VC or North Vietnamese flag as long as Americans are held captive in Indochina.

A panel of three federal judges ruled a similar law in Connecticut unconstitutional on Tuesday.

"There is no question that the public display of a flag is symbolic speech and is entitled to the full protection of the First Amendment" of the U.S. Constitution, the judges said in a 2-1 decision.

The display of any flag, they said, "is solely for the purpose of communication of ideas" and "is not a situation like, for example, the draft-card burning cases where elements of speech must be balanced against a legitimate governmental interest unrelated to expression."

The Connecticut law passed in 1970 as the "Red Flag" law made it illegal to "carry or display a red flag or any other emblem as a symbol calculated to incite people to disorders or breach of the law."

The state law was scheduled to expire anyway on Oct. 1, when a new penal code goes into effect.

sound or foolish. It has been a long time since leadership has been right enough about anything — and that certainly includes the elder statesman leadership which came back out of the woodwork to oppose the amendment amendments to have any real right to forbid the people themselves to blunder if they must.

Our Common Sense Fear
 There is enough common sense instinct in most of us to tell us to continue to be afraid of marijuana, no matter how many experts testify that it doesn't really seem to harm anybody.
 And, to fortify our own common sense instincts, we are always eager to welcome the occasional experts who come along and claim to have scientific proof that marijuana is, after all, the menace we have been trained to think anything that can be called a drug must be.

Unfortunately, the occasional experts sometimes state their own case in a way which weakens their effectiveness. The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse gave a hearing, the other day, to several experts who emphasize the perils of marijuana, and the testimony of two psychiatrists, Dr. Harold Kalousky and Dr. William Thomas Moore, was impressive, even if it was immediately challenged and debated.

"You feel," said these two, "there should be no confusion, because regardless of the underlying psychological difficulty, mental changes — marked by disturbed awareness of self, apathy, confusion and poor reality testing — will occur in an individual who smokes marijuana on a regular basis whether he is a normal adolescent, an adolescent in conflict, or a severely neurotic individual."
 "These who are already ill will be come additionally affected by marijuana use and thereby reduce their chance for recovery. Those who are balancing between mental health and illness will lose their balance, and those who are healthy will eventually become symptomatic after prolonged exposure to the toxicity of marijuana."

This report was, as we have noted immediately, disputed by a large number of other experts present. Nevertheless, it created an atmosphere of uncertainty which is a healthy atmosphere for everybody to live in, so far as the verdict on marijuana is concerned.
 A third opponent of marijuana, on the same program, almost undid all the good contributed by the two psychiatrists.
 John E. Ingersoll, head of the government's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, told the Commission that "many studies show that while cannabis (marijuana and hashish) isn't physically addicting, it can be psychologically habituating, often resulting in an anti-motivational syndrome in which the user is more apt to act and contemplate a flower pot rather than try to solve his problems."
 "That has to be bad? There are better ways of trying to solve some problems?"

Ruling on Capital Punishment
 In ruling that states do not violate the Constitution when they give juries "untrammeled discretion" to impose a death sentence in capital cases, the Supreme Court today upheld a procedural matter of law, common in the United States. It did not rule on the constitutionality of capital punishment itself.
 The difference, the court said, concerns 648 men and women, now confined in Death Row cells across the country.
 The immediate effect of the 6-3 ruling is to knock out two constitutional questions that have kept any state from executing a condemned prisoner for nearly four years. In some cases, the states are now free to move ahead with actual executions. Twenty out of 36 condemned prisoners in California, for example, are now so affected. Thus it becomes the prerogative of Gov. Ronald Reagan, who favors the death penalty, to permit their execution, if and when he so chooses.
 In Ohio, Gov. John V. Gilligan has said there will be no execution among the 30 condemned prisoners until the Supreme Court rules directly on whether or not the death penalty infringes the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment."
 We believe Governor Gilligan is pursuing the most humane and moral course in withholding a go-ahead signal.
 His stance falls within the decided trend against capital punishment here in the United States, where 13 states have already abolished the practice, and where executions have fallen from 199 in 1960 to two in 1969, and none since.
 There remains, however, an element of "cruel and unusual punishment" in keeping condemned prisoners waiting for years to learn whether or not they are going to live or die. This element should be removed in most cases by a Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the death penalty itself. The justices, however, have not given any indication whether or not they will consider that issue.
 When and if they do, surely one consideration will be whether or not this country has moved to a point of moral stature where death, officially ordered and imposed by the state, becomes a form of "cruel and unusual punishment."
 We believe that the time has come and passed. — CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

 In ruling that states do not violate the Constitution when they give juries "untrammeled discretion" to impose a death sentence in capital cases, the Supreme Court today upheld a procedural matter of law, common in the United States. It did not rule on the constitutionality of capital punishment itself.
 The difference, the court said, concerns 648 men and women, now confined in Death Row cells across the country.
 The immediate effect of the 6-3 ruling is to knock out two constitutional questions that have kept any state from executing a condemned prisoner for nearly four years. In some cases, the states are now free to move ahead with actual executions. Twenty out of 36 condemned prisoners in California, for example, are now so affected. Thus it becomes the prerogative of Gov. Ronald Reagan, who favors the death penalty, to permit their execution, if and when he so chooses.
 In Ohio, Gov. John V. Gilligan has said there will be no execution among the 30 condemned prisoners until the Supreme Court rules directly on whether or not the death penalty infringes the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment."
 We believe Governor Gilligan is pursuing the most humane and moral course in withholding a go-ahead signal.
 His stance falls within the decided trend against capital punishment here in the United States, where 13 states have already abolished the practice, and where executions have fallen from 199 in 1960 to two in 1969, and none since.
 There remains, however, an element of "cruel and unusual punishment" in keeping condemned prisoners waiting for years to learn whether or not they are going to live or die. This element should be removed in most cases by a Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the death penalty itself. The justices, however, have not given any indication whether or not they will consider that issue.
 When and if they do, surely one consideration will be whether or not this country has moved to a point of moral stature where death, officially ordered and imposed by the state, becomes a form of "cruel and unusual punishment."
 We believe that the time has come and passed. — CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

Marshals Out
 Indians From Naval Facility

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Federal marshals moved out of the Naval Air Station in Minneapolis today and arrested about 20 Indians from a group that had occupied the facility since Sunday night.
 A spokesman at the station said the Indians arrested were part of a token force that remained at the station after a contingent of about 100 scaled the fence surrounding the facility Sunday and said they would occupy part of it until congressional leaders responded to their pleas.
 Defense banks, chapter president of the American Indian Movement, said the group wanted to take control of the facility and use it either as an educational center or cultural center for Indians.
 Banks would remain on the station grounds until a meeting with the congressional leaders was completed.

Sale Suspended
 In Stocks Of Artist School

NEW YORK (AP) — The Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange today suspended trading in the common stock and 5 per cent convertible subordinated debentures due 1986 of FAS International Inc.
 FAS is the parent corporation of the Famous Artists, Photographers and Writers Schools in Westport, Conn.
 The suspension, announced Thursday, was effective immediately.
 At the company's request early Thursday morning, trading in FAS was temporarily halted on the Big Board. The company has indicated to the Securities and Exchange Commission that it would not be in a position to pay its quarterly profit and loss report or release secondary figures at this point, although required to do so by exchange regulations.
 However, FAS did indicate to the exchange that in its opinion losses would be substantially higher than previously estimated.
 The board decided that under the circumstances, trading should be suspended until the situation was clarified, one exchange statement said.
 FAS was listed on the exchange Aug. 18, 1969. The New York City-based company provides home-study courses by correspondence in art, with photography and teaches rapid reading and languages.
 The exchange noted that the board might at any time suspend or delist a security if the board believed that continued dealings in that security on the exchange were not advisable.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, coming up the steps into his hospital, met a minister who said, "Oh, Doctor Holmes, I'm so sorry for your patient Mrs. So-and-so, she's going to die!"
 "So am I," retorted Dr. Holmes, "but she's going straight to hell!"
 "Doctor Holmes," cried the minister, "you shouldn't say that!"
 "No," answered Dr. Holmes, "but I have as much right to a theological opinion as you have to a medical one."

Labor Loses
 .. Almost .. On Strike Day

HARTFORD (AP) — In an unusual chain of events, the House first defeated and then re-rejected Thursday a House bill that would allow strikers to become eligible for unemployment compensation after seven weeks.
 After an hour's debate before the camera of Connecticut Public Television, the roll call vote was 66-80 against the bill, largely by party lines.
 But then minority leader Francis J. Collins moved for reconsideration — in an avowed attempt to prevent someone else from doing so on Friday — and the House voted 86-1 to bring the bill back to life.
 When the bill will be voted on again was not immediately clear. However, there is little question about its eventual fate. Even if passed by the House and Senate, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has vowed to veto it.
 Labor union representatives, who mandated the strike, were strong to lobby for the bill, filled the House gallery during the debate. They were joined on a public relations by Majority Leader Carl Ajello, who said that though he would repeat a law bill enacted in 1967 which turned out to be unenforceable.
 The bill authorized Damarjian to seek candidates for the position and to notify the staff of the Board of Education and prepare announcements for the position outlining the duties of the position, and to have three to five interviews.
 It is hoped that the new principal will be reported by Aug. 1. This would mean that two salaries would not be paid for the one position as the contract will be entitled to a month's vacation and would be paid until Aug. 1.
 The subject of the bill, Walter Fitzpatrick of Marlborough, questioned Damarjian if he had any idea of how many applications he might have from within the staff.
 Damarjian stated he could not tell at this time although there are several staff members who would be eligible to be considered for a vacancy.
 Harry Megson, board member from Hebron, felt that the board should be a tradition. He thought that before hiring a new assistant principal, "the board should be sure that the best person is selected for the job, and that the person selected is someone who will be able to control the students and to have something positive."
 Megson added that people in the district who are writing to the board are asking for some "positive decisions from the board even if it means changing policies."
 Damarjian told the board that if this was the case, "you will not be able to run a school administration procedure." He added that "there has to be room for flexibility, if you feel an administrator is not doing as well as you would expect, you would want to get with real problems."
 He reported that since the April 28 meeting called to discuss drugs and discipline at the school, the administration has gone over its procedures and has taken steps to "show up where there's shoring up is needed."

HARTFORD (AP) — Motorcyclists would no longer have to carry safety helmets to their bikes, under a bill passed by the State Senate Thursday and sent to the governor for signing.

Rham District Assistant Principal Resigns

Robert Sernofsky, assistant principal at Rham High School, has resigned effective July 1, to accept a position as assistant principal at the Lewis J. Fox Middle School in Hartford. The board accepted the resignation.
 Sernofsky has been at Rham for 11 years, four of them as assistant principal. He has given to the children in the district.
 In announcing Sernofsky's resignation, Rham Superintendent of Schools, asked the board for directions as to how he would repeat a law bill enacted in 1967 which turned out to be unenforceable.
 The bill authorized Damarjian to seek candidates for the position and to notify the staff of the Board of Education and prepare announcements for the position outlining the duties of the position, and to have three to five interviews.

SKATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The international expedition on Mt. Everest today abandoned its attempt to climb the unquered southwest face of the world's highest mountain after a three-month effort plagued by discussion and illness.  Muskie proudly displays a Minnesota Tribune poll showing he beats Mr. Nixon by a wider margin in Minnesota than Hubert Humphrey.
 Skeptics note that is not surprising since Humphrey hasn't gone back to Minnesota since election day.
 The whole issue is shocked by a California poll showing the President trails both Muskie and Kennedy in his home state. Democratic Party Treasurer Robert Strauss, he tells Strauss to put two Americans — John Evans, who is a single legislator — next to David J. Peterson, 25, of Minneapolis, Minn. — were below their honor, all but three of them.

Section Two

MCC To Offer Social Service Career Course

Manchester Community College is accepting enrollment in a new public service program that will start in the fall. It is designed for high school graduates planning to enter the field of social service, and persons working in social service areas who wish to improve their career opportunities.

The program will include liberal arts and sciences courses, supportive social sciences and skill courses. One specialized career course will be given in each semester of the first year, and two courses in each semester of the second year. The curriculum will include internships at cooperating social agencies.

Successful completion of the two-year program of study leads to an associate in science degree and prepares the individual for entrance into the fields of public welfare, anti-poverty and community action programs, geriatric institutions, child care institutions and family service agencies.

The program was developed over two years by James O. Tatro, director of the social science and public service division; Mrs. Eleanor Coleman, chairman of the social science department; Thomas P. Connor, assistant director of career programs; and a 17-member advisory council. The council included representatives from public and private social service agencies, area hospitals, and educational institutions.

Kenney Finishes Hospital Course

Edward M. Kenney, administrator of Manchester Memorial Hospital, is among managerial and supervisory personnel from seven Connecticut hospitals who have completed a special course at the University of Connecticut.

The series of one-day seminars, which ended yesterday, was designed to help the participants improve hospital productivity and cut costs.

The series was part of the Health Care Systems Research and Training Program conducted by the School of Business Administration's Management Sciences Laboratory.

One of the objectives of the program is to develop management systems which will enable hospitals to deliver the best patient care at the lowest cost, according to university officials.

This was the third house of worship built by the Methodists in Hebron. The first meeting in 1887 and for two years before that was assistant administrator. Under his administrative leadership, costs of care have been consistently been among the lower half of the area around 1888. Eventually the

Hebron Old Church Gets New Look

The Hope Valley Church on town purchased this building on Reddy Hill Rd. to nearly restore and use it for a town hall. This is the building that still stands adjacent to the church and over the past several years, community services with visiting ministers have been held there.

On Oct. 6, 1968, town meeting action quit claimed the deed to the church to the Hope Valley Church Association for the purpose of restoration and use as a town hall.

According to the indenture "made this 24th day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine" and filed in the Town Office Building, the original Mr. and Mrs. Erad Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Al Billard and family, "guarantee that said house shall ever be a free house."

Thus it may be legally used as a town hall by any religious organization and the entire Horton family. The informal restoration of the house shall be open for the promulgation of all the moral enterprises of the age that have for their object the moral culture of man in the sixteenth century of the principles of Em. Junior League At Lutz Meets

There are 45 members this year. Flyers have been circulated in the school system about next week's meeting. Membership is open to young men and women in Grades 7-12. Pupils now enrolled in sixth grade are invited to the meeting.

Wednesday, a JVL patch will be chosen from several designs submitted, and plans will be initiated to make the group self-governing, with its own officers and constitution.

JVL members assist children with participatory exhibits after school, Saturdays, and Sundays, and help with other assignments.

Planners To Resume Discussion of CUD

The Planning and Zoning Commission is slated Monday to continue discussions with developers Sol Lavitt and James McCarthy on their controversial application for a change to CUD Zone of 270 acres off Keeney St.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building hearing room and is open to the public. Townspeople, however, will not have an opportunity to speak since their comments were received by the commission at the March 1 hearing on the application. More than 400 turned out for that meeting with a large majority of those speaking voting opposition.

The proposed area change would create a totally planned "small village" community in an area presently zoned Residential AA and Rural Residence. If granted, the CUD (Community Development) (Development) Zone created would permit mixed residential, business and industrial uses within the site.

The preliminary land use study submitted by the developers at the hearing proposed an eventual population of 4,200. No detailed plan of development was included.

The commission will seek a detailed plan of development more specifically what the developers propose in terms of developing the acreage.

Members have already discussed in executive session questions which they want clarified. For example, Town Planner J. Eric Potter has told the commission he doubts the site is suitable for any industrial development.

Other major areas for discussion will almost certainly revolve around population densities. Some members have said privately that they feel the 4,200 figure is too high for the residential section.

The commission is also expected to act on an application by the Barvin Co. for a change to Industrial Zone of 22 acres off the north side of Tolland Tpk., at the East Hartford line. The acreage is now Rural Residence.

The commission heard the application at its May 3 meeting, a Vaudeville Night program at the town hall. Although no members opposed its meeting tonight at 7:30 at the change, some indicated Keeney St. School. Boys might be wanted another chance to years old on the street grade study the site. Part of the land wishing to join the pack may be swamped, and a question was registered at tonight's meeting as raised at the hearing concerns compliance with their parents.

Governors Rebuke Oil Firm Speaker

BOSTON — New England governors dined verbally with a representative of the oil industry today to rebuke an oil firm speaker.

"We've been hearing the same old story for so long that our patience is running out," said Massachusetts Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

"We've been told that we should not be dependent on foreign imports and then there's a shortage.

"Prices go up and we manage to squeak through another year. We frankly feel that we're being shortchanged.

Sargent commented at the spring meeting of the New England Governors' Conference on testimony by Charles J. Jones, vice chairman of Humble Oil Corp.

Importing such a company opens lowering restrictions on importing lower priced foreign oil for one reason—national security.

"We wouldn't be enjoying lower prices after we had made it evident that we had irreversibly put ourselves in the hands of foreign suppliers," Jones said.

Maine Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis said oil companies are continuing to make profits while "there has been too little concern for companies that have had to pay higher prices for oil."

He said paper companies in his state have had a hard time paying the higher cost.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill of Connecticut said, "The reason

Tolland County Superior Court

Five youths were sentenced on either drug charges or breaks in the Tolland County Superior Court.

Joseph Renaud, 19, of Glenstone Dr., Vernon was sentenced to serve, concurrently, 18 months in the Marine Center State Prison on each of two counts of breaking and entering with criminal intent.

Renaud was also given a suspended sentence of five to six years on a count of sale of cannabis-type drugs with two years probation to follow the first sentence or parole from it.

Special Public Defender Edward Y. O'Connell said the many breaks committed by the youth were to support a $50-a-day drug habit.

It was stressed by Asst. State's Attorney Donald B. Caldwell that Manville has had three periods of hospitalization for drug treatment apparently for no benefit. He said Manville charged in the county with 31 counts of breaking and entering or larceny and he pleaded guilty to 27 of them plus four counts of breaking and entering and one count of possession of a dangerous weapon.

Other counts were that he was either mugged or he wasn't mugged.

Judge Paul J. Driscoll stressed that incarceration didn't preclude treatment and that the court would continue to move inmates as he chooses.

He sentenced Manville to serve an indefinite term in the county jail on each of the 31 counts, but he suspended one year on each of the 27 counts of breaking and entering or larceny and concurrent three-to-four year terms on each of the four counts of breaking and entering with criminal intent and concurrent three-to-four year terms on each of the four counts of breaking and entering with criminal intent.

The total effective suspended sentence was three to eight years with two years of probation to commence after he is sentenced to either a state prison or a state hospital.

Donald Collette, 25, of Stafford Springs was sentenced to serve one year in jail concurrent on each of three counts including sale of controlled drugs, possession of controlled drugs, and possession of narcotics (heroin). He also received a suspended five-to-six-year prison sentence on a charge of sale of narcotics (heroin) and two years probation.

The court was told it was a casual sale, that Collette is not a seller, that he is on a methadone program and has not gotten off it at times.

David Guntz, 19, of Stafford Springs was sentenced to serve one year in jail concurrently on one count of possession of marijuana and one count of possession of controlled drugs.

Guntz was also given a suspended five-to-six-year prison sentence concurrent on each of two counts of sale of cannabis-type drugs and probation for two years.

Special Public Defender Leo P. Flaherty Jr. told the court that Guntz had been away from jail but he said he was a heavy user of marijuana at the age of 14, progressed through LSD and "other things" until he was using 10 to 20 grams of heroin a day.

"He's only 19" of the attorney said and concurred with the state's attorney's recommendation which he said was motivated by the hope of rehabilitation although no specific program at Brooklyn or elsewhere was mentioned.

Suspended one-year sentence and probation for two years were imposed on two other residents of the Burman St. area.

David W. Kolesinski, 19, of 88 Grand Ave., Rockville was prosecuted from access roads to substitute counts of possession of cannabis-type drugs. Assistant State's Atty. Donald P. Caldwell said he felt Kolesinski was being given a break by being allowed to plea to the lesser charges and recommended that he serve 30 days of a suspended one-year sentence.

The youth was originally charged on two counts of sale of cannabis-type drugs and one count of possession of controlled drugs.

Special Public Defender Elna Guntz urged that the sentence be suspended entirely saying Kolesinski spent three days at the Sevens St. jail and "it was really quite a revelation to me that he had been in jail."

He said that the plea was not used in these cases.

The man claimed that Rt. 6 is still being used as a race way. He also told the directors that he was against the addition of nine holes to the Manchester Country Club.

Town Pay Talks Ready To Submit To Fact Finding

The contract negotiations between the town and Local 901 will go to fact-finding soon.

Town Manager Robert Wells received a letter Tuesday from the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration containing the names of three fact-finders.

Both parties must submit their preference for a fact-finder within five days. If there is no mutual selection, one will be appointed from the state fact-finders not listed in the letter.

The town and the union will share the $125 a day cost of the fact-finders services.

Negotiations have been slow moving since the Board of Directors rejected March 9 a proposed contract with the union calling for a 7 per cent pay hike and increased benefits.

Two sessions with a state mediator failed to produce any breakthrough.

The directors told Wells to negotiate for a package whose total increase was about 9 per cent.

Tolland County Superior Court Three Draw Prison Terms In Beating of Rockville Man

The three Hartford men charged in the beating of John Tomko in February were each sentenced yesterday to serve 18 months to four years in the state prison at Somers.

A special public defender spoke for each man before he was sentenced.

Probation continuing from a one-to-three year prison sentence suspended last July was revoked for Bratton and that sentence ordered served concurrently with the present one.

The three men, all from Hartford, were originally charged with robbery with violence but pleaded guilty to substitute charges of assault with intent to rob.

Tomko, of Rockville, was jumped by the three men on Vernon Ave. in Rockville and required hospitalization for his injuries. The attack was soon by a state police officer on duty at the scene of a recent fire and the men were caught and arrested. Tomko's wallet containing $22 was recovered. The scene and he has been held until now as evidence.

Special Public Defender Lawrence Klaczk described the attack as a spontaneous thing and said his client George Rabin, 21, had been drinking.

Special Public Defender Abbott Schwelbel said that his client, John J. Freeman Jr., 21, had also been drinking and has actually been an alcoholic since the age of 10. He said after drinking all day he was too

Spring Church Conventions Aglow with Festive Colors

Church conventions this spring are breaking out in new wild shades of color, spontaneous art and festive banners.

"Aria!" "Joy!" "To live in to dance."

These were among the exuberant notes proclaimed in big bright color hangings around the church during the annual convention of the American Baptist Convention in the Minneapolis Auditorium.

It was the decor a week ago when the convention opened in the Minneapolis Auditorium.

The free untrammelled atmosphere seemed to get their start several years ago from the con-

Directors Comment Session

A petition signed by 81 residents of the Woodbridge-Parker St. area requesting the installation of a traffic control at the intersection Woodbridge St., Parker St., Green Rd., Breton Rd., and Helaine Rd. was submitted to town directors last night.

The petition claims the area is a vehicular and pedestrian traffic which uses this intersection daily.

The petition was received by Directors Donald Wells, William Dineen and Joe Morris at a public comment session in the Municipal Building. Wells and Dineen are Republicans; Morris is a Democrat.

Three residents of the Oakland Ter. area also appeared at the session to ask that Beagge interest rates, there were continued rises for most of the summer seasons including automobile insurance, property insurance, natural gas, medical services and transit fares, the report said.

Some 72,000 workers will receive pay increases from their cost-of-living clauses in labor contracts based on the government price index. They range from two cents an hour to $11.00 per month for various groups.

Another 11,500 workers with escalator clauses in their contracts will get no further increases because they have already received the maximum amounts specified in their agreements.

Shock Cure Used On Gamblers

(SYDNEY, Australia) (AP) — Sydney is a gambling-happy city in a gambling-prone state where it's estimated $1.78 billion is fed into slot machines every year.

Psychiatrists have developed a shock treatment to make addicts shun the one-armed bandits.

"It's called aversive therapy," said Dr. Karl Koller, who introduced the unit to St. George's Hospital. "The player begins to associate playing the machine with pain and keeps away from them."

"We decided to give this a try when the usual psychiatric method and pills didn't work. We believe the success rate will be around 60 per cent."

People who are generally in desperate straits before they seek treatment.

"They vary from a lawyer spending hundreds of dollars a week on the machines to an elderly woman losing her pension money on them and going hungry as a result," Dr. Koller said.

"Poke-a-dot" slot machines are called here, keep most of the big clubs in funds in Bridgeport, Conn., to the big clubs in funds in South Wales, the only state in Australia where they are legal.

Last year income tax on the profit of club was $44 million, or a state tax cut of $34 million.

On average every man, woman and child in the state loses $3 to the machines in a year.

Picks Assistant

(NEWTON, Mass. (AP)) — Bob Zuffelato, the new head basketball coach at Boston College, has picked Tom McCorry, an assistant at Sacred Heart College, as his assistant.

McCorry, a former Manhattan College star and New York City high school basketball coach, was named assistant coach by Zuffelato. He was chosen from a list of candidates considered by Zuffelato, who was promoted to head coach recently when Chuck Daulty quit to go to Penn.

Grocery Costs Up In April

was due to increases in fresh fruit and vegetable prices.

"Prices of beef and veal, cereal and bakery products and dairy products increased instead of declining as they usually do in April," the report said.

Prices of pork and eggs dropped more than usual for the month, it added.

Restaurant prices rose four-tenths of one per cent, about the same as in March, it said.

Except for a decline in mortgage interest rates, there were continued rises for most of the summer seasons including automobile insurance, property insurance, natural gas, medical services and transit fares, the report said.

Some 72,000 workers will receive pay increases from their cost-of-living clauses in labor contracts based on the government price index. They range from two cents an hour to $11.00 per month for various groups.

Escaped Bombing

Although the famous Christ Church Cathedral at Canterbury, England, was a target for German bombers during World War II, it was not directly hit. Nearby buildings, however, were destroyed.

Brand New 1971 Mercury

Mercury's better idea for a small car comes in two sizes. The 2-door sedan is built on a 108-inch wheelbase and seats four adults comfortably. The 4-door sedan has a 109.8 inch wheelbase is slightly larger and will seat five without difficulty. There's reasonable luggage space, too. In fact, there are a lot of things you get with other small cars. Distinction is one of them. The Comet has its own bold front grille and power windows. The rear end features a stylish tail lamp. A handy repair manual is available for do-it-yourselfers.
