Steele Hits Laotian In Drug War

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., who last week accused a South Vietnamese major general of being a narcotics trafficker, now has described a Royal Laotian Army general of being "one of the chief traffickers in Southeast Asia."

In a broadcast interview Sunday, Steele singled out Gen. Ouanne Rathikoune, who retired Thursday as chief of staff of the Royal Laotian Army.

Steele said, "His troops protect opium refineries and heroin refineries along the Mekong River and provide transportation for heroin in Royal Laotian military aircraft."

"This is an incredible situation," Steele said. "Here's a government that would collapse in 24 hours if it weren't for our support and yet somehow we can't get their help in cracking down on the opium trade."

Last week Steele said South Vietnam's Maj. Gen. Ngo Dau is a major heroin trafficker.

In an open letter to Steele, Dau said Sunday: "You are an authorized and respectable person of the United States, but you are being lured by a number of Vietnamese people who are giving you unfounded information. Those people are jealous about my title as 2nd Corps command-

Nixon Scheduled to Sign Emergency Bill on Jobs

By FRANK CORMIER Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, heading into a busy week of foreign policy and budget conferences, arranged a formal signing ceremony today for a $2.25 billion emergency employment bill aimed at helping the economy.

The measure authorizes a two-year program to create 200,000 temporary jobs in state and local governments in such areas as sanitation, environmental quality, health care, education, public safety, transportation and economic development.

The cost during the next 12 months would be $1 billion.

Just last month, Nixon vetoed a $5.7 billion public works bill because it incorporated a $2 billion plan to subsidize state and local employment of workers in construction and related fields. The President argued the proposal would have an eventual inflationary effect because most hiring would be delayed as much as two years while public

Plot's Ringleaders Executed By Moroccan Firing Squad

Gen. Mohamed Medbough, leader of coup against King Hassan, is shown at right, accompanying the king to the grave of Gen. Charles de Gaulle in this picture taken last November at the cemetery of Colombey-des-Deux-Églises.

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The principal ringleaders in the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by a firing squad early today, official sources reported.

They said the names of the officers executed after a summary court-martial would be announced later.

The executions are continuing, they added, and it was not immediately clear whether all the six leading conspirators reported under arrest had been shot.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the attempted coup Saturday would all be dead by sundown tonight. He named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

In Washington, it was announced President Nixon sent a message to King Hassan congratulating him for having escaped when Army rebels attacked his summer palace on Saturday.

Nixon's message was dispatched on Sunday. Officials said it expressed the relief of the administration that the monarch's life was saved and order had been restored. There were no American casualties.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medbough, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hamou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbough was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic Ocean 15 miles south of Rabat. At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the supreme court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station.

In Morocco Nightmare Scene Described

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Guests at King Hassan II's birthday party during Saturday's attempted revolt in Morocco were made by soldiers to lie for two hours in a blazing sun with arms raised and anyone who lowered them was shot.

One of those guests, Prof. Karl Fellingner, a specialist in internal medicine, told this today in an interview with the newspaper Kurier. After it was over and the king reappeared, he said, the survivors were allowed to get to their cars and heads as though nothing had happened.

"Then, all of a sudden, it happened. At first I heard a loud bang, then a continuation. I said to my Saudi Arabian neighbor, 'It's strange to have fireworks in the middle of day' and the Saudi Arabian replied it must be some birthday noise makers."

"Then something was thrown over our heads and I knew it was a hand grenade. Everybody started to run from the seaside terrace and we saw military personnel approaching with rifles."

"When the bullets whistled above our heads we knocked out a window of the closed terrace and jumped to the dunes below. Behind us the noise continued and we crawled through the sand. I thought we could reach our car but by then the soldiers had approached us and we had to raise our hands above our heads and were driven back."

"Then I saw by what immense luck I was saved: The three French physicians, with whom I previously was standing together, were dead, the king was missing. Everywhere were dead and everywhere injured were moaning."

"We were herded out on to the lawn and were ordered to lie down, with the hands above our heads. It was three in the afternoon and the hot sun was pouring down. For an hour we had to lie on our backs, then we were allowed to turn on our bellies and later again on to our backs."

"He said that many older guests were unable to keep their hands up any longer."

"Whoever lowered his hands

Ulster Blasts Fail to Deter Celebrants

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Ten bombs exploded in Northern Ireland during the night, apparently set by Irish republicans, but Ulster Protestants defied the Roman Catholic terrorists and at daybreak began marching in celebration of their ancestors' victory over the Catholics 281 years ago.

The British and provincial governments deployed 20,000 police and troops across Northern Ireland's six counties as the bowler-hatted members of the Orange Order turned out for their annual celebration of the battle that kept Ulster Protestant.

The task of the security forces was to keep the Protestant majority and the Catholic minority apart lest the display of Protestant strength touch off a renewal of the religious warfare that has plagued Northern Ireland for more than two years.

The bombs began going off shortly after midnight while thousands of Protestants were dancing around bonfires to celebrate the "Glorious 12th."

Four blasts shattered windows along Royal Avenue, Belfast's main street. The Protestants celebrating in other parts of the capital ran for shelter and British troops moved in with armored cars.

Another bomb damaged a Belfast power station.

Seven people were wounded in the blasts but police said their injuries were light. Six suspects were arrested.

Two more bombs damaged an empty Protestant hall and a power station in Irvinestown 80 miles away. Two exploded in Pomeroy to the west and another went off in Newry near the border with the Irish Republic to the south.

Police and the British Army said the blasts were set by the outlawed Irish Republican

Income Tax Disowned By Both Parties

HARTFORD (AP) — Connecticut's first income tax became law last week and the two major political parties have spent much of the time since disavowing it.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill says the income tax is bad and that the only reason he allowed it to become law is that there was "no viable alternative."

State Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey says Meskill is responsible for the tax and that if he didn't like it he should have vetoed it.

Republican State Chairman J. Brian Gaffney says the income tax became law because "The pretentious patriarch of the Democratic Party (Bailey) either stood helplessly by while the Democrat majority in the state legislature disgraced itself on a tax program or he exercised his long-time boss status to strengthen the Democrat legislators into voting for a state income tax."

Gaffney, a state representative from New Britain, explained his vote for the income tax by saying that the state was facing "disaster" in the absence of a revenue program after "the Democrats killed the compromise tax plan."

Bailey said Sunday that Gaffney and House Minority Leader Francis Collins of Brookfield not only voted for the income tax but would not agree to adjourn the House session to allow more time to consider the bill. Only a handful of legislators had actually read the bill when it was passed early in the morning of July 1, the first day of the new fiscal year. Bailey said Sunday that he had still not seen a copy of the bill.

Bailey added that he had always been against the income tax and said it was not the best tax for the state. He also said the income tax is a "political minus."

The Democratic chairman said the main reason the Democrats had opposed Meskill's original plan to boost the sales tax to seven per cent was that this plan would have included many

U.S. Phantom Jets Destroy Enemy Antiaircraft Guns

SAIGON (AP) — A pair of U.S. Phantom jets streaked from Laos into North Vietnam Sunday and made the biggest kill of antiaircraft guns reported in more than two months.

The U.S. Command said the F4 fighter-bombers destroyed four antiaircraft guns and damaged three others near the Mu Gia pass 80 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone. They pulled out of their bomb runs unscathed.

It was the most successful strike inside North Vietnam reported since May 10, when five U.S. pilots reported they destroyed 13 antiaircraft guns about a mile from the batteries hit Sunday.

The two Phantoms were diverted from bombing runs over the neighboring Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos after the jets fired across the border on another F4 attacking the enemy supply network, the command said.

The third Phantom also escaped without any damage.

A command spokesman, Maj. Charles Johnson, said it was the 46th "protective reaction" raid on North Vietnam this year. U.S. pilots are authorized to attack North Vietnam's antiaircraft batteries if they pose a threat to American aircraft.

Johnson said the strikes Sunday destroyed one 88mm antiaircraft gun, one 57mm and two 37mm. He said one 87mm gun and two 37mm guns were damaged.

The 88mm is the second largest gun in North Vietnam's antiaircraft arsenal with a range of 10 miles. The 57mm has a range of eight miles and the 37mm can reach five miles.

The command also disclosed that another Phantom equipped for photo reconnaissance was hit by enemy ground fire while on a mission Saturday over Stung Treng province in northern Cambodia. The two pilots managed to fly back to Saigon, but while making a pass over Tan Son Nhut air base the plane tumbled to the ground.

Army Mum On Shifting Of General

SAIGON (AP) — Maj. Gen. James L. Baldwin has been relieved of command of the American Division, and military sources suggested today that it was because of the attack on Fire Base Mary Ann in which 33 Americans were killed and 78 were wounded.

An official statement said Baldwin is "being reassigned by the Department of the Army," and a spokesman for the U.S. Command refused to comment further.

In Washington, an Army spokesman at the Pentagon said "at this time we have no comment." The spokesman added he had no information on Baldwin's new assignment and conceded this was unusual.

However, other military sources said there were "unusual circumstances" surrounding Baldwin's replacement and suggested that it was the outcome of the investigation into the disastrous attack March 28 by North Vietnamese sappers on Fire Base Mary Ann, a battalion headquarters base of the American Division's 196th Infantry Brigade 25 miles west of Chu Lai.

Cong Peace Bid Conditions Anticipated by CIA in 1968

By SPENCER DAVIS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Viet Cong conditions for a Vietnam settlement now being explored by U.S. negotiators in Paris were anticipated almost 3½ years ago in a confidential U.S. Central Intelligence Agency report.

"In talks, Communist terms would involve the establishment of a new coalition government which would in fact, if not in appearance, be under the domination of the Communists," said a CIA assessment, intended for President Lyndon B. Johnson that never reached him.

"Secondly, they insist on a guaranteed withdrawal of U.S. forces within some precisely defined period," the assessment said.

Both conditions are part of a Vietnamese Communist proposal announced in Paris July 1.

The assessment added that cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and the start of peace negotiations without significant Communist concessions would create "a real risk that the Thieu-Ky regime would collapse, and this would in fact be part of Hanoi's calculations."

The reference was to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

The assessment, disclosed in Pentagon papers released by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, was one of a long series of CIA estimates which cropped up at critical periods in the 7,000-page study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

Differing from State and Defense department recommendations, the CIA estimates were at times ignored.

In this case, the CIA estimates never reached Johnson who had ordered a comprehensive reassessment of U.S. policy after the surprise Communist Tet offensive of February 1968.

Instead it was "fed into the deliberative process but did not figure in the final memoranda-

Arraignment Set for Suspect In Holdup, Killing of Policeman

NORWALK (AP) — A Nevada man charged with robbery with violence and murder in connection with a bank robbery and the slaying of a policeman was scheduled to be arraigned in Circuit Court here today on the robbery charge, the prosecutor's office said.

Frederick Earl Wells, 48, of Las Vegas, Nev., surrendered Saturday morning after a 16-hour search and is being held without bail at the Bridgeport Correctional Center. He is charged with robbery with violence, first-degree murder and violating parole.

A spokesman for the Fairfield County detective's office in Bridgeport said today that arraignment on the murder charge, which could carry a death penalty, would have to await a decision by a grand jury on whether Wells should be indicted.

If an indictment is handed Saturday, Wells then would be arraigned on the murder charge in Int'l Superior Court. The parole charge against Wells was expected to be acted on in Circuit Court today.

Police say he was involved in the $12,100 holdup Friday of the Connecticut National Bank branch in west Norwalk and in the shootout 30 minutes later in which Sgt. Nicholas Fera, 45, and the other robbery suspect were killed.

Police said Fera forced the suspected getaway car off the road and as he tried to arrest the two men they began shoot-

Ex-Financier Freed From Texas Prison

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Smiling and embracing his family, former Texas fertilizer financier Billie Sol Estes sped off a free man today from the La Tuna Federal Correctional Institution.

Estes had served more than six years of a 15-year prison term for fraud in connection with a nonexistent fertilizer storage tank empire which netted millions and created a nationwide scandal.

Estes left the federal prison at 12:03 a.m., seated in the back seat of a private car with his wife, Patsy, and one of their blonde teen-age daughters.

Estes ignored the small cluster of waiting newsmen and

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

People often ask me why they don't write any more. The fact is they do. I just don't produce any more but there are opera companies around the country that do go in for new works. The New York City Opera is one. I have found that around here people are not interested in the New York City Opera.

Actually, you get very good opera from this company for considerably less money than it costs at the Met. And you get very good singers, too. Beverly Sills, arguably the hottest soloist ever to appear on any stage, is one of the best. She has been associated with the Met since the late 1940s.

Just where people get the idea that the Met is the Alpha and Omega of opera is hard to say. Once in a while it comes up with a superlative production but its average is better than the average at Connecticut Opera. Sometimes the production is better than the average at Connecticut Opera.

However, let's get back to the original question. There are lots of new operas premiering in Europe, particularly in Germany. With the companies subsidized, a failure is not a financial catastrophe as it would be in this country, so important new works are more venturesome.

Yet even in this country we get new operas from time to time. The latest one I know of is based on the Tennessee Williams drama with music by Leo Hayter, which is being staged in turn by his own company.

Already in the past few years there has been an opera called "Natalia Petrovna," which was not the first opera he ever had produced.

"Summer and Smoke" was premiered in St. Paul, Minn., where they have a fair opera company that quite commonly goes in for new opera, both foreign and domestic. Santa Fe is another company noted for new productions, and so is Seattle.

Faulstich, critic for the Washington Post, gave this work an extremely high review but I met it myself. It is apparently a psychological drama, but I think it made numerous references to music, so it was a logical choice for opera.

Whether the work will prosper and become part of the standard repertoire is a moot question, and the odds are against it. But the odds are against most Broadway plays as well. And the odds were against most operas even from the beginning.

Verdi wrote almost thirty operas but only three of them have survived to be performed. These are, of course, "La Traviata," "Rigoletto" and "Il Trovatore." Occasionally you get "Otello" and more rarely "Don Carlo" ("Masked Ball") and "Force of Destiny" also get dragged out on occasion, but there is always empty seats for these productions.

So even with a composer of Verdi's stature you get about one hit in ten and about one moderate success in five.

Though a record would bankrupt most opera companies in short order, yet new operas do get produced occasionally in this country, as I have pointed out.

The state has also been asked to produce the heavy brass that it produced by a number of different companies for a number of performances so that it becomes reasonably well known.

The association was formed in June, 1970 for the express purpose of maintaining the Mid-Haven area lake in its present condition and to intercede with the various local and state authorities for improvements.

In August, 1970, a delegation of Vernon officials, led by Mayor Frank McCoy, met with the executive committee of the association. As a result of the meeting, the state has agreed to pay the costs of mailing information to the members of the association.

Fred Harris Ready to Enter Democratic Presidential Test

By Walter E. Meares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fred J. Harris is preparing to enter the Democratic presidential nomination race, and he is expected to be one of the leading candidates in the primary election states, instead of seeking reelection to the Senate in Oklahoma.

Democratic sources said Harris is former national party chairman, already has worked out the outlines of a presidential campaign organization that would be headed by Jack Hood Vaughn, a former director of the Peace Corps and U.S. ambassador to Colombia who now heads the national Urban Council.

Vaughn has been a Republican. Harris said he has become a candidate, he will enter most of all the presidential primaries, and rely heavily on a volunteer organization, trying to fashion "a new political coalition" to make real changes in American society.

Fashioning his new organization, Harris already has decided to drop one of his closest advisers, Vic Frensch, executive director of Harris H. Humphrey, now back in the Senate from Minnesota, and a likely rival for the 1972 nomination. He later served as co-chairman of the 1968 Democratic presidential campaign of Hubert H. Humphrey.

Varied and Heavy Agenda For Directors Tomorrow

When originally scheduled, the purpose of tomorrow's meeting of the Board of Directors was to further discuss the proposed purchase by the town of the Manchester Water Co.

With the fall of the annual meeting of last week's regular board meeting, the directors are likely to have an active evening which will now only include discussions of the water company, but also action on proposed contracts with two town bargaining units and discussion of the proposed change to CUD zone of the town.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building Hearing Room. Prior to all this, the directors will visit the Drug Advisory Board and the other Center for the Handicapped.

At the meeting, the directors will discuss the proposed purchase of the Manchester Water Co. and the proposed MEGC package deal on the programs and activities of the drug center.

The directors are trying to get an extension of the vote on a November referendum which would make the purchase of the water company contingent on the Eight Utilities District agreement to build and operate sewer facilities with the town.

A committee of Directors—Carl Zinsler, Mrs. William Ferguson, and Anthony Petrillo—was formed recently to try to get an extension of the vote on a November referendum.

The board rejected proposed contracts with both groups on March 9. Those contracts would have provided seven per cent pay increases and increased benefits.

Meany Would Impose Wage-Price Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany expects high unemployment for 1971, and he would impose wage and price controls in the event of a recession.

"I don't see any other way that this situation is going to get right against inflation," Meany said Monday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Meany said his own 13.5-million-member labor organization is "not advocating controls," but would not oppose them if they were imposed evenly.

"If he makes a decision that the international situation is such, or the domestic situation is such that he needs to impose controls, we have said time and time again . . . We are saying it now, that we will go along," Meany said.

Meany said the country has an "inflationary psychology." "We have people raising prices when there is just no reason," he said.

"According to the book, when you cause more employment, when you lighten up on the money supply and you keep business from expanding and thereby cause more and more people to become unemployed, prices go up," Meany said.

Meany, in a speech today opening the AFL-CIO Conference on Jobs, said Treasury Secretary John B. Connally lacks confidence in America since the 1960s.

Connally, recently designated by Nixon as the administration's chief economic spokesman, Meany said:

"He is a proven expert. Texas politics, and knows quite a bit about the oil companies and their money and the banks and the insurance companies and what they want. I'm not sure he knows much about the national economy, and I am certain he doesn't understand the problem of American workers."

Secretary Connally said . . . said that American workers are being dispatched to the area to check out numerous burglar alarms triggered by the power failure of the Bronx for three hours early today.

The blackout disrupted subway service on two lines because of signal failure in the area and forced several high schools to report "in good luck" the huge Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center to fall back on emergency Broadway Line.

The subway service on the IRT line of 96th Street in Manhattan and the BMT line of Eighth Avenue line north of 126th Street in Manhattan, which was stopped.

Shortly before 8 a.m., signals were moving at slow speed again over the Broadway line.

There was no immediate estimate of the number of customers affected.

The blackout extended from West 185th Street between the Hudson and Harlem Rivers in Manhattan to 260th Street between the Hudson and Van Cortlandt Park South in Riverdale, with the lights out in all the spots said. Fifteen extra patrol cars from Queens.

utmost to insure that there is guarantee against its repetition?
 This being considered, one cannot help looking at the situation from the other point of view.
 On what is so far the basis of five cans of soup out of trillions of cans of soup marketed over the past 100 years, the Bon Vivant company to close down and is being forced to recall all the products wearing its own label. It will probably be a long time before this label will be worth anything again. Meanwhile, application of the same suspect and search principle is also quite likely to tarnish the other 38 brand names for which Bon Vivant has been processing soups. Three brand names have already been published. Should the public react with constant fright about all of them, would we have quite a list of things we no longer dare to eat, to add to all the other lists that have been compiled for us for various reasons in recent years.

It is possible, then, to pose two fanciful hypotheses, the one leading into the other.
 The first would say that the presence of danger in even one can out of a trillion cans is intolerable.
 The second would say that, if we are going to try to be that absolutely safe and sure about everything we eat, there is going to have to be a very long permanent list of things we will never eat under any condition.
 We all know what we will really end by doing. We will not buy either absolute. We will continue to accept some risk. We will change some labels, and remove others, obviously with a minimum supervision of proceeding, but still without any real guarantee that this, or a different kind of danger, will not continue to be present in one out of a trillion instances.
 The chances are that, when such a misfortune happens, it may be the kind of thing that could happen to anyone, perhaps because of some laxity of method or supervision, but perhaps because of some quirk of natural chemistry nothing could guard against.
 A man is dead, and a brand name, and perhaps a whole enterprise, is dead. The final question is whether, with all our modern paraphernalia for investigating and safeguarding and looking the stable door, and for expanding one poisoned can of soup into a nation-wide search, we really do wind up ahead of the game. It is a question that is very important in one sense, because we will do what we do, and couldn't halt it if we tried. It may be a question important in another sense, because it raises another question, that of whether we may not, some day, paralyze ourselves by our own pursuit of an impossible brand of security.

Carpenters' Pact Continues Spiral
 Union carpenters in the New Haven area are back at work after an eight-week strike but the agreement that ended the dispute is clearly inflationary. It's doubtful the whopping 35 per cent wage boost from $16.15 to $21.45 cents an hour will be approved by boards established to enforce Nixon Administration guidelines on construction industry.
 From statements made recently by Secretary of Labor Hodgson, there evidently will be some relaxation of the rule-of-thumb measure for pay increases in this basic industry that has been heavily responsible for the national cost-push. Hodgson was rather late in explaining that the six per cent figure was not "voted in concrete." This raises the suspicion that the Administration had been somewhat optimistic on the question of what restraint it could expect to implement.
 But whether the management-labor-public representatives that came on contracts will go for a 35 per cent increase is something else again. Provision was made under the executive order, for exceptions to the rule, under special circumstances. What circumstances, one wonders, would justify a 35 per cent wage boost for workers who already are getting paid much higher wages than most skilled craftsmen in other industries?
 One factor that figured in the settlement won by the New Haven area carpenters reflects a complication that has arisen in the public mind originally with the Administration. The New Haven carpenters defend their gain by citing the fact that it puts them on the same pay level with Bridgport carpenters. The latter obtained their fair settlement before the government restraining order was issued. Those unions that moved fast, or whose contract negotiations came at the right time, are under the wire and escaped the government curbs.
 Some provisions have been made, under the government guidelines, for adjustments to achieve equity in working conditions if the adjustments involve "increases in adjacent areas or similar crafts where re-establishment of traditional relations should be considered."
 The New Haven picture was distorted when the Bridgport carpenters got that sharp increase in pay, which saw management giving in to unproductive demands — no doubt with the intention of passing the burden on to the consumer. Thus the uper-upward cost-price spiral that will not stop until the realities are faced. Inflationary construction industry contracts in Connecticut will aggravate the state's unemployment problem — especially had in the construction industry. High construction costs could discourage capital investment and touch of a new round of inflationary wage boosts in other industries. — NEW HAVEN REGISTER

For Future Disclosure?
 There is no need to wait for any future publication of "Pentagon Papers" to tell us that, in the year 1971, an American Secretary of Defense, no less, was open in Japan, urging that nation to increase its air and sea power, and stir itself out of the relatively peaceful and profitable position in which it is spending only one per cent of its gross national product for the military side of life while we in the United States are hardening ourselves with a seven per cent rate of military expenditure.
 This is now openly in the news.
 The only resistance to it is coming from inside Japan itself, where there are still some surviving instincts to live up to the letter and the ideals of the MacArthur Constitution under which Japan officially renounced the right to maintain armed forces and wage war.
 No American citizens declaim against the spectacle of an American Secretary of Defense imploring the Japanese to arm themselves.
 No flutter of doves in Congress bewails this contingency planning for future wars of untold horror.
 No public agitators march on Washington or any other city to advocate that we let Japan stay as peaceful as it wants to be.
 Perhaps there is, somewhere, some secret memorandum in which some lone soul underlining in the Nixon Administration is protesting what he sees going on.
 But what is going on is open enough for all to see. It anybody cares to see it and think about it.
 We don't notice anyone who cares to see.
 Some future day, perhaps, when consequences have arrived, perhaps in direct or indirect result of the rearming of Japan, we may discover that, back in 1971, the American Secretary of Defense was on vital mission to Japan, with "subjects that were dire and secret, actually imploring the re-creation of that armed might we had once had to defeat in the Pacific, actually preaching, to Japan, the same lesson we had already accepted for ourselves, namely that a great industrial power must almost automatically include in its destiny a comparable role in the military life of the world.
 Somebody, then, may label the Laird Mission one of the secret "preludes to World War III, which will be ridiculous because everybody can see that it represents a very faithful imitation of what the world did to avoid World Wars I and II.

A Can Of Soup
 Bon Vivant, Inc., of Newark, N. J., has been in business since 1863.
 In addition to the soups it markets under its own label, it also processes and cans soups for 38 other labels. Some of these are labels with the highest possible reputations in the public mind — brand names all of which normally consider tops in quality and reliability.
 Last week, a can of Bon Vivant vichyssoise was found to have botulinum toxin in it after a man who had consumed the soup was found to have died of botulism.
 This has caused a widespread alarm and warning and search for traces of botulinum in other cans of Bon Vivant vichyssoise.
 One instance is, however, enough. Who could possibly take the view that, once the possibility of such contamination is discovered, the matter should not be pursued until officialdom has done its

Inside Report
Harris For President
 By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — The strangest aspect of the curious, long-odds campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination about to be waged by Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma is that it will be run strictly by political amateurs — a decision that has led to the painful dismissal of one of his closest advisers.
 Last weekend, with Harris having all but decided not to enter a hot fight for renomination to the Senate but to leap instead into the Presidential sweepstakes, he came to an abrupt parting of the ways with aide Vic French.
 The reason: French felt Harris' chances for the White House, remote in any case, would be doomed by a madcap policy of excluding professional politicians from his campaign. With his biggest money man opposed, French, Harris decided to jettison his aide.
 The story actually goes back some seven weeks ago when Jack Hood Vaughn, director of the National Urban Coalition and a friend of Harris for several years, began urging him to forget about Oklahoma and go national. Having spent the last 21 years in government service (Peace Corps director, Assistant Secretary of State, Ambassador to Colombia and Panama), Vaughn had no political experience whatever. Nevertheless, he offered to quit his job at the Urban Coalition to run Harris' campaign.
 What made up Harris' mind was a promise of heavy financial support from one of the rising young money men in the Democratic party: Herbert A. (Herby) Allen Jr., 31, heir to a Manhattan investment banking house who poured at least $150,000 personally into the Democratic party in 1968. A keen admirer of Harris, Allen kept the doors of the bankrupt Democratic National Committee open with money transfusions during Harris' disastrous tenure as National Chairman in 1968-70.
 But Vaughn immediately clashed with French, 33, Harris' right hand for nearly four years. In keeping with Harris' notion of a "new populism" and "people's politics," Vaughn planned a campaign run entirely by those government restraining order was issued. Those unions that moved fast, or whose contract negotiations came at the right time, are under the wire and escaped the government curbs.
 Some provisions have been made, under the government guidelines, for adjustments to achieve equity in working conditions if the adjustments involve "increases in adjacent areas or similar crafts where re-establishment of traditional relations should be considered."

Citizen Ciphers
 By STANLEY KARNOW
 The Washington Post
 However the complicated legal arguments surrounding the Pentagon documents are ultimately resolved, the partial publication of the secret papers, has already highlighted the extent to which the ideal of government by consent of the governed has become increasingly illusory.
 For the documents dramatically reveal the way decisions about the Vietnam war have been made in Washington. They show a handful of functionaries with arrogant disregard if not downright disdain for the people they were hired to serve. And they show the way that this phenomenon is not limited to Vietnam.
 More and more, citizens are beginning to perceive a widening gap between themselves and both the official and private bureaucracies that are theoretically supposed to be operating on their behalf. At stake here, therefore, is not solely the question of Vietnam but the broader issue of the relationship between institutions and the people.
 Government regulatory agencies are closed to consumers they claim to be helping, and government advisory committees are run by the very businessmen whose activities were under investigation. Automobile manufacturers have been waging a protracted struggle to block probes into their practices, while the country's principal medical associations seem to be more concerned with protecting its vested interests than in the health of patients.
 The same abstract quality is reflected in such statements as John T. McLaughlin's candid admission that the war was being fought to avoid a "humiliating" U.S. defeat and not, as President Johnson was publicly declaring, "because a friendly nation has asked us to help defend it against aggression."
 But if the bureaucrats succeeded in insulating themselves from public pressure, they were largely able to do so because Congress forfeited its role. Only two senators voted against the Tonkin Gulf Resolution. As late as 1968, in a fairly typical display of the Vietnam congressman told this reporter that he would have to figure out a position on Vietnam when the canutes in his constituency reached politically intolerable proportions.
 Despite its present criticism of past decisions, the press similarly refrained from challenging the basic assumptions of the war, and therefore acted as a negative accomplice in the formulation of Vietnam policies that proved disastrous.
 A major share of the responsibility resides with the public itself, however. For by failing to question the system that produced the military and civilian apparatus that brace the pentagon establishment, it effectively encouraged them to function without reference to national opinion.
 Oddly enough, young Americans have been quicker than their parents to observe the expanding gap that separates the establishment from the people. In essence, much of their protest is a warning that the authority of a government apparatus that neglects the fact that individuals are human beings rather than ciphers. The danger in the younger generation is that it may end up crippling institutions that can act to reformulate the system that has produced the military and civilian apparatus that brace the pentagon establishment, it effectively encouraged them to function without reference to national opinion.

Tests Go Well For New Plant

The secondary sewage treatment plant should open Friday or Monday, according to Julio Laurero of James Minges and Associates of Farmington, Conn. Engineers for the project.
 The plant is part of a $1 million sewer improvement program begun over two years ago. The town's share of this work is $1.1 million. Work was completed on Sept. 15. It is scheduled to be opened in the first week of July.
 The tanks at the plant are filled with water for some hours to test for leaks and any other problems. Laurero explained, so far, there have been none. Laurero said.

Ulster Blasts Fail to Deter Celebrants

Walls in Protestant sections of Belfast were painted with defacement slogans such as "Remember 1690" and "1690—Wants Argus About It!"
 Protestant tempers were aroused by a speech Sunday by Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic, urging the British government to work for the peaceful unity of Northern and Southern Ireland.
 He spoke on the 30th anniversary of the truce between British and Irish forces and the partition of the island into north and south.
 Brian Faulkner, Northern Ireland's prime minister, denounced the speech and stressed that election results showed "there has consistently been a vast majority in favor of the present status of Northern Ireland as part of the United Kingdom."
 Lynch's speech, Faulkner argued, was "likely to encourage the terrorists in our midst to believe that their objectives can be attained."

Digit Error Sours Note On Sweetener

WASHINGTON (AP). — Because of a decimal point misplacement during mathematical calculations and that man accidentally consumes three times this amount.
 The FDA and the National Academy of Sciences committee both say that the 1961 safety factor is normal for food additives other than saccharin.
 But to impose that limitation on saccharin would have required industrywide reformulation of the diet foods involved.
 And the scientists felt there would be no danger in increasing the allowable consumption to 15 milligrams.
 The FDA therefore softened its safety limit to 15 milligrams, the 30:1 level, and concluded that present saccharin users are safe.
 Unlike the original report which was made public, the revised case in a letter two weeks later to FDA Bureau of Foods Director Dr. Virgil G. Wolkeka that was not made public.

Russian Fort Burns Again

FORN BUREAU. (AP) — The second time in nine months, fire has damaged the Fort Ross Historical Monument in California.
 A fire which broke out early Sunday morning damaged a blockhouse of the old Russian fort built in 1812, swept along a stockade wall and burned part of the fort's commandant's house which contains a small museum.
 Superintendent Robert Hatch said damage could amount to as much as $20,000 and that soon an inflammable liquid found on the stockade wall.

His First Day on the Job
 "Welcome to Manchester," seems to be the thought of William O'Neill, director of public works, as he hands some paperwork over to Jay J. Giles, the town's new water and sewer administrator. Giles reported for his first day of work this morning. He replaces former town water and sewer superintendent Graydon Lockwood, who retired Feb. 1. Giles will be responsible for the day-to-day operation of the water and sewer departments and will work under O'Neill. If O'Neill appears a bit relieved, it is because he is. He has been acting water and sewer superintendent since shortly after Lockwood's retirement. Giles and his family, formerly of Harrisburg, Pa., will be setting in the area as well as arrangements are complete. Until then, for about six weeks, he is in need of a room. Anyone who could provide this is asked to contact the Town Water Department. (Herald photo by Bucevicius)

 Perhaps this question has been on your mind:
 Q. Do you ever discuss 'pre-need' arrangements with any one at school or civic affairs?
 A. NEVER! A party or meeting is no place to discuss such matters. We will gladly come to your home if invited. Or you can visit our office at your convenience. In fact, most pre-need arrangements are handled in our office.

THE M.P.O.A. ASKS THAT THE CONTRACT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS NOT BE RENEWED!!!

The Manchester Property Owners Assoc. hereby submits to the taxpayers of Manchester their reasons for requesting that the Board of Education not renew the contract of the Superintendent of Schools.

Among the facts submitted to the Board of Education are:

1. An independent audit of the books of the administrators of the Board of Education as requested by the M.P.O.A. revealed the lack of proper accounting.
2. The inability to maintain proper accounts.
3. An evasive and unresponsive attitude.

Leaders of House Seek More Study On CBS Citation

WASHINGTON (AP)—House leaders agreed today to try to reconvene for further study a contempt of Congress citation against the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The decision was announced by Speaker Carl Albert, D-Ola. Following a meeting at the White House, House leaders, including Staggers, D-W. Va., of the Commerce Committee, said they would recommend the citation and a vote on it today.

The House is the first citation ever sought by a congressional committee against a segment of the broadcast media.

Staggers' committee had recommended the citation and a vote on it today. The House is the first citation ever sought by a congressional committee against a segment of the broadcast media.

Professional associations and groups representing all segments of journalism have expressed concern over the committee's recommendation and its possible impact on freedom of the press already have cited the historic practice within the industry.

Bell Telephone Bids To Avert Walkout

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Bell telephone system today announced it would sweeten its contract offer in a last-minute attempt to keep half a million employees from walking off the job Wednesday morning.

The company said terms of the improved offer would be made public after they were formally presented to union bargaining teams sometime later in the day.

Earlier President Joseph A. Beirne of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America said that on raw money issues "I say we are apart by maybe one percent."

Import Flood Decried At Labor Confab
WASHINGTON (AP)—Jacob B. Potofsky, president of the American Union of Clothing Workers of America, said today that American labor cannot compete with the flood of cheap imports.

He told delegates to an AFL-CIO conference level off from a growing flood of imports from nations whose wage levels are as low as nine cents an hour.

And God knows we cannot compete with nine cents an hour," he said, "and we don't propose to."

The union announced Monday that it would vote on whether to authorize a strike.

TV Show Controversy Widens

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first governmental criticism of the 'Selling of the Pentagon' attack what CBS critics and the real fight came when Congress tried capturing faces and voices left on the cutting-room floor.

The escalating war of words reached from Boston, where President Johnson's new documentary, 'The Selling of the Pentagon,' was shown.

The program, first telecast Feb. 25, said the Pentagon had spent $20 million and possibly as much as $100 million to win public relations.

Defending the country now with its arms but also with its 'doggy' the doc is an entry charged, 'Pentagon propaganda insists on America's role as the cop on every beat in the world.'

On Feb. 26, House Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., accused CBS of 'one of the most horrible examples' of anti-military propaganda he had ever heard.

Agreeing, speaking March 18 in Boston, described the program as 'a subtle but vicious broadside against the nation's defense establishment.'

Dana Acting Director Of College Department

Richard A. Dana has been named acting director of the division of humanities and communications arts at Manchester Community College.

After three years as free lance writer and director in radio and the first years of television, he joined the Young and Rubicam advertising agency as creator of new programs in both radio and TV advertising accounts with national manufacturers.

Dana coordinated the design, construction, and staffing of the 1964 World's Fair 'The Triumph of Man' exhibit for the Travelers Insurance Co. Subsequently, he became agency coordinator for all Travelers broadcast activities, including the annual National Invitational Golf Tournament.

The result is two new programs, which are awaiting approval before being offered for student enrollment. One is the 'People' program, which includes the study of current events, news, and photography.

As acting division director, Dana's duties will comprise activities in the supervision of the fine arts, English, and foreign language departments. They will include administrative work involving teaching schedules, faculty student loads, budgets, and hiring by faculty members.

Two Requests Before PZC

Only two applications will be considered by the Planning and Zoning Commission tonight at 7:30 in the Municipal Building hearing room.

A third item previously scheduled has been withdrawn by the applicant, due to insufficient time to prepare the proposal, according to the planning office.

The application by Alty Leon Podrowski, could be rescheduled later. Podrowski was seeking a change from Industrial to Business III on 12.9 acre off Deming St., to allow highway service businesses such as a motel or restaurant. The land is in an area where realignment and reconstruction of Deming St. is planned in conjunction with widening of the Wilbur Cross Highway.

The two applications still on the agenda are by RLI Associates of East Hartford and developer Alexander Jarvis of Manchester.

Michael Parker of 50 Williams St. is chairman of the group which is composed of 28 teenagers. Other officers are Steven Packard, vice chairman; Denise Doyon, secretary, and Sully Miller, treasurer.

The four one-act plays to be presented are 'The Torch Bearers,' 'The Weak Spot,' 'No, Enough Rope,' and 'Heat Lightning.'
