Freedom, Plus Responsibility

The defense of the principle of the freedom of the press does not always enjoy the luxury of having a perfect use of that freedom by the press to defend.

In our opinion, the CBS documentary on "The Selling of the Pentagon" was a flawed exercise of freedom of the press.

The program was, for us, a mixture of courageous, enterprising journalism and a failure to live up fully to the responsibility the press should always keep paired with its freedom.

That being admitted, we think it right that the House of Representatives at Washington has apparently now diverted itself from its threatened attempt to turn itself into censor and investigator of the news, which would have been the real meaning of any vote to censure CBS for failing to disclose to Congress the actual details of the way its program was prepared.

The freedom of Congress, or anybody else, to criticize is as much a part of our general freedom as any privilege guaranteed the press. But to criticize is one thing, and to punish and penalize is another. Criticism is freedom; punishment could be dictatorship.

Criticism has now been made, in Congress and elsewhere, and in CBS and everywhere else in the world of the media, the lesson has been duly noted.

One can be quite sure that the present generation of CBS executives and producers will never again make a documentary the way they made this one.

One can be sure that discussion of this case has led to a sharpened alert through all the media, television, radio, newspapers, and magazines, to the dangers and the gulfs of "arranging" the news. And the leading danger is, of course, that the average listener, viewer, or reader can usually tell when it is being attempted.

CBS has been criticized, and sobered, and all the media have been alerted, and yet the principle of the free press, without which we would have something much worse than an occasional tilting of a documentary, has been left intact. This seems to us a good way to end this particular controversy.

Games Nations Play: Normally chiefs of staff and defense departments are considered guilty of planning for the last war that has been fought.

Military news from the Mediterranean area during the past few months would seem to reflect planning some what less recent than that. Instead of planning for World War II, everybody seems fascinated by the possibilities of refighting the wars between the Greeks and the Persians, or Rome and Carthage.

Consider, if you please, the way both the United States and Russia crowd their rival naval squadrons into these narrow seas, chase each other around in a daily business of bluff and brinkmanship, and pretend both fleets couldn't be blown by land-based air power long before they managed to exchange shots between themselves.

Or take Malta, the historic island so central to all the past military and naval history of the Mediterranean, and the way it is trying to charge Britain higher prices for its bases there, in World War II, Malta still had more in- portance to be the target of Italian and German bombing again and again. But if one were to suppose there were to be a new war in the Mediterranean, any of us could solve to our own satisfaction the game of pretending that Malta simply did not exist.

It wouldn't make any difference whether Malta existed or not, just as it makes no military difference, any longer, who holds Gibraltar.

But we are forgetting how the game is to be played. The Phoenicians, in their westward expansion, considered Malta strategic, and somebody probably fortified Gibraltar against them, and it is probably true today that Russia would consider it something of a great triumph if it gets its fleet invited into Maltese harbors, along with or in place of the British or the American fleets. Isn't Russia, just like the earliest imperious navigators, considering the occupation of some tiny island in the middle of the Indian Ocean as if that would be the key to the future control of that whole ocean? And isn't the United States considering some possible counter measure, like, perhaps, getting to the same island first?

It might be almost reassuring to have the world's great powers playing such ancient and relatively unspatialized games with one another, if it weren't for the fact that, should they happen to fly into something while moving their toy fleets around, the fighting would be done from and into the very bowels of the earth, by computer.

The Dew Gauge: We casual observers will never really know whether the spiders on our lawns work just as hard through nights when clouds prevent the fall of the dew as they do on the nights when, under clear skies, the dew is likely to be heavy.

All we know is that, when the heavy dew does fall, there are arachnids here and there about the lawn, web-shaped patches of spider strand strong enough to catch and hold the dew and hold it up to the morning sun.

The webs may be there, catching insects - and what a catch there should be in this, the thirteenth of August - every night in the summer, and we wouldn't know it, unless there were dew being caught, too.

This year, when our rain gauges have been rendered practically useless because there are so few showers, the rain gauge is a little more than a decorative ornament on the lawn at least enable us to compile a record of the dew. One heavy dew will nourish a garden for one summer day, if the day is not too full of an insistent wind drawing the moisture out of everything. Eventually, of course, it has to rain. But the morning web-catch can, meanwhile, be proof that the moisture is up there, all right, if we can merely figure out some way of getting it down.

ABELSON'S SAMSON: OLD ENGLISH SHEEP DOG

Inside Report On The Tightrope

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

BUCHAREST—President Nicolae Ceausescu's courageous gambit in deciding to endorse his cold war with Moscow by vanguard in this newest assault on the face mood of quiet confidence here, but underlying that mood is rising apprehension of far worse to come.

This is true regardless of the immediate outcome of the mid-July election between Rumania and Hungary in Budapest. Before Rumania's July 8 blast at Hungary, a reply to a little-noted attack on Rumania by the Soviet Communist Party, the Rumanian government had been in the midst of a heavy infestation of span worms, the late spring scourge.

The span worms, together with the gypsy moth larvae, accounted for an almost total loss of the forest in some areas. The adult moths do not eat, of course; their function is simply to mate; then the female moths lay their eggs, which hatch into caterpillars which devour the leaves.

In their larval state, the linden moths were repulsive; in their adult state, they are foreboding. Their very whiteness arouses aversion. The color white in nature commonly inspires fear. Ghosts traditionally, are white. Moby Dick, Herman Melville's notorious incarnation of the white whale, was only the dimmest mirror-image of the Kromani's own sputtering resentment.

They also mark the beginning of the Rumanian's smudged Ceausescu in Moscow on his return from Peking and that Soviet party boss Leonid Brezhnev has not set foot on Rumanian soil since 1968 except to transit Rumania by rail last spring on his way to Bulgaria. He continued to arrive at the Bucharest station in the dead of night and Ceausescu did not wait up to meet him.

Further, they suspect that Hungary, eager to please Moscow and thus preserve its own position, is sponsoring a television commercial featuring as background music Elizabeth Taylor's folk classic, "Freight Train. Handsome, slender, former astronaut Wally Schirra, looking more as though he has just stepped from a space ranch, appears to inform us how important the railroads are to all Americans.

Or take Malta, the historic island so central to all the past military and naval history of the Mediterranean, and the way it is trying to charge Britain higher prices for its bases there, in World War II, Malta still had more importance to be the target of Italian and

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

It is quite obvious that the Connecticut House of Representatives is vulnerable to comment which points out that, snatching the income tax in the middle of the night, it was handling a bill it had not even read, and whose specific provisions it did not understand.

But, although it was ignorant and careless and even ruthless about some of the most important details of the bill it was passing, the House was never in very much doubt about what it wanted to do and what it thought it was doing.

Curiously enough, in its main actions, the House was never more clear-headed than it was during the evening of June 30 and the early morning of July 1.

It kept its head and its main intent clear through long and involved parliamentary wrangles, considering the occupation of some tiny island in the middle of the Indian Ocean as if that would be the key to the future control of that whole ocean? And isn't the United States considering some possible counter measure, like, perhaps, getting to the same island first?

Vernon Vacation School Slated to Open Next Monday

A vacation school, to be sponsored jointly by The First Congregational Church of Vernon and the Union Congregational Church of Rockville, will be held for the week of July 19 and 20.

Sessions will be held at the Vernon Church on Rt. 30 from 9:30 a.m. to noon daily. Classes will be open to children who will be four years old by December through those who will enter grade 7 in the fall. A small registration fee will be asked.

The theme of the program will be "Living in God's World." Activities will include Bible study, stories, music, craft activities, field trips, recreation, refreshments and worship.

A weekly offering will be received with money to be donated to the Social Welfare Department of the Vernon School system.

Children may be registered by calling The Rev. Betsy F. Keeler at the Vernon Church or most efficiently as his bosses had been able to discipline it throughout the session up to the present.

A comparison of two key roll calls illustrates the point. At 4:58 o'clock in the afternoon, the House voted on an amendment introduced by the House liberals, which would have taken tuition at the University of Connecticut out of the leadership-agreement tax package the House was working on. A hard-bitten group of House Democrats who had opposed the amendment, and it lost, on the roll call, 91 to 74.

At 5:10 the next morning, the House voted 83 to 89 in favor of the amendment which transferred the tax bill into an income tax package. The House went on with debate of the bill itself, the same House Democrats who had opposed the removal of tuition at the University of Connecticut, now mandating together and introduced an amendment in which they conferring an 180 degree turn of view, now favored the elimination of the proposed tuition.

The tempting situation, now facing the House liberals, who had accumulated 74 votes against tuition the previous session, was that just the votes of those legislators actually sponsoring the no anti-tuition amendment would be enough to guarantee its passage.

The sponsors of the new amendment made it clear enough by the heavy sarcasm with which they now introduced those who opposed tuition to join them, that their own real intent was not to kill tuition, but to delay and perhaps kill the income tax by breaking the package in this case, the House liberals would have introduced an amendment in which they conferring an 180 degree turn of view, now favored the elimination of the proposed tuition.

Today's FUNNY Fatal Horse Disease Hits Texas Ranches

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) - A Texas health official estimates that 1,900 horses may die in two weeks from a disease that has been isolated from other livestock and are about 600 miles from the area where the infections have been occurring.

Allen said the circus owns 110 horses in all, but most are with a show scheduled in Louisville, Ky. The 47 horses in Texas have been inoculated with the vaccine, and terms of the quarantine will allow them to leave the state in 14 days if they show no symptoms of the disease.

Bob Guzman, sanitary engineer in Cameron County, said 25 to 30 horses a day are either dead or dying in the county and advised county commissioners that disposing of dead horses is a growing problem.

Dr. Richard Parker, chief of the U.S. Office of Veterinarian Public Health Service in Atlanta, Ga., said a horse infected with VEB faces a "30 to 80 per cent chance of dying."

"The disease is 'not particularly severe for humans,' he said, 'but in some people it requires hospitalization for a short time, and some deaths among infected humans were reported in Latin America.'

Guzman said the disease has been known to man as much as five miles a day, "but I believe it may be moving faster than that in Texas."

In the Houston area Wednesday, Robert Barnett, director of the Harris County Mosquito Control District, said, "I strongly suspect we have this disease in our county."

Among horses affected by the quarantine are 47 with the Ring-billed Gull.

Frank Bloize Dead at 63

SOUTH WINDSOR — Frank J. Bloize, 63, of 860 Avery St., a former town official, died at his home in South Windsor, Conn., Tuesday, July 13, 1971.

Mr. Bloize was born Feb. 10, 1908 in Glastonbury, son of Anthony F. and Elizabeth Masses Bloize, and had lived in South Windsor most of his life.

Survivors are three brothers, Alexander C. Bloize, Edward G. Bloize, both of South Windsor, and James E. Bloize, of Westford, N.H.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. at the Holy Trinity Roman Catholic Church, 100 Main St., Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Sullivan was born Jan. 12, 1884 in Northern Ireland, and had lived in Manchester most of his life.

Survivors, besides his wife, are three sons, William Sullivan, Robert J. Sullivan and Wilbert C. Sullivan, all of Manchester.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 100 Main St., Hartford, Conn.

Sidewalk Days Proving They'll Go for Bargain

Reports that the nation's economy is in the doldrums are being tested today throughout Manchester as the annual July Sidewalk Sale promotion of the Retail Merchants Association got off to a roaring start.

Shoppers by the thousands descended on downtown Main St. and Paradise streets to hunt for bargains during the opening hours of the three-day event.

With cooperation from the elements in the form of clear skies and mild temperatures — in contrast to last year's magisterial weather — the sales got off to a perfect start and buying was brisk.

Survivors are three brothers, Alexander C. Bloize, Edward G. Bloize, both of South Windsor, and James E. Bloize, of Westford, N.H.

Town Signs Shadow of Training Tragedies Comes Back to Haunt Marines

$1.56 Million

Town Manager Robert Weiss and Mayor James Parr went to New York City yesterday afternoon to sign a $1.56 million bond issue covering the town's share of the sewer improvement program and heating improvements to the Nathan Hale and Bonnet Jr. High Schools.

The bonds were sold to White, Weld and Co., the low bidder for the sale at a net interest rate of 8.55 per cent.

Of the bonds, $500,000 worth went to the school improvement program. Town voters in April 1968 authorized not more than $1.1 million in town bonds to cover the $6 million sewer improvement program.

Other branches of the Armed Forces may make training difficult, he said.

Italian Quake Claims 2 Lives, Area in Panic

PARMA (AP) — Much of Italy's industrial and wealthy

Genoa to Florence to Venice, was jolted by a strong earthquake early today. Two persons died of heart attacks.

Roofs toppled, masonry cracked, chandeliers rattled and clocks stopped. Thousands took to the streets in panic.

The earthquake registered a 5 on the 10-point Mercalli scale.

Overall, damage did not seem serious. But there were no immediate estimates. A check was expected to be made on treasures in churches and museums.

In Venice, the tremor sent ripples through the canals and shock palaces. In Florence, priceless art treasures in museums were jolted but it was not clear if any had been damaged.

Disabled Vets Drown in Upset Of Fishing Boat

ELDORA, Iowa (AP) — Three disabled veterans in wheelchairs drowned after a boat overturned during a fishing outing from the Soldiers Home in Vermont.

Six others in the pontoon boat — four home residents and two attendants — were rescued after the boat capsized Wednesday morning.

The bankruptcy of the Penn Central Railroad, the inefficient use of huge utilities and the paired rivalry capacity of Lockheed Aircraft and the dependence of other aerospace firms on government contracts are fueling the criticism.

When one of the boys in the wheelchairs released the brake to move and it (the wheelchair) rolled away, the boys causing the boat to flip.

The boat was equipped with an awning, was anchored in about 12 to 15 feet of water.

Deputy Sheriff Robert D. Callahan said the boat occupants did not have life jackets, but did have life preserver cushions.

Management, Labor Debate Strike Length

Management and labor negotiators are engaged in a telephone conference today to discuss the length of a strike by telephone operators.

The union has been seeking a 25 per cent wage increase for the first year of a new contract. The Bell System has offered an 11 per cent pay hike for the first year and three per cent increases in each of the remaining two years of a three-year contract.

SNET has assured customers they can expect near-normal services on direct-dial calls. But repairs, installations and dialing through an operator will take longer than usual, Van Sinderen said.

Speakers for the CUTW said picket lines have gone up at all 129 SNET buildings around the state. The spokesman called the turnout "good," and said the strike was "going extremely well."

Late Wednesday afternoon the company issued a statement saying the picket lines were "generally orderly and there were no serious incidents."

Earlier, the company said, "a few isolated cases of harassment of SNET people and the blocking of vehicles were reported, but generally the situation was calm."

The company said in short periods during the day "the volume of long distance operator handled calls got so heavy that all but emergency calls had to be turned back."

The union justified its request for a 25 per cent first-year increase by pointing to the national average of telephone operators. A daytime operator with five years experience works a 40-hour shift gets $11.3 a week, while a night operator works a 36-hour shift for $10.50 a week.

More than 200,000 calls are handled during the day "the volume of long distance operator handled calls got so heavy that all but emergency calls had to be turned back."

Wild Weather Leaves 3 Dead

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Thunderstorms, hail, high winds and two tornadoes hit eastern Missouri Wednesday night and early today leaving three dead and nearly 30 injured.

Betty Bequette, about 35; her son, Jackie Vasey, 12, and daughter, Tina Hasty, 8, were found dead in a field about 100 miles north of St. Louis near DeLoe, about 50 miles south of St. Louis.

At least 20 other persons were injured when the tornado slammed into the hilltop Dunn's trailer home near DeLoe and demolished all nine mobile homes.

Another tornado injured at least five persons when it demolished 12 mobile homes about four miles north of East Prairie. Police said lightning struck an old hangar at the Cape Girardeau airport, causing a fire that destroyed at least 15 small airplanes.

Among the large homes destroyed before noon were 99,000 shares of General Electric, 73,000 shares of Continental, and 85,000 shares of Gillette.

Control Data was up 1/2 at 20 1/2; American Telephone and Telegraph, up 1/4 at 40 1/2; Intercontinental Telephone, up 1/4 at 44 1/2; Continental Telephone, up 1/4 at 29 1/2; and International Telephone, up 1/4 at 24.

Stock Market U.S. Delegate Optimistic On Dialogue

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading slowed a bit today, with stock prices slightly higher, as an early-session rally appeared to have stalled.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.58 at 863.84.

Volume of 4.6 million shares at noon compared with turnover of 4.9 million shares during the first two hours of trading Wednesday.

The Dow declines by better than 2 to 1 among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said they considered the advance an extension of the technical rally which started late Wednesday after John B. Connally's forecast of a rise in the gross national product for the second quarter, and the U.S. proposal for an Indochina ceasefire, were welcomed by investors, brokers said.

U.S. Delegate Optimistic On Dialogue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has decried the total withdrawal of 1971 U.S. forces, the American people and the families of American servicemen will come to the conclusion that the form of a simple ultimatum would be better.

"If an agreement has not yet been reached on the question of the withdrawal of U.S. forces, it is because you do not consider the timetable for troop withdrawal as an issue to be negotiated," he said. "You persist in posing this problem in the form of a simple ultimatum."

"Every American new casualty or new prisoner on the Vietnam battlefield will only serve immoral objectives, in contradiction with the interests of the United States and of the American people."

"It is now up to the Nixon administration to choose the path of peace or to continue the war, to let American servicemen promptly and safely return home or to prolong the list of American casualties and prisoners."

Earlier in the meeting, the Viet Cong insisted that an agreement on troop withdrawal and prisoner release "is not difficult and could be reached quickly."

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong told the 21st session of the Paris peace talks that her faction's new peace plan is clear and precise and shows a "flexible attitude." She said it "responds completely to the desires of the American people to see their sons return home as soon as possible."

President Nixon's press secretary David K.E. Bruce had tried to "throw a veil over our will for peace and to claim false intentions of putting an end to the combat." He claims that he proposes an "arbitrary decision" which "will continue to probe the other side for explanations of 'How can one call an 'arbitrary decision' the fact that the Nixon spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler said the Nixon administration would like to "put an end to its war in Vietnam, stop the policy of 'Vietnamization' of the war, withdraw from South Vietnam, all troops, military establishments, personnel, weapons, and war materiel of the United States

To the Navy, it's an arm of the Drug Awareness Control Unit.

To the men who staff it, it's "The Rap Center."

By any name, it's a far-out scene to find at one of the Navy's largest and most important naval bases, yet one which may be repeated under a growing Navy effort to combat drug use.

Once they do, the Navy foretells them all previous drug offenses and helps them toward rehabilitation. It may also remove them from a key job if they hold one.

In its six weeks of operation, the center has drawn 823 men into the exemption program.

"Eight may not sound like many, but considering the circumstances we consider it significant," says Illings. "We expect the number to triple now that the policy is out in the open. Anyway, we're not playing a numbers game."

The Beas River dam is expected to be finished by June 1973 and cost $28 million.

Bus Wagons Called Peril, Volks Argues

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report describing bus wagons as marginally safe at best and inadequate at worst has pointed up loopholes permitting such vehicles to escape federal auto safety laws.

The report came Wednesday from Consumers Union, a non-profit, independent product-test organization in Mount Vernon, N.Y., which rated crash protection in the Volkswagen bus wagons and the Ford Custom Club Wagon as grossly inadequate.

Chrysler and Dodge models were rated marginal.

Volkswagen challenged Consumers Union to provide any information from crash tests and said its bus—wagons call it a station wagon—meets existing federal front-end crash standards for automobiles. Ford had no immediate comment.

The report also disclosed the government has exempted bus wagons from many safety regulations by labeling them "multipurpose vehicles."

In an information filed by Asst. U.S. Atty. Peter A. Clark, the utility was charged with dumping 38 to 50 gallons of oil into the river from its Devon station.

CLAP insisted that the oil had been cleaned up by company equipment and by additional equipment from another company.

The bus wagons are not required to have head restraints. They must have seat belts, but not steering columns, or collapsible steering columns.

CL&P Charged In Oil Spill

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The federal government has filed criminal charges against the Connecticut Light & Power Co. charging the utility with spilling oil into the Housatonic River on Aug. 28.

Conviction on the charges could bring CL&P a fine of $200 to $2,000. The government is prosecuting under the 1889 Refuse Act, a legal tool seldom used until recent years. The act prohibits discharge of any refuse matter into navigable bodies of water without a permit.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE ABOUT YOUR TELEPHONE SERVICE

Although there is a work stoppage, we are doing everything possible to provide uninterrupted service.

Because of the greatly reduced work force, there may be serious delays on operator-handled calls. Here are some suggestions to help you get the best possible service:

- Dial your own long-distance calls if possible. Don't make calls requiring operator assistance.
- Please look in your telephone directory for local numbers. Don't call Directory Assistance (411).
- Please call our repair service and business office only in emergencies, since telephone installation and repair work will be greatly curtailed.
- Keep your fire, police and other emergency numbers readily available.

We regret this temporary inconvenience to our customers, and are doing everything we can to serve you as well as possible.

Holt, Harsh Critic of Education, Speaks in Soft Tones

By JOHN JOHNSTON
(Herald Reporter)

Concerned, frustrated, a reformer—yes—but John Holt, critic of American educational methods and traditions, hardly qualifies to be classified with John Osborne's "angry young men" judged by the evenness of tone and anachronism of humor in his address at Bailey Auditorium of Manchester High School last night.

Holt's appearance was part of a two-week series of workshops conducted by The Children's School, Inc., owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Richmond. Holt spoke for three hours. The audience of more than 500 at 7:30 had dwindled to a handful when the question and answer period ended at 10:30.

Holt's one-hour, main address was on reading, which he introduced as the "No. 1 candidate for national news." At the same time, he said, "Learning to read as a task is not a hard one."

He developed the last statement at great length by citing the experiences of an educationist in the United States and Great Britain. How sharply the expense contrast with the cost per pupil in our country, Holt emphasized.

John Holt gestures in stressing points made during one of the two-week workshops of The Children's School. It was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Keller, 245 Mountain Rd.

dent have to attend 180 days, or the same 180 days. Resources should be available throughout the entire year. How sharply the expense contrast with the cost per pupil in our country, Holt emphasized.

To the approximately 90 percent of last night's audience that we tell people, but how we treat them that influences them. I often tell teachers that there would be fewer non-readers if we do in school, and the effects are often most harmful when the intentions are best. It took him four years, Holt confessed, to learn that thinking students will speak you take them work. "The most important thing," he added, "is to see the contradiction."

In the afternoon session for about 20 adults enrolled in the workshop, Holt expanded upon what he calls "child criticism." He believes that a child who is able to read, travel, work; own, buy, and sell property.

Moon Exploration Spurred By Quest for Knowledge
By HOWARD BENEHET
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Three teams of American astronauts have landed on the moon in two years. Now Apollo 16 is ready for a fourth expedition and two more crews will follow next year.

Launch date for Apollo 16 is July 20. Why go back to that desolate life when we are the planners and directors, when what we are learning is connected, when we do hand springs.

Reading, or any learning, Holt concluded this portion of the season, "never occurs under anxiety. We learn best when it is tied in with all of life when we are the planners and directors, when what we are learning is connected, when we do hand springs.

In the question and answer period, he dwelt at considerable length on two related points: "Quality education is an insatiable demand for education, for which the needed funds are just not available."

In 1969, he said, the U.S. spent $26 billion of unevenly distributed money for elementary and secondary education, but it has been estimated that $50 billion would have been required to provide for all. By 1970, it is estimated that they will spend $45 billion where $100 billion is needed.

He pointed out the unfairness of the circumstances under which the rich benefit more than the poor from public money. "In most Latin American countries, it is 300-400 to 1, but in Bolivia it is 1,500 to 1," Holt noted.

He called for a reversal of the trend to allocate more money to schools planned for a certain age range, such as high schools, than to open institutions, such as public libraries.

Holt was similarly critical of a tendency to fill a particular area with a person whose education has been the most expensive. "For instance," he said, "if one applicant has a college degree that cost $4,000 a year, and other a degree that cost $1,000 a year, and the third has learned the skill himself, the job usually goes to the first."

Compulsory school attendance is perpetuated in this country in the name of the child, Holt said. "There is no reason why a student should be in the same school building each day," he explained, "there should be a broadening of what a school is (resource centers, parkway schools, apprenticeship). Neither should every student of a day of his life; 3. Cater to interests shown. "Legitimate interests," Holt stressed, "are not an optimist, said that he sees societal problems beyond the economic sense, one of mysteries, closed doors, unauthorized personnel, not admitted, top secret. Not only can't you fight city hall, hell, you can't find it. The attitude of so many is, 'I don't know anything, I just work here.' A straw that breaks the camel's back is that everyone is oppressed. The revolution that we speak of is just new people running things with new slogans on the wall."

World Lower Barriers
Holt defined the ideal free world as one in which "There are more opportunities for children to participate in the activities of adults," he stated. "Childhood is a lowering of barriers. It's almost impossible for a young person to grow up today without thinking that things don't make sense. The angry, disaffected young people are that way because they work in a world that is not theirs."

Concerning transfer of positions, Holt said, "The child, he said, there are three important points: 1. Example in the family. 2. If a child is bored, frightened, or doing poorly in school, don't let him bring school home and show him that it is only half the year, six hours."

Why go back for knowledge?
David R. Scott, "With all the Apollo flights are the investment value from the investment in space? "They're scientists applying to space speculation," Irwin said. "We're creating an application to gain knowledge about the moon, our earth and our solar system. They see basic insights into man, why he is here, where is he going?"

Grasso Takes on Pentagon Over Watch Firm 'Giveaway'

WASHINGTON (AP) — To shore up a watch manufacturer that lost over $20 million last year, the Army plans to spend millions buying or leasing portions of a company subsidiary, a Connecticut congressman said.

Rep. Ella T. Grasso claims House attempts to trace Defense Department decisions involving the subsidiary of Hamilton Watch Co. in Lancaster, Pa., have been stymied by the Pentagon and a House Appropriations subcommittee.

"Months of fruitless efforts to determine the rationale for the purchase of assets of the Hamilton Watch Co. and lease buildings and facilities have produced a conspiracy of silence that is ominous in its portent," the Democratic Congressman said.

An aide in her office said the transaction would cost the Army $9 million, though another House member involved in the issue, Rep. Charles Stenholm, said the figure is $2.2 million.

Until early this year, Hamilton was among major competitors bidding to supply the Army with fueling devices used inside artillery shells and other ordnance. Other bidders included Ingersoll Rand, Bristol, Conn., and the Grasso district.

But then, a Dan and Bradstreet accounting report—released by Mrs. Grasso—showed Hamilton lost $20,000,000 from Jan. 31, 1970, to Jan. 31, 1971.

In April, she said, the Army was given the go-ahead by top officials to purchase of some parts and equipment for a subsidiary plant and to lease some of its buildings.

A letter to Mrs. Grasso from Maj. Gen. Fred Korner Jr., as from councilman. (To validate award contracts to a new company, Hamilton Technology Inc., Mrs. Grasso said Hamilton three more tickets if it looks Watch Co. set up Hamilton to make a real election. But there is only one thing—Tieu cannot fold the Army will purchase a Vietnamese people."

The word "empowering" the president Grasso said, that the Army would be permitted to award contracts to competitive bidding because the government won't let the family machinery, tools and equipment used in making fuses.

Korner said his wife, Mrs. Hamilton was the only company capable of producing the fuses without using imported components, on which the Army doesn't wish to rely.

2 Birds Vanishing
TOKYO—Naturalists fear that the beautiful Japanese crested and the short-tailed auks, the largest birds in the northern Pacific area, are on the brink of extinction even though they are internationally protected.

Although Hughes had never been a candidate, he had said last winter he was weighing the possibility.

Since then he has traveled widely across the country and has assembled the beginnings of a campaign machine.

Hughes has often been critical of the Vietnam war. Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota is the only formally announced Democratic hopeful among more than a half a dozen openly testing the waters.

Hughes took note of the crowded Democratic field and said that it had been suggested the congressional candidate would "fratricidal conflicts within our party."

"But I believe the possibility is overrated. It is far more important to have an open contest in which the party members have a free choice."

In a prepared statement which he read at the outset of a news conference, Hughes did not indicate his support for any particular candidate.

He called the drug problem a "microcosm of our other great national ailments" and a "symptom of the neglect and tokenism that has marked our government's approach to our other competing problems."

Hughes said he would watch with interest the development of the issues by all of the candidates and in the end would support the candidate he believes to be the most forthright.

The board was directed to study several alternatives, one of which was to request the Traffic Electrical Division of the State Department of Transportation to conduct a survey on Rt. 6 to see if conditions would warrant action by the highway department.

Yio Anson, chairman of the group, stated that the members, which include Donald Dressel, Robert Little, Donald Cariberg and Melvin Williams, decided to call themselves the Advisory Committee to the First Selectman. Meetings will not be held according to any specific schedule; rather they will be informal and called as often as necessary.

Anson said that at this point, the first selectman and the committee decided that the committee's function would be to investigate, research and correlate material and data as requested by Post, relating to the financial aspect of the problem, or to a new proposal.

Andover Advisory Board To Study Lighting Problem on Rt. 6

The first selectman's new advisory board last night met to study the problem of street lighting in Andover.

The board, which met officially for the first time last night, was presented with the lighting problem along with other affairs. First Selectman Robert E. Post, who spoke of the townpeople's concern over sections of Rt. 6 that would seem to be inadequately lit, asked the board to investigate a number of possible alternatives regarding the situation.

Discussion centered on where street lights might be located, what the cost would be, whether the town or the state highway department would bear the burden of the cost, and other pertinent data.

The board was directed to study several alternatives, one of which was to request the Traffic Electrical Division of the State Department of Transportation to conduct a survey on Rt. 6 to see if conditions would warrant action by the highway department.

29 GIs Killed In Vietnam Last Week

Headquarters said 19 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed, with no South Vietnamese casualties reported.

Military sources in Vietnam, the capital of Laos, said the Laotian government is planning a major shakeup in the command structure of its armed forces. The net effect will be to shift power from the Vietnamese rightists led by the Sannakone family to Prince Boum Oum's rightists in the southern panhandle.

There are no ideological differences between the two factions of anti-Communist aristocrats. Instead they are rivals for power and the financial advantages accompanying it.

Gen. Ouane Rattikone retired as commander in chief last week and was replaced by Sen. Bouphone Mahaparaksa from the southern faction. Now Gen. Ouane Sannakone is to be replaced as chief of staff by Gen. Phasouk Rajphakdy, a protégé of Prince Boum Oum, the sources in Vietnam said.

Envoy Rapped In Saigon

Minh was deposed in 1964 after overthrowing President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963. He remains one of the most popular figures in Vietnamese politics, and many observers consider him the leading challenger to Thieu.

Minh said an honest election would be possible only if the Thieu regime allows a free press and "ceases its systematic repression" of the workers for other candidates.

He said that because of his doubts about the fairness of the race, he might pull out of the race. "I am committed as a United States senator, unimpeded by the label of presidential candidate."

Hughes said his decision, although made with regret, does not indicate he plans to retire from the national political scene. If anything, he said, he would be more active in a campaign machine.

Although Hughes had never been a candidate, he had said last winter he was weighing the possibility.

Since then he has traveled widely across the country and has assembled the beginnings of a campaign machine.

Hughes has often been critical of the Vietnam war. Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota is the only formally announced Democratic hopeful among more than a half a dozen openly testing the waters.

DETROIT (AP) — Senior citizens living in Detroit's dilapidated Cass Corridor are being used to a suburban supermarket where they can buy groceries at savings of up to 20 per cent from what they pay at small neighborhood markets.

Using a bus provided by an inner-city church and funded by the supermarket, dozens of men and women are taking advantage of the weekly trips.

The Rev. Lewis L. Redmond, minister of the Cass Methodist Church, said he conceived the idea three years ago after evaluating a study which showed inner-city residents pay more for food than their suburban counterparts.

Four weeks ago, Nathan Pink, president of Great Scott Supermarket Inc., agreed to fund the program for 12 weeks experimentally and longer if it is successful.

The $100 donated by Pink provides for a bus driver and a helper who carries the groceries.
