Tolland Charter Panel Appointments Are Tabled by Selectmen

The Board of Selectmen last night tabled action on the appointment of a Charter Revision Study Committee, because of the absence of Selectman Charles Ramondo.

Filed with three separate lists of recommended candidates for inclusion on the committee, the selectmen will consider resuming the project decided upon since of the committee from five members to possibly seven.

Selectman Ramondo and Robert Dumont voted to appoint a five-member committee a month ago, over the objections of First Selectman Charles Thalfault, who held out for a larger committee.

The Republican Town Committee recommended the appointment of Stuart John, William Summers, Mrs. Jane Pasternick, Vene Harding and Thomas Moore.

The Democratic Town Committee recommended Arnold Buzay, John Trainer and Mrs. Marilyn Dandurand.

The Tolland Junior Women's Club submitted the names of Mrs. Carl Pataway, Mrs. William Osborne and Mrs. John McCarthy.

At the time of their action for naming a Charter Revision Committee, Ramondo and Dumont cited the results of the 1969 governmental survey as the prime reason.

Dog Pound

Faced with the need to appoint a new dog warden, Thalfault has met with state officials and has been urged to obtain land on which to build a dog pound.

This would avoid the problems of relocating the pound when the dog warden resigns and another is appointed.

The cost of purchasing land and building a town-owned pound could be substantial. Thalfault said, but he is investigating the situation further.

There is about $5,000 in the dog fund account at present, according to treasurer Eleanor Weston.

Two residents Mario Palumbo and Eleanor Wright have indicated they would like to serve as dog warden.

Drainage Work

The drainage work at the town dump is running well over cost estimates for the job, which is being supervised by both the town's consulting engineer James Thompson and Highway Superintendent William Sevick.

Thompson had estimated $2,000 while Sevick had estimated $2,400.

To date bills total $1,112 over the $2,400 estimate and the job is not yet complete.

Thalfault said he has received no correspondence from Sevick, nor does he have any extra expenses involved or how much the job will eventually cost. He said he understands blasting has been done at the dump, but he has not yet received a bill for this.

The installation of the curtain drains around the dump was ordered by the State Health Department to avoid further pollution of homes on Charter Rd.

Special Constables

This fall is looking for residents interested in serving as special constables for dump duty to be paid $17.75 an hour.

It would be their job to supervise the dumping of rubbish and checking of people using the dump to insure it is only used by local residents.

Permitting Granted

Thalfault has granted the Tolland Historical Society permission to install three small 29-by-5-inch signs pointing the way to the Benson Homestead historical museum on Micofo Rd.

Thalfault will attend tomorrow's dedication ceremony for the Manchester Community College.

Painting Party

The interior of the town hall will get a badly needed repainting Saturday, through the joint efforts of the Junior Women's Club and the Lions Club.

The last time the Town Hall was painted inside was about 30 years ago, according to several long-time residents of the town.

The Junior's Conservation Committee initiated the painting project as part of its town beautification program.

The paint has been donated by Color Fashion of Rockville and the manpower will be supplied by the Lions Club members.

The committee yesterday planted several juniper and hemlock plants at Crandall's Park as another facet of its beautification program.

Story Hour

The Education Committee of the Juniors will hold a story hour for five-and-six-year-olds Saturday from 10 until 11 a.m. at the Tolland Public Library.

Mrs. Duane Thornton will serve as storyteller, assisted by Mrs. George Dalgati and Mrs. Robert Henry. Refreshments will be served to the children following the story hour.

Honor Student

Stephan P. Williams of 34 Willie Circle has been named to the spring term honor list at Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute. He earned this rating by maintaining a quality point average of 2.54.

Learned Talk Of Cheney Art On TV Program

Mrs. and Mrs. Horace B. Learned of 30 Forest St. will be guests on the WTRF Jean Colajanni governmental survey at 11. They will be interviewed on the life and work of Russell Cheney, a Manchester artist whose paintings will be exhibited at the Whittier Auditorium, 85 Main St., Sept. 20-Oct. 2 from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m.

The Learneds will talk about Cheney's dedication to a career in art, his subject matter and influence upon his style, and the effects of being a member of the high school including 1,000 students, 77 faculty members, five office personnel, eight teachers aides, six cafeteria staff members and eight custodians.

In orientating the students last week, Pushee said that assemblies were held at which all students received copies of the drug policy recently adopted by the Regional Board of Education, an addendum to the student handbook, student schedule to enroll in an additional regularly scheduled course in another department if they desire.

Rham's soccer team will open its regular season this Friday at home against the Pirates from Parish Hill. In addition to regular Charter Oak Conference fees, the Sachem accords them what is going on at Rham; the cafeteria's program also got off to a good start on opening day. As was the case last year, lunch tickets will be available again for $2 for five meals.

Part of the pay of a Roman legionnaire consisted of lump sum of salt. This practice led to the expression, "not worth his salt," to describe a person who does not earn his wages.

Quick Recognition

Quickest recognition ever offered a foreign country by the United States came when Panama was recognized three days after it was proclaimed a republic in 1901.

Not Worth His Salt

These may be purchased on Mondays at the cafeteria office.

Independent Study

Pushee reported that for the first time, three of Rham's students will be engaged in an independent study program in advanced French.

The three participating students, Betty Gregory, Donna Williams and Nancy Daley, will write a proposal concerning the area in which the study will be done, together with the goals set for themselves. Students, parents and the supervising teacher will sign a contract for the proposed program.

There will be no class meetings, but each student will meet with the teacher regularly to discuss the work and make progress reports. All of the reading, papers and conferences will be conducted in French.

According to Pushee, this new program enables motivated students to pursue special interests, as well as freeing them to enroll in an additional regularly scheduled course in another department if they desire.

The financing package includes a renewal agreement on $400 million in earlier bank loans, the $250-million government guarantee and $100 million in additional prepayments by Trans World Airlines, Eastern Airlines and Delta Air Lines on 88 Translins already ordered.

Daniel J. Haughton, Lockheed chairman, said at a news conference the company's with 764 convictions, compared budget indicated it would need with 161 in 1969.

LSJ Offenses Rise

LONDON (AP) — A huge increase in the number of people convicted of offenses involving the hallucinatory drug LSD was reported in Britain in 1970.

Pushee reported that for the first time, three of Rham's students will be engaged in an independent study program in advanced French.

Rockefeller

Rockefeller said he had talked to members of the advisory committee by telephone during the Altice crisis. They (the committee) agreed with me that there could be no further concessions to the prisoners and still preserve the concept of law in a free society," he said.

Meeting earlier with several members of the MCC Regional Council, mayors and first sergeants of area towns served by the college, and MCC staff and students.

Rockefeller said his views of the rebellion were "the same as everybody else's—no sympathy for the rebels."

"I wouldn't want to discuss any facet of the thing," said Rockefeller as he left his sixth Avenue apartment. "But you know under the heat of the situation that existed, tragedies do develop."

Thirty-two prisoners also were killed as 1,000 armed state policemen stormed the prison Monday morning.

One prison guard died of injuries suffered when inmates took over the prison.

Asked about Oswald's state of mind, Rockefeller said only, "I'd have to say that the new facts that have been uncovered . . . developed, just go to deep in the tragedy of the whole Altice affair."

Rockefeller said he would meet with legislative leaders on Thursday to discuss the "broadening" of a state inquiry into the prison revolt.

"This meeting will review the whole approach to the investigation of the Altice affair," he told newsmen.

Rockefeller said once investigation of the Altice affair is completed, he will be sure that it involves citizens that are representatives of all groups," he said.

Lockheed Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — The about $100 million of the $250 Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has borrowed an initial $50 million Treasury has agreed to guarantee through the end of 1975.

He said Lockheed's perch on the edge of bankruptcy during the past seven months was "the most anxious period in its 10-year history of our corporation" and that completion of the loan agreement would attract additional customers.

The loan was part of a $700-million credit package assembled Tuesday by the government to restructure the financial collapse.

Backstop Trouble

The Public Building Commission met Monday to discuss problems concerning the backstop which has been installed at the elementary school. A general meeting will meet at the field with Loublo this week to make a determination.

Architect Robert Leinhard stated the field to determine the location of the backstop when the ground was covered with snow, apparently unaware that the field had already been laid out beneath the snow. Atlantic Paving Co. subsequently installed the backstop out of line with the established baseline.

Leinhard suggested Monday that it would be more practical to resign the bases than to move the backstop.

Strange Possibilities

Two possibilities in the news contain so heavy a proportion of simple common sense, as opposed to what normally is called high national policy decisions, that they are almost unbelievable.

For one thing, we are now being asked to believe that President Nixon is actually considering cancelling out altogether that projected big underground nuclear explosion scheduled for next month under the Alutian island of Amchitka, and we are asked to believe, compounding the strain on our credulity and our awareness of past experience, that he is capable of doing this because recent analysis seems to suggest that the weapon would be tested for its one and only purpose: to test because we no longer plan to use it anyway.

Give up the biggest underground nuclear bang in history just because we may not have a practical use for it? We haven't done it yet. But if the President should so decide, it would become the first time in our history since we enslaved ourselves to the atom, when we have refrained from trying to do whatever we could try to do with it.

But we are allowed to glimpse, for a moment, the idea of what a different world this might be if nations could indeed refrain from trying to multiply themselves that they are still number one in their possession of senseless destructiveness.

There is a second unprecedented example of high common sense in the current news. The United States and Russia are going to get some of their military leaders together in Moscow next month to discuss the question of whether the fleet and planes they send out to show their respective flags in the various seas and oceans of the world really have to keep on playing the dangerous game of trying to bluff each other off course or off maneuver.

The fact that such a conference is even being held makes history in itself. But what if some kind of agreement should be reached, calling off the name of nerves the rival forces feel compelled to begin the minute they spot one another on their radar?

Who would guarantee that commanders wouldn't grow soft and indecisive?

Who would keep a proper tension of emity between the rank and file of the opposing forces?

What would keep discipline up to snuff?

Who could guarantee, then, that these forces would be really ready to fight each other, when the moment for that came?

One can see the dangers involved in any such understanding as might develop at the Moscow conference. If we ever got so we really couldn't show the flag to each other, preferably close to the other's throat, the whole historic game would be nearly up, and we might have to decide to base both our existences on the unshakable assumption that we are not going to be able to fight one another.

Hitherto, the world has run itself on the assumption that any two such powers will have to fight each other, sooner or later.

But suppose we should have begun reaching for a brand of common sense which says we really don't have to fight each other eventually, and therefore, don't have to play games of chicken every time we meet on the high seas. We haven't done it yet, but we have begun flirting with the idea. Even that much is revolutionary, more revolu-

The Facts Change

Yesterday, as this country tried to make up its mind about whether the forces of law and order should have shot their way into the prison at Attica, those inclining toward the affirmative had their case buttressed by the disclosure that the rebelling prisoners had slit the throats of eight of their hostages, thus proving their own barbarism and making it clear that further attempts to negotiate with them would have been a waste of time.

Under the coloration of this report, Governor Rockefeller was sure he was right, in backing the use of force. President Nixon said the Governor had no other choice, and Connecticut's Governor Meskell vouchsafed his own determination, in any such situation, to act fast and tough and never negotiate with anybody holding a gun.

Today the atmosphere which made such positions seem even reasonable has changed. The autopsy on the bodies of the hostages reveal no throats cut, or bodies savagely mutilated, but death by bullets which could only have come from the police attack. There were no convicted holding guns in a literal sense, although they were indeed threatening authority with other potentials for violence.

The change in the circumstantial evidence — it is still perhaps early to decide that anybody has yet reached the final, complete truth about what happened inside the prison — has tilted the scales of opinion back to the theory that Governor Rockefeller could have felt that the state had time to spare.

In any case, just as the first aftermath seemed to sustain the decision to go in, so now the aftermath to the aftermath casts doubt on the wisdom of that decision.

It also does something far worse than that. The forces of law and order, of disciplined firmness, have now been revealed in a position they themselves cannot possibly afford in such a situation. They have been caught in an effort, either deliberate or instinctive, to give the public the kind of story which would justify their own decisions. When the details they gave out as factual account are so quickly challenged and perhaps totally disproved, the injury is not only to them, as individuals, but to the attitudes and principles they claim to represent. There are bound to be enough mistakes in such a tragic situation on the part of everybody, to shame and sober everybody. And everybody, later on, has to pick up the pieces of the American picture and try to carry on.

Truth, whatever it reveals and wherever it points, has to be the first condition for that.

Design For A Train

As a former railway passenger who has helped create Amtrak by switching to cars or planes in recent years, I believe the new Government agency is on the wrong track. Trying to make train travel popular again by making it harder to find a train is probably the worst tradition, but a more radical departure is needed.

Amtrak ought to have its innovations on the premise that people who want air line speed and convenience are going to head directly for the airport, not the depot. It should cater instead to travelers who really want to ride on trains.

There have been proposals that train travelers be served their meals at their seats, the way the airlines do it. This is wrong. It would be better for Amtrak to provide a special portion of the train that is set aside for meals. Some simple but descriptive name is needed for this innovation — "dining car," for instance.

Another innovation Amtrak might consider is a mobile tavern attached to the train. The chairs should be comfortable and the air informal. No hostess should be provided to encourage friendliness, a matter that can safely be left up to the bartender and his frothy wares. The name of the mobile tavern doesn't matter, but my suggestion would be that it be called a "bar car."

These travelers who insist on privacy should be able to rent small rooms equipped with beds, but Americans are generally a gregarious lot and would be nice to permit them to mingle during the day. Such signs as "Do Not Flatten Seat Belts" are probably unnecessary, but they should be encouraged to walk around and stretch their legs.

No innovation program is complete these days without a bow to ecology. While Detroit is still making do with these air-polluting locomotives, what Amtrak could come up with is a replacement for its oil-burning locomotives by use of steam locomotives, thus getting a jump on automotive engineers who are trying to revive the motive method pioneered by the Stanley Steamer.

The locomotive should be large and black and should come equipped with steam whistles that can be heard for miles, advertising Amtrak's wares by awakening sleepers in darkened towns making them stir uneasily and wish they'd bought a ticket to anywhere.

The big, black engine should be commanded by a lanky sort of fellow sitting at the window so boys and girls could look up at him and wave. When he waved back—and he would—Amtrak would have just captured a new set of potential customers. — ROBERT S. WELLS IN THE NATIONAL OBSERVER

PURPLE FLOWERING RASPBERRY. Nature Study by Sylvia Otis

Inside Report Vietnam's Worst Province

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

PHU MY DISTRICT — Binh Dinh Province, South Vietnam — This province, for 30 years a Communist stronghold and now target of a new anti-Communist drive, is testing whether the Saigon government can ever control Vietnam sufficiently to remove the perpetual threat of the Communists cutting the nation in two.

Superficially, Binh Dinh is as bad as ever (rated 4th out of 44 provinces in degree of pacification). Its feeble local leadership and local troops permit North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units (over 6,000 strong) to roam a countryside still packed with covert Communist sympathizers. To pacify Binh Dinh will trigger regression in government control nationwide.

As a former railway passenger who has helped create Amtrak by switching to cars or planes in recent years, I believe the new Government agency is on the wrong track. Trying to make train travel popular again by making it harder to find a train is probably the worst tradition, but a more radical departure is needed.

Some of us who believe aren't very good proof of your compassion for humanity. Let us show it more so that your prayer may be sung on every continent and far-off island. Amen.

WELL, YES, I GUESS YOU COULD SAY THE WEEDS ARE GETTING A TEEINY BIT HIGH IN THE TOWN SIDEWALKS, OLGA, BUT... OLGA? — WHERE ARE YOU, DEAR?!

Political Parade

By DAVID S. BRODER The Washington Post

SAN JUAN — After a four-year absence from the national political stage provided by the national Governors' Conference, George Corley Wallace chose to make his public reappearance dressed in a light blue shirt, a bright red tie, a navy blue blazer with brass buttons, and gray slacks. With his pompadour carefully fluffed to give him every possible quarter-inch of extra height, he looked just a bit like an aging musical comedy star brought back from retirement for a revival of "Dames at Sea."

The timing and delivery are almost professional. Wallace's hearing has deteriorated, and he often has to turn to an aide standing next to him to have the question repeated. But once he has his cue, he knows exactly what to say.

The Washington newsmen who serve as his fella at these performances are now on a chummy basis with the governor. He first names them as persistently as President Nixon does at his press conferences, and they chuckle appreciatively at even his most familiar sallies.

Incredible as it may sound, Wallace has become one of the boys. Just another politician, made a bull's-eye target by a standing next to him to have the question repeated. But once he has his cue, he knows exactly what to say.

Not having to press so hard, Wallace can let his natural talents as a showman come through. His press conference has become a bit of show biz, with star and audience both knowing in advance what the questions and answers are going to be, but enjoying the familiar routine.

Governor, what do you think of those signs denouncing you that the demonstrators carried? "Well, the only one I saw said 'Fudge go home, and I know they didn't mean me. I'm from Alabama.'"

Governor, are you worried coming to this island as an advocate of white supremacy? "I don't advocate white supremacy," (a wink) "I just want to let people decide for themselves. I'm not an anthropologist or sociologist or any kind ofologist—I'd just let you decide for yourself."

The timing and delivery are almost professional. Wallace's hearing has deteriorated, and he often has to turn to an aide standing next to him to have the question repeated. But once he has his cue, he knows exactly what to say.

So long as both the major parties resist the temptation to abandon their own traditional platforms through open exploitation of the underlying race issue in America, there will always be a stable number of disaffected whites available for a Wallace-style candidate.

Inside Report

(Continued From Page Six) publicly upgraded the offending district chief during the Binh Dinh campaign. Simultaneously, the U.S. advisory effort was rejuvenated with advisory teams returned to the districts they had abandoned in Vietnam's survival. With the Americans finally moving to the front lines instead of behind them, it is up to the Vietnamese themselves to achieve control of the least populated areas still controlled by the Communists. Their fate depends upon it.

Nevertheless, Binh Dinh has a long way to go. Thanks to a more rigorous reporting system instituted by Vann, U.S. advisors now rate 58 of the province's hamlets as Communist-controlled (compared with only four when Vann took over). After the recent National Assembly elections, the Vietnam underground showed its muscle by conducting voter cards throughout the province.

Indeed, Binh Dinh's chronic poor local leadership permeates—especially here in Phu My district, perhaps the worst district in the country's worst province. RF and PF soldiers, scared out of their homes by the thought of colliding with North Vietnamese regulars, simply abandon outposts adjacent to the district's seven Communist-controlled hamlets one night.

But Phu My district chief, a lethargic ARVN major, makes no effort to keep the territories on duty. He has simply ignored Communist activity, including one occasion when he was gunned down and his trench with machine guns and a mortar.

Such lethargy is an old story in Binh Dinh. What is new is that the corps commander, Lt. Gen. Ngo Dinh, is doing some thing about it. Despite an anti-Communist drive, he has been aggressive and cooperates well with Vann. Thus, when informed by U.S. advisors about the Phu My problem, the general did a most un-Vietnamese thing: He extended the province's boundaries to include the area around the city of Qui Nhon. He has his cue, he knows exactly what to say.

Family Planning Program Successful in Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The study convinced state officials of the need for birth control information, and in 1966 the state attorney general retained the law to allow the spread of such information.

Beasley and his group immediately opened an experimental clinic in rural Lincoln Parish (county). Within 18 months, Lincoln Parish showed a 32 per cent decrease in the number of births to indigenous women and a 40 per cent drop in the number of out-of-wedlock births.

On June 27, 1967, a major family planning clinic opened in New Orleans, and the same success story was written.

The program grew rapidly and by last fall attained statewide status with 170 clinics and centers staffed by more than 600 employees.

Family Planning, Inc. is a private, non-profit organization based in New Orleans. It is a member of the Planned Parenthood-World Population organization based in New York.

Women learn about the program through hospital visits following childbirth, through the program's "outreach" staff, through referrals from other agencies or simply by word of mouth.

TORONTO (AP) — Rayanne for a long time, like the legal Niven says a feminist banner profession.

She says what she is doing she's doing, but she doesn't really want to run out and march with it.

She says she is surprised when she meets me, that's the initial reaction.

She says the surprise soon fades, but the surprise, comments and questions have made her conscious of feminism.

"The banner kind of comes with it. But for women I know who are entering professions, it's a job and we're going to do the best we can. I think that's the only way to be accepted. I don't think marching can help.

"Someone my age has difficulty evaluating the situation. This is the transition. I don't think things are perfect, but I think the worst is over."

Miss Niven says she wants to keep working whether she marries or not.

"By the time you put in four years in university and three years more study, you've invested a lot of time."

Surplus U.S. Castoffs Latest Fad

By DON COOK
The Los Angeles Times

PARIS — The sign over the store proclaimed: "Surplus U.S."

The window was piled with old U.S. Army trousers, shirts, musette bags, knives and flashlights.

And the salesman was sporty in an authentic blue Club Scout shirt.

The store is on the left bank here, on the Rue De Valenciennes, in the heart of student territory.

World War II. I've been wearing it all over Europe this summer just because it's really comfortable."

Susan Pruck, 14, Brooklyn, N.Y., high school student, and Michael Dash, New York film maker, each found uses for gun mask bags. She bought her's back home for $2 and packed it with hairbrush, camera, and work shirt. Dash bought his in an Athens flea market simply "because I needed a shoulder bag" for his trip through Europe on a motorcycle.

Monopix, the Paris equivalent of Woolworth's, is doing a brisk business in $6 long-sleeved T-shirts emblazoned with such emblems as "Pop's Army" and "West Navy Force." But they've also got "the real thing — of- ficial Boy Scouts of America, sanctioned shirts, and we're selling a lot of them."

In the back-to-school department at Printemps, biggest of Paris' department stores, children are scrambling for patches and patches is ample, such as "Apollo," "Nasa," "Erie County Fire School," and "Texas."

A French dentist, student named Jean Luc, wearing a bat-green jacket with "U.S. Army" on the pocket and assorted chevrons and insignia on the sleeves, said:

"I bought it at the flea market for 60 francs (about $9). I was the narrow cut — not that you can't tell that it isn't a real army jacket.

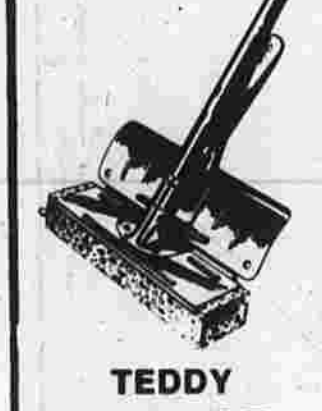

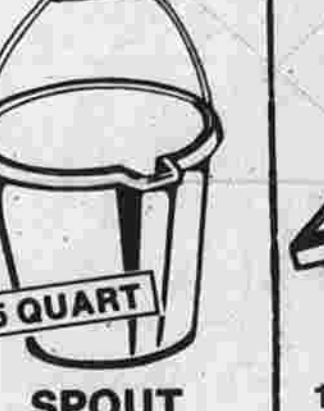

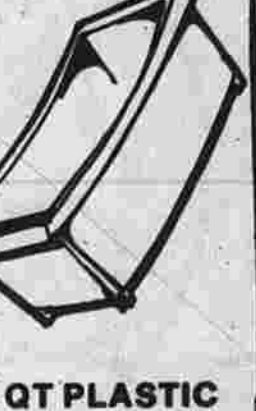

"But it better not be anyway. I was riding a train with a policeman yesterday and he told me that if the patches were real, it would be illegal for me to be wearing them."

Not Tiger Fan?

A young German drinking beer in a sidewalk cafe at the Place de l'Opera was wearing an olive drab T-shirt with a military-style patch on one sleeve reading, "Detroit Tigers."

A pretty, 17-year-old Bryan girl named Aia, strolling along the Boulevard St. Michel, in a military shirt with the label, "New Army," said:

Together, they constitute one more sign of the times.

All over Europe, U.S. Army castoffs and surplus property — along with imitations and counterfeits — are the latest fad.

Can't Explain Fad

The more patches the better. Seventh Army, Helicon-Wheeler Division, the Big Red One, 1st Cavalry insignia are gracing all kinds of unimilitary shapes and figures, male and female.

And nobody wearing the stuff can quite explain why it's suddenly "in mode."

"Students have always bought clothes here and we have a lot of customers who are hunters and fishermen, longtime regulars," said Broussat. "But this summer — fantastic!"

Broussat even stocks some gas masks but apparently only as props; their sale is illegal, he said.

Vernon Director Reports on Status Of Work-Study Program

Reporting to the Board of Directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce yesterday, Michael McGuire, newly appointed director of the Rockville High School Work-Study Program, expressed the need to get the program across to the public.

McGuire is the school's first such director. His appointment was announced yesterday. He gives all three area high schools, Rockville, Tolland and Ellington full-time directors.

McGuire said the program started off this year with 40 students involved. It is primarily designed for students who do not plan to continue on to higher education.

Commenting on a questionnaire sent out to area businessmen this summer, McGuire said the 200 sent out, only 24 came back. He noted that he considered any survey that received 10 per cent of the questionnaire back, a success. He said that six of the returns indicated an interest in participating in the program, 14 said no and three businesses were non-committal.

McGuire said the 40 students participating in the program are not just looking for jobs for the students but rather looking for work that fills the needs of each student.

In the letter sent out with the survey sheet, McGuire explained that the survey was being made to determine what potential work training stations are available.

Signs of Religious Dissent On Increase in Jerusalem

By MARCUS ELIAHON
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel represents a solid phalanx of Jewish thought... "right" Wrong. The idea of a unumquodam feeling toward Judaism gets a drubbing every Saturday, and between times as well, in incidents involving the most Orthodox followers of the faith.

Signs of religious dissension have increased lately. Hoodlums in Jerusalem beat up a Neturei Karta member and shaved off his beard. Others set a dog upon a group of religious students. Fights internationalized. Its leaders have broken out several times refrain from traveling in occupied Arab territory, "the scourge of Zionism," said the Neturei Karta member.

Bible stipulates there can be no state of Israel until the Messiah comes and redeems the Jewish people. It censures Zionism as usurping the Messiah's prerogative and has desecrated the Temple Mount.

subtle in Jerusalem, which politely referred the matter to the police.

The group's leader, Rabbi Amram Blau, was asked once how he felt about Israel's being led by a woman, Premier Golda Meir.

"To us it makes no difference," he replied. "We don't recognize the state, we don't recognize its government, and it follows that we don't care whether it is headed by a man or a woman."

HARTFORD (AP) — A bureaucratic error has left dozens of large buildings with full tanks of fuel oil that is illegal to burn, State Health Commissioner Franklin Poole said Monday.

On Sept. 1, a new state law requiring all heavy users of heating oil—but not private homeowners—to switch to low sulfur fuel oil became effective.

The new law limits to 1 per cent the allowable sulfur content for fuel oil used by large buildings and institutions. Normal home heating oil contains less than 1 per cent sulfur.

The Clean Air Commission, charged with enforcing the regulations, in August granted a blanket exemption to the institutions, apartments and other big users of fuel oil.

Poole said many of them filled their tanks with higher sulfur oil on the assumption the exemption would stand and they would have until March 1, when the exemption would have expired, to burn the oil.

But Poole said Monday that state attorney general's office has ruled the commission failed to hold the necessary public hearings and to issue the proper notices before granting the exemption—making it meaningless.

The program is about 40 per cent complete, at a cost of $28 million. The proposal was to that supplies of the fuel oil in extend the sewer to remaining building tanks be taken and built-up sections of Enfield.

Firemen Save Ailing Octopi

BOSTON (AP) — "It's a matter of life and death—my octopi need oxygen," said the frantic professor to the fireman.

So the fireman rushed across the street with an oxygen tank to a hotel and revived the babies.

The Brandeis University professor, Jerome Wodinsky, had been transporting the octopuses from the Bahamas to the New England Aquarium where he planned to use them in animal behavior experiments.

When he arrived at the hotel at 1 a.m. Tuesday he realized that the octopuses in little plastic bags, were dying from lack of oxygen. So he ran across the street to a firehouse for a fireman and an oxygen tank.

Work Stall At Center Under Study

HARTFORD (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has called in to investigate the labor dispute at the University of Connecticut Medical-Dental School.

A spokesman for the construction firm Lasker Goldman, which filed the complaint, said the firm and the union have no argument, but the union has stopped the firm's work.

The NLRB investigators reportedly were at the site in Farmington on Tuesday.

"We've lived up to all the parts of our agreement," the company spokesman said. "The unions have a disagreement with the school, not us. It's wrong for us to suffer."

The complaint is directed at both members of the Electricians Local 35 and the Plumbers Local 78. The complaint says a total of 100 workers have been away from their jobs at Lasker Goldman for nearly two weeks.

The disagreement centered around the alleged employment by the school of nonunion workers for maintenance duties on parts of the project that have been completed.

Union leaders have generally refused to comment on the alleged slowdown. There has been no official strike, but the company says about 20 per cent of the work force has been calling in sick since Sept. 2.

The legislature's state and union development committee will resume hearings Friday on reasons for the long delay in completion of the medical-dental school.

The hearing will be at 10:15 a.m. in the State Capitol, with UConn president Homer Babidge one of those scheduled to testify.

Mayor Lindsay Renews Plea For Gun Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay today renewed his plea that Congress enact stiff gun control legislation, saying "the handgun is the greatest instrument of death and violence and crime in our nation."

In remarks for the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, the mayor said strict regulation of handguns "must be the highest priority crime control action of our national government."

Citing statistics to show both the increase in crime and the number of deaths caused by handguns, Lindsay said one figure stood out: Of the 100 police officers killed last year, 73 were shot with handguns.

"There is no more striking indicator of the instability of our society and the fear that afflicts citizens and police here than from other states or from foreign countries," he said.

"In the past few years," Lindsay said, "no crime has been committed with any of the 20 times greater than Denmark's 20,000 licensed handguns, but the illegal guns still Great Britain."

Turkey's Decision Key Step To Cut Drug Inflow to U.S.

BY ANDY BALAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Turkish farmers who took up opium poppy cultivation in Asia Minor in the 12th century would have hardly believed it if they had been told that a nation to be born more than 200 years later would persuade their descendants to put an end to their means of livelihood.

Yet Turkey's recent agreement to eliminate by next June opium poppy production may well be the most important step taken so far to curb the inflow of dangerous drugs into the United States, where narcotics addiction has reached major proportions.

The Turkish government's decision follows four years of persuasion by the United States, which loaned Ankara $3 million to help control cultivation and distribution of opium.

Under the 1968 Turkish-American Peace Treaty, Turkey was to eliminate the illicit cultivation of opium and find suitable crop substitutes for Turkish farmers who earned their living by raising poppies.

Turkey, meanwhile, has been using the loan to train a narcotics squad of over 400 men. The Turkish government has raised the price it pays for opium purchased from farmers, hoping to discourage illicit trafficking.

Turkish opium is estimated to account for nearly 80 per cent of illegal heroin used in the United States today.

While drug addiction has turned into a serious problem in this country, the Seljuk Turks, or Ottoman Turks, or to Turkish nation hardly ever experienced a headache of the kind.

Opium poppy production in Turkey dates back to long before the discovery of the American continent.

Doctor Named By Foundation

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. John H. Knowles, director of the Massachusetts General Hospital, says he believes his election as president of the Rockefeller Foundation means that the foundation will take a greater interest in health and medicine.

Knowles, 45, was named Monday to head the New York-based foundation. He will take over Jan. 1.

Recently the foundation, which appropriates more than $50 million a year, has emphasized agricultural research.

Modern Bible Translation A Publishing Phenomenon

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — So much did the fear of misrepresenting God's word nag at Dr. Kenneth N. Taylor and his team that he nearly lost his voice. At least that's how a psychiatrist analyzed it after numerous specialists could find no physical explanation.

"God was looking down on me as I worked," says Dr. Kenneth N. Taylor in describing the tensions that virtually blocked his ability to speak in the early years of the long-term project.

But now it's done, and his voice, though still subdued, is restored, and the 16-year task which he carried out has become the publishing phenomenon of the times.

It's called "The Living Bible."

Produced through a new method of paraphrasing, renders the Scriptures in modern style on the basis of the meaning of the passages rather than simply presenting the usual verbatim translation.

"So far as we know, it's the first time that this principle has been used throughout the Bible," Dr. Taylor said in an interview. He noted that some others have used the technique only spottily.

"It's a thought-for-thought translation instead of word for word," he said. In editorial parlance, that's called a "free" translation, but he says it's not written for the sake of clarity, organization and style.

"You can be much more accurate in conveying the content thought-by-thought than word-for-word because Hebrew and Greek are so different from our English in their approach," he said.

In any case, in a day when the rash of new Bible translations would seem to make an overabundance of them, the results of the work have been spectacular.

Its very inception sparked a major new enterprise, Tyndale House Publishers, of Wheaton, Ill., now doing a $5 million annual business. Portions of the manuscript, issued separately as free distribution.

Since then, as Dr. Taylor continued over the years to produce the entire Bible now under three other portions of the Bible Center. A 41-story hotel is also under construction in Tokyo.

Leaders of Russia Push Hectic 'Stop China' Drive

By WILLIAM L. BYAN AP Special Correspondent

Soviet diplomacy seems far from sure where it's going, but in a hurry to get there, top leaders and diplomats are traveling in what looks like a frantic "stop China" drive.

In particular the plan of Premier Alexei Kosygin to visit Canada seems part of an effort to get in Soviet links before President Nixon goes to Peking.

The Russians are in a tough spot with regard to China. Moscow has raised indignation against exclusion of Red China from the United Nations. Now Peking seems about to get into the world organization and the Russians can do nothing openly but support it.

What they might do covertly would be quite another question.

In any case, the Russians have prepared a long bill of particulars available for anybody's use. It charges:

"That Red China is against world peace. Moscow points to China's rejection of Soviet proposals for conferences on disarmament and nuclear weapons. It's alleged that China has some 100,000 military troops in East Europe and set up an ally in Yugoslavia, Albania, and Romania. This suspicion opposes collective security in Europe and Asia, encourages military psychosis in Albania and tries to create tension in Southeast Europe.

The Soviet offensive has a look of emergency improvising, vice president of the parent U.S.S.R. To support this, seemed better than doing nothing.

Museum Sues In Film Mess

STAMFORD (AP) — A historical museum in Norwalk is suing the Metro-Goldwyn Mayer movie company for $12,000 allegedly failing to clean up the museum after shooting a movie scene there.

The scene for the movie, "Dark Shadows," was shot in the basement, rotunda and second floor of the Lockwood-Mathews Mansion Museum for three weeks in the spring of 1970.

According to a writ filed in court here by the museum, MGM agreed in a contract that the museum would get $12,000 for the use of the building for the filming. But when the movie makers left, the suit said, "refuse and materials" were left and spray paint on the walls was not removed.

Maryland's State House Gets Electronic Watchdog

By JOHN WOODFIELD ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The already tight security net surrounding Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel has taken yet another electronic step into 20th century surveillance.

Closed-circuit television cameras have been mounted atop various state office buildings to provide Mandel's State Police security detail with a panoramic view of the Governor's Mansion as well as the state parking lot some 100 yards away that doubles as a landing pad for Mandel's helicopter.

Just as on any other television set, State Police in their basement headquarters of the mansion can change channels to obtain just the right angle of the mansion parking lot they want to view.

New Haven Man Dies of Gunshot

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Anthony Granata, who police say had a gambling record, died Monday of complications from gunshot wounds he received August 24 in East Haven.

Police in East Haven say the man was shot by Anthony Colavolpe, 31, of New Haven in a dispute over a woman.

Colavolpe has been freed on $25,000 bond, charged with assault with intent to murder.

The Granata died in Yale-New Haven Hospital.

Revolution of Agriculture Reaping Results in India

By LYNN C. NEWLAND
 applied to great farms in production in Asia, mainly due to the Green Revolution in reaping significant results in India. The revolution in India actually has been a "green" revolution because wheat farmers have benefited most from agricultural technology, often at the expense of other crops, particularly pulses which are an important part of the Indian diet.

The advice comes from Dr. Howard E. Ray, who for five years has worked throughout India on the Ford Foundation's agricultural advisory staff.

He believes this vast nation is close to being able to feed itself. "It's still not time to be euphoric, there's still a long way to go."

The government says India produced a record high of more than 107 million tons of food production in 1970-71, an 8 per cent increase over the previous year.

India imports food grains in lesser amounts each year. Such imports total 3.82 million tons in 1970, compared with 3.87 million in 1969 and 5.69 million in 1968.

Last March, the food minister, Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, declared that India would be able to halt the import of all food grains by the end of this year. If India were forced to import grain after that time, he said, she would buy them on the world market, discontinuing concessional imports, mostly rapid mechanization of farms from the United States.

Copper Bands Boys' Sentence

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Circuit Court Judge Russell C. Roberts sentenced four youths Tuesday to wearing copper bands around their wrists for 12 months.

That was one of the conditions he imposed in giving one state for food, believes food production is outpacing population growth. "Our food production is growing at the rate of 5.8 per cent a year," Shinde said, "while population is increasing at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent."

Shinde, however, admits to "other problems because our production is increasing so fast."

From the government's view, it is not the procurement of farmers' crops, storage of grains, retail price stability and the influx of eight million refugees at the National Football Foundation's 34th annual dinner in New York, Dec. 7.

If you are one of those souls who can't quite get going until after the second cup of coffee, you may not enjoy these "post-reveille games of 70 questions" and how many different ways can you explain those dribbles of blood on your chin.

If the questions aren't enough, the second part of the little one's vocabulary usually is a demand. His first full sentence may well be: "I want that!" again with a gurgling hand that may indicate any number of things, or nothing at all. He could conceivably want the "Whas at?" and the "I wanta" may alternate so fast you can't remember whether you're explaining something or fending off his latest demand.

Job Fund, Zoning Topics for Sept. 21

A special meeting of the Board of Directors has been set for Tuesday, Sept. 21 to discuss the Emergency Employment Program and various matters with members of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The discussion of the Emergency Employment Program was requested by Mayor James Part. The town has filed an application for $138,228.96 to fund 23 jobs in the town administration, including five new positions with the Board of Education. Additional jobs on the state level will be funded with other federal funds under the program.

In a letter to Town Manager Robert Welas, requesting the discussion, Part said "it is my feeling that the opportunity to provide jobs for unemployed Mancheset people is the earliest possible consideration of the board."

The state has given a "verbal indication" that the town's application will be approved. State officials have advised the town to plan on hiring the new people as of Nov. 1.

In a memo to the directors from Thomas O'Marra, assistant town counsel, it is noted that in order for the federal money to be available by Nov. 1, an application for a monthly installment of the funds would have to be sent to the State Personnel Department by Oct. 1. In effect, shopping centers in the town would have to appropriate the various 10 month salaries for the new jobs before that date, in anticipation of the receipt of the federal funds.

In his memo, O'Marra notes that the new employees will not start until the federal funds are received.

The initial funding period of the program would end Aug. 31, 1972. Additional federal money would be made available under the program until national unemployment dropped below 4 1/2 per cent for three consecutive months.

Town Planner J. Eric Potter has recommended that the discussions between the directors and PZC members touch on plans for Laurel Lake and any other areas where the board can be purchased in class, each participant will be expected to Corcoran, chairman of the board of Christian education; O'Reilly, director of public works, kitchen ranges for 40 million have recommended that the

Atty. Pigeon Honored at Testimonial

Atty. Robert J. Pigeon, who resigned his post as state's attorney last June, was honored at a dinner last night at Pigeon's in Bolton.

Some 250 relatives, friends and associates in various fields of law, attended the affair and presented Pigeon with a color-tinted portrait.

A lawyer for 33 years, Pigeon plans to continue practicing privately on a limited basis. His headquarters will be in Watford Springs.

He served as full-time state's attorney for three years. Prior to being appointed as state's attorney, he was public defender for Tolland County Superior Court. He has served in the General Assembly as corporation counsel for the former City of Rockville, as prosecutor for the former City Court of Rockville and at one time also served as judge of that court.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Refusal to Work

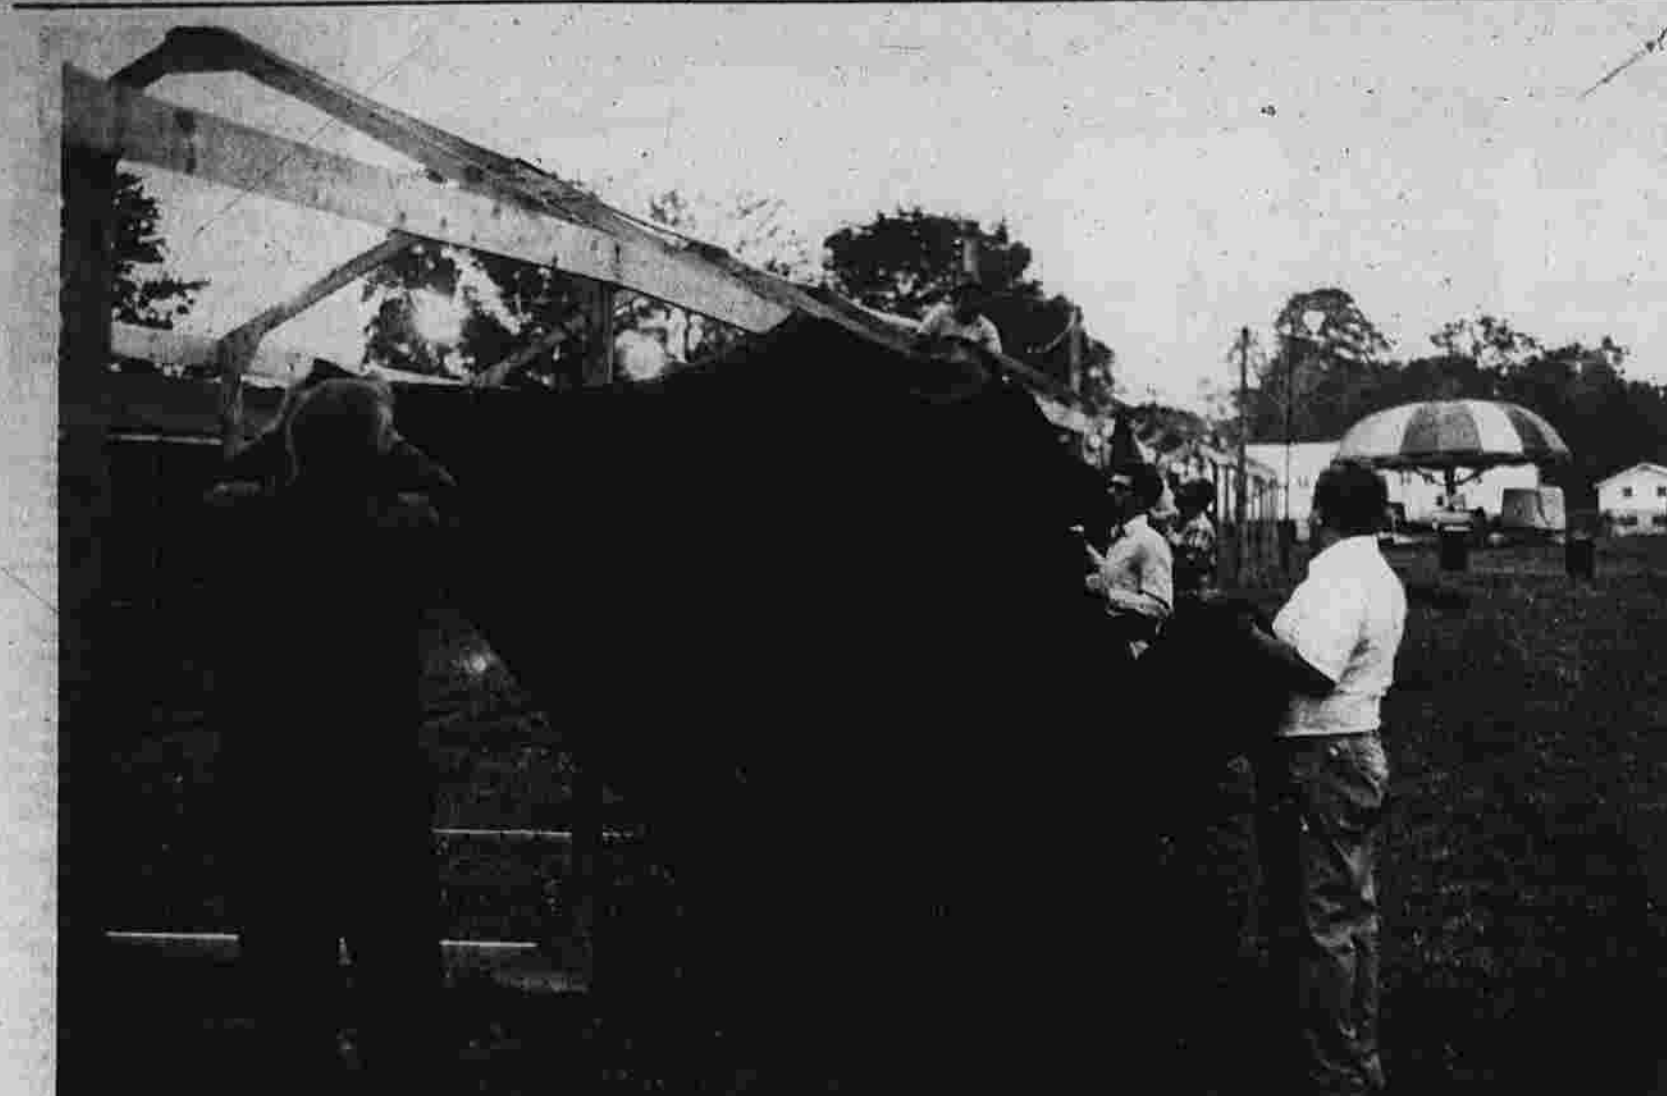

Out of work? To millions of people in that predicament, unemployment compensation has been a Godsend. But in order to collect those weekly checks, you have to be willing to take another job if one turns up. This raises problems: How willing do you have to be? If the job is good but the hours are bad, must you accept anyhow—or has your right to compensation? Generally speaking, the law makes reasonable allowance for hardship cases. For example: An unemployed woman was offered a job on the night shift at a nearby factory. When she refused to take it, her unemployment compensation was cut off. But in a court hearing, she told the judge that she would have had to walk home in the dark through a tough neighborhood—and that she had been terrorized twice by nocturnal burglars. The judge decided that her refusal to take the job was justified, and ordered her compensation payments reinstated. That does not mean, however, that you can wait serenely until the perfect job comes along. Another case involved a restaurant worker who, accustomed to working from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m., turned down a job that started two hours later in the day. "Frankly," he explained, "it's just too hard for me to change my hours. I'm used to the old way." But this time, a court denied him unemployment compensation. He was out of work, noted the court, more by choice than by necessity. Suppose a job that is offered would create religious conflicts. A number of cases have arisen involving Seventh-Day Adventists who were not willing to work on Saturday. Almost invariably, the courts have accepted this as a legitimate reason for rejecting a job, with no effect on the person's right to collect unemployment compensation. "Work which requires one to violate his moral standards," said one court, "is not suitable work." An American Bar Association public service feature by Will Bernard. © 1971 American Bar Association.

Peaks Claim Lives Daily In Austria

By WERNER VOLZMANN VIENNA (AP) — Nearly 300 persons died in mountain accidents in Austria in 1970 and officials fear that, with a continuation of the tourist boom, the death toll may increase further in years to come. While such large-scale tragedies as the death of 10 West German students and three teachers in April 1964 on the Dachstein mountain has remained an isolated case, police reports in summer 1970 daily record the death of one or more mountaineers. Police often blame inexperience and a lack of proper mountain equipment — many tourists undertake mountain climbs in low shoes for instance—as causes of accidents, but some doctors think the real reason is mistakes of a mental origin. "Humans are trying to take on difficult climbs, which is typical for them. We search for our limits and the limit is getting farther and farther away from us," says Dr. Gerhard Barolin of Graz University's neurology clinic. The doctor said it had been established some types of persons were more accident-prone than others, but that the tendency of self-punishment—or even camouflaged suicides—would very seldom occur in the mountains. Barolin said psycho-analytical conceptions such as "over-compensation" and "inferiority complexes" caused mountain accidents, however. Handicapped persons for instance tried to give a better performance than able-bodied mountaineers. Young persons on a dare often were driven to dangerous climbs. Barolin also said that, especially in mountain areas where experienced persons often refuse to accept advice of mountaineers who grew up in the regions and know the dangers. "Because of insufficiency and insecurity, the inexperienced climber feels he has to compensate himself by being 'good,'" Barolin said, adding that results of such mental mistakes often result in fatal accidents.

Monkeys Are Funny

PORT HARCOURT, Nigeria (AP) — There are enough problems in Port Harcourt's export department stores without having to put up with monkeys of real monkeys. One Nigerian housewife was upset when a payee monkey perched over the store entrance and scampered with her key. About 10 minutes later, a merry chase witnessed by chattering but sympathetic onlookers, the young lady retrieved her key, put it back on and walked away embarrassed but stylish again.

The recent rains did not dampen the enthusiasm of townspeople preparing for the annual Harvest Fair. Hebron Last Minute Fair Details Are Nearing Completion

Fireworks, sky divers, horse shows, oxen pulls—these are only a few of the main attractions scheduled for this week-end's Hebron Harvest Fair. As Friday's opening approaches, Leary's lot on Wall St., despite the heavy rains the past few days, is rapidly being transformed into fair grounds to accommodate the 60 booths, live stock and demonstration rings, amusements, singing groups and activities booked by the Lions Club.

Coming Thursday Draft Vote Worries Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a crucial vote on the draft-extension bill expected Thursday, Pentagon chiefs and senior Armed Services Committee members are trying to convince senators that continued lack of draft authority will create a military manpower crisis. Sen. John Stennis, the committee chairman, told newsmen Tuesday he is worried about the outcome of a vote on a motion to table the bill to extend the draft two years.

Student Pool Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Nixon administration may have to face up to a politically unpalatable decision to go to a draft pool of about half a million recent college and junior-college graduates to prevent dangerous depletion of the armed services.

Balloon Gave Grand View Of Battlefield

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — High above the muddy, churning, trench-laced and barbed-wire-strewn World War I battlefield in France, Lt. John MacGillchrist surveyed the fighting as a balloon observer with the British Royal Flying Corps.

He viewed infantry assaults, artillery shelling and gas attacks from a perch up to 6,000 feet above ground. Scanning the German lines with field glasses, he relayed details of enemy positions and activities down a telephone line extended along the cable linking him to the ground.

Other times, he had a grandstand view of aerial dogfights between German and Allied aircraft which swirled around his balloon.

MacGillchrist, 78, recalls those days from his San Diego apartment, surrounded by paintings representative of his years as an architectural and engineering illustrator. He still paints seascapes along the Pacific coast.

But the stinging he made while an aerial observer remain his favorites. Often he did the first rough sketches while witnessing dogfights from his balloon.

"The Germans were too busy to worry about me then," MacGillchrist said. "But there were other occasions when they came after the bags."

Once German planes attacked a line of observation balloons, "It was a turkey shoot," MacGillchrist remembers. "The sky from north to south was lined with smoke trails, balloons falling in flames, and their observers leaping out in their parachutes."

MacGillchrist says his balloon was not attacked on that occasion because, at 6,000 feet, it was 2,000 feet above the planes and "I guess they were low on gas because they didn't come up after me."

Other times, airplanes from Allied guns caused his balloon to sag.

Four times he had to jump. His closest call is one he remembers well.

"The Germans usually attacked from above," he says. "This time, an Albatross surprised me by coming from under a line of balloons. Bullets ripped through the basket. One hit my gunmetal. The bag exploded. It dropped out of the basket like a hot brick. My winchman hauled the burning basket into the wind to protect me from having it fall on my parachute, which was drifting in the opposite direction. Even so, burning debris floated by, leaving long trails of hot embers."

MacGillchrist was descending over a landscape criss-crossed with barbed wire.

"Luckily I drifted right in front of one of our batteries which was firing. The gunners kept coming running out to fetch me to their lines. They cut up my silk parachute for souvenirs."

Jordan Hangs Two Guerrillas

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Two guerrillas from the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine were hanged at Amman central prison today, the government announced.

The two, Mohammed Khalil Khatat and Elias Bilal, were found guilty by court-martial of murdering a government employee last March and King Hussein approved the death sentence, a government spokesman said.

Their deaths brought to 12 the number of guerrillas executed in Jordan this year after courts found them guilty of murder or sabotage.

He has been a supporter of the Greater Miami Philharmonic Orchestra and at the university has contributed to the Ade Memorial Administration Building, Arthur A. Unique Bank Operated In New Mexico

By GRACE MARIE PRATHER Albuquerque Journal Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — "It is a bank here. Her depositors draw out more money than they put in, they pay no interest on loans, all deposits are made in the summer and all withdrawals in the winter. Although her business operates in the red, her real profits are measured by the success of her depositors—all of whom are her children."

"When my children work in the summer and earn money, they give it to me—the bank—then when they need it in the winter, they get it back plus more of course. But if they don't put any money in, they don't get any out," Mrs. McDaniels said.

A mother of eight, Mrs. McDaniels doesn't think there are any bad kids. "They're just brought up wrong. I tell them whatever they do will always be with them. I can't be with them all the time—no mother can. They have to live for themselves and if they quit school or waste their lives, they're the ones who have to live with it," she said.

His philosophy and method apparently work, as evidenced by the accomplishments of his children. Gordon, 17, starting center for the Rio Grande High basketball team, was selected as a delegate to New Mexico State University. Boy's State. Graduating senior at Rio Grande, was a delegate to the White House Conference on Youth.

Timothy, 22, is an ex-wrestler from Rio Grande and now in the Navy fleet wrestling champion. He plans to finish college when he starts work at the Rio Grande. Patrick, 24, manages a store in California and Carl, 22, done in class. One machine per a Vietnam veteran with field pupil. Special saving classes at commendation is employed old KATHLEEN STILES, 16, is a nurse at the White House Conference on Youth.

"I'm probably more pleased with them than the children are with themselves," Mrs. McDaniels said. But she hasn't been easy. Mrs. McDaniels came to Albuquerque 17 years ago with five children, just after her divorce was finalized. She rents a four-year-old house and works as a housekeeper and babysitter, has brought in money and done other odd jobs to make ends meet.

"I want to give my kids what they need. I've always worked to do it. If you don't work, you have to live on the street. If you have a job, you're your own person and can live the way you want to," she said. Mrs. McDaniels has always impressed the value of education on her children—probably realizing it more since she didn't graduate from high school herself. They all, she means it too, because she has taken night courses while working and raising a family alone.

Her close friend, Mrs. James R. Toulouse, said of Mrs. McDaniels: "She has always encouraged her children to take things in school they're interested in, each one of her children knows they will have to get training and have a trade to make it in this world. And Mrs. McDaniels isn't helpful only with her own children, she takes people to the doctor and to church. Every Saturday, you'll find her at church, cleaning to help it ready for Sunday services."

Mrs. McDaniels has three children who live with them in the summer. "Everybody pretty much does for themselves," she said. "We all have careers; everybody does his own ironing and each one, even the boys, knows how to cook."

Grease spots can sometimes be removed from children's hair by covering the spots with other children. They'll then wash and the spot will be gone. The same method works well with grease spots on solid color cotton if the talcum is applied before laundering.

Never place lids on unused pots and pans as this causes a stale, odor to develop in them.
