

Become a Voter Today

Except for a limited group of denials and citizenship will be registered for voting in the town of Manchester. Last night, in a three-hour session, a voter-making session at Manchester Community College, 18 students signed up as new voters. Add to the Municipal Building, 26 who signed up in a morning session on the campus, 44 new voters were added to the rolls of Manchester for at least day — 14 Democrats, 9 Republicans and 21 unaffiliated.

On Wednesday morning, at a limited voter-making session at Manchester Community College, 18 students signed up as new voters — 14 Democrats, 9 Republicans, and 21 unaffiliated.

Wilbur Mills Backs Nixon On Phase 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Friday he believed President Nixon was on "the right track" with Phase 2 of his economic program. He predicted "the program is going on longer than any of us expect, perhaps beyond the next election." He also said the program "undoubtedly" would exceed the President's authority to impose the restraints beyond April 30, 1972.

The Arkansas Democrat, at a news conference at the New York Chamber of Commerce headquarters, emphasized that he wanted to know more details about the program before making a final decision.

"I am taking the President at his word when he said there will be teeth in the program," he said.

Asked if there were anything in the program he disagreed with, Mills replied: "I would disagree violently if the program is not handled fairly. If it were to turn out like it did during the Korean War where the exceptions became the general rule."

Mills mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential contender, repeated his earlier assertion that he had no better than a 50-50 chance of unseating Nixon.

The man in office beats himself, the other party never beats him," Mills said.

He said that if Nixon ended the Vietnam war and curbed inflation, "of course he will be harder to beat."

Mills in a speech, urged for greater cooperation between the President and Congress in framing trade policy.

"One of the pressures of the current emergency in our international economic relations have abated. It will be advisable for the President to propose, and Congress to consider, the type of authority the President should have in meeting the needs of the economy in world markets," Mills said.

The United States and her trading partners were "not close" to a trade war but added, "Our friends and neighbors should know what we're up to. You can't operate freely on the basis of surprise."

Coventry Mrs. Schaffer Lands Record Of Her Party

Secretary of the State Mrs. Gloria Schaffer, addressing a Democratic "Meet the Candidates" session last night, urged the 100 or so present to get new voters to register today, the day that those eligible can register for the Nov. 2 election.

Looking barely old enough to vote herself in an open-necked purple shirt, knitted vest and gray skirt, Mrs. Schaffer said she has been spending so much time with young people urging them to register and vote, that she has had to buy a new wardrobe.

She referred to today as "Victory Day," not for "victory" she said, but for "voter registration" and referred to the 18 years Democratic reign in Connecticut by saying that during that period, particularly the mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed. She said she has a "warrior" in her feeling for small towns, coming from one herself, and congratulated Coventry's case and struck a telephone pole, ditches for entering the respective town for municipal election. She said she is improving it.

Mrs. Schaffer noted that last year, when she was campaigning for her first state office, she was struck by the "diversity of a state that 'really is no bigger than a minute.' She also noted she said, a trend toward people voting for the candidate and not the party by which she "abhors quality."

She wished all the local candidates good luck, mentioning "the sense of palpitation you get as election day nears."

Average at MHS In English Test Reaches 3.9 High

As a result of four perfect scores of 5 by seniors on the English Placement Examination, the Manchester High School average on this examination hit a new high of 3.9 Gilbert B. Hunt, English department chairman, said.

The previous average was 3.7, compared with the national average of about 3.5. The examination is scored by the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J., on a 1-5 basis. A score of 1 is considered failing; 2, probably qualified for advanced placement and credit in college; and 3, 4 and 5, qualified for placement in college.

No MHS senior in English has ever scored 1, and few have scored 2.

Hunt observed that the outstanding record is the result of a number of factors, including intelligent and home background, but he added that it is also a reflection of excellent preparation in English throughout the school system.

Students come into the program from honors, accelerated, or enriched programs in the senior high schools, in the junior high, they spend two years in honors courses before the Advanced Placement course.

McGovern Links Overseas Policy To Home Scene

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Friday night the main reason Americans must answer is: "What kind of people do we want to stand for, in Vietnam, in the world and in the United States?"

McGovern, an announced presidential candidate, told 1,000 persons at a Democratic rally in the Lexington Armory that there is no way to separate what America does overseas from what she does at home.

"There's no way we can build a society of security and dignity here if we continue to waste our leadership energies in the kind of ventures abroad like the one that's tied us down here in Indochina," McGovern said.

McGovern pledged if elected President and "if one single American bomber is flying against those undetended villages in Indochina," he would end the war and "end it with our aid."

East Side Rec Polling Place For District 5

The East Side Recreation Center on School St. will be the polling place this year for voters in Voting District 5. Because of the renovations at Nathan Hale School, it is uncertain whether it will be ready in time to move voting machines in. In addition, the heavy machinery in the parking area would probably pose an inconvenience to voters, according to Town Clerk Edward Tomblin.

Poling places for the other six Manchester voting districts are:
District 1 — Waddell School
District 2 — Robertson School
District 3 — Buckley School
District 4 — Highland Park School
District 6 — West Side Recreation Center
District 7 — Verplanck School

Voting lists have been posted on a board in front of the Municipal Building for voters who are unsure of their district.

WATERBURY (AP) — Two Waterbury teenagers were killed and five others seriously injured in a two-car, rear-end collision on Conn. 88 here late Friday night.

One of the dead was identified as John Guineas. Hospital officials did not have his exact age but said he was a teenager. The other fatality was not immediately identified.

Listed in serious condition were: Richard Wilson, Bruce Fuller, Paul Rice and Jim Bellarose. One of the victims, Jerry Orallo, was listed in critical condition. Officials said all are from Waterbury and all are teenagers.

Some of the victims were in Waterbury and others were in Waterbury Hospital.

Police said the two cars were headed south on Conn. 88 when they collided, sending one of the other. One car, according to police, exploded and the other swerved off the road.

Police said the accident happened about 10 p.m.

STARRING AT DANGER MAY 'NOT' BANISH IT BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
A man I know plays bridge as though he were a lion tamer. "Share danger in the eye," he says, "and it will go away." It didn't work quite that way when he played the hand shown today.

South dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Opening lead — Six of Hearts.
My bold friend won the first trick with the ace of hearts, led a club to the ace and gave up a club to the king. South exuded such confidence that East, at most switched to a new suit.

Nothing looked any better, so East, sheepishly led his other heart. From here on it was a good day for lions. West was sure to get in with the queen of clubs in time to defeat the contract with the rest of the hearts. The only thing you can say for the lion tamer's side of play is that it wastes no time. If you wanted to play the hand correctly, it might take you a minute longer.

Two Methods
There are at least two ways to make three trump. The best way is to refuse the first trick. Win the first heart with the ace and lead a low club toward dummy. When West plays low, take a deep finesse with dummy's six of clubs. East, of course, but cannot return a heart. (If East could lead a heart, the suit would break well and South could win only two hearts and two clubs.) No matter what East returns, dealer can win and develop the clubs while he still has a heart stopper.

South can make the contract even after winning the first trick with the ace of hearts. It ducks a club to the ten, wins the heart return in dummy and gets to his hand with the king of diamonds to lead another club. West must play low, and dummy's jack loses to the king. Now East is out of hearts, and the rest of the clubs are good.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: Spades, 5-8-4; Hearts, 3-7; Diamonds, 3-8-7-5-3; Clubs, K-10.

What do you say?
Answer: 200 diamonds. The hand is worth a response, but the spades are much too anemic to show.

The Governor And The Military

The unusually unhappy importance of Governor Meekill's impatient reach into the state's military structure stems from the fact that it makes an unhealthy union between two public attitudes taken by the Governor.

The remark by the Governor which has instant surface application is that in which he has asserted his right to invade the political spots system in order to give the post of assistant adjutant general to a Republican.

This, by itself, is perhaps not too much of a crime. It might be pointed out that the Democrats have not very often gone to the ranks of their town chairmen in their efforts to recruit a soldier fit for high command.

But there is a certain rough honesty about Governor Meekill when he admits that he is playing politics. At least he does admit it, and does not try to pose as one who is above it.

The area in which the Governor is thus claiming his privilege to play politics is, however, in this era of glibness and Kent states and Atties, the area of the high command of the state's military establishment.

This is an area in which Governor Meekill is on record with a number of statements, all seeking to establish, in advance, an image of the instant toughness with which this Governor would welcome any outbreak of violence within our boundaries.

What is happening now is this: The Governor is using his political spots system to move into a position of top command of the state's National Guard an individual whose qualifications for responsible command seem doubtful to some of those who have been hitherto associated with him in his military capacities.

There are various views possible about Governor Meekill's famed "toughness." The best hope for it is that it will frighten an off would be demonstrators and action before they ever start. Another hope is that, even if trouble should start, the quick, firm, nonswerving response would be best. Another hope is that, should be brought to the test, Governor Meekill himself would keep cool enough to retain, for the state and its freemen, some disciplined options.

Such hopes for the possible effectiveness of the Governor's personal involvement toward the style of instant toughness with regard to any kind of public unrest in the state run into what seems a needless complication when they now have to stop and ask themselves what kind of judgment and instinct and political sense would be required to serve as the front-line force for the Governor.

A Governor who talks as tough a law and order theme as ours does needs to be sure the trigger his finger goes down to a reliable, tested, strong-sprung instrument.

New Recovery Index?

Back when we used to think that recession had begun and then, later on, suddenly one of the first hopeful signs to watch for was the machine tool industry.

When they went up, that meant that the producers of the country were getting ready to increase their capacity for existing products and to venture into new products and new designs. That meant that the smart production and marketing brains of the country could use good times just around the corner and were making their own shrewd leaps to get themselves into the best position for exploiting the good times when they arrived.

Nowadays we are sometimes told that one of the problems facing our production apparatus is that it already has a capacity which is 25 per cent above our real need, and one inference of that statistic is that we could conceivably make our way back to a full productivity without very much special assistance from the machine tool industry, which might then become the last, instead of the first, production sector to enjoy the benefits of new boom.

Perhaps the more reliable index, these days, is something like airline bookings. These recession years have been full of stories and statistics showing how the business community, reacting to the pinch, has cut down on the use of the plane trip first for business, and then, to be consistent, for pleasure. The result of this has been that, at this very time when declining military orders were injuring the aircraft industry there has not been any compensatory growth in civilian demand, but merely another decline.

It began to look as if airline bookings, like machine tool orders, had become locked into a one way routine, in which they kept bringing themselves deeper and deeper into economic quarantine.

But now the news is changing. The financial pages reveal, at long last, a main in advance bookings on the airlines. More businessmen are planning to travel, to consult and plan and wine and dine and try to sell. The good old unbeatle, optimistic, prestigious figure with the suitcase case is going to be standing in line up there at the top of the heading ramp. Does he may actually be delivering in person, an order for some new machine tools.

Any economy, say the psychosocialist-economist, can be as good as it feels.

Gerrymandering The Valley. The new state House and Senate districts, as drawn by a special three-judge panel, are unsatisfactory to the Valley.

Although the districts are said to embrace nearly equal numbers of persons, as required by the Constitution, they have serious defects in the way they are drawn, and in some cases, needlessly split. Some districts are far from being compact, and some are said to be mythical creatures, the gerrymander.

There are seven House districts that include the 10 Valley communities. 1—Most of Ansonia, plus Derby's First and Second Wards.

2—Derby's Third Ward, plus northeast Kent states and Atties, the area of the high command of the state's military establishment.

3—Most of Shelton. 4—Northwest Shelton, plus Monroe. 5—Seymour, Beacon Falls and Oxford.

6—Southbury, Middlebury and part of Watertown. 7—Orange and part of West Haven.

The most glaring defect of the new House districts is the splitting of Derby. Part of Derby shares a district with Ansonia and the other part of Derby is in a district with another part of Ansonia, plus Woodbridge.

What is not justifiable is the corollary. This outpouring of emotion for Agnew will be in-stantaneously converted by President George Papadopolous, the Greek military dictator, into proof that the Nixon administration, despite words to the contrary, is surreptitiously all the way behind the dictatorship.

The facts are quite different. U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Haas, after months of knowing to Papadopolous, recently has been making ostentatious visits to leaders of the outlawed political parties who run Greece before the 1967 coup d'etat of the Colonels.

His private talk with exiled former Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis, a highly respected conservative in Paris last week so infuriated the re- public that it threatened to ban all contacts between U.S. dip- lomats and the ex-parliamentary leaders, most of whom still live in Athens. That threat will not stop Tassos' overtures to the silenced opposition.

In short, the Nixon policy remains as is: To keep the dictatorship at semi-arm's length and to encourage the regime to end the long period of martial law and schedule free elections. But Agnew's six-day visit (two days as the official guest of Papadopolous, four to visit his family's village of Gouliano on the Peloponnese) will draw out the effect of Haas's tentative gestures toward the intensely anti-Papadopolous democratic forces.

It is no wonder, then, that the State Department tried in vain to stop the Vice President's visit to Greece. On Agnew's worldwide trip last summer, top State Department officials succeeded in persuading the White House not to permit Agnew to stop in Greece, even though his visit took him to the eastern Mediterranean area, and he beseeched the President to let him beseech Greece on his itinerary.

But when Mr. Nixon designated his Vice President to represent the U.S. in Iran at the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian Empire, Agnew renewed his request for permission to visit Greece (with such fervor that the President (in the words of one aide) "could not say no").

Now, having lost the main battle, State Department operatives are preparing briefing papers they hope will convince Agnew to say the right things to Papadopolous. But that effort is likely to fail.

Agnew was popping off exultantly about the military take-over as long as three years ago. In a speech on Sept. 27, 1968, he said the Papadopolous "has not proven itself to be as horrendous a specter to contemplate as most people thought it would." Rather, he said, it had "done a bit to stabilize the Communist threat" and would "provide a salutary climate in which a free elective system can take place."

In short, Agnew is philosophically and ideologically tied to Papadopolous and his military regime, an historical fact not likely to make him an earnest advocate of President Nixon's public policy of coolness toward Greece.

Two Restaurants Sued by Coke
NEW HAVEN (AP) The Coca-Cola Co. has filed suit against two restaurants, claiming they sold "ordinary cola" but called it "Coke."

A spokesman for the company said Friday the U.S. District Court suits against Pellet's Restaurant Inc. and Jean's Restaurant, both stemmed from routine checks by Coca-Cola investigators.

The spokesman did not give details about the specific suits but said a typical cause of legal action is the case of a patron asking for a Coke and being assured that what he is getting when it actually is another brand of cola.

The company is asking for an injunction against the alleged violations, and for any profits gained by the alleged traders. Mark infringement, general damage relief and court costs. The company said it receives similar letters to the two restaurants but did not receive satisfactory responses.

Tolland Rec Offering Ballet Classes

Registrations are being accepted this afternoon for ballet and modern dance classes to be sponsored by the Board of Recreation beginning Wednesday.

The classes, for Tolland girls, are held through the joint auspices of the rec board and the Hartford Ballet Company, according to John Campbell, rec board director.

Registration for the 10-session first semester will be held this afternoon from 1 to 3 p.m. at the City Hall. The program will be self-supporting according to Campbell, with parents paying $15 for the entire semester, including tomorrow's registration session or at the first class Wednesday night.

The classes will be broken down into three groups, meeting for an hour each.

Five- to 7-year-olds will meet Tuesday and Wednesday nights, followed by 8 to 12 year olds from 6:30 until 7:30 and 13 and over olds from 7:30 until 8:30.

The classes will be held at either Meadowbrook or the Hartford Ballet Theater School, Campbell explained with the exact location to be announced shortly.

"Very few towns run something like this," Campbell explained, "and there is nothing similar east of the river for ballet or modern dance."

Serving as instructor of the classes will be Miss Diane Fioravanti of Windsor, a graduate of the Hartford Ballet Advanced Professional program, and a performer with the Hartford Ballet Company, the Connecticut Opera Association and the Connecticut Ballet Theater.

She has received additional classic ballet training at the Academy of Ballet in San Francisco, under Alan Howard, while on the West Coast she worked in modern dance idiom with Carol Telen of the Creative Dance Workshop. She returned to the Hartford Ballet Co. in 1971, joining the classic ballet and modern dance faculty.

A similar program offered in Simsbury is highly successful, according to Campbell and has been expanded to three nights a week to accommodate the number of children enrolled.

The healthy slice of pie being served up by Mrs. Iris Fields, left, symbolizes this year's contributions by Parkade merchants and their employees to the Manchester United Fund Appeal. Together, the group has pledged over 10 per cent of Manchester's entire drive quota of $76,015. The campaign began Monday and continues through Oct. 28. "We think the excellent showing marks the Manchester Parkade Merchants Association and our employees as a group that cares," said Alfred Perrault, extreme right, manager of Sears and the Parkade's drive chairman. Mrs. Fields is the wife of Eugene Fields, owner of the new Butterfields department store, which is scheduled to open next month. Police Using Radar Again

HARTFORD (AP) — The threatened resumption of "radar traps" to control speeding on limited-access highways in the Hartford area became a reality Friday.

State police teams appeared on Interstate 84 and 91 with speed-checking units for the first time since Commissioner Cleveland B. Fuenkajana's announcement that radar checks would be resumed.

Fuenkajana said a month ago that blatant speeding violations by a few motorists prompted him to resume the use of radar traps.

Maj. Norman Tasker, the commissioner's executive officer, confirmed that the radar-use policy was in force. He said it would be used for short periods when manpower is available and will focus on areas of abnormally high speeding.

Eberington Surprised Hostility Greet Report

Edwin D. Eberington, chairman of what is now known as "The Eberington Report," his first public appearance since the release of that report Monday, appeared surprised at the hostility the report has generated in the University of Connecticut community.

"Well, I'm surprised," Eberington said, concluding his unprepared apology, "I am glad to be back on a campus."

Eberington said he described his office at Wesleyan as about half the size of the alumni center dining room ("the governor's commission wouldn't like that") and listed the blow-ups and the New Yorker cartoons which evoked his walls there during the tense years of his presidency.

In his prepared speech, Eberington, dressed in a conservative suit, white shirt and patterned tie, described the work of the Center for Voluntary Action, a sort of data-gathering and clearing house for volunteer groups and the needs of citizens for their services, all over the country.

"Our study in Connecticut makes it clear that government cannot provide all the social services people need in such areas as correction and health care. We have been fortunate to have so many citizen volunteers who can help."

He described how a center for volunteer services coordinating has been set up in New York City. Local action centers have also been set up in Hartford and Worcester, Mass.

Departing from his prepared statements, Eberington said that polls show that a large percentage of the population would be willing to volunteer their services, four hours a week where there is need, and that volunteers do not have to be "perfect."

He cited his own experience in "Homer Babidge," a program, which is apparently stuck on dead-center while experts haggle over what is the best way to teach reading.

"My older child teaches my four-year-old," he said. "Volunteers offering their services where needed can bridge the gap and find out in concrete terms what is needed, and Eberington continued to worry about the possibilities of error in the compilation of data which led to recommendations in the report on the ways the university could run a tighter ship."

The report, overall, made recommendations which would save the state $100 million annually, plus a one-time saving of $42 million.

The writers of the report, all volunteers, were surprised to find out, had "a concern for better planning, for systems and for the future."

Rebozo Is Quizzed On Stolen Securities

On July 31, the day after the loan was made, Rebozo called IBM's stock transfer bank in New York to urge speed in issuing substitute certificates in Lewis' name.

The IBM stock but could not take a loan in the United States because he lived in the Bahamas.

"Sturgeon" later proved to be the group of men who were indicted with numbers directly transferred to Hutton & Co., were turned in and now own, with new social security numbers.

While the balance of Lewis' account at Rebozo's bank was $204,778 and gave $120,000 to repay the entire loan at 7.5 per cent interest and get his stock back, Lewis was to repay his share to Sturgeon 10 per cent interest. If the bank called the loan, Sturgeon either would pay it off in cash or order the shares sold to pay off the loan and Lewis would send him the balance of the money left from the sale.

On July 30, 1968, a courier brought the stock to Lewis and Rebozo, who were waiting at the bank when Rebozo joined Lewis for any credit history.

Even though Lewis was a stranger to him and the loan was large that another bank had participated in it.

The stock certificates were still in the name of Hutton & Co., though, and banks require that those obtaining loans on stock must be owners of the stock.

So Rebozo said that Lewis would have to transfer the shares to his own name, Lewis, who admittedly did not own the stock, signed a federal form saying that he was the actual owner and authorized Rebozo to turn it in to IBM to get substitute certificates.

The bank then gave Lewis cashier's checks totaling $115,000 and $90,000 in cash and opened an account in his name for the cash and the loan. Lewis gave the cash and checks totaling $100,000 to the courier for Sturgeon on the same day.

Rebozo said that he later began to worry about the stock and made some telephone calls to check it, including one to President Nixon's brother, Donald Nixon, in California. Donald Nixon has said he remembers Rebozo calling to ask him to check out someone at the Newport Beach Bank, but does not recall the name of the person.

There is no reason why a settlement should be reached in the coal mining industry, Nixon said in a statement issued here.

Settlement of the strike which has crippled the coal industry in this state which leads the nation in output of bituminous coal "should be reached by collective bargaining, and it should be reached quickly," the President said.

Argentine Rebel Forces Overwhelmed by Loyalists

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Rebel army forces trying to overthrow President Alejandro Lanusse surrendered today to an overwhelming force of loyalist troops.

He dispatched 10,000 loyalist troops to Azul overnight. Lt. Col. Fernando Amadeo Baldrich, another rebel leader, also surrendered, returning to the 1,200 or so rebel troops as cars which had set out at dawn.

Lanusse, an army general has promised Argentine electorates in 1972—the first since the military seized power in 1966—free elections.

A heavy rain in Azul left dirt roads impassable. Lanusse's army units were ordered to return to their own homes. The rebels had brought communist propaganda demanding Lanusse's resignation and confidence and faith in him.

Gen. Federico Mouriglia, the rebel leader, said he had returned to the city of Buenos Aires, and the rebel leader, Gen. Juan Jose Quiroga, said he had returned to his home in the province of Cordoba.

The government described the 1,200 or so rebel troops as "rightists seeking to install a military dictatorship." Lanusse said the rebels were "not a political movement, but a military movement."

Admiral Says War Cut Funds For Navy Ships

GROTON (AP) — The cost of the war in Southeast Asia has caused the United States to miss a generation of military shipbuilding, the Chief of Naval Operations said Friday.

"Our nation should have been spending $1 billion annually for construction of new ships," Ad. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., told reporters during a two-day tour of the U.S. Submarine Base.

"We have, however, been spending one-third of that over the past three or four years."

In contrast, the Soviet Union has accelerated its shipbuilding program, especially construction of new submarines, he said.

The USSR maintains a three-to-one ratio over the United States in submarine construction, said the top naval military official.

He said the United States will find ourselves "hopelessly behind" the Soviets in the construction of ballistic missile submarines by the end of 1972.

Zumwalt said the Soviets have been spending $1 billion annually on missile submarines of the Yankee class at a greatly increased rate.

Racing Group Asks Help Of Town Officials

CROMWELL (AP) — The New England Racing Corp. appealed to officials of Cromwell and Rocky Hill Friday to help persuade local voters to approve plans for a racetrack.

The Worcester-based firm, which wants to build on a site on both sides of the town line, expressed the concern that its plans would be turned down by Cromwell voters at a referendum Oct. 25.

The racing firm received no assurances of support from town officials who attended the meeting at the Lord Cromwell Inn.

The officials indicated they were concerned about the problem of handling traffic from the proposed track. Justin A. DeNino, secretary of New England Racing, said the track would provide men to keep traffic moving. Most of the traffic would probably come from nearby Interstate Route 91.

New England Racing is one of several firms interested in building and operating racetracks in the state this year.

The Sunny Oaks Corp. of Danbury is building a track in Southbury near Interstate 84. The Farmington Raceway Corp. of Farmington is building a site in Wolcott, and another group is interested in using the grounds of the Danbury Fair in Danbury.

Officials said they could not estimate when the blaze, which started in the morning, would be controlled.

It's a sight which gladdens the eyes of Japanese railroad buffs and photographers. A train of locomotives toiled across the National Railway's bridge over the Nishikawa River near Niimi City, pulling heavy loads of freight cars, their boilers fully stocked and belching out dense plumes of billowing steam.

But recently a shrewd camera shop owner saw the business possibilities of this glorious sight. And he began to charge for use of the best vantage point overlooking the bridge from which to take photos of the trains at their gustiest.

The engineers were furious at this exploitation of their admirers and countered by putting up a smokescreen to spoil the businessmen's game. They surrounded themselves with impenetrable fog of steam as they approached the bridge and came into camera range.

There was a lengthy dispute, and negotiations took place between the businessman and the engineers, with the mediation of Niimi City officials, before freedom of the shutter was finally restored, for everyone, with no charge.
