Elderly People Like To Live By Themselves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says the number of elderly people living away from their children has increased sharply in the last 11 years.

In 1960, the bureau said, 2.3 million women aged 65 and older and 904,000 men in the same age group were not living with their children. By 1971, the figures had jumped to 4.2 million women, an 82.4-percent increase, and 1.2 million men, a boost of almost 58 percent.

There were about 20 million elderly people living in the United States in 1971. Population experts suggest that fading traditions and a greater economic independence among the elderly are responsible for the trend.

Wrong Lanes

Somewhat, last evening, a motorist got himself driving north in the southbound lanes of I-91, up in the Northampton area. He succeeded in driving that way, with many near misses of crashes with cars coming toward him, for a distance of fifteen miles. He was so busy trying to evade the consequences of his dangerous position that he had no eyes or ears to heed for the police who tried to get him to pull down and over and change his direction.

This wrong-way motorist was, for his 15 miles, living pretty much the same way this poor old world of ours is trying to live, heading in the wrong direction, steering desperately in the effort to evade the head-on crash which will have to come sooner or later if it does not change course. Like the wrong-way motorist, the world finds itself able to pay little or no attention to those who keep warning it that it ought to halt, look around, realize how it is traveling, and then shift direction.

So much of what we accomplish, in our collective actions, seems the wrong way and fated conduct of a wrong-lane world that we all must, prayerfully, the sentiments our President was shown expressing, on this morning's television, as he stood on the Great Wall of China, and uttered his hope that somehow mankind could learn to amend its historic habits, and travel for a change, in non-collision directions.

The I-91 motorist is, for the moment, hospitalized, and off the road. Our gratitude, meanwhile, to those leaders who are doing what they can to try to flag down this careening world of ours, and try to persuade its members what it was trying to do when it first began its conscious journeying.

The Smart Risk?

Mayor John Lindsay of New York City went down to Florida the other day and there proclaimed himself to be in favor of busing school children in order to achieve racial integration, and said he was willing to "accept the political consequences" of his stand.

"I am fighting for the Presidency," he said, "but not at the cost of disrupting the things I care most about."

Busing, he said, is normal for millions of school children, "but now the issue is the use of busing to end segregation and now we are told that this is something we cannot tolerate. What a total inconsistency!"

Meanwhile, in Washington, Richard G. Kleindienst, President Nixon's nominee for the post of Attorney General, was appearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee, well aware that the liberals on that body were in opposition to most of his own conservative political views.

In testimony before the Senators, Kleindienst held firmly and honestly to his own convictions, even when they seemed potentially contradictory. He is, for instance, a stern law and order man who believes in such invasions of privacy as wire tapping but who also shrinks from attempting any such invasion of private privilege as would be involved in an attempt to outlaw the ownership of handguns.

Kleindienst held firm to his opposition to legalizing marijuana, no matter how harmless presidential commissions may proclaim it.

In these two appearances, one from the liberal side, the other from the conservative, we had a demonstration which should hearten all the rest of us, whether we agree with one or the other, or with neither. It is the demonstration of men choosing to stand for what they personally believe, even in those moments and those surroundings in which their beliefs would be least sure of a friendly reception.

Each, very pleasantly, spared all of us the greasy business of pretending to be a little less rigid, or a little safer, or a little less reactionary, or a little less radical, than he is.

Each, doing so, was following one of the deeper laws of politics, and therefore probably doing himself more good than harm. There are times when people would rather vote for a piece of intellectual honesty, on whatever side it may be located, than for any suspected lip service to their own particular liberal or conservative slant.

An Obstinate Snow

Give us snow that falls in soft pack texture in a temperature which stays below freezing, and we have conditions which hamper the best efforts of state or local plowing systems, to say nothing of complete frustration of snow blowers which may have waited a little too long before beginning their operations.

Snow which sticks to the pavement, which gets run over once or twice, and which then freezes to the pavement makes street plows bounce and shimmy, and makes a pickax the ideal implement for clearing the driveway entrances the snow plows fill up with heavy clods of ice, and creates thousands of small skidding spots, almost anywhere one happens to stall.

This was the kind of snow in last week's northeastern, and the fact that it didn't yield gracefully and let itself be blown over to the side of the road by the mere sight of the snow plows coming explains why it is still with us, still a solid coating on some of the more shaded streets, still a nuisance in driveway entrances, still an eyesore to the town which has to take their storm, wrap it up, and tuck it away. Nobody quite masters the snow that comes down wet in temperatures cold enough to form ice instead of slush.

The Score At Peking

The toasts have matched each other, gracefully enough. After a slow start, the Chinese press and television apparatus, with its unprecedented lavishness in presenting Chairman Mao and President Nixon smiling together, gave the Chinese people notice of what was going on equal in its prominence to the presentation American media were giving their people back home.

The President took with him two musk oxen, from the North American Arctic regions, as special bread and butter presents that could dangerously limit Mr. Nixon's freedom of action in the Far East.

An example comes from no less an expert than Prof. John K. Fairbank of Harvard, who allowed himself this incredible statement on NBC's "Meet the Press" last Sunday (Feb. 20): "Mr. Nixon has been able to... end the cold war, the great achievement by this means of going to Peking."

The Changing Family

In the years before World War II, a large proportion of our children lived in homes where their services were an urgent economic necessity. They had a sense of participation in family activities, and their lives gave them a reasonably accurate concept of the relationship between cause and effect.

More of our children are now reared in homes where they are wanted but not always needed. Their parents have felt under increasing pressure to provide the best possible life for them and save them from the hardships of earlier days.

The pressures of work and multiplication of outside activities lead to parents spending less time with their children, and so the children's social life tends to become centered on others their own age.

The church, however, has its own unique and meaningful perspective on the business of living. If it is to apply that perspective and help in making this world a place for a more meaningful life, then politics and community concerns must be concerns for the church also.

Certainly that is not the only concern of the church, but it is a part of its concern for life and living.

Inside Report

China: Why Nixon?

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — The euphoria from Peking filling American television screens is now filling foreign policy experts here with alarm that China's Communist government has scored a momentous political coup at no cost to itself but great risk to Richard M. Nixon.

That alarm, though by no means universal, is not restricted to official policymakers. It rests on an assumption that the sympathetic portrayal of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Prime Minister Chou En-lai, as viewed by the American public in their living rooms, leads to overblown expectations that could dangerously limit Mr. Nixon's freedom of action in the Far East.

An example comes from no less an expert than Prof. John K. Fairbank of Harvard, who allowed himself this incredible statement on NBC's "Meet the Press" last Sunday (Feb. 20): "Mr. Nixon has been able to... end the cold war, the great achievement by this means of going to Peking."

It is precisely such widespread euphoria that so worries Far Eastern experts here, far from "ending the cold war" with Communist China, they fear that Mr. Nixon has reduced his bargaining power with Peking by making such an impression.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Life Is With People

"I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." (John 10:10)

I sometimes hear people saying that they don't like politics and the affairs of the community being discussed in the church. Yet Jesus said he came in order that they might have the truly abundant life. And real life must be lived in relationship with other people in the world. A hermit does not live a real or abundant life.

Neither his life is not normal; it is closed. Full life involves living with other people, and any time people come together there is bound to be politics, which in itself is neither good nor bad. And if we are to be involved in living, it must be where that living is going on: In the community, the family, the nation, and the world.

Furthermore, all life grows and develops in and through God's creative grace and power. So where there is life, there God is involved and so must be the church.

The church, however, has its own unique and meaningful perspective on the business of living. If it is to apply that perspective and help in making this world a place for a more meaningful life, then politics and community concerns must be concerns for the church also.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

We dangle before Connecticut legislators, as mouth-watering delicacies, some of the pay increase propositions their brothers and sisters up in Massachusetts are currently considering.

The basic salary for legislators in the Bay State was $5,300 a year up to 1965, when it was increased to $7,500. Two years later it was made $10,000, and in another two years it went up to $11,400 a year, which is where it stands now, with $1,200 a year for expenses and mileage added.

This pace of increase did not appeal to Massachusetts legislators as any real justice to their underpaid and overworked condition. Yet, at the same time, they found themselves facing the ungrateful reaction of a general public which seemed to think it inappropriate for the legislators to be voting themselves a new pay increase every two years.

In Massachusetts, as in Connecticut, legislators are nervous about just how much they should try to take, under present economic conditions in an election year.

But it can be seen that, when the Connecticut citizen's advisory board started out with a proposal that Connecticut go up from $4,000 for a two year term to an initial $7,500 a year for the annual session work Connecticut legislators will be facing from now on, it was starting out modestly indeed. In comparison to what figures will be part of the Connecticut future, it is hard for us to realize that we remember when Connecticut legislators got $600 a term, and were eager, happy, and able.

Sequential Learning To The Editor:

In my estimation the sequential learning system proposed for Coventry is a very rational, well planned, thoroughly presented program. It is being developed by the people who will use it, one phase at a time to allow for adjustment and restructuring based on the results of the previous phases.

Children must be given a chance to realize you don't have to do what everyone else does to be accepted. Children maturing and learning together, sharing ideas, discovering each has something to contribute, form meaningful relationships with people, adults as well. They are less defensive and antagonistic, more open and friendly.

CHINA IN BITS AND PIECES

Science
In 1964, China exploded a low-yield atomic weapon in Sinkiang province. A hydrogen bomb explosion was announced in 1967. The first orbiting space satellite was launched in 1970.

Language
The language is spoken with many regional differences but written with a uniform script. Mandarin dialects, spoken in the north, form the basis of the new national language being promoted by the government. Wu, Cantonese and Hakka dialects are spoken in the south.

Vital Statistics
With one-fourth of the world's population (about 750 million), China occupies a territory in the eastern part of Asia about one-third larger than the continental United States. The country is of rolling topography, rising to high elevations in the north. The Eastern half is one of the best watered lands in the world.

Inside Report

Presidential election played in it. But even after Mr. Nixon's decision, his foreign policy advisers — not his political advisers — strongly urged that the meeting be kept "amateur." That meant little or no television.

The political advisers, sensing glimmering potential in millions of American voters watching every step of the President's journey for peace, easily won their argument against the foreign policy experts. Moreover, the Chinese themselves became advocates of TV coverage to get their message to the U.S. under controlled circumstances. All hopes for an "amateur" visit evaporated.

Moreover, the adults Chinese playing host during the longest visit in history of any President to any foreign country, are calling the time during Mr. Nixon's eight-day visit — with devastating effect.

Premier Chou, for example, diplomatically but unmistakably put the blame squarely on the U.S. for the long hostility between the two powers when, in his first toast to Mr. Nixon, he said: "As early as 1665 the Chinese government publicly stated that the Chinese government is willing to sit down and actually to negotiate with the U.S. government."

The fact that there was no public response in kind from the President was viewed by at least one Far Eastern expert here as an admission of American blame, a "missed coup."

This theme of apology, in fact, pervades the television commentary from Peking, molding American reaction in the first prolonged exposure to China.

All this could have been avoided if the President had kept his original plan for a more modest embassy in his first essential step toward détente with Peking. But now, having invested so much personal and Presidential prestige, Mr. Nixon may soon find that he has dangerously mortgaged his future action.

He has continuously warned against high expectations of quick rewards, but the American people are being conditioned to expect glorious results. If these results do not materialize, Mr. Nixon will have a lot of explaining to do.

Flip Wilson Plays Phantom

"If I hadn't made it as a comedian, I would have been a phantom bum," says Flip Wilson. Now, in his own show on NBC Thursday nights, he's a phantom comedian.

"I used to like hitchhiking and talking to the people who picked me up and entertaining them. I'd try out comedy routines. Just to see how they'd work on an audience."

The routines apparently worked, and now Flip can't hitchhike and try out routines — he'd be recognized.

Tonight Flip is joined by special guests Joe Namath, George Carlin, Miss Black America, Joyce Warner, and three other finalists in the Miss Black America pageant.

The show can be seen on Channels 22 and 30 at 8 p.m.

Entering High School Topic For 8th Graders, Parents

The school guidance department will meet with eighth graders and their parents Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the all-purpose room of the elementary school to discuss the transition to high school in September.

Guidance counselor Jeffrey Heints said that results of the Differential Aptitude Tests recently administered will be reviewed and scores will be explained.

Ninth grade course selection will also be discussed, and courses at the high school will be described.

Heints stressed the importance of the meeting, noting that course selection is very important to students entering high school.

Hi, Neighbor!

It's a good thing we hadn't planned any Abraham Washington sales for last weekend — we were practically closed on Saturday. Since our snow removal service operates only when the temperature is over 70° and only during summer months, we were left with gallons of free delicious coffee and a no-pressure atmosphere. My wife says we must try harder this weekend, or end up being number 2...

So, in a fervent effort to maintain our feverish sales pace (how's that for Madison Avenue jargonese?) and casting aside my wife's suggestion that we reheat last week's coffee, we are opening this weekend with such a burst of vigor that I'm tired already. If you can resist this powerful sales pitch so far, I'll say further that we'll have all last week's goodies plus several additions. I'll try to recite from my overtaxed memory (we had lots left over besides the coffee): A huge load of select nylon and Herculon carpet remnants in a variety of colors and most foam backed for easy installation; skirts, shirts and jeans, a fine teen shoppe at half their prices; American of Mt. Airy dining chairs in fruitwood and antique ivory finishes at less than dealer cost; ladies, men's and children's slippers and thongs; children's boots; new mattresses and box spring shipment; tape decks, color TV, stereo and more.

So come visit this weekend. Just by being here you'll make the place look a lot busier than last Saturday. And I promise you, we won't be serving last week's coffee.

1971 Loss Reported By Lydall

Manchester-based Lydall Inc. fiber and metal products manufacturer, has reported an estimated net loss for 1971 of $1.2 million, or 21 cents per share.

Robert P. Fuller, Lydall chairman, made the announcement yesterday at a meeting of Lydall's Board of Directors. The directors took no action with respect to the loss, but the preferred or common stock of the company.

Fuller noted that an audit was still in progress, but that he did not expect any significant changes from the findings. The 1971 loss compared to a profit in 1970 of $207,000 after tax, or 21 cents per share.

President Daniel Sudaruk pointed out that development expenses are continuing in two new divisions, Lydall Magnetics and Fiber Process, and are expected to be substantially completed before the end of the year.

While a transition from government to commercial business has been expensive, Sudaruk said, he cited as "most encouraging" estimates that 1972 consolidated earnings will be at least five per cent to the U.S. government and industry products.

Lydall products include fiber and packaging board, specialty paper, steel building components, grease fittings and tuberculation equipment.

Lesser prizes of $400 and $40 will be awarded to the winners of the 1972 drawing. The actual winners will not be known until holders claim their prizes.

Future drawings will be staged in different locations around the state. The next drawing will be on July 1 and expected to get at least $1 million next year.

Successor Picked As Lutz Museum Director

The directorship of Lutz Junior Museum will change hands March 15 when Mrs. Madeline McAuley resigns.

The board of trustees has appointed Mrs. Madeline McAuley as the new director. She has been a staff naturalist with the Children's Museum of Hartford since 1969.

In reviewing the museum's growth in the past few years, Mrs. McAuley said, "It was a baby, a one-man operation when I arrived, but it is now an established museum."

At the Children's Museum, Mrs. McAuley's main duties have consisted of setting up animal exhibits and conducting the summer science academy.

She has been instrumental in the museum's expansion into the area of Lutz Junior Museum. She has gained state educational grants through Project Outdoors.

Mrs. McAuley gives credit for the museum's growth to the staff and volunteers. She said, "It has been a team effort, and I am proud of the staff and volunteers who have made this museum what it is today."

Mrs. McAuley became director of Lutz Junior Museum in 1967. She was previously active in the Cub Scout program. She is a charter member of the national YWCA.

Mrs. McAuley was married to a graduate of Hillhouse High School in New Haven. She received a BA with a major in English from Michigan State University. She also studied at the Parsons School of Design in New York City.

Obituary Hebron PZC Tables Action On Lake Lots

Because of the absence of two of its members, the Planning and Zoning Commission tabled action last night on its proposed changes to a draft environmental impact statement which studied possible corridors for the new Interstate 84 east of Manchester.

The commission previously tabled action following a public hearing Jan. 26 to give members of the Amcton Lake Association the opportunity of being informed of the meeting.

However, only five residents appeared to speak on the proposed change, and several of them only wished clarification. The commission was going to take action on year-around homes already on the lake.

Chairman Roy Wirth said the commission has no intention of prohibiting present owners from living in converted homes until they are sold.

The draft environmental impact statement, prepared by consultants Charles A. Maguire & Associates of Waterbury, Conn., will provide what is at least 30 days before the public hearing.

The environmental report, requested by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, will plan, or even the actual construction of the highway.

But the deadline for building, set by Congress, is 1975. The road will be paid for by 90 per cent federal funds and ten per cent state funds.

Several of the residents did not like the idea of having restrictions placed on their property. They said they had bought "in good faith" and were not sure of the reasons.

Again, Wirth informed them that the Zoning Board of Appeals will be asked to consider the matter. He said the commission will be asked to consider the matter.

Bottom Notch Path Likely For I-84

The recommended route for the new Interstate 84 east of Manchester is likely to send the expressway through Bottom Notch, according to unofficial reports from the State Department of Transportation.

Tolland Proposed Democratic State Elected, Defeating Challenge

By BETTE QUATRALE (Herald Correspondent) An attempt to challenge the nominating committee's recommendation of candidates for the Democratic Town Committee membership failed last night to gain sufficient support to elect any of the floor-nominated candidates to the town committee.

The election of the recommended state appeals a substantial victory for Democratic Town Chairman Charles Thifault, who stated, "I know I was right and was following what the town committee wanted."

Thifault presented a copy of a telegram from the State Central Committee legal advisor, Alex Goldfarb, confirming his right to appoint a substitute committee to be in turn recommended a state of candidates by ballot to a caucus of voters.

Several parliamentary challenges were made by many attending delegates from the floor, but they were all ruled out of order.

Thifault conducted an open caucus welcoming nominations from the floor, receiving plenty of support. For the 14th time, the floor-nominated candidates were elected to the town committee.

MCC Club May Drop Its Las Vegas Night

The March 4 "Las Vegas Night" at the KoFC home, being planned by the Future Inkeepers of America chapter at Manchester Community College, may turn into a different type of social function, Paul Duberek said.

Coventry Nongraded School Program Before School Board Today

The Board of Education meets tonight at 7:30 at the high school and is expected to vote on possible implementation of Phase 1 of the nongraded school program.

The Robertson School PTA has adopted a resolution favoring adoption of Phase 1, which would upgrade the kindergarten and first grade.

Whereas nongradedness has been successfully researched, studied and implemented in many communities in the United States;

Whereas nongradedness was recommended by a recent bipartisan Coventry study committee on education, initiated by the Board of Education;

Whereas a professional group of Coventry teachers and principals have planned and demonstrated the concept of nongradedness with appropriate safeguards as it would apply in Coventry;

Whereas the direct and indirect costs are small compared to proposed advantages to the young children and families of Coventry and whereas further study would only delay needed change in the schools and endanger implementation of the fall of 1972;

The executive board of the Robertson School PTA endorses by majority vote Phase 1 of the nongraded program as drawn up by Dr. Donald C. Hardy, superintendent of schools, and the committee of teachers and principals.

In answer to many requests, The Herald learned yesterday that Miss Hilda Keller did indeed fracture her hip in a fall on Monday.

Miss Hilda, who is 83 and active in many local organizations, has been temporarily grounded by the accident, according to her niece, Mrs. Robert Keller. She is a patient at

Meeting Set March 5 To Discuss SAM Plans

The first meeting of anyone interested in a SAM (Summer Activities in Manchester) program this summer has been scheduled for Sunday, March 5 at 3 p.m. at a site yet to be determined.

The date was set last night at a meeting of the Youth Commission. It is hoped that a room at South United Methodist Church can be used for the meeting. It is being investigated.

Last summer's program included a number of craft fairs, concerts, and a series of week-end movies. Participants for about 30 youths were also provided with the total of $10,000 allocated for SAM by the Board of Directors.

Don Silver suggested last night that an assembly could be held at Manchester High School to review last year's program and promote SAM for this summer. He said he would look into a possible assembly.

The consensus of the commission members attending last night was that the Youth Commission should accept the offer of radio station WMPF to put on since a month. The program would be entitled "The Young Generation." The program would be aired on Wednesday a month from 11:06 to 12:30 with the last half hour of the show reserved for telephone questions.

Several commission members have already appeared on the program. A "talk show" format was used then. Sue Klemens, who chaired last night's meeting, said the station wants planned programs

'Arsenic' Begins Three-Night Run Tonight

"Martha, look what's in the window seat." In a scene from "Arsenic and Old Lace," Abby Brewster (Ruth Munson, left) wants to show Martha Brewster (Jonathan (David Curren, with cap) and Mortimer

(James Quinn) try to prevent her from doing so. "Arsenic" will begin a three-night run tonight in Bailey Auditorium at Manchester High School. Curtain time for the Little Theatre of Manchester production is 8:30 p.m. Tickets are available at door.

Michael Bernardo Jr., 32, of West Haven, were charged with first-degree larceny.

Police said various electrical appliances, food mixers, and shoe polishers valued at about $2,400 were found in the van.

Russo and Bernardo are being held at the Hartford Correctional Center in lieu of $1,700 surety bonds each. Their court dates are March 13 in Manchester.

Police said an investigation began last week when Iona at Authority official, say it cost $12,000, were missing from the warehouse. The investigation is still under way.

A Graffiti Epidemic NEW YORK (AP) — There's a new epidemic in this city. It's called graffiti and scrawls on subway walls and trains are noticeable almost everywhere.

Frank T. Berry, a Transit Authority official, say it costs the city more than a half million dollars a year to remove the scrawls. Most of the markings are drawn by teen-agers using felt-tipped pens.

Arrests Go to Six In Iona Theft Case

An East Haddam man and his wife were arrested by Manchester police detectives in connection with thefts of over $12,000 worth of merchandise from Iona Manufacturing Company's Manchester warehouse.

The couple, Eugene E. Monte, 45, and Lorraine Monte, 37, were charged with second-degree larceny by a Circuit Court warrant. Detective Capt. Joseph Sartor said that police investigation revealed some evidence that the two are connected with the wholesale thefts.

Both Monte and his wife were released on $5,000 non-surety bonds for court appearance in Manchester March 13.

Four other men have already been arrested in connection with the thefts.

Edward L. Brown, 30, of 50 Rowe Ave., Hartford, was arrested last Friday, Feb. 24, and charged with first-degree larceny.

James W. Havena, 24, of Pannoy St., Ellington, was arrested Sunday, Feb. 20. Brown and Havena, both Iona employees, were picked up in Hartford grill and charged with first-degree larceny. They are free on $5,000 non-surety bonds and are scheduled to appear in court March 6.

Monday, Feb. 21, police stated that the Iona warehouse on Electric St. and stopped a van as it was leaving the warehouse at about 1:30 p.m.
