Radar Sweep Suggested In Sound Spills

NEW LONDON (AP)—A network of short-range radar installations is the best method of preventing oil spills on Long Island Sound, says a Coast Guard officer. Coast Guard Lt. Neil Wise told an informational meeting at Connecticut College Friday night that a radar system was installed in the San Francisco Bay following last spring's major oil spill there.

Hooded laymen led the annual Via Crucis (Way of the Cross) procession inside the Colosseum in Rome Friday.

Dr. William Niering, a Connecticut College specialist on marine biology, suggested that a radar system to monitor hazardous waters should be projected to Long Island Sound because of the expense involved. He said that a radar system would allow small ships to time into the radar network, giving them a relatively inexpensive guide.

President Gags Paris 'Filibuster'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon said he personally ordered the Paris peace talks suspended because North Vietnam has conducted a three-and-a-half-day filibuster for propaganda purposes. Other officials in the State Department had indicated earlier that President Nixon probably would not insist on the 30-minute impromptu news conference Friday afternoon.

Nixon Puts Blame For Food Prices On 'Middlemen'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon blames the nation's middlemen, not farmers, for soaring food prices and promises to crack down on them if prices don't begin dropping. Nixon said he would not break in the face of heavy attacks by the other side. He said that the U.S. troop withdrawal is a help to indicate what was achieved with another announcement of the pullout rate due before May.

Connally Defends Pay Board

BOSTON (AP)—Treasury Secretary John B. Connally says that contrary to allegations by labor leaders who walked off the Pay Board, the board has been more pertinent to working men than toward business.

Heralding Homes

A House For All Needs

The perfect home for the discerning executive and his family should fulfill all the requirements needed for comfortable living and comfortable entertaining.

how, it wound up in the kitchen and has become very much a part of it. "Really, I don't know what we'd do without it now," says Mrs. Ferguson. At present, it is a most attractive focal point with a huge eight-blossom poinsettia and a bowl of bananas.

yellow are the principle decor colors which are muted by the extensive use of walnut paneling and beige carpeting. The aqua color only seems to highlight Mrs. Ferguson's Irish blue eyes. A painting over the sofa of blue-eyed Siamese cats against a pale aqua background ties in perfectly with the decor.

With the assistance of an architect and an interior decorator, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ferguson chose a split entrance ramp to conform with the hilly terrain in the Rockledge area. Mr. Ferguson is the former co-owner and publisher of The Manchester Evening Herald.

The children and their friends often prefer a quick snack from the low table while sitting on the floor to eating at the regular kitchen table.

A mottled foil paper in tones of copper covers the entrance wall. Not until the Ferguson's four children were beyond the wall-smudging stage did they choose the exotic material.

Although the interior decorator set the main scheme, Mrs. Ferguson says that "we have added things of our own choosing, things that we like." As, for instance, a coffee table in the middle of the carpeted kitchen.

Fourteen years ago when the Ferguson's selected the elevated site for their home, there were no other houses around. Although the area has been built up since, none of the nearby houses obstruct the sweeping view from the spacious north window of the living room.

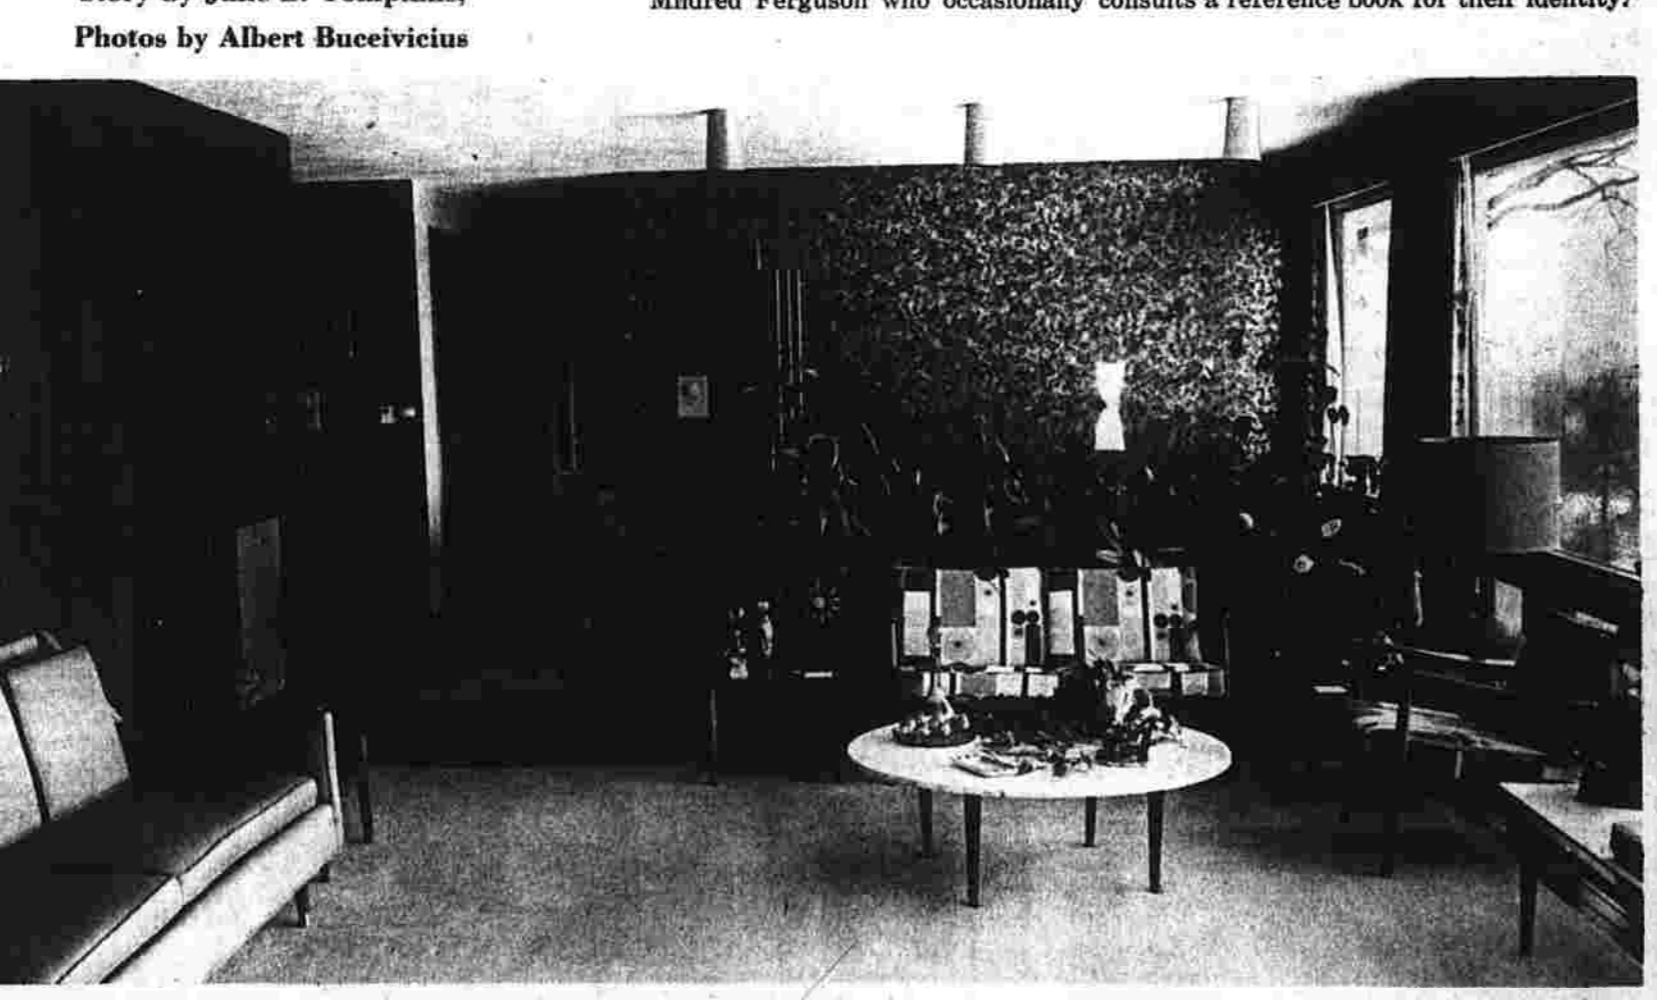

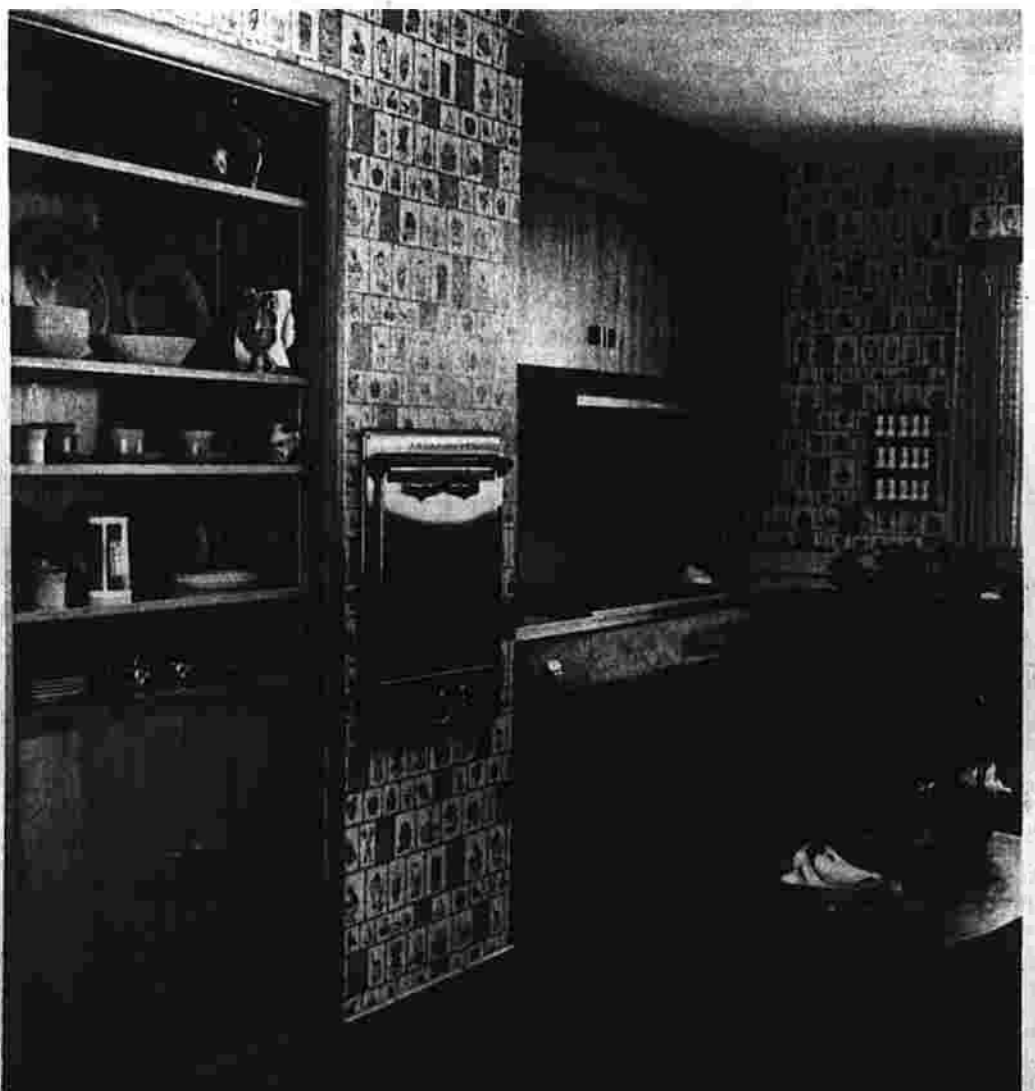

What was a porch is now an enclosed den with a glass wall separating it from the dining room which can be isolated by draw drapes.

You don't have to be in the Ferguson's home very long to notice that aqua and

A tete-a-tete corner (above) is conveniently located between the dining room and the glass walled den. The unusual use of a coffee table in the kitchen (below) has proved as useful as it is decorative.

The spacious living room provides a complete built-in entertainment unit, and a planter of living greenery as an entrance screen.

A recreation area, complete with kitchen and dinette facilities, occupies most of the basement level. Note the carpeted lounge corner.

The growing collection of Hummel figurines is a source of great pleasure to Mildred Ferguson who occasionally consults a reference book for their identity.

A House For All Needs

The Bible Speaks
by Eugene Brewer

In a recent issue of the Herald, a report was given of the Cornell, Associated Press Religion Writer, told of the latest development in the Jewish movement, namely "Jesus for Jews." These youths in various parts of the country retain their Jewish identity. They have declared their love for Jesus as the Messiah. This movement began in San Francisco where a group led by evangelist Elmer G. Lash, a film in color showing the work of Jewish people. Undoubtedly it is part of the general religiousness of youths and their disengagement with established religious entities.

While Christianity has its roots in Biblical Judaism, it is not merely a supplement to it. Rather, it is the fulfillment or end toward which Judaism was ever pointing—the Messiah hope of all men. God designed that all should be saved through Christ, including Jews, Romans 11:28.

Lighting At School Said Bad

Oliver Cross, a Connecticut Light & Power Co. representative told the school board this week it should "take out every light fixture in Porter School and replace them with higher intensity lights."

He told board members lighting in the oldest section of the school is "terribly bad." He said the children's eyes are at a "tender stage."

Cross, who was asked by the school to conduct a survey, recommended the board raise the illumination level to 100-foot candle power.

There are no state statutes governing the minimum of lights, Cross said, but added that lights should have at least 75-foot candle power. The school has some lights with 40-foot candle power.

Cross will present a complete and comprehensive plan for the lighting needs at the board's April 14 meeting.

Other Business
School board chairman Donald Phillips, appointed Raymond J. and Marian Miller to work with him and board member Albert Hartigan on the transportation committee. Solomon Joseph Baysa also will serve on the committee.

One other study the committee will make is town-owned buses versus contract services. The board granted a one-year maternity leave to Mrs. Joan Baldwin for the 1972-73 year. Mrs. Baldwin has taught math here for six years.

Bloodmobile
The Red Cross bloodmobile collected 83 pints during its visit here Wednesday - eight pints over its quota.

Robert Cafasso of Hebron was a six-gallon donor. Marion Poole of Hebron was a five-gallon donor. John Laibbrandt of Lebanon and Richard Wolner of Colchester were two-gallon donors. Other gallon donors included Anita Hildrad, Columbia; John Soderberg, Essex Meadows and Marjorie Graham, all of Hebron; Irene Lathrop, Andover; and Glenice Lescoe, Columbia. Luncheon was served to workers by members of St. Columba's Ladies Society. Columbia had 40 donors, Hebron 30, Andover 11, Newington 11, Norwich 1, Willimantic 1, Lebanon 4, Chaplin 1, and Manchester 1.

Food Festival Held at School

A meal fit for a king was served to about 50 parents, teachers, principals and invited guests at Thursday's Foreign Food Festival at Phelps Hall.

Mrs. Nellie MacIntyre's fourth grade class at the Hebron Elementary School, with the help of their parents, served such items as Polish stuffed cabbage, Italian baked lasagna, "Indian" Pilgrim baked beans, Hungarian goulash, and German Shoo-Fly pie.

Children in the class have been studying the population of Connecticut with respect to the ethnic groups of which it is made up and the contributions of immigrant ancestors to our present day society.

They have collected recipes from friends and other countries which they enjoy at home and each parent and guest received a colorful recipe booklet containing 24 of these recipes.

Guests were greeted at the festival by host Robert Roy and hosts Annemarie Pawling, both fourth graders, and presented with name tags.

During dessert, which featured English four cream coffee cake, Swiss almond cookies, Irish soda bread, and Swedish Rice Pudding, the fourth graders entertained their guests with "spoon" music.

Selects included "Tjanssa Suserkrant," directed by Sharon Sage; "Strutting with Marie," directed by Harold Berry; and "Never on Sunday," directed by Jerry Leper. Marie Saged announced the program.

Menu
The menu of the elementary school's next week will be:
Monday: Spaghetti, cabbage and pineapple slaw, apple pie.
Tuesday: Chicken pot pie, orange juice, green beans, applesauce.
Wednesday: Selami grinder, gouda salad, strawberry dessert.
Thursday: Roast turkey and gravy, sweet potato, cranberry sauce, p.e.s., French cheese cake.
Friday: No school. Good Friday.

"They would add a new dimension to the war if it happened." It would be a new dimension indeed. When the military history of our war in Vietnam is written, the one military fact which is likely to attract most analysis and debate is one we have during the actual course of the war, taken almost for granted.

This has been the biggest, longest war ever fought in which one side has always had virtually undisputed command of the air.

One side has been able to bomb without fear of being bombed back.

The same side has been free to use bombers, fighter planes and to use jets in conjunction with its own land operations without having to guard against the possibility of enemy fighter plane intrusions.

Under such conditions, the helicopter has become a main instrument of the war in Vietnam. But even those who have been directing, expanding and setting from its use must have been trying to figure out, all along, what the rule of the helicopter might still be if the enemy had fighter planes in the air, or even other helicopters.

Why has it been this kind of war? First, the United States decided that it could and would risk the use of its air power. Its decision balanced a fear that North Vietnam's big bombers might respond with air power of their own against the immediate military threat, which seemed to be, back in 1965, that North Vietnam might win the war very quickly if air power didn't get into action immediately.

Second, Russia and China did not choose or dare to back up their local allies with their fighters, their fighter planes or their helicopters. For some reason, fortunately, they held back from the act which would have converted this into world war. Perhaps it was because they feared they would lose in any such contest with us. And perhaps it was because they calculated, with considerable accuracy, perhaps, that their little friends in Indochina could stay in the war against us even without any air power of their own.

Of course, Russia and China still have the option of changing their minds, and of doing it at a point when they might catch us going the wrong way, trying to get out of the war. Would we then head back to face, at last, the full scale world conflict that has been avoided so far?

We hope Russia and China aren't rash enough to try and find out what we would do, if that "new dimension" should now appear. It would seem to be to their benefit to let what seems likely to be the verdict of military history stand — that we are getting out of Vietnam because our unchallenged command of the air failed, not because it worked.

Rustily, Lustily Sing!

No one around here objects much to winter. It's a season, like any other, part of a set of four. No one really wants to break the set.

And no one in these parts really expects much of a set-up into the better season, so to speak, and is supposed to have his own 90 day quarter; but everybody doesn't do that. There are spring days, although there is no spring season.

But the middle of March is a sorry time, neither the best nor the worst. The ice on the ponds is thin, and this is a restaurant, hamburger, the snow is a tuff of white under the morning sun. The only thing that makes it any better is because the districts would provide rural standards of efficiency for one another, as against a situation in which New York City as one unit has no comparative operations to use as a yardstick.

But the main point has been made, efficiency or no. At the same time when we are having a great drive to build regionalism, in one way, we are getting a recommendation to break it up, where it already exists in its ultimate form — in one great city, where it could surely be argued from the pro-regionalism point of view, it would make sense to have one big organization to do the same thing everywhere.

We wish there were, in this, some inkling as to what is really the better thing — regional bigness or regional smallness.

But we are afraid the only lesson we can read is that we like to cycle ourselves, in modes of government as in everything else, from one fashion to another and then back again.

"New Dimension" Nobody Needs

A recent dispatch from Saigon contains the understatement of the whole war in Indochina.

It was the quoted reaction of "senior American analysts" to "intelligence reports" which were said to show that the North Vietnamese have been building up stocks in the southern part of their country and promising the Vietnamese and their own troops that they will soon begin using bombers over South Vietnam.

What one "senior American analyst" said was this:

"The main point has been made, efficiency or no. At the same time when we are having a great drive to build regionalism, in one way, we are getting a recommendation to break it up, where it already exists in its ultimate form — in one great city, where it could surely be argued from the pro-regionalism point of view, it would make sense to have one big organization to do the same thing everywhere."

State of Shock

By COLMAN MCCARTHY The Washington Post

In the emergency rooms, a common sickness is shock. The patient's face has turned a severe physical pain — a burn, hemorrhage, broken bones — and suddenly the flow of blood is dangerously reduced. Doctors surge and rescue squads are trained to treat the victims of shock, and the revival rate is high normally needs in order to respond humanly.

Another kind of shock exists, though not of the body but of the mind. All of us suffer from it in some measure, and keeping one's mind and emotions out of shock may easily be the major challenge for Americans in the last third of the century. Future shock is something that we worry about, but present shock may be even more threatening.

People are thrown into mental shock by the news that the same is as victims of physical shock. They are battered by some form of external reality, mental shock results in a reduced flow of emotions that is high normally needs in order to respond humanly.

The person in shock in the 20th century is one who is constantly learning of so much tragedy, horror, chaos and numbness that he can no longer absorb it. He becomes numb. Newspapers tell him one day that 10,000 infants die every year from a mysterious disease called crib death, and that night the television news reports that 30 per cent of America's tap water is contaminated. A burglar story estimates that 4,000 people die annually of burns from flammable fabrics. The late TV news says that some 200,000 may have been slaughtered in Bangladesh. Five hundred million suffer daily from chronic malnutrition. American prisons, the Indochina War, and a host of other horrors are being reported in the news.

Some believe that the ideal therapy for emotional shock is participation in a cause, like work therapy for certain kinds of chronic depression. For the moment, this makes sense. A person can ride a bicycle to work and stop helping to destroy the air with car fumes. Or he may petition department stores to stop selling flammable clothes. Or he might invest only in corporations that have a social conscience. However small, these are valuable contributions to the world's fund of sanity.

But another question lingers: Can the reforms of the last few years be maintained? The world is in a state of confusion. The world is in a state of confusion. The world is in a state of confusion.

"I would be the last one to recommend anyone get involved with politics, but I think this helps put it in perspective." — Dallas Richter, director of the Texas Program on Drug Abuse, after a national commission recommended abolishing criminal penalties for the private use of marijuana.

"That's a hell of a charge, but that's the way it is." — Congressman Mort Saltzman, who says that some censorship on the television network is self-imposed by performers.

"I think it was very likely that the Pay Board will go on, but how and in what manner remains to be seen. There's more than one way to skin a cat." — George H. Boldt, Pay Board chairman, commenting on the resignations.

"The person who is asked to take on all these burdens — but can't — does not necessarily become confused or even mildly depressed. Instead, something else happens, much worse: The motors of the emotional life stop running. The emotions can be carried no ground of empathy or understanding. What a character believed in is T. S. Eliot put it true: We can stomach only so much reality, then we sicken."

The great danger of present shock is not a mental breakdown — which often leads to a renewal of spirit — but emotional numbness. It becomes impossible to care about anything, so we end up caring about nothing. A sense of outrage is replaced by a sense of acceptance, a numbness of feeling that no tragedy can touch. The occasional person who does get worked up is often forced to step so far out of line that he is he who looks odd, other than the conformists still marching in place.

Ralph Nader recently told an interviewer that not only have American leaders become numb but citizens themselves have been led by their numbness. "We're seeing huge disasters — Biafra, Pakistan. You get a few more of these and people are going to be totally callous. You remember how it was? Bandwagons! American would send relief. Now an earthquake wipes out 40,000 and

One of the allegedly dictatorial phases in the Senate on the scene, one for each legislative committee. While the committee chairmen have succeeded in making themselves so that they are bigger than ever, the trend toward the "modern legislature" has been steadily reducing the public role. This has been done by making it more and more difficult for the public to know where and when what messages are being given a public hearing, by holding hearings with interminable committees between sessions when there is no immediate action to be taken by interest, and by organizing the hearings themselves on a basis more likely to reproduce the self-interest of the lobbyists than the public interest.

Some phases of modern legislative management seem to be organized lobbyists than the public interest. Some phases of modern legislative management seem to be organized lobbyists than the public interest.

There is, in other words, the personal involvement in the particular issue of whether Senator Smith is to be re-elected. This is a matter of personal interest, and it is not surprising that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announcing a long-range investigation to determine the impact of multinational corporations on U.S. foreign policy.

"I would certainly think that it would take the rest of this year to get very far along with it, and it may take longer." — J. W. ### Display Shows Earth in Trash Barrel

On display in South Windsor's public library front window is the "Earth in a trash barrel" which is the League of Women Voters way of calling attention to the residents for cooperation in townwide conservation programs.

Mrs. Cynthia Wotel, chairman of the League's environmental study committee and a member of the Conservation Commission, said that both groups have teamed with the South Windsor Public Library Director, Clayton Massey, and have planned a special program for Monday.

The "Earth Wagon," a multimedia mobile of the Connecticut State Library will be in the Sullivan Ave. Shopping Center between 1 and 9 p.m. Monday and will display informational materials dealing with problems of the environment. Some 500 different books, including a special collection of current paperbacks about the population explosion, the urban crisis, air and water pollution, recycling wastes, overdevelopment of the land and other topics will be available to readers through the library order system.

Current information on proposed legislation for environmental control will be posted on a special bulletin board. Teaching and survival guide films and filmstrips will also be displayed, as well as nearly 100 pamphlets on environmental related topics published by the Federal and State Governments, conservation associations and private organizations.

Children will also have an opportunity to participate in the day's activities. Massey has duplicated a game "E-COL-GEB" for distribution. It appeared in the March issue of the National Wildlife book for children "Ranger Rick."

Current and past conservation activities in South Windsor are also being displayed by the Conservation Commission in the library window display.

Mrs. Louise Evans, chairman of the commission, and Frank Michael, Mrs. Betty Warren, Mrs. Constance Eriksson and Mrs. Wotel, all commission members, and representatives of the state library will be on hand to answer questions.

Connally Defends Pay Board

Connally said federal price and wage controls will end when inflation drops to 2 1/2 per cent and wage demands level off at 5 1/2 per cent.

"We also must convince the American people that it is not in their interest to again begin" the spiral of inflation, he said.

School Board To Get Reports

The Board of Education will meet Monday night at 8 in the Bennett Junior High School Main Building.

Miss Harriet Atwood, Highland Park School principal, will report on that school for the educational policies committee. Other reports will be given by the chairmen of the personnel and finance, building and sites, and communications committees.

The calendar for the 1972-73 school year will be presented for adoption.

The board will act on a request for a leave of absence and the retirement resignation of Miss Ruth Hadden, third grade teacher at Highland Park School, who has taught in the system 29 years.

Police Report

Manchester police detectives made two arrests of youths yesterday, which they said are connected with an investigation of activities near the center of town. The two cases are not directly related, however, police said.

Kenneth E. Sibley, 16, of 943 E. Middle Tpke., was apprehended in Center Springs Park yesterday, and charged with possession of liquor on town property (a town ordinance). He was released on a written promise to appear in court at Manchester April 10.

Bradford R. Abbott, 17, of 447 Adams St., was arrested last night on charges of possession of a controlled drug. Police said they found a substance, believed to be marijuana, on his person during a routine check at a Main St. pool hall. Abbott was released on a promise to appear in court April 10.

A 19-year-old girl and a 16-year-old boy were arrested last night on charges stemming from an alleged sale of liquor to the girl at the Thrifty Package Store, 604 Hartford Rd.

Sharon A. Starret, 26 Fernside Dr. was charged with procurement of liquor by a minor, and Adyan G. Allen, 84, of Lake Rd., Columbia, was charged with sale of liquor to a minor. Court date for both is April 10 at Manchester.

Harold W. Hodgkins, 43, of 19 Locust St., was arrested yesterday morning on charges of fourth-degree larceny and breach of peace, in connection with an alleged disturbance at Southern New England Telephone Co. offices at 52 E. Center St. A phone company employee complained that a man came into the office, nearly struck a woman, and walked out with a telephone, police said. He was released on a $250 non-surety bond for court appearance April 10.

James Daley, 52, of no certain address, was arrested last night at the A&P market on E. Center St. on charges of intoxication, breach of peace, second-degree assault, and resisting arrest. Police said the charges stemmed from an alleged fight involving Daley, the store manager, and an off-duty policeman who tried to stop the disturbance. Daley was held overnight and released this morning for court appearance April 3.

Mark S. Bortone, 18, of 273 Boulder Rd., was issued a written warning for operating a motor vehicle with defective brakes, following a three-car accident last night at Spruce and Pearl Sts. Bortone told police his brakes failed as he was approaching the intersection, headed west on Pearl St. His car struck a car, northbound on Spruce St., driven by Gerald E. Thibodeau, 270 Hackmatack St., police said. The impact sent Bortone's car spinning into a parked car owned by Gary Holmes of Coventry, police said. Both the Bortone and Thibodeau cars were towed away.

No one has filed a challenge to any of the 74 members of the Democratic Town Committee endorsed in district caucuses Feb. 29. The deadline for filing challenges was Tuesday.

Ted Cummings, town chairman, says he will call a meeting of the committee in mid-April to organize for the next two years.

There will eventually be 75 committee members. Atty. Richard Woodhouse, one of the nine winners in District 3, moved into District 4 shortly after the caucuses. Woodhouse is not required to resign from the committee, according to the committee rules. The remaining District 3 members will choose someone to fill the vacancy.

There are strong rumors that the vacancy will be filled by Barbara Coleman, the party's vice chairman and a veteran committee member defeated Feb. 29 in the packed (19 candidates for nine seats) District 3 race.

The choice of Miss Coleman seems logical. It would come across as a goodwill gesture for Cummings, also from District 3. Cummings and Miss Coleman have an occasion been at odds with one another.

In addition, Miss Coleman is acknowledged as one of the hardest workers the party has. She has been on the town committee for as long as most people can remember and has given it her all as the saying goes. She is considered a leading candidate for Democratic State Central committee woman.

Cummings says, "The members of District 3 have several names under consideration, among them Miss Coleman." Miss Coleman says she will accept the position if it is offered.

Spring is in the air and town public works employees are beginning or getting ready to begin numerous warm weather projects.

According to Jacob Bohr, public works project coordinator, projects which will be under way include improving the turning radius at Spruce and E. Center St.; rebuilding sluice gates in the Union Pond dam; setting up a drainage system at the Bennett Junior High School athletic field where some drainage problems have been observed; finishing the dike and an island at the southern end of Union Pond as part of the recreational development there; planting some trees at Charter Oak Field; surveying town roads for the annual repaving program; and draining the area near the secondary sewage treatment plant where the town dog pound is to be relocated.

The sluice gates at the dam will be built by town forces. The contractor who began repairs to the dam last fall still has some work to complete this spring before the pond can be filled again.

Eleven town employees this week completed an Emergency Operations Planning Course offered once a week for the past 11 weeks under the University of Connecticut Extension Program.

As part of the course, the eleven completely rewrote the town's emergency operations plan. Copies of the new plan will be distributed to town departments and other agencies in town who would be involved in any disaster.

Taking the course were James Fogarty, the town's Civil Defense director; Bohr; George Ringstone, assistant highway and sanitation superintendent; Thomas Walsh, water department; L. Robert Lanman, police department; Charles Crociani, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds with the Board of Education; William Androlot, park department; Mrs. Dorothy Hubbard, civil defense department; Mrs. Vleva Clarke, welfare department; John Rivosa, deputy fire chief; and Mrs. Marguerite Wood, health department.

Frank Ennis, a construction inspector in the Engineering Department, has been appointed deputy civil defense director by Fogarty. The position is new and is non-paying.

Mayor John Thompson has been appointed chairman of the Municipal Functions and Services Committee of the Capitol Region Council of Governments. The committee has two applications for federal funds pending with the New England Regional Council. One grant, if approved, would fund a demonstration project for inter-town cooperation for paper recycling. The other grant would be used to prepare a technical handbook for capitol region towns on what technological devices and process are available for the disposal of solid wastes.

The appointment automatically makes Thompson a member of the CROCG's executive committee.

The Human Relations Committee and the Youth Commission will meet jointly April 3 to review the situation on Main St. across the street from Friendly's. Both commissions have been considering the problem of youths who congregate there and occasionally harass pedestrians.

Recent discussions of both groups indicate that the two organizations favor establishing a lighted area in Center Springs Park at which young people will be encouraged to "hang out."

In the discussions of the situation, it has been acknowledged that much of the problem is related to drugs, in many cases heroin.

Manchester Area Police Report

Vernon police last night arrested Dr. Joseph J. Kristan, 52, of 230 Kelly Rd., Vernon, on a 12th Circuit Court warrant charging him with reckless endangerment in the second degree. He was released on a promise to appear in Rockville circuit court April 18. Police would not release any details relating to the arrest.

Derek J. Lisk, 21, of Somers Rd., Ellington, was charged with improper passing on Grove St. yesterday shortly after noon. Court date April 18.

Joseph D. DeRobertis, 16, of 3 Daly Circle, Rockville, was charged with passing in a no passing zone on Union St. yesterday afternoon. Court date is April 18.

Fire Calls

Town firemen were called to 12 Haynes St. at 4 o'clock this morning to extinguish a fire in the living room there. There was some smoke and heat damage, according to Deputy Chief John Rivosa. Firemen were at the scene for about 40 minutes, Rivosa says. The fire apparently started in a chair, he reports.

Shortly after 9:30 this morning, Eighth District firemen went to 191 Main St. to put out a fire in a car there. Firemen reported extensive damage to the interior of the car.

A bombing mission against enemy positions near Saravane on the northern edge of the Bolovens Plateau.

A spokesman, Maj. Chester Hanson, said the announcement was withheld pending the completion of an unsuccessful search-and-rescue mission. No parachutes were seen to open and there were no indications of any radio contact being made with downed airmen.

The command said the two U.S. Army UH1 medical evacuation helicopters were shot down nine miles south of Tuy Hoa while trying to lift out wounded South Korean soldiers.

The command said one of the helicopters sustained heavy damage and the other light damage.

Both helicopters were painted white with red crosses and were unarmed, the command said. This was part of a new program to make them easier to recognize.

was asked if the combination of a busing moratorium and putting more money into black schools was in effect going back to the old doctrine of separate but equal facilities for blacks.

Nixon said he agreed with the Supreme Court's 1964 decision that legally segregated schools were inherently unequal.

However, he added, "busing for the purpose of achieving racial balance not only does not produce superior education, it results in even more inferior education." If busing were carried out to the maximum degree, Nixon said, it would still leave the vast majority of black school children in central cities with basically inferior schools.

He added that was why he proposed concentrating money in those areas where students would never be helped by any program of busing, "no matter how extreme."

Nixon said this approach has not been fully tested and he was not sure if it would work, "but I do know that we cannot go on with the present situation where we leave them there growing up in inferior schools with no chance or hope."

Music Classes Hear Quartet, Close Program

A brass quartet from the Hartford Symphony this week culminated background instruction for the 117ing Junior High School Grades 7-8 general music class by giving two performances.

Quartet members were Ronald Kutik, trumpet; Michael Thompson, French horn; Robert Meyers, trombone and Ronald Apperson, tuba.

The musicians explained their instruments and performed as soloists and as a group. Compositions ranged from contemporary arrangements of Bach and Mendelssohn to short pieces by Hindemith and Leonard Bernstein.

A highlight was the rendering of several solos by Apperson on the tuba, which usually functions as rhythm instrument or foundation of an ensemble group. "It was a real holiday for me," he said.

The guest artists used a piece of garden hose with a plastic funnel at one end and a trumpet mouthpiece at the other to demonstrate the principle of brass instruments, that the length of the vibrating column of air influences the tonal pitch.

In preparation for the program, students saw films, listened to recordings, gave class reports, and in some groups tried the instruments. Arrangements for the quartet's appearance were made by Ralph Maccaroni and Mrs. Christine Parks. The concerts are funded by proceeds from the school's Christmas operetta and spring concert.

'Last of the Mohicans'

"The Last of the Mohicans," James Fenimore Cooper's sweeping adventure tale set during the French and Indian War, comes to television as an eight-part BBC dramatization starting Sunday at 9 p.m. on Connecticut Public TV, Channel 24 in Hartford.

In the summer of 1757, half-sisters Cora and Alice Munro (played by Patricia Maynard and Joanna David) arrive in colonial America from Scotland to find themselves thrust into the hostile and dangerous wilderness of northern New York.

Territorial rivalries between France and Great Britain have erupted into a bitter-border war pitting French troops and their Huron Indian allies against British redcoats and the Iroquois.

The girls' efforts to join their father, Col. Munro (played by Andrew Crawford), the British commander of Ft. William Henry, are blocked by Magua (Phillip Madoc—in background at right), an Indian guide secretly serving the French.

Magua's plan to betray the Munro sisters to the Hurons is foiled by Hawkeye (Kenneth Ives—above), an American woodsman and scout for the British, and his companions—old chief Chingachgook (John Abineri) and the chief's son Uncas (Richard Warwick—foreground at right)—the last survivors of the aristocratic Mohican tribe.

In a series of thrilling attacks, captures, flights, and rescues, Hawkeye and the Mohicans display their resourcefulness in outwitting the Hurons, led by Magua.

Rich in pre-Revolutionary American history and fair in treating the Indian as a real human being with his own culture, "Last of the Mohicans" is also a commentary on the clash between savagery and civilization on the American frontier.

'Amateur's Guide to Love' Premieres Monday on CBS

"The Amateur's Guide to Love," a new half-hour daytime comedy-celebrity-panel series which will take a fresh and funny look at sex, love and marriage and will award prize money to participants, will make its debut Monday, March 27 on CBS.

The series, which in effect will be compiling a guide book by amateurs and for amateurs — each day adding new pages in front of a studio audience — will be presented Monday through Friday at 4 p.m.

The show's hidden cameras will photograph unsuspecting "lovers" reacting to unusual situations in a variety of places, such as wedding chapels, beauty parlors and department stores. The persons photographed will then be invited to the studio where series' host (Gene Rayburn) will introduce them to the panel of three celebrities.

'Somerset' Is Two

"Somerset," NBC's daytime drama series will be two years old March 30. In its initial months, the series—a companion program to NBC's "Another World"—was called "Another World — Somerset." Now the storylines are separate and there are no longer any interlocking elements between the two series.

"Somerset is a quiet town," says producer Lyle Hill, "until you know the warfare that rages in the homes of the people who live there. People like Ben and Ellen Grant, who little expected their daughter Jill to fall in love with a man who may be a murderer. People like Sam and Lahoma Lucas, whose love is being torn apart by the very baby they both desired so much. People like India Delaney, who rules Somerset from a business executive desk. People like Ginger Kurtz, whose happiness seems to live only in the misery of others. Tony Cooper, a young man in search of his own identity.

"Somerset" is colorcast Mondays through Fridays at 4 p.m.

Familiar Host

Tom Kennedy, whose quick wit and ready smile have been long familiar to television viewers who dig game shows, is the host for the fast-paced game show, "Split Second," on ABC.

For the past two years, Tom hosted "It's Your Bet," television games series. Prior to that, he spent seven years hosting "You Don't Say." Tom's first big break was on "Big Game," followed by the television revival of "Dr. I.Q."

During summer hiatus and vacation periods, Tom turns to acting in summer stock. He has starred in theatrical productions including "The Odd Couple," "Tunnel of Love," and "There's A Girl In My Soup."

Tom first got his start as a radio announcer in his hometown of Louisville, Ky. He then returned to college, putting himself through school by announcing at local radio stations.
