Sheinwold on Bridge

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It isn't very often that you get the chance to make four related plays in a single hand. My partner and I had this good fortune in a national championship a few years ago playing against Cort Boland of Toronto.

North-South vulnerable. Opening lead - Two of Diamonds.

I opened the deuce of diamonds from the West hand against Boland's ambitious contract. My partner took the queen of diamonds and began the attack on the trump suit by returning the king of diamonds. This forced dummy to ruff with the ten of spades.

Boland next tried to cash three top clubs. My partner saw the third club with the jack of spades, hoping to embarrass Boland by if he overtook. Instead, Boland discarded his last diamond.

Having made two plays of her own, my partner returned a trump and left it up to me to continue the fight. There was no problem in defeating the contract but the question was whether we could set it two.

The extra hundred points are worth their weight in gold in tournament play.

Let Him Get Out

Naturally, I refused to win the first trump trick. Deocher had to win with dummy's queen of trumps and his own way to get out of dummy.

Boland led a club from dummy and ruffed with the eight of spades. This was another familiar situation. I discarded a heart, declining to overruff. I felt sure that my trumps would improve with age.

So it turned out. Boland now had K74 of trumps with the A-10 behind him. No matter how he struggled he had to lose electronic gear to cars, planes and television sets. The first leasing firms appeared in Germany only nine years ago.

Hart Does Lavish Job On 'Marriage'

By JOHN GRUBER

Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" opened last night in a grand production that will run at Millard Auditorium for the remainder of the week. It is a superb opera and the performance I saw was extremely good.

As usual, there are two casts which alternate, and as usual I shall not mention names since I only attend one performance.

The production was lavish, with sets by David Mitchell and costumes by Paulina Kent Dennis.

Stage direction was by Jacques Karpo who kept the pace of the action moving in grand style, an absolute necessity in this "opera buffa."

I rather missed the late Eleanora Nagra's real projection scenery, since this is a work that could utilize this device to fine effect, nevertheless, I do not see that his passing has resulted in any appreciable loss of own staging and performance standards by this excellent, professional music school.

The production is in English, as is customary, which leads to some problems. The translation, not literal but an adaptation, is not closely to the Italian original, was really excellent.

It was the work of Ruth and Thomas Martin, was stinging and sensitive to the spirit of da Ponte's libretto based on the second volume of Beaumarchais' story about the ubiquitous barber from Seville.

However, Italian falls more readily off the tongue than does English, in short, it is easier to sing in fast passages. Fast passages abound in this opera and Kofka Parozny, who conducted, was faced with a choice of two possibilities. He could keep the gay, rapid tempo and obscure the text, or he could make the text intelligible and slow the production. He chose right, happy tempos.

It then became readily apparent that while some of the cast could negotiate the English words at speed, others could not. This is to be expected in a cast of non-professionals, and might easily happen with singers of far greater reputation, even so, an audience unfamiliar with Italian, could get a word or two here and there, whereas they wouldn't get anything in the original language.

It has always amazed me, however, that the devotees of Italian opera, in this country, and they are legion, never take the trouble to learn any of that language. It isn't difficult, much easier than French, for example, and even if they could only grasp a word or two more than the average production in English.

I can't say last evening's production was definitive. The notes were there, but the finesse and polish inherent in a Mozart work and so necessary to its perfect performance, were absent to a large degree.

The score was cut down quite cleverly, to more manageable proportions than is the case with the original. I had to watch carefully to be aware of the omissions, and I know the opera pretty well. Everything was there that was essential, and a little that was unessential; the result was a full evening of entertainment shortened with taste and understanding.

Tackling an opera of this difficulty is an exacting assignment for any music school, and in fact for such an august institution as the Met. That last night's production succeeded as admirably as it did, is a tribute to everyone concerned. Incidentally, the dances were by the Hartford Ballet, not Hart. They were acceptable but not outstanding.

Buffalo Bill at UConn

The shaggy, maned bovines that gave William Cody his better-known name return to campus on February 25-March 4 when the University of Connecticut Department of Dramatic Arts presents "Buffalo Bill at the Heart of the Rockies" at the Hartford Theatre.

A 55-member cast will depict a full-length Buffalo Bill by sides Wild Bill Hickok, Sitting Bull, Gerardo and Chief Joseph.

Curtains are 8:15 p.m. There will be matinees at 2 p.m. on February 26 and March 4, with a Sunday evening performance on February 27. Ticket information may be obtained from the box office.

Ruth Rowley Sees Merit In 'Arsenic'

One of the Little Theatre of Manchester's (LTM) charter members, Ruth J. Rowley, will appear in "Arsenic and Old Lace" to be presented at Bailey Auditorium in the Manchester High School on Feb. 24, 25 and 26. She will play the role which was introduced by Eileen Hayes on Broadway.

Mrs. Rowley, who is as much at home in the role of director as actress, has seen "Arsenic" seven times and has loved it every time.

"It's one of those plays," she says, "that looks so easy to do, but is difficult to do. It's a farce, which requires a lot of discipline. Mrs. Rowley continues, "It's so tight, it's really a study in technique, this play."

Previous and silly are other terms Mrs. Rowley uses to describe this play which has been presented line and time again by various theater groups.

Asked as to whether she prefers to play drama or comedy, Mrs. Rowley replies, "Oh, I'd much prefer to do drama, heavy drama; because it affords an opportunity to develop great depth of character." She referred to the roles of Linda in "Death of a Salesman" and Amelia in "Glas Menagerie."

She refers again to the farce, "Arsenic." "It's a test of a true actor's technique."

Mrs. Rowley emphasizes the importance of timing in a play such as "Arsenic." "It must be polished!" she admits that it's difficult.

"Let anyone become confused," Mrs. Rowley hastens to add that there's a difference between farce and light comedy. "Light comedy," she says, "it doesn't care for it at all. It's too shallow. There's not much to it."

The curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Tickets for a family funny fare are available at the Liggett Parkade Drug and will also be available at the door.

Folk Concert At MCC Tonight

Manchester Community College's music club will sponsor a folk night tonight from 9 to 11 in the main campus auditorium. It is open to the public and free.

Participants are Stephen Crosby, Donald Paterville, Rosemary Kiratton, Sandra Morgensen, Freddy May, Bernard McKenna, Lois Stealey, James O'cott, William Pine, Raymond White, and Sharon Finkle.

Most of the singers will play their own accompaniment. Vocal and instrumental selections will be traditional and popular folk music, with some original.

The Senator himself hasn't been persuaded to talk about his operation, but there is really no reason why he should be bashful about it. This is an age when more and more men in public life are suddenly blooming with a full head of hair where previously there was nothing.

It has been reported that both candidates in the last presidential campaign took artificial means to see that their fringes of their hair which might have been turning gray remained safely black. It is generally conceded that the most important thing in any politician's career these days is the kind of image he can project on television, and the concept of a winning image on television is that of the magnetic handsome hero just approaching the full tide of his masterfully ebullient manhood, never, heaven forbid, beginning to edge over the hill.

All this is known and conceded, and there is, consequently, no particular reason why Senator Proxmire or anyone else resorting to the known devices of the image trade should feel bashful about it.

What they all ought to recognize, however, is that all their concentration on the matinee idol type of image is leaving the national political door wide open for some clever character who comes along looking as if his hair had worn thin, sporting an ugly artificial war or two, displaying wrinkles of wisdom, giving experience, wearing a shirt with a turned collar and a tie which looks as if it had been treated with a home-made cleaning fluid for a home-made soup stain.

The most successful type of phony in the political business is the one who succeeds in pretending to be something real and natural. It is always, then, how often politicians will turn to their natural assets. The voters of Wisconsin are not likely to be fooled by their Senator's age. They are likely to begin judging that, instead of making him wise, it has begun to turn him a little bit foolish.

High Risk Journey
 What is the most realistic hope for President Nixon's journey to Peking? It is that, with good fortune, and lucky management and careful behavior on the part of all, the whole mission may be accomplished without having anything go wrong.

To get out of the adventure without some misadventure — to journey in and out of the precarious situation without getting hurt — these are outcomes we would all be glad to settle for.

Probably these are outcomes the President himself would settle for, too. Merely to go and come without unseemly incident would still constitute a significant breaking of the diplomatic ice and would, at the same time, satisfy his domestic political requirements.

The reason why we would all be content with such modest, almost negative results from the President's mission is this: we can all visualize the high risks being run. By imagining the consequences of some mere mechanical failure in any of the machines involved in the President's journey.

The possibility of a physical disaster might involve instant dramatic disaster. A diplomatic disaster might be less quick to get itself reported in the news, but one can shudder at the dismal variety of consequences which might ultimately be involved. Suppose, for a particularly unpleasant instance, the Chinese, noting how far President Nixon has departed from his own natural policy base and from his own original political supporters in order to go out on this China trip limb, should decide to use the opportunity to destroy Nixon? This they could come close to doing by sending him home with nothing but insult to show for his historic prodding. And this is something the Chinese might do, if they are as villainous as Mr. Nixon himself used to believe them to be.

The main point is that this is a very high risk journey.

Many observers think that the risks being taken in such adventuresome personal diplomacy are higher than the possible gain can justify. The potential gains, they argue, could have been obtained, if they are available, by more prosaic forms of communication.

Such second guessing is now, however, of no particular importance.

The first hope has to be that all goes well, in the negative sense that nothing goes spectacularly wrong.

Beyond that, anything that can be done for the prospect of peace in Vietnam in particular and for some future new agreement among the great super powers of the earth that they will try to share citizenship of the world rather than rule of the world, will be welcome. The great search is still for what ancient China was once supposed to have ahead of everybody else — civilization.

Discovering the Leech
 Perish forbid that we ever should, by content here, seem to set ourselves up as medical consultants.

But it is in the news, crying to be noticed, that medical science has been experimenting, recently, with the possibility that a little bloodletting can be a very healthy thing for people, who may be living in danger of coronary trouble.

The possibility is that thinning the blood helps in the fight against atherosclerosis. One of the side dividends would be that such therapeutic bloodletting would also help the nation's effort to keep enough whole blood on hand for its hospital needs.

But what lends real spice and interest to this kind of news is the memory of how sure we all have been, for so many years, that the practice of leeching, either by instrument or by the leech worm itself, was something that belonged to the darkest, most primitive ages of medicine.

Playing For Keeps
 State Police Commissioner Cleveland B. Fuesenich committed himself to be a better politician than polkeman when he announced that he would not, if they were not favored, mandatory license suspension of speeders. The argument is between Republican Gov. Messli and Democratic House Speaker William Ratchford, with the governor in favor of the suspension.

The Administration may maintain that Muehle's opposition undercuts the President's chance of success in Paris, but it cannot prove, by the record, that the converse is true, i.e., that if Muehle and other Democrats come forward with their own arguments, the negotiations will succeed.

The statements Mr. Nixon himself made in 1968 in support of President Johnson's policy — statements the Republicans are now citing as a model of political rectitude — did not avail to bring the war to a negotiated settlement. And despite Mr. Nixon's public position at the time, there is some evidence that the prospect of his imminent election did delay the suggestions by causing the South Vietnamese to postpone coming to Paris.

As the 1968 experience indicates, there is literally no way that diplomacy can be totally insulated from the stresses of a presidential campaign. Since no one would suggest postponing the American election until the Paris talks conclude, the only question is whether the terms of the suspension might be claimed that both together would be the most effective of all — with the added advantage that it would not be the policy of the President and criticized by the opposition.

Of course the suspension policy is tough on the speeder. It works hard on people who earn their living by driving.

But its virtue is that it hits everybody convicted of speeding, and it plays for keeps. The only way to avoid its penalty is to keep well under the speed limit which is what a lot of people were doing when it was in effect.

After all, death and dismemberment for keeps too.—MERIDEN RECORD

The Senator's Black Eyes
 The Senator who has interested and impressed, and offended others, by his sometimes very able representation of the liberal point of view on national issues, is currently sporting a pair of black eyes.

The Washington gossip columnist found out why with very little trouble. The Senator has undergone a little face-lifting. As the black area under his eyes fades to blue and then to yellow and finally back to white again, the skin of his upper cheeks will be tight again, and it might have been a few years ago, before the first gentle ravages of age began to appear in the form of under-eye pouchings.

Governor Messli himself has been citing some of the political factors which give him a chance of winning the big gamble he took when he asked the General Assembly and the state to go along with him in holding the spending and taxing the law now.

The political risk the Governor runs in holding the line now, in the second year of his administration, is that all spending and taxing need break loose in the third and fourth years of his administration, just before the Republicans would be asking the people to vote for another four years of having a Republican Governor.

To have held the state's fiscal situation by the horns, now, should have been a most difficult task before the Republicans would have asked the people to vote for another four years of having a Republican Governor.

Open School Concept Not New, Klar Says

By JUDITH DONOHUE (Boston Correspondent)

The open school concept is not new, according to Walter Klar, a Bolton resident, parent and educator who would like to see open schools in Bolton.

Speaking to a group of about 20 persons at an education program sponsored by the Bolton Junior Women's Club last week, Klar stressed that, although the concept has come to the attention of only in the past year or two locally, it has been evolved and growing during the past two or three decades.

Klar spent last summer in Oxfordshire, England, studying the British primary schools with a group of educators including Dr. Vincent Rogers, head of the elementary education department at University of Connecticut.

The basic goals and values of English schools, Klar feels, are different from those in most American schools. In American schools he visited in Oxfordshire were set up to cater to the needs of individual children, not for the convenience of adults.

Principal and Teacher The roles of teacher, principal and parent in the British primary schools are also quite different from those in American schools, Klar said.

The English principal is primarily a teacher, not just an administrator as in this country. He is answerable neither to a superintendent of schools nor to a board of education. Klar's statement that "There are no school boards in England" is a somewhat extreme reaction from the audience.

Klar described the teacher as a "mentor" and "coach" who works "out alongside" the child instead of from behind a desk at the front of the room. He noted that teachers are given much more autonomy in their classrooms, and they are given the responsibility of choosing a proper program for each child. He said that in England, a teacher never adopted "wholes" in his class.

Teachers keep an extensive file on each child, recording his progress, not in terms of what the rest of the class is doing, but in terms of what he has previously done. Thus, Klar said, a child does not fail to learn.

Parent conferences are held frequently and the teacher and parent review the child's work periodically.

Parent Role Parents are an integral part of the English school system, according to Klar. Some are actually present in the school, assisting the teachers with lunch and playground supervision, or helping with classroom projects. Klar said their presence is expected and welcomed by teachers and principals.

Use of formal textbooks is de-emphasized in the British primary system, Klar said, although they are used in research projects. Children are encouraged to read a wide variety of books and are given

Three Charged In Fake Money Distribution

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — Police arrested three men Wednesday and charged them in connection with passing at least 10 counterfeit $10 bills.

Arrested and later released without bail were: Reuben Fletcher, 27, of Hartford, and Charles Albert Harrington, 33, and Theodore Pierle, 36, both of the Boston area.

Police say the men passed the phoney money at all night restaurants and a gas station in the Hartford area Tuesday night.

According to police, the three men made small purchases and paid for them with the counterfeit money.

Nixon Approves Machine Tools For Red Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has approved licenses for export of up to $80 million in machine tools and equipment for a big Soviet truck plant to be built 400 miles outside Moscow.

The Commerce Department announced approval of the licenses Wednesday as a continuation of the relaxation of U.S. embargo restrictions against trade with the Soviet Union.

Commerce said the licenses will allow the Soviet Union to buy machine tools and equipment for a big Soviet truck plant to be built 400 miles outside Moscow.

Political Parade

By DAVID S. BRODER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The old drama of the propriety of sharp political debate over basic questions of foreign policy — the question whether, as Arthur Vandenberg liked to say, "partisan should stop at the water's edge" — is being agitated again, in the wake of Sen. Muskie's blunt criticism of the American bargaining position in the Vietnam peace talks.

The very Republicans who were chucking for months over the President's threat to "pull the rug" from under the feet of his Vietnam critics are now complaining in outraged terms that the leading Democratic presidential prospect has "pulled the rug" from under Mr. Nixon and his Paris negotiators.

Secretary of State Rogers became so agitated by the Maine Senator's speech that he lapsed into a partisan counter-attack of his own — and had to be soothed publicly by Mr. James Reston, an advocate of bipartisanship for a quarter-century.

Before the question becomes hopelessly mired in partisanship, it might be helpful to set forth a few considerations on which such a question should be judged:

1. It would be naive to assume that there may not be a cost to the American bargaining position when an opponent of the President, a man who is given a 60-60 chance of succeeding him in less than a year, orders the enemy what are, in effect, easier terms for settlement than the President himself is publicly offering.

Muskie is disingenuous when he argues that he is simply exercising his right as a senator to express alternative views. Obviously, Muskie weighs his statements on a different scale than it does those of other Democrats who have little chance of being President.

2. The question whether this is responsible or irresponsible behavior on his part is a legitimate political question — one which the public is well-entitled to decide after hearing the arguments on opposing sides.

The Administration may maintain that Muskie's opposition undercuts the President's chance of success in Paris, but it cannot prove, by the record, that the converse is true, i.e., that if Muskie and other Democrats come forward with their own arguments, the negotiations will succeed.

The statements Mr. Nixon himself made in 1968 in support of President Johnson's policy — statements the Republicans are now citing as a model of political rectitude — did not avail to bring the war to a negotiated settlement. And despite Mr. Nixon's public position at the time, there is some evidence that the prospect of his imminent election did delay the suggestions by causing the South Vietnamese to postpone coming to Paris.

As the 1968 experience indicates, there is literally no way that diplomacy can be totally insulated from the stresses of a presidential campaign. Since no one would suggest postponing the American election until the Paris talks conclude, the only question is whether the terms of the suspension might be claimed that both together would be the most effective of all — with the added advantage that it would not be the policy of the President and criticized by the opposition.

Of course the suspension policy is tough on the speeder. It works hard on people who earn their living by driving.

But its virtue is that it hits everybody convicted of speeding, and it plays for keeps. The only way to avoid its penalty is to keep well under the speed limit which is what a lot of people were doing when it was in effect.

But, It Might Get Married

This Parking Meter Never Gets Cheated

By MORT ROSENBLUM
 SINGAPORE (AP) — A motorist was delayed at a curb recently because his parking meter had gone to the ladies' room.

Singapore has used human parking meters for 12 years with remarkable results: No one has ever belted, kicked or run over a Singapore meter.

Each costs $60 a month to maintain and 1,000 of them take in $6,800 daily.

Tan Yew Kheng, whose title is assistant superintendent of car park, charges that occasionally a parking meter couple state funds into a meter while the meter must be first for talking back to a motorist.

The system works this way: All parking spaces on downtown streets are numbered. When you park, a little ticket goes on the window. When you leave, you hand in the ticket and pay for the hours you are parked.

If you park past closing time, the ticket stays on your window for payment at a booth later. If you don't pay, your meter can be towed and you stand and fume or go to the parking booth probably his way.

In case you don't pay, or someone steals your pink slip, a mailed notice goes you with a surcharge. One court reserves Saturday for parking offenders. Two-thirds of Singapore's parking meters are women. They wear straw hats with huge rans, and they flop down and lie under the chin. Like the men, they wear military-like blue coats with epaulettes.

They stay at their jobs an average of two years, until a better job appears in Singapore's overcrowded economy.

About 10 per cent marry men whose coins they collected.

"And that's another problem," Tan said, "choking." "After the child comes, it's back on the street."

Tan says: "We are very satisfied with this system. Our eventual aim is to abolish on-street parking, use military and underground car parks. So until then we will continue."

Tolland Course Set For Parents In First Aid

A one-night crash course in the first aid concentrating on the needs of parents of young children will be presented Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. at the Tolland High School cafeteria.

The course is sponsored by the Tolland Junior Women's Club safety committee. Dr. Allyn Danbeck and Dr. M.D. Josephson, Rockville anesthesiologist, in presenting short films on emergency care.

The balance of the evening will be devoted to audience participation in first aid techniques.

Parents and babysitters are urged to attend the program.

The Tolland Cooperative Nursery School will hold a registration session for the 1972-73 school year on March 15 from 10 until 11:30 a.m. in the United Congregational Church Religious Education Building.

Children must be four years of age by Dec. 31, 1972 to be eligible for enrollment. A small registration fee and birth certificate are required at the time of registration.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Diana Malkin, Shempitt Lake Rd.

Officers Elected

The Tolland Young Democrats have elected Rudy Kowalski of Grafton Rd. as their first president.

Other officers elected are Stanley Johnson, vice president; Anthony Tantillo, Jr. second vice president; Carol Hunt, secretary; and Michael Murray, treasurer.

The club meets the second Wednesday of each month from 7 until 9 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Appointment Due

The Board of Finance will hold a special meeting Monday night at 7:30 in the Administration Building to act on the appointment of a member to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of William Swanback last month.

Under the terms of the town charter, all appointments to elective offices must be filed by a member of the same party as the person resigning.

Two Democrats have had their names submitted for consideration, former finance board member Kevin Cavanaugh and John Trainor.

Banquet Board

The Tollanders Square Dance Club will meet tomorrow night

NBC Estimate More Households Have Color TVs

The number of households equipped with one or more color television sets increased to 22.3 million as of Jan. 1, 1972, according to an NBC quarterly estimate. This total means that 22.8 per cent of all homes with TVs have color.

The NBC estimate is based on a variety of industry source data, including reports of color set production, sales, imports, and dealer inventories.

On Jan. 1, 1971, NBC estimated that 45 per cent of TV homes had color, and at the same time in 1970, the figure was about 39 per cent.

Tonight's Movies

- "Colleen" (1969), 8 p.m. on Channel 18. Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell star in the typical 1930s musical.
- "My Blood Runs Cold" (1965), 9 p.m. on CBS (Channel 3). Jerry Donahue and Joey Heatherton star in the electrifying suspense drama concerning a rich and reckless young woman who slopes to Mexico.
- "The Glass Bottom Boat" (1966), 11:30 p.m. on CBS (Channel 3). Doris Day, Taylor, and Arthur Godfrey star in the romantic comedy set in California.
- "The Boy Cried Murder" (1969), 1:45 a.m. on Channel 3. A boy with a vivid imagination witnesses a murder, but nobody will believe him.

Late Night Switch

The CBS Late Movie, launched last Monday to replace the Merv Griffin Show, doesn't look like it'll bump Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show" from the top of late night viewer ratings.

While the movies did better than Merv had, Carson looks secure in his NBC talk-variety program on NBC.

Most of the CBS flicks have been seen on TV before, anyway, but a lot of them are worthwhile seeing again.

Griffin, meanwhile, is scheduled for a new syndicated series to start in about a month. So far about 50 TV stations have bought the upcoming program.

Rhodesia Sends Chrome to U.S.

BEHRM, Mozambique (AP) — The first legal shipment of Rhodesian chrome ore to be sent to the United States since Congress lifted the embargo was being loaded today.

Shipping sources said 25,000 tons of ore were being put aboard the Argentine ship Santos Vega. It came by rail from unblockaded Rhodesia.

Congress lifted the ban on Rhodesian chrome and other strategic minerals late last year, defying the U.N. economic sanctions against the white regime in Rhodesia. However, a number of other nations have been trading covertly with the Rhodesians ever since the U.N. Security Council voted the sanctions.

Alfalfa From Iran?

Chicago-Alfalfa, a mainstay of today's agriculture, is being only forage known to have been cultivated since before the era of recorded history.

Rhodesians were probably the first to bring alfalfa to the United States, according to a report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Coventry Nongraded Plan Backed In Poll at Public Hearing

By HOLLY GANTNER (Herald Correspondent)

Residents last night again indicated that they favor implementing a nongraded kindergarten program by responding on a straw vote questionnaire 118 to 80. The poll followed a three and a half hour public hearing at which the kindergarten committee made its third presentation of the program, and several residents rose to speak or ask questions.

The results of last night's poll were by no means as overwhelming as those gathered at a similar meeting at Coventry Grammar School three weeks ago. At that session, the poll showed 130 in favor of the program and only 12 against.

The Board of Education is expected to act on the program at its Feb. 24 meeting, deciding whether to implement the kindergarten nongraded, which is phase one of a five-phase program to upgrade the entire system by the fall of 1975. Results of the two polls will be taken into consideration by the board members in making their decision.

Last night's public hearing was called after a petition was submitted to the board two weeks ago. It was held in lieu of a similar session already scheduled under the sponsorship of the Robertson School PTA.

Not Packed

Some board members had expressed the opinion before last night's meeting that it would be "packed" with nonadvocates of the program, but this did not appear to be the case. Dr. Don Hardy, superintendent of schools, led off the presentation of the program by noting that he has made several appearances before clubs and civic organizations in the past month and a half, and that in many instances, non-backers of the program have become backers through gaining a more thorough understanding of the proposal.

The kindergarten committee of teachers from both elementary schools, explained that the program, while geared to an individualized approach, is nevertheless highly structured, and will encourage the growth and development of each child at his own rate. Each child's progress will be measured only against himself, not against his peers.

During the question and discussion period, it was stressed that the atmosphere will not be so permissive as to allow each child to just meander at will. Hardy emphasized the "accountability" factor in the program. Many residents expressed concern over evaluation of the program as it progresses during the first year, stating they feared that if it was failure, the school board and Hardy would attempt to hide this.

Phase by Phase

Hardy said this would certainly not be the case, since he plans to make periodic reports detailing the effectiveness of the program.

Others wondered if, by backing phase one of the nongraded program, they would automatically be locked into the next four phases, particularly phase two, which would upgrade grades one through four in September 1973.

Hardy said this was not so, and that residents would have ample opportunity to express their views on each phase. The real strength of the entire program, Hardy felt, is that it is teacher-made and tailored to the local school system.

He said that phase two would be planned in the same way as phase one—by a committee of teachers who would actually be working in the program.

Other comments by residents centered on the fact that some felt perhaps the board and Hardy were moving too fast to change the basic educational system in the town. Dr. Joseph Korffeld, a resident and former member of the lay curriculum study committee, noted that the report of that committee at most two years ago, it was strong in recommending that the town consider a nongraded program as a means of correcting deficiencies in the system, and as a means of improving student motivation.

Other Concerns

William Klisane wondered if the freer approach to education program have become backers through gaining a more thorough understanding of the proposal.

Britons Darken Blackout

But last month things began going wrong.

First, exports started sliding, leaving January's trade in the red.

Unemployment kept rising. Output over the past four months slumped while industrial investment remained stagnant.

Then came the coal strike leading into the staggering electric power crisis that has shattered hopes of any early economic expansion.

Already leaders of industry have warned the government that massive aid will be needed to keep hundreds of firms in business. If the miners get anything like what they are holding out for, leaders of other unions seem certain to conclude that they can do as well by determined strike action.

Most authorities seem agreed it will take months to mend the damage caused in the past few hectic weeks.

This situation has translated into much more than a vote on an important piece of Common law on implementation of Market legislation. It is a vote phase one. Its meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the high school and, as usual, will be open to the public.

Warplanes Hit North

just north of the buffer strip.

The U.S. Command said initial reports indicate that five of the 100mm artillery pieces were destroyed or damaged.

A spokesman said the guns were Soviet 100mm artillery pieces with a range of more than 16 miles, the most powerful North Vietnam has.

He said that they had been moved to within striking distance of South Vietnam's northern frontier for the first time in the war, although they have been used in Laos before.

"These strikes were necessary to counter a threat to the security of remaining U.S. forces in Vietnam and Thailand to help bolster the U.S. air air force in the area," said a spokesman from the headquarters of Gen. Craig W. Abrams, the U.S. commander.

Spokesmen acknowledged that there are only a handful of American advisers and technicians at South Vietnamese bases along the DMZ within the range of the enemy artillery. But "you have to look at the threat in a broad context," said one U.S. military source. "They can use these guns to help overrun Quang Tri which would be a threat to U.S. personnel."

Other observers said protection of the South Vietnamese forces, not of the Americans, is the prime purpose of this new phase of the air campaign as well as the rest of the American air operations in Indochina.

Informants disclosed that 15 fighter-bomber reinforcements have been brought from other points to air bases in South Vietnam and Thailand to help bolster the U.S. air air force in the area.

New England AP Has New Editor

BOSTON (AP)—West Virginia News Editor Craig Ammerman will succeed John J. Mullins, who will take over special writing assignments in the region.

Mullins, 80, had been news editor since 1968.

Ammerman will report to Boston at the conclusion of the current session of the West Virginia Legislature in March.

A native of Richmond, Ky., Ammerman is 38 and has been with the AP for 24 years. He was formerly correspondent in Huntington, W. Va., and had been news editor in Charleston for the past 18 months.

Assembly Briefs

18-Year-Olds — A proposed state constitutional amendment that would allow 18-year-olds to hold elective office was approved Wednesday by the Legislature's Election Committee.

The 21-year-old age minimum for state and local elective offices was unsuccessfully challenged in the courts last year by two 20-year-old men seeking public office in New Canaan.

Wrong Calendar — The House sent back to committee Wednesday two bills which had found their way onto the calendar by mistake.

Rep. James Palmieri, D-Waterbury, co-chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said the bills had not been approved by his committee and were not ready for floor action. The measures concerned licensing of real estate brokers.

Court Fees Bill — A bill to encourage judges to waive court fees for the poor, voted last year by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, was sent to the Appropriations Committee Wednesday.

Meskill said in his veto message that the measure went beyond the most recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the subject.

The bill was approved by the Judiciary Committee and placed on the House calendar, but was referred to the Appropriations Committee because

A Day Like All Days
On Eve of the Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — History was about to be made, but the presidential paperwork had to be done.

So on the eve of his departure for Peking President Nixon accepted the 100th anniversary of the founding of the United States by signing the Declaration of Independence in the White House.

And, finally, he sent to the Senate for ratification a document described in best government circles as "a partial revision of the radio regulations," (1969) relating to space telecommunications, with a final protocol dated at Geneva, July 17, 1971.

The billiard of papers flowing from the White House resulted from whirlwind efforts of aides to clear the President's desk on a 23-day, 20,000-mile mission to China.

And he issued proclamations placing himself foremost in the favor of the Red Cross, poison prevention and sight preservation; named seven members to the National Council on the Humanities; and accepted the resignation of the Secretary of the Interior, James Watt.

Dozens of White House employees devoted full time to keeping track of the paperwork. Many of Nixon's hours are consumed by doing nothing more than signing his name.

As Nixon prepared to depart

When He'll Be There

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the China trip itinerary for President Nixon as issued in expanded form by the White House Tuesday.

Thursday, Feb. 17, 11:30 a.m. EST—President and Mrs. Nixon depart the White House for Andrews Air Force Base, Md., for an 8-hour flight to Anchorage, Alaska. He will fly to Shanghai Feb. 27, 10 a.m. EST—President and Mrs. Nixon depart the White House for Hawaii, a 10-hour flight to Honolulu, Hawaii. The presidential party arrives at Kaneohe where the chief executive will remain, without public appearances, until Feb. 18.

Saturday, Feb. 19, 1:30 p.m. (8:30 p.m. EST)—The President departs Kaneohe for Guam, a flight of 7 hours, 40 minutes across the International Date Line.

Sunday, Feb. 20, 5:15 p.m.—President arrives at Guam International Airport and spends the night at the home of the commander of the naval forces in the region.

Monday, Feb. 21, 7 a.m. Guam time—President departs Guam for Hong Kong, where he will arrive at 10 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 22.

Hanoi Demands Peace Session
PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam demanded today that the United States and South Vietnam agree to a session of the Geneva peace talks next Thursday.

The anti-Communist aide said it has not yet decided when it will agree to a new meeting.

The North Vietnamese delegation to the talks delivered messages to the American and South Vietnamese delegations, which canceled today's meeting because of the antiwar conference at Versailles last week. The allies said the conference was injurious to the neutral atmosphere which should surround the talks.

North Vietnam said this reason was "indefensible" and a "subterfuge by the United States to mask its acts of intervention in the war."

Hospital Care
The Legislature's Public Health and Safety Committee has reached a public hearing on hospital and health-care costs for Feb. 24.

The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. at the state Capitol.

Man Shot in Leg As Dogs Watch
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A man who wanted to see how his dogs would act if he pretended to be injured ended up getting shot by a motorist trying to help.

Police quoted Sam Davis as saying he lay in the street and "howled and screamed" while his two dogs growled and snarled at anyone who tried to come near.

A passing motorist got a gun from his car and attempted to ward off the dogs, but his shot missed and hit Davis in the leg, police reported.

No charges were filed.

Bumper Sticker
The presidential campaign of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace touched an unlikely Connecticut legislator Wednesday.

Sen. Wilbur G. Smith, D-Hartford, a former state director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Senate's only black member, received Wallace bumper stickers in the mail. The sticker was mailed from Florida.

Backing Muskie
HARTFORD (AP) — About a dozen Democratic state legislators have joined the Muskie-for-President ranks and more are expected, according to one of the newly named chairman of the legislative drive on behalf of the Maine senator.

Rep. Rubin Cohen of Colchester, "the dean of the House," gave the progress report Wednesday.

Cohen and Sen. Louis S. Cutliffe of Waterbury are in charge of the campaign to line up state

Field Trip Takes Children to Hospital

Like children in thousands of other schools across the country, pupils of The Children's Hospital, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Richmond at 45 Birch Mountain Rd., make field trips as part of the regular educational program.

Although there are similarities in all trips of this nature, there is a feature that sets these trips apart from others. They are all completely voluntary, with no pressure exerted.

The procedure begins with an adult speaking at the school on some place or activity which he is familiar and to which he has access. That is followed by making posters relative to the trip, and sign-ups are made available. The adult takes only as many children as can be accommodated.

In the past, some children have shown little or no interest in visiting this or that place. However, the enthusiasm of the children and youngsters who did go has proved to be contagious, leading to a second scheduling.

The variety of experiences has been almost as great, since the opening of school this year, as individual differences in the pupils themselves.

Miss Lynn Caray, a Central Connecticut State College student teacher, escorted two groups of four youngsters each through classes at the New Britain colony.

A group of about 20 visited the Wadsworth Athenaeum in Hartford to see a performance in French of Moliere's "Scapin" by a Canadian troupe. It was a graphic instance of actions speaking louder than words. Although the visitors didn't understand the language, they were able to follow the plot by means of the players' movements.

In the area of drama, Richmond took a group of eight children to the Hartford Stage Co., where they were given a backstage tour and interviewed some of the company members. The children also saw a performance of the rock musical "Hair," in Springfield, Mass.

Thirteen children, some for the first time by this mode of travel, went by train from Hartford to New Haven and return. Other local field trips have been to the Lutz Junior Museum and the Royal Ice Cream plant, where six children on each of three visits watched the step-by-step manufacture of the delicacy.

Out-of-town groups have visited the dinosaur park in Rocky Hill; Children's museum in Boston; and the Children's Planetarium in West Hartford.

At times, it is more convenient for the educational purpose to be completed at the school. Some demonstrations have been the laser beam by Frank Michaels, a South Windham physicist; cooking of Indian food by Mrs. Ramesh Dave of 12 Russell St.; preparation, by of 17 Weaver Rd. is scheduled Mrs. Barbara Epstein of 86 to demonstrate weaving.

Talcoville Woman Killed In Hartford Auto Accident
Mrs. Anne Martha Sobral, 58, wife of Francis R. Sobral of 49 Welles Rd., Talcoville, was pronounced dead at the scene of an accident on Rt. 2, Hartford, yesterday afternoon.

State Police said Mrs. Sobral was traveling south in the northbound lane and slammed head-on into a car driven by Edward W. Linger Jr., 28, of Hartford. Linger was admitted to Hartford Hospital with multiple leg injuries.

Police said the Linger car was struck by a third car driven by William J. Sikorski, 29, of New Britain who escaped injury. The accident is still under investigation.

Mrs. Sobral was born Nov. 8, 1913 in Hartford, daughter of Joseph and Martha Urban Miller, and lived in Hartford until coming to Talcoville 16 years ago. She was employed as an assembler for 18 years at the Helms Funeral Home, Hartford, before it closed its plant three years ago.

Survivors include her husband, a brother, Thomas Miller, of Colchester; and a sister, Mrs. Charles Batters of East Hartford.

Private funeral services will be at the Helms Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Manchester, Wednesday, Feb. 16, at 10 a.m. Burial will be at the Connecticut State Cemetery, 1600 Main St., Manchester. There are no calling hours. The family suggests that any memorial contributions may be made to the Red Cross.

Fire Calls
Town firemen went to Johnson Block on Main St. Monday afternoon to check an oil burner. There was smoke but no fire, a fireman said.

Also, soul food prepared by Mrs. Doris Ledbetter of Hartford, with children helping, to shop for the ingredients; ceremonies by Mrs. Carol Galovich of Glastonbury; and glass cutting by Mrs. Marie McGee of Glastonbury.

Norman Krampeit of Vernon titled the school garden at the end of the year.

Public Briefing Set Tonight On CDAP Preliminary Plan

A public information session will be conducted tonight in the Municipal Building Hearing Room by the CDAP agency to allow members of the public to review and ask questions on the preliminary draft of the CDAP document.

Citizen's Advisory Committee members and Manchester residents are urged to attend.

The CDAP document is the product of what is approaching three years of citizen planning. In that time seven CDAP task forces, composed of members of the CAC, have reviewed 12 areas of community life and formulated goals and objectives for those areas.

The preliminary CDAP document contains plans proposed for the next six years in these 12 areas.

After tonight's public information session, public hearings will be scheduled on the various areas. Based on comments at these hearings, some of the proposed plans will be revised and the revisions incorporated in the final draft of the CDAP document.

The document will then be submitted to the Board of Directors for their approval. If approved, it will then exist as a sort of master plan for the town for the next six years, with recommendations included for as far as 20 years into the future.

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By VIVIAN F. FERGUSON

The legend of George Washington and the cherry tree comes from an early biography written by "Parson" M. L. Weems. It is considered important primarily because it contains many legends of our first president, the most famous one being that of the cherry tree.

Whether George ever chopped down the tree with or without his father's consent is not known. Every year, around the time of his birthday on February 21, cooks bake cherry pies, tarts and the like. The red fruit is also used for Valentine's Day because of its color.

A really easy dessert using cherries is similar to one I had in my mother's home when I was in an apartment. She gave me several times of pie fillings.

A year ago, on my husband's birthday, we decided not to have a cake. I looked through my cupboards to see what I could utilize to make something different. I chanced upon the fruit fillings and here is the result.

Cherries Anniversaries (Anniversary) cherries
 2 cans cherry pie filling
 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
 4 to 1/2 cup Barbados rum
 Place in overproof dish, mix sugar and rum into fruit. Bake at 300 until hot and bubbling a little. Serve topped with sweetened whipped cream flavored with the rum or with vanilla.

The dark Jamaica rum is good if you like the taste. I find the Barbados which is a medium rum, more palatable for most tastes. If you don't like rum at all, you might use the kirsch or any of the other cherry brandies. Cherries are not essential. Add a sec, or Grand Marnier, as not essential. Add a stick of cinnamon or cloves to OK too but not essential.

Before dinner, I place the cherries in the oven ready to go. Then, while clearing the table from the main course, I take the brown sugar is lumpy, if the will melt as the fruit warms up and you can stir it once or served in place, thought tastes differ when year.

Bring the oven dish to the table and serve it there.

It is thought that sweet cherries originated in Persia and Armenia. Some historians believe sour cherries came from Italy and Greece. Canned sweet cherries come mostly from California where the highest ranking grade demands that the fruit be an inch in diameter. The sweet cherry evolved from the wild cherry.

When large dark sweet cherries are ripe, Europeans put them into jars with brandy to be eaten with coffee after dinner or sugar and served with drinks before dinner.

For those who would prefer a less opulent recipe, the following is taken from the Dictionary of Gastronomy, first published in 1913.

Cherries in Brandy
 1 lb. sweet ripe cherries
 1/2 lb. (one cup) sugar
 brandy

Wipe cherries with a soft cloth, wash off stems to 1/4 inch and pack cherries into jars. Cover with brandy, seal and store six weeks. Dissolve the sugar in 2 tablespoons water and cook over low heat, stirring constantly. Drain brandy from fruit and stir into syrup. Pour syrup back into jars, seal and store another two weeks. If desired, strain brandy syrup through muslin though this is not essential. Optional: Add a stick of cinnamon or cloves to jar.

Fruit soups are made in many dishes in the over ready to go areas of Europe. I have tasted them mostly in ethnic restaurants of middle eastern European all I have to do is switch the oven on. Don't be concerned if the brown sugar is lumpy, if the northern Ukraine, fruit soups and you can stir it once or served in place, thought tastes differ when year.

Cherries are grown heavily in New York and Michigan. The earliest times, the Romans knew eight varieties. Archaeologists have encountered quantities of cherry pits in the lake dwellings of Switzerland.

A little farther afield was a steamed and pita. Frozen cherries need not be thawed. Cook cherries in four cups water with the stick of cinnamon about 10 minutes or until soft. Remove cinnamon and add sugar to taste. (If frozen cherries are used, perhaps no sugar will be needed as they are sweetened).

Combine flour and 1/2 cup water in a closely covered jar. Shake vigorously until smooth. Blend. Pour into hot cherry soup, stir and bring to a boil. Simmer 3-4 minutes. Chill thoroughly, preferably overnight. Stir in sweet cream or heat in sauce cream; flavor with red wine, if desired, just before serving. Serves 6-8.

Dr. John Gworek, a South Windsor dentist and father of one of the pupils, visited the school for a talk on proper dental care and the reason for low level of first teeth.

Miss Marjorie Maynard, a social worker on early childhood with the Connecticut Department of Education, addressed an evening meeting of parents at "How Young Children Learn." Children's art work was on display and refreshments were made by the pupils in the morning.

The next scheduled field trip will be to the Lutz Junior Museum.

Nursery School Youngsters Visit Library, Market

Children of the YWCA Nursery School have made and received visits in recent weeks as part of their experiences with the world around them.

Two trips in the immediate school area were to the White Memorial Library and Top Notch Supermarket. At the library, they were given a tour of the facilities and enjoyed a story hour. Each child was allowed to select a book to take home to school. These were the source for a daily reading by teachers.

A Top Notch, a special treat was a tour of areas of the store not seen by their mothers when shopping. The youngsters were particularly interested in the back-fence politics of simpler times. I think that many people believe they are new and creative. Last year I even had one gentleman who came with no suggestions or complaints, just thought the sessions were a good idea and wanted to make sure there were some attendees. Another fellow finally told me he was not from my district but he had a suggestion that he had never been able to get anyone to listen to. In addition to the community sessions, of course I am pleased to have anyone write or call me.

I would like to conclude this article with just a few words about this "write your representative" business. In the first place, a lot of people do it who are not really interested in, but few really understand. I hope to write a future article explaining it. Incidentally, I will again be holding "community sessions" in each of the four towns that I presently represent (although East Hampton and Marlborough will not be in my district for the next election because of the redistricting). If you want more detailed information on anything that is mentioned in these articles, please feel free to stop by.

Same Name But No Relation, Plan to Marry

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Arthur V. Watkins, who was widowed last year, has announced plans to marry.

Watkins, 85, said his bride-to-be is Dorothy Watkins, a woman in her late 60s who has never been married and is no relation to the senator.

She is a worker in the Salt Lake Temple, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which served two Senate terms and was chairman of a select committee which caused the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., to be fired from the job before hitting a utility pole that was snapped in half.

The new force would be called the University of Connecticut Police and would be under the control of the school's board, a spokesman said.

STORRS (AP) — The University of Connecticut will give its security department the full power and standing of a regular police department, the school's Board of Trustees said Wednesday.

"My intent is not to have a more aggressive police force," said UConn President Homer Babidge. He said the bill would give the 30-man force access to police training and special education programs sponsored by the state and federal government.

UConn security police currently act as constables of the town of Mansfield. They have practically all powers of arrest of regular police, but their power to issue warrants has been questioned several times in court.

Bradley Feared Losing Status To New Jetport

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) — A state official says he disagreed with a study that predicts a major jetport on the Connecticut-Rhode Island border would considerably diminish the stature of Bradley International Airport.

The study was done by Charles A. Maguire & Associates for the state's Port Authority Study Commission.

The commission's co-chairman, William Stanley of Norwich, said Wednesday he disagreed with the results of the study concerning Bradley. He said a second air transportation facility in the state would complement, not compete with the Windsor Locks facility.

The Civil Aeronautics Board currently is considering Bradley for reclassification as an international gateway. The new time last Friday.

His state's planning agency Tuesday issued a new release on passenger flights to and from Windsor Locks.

The study by Maguire, which was written last May, reports that Bradley's international function would be modified by a "super jetport" so that possible sites for the project, one in Connecticut and two in Rhode Island.

Francis J. Fazzano, Rhode Island director of transportation, said his office was "taken by surprise by the results."

Woman's Legal Aid

BALTIMORE (AP) — Forty female lawyers and law students have established a Women's Law Center here to help women combat sex discrimination in their legal dealings.

"The big problem now is making women aware that we exist," said Devy Bendit, who teaches law at Antioch College. "We haven't had many calls."

The center will provide legal aid to women who are victims of sex discrimination. It will also provide legal aid to women who are victims of sex discrimination.

Why Buick owners are a lot like George Washington.

See your Buick dealer on George Washington's birthday.

Buick owners appreciate a good investment. Just like George Washington. (Ty buying a block of Mt. Vernon today.)

One thing Buick owners appreciate when they buy a Skylark is that it traditionally has had the highest resale value of any car in its class. And they appreciate this even more when they sell it.

Another thing owners like about the Skylark is the fact that it's built with all of the little extras that help make Buicks famous. Like nickel-plated engine exhaust valves for excellent valve durability. And a semi-closed cooling system for protection against overheating. And the list goes on.

In honor of George Washington, your Buick dealer will be offering special deals on February 21st.

Stop in. You'll appreciate a good investment.

Jet Builder To Continue With Design

BONN, Germany (AP) — The makers of West Germany's first jet airplane said today they will not alter the plane's basic design despite a crash that destroyed the first prototype and killed one of its test pilots.

None of the essential control surfaces showed any signs of disintegration during the crash, but it appeared that the plane's drive and there are no indications that the first deliveries of which were scheduled for 1974, represents West Germany's hope of breaking into the jet airplane market with a jet successor to the famous U.S.-built DC-3 workhorse.

Today in History

Today is Thursday, Feb. 17, the 48th day of 1972. There are 318 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history is that in 1941, during the Pacific war, American forces attacked the Japanese at Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

In 1876, sardines are believed to have been canned for the first time at Eastport, Maine.

In 1916, British and French forces captured Germany's African colony of Cameroon during World War I.

Two high State Department officials were in Paris to urge members of the North Atlantic Alliance to reduce or cut off their trade with Cuba.

Five years ago, Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said he had serious reservations about the military effectiveness of the bombing of North Vietnam.

One year ago, President Nixon said he would put no limit on the use of American air power in Indochina, except the use of tactical nuclear weapons was banned.

U.S. Shipbuilding Began in 1607

PORTLAND, Me. — American shipbuilding can be traced to 1607, when the members of a projected colony on the Kennebec River in Maine built the Virginia, a 50-ton planker, and sailed it to England rather than face a Maine winter.

Inflation Goal Held Remote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private research organization's economic forecast doubts the Nixon administration can slow inflation to its goal of 2 to 3 percent even if the Price Commission tightens Phase 2 controls.

A report by the National Planning Association says price hikes in major industries will have to be cut sharply or even rolled back to offset inevitable price increases in excess of the target in services, construction, and other uncontrollable sectors.

"So far," the NPA said, "it is not clear that the Price Commission understands this, and the December increase in the Consumer Price Index was distastefully large."

Continuation of the 0.4-per-cent December increase would mean a 4.8-per-cent increase in the cost of living this year.

U.S. Casualties 2 Dead, 28 Hurt

SAYON (AP) — Two American soldiers were killed in action and 28 were wounded in the Vietnam war last week, the U.S. Command announced today.

The South Vietnamese command said 800 of its troops were killed, about 60 more than the average for the last six months.

Another four Americans died from nonbattle causes, the U.S. Command said.

The heavy South Vietnamese casualties also included 948 wounded and reflected a high point in ground activity that was the most intense since October. It was a prelude to the first million-dollar budget in its history.

The 1971 budget had originally stood at approximately $600,000 and had been pared by about $70,000 early in the year.

Area Job Growth 3 Times U.S. Rate

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — In the 1960s the Tennessee Valley area's manufacturing employment grew at three times the national rate, more than half a million new modern jobs were created and average personal income increased from 64 per cent of the rising national average to 75 per cent.

Hughes Leaves Nassau Haven, Heads for U.S.

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — "We have carried out a routine recheck of the passport of Mr. Howard Hughes," the Bahamas government official said today.

The report could not immediately be confirmed, but it came from a ranking official of the Bahamas government who declined to be identified.

Hughes' whereabouts were unknown.

Meanwhile, an official of Paradise Island Limited said Hughes has returned to the island as early as last weekend with a few members of his staff.

Paradise Island Limited owns and operates the Britannia Beach Hotel, where the 60-year-old industrialist has been reported living since leaving Las Vegas, Nev., on Thanksgiving Eve in 1970.

In Los Angeles, Richard Hamann, publicly chief of Hughes Tool Co., said he inferred from his sources that Hughes left the Britannia Beach Hotel Tuesday.

Hamann said he did not know where Hughes went.

The U.S. Customs Bureau in Washington declined comment on whether Hughes had been processed through customs in his reported return to the United States.

Hughes has not been seen publicly since 1963.

A C-67 cargo plane left Nassau this morning loaded with furniture and other items removed from Hughes' ninth-floor suite of the Britannia Beach Hotel on Wednesday.

Among the items were a hospital bed, blood plasma refrigerator, easy chairs, two reclining beds, mattresses, two sets of film and many pots and pans.

The cargo plane landed 30 minutes later at Fort Lauderdale International Airport and almost immediately took off for an unknown destination.

Bairton Bethel, a senior Bahamian government official, said Hughes himself had not been ordered to leave the Bahamas.

But when asked whether any members of Hughes' staff had been asked to leave, Bethel said: "Mr. Hughes staff, like any other staff of anyone else, must comply with immigration rules and procedures of the Bahamas."

Hebron O'Neill Wants Try At 2nd District Seat

William O'Neill, state representative from the 2nd Assembly District, which comprises Hebron, Columbia, East Hampton and Marlborough, would like to be the Democratic candidate for the 2nd Congressional District, opposing Congressman Robert Steele.

Speaking before the Democratic Town Committee, Tuesday O'Neill stated that if he were asked to run he would be available and be an active candidate.

O'Neill also spoke to the committee about the new town appointment as proposed.

If the appointment does go through, O'Neill will no longer be Hebron's representative as children, pre-school through Grade 6, and they need not necessarily attend the Hebron school. However, parents are requested to accompany pre-schoolers.

The play, for which there is no admission charge, is sponsored by the PTO. It has agreed to provide chaperones. Parents are requested to pick their children up at 8:30 if they don't accompany them.

The Town Committee set March 7 as the date for its caucus in Hebron school, John Hebron, it requests that any Demo-

Bay State Lottery Winners To Get Investment Advice

BOSTON (AP) — Big winners in the new state lottery will be able to consult with a panel of experts on ways to protect their new wealth and use it wisely.

"No other state lottery provides such a service," the lottery commission announced Wednesday.

Winners will be able to consult with a Winners' Advisory Panel of experts in banking and investments provided as a public service by the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants, the Boston Bar Association and the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co.

Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, the lottery chairman, who said the idea for the winners' panel was also inspired by the lottery, the panel will act independently of the unhappy experience of big lottery winners elsewhere prompted the effort," Crane said.

This counseling service, which will be free and voluntary, symbolizes the true concern of the Commonwealth for the welfare of its citizens.

Business Mirror Pension Funds Discovering Mystery of Stock Market

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — State and local government pension funds have discovered the mystery of the stock market. In just one year they jumped their holdings of New York Stock Exchange stocks to $12.3 billion from $8.5 billion.

While this increase helped push holdings of all institutions to more than 40 per cent of the value of Big Board shares, perhaps the more meaningful story is the reason behind the growth.

Years ago the trustee of an important sum of money would hardly consider investing heavily in stocks, mainly because of the risk. Preservation of capital rather than capital gains was the prime consideration.

Increasingly during the post-World War II years the wisdom of the concept was tested and found wanting. Capital invested in conservative securities, such as bonds, was found to erode rather than remain constant.

Inflation was to blame, of course. But more precisely, the shift into stocks can be attributed to an awareness of inflation.

Except for recessions, this country generally does have some inflation, if only at the rate of 2 or 3 per cent a year. But in the 1960s, investors became very aware of the damage wrought by even small rates of inflation.

Their awareness was made acute by contrast with the stock market. During the 1960s, stocks didn't do much of anything and so there was a tendency to discount them as investment vehicles. But they rose during the 1960s.

Gradually, even the most conservative money managers couldn't ignore the evidence—money invested in stocks not only was preserving capital but was adding to it as well.

Insurance companies began putting more funds into stocks. Bank trust departments did likewise, as did colleges and university endowments and non-profit foundations. Even corporate pension funds were so investing.

Pension funds of local and state governments, however, were generally restricted to conservative securities. Managers were constrained by state laws to bonds, and then often to bonds of their own locality.

The pressures to relieve those restraints gradually mounted. Inflation, remember, was making their performance look as fully bad. Moreover, as state and local governments grew in size, more and more people were becoming dependent in their old age on the success of these investments.

In 1967 Wisconsin decided to permit more stock investments than many other states and cities didn't follow until the early and mid-1960s. These pension funds, therefore, are still in the process of realigning their portfolios, which accounts for the big percentage gain in "You're Do a Friend," that spoke with Cavett.

Here are the statistics that document the shift into equities by the institutions. Life insurance companies, being a fraud.

Berrigan Trial Judge To Hear Jury Debates

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Six alternate jurors are still in the federal judge presiding at the conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others says he will hear in private on Friday allegations that one or more women on the jury made prejudicial remarks about the defendants.

Robert C. Baltimore, assistant director of human services for the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare, told newsmen he overheard "a smattering of conversation" on Feb. 7, the day before nine women and three men were chosen to hear the charges that include a plot to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger as a means of opposing the Indochina war.

Six alternate jurors are still in the federal judge presiding at the conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others says he will hear in private on Friday allegations that one or more women on the jury made prejudicial remarks about the defendants.

"I heard a woman say she didn't think that priests and nuns should be involved in politics against the government," Baltimore said in an interview Wednesday.

He said he believed the woman was now a member of the jury, but he couldn't identify her by name.

Three of the defendants are priests and one is a nun. Two others, now married to each other, are a former priest and a nun.

Baltimore said that no person named to the jury—all of whom are now sequestered in a motel—ever expressed an opinion in his presence, on either the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

"They all seemed sincere and honest to me," he said. "That statement that I overheard could have been anything and I wasn't really prejudicial or just an expression made in conversation. I don't know what preceded it or came after it."

U.S. District Judge R. Dixon Herman conducted by telephone citations any way better of the northeast quarter of Veteran astronaut Eugene scolded hunter or the jawbone next winter.

He declined to discuss the matter further.

Judge Advises, Don't Pay the $2

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — For eight years the Santa Cruz Pert District illegally collected fines from motorists who didn't feed the parking meters at the harbor, Municipal Court Judge Donald May said recently. He said only the city has that power.

Most motorists ignored the $2 parking citations anyway because the district says it cost the city only $10 last year in Tuolumne-Litton. The Tuolumne L. transit Harrison Schmitt, the cause. Midnight Launch Set For Next Lunar Shot

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 17, the nation's Apollo program because it is the last planned moon landing mission expected to fill in major gaps in the theories developed from the nighttime hours of Dec. 4, earlier moon landings.

The mission combines several types of terrain-mountains, a spectacular rock slide, a dark area which appears to be beneath the moon's surface. Discoveries from earlier missions have raised the possibility that the moon may have underground pools of water or ice.

Ohio PUC Restricts Sale Of Natural Gas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has ordered all major natural gas companies in the state to stop soliciting new business.

The order Wednesday was part of broad new restrictions approved by the commission on the expansion of natural gas service to Ohio consumers.

Chairman Henry Eckhart said a recent investigation showed there is no assurance that an adequate supply of natural gas will be available to meet demands of consumers of a wide choice. For tribes without a written language, such tomers and on customers con-

Wilt Remembers First Point Much Better Than 30,000th

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) —Wilt Chamberlain has 30,001 career points in the National Basketball Association, but he says his first point scored in the National Basketball Association was more memorable than his 30,000th. Chamberlain scored the milestone point on a posturing third Wednesday night during the call of the Los Angeles Lakers' Steve Nisenzon. Nisenzon was fouled by Chamberlain's shot while on the basket. Ironically a similar play by Chamberlain gave the Bulls a 110-109 victory in the contest. Chamberlain was called for illegally blocking a shot by Connie Hawkins with three seconds left which gave Phoenix the victory.

Apollo Speeds Along

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16 hurtled on today toward a Thursday landing on the moon's mountainous rooftop while engineers on earth wrestled with the mysterious peeling of protective skin of the lunar lander Orion.

Particles of the outer aluminum foil and maylar thermal blanket were observed Sunday flaking away from an area several square feet in size near Orion's reaction control system fuel tanks.

Navy Capt. John W. Young and Air Force Lt. Col. Charles M. Duke entered the lunar lander Sunday night a day ahead of schedule, turned on its power and conducted a one-hour inspection.

Nothing appeared amiss in the spacecraft's systems and there were no plans to alter the mission.

"There is definitely some anomaly or something abnormal in the way the skin looks," said Flight Director Pete Franks after studying the problem.

Launch Smooth

"Our preliminary reports indicate that it will not be any problem, that the thermal characteristics will not be degraded such that we'll have to do anything unusual. That's not a final answer, though."

At Grumman Aircraft in Bethpage, N.Y., engineers worked with a lunar lander mockup seeking an explanation. While engineers pondered the problem, the astronauts slept. They retired shortly before 4 a.m. and weren't scheduled to awaken until noon.

It wasn't known if the protective blanket was shredding on other spacecraft surfaces that couldn't be seen by the astronauts from their command ship or from the inside of the lunar module.

Nor was it known what was peeling, but engineers considered the possibility that the particles were flecks of paint.

The skin problem was the first flaw in an otherwise perfect mission that began at 12:54 p.m. EDT Sunday when a towering Saturn 5 rocket thundered the astronauts into space.

Apollo 16 was so precisely on course Sunday night that a planned midcourse correction was canceled. The astronauts will have an opportunity to perform a course correction tonight and again Tuesday and Wednesday before firing their spacecraft engines at 8:23 p.m. Wednesday to slip into lunar orbit.

Young and Duke are to land Orion on an undulating plateau between two mountain peaks in the lunar highlands near one of the highest points on the moon. Navy Lt. Cmdr. Thomas K. Mattingly will orbit the moon in Casper, the command ship, conducting remote surveillance of the lunar terrain with scientific instruments.

Bumping over the dusty plateau and up a mountain slope in a battery-powered car, Young and Duke will seek evidence the lunar highlands were

Kleindienst, ITT Link To Be Explored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two witnesses with direct links to the White House arranged to testify today before senators investigating the relationship between acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Richard J. Ramsden, a New York investment banker, and Jack Gleason, a former White House aide who now works as a consultant to ITT, were scheduled to open what could be the last week of the Senate Judiciary Committee's investigation.

Kleindienst asked the committee to reopen hearings on his nomination to be attorney general after columnist Jack Anderson published an inter-office memo purportedly written by ITT lobbyist Dita D. Beard. The memo links the out-of-court settlement of three antitrust suits against ITT with the conglomerate's financial commitment to the city of San Diego to help pay for the Republican National Convention in August.

Mrs. Beard later denied writing the memo.

Ramsden has figured prominently in the six-week-long hearings because testimony has indicated he was hired by White House aide Peter M. Flanagan to do a report on the ITT antitrust situation. Ramsden's report contributed to the Justice Department's decision to settle the cases against ITT instead of pursuing them to the Supreme Court.

Flanagan's role has become the central issue. Some committee Democrats say they will attempt to block the Kleindienst nomination and extend the hearings until Flanagan appears before the committee. The hearings are scheduled to end Thursday.

The White House says it will not permit Flanagan to testify.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who insists that Flanagan must testify, said, "If I were Ramsden and received a call from the White House to do a reappraisal of the case, I would think the President wanted it settled. My thinking would be quite different if the call had come from the Justice Department."

House Minority Leader Francis Collins, R-Brookfield, says he thinks it's been "a productive session. We've set some kind of precedent on limiting the number of bills that are filed."

Collins added that there ought to be a committee to settle jurisdictional disputes between other committees, but added that he would not like to see this special committee have the power to rule on what legislation gets to the floor of the legislature.

"I'd hate to see us get down to where the legislature is dominated by a single individual or small group of men," he said.

Commenting on a report praising the Connecticut legislature, Alfano said he is "far from completely satisfied with the legislature. It's still too easy to get legislation passed in the Connecticut legislature."

Rogers Defends Attack on North

Report Massive Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes made their biggest MIG kill in 4½ years Sunday and heavily damaged fuel depots in massive raids in the Hanoi-Haliphong heartland of North Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported today.

Three MIG 21s, North Vietnam's fastest warplanes, were shot down Sunday southwest of Hanoi before they could get off a shot, the command reported. It was the first time American pilots had downed three MIGs in one day since Oct. 26, 1967.

While the command said no U.S. planes were downed by the enemy fighters, it reported a Navy A7 and an Air Force F105 lost during the raids. The pilots of the A7 was rescued at sea, and the two crewmen of the F105 were reported missing.

Three other American aircraft were lost in South Vietnam, the command said. An Air Force F4 Phantom was downed by a surface-to-air missile near Dong Ha, 10 miles below the command area. A second F4 returning from a mission crashed 10 miles northeast of Saigon, and one crewman was wounded. A helicopter also was lost but the crew was rescued.

On the ground, the South Vietnamese command claimed that its forces and allied warplanes killed more than 400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in heavy fighting a mile east of An Loc in Binh Dinh Province on the central coast, and in southern Cambodia.

South Vietnamese losses were 53 killed and 85 wounded, the Saigon command said.

The South Vietnamese said 3,000 paratroopers who were landed Friday within two miles of An Loc had fought their way into the provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon, joined forces with the defending garrison and pushed out the enemy troops. A spokesman claimed that government forces had recaptured the entire town.

North Vietnam claimed that "many hundreds of civilians" were killed and wounded in the U.S. strikes at Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, and Haliphong, its chief port, and that several ships tied at the Haliphong docks were damaged. It said several Russian sailors were wounded when a Soviet ship was hit.

The U.S. Command refused to confirm or deny that the Haliphong docks were hit. It declined to go beyond communiqués saying that the Air Force and Navy planes attacked fuel depots, warehouses

WILLIAM P. ROGERS

Nixon Intent Shown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today the Nixon Administration "has no intention to permit South Vietnam to be taken over by force."

Rogers said the United States will not permit the North Vietnamese offensive to succeed. Rogers said the air offensive against Haliphong and Hanoi is in keeping with President Nixon's prior assertions that the United States would not permit North Vietnam to take advantage of the withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The Secretary of State appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to defend the Administration foreign aid budget but immediately was quizzed by Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., about renewed American assaults in North Vietnam.

Fulbright said he did not think that the interest of the United States merited such a counter reaction.

Rogers said there are three purposes primarily for the renewed air and naval strikes against North Vietnam:

1—To protect American troops still in South Vietnam.
2—To make certain that the withdrawal of American forces can continue.
3—To give South Vietnamese a chance to defend themselves against the massive invasion.

Rogers said the United States does not intend to reintroduce ground combat forces into the action in Vietnam but that the air and naval strikes should make clear to the other side that America is going to take any action necessary to support 450,000 troops have been withdrawn from the Vietnam conflict, there are still 85,000 Americans there.

"If the Communists took over South Vietnam militarily," he said, "what about the 85,000 still there?"

Rogers said that the new North Vietnam offensive, involving 12 of its 13 divisions, shows that the North Vietnamese were "lying to their teeth" in their claims that there were no North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam.

Fulbright said he could not understand how the new attacks on North Vietnamese supply bases promote the interest of the United States with Russia and China.

Rogers responded that the President's record is good. He said the Administration was severely criticized by members of the committee for

Annual Session Goes Well

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most of the legislative leaders of both parties say they think Connecticut's first annual session in recent years has gone well, but add that there is still a problem with too many bills being filed.

Senate Minority Leader Alden Ives, R-Morris, said he still thinks the annual sessions are a necessity but added that "too much legislation has been filed."

Under the state constitutional amendment providing for annual sessions, legislation that can be considered in even years is limited to budgetary, revenue and financial matters, bills approved by committees and emergency legislation.

Appearing on WTIC-TV's "Face the State" program, Ives said he would favor "taking away the powers of the committees to raise bills" in an effort to cut down the amount of legislation.

This year about 800 bills were filed, while in the longer 1971 session, there were almost 7,000 bills filed.

Senate President Pro Tem Charles Alfano, D-Suffield, said he would continue to support annual sessions if there are more limits on the amount of legislation that can be considered.

He said he was "disappointed" at the amount of legislation filed and that he would like to see a special committee created with power to rule on which legislation is to be considered.

Alfano also called annual sessions a "tremendous burden on the average legislator."

House Speaker William R. Ratchford, D-Danbury, said the number of bills filed were "more than I expected but still way below last year."

"On balance the experience of annual sessions has been a positive one. It shouldn't be forgotten that there were 6,000 fewer bills filed than last year," Ratchford said.

He also said he would favor a "committee on committees" to attempt to control some of the bills filed by the legislative committees.

Ratchford said he would not, however, favor removing the power of committees to draft and present their own bills.

"If this were the system, we never would have had such legislation this session as the no-fault bill, the inland wetlands bill, or the age of majority."

He added that more experience with annual sessions would give more balance to the amount of legislation filed in both sessions.

Herald Announces Major Expansion

The Manchester Publishing Co. today announced that plans are complete for the construction of an 8,000-foot addition to The Manchester Evening Herald and the complete conversion of the newspaper's composing department to the cold type or offset method of printing.

Burl Lyons, Herald publisher, estimates the cost of construction and the cold type conversion will be in excess of a half million dollars.

"The Herald expansion is indicative of our firm belief in the future of Manchester and the surrounding area. Our expansion will give us the very best and the very latest in newspaper publishing equipment and will be a symbol of our belief in the people of the Manchester area," said Lyons.

The new addition to The Herald will front on Brainard Place. A garage and a house presently on the property will be removed to make way for the expansion. The building will be of laminated beam construction with a brick front and will be completely air-conditioned. The entire plant will have wall-to-wall carpeting except the press room and storage areas. It will also feature the latest in environmental controls.

On site parking will be provided for every employee as well as for plant visitors and customers. The parking area will be black-topped and lighted.

Surveys are currently underway regarding the purchase of the latest in composing cold type equipment. Training of Herald employees will get underway on a large scale when final equipment selection has been made.

Lyons said architectural drawings of the new addition will be available later this week.

Ground breaking is tentatively scheduled for May 10. Depending upon the arrival of equipment, the construction and the conversion to cold type should be accomplished in late October.

The present Herald facility will remain intact and a portion of the present building will be converted to storage of newsprint.

The Herald was acquired by Hagadone Newspapers of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Nov. 8, from Tom and Walter Ferguson. The Fergusons remain on the staff in a consultant capacity.

Lyons said The Herald expansion will be an asset to downtown Manchester.

"We're pleased and happy to join with other firms who have announced or who are contemplating extensive construction projects down town," commented Lyons.

Executives of The Manchester Evening Herald greet the newspaper's expansion project with enthusiasm. The Herald plans to construct a new addition and convert the composing department to the offset method of printing at a cost exceeding half million dollars. Seated, from left, are Duane Edmonds, advertising director, Burl Lyons, publisher, and Harold E. Turkington, managing editor. Standing, left, Pete Cordera, circulation manager; Tom Fortune, office manager; Albert Cervini, composing department superintendent; Robert Hubbard, press room superintendent, and Sheldon Cohen, composing department assistant superintendent.

A professional fighting man, was feeling in what was to him the most shameful kind of moment.

Nevertheless, the answer from the press has to be that, although reporting war as it is may seem dangerous, once it has been allowed any attempt to forbid it again would prove even more dangerous as well as futile.

Does this mean that a nation which has a free press is less capable of fighting and maintaining a war than some regime which doesn't allow its own people to read or see what war is really like? We suppose it does mean that, at least in the short term view. But we have to qualify that with two observations. The first is that, in all the wars of our time, the side which has begun with the highest degree of unthinking discipline has always lost to the side which had the greater freedom of thought and information. The second consideration is that perhaps the pool of combatants, if there is to be one, depends not upon the denial of the activities and results of a free press, but upon their expansion.

That American officer would, we suppose, consider it high good news if he received a report that some North Vietnamese counterpart of his had been having trouble with recruits who didn't want to advance into a battle zone.

For mankind, it may be good news when war is given a bad name and reputation anywhere. That may be the mark of civilization, and a piece of human progress that can't be arbitrarily repealed or turned back.

That being so, would other nations, and other armies, please speed up their own civilizing processes, so that we can begin to get heartening word that they, too, are experiencing disillusionment with war, at home and in the field?

That strange but fortunate momentary bashfulness gives the legislators another shot at their gravy train bill. They ought to take that opportunity to derail it.

The legislators do not need higher pay in any emergency session.

The state officials and the state judges who were included in the bill with increases so handsome they were obviously designed to make what the legislators wanted to give themselves look modest by contrast do not need or deserve pay that much higher than they now receive.

All of these people are on the state payroll because they sought election or accepted appointment to their various offices.

There is no compulsion upon legislators who feel they cannot afford to serve at the existing rate of pay, which is $5,000 for their two year term, to stand for reelection, and it is bad bargaining, if they are unhappy now, for the state to try to persuade them back with a $10,000 figure.

We do not believe there is, in a year when the Legislature feels constrained to limit the raises it can give ordinary state employees to the small sum of $500, a very good argument for giving judges increases of as much as $7,000 a year.

But there is, in this business of the Legislature acting on such a grand spending package which includes not only top salary legislative salaries, but very nice pensions, something even more important and disconcerting than the actual expense involved.

That is the spectacle of how this state around the money tree, which has been a dominant activity with the Connecticut Legislature ever since the people mistakenly voted the Legislature the power to set its own salaries, can transform so many legislators who went to Hartford with high aims of serving the state and entice them into the theory that the best way to serve the state is to increase their own salaries.

The mass pay raise bill as it finally got itself halted Friday night is a bill which ought to be emasculated. If it isn't drastically pruned, it ought to be vetoed.

Giving War A Bad Name

Over in Vietnam, one day this week, an American officer, after he had a hard time of it persuading some 80 to 100 of his men to follow orders into what they considered a top dangerous mission in a war they hoped to be leaving, turned on the news and radio and television correspondents who had been describing the scene, questioned the legitimacy of their birth, and held them responsible for such unheroic behavior on the part of his men.

The American officer did not expand on his remarks, but we assume that he meant that the press had helped spread disillusionment with the war, by the way it had been reporting it, by the home front division of opinion on the war, the press was both inspiring and reporting, and by its failure to discipline itself into a patriotic supporter of the war rather than just a reporter of it.

Work Ethic Vs. Life Ethic

Whether the American "work ethic" and the "life ethic" are two different things or very much related — have been a favorite theme of President Nixon, who would like to see the two merged into one. Hubert Humphrey, both in the popularity contest and in number of delegates, so, Muskie matters to keep the U.S. competitive and No. 1. But is producing man to greater output and living at a philosophy of material success adequate today? Or do we have to stop and redefine our terms and look for new answers?

Vernon Democrats Vote Tonight On Chairman, Officers

The Democratic Town Committee will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at the First Federal Building, Park Place to elect officers for the coming term.

Voting for the post of chairman to replace Almer Brooks who is retiring, will be held at the meeting.

The program theme will be "Continuing Education." Mrs. Fred Edwards is program chairman.

The East Hartford branch of the Social Security Administration will handle all social security business for those living east of the river.

The Junior Library of the Rockville Public Library will feature displays of dolls and model cars to be brought in by Vernon children in Grades 1-6.

The displays will be entered into a contest and judging will take place Saturday at the school.

Work on repairing the tower, and painting will be completed by the end of June.

The Parish Council organization committee of the church will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. at that time the committee will be considering the rules under which the council will be elected.

Pinocle Winners Thursday winners in the Vernon Senior Citizens' pinocle group were: Ann Hart, Ted LeBoe 640; Ed Quinn 688 and Dorothy McCarthy 694.

Pinocle will be played tomorrow and Thursday at the Lottie Flak building, Henry Park at 1:30 both days.

After the business meeting there will be a dark horse race, entertainment and refreshments.

Andover PTA To Discuss 'Open System'

The British "Open System" of education will be the topic of discussion at tomorrow night's regular PTA meeting at the Andover Elementary School.

Guest speaker for the event will be Walter Klar, a doctorate candidate who has had considerable experience with the system.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. and the public is invited to attend. The meeting is open not only to Andover residents, but to all interested persons from nearby communities.

Drug Meeting Mrs. Jennie Post, Andover's drug contact person to the Capitol Region Drug Information Center, said she will be attending a meeting of all contact persons tomorrow night in Hartford.

The agenda lists introduction of the drug center's new director, Donald Krilba, discussion of a regional poster contest, publications distribution, and more direct drug matters such as what kind of stand about contact person take, if any, and how they should make use of the drug center's resources.

Democratic Caucus The Democratic Party in Andover will hold its caucus to elect delegates to the state conventions on Wednesday, April 19, at 8 p.m. at the old town hall.

Because the Democrats have changed their party rules to reflect the one-man-one vote concept, they will be electing one delegate to each of the conventions.

All Andover Democrats are urged to attend the caucus and add their votes to making the selection of delegates.

Report Massive Attacks

and truck parks in the vicinity of Haisborough, and on the outskirts of Hanoi.

Spokesmen said they did not know how close the U.S. planes hit to the city limits of the two cities. But one Air Force pilot, Capt. Timothy R. Ayres, 27, of Houston, Tex., said his flight attacked fuel depots on the outskirts of Hanoi and left them in flames, with fireballs and columns of black smoke rising into the skies.

The U.S. Command insisted that only military targets were attacked.

"Radio Hanoi makes all kinds of claims for propaganda purposes," said one spokesman. "We hit only military targets," but he acknowledged "We never known a war yet where civilians are not killed."

Manchester Area Police Report

Vernon Police are investigating a robbery reported to have taken place last night at the East Hartford branch of the Social Security Administration, corner of Union and West Sts.

Police said the night attendant said a lone white male, who appeared to be about 18 years old, wearing a stocking over his face, fled on foot with $200 taken from the cash register.

The attendant said no gun was visible but the holdup man kept one hand in his pocket.

COVENTRY Louis H. Vesna, Lake Rd., Coventry, was arrested Saturday by Coventry Police and charged with reckless driving. He is scheduled to appear in Circuit Court 12, Manchester, May 15.

Reading Via TV NEW YORK (AP) — "The Electric Company," television's new educational series, is especially popular in elementary schools, according to a survey by Research Triangle Institute.

The daily half-hour series is watched in more than one out of three elementary schools equipped to receive it.

The series is designed to teach basic reading skills to 7 to 10 year olds.

Coventry Hearing on Budget Slated Tomorrow

The Coventry Town Council has scheduled its public hearing on the 1972-73 proposed budget for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Coventry High School gym.

According to Robert Keller, the council's finance chairman, "The budget will be presented as received from the Town Manager and the Board of Education, in keeping with previous practice. Since the purpose of the hearing is to obtain direct input from the taxpayers, no changes will be made in the budget until after the hearing."

Keller added that the council plans to start the hearing promptly at 7:30 p.m. with a lengthy session is anticipated.

The town government portion of the budget, totaling $2,281, will be reviewed first, Keller said, to be followed by review of the Board of Education's report that it offered $5,000 to the Republican state election campaign in 1970.

The Hartford Courant reported the alleged campaign offer and said Sunday that TTT had called the Courant with a statement denying the offer.

According to the newspaper, the TTT statement said, "TTT did not and never has offered to make a contribution to the Republican party in Connecticut or any other political party."

It is a violation of the federal Corrupt Practices Act for corporations to make political contributions.

The Courant had reported that Finance Commissioner Adolf G. Carlucci, one of the men helping to raise funds for the Republicans in 1970, confessed that the offer was made over the telephone and that he never actually saw the person who said he was from TTT and did not know his name.

The newspaper also said recalled learning from Carlucci about 20 clean up, distribute plastic trash bags and safety tip sheets. He did not know who made the volunteers for Rid Litter Day telephoned offer.

The State of Connecticut has declared April 29 to be Rid Litter Day throughout the state, and citizens of Coventry will be joining other communities in cleaning up the litter which has collected along town roads on that clean-up day.

Rid Litter Day is sponsored by Coventry by the Beautification Committee, which is organizing volunteers to drive trucks, pick up litter and supervise children who will be helping with the drive.

Each town road has been assigned to a volunteer adult who will organize a team of neighborhood boys to help clean their part of town. Work will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday morning and will conclude at noon, when all collected trash will be deposited at the town dump.

The Mothers Club will prepare sandwiches and soda for the volunteers, and these will be served at the Miller-Richardson Field, Rt. 31, shortly after noon.

The RC will meet this Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall to make final plans for the April 29 clean up, distribute plastic trash bags and safety tip sheets.

WORTH A HOOT—Chicago Cub rookie pitcher Burt Hooton got off to a fast start by pitching no-hitter yesterday. Take a look at the form he displayed.

Dream Fulfilled By Burt Hooton

CHICAGO (AP) — Burt Hooton is a confident 22-year-old righthander with a knuckle-curve who has never pitched a no-hitter in the major leagues. The former University of Texas star didn't know whether it was a "no-hitter" or a "no-hitter" he had Saturday night, but he did think of pitching a no-hitter in his first 1979 start for the Chicago Cubs Sunday.

Either notion or dream, Hooton turned to his knuckle-curve. A small crowd of 9,888, braving cold, misty weather with the 16-mile-an-hour wind blowing in from the north, cheered Hooton every pitch from the eighth inning on.

Hooton, bothered by windburn in the first seven innings when he walked seven batters, turned on in the final two innings on what he got the adrenaline flow. He struck out three batters. He was farmed out and returned in September to post two victories over the New York Mets. In the first game he fanned 18 and in the second he hurled a two-hitter.

Brooks Robinson Defies Averages And Answers Boos with Base Hits

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Robinson, defying the averages and answering scattered boos, drove in two runs as Baltimore successfully launched its bid for a fourth straight pennant.

The Orioles downed the New York Yankees 8-1 Sunday in an American League opener that was twice delayed by rain before being called in the seventh inning.

Robinson rapped run-scoring singles in the first and fifth innings of Mel Motley, who then held Brooks to a 208 average in head-to-head confrontations the past three seasons.

In addition, Robinson hit only one in spring training and then practiced just two days during the 15-day players' strike while acting as Baltimore's player representative in the negotiations.

Robinson, who had never been booed at home before, was given a few catcalls on his fore being called in the seventh inning.

"I really didn't notice them," said Robinson, who was then giving a rousing cheer by the crowd of 11,905 when he smacked the first pitch for a home run.

"I can't give any specific fourth on Ron Blomberg's smacked the first pitch for a home run, but I'm swinging the single following a bloop double by Bobby Murcer.

The Orioles had eight singles off Blomberg, but two of their runs were unearned.

New York had four hits of winner Pat Dobson, and one off Doyle Alexander who relieved after a rain-delay of one hour fifth.

"I'm so used to batting first," Brooks said, "that when the second out was made in the first inning, I started to take the field. Hunter (Coach Billy Hunter) had to call me back."

Steve Blass Brilliant In Holding Off Mets

CHICAGO (AP) — "He couldn't have gone nine innings if he'd wanted to," Pirates manager Bill Virdon said of pitcher Steve Blass, "and, anyway, he didn't want to."

Blass went a solid seven against the New York Mets Sunday, and with mop-up help from Bob Miller and Ramon Hernandez, it was enough to provide the Pirates with a 2-0 victory.

Willie Stargell's two timely hits—the Pirates got only five of them—drove in both runs which the locals collected in two of the three innings the Mets managed.

It gave Pittsburgh a split of the strike-delayed season-opening weekend series. The Mets took Saturday's game 4-0.

When Miller took over on the mound, the Mets finally got the strike-delayed season-opening triple to right-center, and Ken Boswell in the seventh. He struck out five without issuing a walk.

Blass, meanwhile, was moving down the Mets, allowing only one home run in the second inning and Ken Boswell in the seventh. He struck out five without issuing a walk.

Weekend Jottings

Boos and catcalls greeted the return of major league baseball last weekend instead of cheers. It will take some time before the stadium is filled with the ball players will have to wear cotton in their caps or take the abuse with a smile.

"I'm so used to batting first," Brooks said, "that when the second out was made in the first inning, I started to take the field. Hunter (Coach Billy Hunter) had to call me back."

"I'm just glad we finally got the game started," Brooks said, "I was so tired during the strike, it felt like I was running a mile. I felt like I was running a mile. I felt like I was running a mile."

Lettieri To Challenge Cote Sunday for 10-Pin Crown

AN UNPRECEDENTED third straight 10-pin bowling Tournament Championship will be the goal of Dick Cote Sunday afternoon in the finals of the Men's Branch Division.

Cote, who has ruled the roost the past two years at the Parkside Lanes, successfully passed two tests yesterday afternoon, in quarter and semifinal action, and will place his title on the line against Mike Lettieri.

Women's Handicap Division finalists will be Jean Archambault and George Valone.

Finals in all three divisions will be best of five-games sets Sunday afternoon starting at 1 o'clock.

All play yesterday was best of three games. The semifinal could be a final by Ken Tomlinson in real thriller as Lettieri will straight sets.

Lettieri had his ball working yesterday, averaging 214 for five games. He has a 40-pin handicap and Mrs. Imler 203 after he sent Bill Per-

Inconsistent Rookies Propel Bucks to Win

MILWAUKEE Bucks knock what he can expect from Milwaukee's Abdul Jabbar. But he isn't always sure about Curtis Perry and Bob Dandridge.

Jabbar, celebrating his 25th birthday, did his usual top job—31 points, 18 rebounds, 10 assists.

The Utah Stars, leading 1-0, play host to the Indiana Pacers tonight in the American Basketball Association's Western Conference playoff while the Virginia Squires, on top of the Eastern playoff 2-0, don't get another shot at the New York Nets until April 24 because of a previous commitment at the Nets' home court.

In losing to Milwaukee, Lakers center Wilt Chamberlain was held to five points and 11 rebounds. Jerry West, with 24 points and Jim McMillan, with 19, topped the Lakers offense.

Ferry hit for 11 points in the NBA Eastern Conference at the start of the fourth quarter for a 86-65 lead.

Off the Cuff

East Catholic High's scheduled baseball game against St. Thomas Aquinas Friday was on, off and finally on again in New Britain due to wet field conditions from Thursday's rain.

The game may be in dire need of more punch after winning 2-0 against Hartford and then came 1-0 and 5-0 losses to Aquinas and St. Paul's, games in which the locals collected two and two hits respectively.

By the way, what's happened to Vida Blue? ... Bill Russell is proving quite a hit as the "color" man with NBA telecasts simply by calling a spade a spade.

There was never anything about Russell when he played so, many years ago in the Boston Celtics and he's the same truthful guy sitting behind the mike, which is unlike most of the national sport commentators.

Microphone in Way Bothers Boston Celts

NEW YORK (AP) — Under its basket, Heinsohn attempted to call a time out. But he didn't, it wasn't acknowledged by the referees until the Celtics had time out.

When play resumed, Boston Celtics coach Bill Russell said "I don't know what the hell is going on."

Heinsohn finished as the game's high scorer with 29 points, including 14 in the second half.

It was at that point that the microphone prevented White Sox pitcher Tom Seaver from taking a time out they didn't want in the nationally televised game.

"The time out definitely was the critical point of the game," said the disappointed Heinsohn.

"I heard later that the Knicks had complained about the microphone before the game. But I didn't know it was to accept the star's role."

At the time, the Knicks were nursing a 104-103 lead, following a free throw by New York's Steve Nisely. As soon as Boston passed the ball in court from one they lost because of the interfering mike-to-when they didn't, it wasn't acknowledged by the referees until the Celtics had time out.

APRIL ONLY! SAVE!!!! PHILCO AIR CONDITIONERS

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss and grow more hair.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, you must act now. You have only 32 days, at their risk, and for your own confidence, you must act now.

Ex-Brave Official Lou Perini Dead

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Private funeral services will be held Thursday for Louis Perini, a former major league baseball player.

Perini, 47, died of a heart attack at his home in Framingham, Mass. He had been ill for several weeks.

Perini played for the Boston Red Sox from 1961 to 1968. He was a first baseman and outfielder.

rendered 11 hits to last year's CIAC Class M champions. East now sports a 1-9 overall record in the CIAC Class M. The first two innings were scoreless, but the fireworks exploded in the third when Paul's scored two runs. Four hits, an error and Bob DePietro's single accounted for the score.

St. Paul's fifth game was their biggest in run-production. They scored four runs on six hits. The other two runs tallied in the seventh on a double, single and sacrifice fly.

Northwestern Community College came out strong in the late innings to hand host Manchester C.C. a 2-1 defeat Saturday morning at Mt. Nebo. The visitors sport a 2-0 record while the Cougars are 0-1. This was the Cougars' second straight loss after two previous games washed out.

Act Now -- GET FIRST MONTH'S PROTECTION FOR YOUR WHOLE FAMILY!

Send No Money! Available to age 64. Join NOW--This Introductory Offer lasts only 3 more days.

NOW... you and your family can join this Tax-Free Extra Cash Plan with no red tape, no health questions to answer, no medical examination, without having to see a salesman and without any qualifications whatsoever. But you must mail your Application Form no later than Midnight, Thursday, April 20, 1972

You get cash in addition to any other insurance!

Better Safe Than Sorry

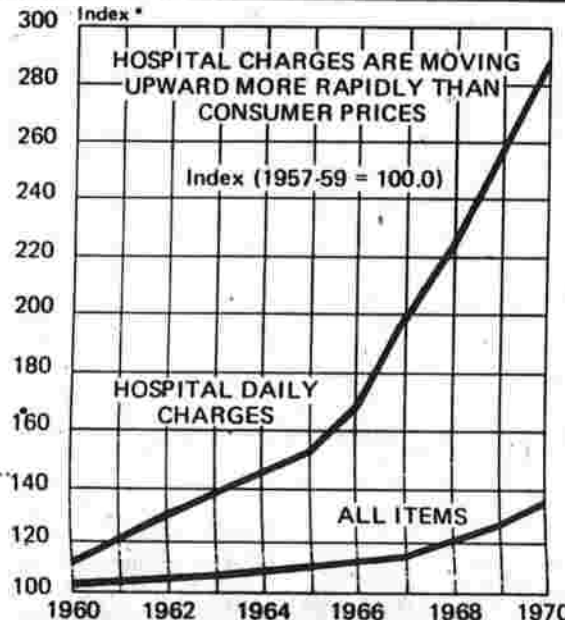

The tremendous jump in hospital costs has forced millions who already have hospitalization to dig into savings or go into debt. In fact, very few people have enough savings or income to cover the TOTAL cost of being sick or injured.

How long could you stay in the hospital without worrying about the pile-up of daily expenses? Who will pay for the expenses of costly X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? And how about the expenses at home, rent, food, telephone and others that just go on and on? With expenses like these, could you avoid having your savings wiped out and your family life upset?

Wouldn't it be comforting to know these problems could be solved by your Tax-Free Extra Cash Plan -- the plan that gives you $1000.00 a month -- IN CASH -- tax-free.

Here's Why You Need This TAX-FREE EXTRA CASH Plan in Addition to Ordinary Hospitalization

MEDICAL COSTS RISING DRASTICALLY!

Government statistics indicate your present coverage may be inadequate to meet today's rising costs. That's why you can't afford to be without this low-cost, high-benefit Tax-Free Extra Cash Plan.

PAYS YOU CASH... PAYS YOU CASH... PAYS YOU CASH... PAYS YOU CASH

Apollo Defies Jinxes

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A guidance system problem that had troubled the Apollo 16 command ship in one position was solved today, but the astronauts were awakened more than an hour early to wrestle with radio antenna trouble.

Neither problem posed any threat to the astronauts or to the mission as Apollo 16 hurtled on toward a Wednesday rendezvous with the Moon.

They were the third and fourth grumbles, none of them serious, to plague John W. Young, Charles M. Duke Jr. and Thomas K. Mattingly II on their two-day-old journey to the moon's mountainous highlands.

As Mattingly was taking star sightings early today on the planet Jupiter, a red warning light flashed in his cockpit. Something had happened to the guidance and navigation system, preventing the spacecraft from moving left or right.

The spacecraft has a backup system that would allow it to continue on its course if the primary guidance failed. If there were a primary failure, the moon landing would be canceled.

Mission Control evaluated the problem and sent a series of coded commands to the Apollo 16 crew. They were told to check the guidance computer while Young and Duke monitored systems. The action realigned the platform and Mattingly verified it was okay with a series of star sightings on the earth, sun, moon and several stars.

The alert flashed about 8:30 a.m. EST when Apollo 16 was about 168,000 miles from earth and 22,000 miles from the moon. Forty-five minutes later, Mission Control told the astronauts "it looks okay down here. Looks like you can go to bed and get eight hours sleep."

Ground controllers said they would watch the spacecraft an hour early to troubleshoot the problem. But this course of action was unnecessary when experts calculated that the guidance system lock was caused by noise from an electromagnetic field, probably from space, passing through the cabin to the job.
