

Andover Griner Heads Charter Unit Two Girls Top Grads At RHS

Andover's fledgling Charter Commission has elected as chairman Jerome Griner and as secretary, Mrs. Barbara Cody. The group met May 24 for its next meeting and will then decide upon a schedule of meetings.

First Selectman Robert Post instructed the group about their duties. Copies of the Home Rule Act handbook for charter commission members were distributed to the members.

Griner told members they should avail themselves of the information compiled by the town's previous charter commission. Complete minutes and records of that group's interviews with town officials would reduce the extent of investigation necessary, according to Post.

Griner told members he had contacted Richard Lafferty of the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council, which disseminates all data and guidelines for charter commissions, and he would try to get him to appear at the commission's next meeting as a guest speaker.

The Memorial Day Committee is still looking for veterans of any of the wars who are willing to participate in the annual Memorial Day Parade.

Those veterans who are unable to march the distance of the parade would be accommodated with cars. All town veterans should contact chairman Gordon Howard for further details.

The committee has arranged this year for Robert Day, assistant principal at the Ethan High School, to serve as guest speaker at the Memorial Day event.

The parade this year will be on Monday, May 29, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Andover Elementary School, going up to the monument on Route 4 for a brief ceremony and then proceeding to the cemetery on Cedar Hill Road.

The Rev. Raymond Bradley of the First Congregational Church of Andover will officiate for both the invocation and the benediction.

Luncheon menus at the Andover Elementary School for the remainder of the week are as follows:

Tuesday: Pizza burgers, french fries, vegetable sticks, pudding.

Wednesday: Sausage links or hamburger patties, mashed potatoes, carrots, rolls.

Thursday: Spaghetti, rolls, tossed salad, jelly.

Friday: Egg salad sandwiches or peanut butter sandwiches, chicken vegetable soup, choice of dessert.

Milk and bread and butter sandwiches are available at all meals.

Wallace Wounded, Near Paralysis

Determined candidate George Wallace throws off jacket on campaign trail at Maryland, and strides to tragedy.

Bombs Wreck Red Defenses

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers wrecked North Vietnam air defenses... The command announced today.

Michigan will divide 132 delegates to the Democratic National Convention proportionately according to the presidential preference voting in Maryland.

The incident may create a substantial large sentiment to vote for Wallace, president Tom Turner of the Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO, a Humphrey backer, predicted.

After five hours of surgery, police and hospital spokesmen said Wallace's life was no longer in danger, but some paralysis was reported. One physician said the outlook for full recovery was not good.

Second on Second Thought

Mancheater's big modern super markets are, in most ways, fun to shop in. The aisles are indeed for easy selection.

With your grocery list in one hand and your cart in the other, you can do a week's shopping in no time. Everything is beautifully organized.

There you run into a bottle neck, lines and lines of customers with their carts.

It's just like going to a research project. My goal, of course is to get the most out of the store.

First, I try to size up the cashier. Is she business like and does she stop and do small talk with the customer?

Second, I count the number of people in line. If the line is long, I'll wait for the cashier to check out quickly.

After considering all these things, I take a deep breath and get in line.

You surge ahead, lag behind, and you're stuck in line. It all depends on the cashier.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB In Pericarditis Heart Sac Becomes Inflamed

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D. Dear Dr. Lamb—What is pericarditis? What germ is it caused by? What are the possible results if a person had this disease and was allergic to the germ, staph or whatever and had no treatment except for tranquilizers?

Inflammation of the sac around the heart can have an extension of the infection to involve the sac around the heart. It can also be caused by chemical irritants.

Occasionally a person does have recurrent chest pains after such an episode, because the arteries to the heart muscle pass directly under the sac that is attached to the surface of the heart and scarring and fibrosis in pericarditis can put pressure on the arteries.

Budget Rejected For Second Time

By a vote of 119 to 87, residents of the towns of Hebron, Andover and Marlborough rejected the second time in two weeks last night the proposed 1972-73 budget presented by the Regional District Board of Education.

The board, meeting immediately following the rejection of the budget, set this evening at 7:30 P.M. at the High School to again go over the budget.

It will also set the date for the next district meeting to vote on the budget which, according to state law, must be held within a period no later than two weeks of the last meeting.

Before the vote on the budget, a motion was passed by the voters to approve the appropriation of $33,000 from the June 30, 1971 surplus of $33,000 to cover an operating deficit in the 1971-1972 budget.

Legal opinion by Hebron's Town Counsel, Bruce Kishner, said that the town of Hebron could not sue the Regional District Board of Education.

Mayor Frank McCoy, today called for a curtail on spending for the Board of Education and all town departments.

Mayor McCoy said spending from the unencumbered accounts of the Board of Education will be authorized only as to those particular accounts such as salaries from salary accounts.

McCoy also has asked the Board of Education to suspend payments from accounts with unencumbered balances.

Vernon Town Votes Changes In Sewer Rule

An amendment to the existing ordinance concerning construction of sewers was approved by the Town Council last night after it heard an explanation by Leonard Sweeney, town engineer.

A hearing was held on the amendment two weeks ago and after listening to protests from William Gibbs, a local plumber and heating contractor.

Gibbs objected especially to the requirement of gravel bedding to a depth of six inches below the bottom of the pipe invert and after the pipe is bedded that the trench be filled to the centerline of the pipe with gravel bedding.

Gibbs contended that this requirement would mean a much higher cost to the homeowner connecting to the sewers.

He explained that Vernon is the only town in the area which has this type of pipe less expensive than the other towns.

The town council will hold a public hearing on the amendment to the sewer ordinance.

Criminal Factor Minimal in Parks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development says crime isn't the principal reason people stay away from city parks—the parks themselves are.

A report prepared for HUD says a study of 14 parks in 14 cities showed crime "plays an unknown role in keeping non-users away" but that "it does not appear to be the most significant development."

The report said most parks "are sterile, and incapable of giving pleasure to the people who use them, if more people used parks or enjoyed them more, they might have less fear of violent crime in their parks."

Engraver Also Bakes

MATSON, III. (AP) — Orville Richardson is an engraver by day and a baker on week-ends.

His baking began with his wife's appetite for Italian foods. His first effort was a loaf of sausage. Next came Italian meat pie. Then he moved on to Italian bread and rolls.

"I made about 40 loaves of bread before I got the kind I wanted, but you have to have failures to learn," Richardson said.

upon our conduct in our disagreement. We do not know where to find the cure. Certainly, it is not in Governor Ware and what he has been offering us; certainly it is not in the conduct of his would-be assassin. We see, in fact, no leadership of impressive quality or stature on high; the hope has to lie with those members of decency which grow somewhere inside millions of ordinary hearts, and which may some saving day, find and reinforce one another.

Support For The President

It has been a general assumption for some time that almost all Americans, including hawkers, were sick of the war in Vietnam, even though for different reasons.

There has been some surprise, then, at the report of one respected pollster that the report that 88 per cent of us approve President Nixon's decision to miss the harbor of North Vietnam, an act which seemed to escalate and intensify the war.

To us, the explanations of such a sentiment seem hardly available.

For those of us who have been skeptical, whose main reason for belief that the war has been their belief that we weren't going all out to win it, the President's decision was a welcome, long delayed display of toughness. There are even some who, beyond relishing the toughness of the President's action, think it might even operate to speed the end of the war, by putting a really destructive pinch on North Vietnam.

Again Violence

An act of violence, committed by an individual, in the spotlight of a national political atmosphere which is full of passionate twists and turns of issues, always inspires two contrasting kinds of analysis.

One type of reaction centers upon the fact that one lawless individual, who probably should have been in some kind of custody anyway, succeeded in obtaining a weapon the law should not have allowed him to possess, then penetrated a security guard which should have been stronger, and thus committed an act for which he himself should receive the death penalty.

To sum up this type of reaction, it says there is something wrong with our laws and other apparatus.

The second kind of post-assassination-attitude reaction and analysis likens to assume that the individual who appears out of nowhere to deal the violent blow is sick; that his being sick is part of a general sickness in which our whole society shares; that the atmosphere in which this sickness trending toward violence develops readily so often is an atmosphere in which our whole society is to blame; that all of us, therefore, share collectively some of the guilt for the terrible thing that has happened; and that what we need to do, in the aftermath, is to take just as searching a look at ourselves as we direct into the character and behavior of the would be assassin.

If one goes into the effort to resolve the conflict between these two kinds of analysis, one might reach, rather quickly, the hazy conclusion that one part of our national sickness is our inability to unite on one or the other of these theories. Certainly, it is difficult to write either of them off. A truly rigorous gun control law, for instance, might have meant no weapon in Laurel, Maryland, yesterday. An even heavier security system, with stricter rules against letting a candidate mix with a crowd, could have prevented the attempt. But, on the other hand, who can really escape the feeling that with this, the fourth major assassination attempt within a political decade, there is indeed some kind of national madness upon us, somehow worse and more extreme than ever before, a madness which tricks us all into being complacent about violent and divisive trends in our national life which, once they get rooted, must inevitably flower into some evil kind of physical violence?

We will not settle this debate easily. Meanwhile, we are blessed and fortunate to have preliminary medical signs that the life of Governor Wallace has not been taken. We would be still more fortunate if he were to have such a recovery as to enable him to resume his campaigning almost immediately, to receive, on his feet, the legitimate answer to his appeal to the American people—an answer in ballots, not bullets.

We wish for such speedy and complete recovery, for his good and for ours.

As for our own recovery, as a people, we cannot but feel that depends upon some deep regeneration of our national sense of identity, unity and purpose which revives, with fresh clarity, that the words of the visions of our own day seem to give us, the standards of mutual conduct and tolerance for which we originally organized ourselves. We imagine there was once such a love and praise of freedom among us that we volunteered the necessary disciplines to it. We imagine there was a time when an instinctive feeling that we were one nation imposed a sense of responsibility

Connecticut Yankee
 By A.B.O.

We have previously proposed that the 1972 first regular annual session of the Legislature might be made famous as the session in which Senator Richard Nixon, with the most gurgling full beard in Connecticut political history and then shaved off prematurely, on the mistaken assumption the session would go home when its work was done.

There is another title which might be awarded to this 1972 session, of almost equal validity and importance.

It could be nominated to go down in history as the first session which will be held by Governor Messli.

This was a development which took place in the most dramatic way. It was Senator Rimer to run his risk of loss of face. And it is possible that, being learned in his executive den, the Legislature may evolve some new capacity to exercise its own power.

But as the single act of overriding a single veto stood, it was a petty, timid reassertion of legislative independence directed more to a question of legislative vitality than to the welfare of the state.

The first thing to be noticed about the supposedly courageous legislative victory over the veto of the executive branch was that it happened on a day when Governor Messli was out of the state.

The thing the legislature tried to do was to play with on a day the Governor was away was titled "An Act Concerning the Establishment of a Legislative Program Review Committee."

Normally notified friends on Capitol Hill in advance that he would announce his resignation.

His going to go back and work his cat's, a few days ago, he said, "None of his Democratic friends are surprised."

"In addition, his brother's in the down there . . . He'll probably go to the States and the Army last January at Ft. Knox."

Political Ballad Sounds a Sour Note on Hopeful Candidate's Trail

Leaders Express Outrage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leaders across the political spectrum have reacted with shock, outrage and dismay at the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and explored the trend of political violence in the nation.

Many officials recalled the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy upon learning of the shooting at a Laurel, Md., shopping center on Monday.

Sen. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey, the leading presidential candidates for the Democratic nomination, canceled their scheduled campaign appearances.

President Nixon called Mrs. Wallace at her husband's bedside to offer his hope and prayers for the wounded candidate's recovery.

He called the shooting a "senseless and tragic incident" and said the nation has suffered more than enough already from the intrusion of violence into its political process.

McGovern said, "We can only hope and pray for the speedy recovery of Gov. Wallace and we can only say a prayer for our country."

"We've gotten to the point in this country where a public figure can't speak out on the issues of the day and seek the presidency without being shot at," he said.

Humphrey, who was campaigning in Maryland when he heard of the shooting, rushed to the hospital and spent more than an hour with Wallace's wife while the governor was in surgery.

"Any act of violence adds to the tension in this country. What we need more than anything is a spirit of reconciliation," he said.

Humphrey, who called the shooting a "sad and tragic act," said, "I am shocked and appalled by this senseless and senseless act. I am saddened beyond measure that it has again stained and darkened the process we use to select our political leaders."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, brother of John and Robert, said, "My heart and prayers go out to Gov. Wallace and to members of his grief-stricken family. Once again, democracy in America has been scarred by senseless and unprovoked violence. I am appalled and outraged that this senseless act has again stained and darkened the process we use to select our political leaders."

Nixon ordered Secret Service guards to this time surround Gov. Wallace at the shopping center. Sen. Edmund R. Muskie said, "I share the outrage of every citizen at this detestable attack on Governor Wallace."

Maine's junior senator added that "it is a tragedy for all of us, and I want you to know our prayers are with you and we hope the governor makes a full and speedy recovery."

In Georgia, the Rev. Andrew Young, Atlanta's first African American rights leader and a former aide to the late Martin Luther King Jr., said, "It's terrible that the politics of assassination have become a part of our lives."

Overoperators of violence never win and they always end up helping the cause they attack," he said.

George J. Goy, Laster Maddox said the shooting "was far more than the shooting of a man. It is the shooting of the American right."

In Britain, the liberal Guardian claimed as watchwords in his column: "The shooting campaign."

In the Netherlands, Algemeen Dagblad of Rotterdam said, "Attempts like this are a threat to the future of our country."

In Italy many newspapers described Wallace as a "racist" in their front pages.

In the United States, the front pages of newspapers carried headlines such as "Attempt to assassinate a man who has wholeheartedly supported the American people and the American right."

Political leaders across New England reacted with shock at the shooting Monday of Alabama Gov. George Wallace and expressed sympathy to his family and hopes for his speedy recovery.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who has lost two brothers to assassins' bullets, said from his Washington office: "My heart and prayers go out to Gov. Wallace and to members of his grief-stricken family. Once again, democracy in America has been scarred by senseless and unprovoked violence. WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace has played upon a sheet of political protest that won't be silenced by the bullets that he has shot at his presidential campaign.

It is a campaign that seemed destined to reach its high point today, with the Alabama governor favored to win the Democratic primary elections in Maryland and Michigan.

But Wallace could prove more formidable in the weeks ahead from a hospital bed, a martyr to his political cause, than as an active campaigner trying to become a Democratic power broker.

In Maryland and Michigan, Wallace is sure to enlarge the bloc of presidential-nominating votes that now rank him third in the polls. He has 310 votes. Sen. George McGovern leads with 398 first-ballot commitments. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has 241½.

It appears certain that somehow 1972 will be remembered as the year when the effort will be made to hold the delegates in a three-day caucus in each state. Wallace is sure to enlarge the bloc of Democratic votes.

There is no obvious stand-off in the campaign between Wallace and McGovern. He was essentially a one-man show. There were about 1,000 people on hand at Laurel, Md., when Wallace was shot Monday. No other Democrat can turn out that kind of crowd for a weekday political rally.

Nevertheless, with the governor out of the campaign, it is likely someone will stand in to represent him as a symbol of the mood of protest on the Democratic right.

After today, Wallace appeared to have no place to go in the primaries. His name is in the ballot for the May 23 election in Oregon and Rhode Island, but neither is in territory likely to prove particularly important.

The three primary election victories were scored in the South in Florida, Tennessee and North Carolina. He ran strong in losing the primaries in Washington and Pennsylvania.

Wallace is not entered in the California primary which will occur on Nov. 7. He was scheduled to campaign there, but had to cancel because of his wounds.

Rep. Robert O. Tierney, D-R.I., said, "I am very disturbed that something like this could happen again in America. We differed, of course, on many issues, but I see no reason to think that you can solve any problems by killing someone in a political life. And yet, it is becoming more and more commonplace."

Rep. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, called the shooting "an act of violence to be deplored."

"I do not agree with most of George Wallace's political beliefs," Hathaway said, "but I believe that the fanaticism has gotten out of hand."

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill of Connecticut said, "This is a sad day, a day on which we must pray not only for Gov. Wallace but also for our country."

Vernon Gov. Deane C. Davis said, "It is a tragic situation when candidates for public office cannot meet with the people of this country without this risk — this horror . . ."

New Hampshire Gov. Walter Peterson said the shooting "is a shocking and senseless act which all Americans deplore. It is time for us all to close ranks and join in prayer for his speedy and complete recovery."

McGovern had just finished which votes next Tuesday, and speaking after shaking hands returned to Washington.

At the scene of his first presidential campaign outing eight years ago in an Alabama ballot this year George Wallace led the shake.

"I urge all Americans to respect each person's individual rights to be heard on an issue, no matter how unpopular his or her viewpoint might be," he said.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said, "It's not much of a recommendation for democratic government when every candidate for the presidency has to be surrounded by men to protect him, when they try to protect them, then it's quite a recommendation on the form of government we have."

"People are losing their heads pretty fast these days," Sen. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt., said, "We must find some way to eliminate violence from the American political scene. The vigilance of security people guarding all presidential candidates will have to be redoubled."

Connecticut's only black state senator, Wilber Smith of Hartford, called the shooting "a sick and senseless act. It is time to campaign in a safe and secure area and get on with the job."

"We must stop the flow of handguns and other lethal firearms into the hands of anyone who is not a responsible citizen," Sen. George J. Goy, R-Md., said, "We must find some way to eliminate violence from the American political scene. The vigilance of security people guarding all presidential candidates will have to be redoubled."

and ordered held under $200,000 bond on charges of shooting Wallace and a Secret Service agent.

The agent, Nicholas Zarvo, underwent six hours of surgery for a bullet wound in the neck and was listed in good condition. Doctors said the bullet damaged Zarvo's voice box.

Alabama State Police Capt. J.C. Doherty, who also was treated for a flesh wound on his right side and released from the hospital.

Dora Thompson, a Wallace campaign worker, suffered a leg wound and was listed in satisfactory condition in Holy Cross hospital.

Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, told newsmen today that the governor's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination will continue. Camp said Wallace himself made the decision which was relayed by Mrs. Wallace.

"He will be at the Democratic convention, which is a viable candidate," Camp told a news conference. "He expects to win in both Maryland and Michigan."

Bremer was charged by federal authorities with violating the 1968 Civil Rights Act by assisting a candidate for an elective office. He was charged also with assault on a federal officer, Zarvo.

Fatal assault on a federal officer carries a possible death penalty. Felony under the 15-minute violation could result in life imprisonment if the victim dies, otherwise maximum penalty is 10 years and $10,000.

Maryland authorities charged Bremer with four counts of assault with intent to kill, three counts of assault with intent to injure, and one count of assault with intent to annoy.

At the business of candidate protection is one of reducing the number of agents. Not more than eight or ten agents are usually at the campaign headquarters.

When Wallace made a major speech at an auditorium or rally, he stood behind a bulletproof rostrum. He used it on a three campaigns in the last eight years, and spoke behind it Monday in Laurel. But then, contrary to his more usual practice, he stepped out to shake hands.

At a typical Wallace rally, Secret Service agents stood on the platform, arms folded or behind their back, instead of behind a rostrum. Others would be in the audience or at the rear of the hall. And all were equipped with pocket radios.

On rare occasions their actions seemed petty. At a rally in Milwaukee, a woman with an anti-Wallace sign encountered some of the governor's supporters who tried to tear her placard. Agents removed her from the placard — having been told it could have been used as a weapon.

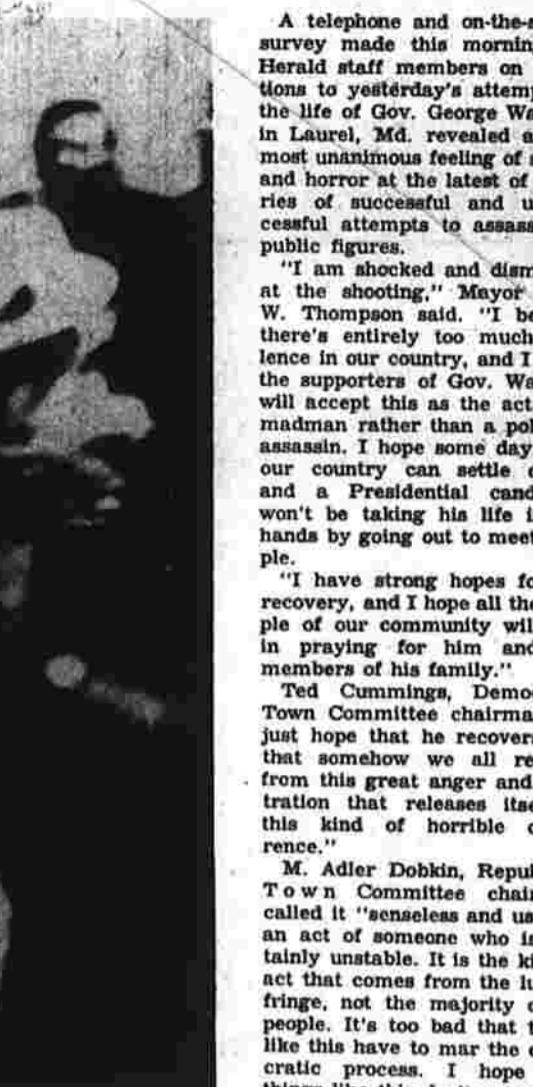

On another occasion, agents told a man who produced a gun that he was entering the hotel room of Sen. Henry M. Jackson — of whom he wasn't wearing the property coded badge.

Nixon declared that the Wallace shooting "relates again the strange sense of having witnessed this all before . . . that the American political process now subjects political leaders to such personal dangers."

That notion that massive face-to-face contact is necessary is something of an American exclusive among democracies.

NEW YORK (AP) — It came as a surprise when George C. Wallace stepped down from his campaign platform and began shaking hands with supporters, says a Columbia Broadcasting System cameraman who filmed the shooting.

"They said he was going to leave," said Laurus Pierce. Instead, the Alabama governor took off his jacket and began walking down a line of supporters who had turned out for his rally Monday in Laurel, Md.

"I couldn't get a good view of him in the restricted press area, so I violated the restriction area and got into the area area," said Pierce, who was had primary campaign assignments of and on.

"I was filming directly behind him when about four or five shots broke out," the veteran cameraman told CBS correspondent Roger Mudd on a special report Monday night on the shooting of Gov. Wallace.

Town Accepts Grant For Filtration Study

A resolution, passed unanimously last night by the Town Council, will allow Mayor Frank McCoy to accept a $440,000 planning grant from the State Department of Environmental Protection. The grant will pay for an engineering study for the proposed addition to the town's filtration plant.

The proposed addition to the treatment facility is expected to cost close to $9 million. The town would pay 15 per cent of the total cost, while the state and federal grants would pay 85 per cent of the operation to be made by the construction costs. The state, company, rather than Zimpro. Action on this is expected at the next meeting of the council.

It had been Town Attorney Abbott Schwelb's opinion last night, withdrawn after a lengthy discussion by the Town Council, that the mayor should not sign the contract with the state until the town had agreed to pay the additional cost. This would mean an additional $440,000 grant on the system does not give these results, Zimpro has agreed to install another system.

Charles Pikat, superintendent of the treatment plant, asked for the guarantee originally stated that Zimpro's engineers would decide. It has now been decided by the town council with the mayor, Atty. Schwelb engineer or an independent engineer his original opinion.

Lutz Junior Museum Re-Elects Officers

The entire slate of Lutz Junior Museum officers was re-elected for 1972-73 at last night's annual dinner meeting, held at the Manchester Country Club.

They are Thomas S. Latham, 108 S. Lakeswood Circle, president; Dr. Burton Meisner, 28 Raymond Rd., vice president for finance; Charles E. Spash, Raymond Rd., vice president for operations; Mrs. Charles F. Young Jr., 136 W. Vernon St., vice president for membership; Mrs. Robert Franklin, 68 Arville Pl., secretary; and Alvin J. Hirschfeld, 51 Mountain Rd., treasurer.

Trustees elected to three-year terms are Mrs. Paul Greenberg, 139 N. Lakeswood Circle; John B. Harkins, 77 Timber Trail; Mrs. Louis Hieard, 281 William Whitway, 159 Avery St.; Mrs. M. Adier Dobkin of 185 Shattuckbrook Lane was elected a trustee to fill the one-year unexpired portion of the three-year term of A. Hye Bultfin.

Mrs. Clifton Monaghan of 21 Henlee Rd. and Ken Demers of 587 W. Middle Tpk., were honored for their 10 years' membership in the museum. Mrs. Monaghan received an Elton pin and Demers, a junior volunteer, a pin.

The annual report showed that 189 groups of 4,063 people participated in activities through school visits. Oak field trips, and museum classes; 3,800 children and adults received an Elton pin and 18,867 children and adults were visitors, an increase of 1,797. Mrs. Louis Saloom, who has been named assistant director of the museum and will continue as curator of education, reported that loans of 100 items to other museums in the previous year. Mayor John W. Thompson lauded the museum's work and what to do with waste once it is created.

Boy Caught Near Site Of Break

James J. Misac, 16, of 80 Milwood Rd., East Hartford, was apprehended last night shortly after a break into the Manchester Sports Shop at 218 Hartford Rd., police said.

Misac was charged with second-degree burglary and possession of burglary tools. He was presented in Circuit Court 12 at East Hartford this morning, posted a $500 surety bond, and was released for court appearance at Manchester June 6. Police were called by a silent alarm to the shop at 10:48 p.m. On arrival, police saw a youth running from the building to a rental truck parked on Prospect St. The youth was stopped, and taken to the police station.

Another police officer entered the building and discovered a 15-year-old East Hartford boy hiding inside. The boy, unidentified because of his age, was also charged with burglary. He was referred to juvenile authorities, and released to his father.

School Renewal Idea Accepted by Board

A three-phase plan for renovation of the gymnasium and a brief conference was proposed by McHugh Associates, originally planned, but not so accepted, by the Board of Education.

Dr. Robert Linton, assistant superintendent of schools, who has been working closely with the architects explained that every month's delay costs the town an additional $68,000. The original proposal, with an $8.8 million price tag, was turned down at a referendum several weeks ago. At that time many townpeople said they voted against the appropriation for construction because they did not hope for more about the plans.

The first stage of the proposed three-part plan, has a roughly estimated cost of $2.3 million attached to it. This would be for construction of the academic areas. The second phase at $1.2 million would include the gymnasium and the third, $500,000 for the pool.

The rejected plan called for construction of three classrooms, extensive renovations to the existing school, installation of air-conditioning and carpeting throughout.

The executive board of the Manchester Republican Women Club will meet tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Richard Murphy, 131 Lakeswood Circle.

"The right to campaign for office unimpeded, the right of free speech, the right to walk at night on a street that is not violated daily," said Smith.

State Quarters Saddened

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The room was festooned with "George Wallace for President" emblems and balloons.

But instead of celebrating the grand opening of the campaign headquarters in East Hartford, about 30 supporters wept and wailed during the reading of the presidential history who was shot Monday by a would-be assassin.

This is a sad day for Americans and the pro-American people," said Charles Burke, 1st Congressional District chairman of the "Citizens for Wallace" committee. "If Mr. Wallace does not pull through, I feel America and the world will be lost to the dictators."

The shooting "is no surprise to the informed people of America," said Burke, "especially when the press and even priests preach hatred toward Mr. Wallace throughout the nation."

He called the Alabama governor the "last hope for the free world and the working people of America."

Gov. Thomas J. Meekill issued a statement extending his best wishes to Wallace for a speedy recovery.

This is a sad day, a day on which we must pray not only for Gov. Wallace but also for our country," Meekill said. "I extend my wishes for a speedy recovery to Gov. Wallace and my deepest sympathy to his family."

Wilber Smith of Hartford, the only black member of the state Senate, called the shooting "a sick and senseless act."

He said the attempted assassination brought home the need for stringent gun control legislation.
