South Windsor Cost Cuts Authorized In School Wing Plan

Acting approval by the members of the Board of Education at Woodruff Hall, following the Public Building Commission authorized the architectural firm of Kane, Farwell and White to proceed with the school wing plan.

With elevators, Board members were reluctant to accept this plan, noting that too much money would be required and an elevator maintenance contract charge would be required which would eventually exceed the cost of Plan B with the ramp.

Plan C called for the revision of the present gym plus adding 27,800 sq. ft. of academic space to the existing gym and a new physical education addition. Total cost of the plan was approximately the highest at $2,250,000.

Advancement awards were made by Mark Farrar and Chris Felsler, second class. Scott Alamy and William Shaw, star scouter, and Harry Arndt, James Brown, Timothy Casura, Thomas Warren, David Whiting, Lisa awards.

Also, new recruits Richard Boyden, Kenneth Jeffrey Gagan, Glenn Glade Mitchell Green, Paul Harrison, Douglas Hanley, Steven Gallo, Noel Lewis, Kelly McSwaine, Alan Misunas, James Richardson and Glen Thomas received tenderfoot badges.

Merit badges were awarded to David Abbott, James Brown, Robert Gray, William Gunther, William Lawler, David Mendis, David Shearer, Eric Thomas, Thomas Warren, two each; Timothy Castagna, Larry Ostrom, three each; Michael Belmont, Peter Lawrence, five each; and Gregory DeNies, seven.

Body Identified As Canoe Victim

Southbury, Conn. (AP) — The body of a youth drowned in the Pomperaug River March 17 has been tentatively identified as that of William D. Garay, 16, of Woodbury, state police said.

Troopers said Garay was presumed drowned on the river after a canoeing accident with three companions.

Church Overflow

HARTVILLE, S.C. (AP) — So many people showed up for an evangelistic crusade at the Emmanuel Baptist Church here that the affair had to be moved to a local stadium where an average of 2,000 persons attended nightly for a week.

A total of 423 professions of faith were reported to hold a referendum with the 25 per cent built in costs for bonding and other needs, "right now it looks like the town will be facing a building program, a $2.5 million addition," Mercure said.

There was no opposition to the existing plan, but Board Chairman James Arndt questioned the advantages of waiting to hold a referendum with the 25 per cent built in costs for bonding and other needs, "right now it looks like the town will be facing a building program, a $2.5 million addition," Mercure said.

The gymnasium will be 21,800 sq. ft. and the academic area will be 28,200 sq. ft. The cost of the presently proposed construction does not include supplies, equipment, legal fees, bonding or architectural fees, site development or clerk of the works. This will require the addition of another 25 per cent of the cost of the building decided on by the architects to present for referendum.

Another plan, mainly Plan B, is similar in design to the commissioner's choice, except it would require only two levels of classrooms.

What It Says Of Our Society

The attempted assassination of Governor George C. Wallace, and the violence running through public life in our times, since the murder of President Kennedy, less than nine years ago, there has been more of this sort of thing than in any other comparable period in our history. This says something significant about our society just now, although there are those who will stoutly deny it.

People are upset, tense, and edgy, more than ever before at least in this century. Frustration and resentment are common and often acute, although not always clearly focused. This is due in part to the pressures and tensions peculiar to our era.

There is an atmosphere of uncertainty, a mood of anxiety, stemming from rapid and radical change. Racial division and contention persist, with no respite in sight. There is the exasperating mystery of simultaneous inflation and recession, resulting remedy. Disintegrating and crime-ridden cities cause to be committed and become running sores on the national body. There are plagues of noise, pollution, waste, escape, or even relief, from all this is increasingly hard to come by.

The Vietnam war adds its major dollop of nerve-racking annoyance. It is a slippery problem which cannot be firmly grasped, and people are angered both by its intractability and by the stance of those who disagree with them as to what should be done. A demonstration in favor of one course rarely draws the part of those with a different attitude. The rage is often incommensurate with the issues expressed or the provocations offered. This indicates that people are already so taut as to need little to make them explode.

There is a feeling, too, that the institutions which are supposed to hold the country together and keep it steady on its way are breaking up. A remarkable decline of confidence in government seems to be underway. This is not a partisan phenomenon; it has nothing to do with whichever party happens to be in power. It is a suspicion and a fear that, under present conditions, government is incapable of performing its necessary functions, that the system is faltering badly without any assurance that repair is likely or even possible.

In the political campaigning so far, not yet out of the primary phase, there is ample evidence that people are disoriented with things as they are. Once again, this is not a partisan phenomenon. It is generalized, crossing party lines and most social distinctions. A profound dissatisfaction is being registered, and a desperate desire for radical improvement.

With all these rumblings, the volatile outburst, when it comes, is quite unpredictable and seems uncontrollable. The recent experience of Wallace's election or implicitly conveyed views, one might have thought that any attack on him would be to his benefit. And so it was. Or one might have expected an assailant to be a hippie type. The alleged assassin was a man in a suit, neatly dressed and with short hair. In his apartment were found Wallace paraphernalia, a copy of "Confessions," and so on. The would-be assassin just didn't fit the ideological or sociological bill. It makes one wonder if this is the point, all too much, of our American life today, in whatever aspect of it one may care to scrutinize, just doesn't make sense. All along the line and deep below the surface there are dislocations. This affects everyone, but most of all those who are in the public eye.

Mr. Nixon, very nearly jumped out of his chair. The prospect of a forced rewriting of tax provisions that determine the fate of American business, the President told Mills, would undermine his plans for economic stability. Mills said he would keep that in mind.

But the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee - Mr. Tavelon on Capitol Hill - has by no means discarded the idea. Long experience has convinced Mills that deeply entrenched privileges are impossible to extract from the Internal Revenue Code in the normal legislative process. Thus, he now believes the only road to total reform is to let the entire code lapse. Mills' staff had been working on this scheme long before his meeting with Mr. Nixon.

HHH and Muehle
 Sen. Hubert Humphrey paid a secret visit to the home of his 1968 running-mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, in suburban Bethesda, Md., the morning of May 12 with a plea for indirect help in his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His success: Just about zero. Humphrey did not seek Muskie's endorsement. But he did ask Muskie to release some of

The Hammer And The Pieta

Mental imbalance has always been with us, has often suffered grandiose delusions, and has often sought spectacular means of calling attention to itself.

And perhaps, over the centuries, there have been instances in which such minds have managed to strike deliberately and destructively at some symbol of civilization. Perhaps there have been such instances, and perhaps they have faded into history without much notice, so that no one remembers them.

Certainly, we suppose, no one a few years from now will ever remember the incident in which one of the wetbacks of our time took hammer to Michelangelo's "Pieta" as it stood in St. Peter's at Rome.

Such suggestions are possible. We do not really believe, however, that the codes of civilization, which restrain even the directions of the mentally disordered, have ever before been quite this loose. We believe the Pieta was safer during its first 450 years than it has been, let us say, within its last two years. We believe the difference lies in something that might be called the demoralization of world society as a whole. A long-range thinking, tradition-liberated optimist might possibly conclude, or hope, that this "demoralization" might be merely the tearing down of old and treacherous values in favor of some new order of higher truth.

The more inhibited among us, philosophically inclined to think that only by building on the best in our past can we move toward a finer future, have trouble finding in hammer on sculpture any symbol of progress, even if, conceivably, the culture and faith which framed the work of the particular artist in his particular time were benefited by mistakes from which mankind needed to be freed.

Perhaps they were mistakes, and perhaps there are alternatives lurking, or shining, somewhere ahead in the progressive demoralization of mankind, but so far most of us confess an inability to see or sense what might be better, or recognize any kind of contribution to any kind of tomorrow in the widening license of destructive society seems to permit to all its components, even to the supposedly respectable man, and therefore encourage in the demerit.

May In The Superlative

The buds must have been programmed during the favorable, invigorating weather of last summer and fall. They must have been protected by the relative mildness of the winter, so that they came through to this spring with an unusual profusion of bloom to offer.

From the start, the pattern has been consistent. The forsythia bushes were masses of yellow. The apple, the dogwood, the lilac, the cherry, honeysuckle all seem to have managed more bloom to the yard than has ever been observed before.

In addition to naming themselves on their respective branches, they have also somehow managed, in this spring of heavy rains and cool nights, to alter their individual pace so that they could all come into bloom together in the same week.

The Connecticut May, of any year, is the most beautiful month of all seasons in all places. The third week of this May, 1972, was the queen week of this May. Connecticut has ever known. That is one way of trying to describe the superlatives through which we fortunate Manchestans have just made our sort of trance-like progress, all our senses trying to tell us, from the sight of the massed bloom, the drift of its fragrance, and the song of birds, just how privileged we were.

The proper realistic advice to anyone finding himself or herself being mentioned for the Republican nomination for Congress in the First District this year is that he or she should trust nobody.

Somebody, with a rare combination of imagination and brains, is trying to float the impression that the nomination is worth something this year.

By such evaluation, anybody in Republican ranks with a prominent position, or a promising career, should be delighted with an opportunity to leave that position or retired that career in order to clutch the privilege of running for the seat in Congress now held by William R. Cotter, Democrat.

It is hard to believe, but there are even some who pretend to believe the nomination is such a prize, a virtuous distinguished Republican might actually end up fighting for it.

This would be something of a direct contrast to what has often happened in the past, which has seen distinguished Republicans fighting against having to take the nomination.

What the prospective Republican nominees for 1972 are supposed to buy is, apparently, the fact that the First District elected Cotter by a margin of only 1,168 votes in 1970, as against a margin of more than 50,000 for Min Daddario in 1968.

There are several reasons why that 1,168 margin isn't as attractive as it looks. Ann Uccello, the Republican candidate, had already begun to slip slightly in her own city of Hartford, but her reputation was its peak in surrounding towns. Cotter has received the Democratic nomination only after a bitter and tumultuous battle among longed Democratic factions, and this was an election in which a Republican candidate for Governor was carrying the state by 81,000 votes. Similar Republican advantages, or their equivalents, may reappear in 1972, and it is also possible, at about equal odds, that who-

She said all members of the recreation classes are invited to tomorrow's tea.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is being maintained about the purpose of Onassis' visit. Tehran newspapers reported, however, that he was negotiating an agreement with the Iranian Oil Co. to transport Iranian crude oil to international markets.

Jackston ReZoning Bid Rejected by Planners

A request for a zone change from Rural Residence to Residential was rejected by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission last Tuesday.

The commission said a zone change would result in building lots much smaller than other lots in the neighborhood. Minimum lot sizes, according to town zoning regulations, are 30,000 square feet for Rural Residence zones and 12,000 square feet for Residential A zones.

The application, submitted by Nicholas Jackson, included plans for a seven-lot subdivision. Denial of the zone change would mean only four building lots at 18,000 square feet each, according to Jackson's attorney, Eugene Kelly.

They said the marble powder they began the work today to repair restoration of Michelangelo's vanalized Pietra. Workmen put up scaffolding bearing the view of the marble masterpiece in St. Peter's Basilica.

After a day of conferences, the Vatican's experts said they were more hopeful that the restoration would take less time than had been expected. But some artists advised that the Madonna's shattered eyelids should not be replaced to avoid "taking" Michelangelo's style.

"Any attempt at ransaking it would be a fake," said Giorgio de' Benedetti, deputy director of Italy's Art Restoration Institute.

While the Pietra is being repaired, visitors can see a placard which says "The eye cannot be restored. To be replaced by fragments would betray Michelangelo's style."

Scott Palmer Wins Top Student Honor

Winner of the Spartan Award, the highest student honor given by Aurora (Ill.) College, is becoming a tradition in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Palmer of 18 Timber Trail.

Their son Scott received the 1972 award at the recent college annual awards banquet. His sister Susan, a 1971 graduate, won it last year. Their father serves on the Aurora board of directors. He is co-director of Hartford Hospital.

The Spartan Award recognizes outstanding contributions to campus life during a student's college career. The recipient is selected by a faculty committee and the junior class.

Scott is a 1968 graduate of Manchester High School and a history major at Aurora. As a freshman, he acted in two plays, played intramural basketball and was a class senator to the student association, and a member of Sigma Xi men's service club.

As a sophomore, he began the first of two terms as student association treasurer; was elected class president; continued drama work; was a reporter for Aurora's school newspaper, and participated in homecoming, Founders' Day, and winter carnival.

Drama guild members elected Scott president when he was a junior. He played the lead in the school production of "Oedipus Rex." As a junior, he also was named treasurer of the history club, directed a play, acted in another, and read for a Christmas program.

This year, he was assistant to the history department and received the Aurora Beacon award for Most Valuable Staffer award in his capacity as editor of the Aurora Beacon.

Columbia Town Meeting Planned On Landfill Purchase

Selection will call a special town meeting with the next members, and James McKeon two weeks to ask townpeople to appropriate $25,000 for 20 4-acre parcels of state land offered to the town for a sanitary landfill.

First Selectman Edward Bates said he had received notification from the state that the proposed value of the property had been approved by the Governor's screening committee.

The price is subject to the final approval by the committee. Bates said he will take considerable work and no doubt, and upon acceptance by the town, immediate steps will be taken to begin construction.

The selection had been ordered by the state to cease operations at the Doubleday Road landfill site.

Selections have been notified by the Department of Transportation that the town will be the new town ad contractor, replacing Richard Seaman, Jr.

Keneth Erickson was appointed to the Board of Appeals, succeeding George J. Sullivan who has resigned. Erickson will serve until the November 1973 election.

Selections also reactivated the Education-Recreation Committee which has been without a chairman for the past two years and has been meeting.

Recreation Council members thought there were many pressing items at the Rec area on Hennequin Rd.

Adult Baseball Decline

What's happened to all the baseball players in Manchester?

Manchester, like most other towns, likes to stick its chest out and point to its Little League baseball program which takes in approximately 750 youngsters in major and minor (farm) and rookie league play. This is the 22nd Little League season in Manchester.

The Alumni League, sponsored by the Recreation Department, likewise most of the Little League grads who still want to play baseball once they reach the 13-14-year-old bracket.

Next step is junior high baseball, followed by high school ball and American Legion competition.

After high school, just 18 youngsters are hand-picked for the fine Legion project.

For those youngsters who dream of playing baseball and are not picked for the Legion, there is no next stop on the baseball trail.

Thus, for many, who started out playing organized baseball at the age of nine in the Rookie League, their baseball careers are over at 18.

One likes to recall the days when Manchester was the center of baseball play for both youngsters and adults.

Those days are now only memories. The lone adult amateur team in Manchester, Morty's Brothers' entry in the Hartford Twilight League, is almost entirely of non-residents.

Jim Balsano, who hooked on with the Gas House Gang late last summer, was the only local resident. This summer, Balsano will be joined by Ray Lagace with the personal Twi loop champion.

Young baseball players who want to continue in the sport during the summer months and make the most of their spread pullout about with their parents, are too old to compete, have to turn to other facets for exercise, slow pitch softball being the principal choice.

Carl Silver, program director of the Recreation Department, said he would look into a baseball league for adults if sufficient interest warranted. To date there has not been one lot of interest shown for baseball on this level.

There have been a number of young men who have expressed themselves as anxious to continue playing baseball but only in a talking stage.

Practically all of the potential baseball players are happy with slow pitch softball, which has increased its appeal with leaps and bounds in the past five years on the local front.

Off the Cuff

What's happened to all the baseball players in Manchester?

Channel 27 will carry Thursday night's world championship heavyweight boxing bout between Joe Frazier and Ron Stander starting at 10 o'clock. New England Patriots will return to the United States to play the New York Jets in the NFL pre-season training camp. Former Villanova College back Jack Mallard will be in the Pat camp. He played the last two years with the Baltimore Colts as a running back. Mountain Park in Holyoke will hold an AAU Track and field sports festival Monday - Memorial Day - starting at 1 o'clock. The New York Yankees annual Ball will be held Saturday at the Stadium when the Detroit Tigers move in. Each youngster, up to 14 years of age, accompanied by an adult, will receive a ball from the management. These baseballs will also be available to Little League coaches who bring their squads to the park. Each youngster must pay the regular admission price. Every weekend game at Yankee Stadium will be the balance of the season will find at least three Yankees players available to sign autographs for a 15-minute period before play starts.

May Made Up for Misplay With Five RBI Performance

NEW YORK (AP)—"I had to do something after I dropped that simple fly ball to put us behind," Carlos May said. He did plenty. In the final inning against Texas, Chicago's powerful left fielder clubbed a double to put the White Sox ahead 3-0.

But the Rangers tied it in the bottom of the inning, then may misplayed Elliott Maddox' routine fly in the fifth, setting up Dave Nelson's double that gave Texas the lead.

To atone for this sin, May capped a four-run seventh with a bases-clearing double that sent the Sox to a 9-2 lead. The Rangers weren't through, though, roaring once in the bottom of the seventh and going ahead 6-5 in the eighth.

So it was May to the rescue again, this time singling his fifth run-batted-in of the game to tie it in the ninth.

That more than made up for his one misplay. Then it was A's in the race for supremacy in the American League West. The White Sox catcher had given the Rangers a pair of eighth-inning runs when he threw away a potential double play ball.

So he rid himself of his goat's horns with a tie-breaking double that gave the White Sox their 10-7 victory.

In the only other American League game on Monday night, Oakland defeated California 6-2. In the National League, Montreal beat Philadelphia 6-3 in the only afternoon game. San Francisco outgassed Los Angeles 2-5 and Houston silenced San Diego 7-0.

Lighted the A's five-run eighth. Hunter struck out eight and walked one. He yielded Larry Stanton's two-run homer for the 10th as Toby Harrah and Josh Angelis in the ninth inning.

GIANTS DODGERS
Dave Kingman took over the National League's home run and RBI race. He led the season, one of them a grand slam, his second of the season, to help the Giants beat Los Angeles.

Ken Henderson and Bernie Williams also put baseballs over the wall to lead San Francisco's 11th assault on five pitchers. Willie Davis homered for the Dodgers, who fell one game back of first-place Houston in the National League West.

Fraser, training across town, added, "I rank him right behind Marcellino (Reno)." The champion boxed one Stander again and hit his second home run with Jimmy "Moleman" Williams and two with Mike Howell, then signed autographs. The season started by about 150 lated only 35 minutes.

"I'm am going to try to keep Stander in there all the way," predicted Stander. "He won't be like fighting Terry Daniels."

Stander was referring to the next two 10 p.m. EDT at Omaha's Star's last foe. The champion plays, said Fraser's manager, Eric Ascherman. It also will knock out Daniels in the Yankee Durham.

Les Kennedy Pace-Setter In Pawtucket

Manchester's Tom Kelley enjoyed his finest hour on teevee last Saturday when he pitched the Atlanta Braves to a 3-2 win over San Francisco on the Game of the Week which was beamed from coast to coast. The big, gum-chewing right-hander worked eight and two-thirds innings in gaining his second win of the season against four defeats. . . . New York Yankee's Yearbook features a center spread pullout about with their parents, are too old to compete, have to turn to other facets for exercise, slow pitch softball being the principal choice.

Tribe Drops Eighth Straight Tilt, Penney's Intra via Hurls Victory

By DEAN YOST

Jim Intra via relieved starter Gary Sanders in the fourth inning with one out and went on to hurt Penney High of East Hartford to a 7-3 victory over host Manchester High yesterday afternoon at Memorial Field. The win was Penney's fifth in 14 outings while the Tribe slipped to 2-13 in the C.C.I.L. It was their eighth consecutive setback. In the first inning it appeared that Manchester had finally found its hitting shoes and Penney was going to be in big trouble. Arnie Pagan got the Manchester bunched back in the fourth to tie the count at 2-2. John Wiggin walked and a passed ball allowed Gussardi to come home and alert runner Kelly tallied on a mental lapse by catcher Bill Lavengood and Pagan after his gap, poor defense and little offensive support hurt Pagan in his bid to record his first victory. Cronie McCurry relieved Pagan in the ninth inning.

8-Playing Shortstop

(Eight of 10 Parts.) A good shortstop must be able to go quickly either to his right or to his left. Don't decide you are a shortstop because it looks like a hero spot. It's the most demanding of all fielding positions. You play at shortstop can make or break a team effort.

Generally speaking, the double play and the double play is the key to getting out of an inning cheaply when there are men on base. It is your responsibility, when you throw, to throw to the base, not to the fielder. And throw chest-high. It will be hard to do at first. You will want to look at the second baseman as you throw to him. Don't. Chances are, he will be moving—and won't have arrived at the bag yet.

"If this is the case, I think it is baseball's credit," said Robinson Sunday during a visit to New Haven. He was high behind such a move.

Robinson says he is withholding a final judgment on the trade until he sees what happens. His prime interest now runs to Mays.

Bennet Trackmen Triumph In Toughest Meet of Year

Facing its toughest opposition of the season, Bennet Junior High School rose to the occasion to defeat the combined Wethersfield track team of Webb and Silas Deane Jr. High, 59-45.

Jim Barrows broke the javelin record at Bennet again with a toss of 139'3".

Bennet takes its perfect 5-0 record to South Windsor High for its next meet Thursday.
