

Bomb Damage Heavy in Viet Over Weekend

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. pilots knocked out North Vietnam's only steel plant, put a power plant out of operation and dropped two bridges in weekend raids, the U.S. Command reported today.

Food Study Gagged

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon lifted all quota restrictions on meat imports today "in an effort to remedy a short-term shortage" and curb rising meat prices.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The politically delicate issue of food prices has silenced the Price Commission after an apparent rift with the White House.

The commission, meeting in closed session for more than four hours in an unusual Sunday session, declined to tell reporters anything about the meeting.

"I will speak on the record when I think I should and I won't speak on the record when I think I shouldn't," Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson told reporters who went to his office for comment.

Grayson apologized for the refusal to comment, but said the seven-member commission reached a consensus that nothing should be said. He refused to comment when asked if the agency was doing so at the request of the White House.

"I don't think it has," Grayson said, when asked if the agency has become immune to politics. "It hasn't."

Grayson said he has no plans to see the President as a result of the meeting.

There were reports earlier last week that the commission was going to discuss a temporary freeze on meat prices. This was discussed at a meeting last Wednesday, but the next day President Nixon told reporters he is considering lifting import quotas on meat to increase the supply as a way to halt the rise in food prices.

Nixon said also he is considering action on the control side, but the President said nothing about a key Price Commission recommendation to lift the current exemption from controls of raw agricultural products.

The commission urged the President and the Cost of Living Council to take quick action on the food price issue, but the White House and the council delayed any decision. And spokesmen indicated that the White House was angry because the commission made its recommendations public.

The Cost of Living Council, meantime, is considering options for reviewing controls on food at the request of the White House. There has been no indication on when a decision will be made.

Radio Hanoi claimed that six U.S. F4 Phantoms were shot down, but the U.S. Command said it had no plane losses to report. However, it is the command's policy to withhold such information as long as rescue operations are in progress.

U.S. pilots flew more than 270 strikes on Saturday and a like number on Sunday. One flight of four Phantoms hit the Viet Tri thermal power plant 25 miles northwest of Hanoi on Sunday with 2,000-pound, laser-guided bombs. They "effectively destroyed the plant's capability to produce electrical power for the nearby industrial complex," a communique said.

Reconnaissance photos confirmed the destruction of the boiler facility, the electrical switching building, and the fuel and coal conveyor, the communique said.

It was learned that the Viet Tri plant was attacked on June 1 with laser bombs, but that raid was not announced because it failed to put the plant out of commission.

The 7th Air Force announced that four of its Phantoms dropped laser-guided, 2,000-pound bombs into the open hearth furnaces of the Thai Nguyen steel plant 30 miles north of Hanoi on Saturday. Sixteen other Phantoms bombed warehouse areas.

The Air Force said part of the plant was not hit but the destruction of the furnaces entire capacity for producing structural steel for railroads, bridges and buildings.

The plant, which covers an area of two square miles, is the biggest industrial plant in North Vietnam. It had been rebuilt after being bombed at least four times during the 1965-68 bombing campaign.

The U.S. Command said the plant was attacked because its output was supporting North Vietnam's invasion of South Vietnam. Officers said the plant produced steel for bridges and railroads over which war materials are shipped to Communist forces in South Vietnam.

About 100 U.S. B52s bombed North Vietnamese positions along South Vietnam's northern front for the fourth successive day, dropping 2,500 tons of explosives across a wide area around enemy-held Quang Tri City and in the foothills and mountains west of Hue.

The U.S. Command said B52 raids between May 30 and June 12 in areas 12 to 14 miles southwest of Hue killed more than 400 North Vietnamese troops and destroyed tons of stockpiled war material.

But the North Vietnamese renewed their heavy shelling of (See Page Fifteen)

Complaint Filed On Bus Firm

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP)—The city of Hartford asked a Common Pleas Court Judge today to find the Connecticut Co. in contempt because of a reduction in service Saturday.

The reduction, the city said violated the court order last week delaying the start of reduced bus schedules until a hearing before the court.

"The company, did, in fact, reduce the service schedules" Saturday, the city said in a motion. And it claims a company spokesman "falsely and insolently claimed and reported that the reductions" were a result of the court's order.

Sunday, a union representative of Conn. Co. bus drivers said the loss of several runs Saturday was a result of layoffs.

Joseph E. Horan, business agent for Amalgamated Transit Union Local 425, said Sunday if 10 drivers who had been laid off had been kept on, adjustment could have been made to prevent riders from being (See Page Eight) stranded Saturday when runs were stopped early.

"If the 10 drivers had not been laid off Friday I'm sure the public would not have been put in this precarious position," Horan said.

ConnCo spokesmen said over the weekend more reduced service could be expected in both Hartford and New Haven because of driver shortages.

Service was normal early today, the company reported, but warned that runs might be cut during afternoon commuter hours.

Complete Pullout On Democrat Call

WASHINGTON (AP)—First-draft planks of the Democratic platform called today for an immediate and complete withdrawal of all U.S. forces in Indochina and took a middle-ground stand on the hot domestic issue of racial school busing.

Both planks, and perhaps as many as a dozen others, headed into floor fights as the full 150-member drafting committee convened for a two-day session open to press and public.

Challenges were expected to make good on his 4-year-old promise of peace and de-escalation. His Vietnamization program has been proved a delusion.

It sent two versions to the floor, one demanding a strong military stance to deter aggression and keep the confidence of the allies, the other suggesting that cutbacks should be undertaken.

The Vietnam plank denounced President Nixon's fail-

Spokesmen for Sen. George McGovern and Gov. George C. Wallace indicated that minority proposals would be introduced, precipitating floor fights at the drafting sessions of the full 150-member Platform Committee today and Tuesday.

Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma also urged platform drafters to revolt against their 15-member drafting subcommittee by demanding stronger tax-reform and antitrust planks and a denunciation of strip-mining.

A spokesman for Wallace said the subcommittee's proposed busing plank — still not disclosed to the public or the full drafting committee — is unsatisfactory.

Unless the plank was brought closer to their liking overnight, Wallace supporters said, they would make a floor challenge.

And a number of supporters of front-running Sen. McGovern reportedly felt aggrieved that

Meskill Barely Stirs State GOP Parley

By SOL E. COHEN
(Herald Reporter)

"There is nothing automatic or inevitable about Republican victories in Connecticut next November," Gov. Thomas Meskill warned the Republican State Convention Saturday.

"They will come only if we work for them," he said, urging the delegates to "remember that we are out-registered."

Meskill, the first incumbent Republican governor to address a GOP state convention in 18 years, said, "Two years ago many of us left this same hall in quest of victory. We achieved that victory and we can do it again, and we can do it in the same way."

Cautioning his listeners against complacency, he said, "Because of the registration figures, we start at a disadvantage, and we need workers to overcome that disadvantage. Spectators won't help. Sitting on the sidelines won't help. We need people who are willing to get involved."

Meskill's words were intended to shake up a convention that, except for a contest in the 4th Congressional District over an alternate national delegate, experienced no controversy and practiced unexpected unity for GOP conventions.

Going almost unnoticed was a vote to table a proposed amendment to the state platform, to pledge to the taxpayers of Connecticut "they will not be burdened by a state income tax."

The amendment, offered by a delegate from the 21st Senatorial District, didn't create even a ripple in the calm.

Incidentally, a presentation of the state platform took about 40 minutes of the two-hour Saturday session. The contest over an alternate delegate from the 4th Congressional District took about 40 minutes more — leaving only 40 minutes for all of the other business combined.

Atty. John F. Shea of Manchester, who is state central committee chairman from the 4th Senatorial District, was chairman of the convention's rules committee. The report he presented was accepted by an unanimous voice vote.

Shea was also chairman of the First Congressional District delegates and two alternates to the Republican national convention.

Representing the First District as its tow delegates will be State Comptroller and former Manchester Mayor Nathan Agostinelli and Mrs. Fannie Himmelstein of West Hartford.

the South Dakotan's positions were inadequately reflected in the planks being drafted. Many other committee members expressed irritation that McGovern had not come before them personally to clarify his positions.

A McGovern lieutenant, Ted Van Dyke, told newsmen floor action would be taken by the McGovern forces if necessary to resist any backdown from the senator's pledge of a U.S. troop pullout from Indochina, from his demand for abolition of the present welfare system, and his stand on busing.

The small drafting subcommittee labored almost all Saturday night to produce three domestic planks. The policies started with a "guaranteed job" proposal and federal income supports not unlike McGovern's share-the-wealth plan—but far less specific.

The three planks won general approval from spokesmen for Democratic presidential candidates. Back at its labors all day Sunday, the subcommittee planned to present a complete eight-plank draft to its parent committee by this morning.

That body in turn had 48 hours to rewrite and approve a final draft which must be in the

District Nod For Cotter

Pledging a "hard and clean campaign on the issues," with the economic picture in Hartford County one of the leading issues, First District Rep. William Cotter Saturday warmly accepted the unanimous nomination for re-election. It was voted him by the Democratic delegates from the 12 towns of the First Congressional District, meeting in convention at Bulkeley High School, Hartford.

As proof of unity at the uncontented convention, the chairman was State Sen. Jay Jackson of Hartford. Only a year ago in the same auditorium, it was Jackson who emerged as the party's candidate for Congress, winning out on the 11th ballot over 12 opponents, in a session that recessed at 2 a.m.

Hijacker Eludes FBI

PERU, Ind. (AP)—Looking for a "spark of light in a big dark room," the FBI hopes to find at least a clue today in the disappearance over north central Indiana of a skyjacker and more than $500,000 in ransom.

About 100 FBI agents from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio and an equal number of state and local law enforcement officers have been searching without success since Saturday for the skyjacker and his loot in a thick, briar-infested woodland near Peru.

One FBI agent was overheard to say, "It's like a big dark room, you know. When you're looking for a light, you go for a spark."

The quarry, still unidentified, is a young white man with a pock-marked face and open sores.

Reportedly armed with a .45 caliber submachine gun and a hand grenade, he commandeered an American Airlines 777 jetliner Friday night on a flight from St. Louis to Tulsa, Okla. He ordered it to return to St. Louis where he demanded $500,000 and two parachutes.

Toll: 117 Deaths, Tons of Debris

Flood Victims Turn to Cleanup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Massive cleanup, relief and rebuilding efforts have begun as the flooded East. The death toll from the week-long storm stood at 117 today and tens of thousands remained homeless.

As the rivers returned to their banks, thousands returned to their homes and businesses to clear away silt with shovels and brooms, and there was a break in the crisis that began when the storm named Agnes slammed across the Florida coast on her disastrous course a week ago.

With property damage over the $1 billion mark in Pennsylvania alone, the storm-torn states looked to the federal government for assistance, and a presidential aide promised it would be forthcoming.

The pledge came after the governors of five states and a representative from a sixth met in Harrisburg, Pa., Sunday with George A. Lincoln, director of the President's Office of Emergency Preparedness.

Red Cross officials said 112,000 homeless people were being cared for at 330 emergency shelters in Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia and Maryland, and they launched a disaster fund campaign for $10 million.

While most of the flood threat was past, watches were still kept in several areas including Petersburg, Va., where the Appomattox River was not expected to crest until tonight.

Thousands Homeless and Almond, N.Y., threatened by a 14-mile-long artificial lake of rainwater behind a highway embankment.

Most of downtown Harrisburg remained flooded and water up to 10 feet deep still covered a 100-square-block area in Wilkes-Barre.

There were some local problems in New York and Pennsylvania, with spectators and looters. "There are a lot of things floating around the streets and a lot of people are just helping themselves," said a policeman in Harrisburg. "They're even using boats to ransack houses."

Drinking water was a problem in some hard-hit areas. The city water supply in Richmond, Va., went back into operation but was not yet fit for drinking. Tanker trucks were supplying the residents.

A lack of potable drinking water was reported in at least 80 communities in Pennsylvania. In New York a shortage of containers for bringing in water was reported in Elmira.

At the meeting in Harrisburg Sunday, OEP director Lincoln told the governors that federal assistance ranging from rent-free, temporary housing to unemployment compensation would be available.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp expressed concern that the aid would not filter through the red tape quickly enough. Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel said he feared that not enough funds would be available.

Lincoln said the aid would be swift, sufficient and widespread. "We'll do everything we can to assist you in the snap-back which I'm sure will be rapid," he said.

Other governors attending the meeting were Linwood Holton of Virginia, Russell W. Peterson of Delaware and William T.

Cahill of New Jersey. New York's vacationing Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sent a representative.

Rep. H. John Heinz III, R-Pa., said he would ask for a congressional investigation of why the National Weather Service did not predict the flood earlier.

Paul Jacoby, chief meteorologist for the NWS, rejected the blame, saying Agnes took a capricious course that no one could have predicted. The storm came out of the Gulf of Mexico as a hurricane, lost force over land and then built up again in a swing out to sea before hitting the mid-Atlantic states.

Red Cross President George M. Elsey announced his organization's $10 million disaster fund campaign after a seven-hour aerial survey of the affected area. He estimated that more than 30,000 families in five states would need Red Cross assistance.

Tons of medicine, food and clothing were already being airlifted or trucked into ravaged Pennsylvania towns.

The Disillusionment of Wicker

A few weeks ago, Tom Wicker, top Washington columnist for the New York Times, did a piece in which he seemed to set forth a reasonable, plausible set of figures explaining Senator George McGovern's plan for redistributing income.

Some readers who had previously considered some of Senator McGovern's ideas too wild and irresponsible to be real were reassured, and began to feel encouraged to take those McGovern ideas as something that had really been thought out.

Other readers who had been nourishing, perhaps because of aggressions by critics like Vice President Agnew, suspicion that Tom Wicker had personal political leanings he had no hesitancy about letting show in his writing, got ready to lower the boom on Wicker, as one who had had now gone beyond redemption.

Last Thursday, however, Wicker confounded both these reaction judgments. He himself dealt the credibility of Senator McGovern the heaviest kind of blow.

And, doing so, he proved that a journalist may lean and lean and lean and still, in the crucial test, be pulled back upright on his own best training and loyalty to the highest obligations of his profession.

What Wicker did was eat a little dirt, publicly and this is the way he began doing it: "In this space on June 4 there appeared an explanation of how the complicated scheme — for an income supplement of $1,000 per person for every American — was supposed to work. That explanation was based on conversations with, and a seven-page document prepared by, the McGovern staff. All this was accepted far too uncritically, with the result that the McGovern income program was made, in this column, to seem more practical and carefully worked out than it is. This was a journalistic sin for which responsibility is hereby accepted; it was also reaffirmation of the cardinal lesson that every political reporter learns and re-learns — that everything said and done by politicians seeking or holding power has to be constantly challenged."

Columnist Wicker then went on to tell how subsequent analysis revealed "obvious distortions" and various "errors of omission and commission" in the way the McGovern staff and Senator McGovern himself had discussed the income proposals.

King Who?

We have been thinking much, of late, of the liberating and sanitary influence the establishment of a constitutional monarchy could have in this country.

Only the obvious difficulty of deciding upon some one first family, to be the royal family, and to produce heirs, would be a serious difficulty for us, keep us from recommending the change over seriously.

But if we could find a suitable leader, fit and willing to be our first king, the advantages in the monarchical system would be self-evident, and overwhelming.

It could be a constitutional monarchy so designed that we no longer needed to go through the motions, every four years, of electing a new President, whether or not we needed or wanted one.

We would not go to the polls to vote for or against a prime minister until we had some reason for doing so, that is until such debate had arisen over some particular policy or such controversy had arisen over his general performance in office that the Congress should cast a majority vote in favor of having a national referendum.

There would not be the equivalent of a national election, in other words, until an issue had actually arisen which required the decision from the people for its solution. In order to sense and imagine what this would mean, it could be put this way: we would not have to be going through what this nation is now going through just because this happens to be, on the calendar, the year 1972, a presidential election year.

We think that if we think that over we will find that sufficient reason, in itself, for the switch to a monarchy. But there are additional arguments in favor of change, which we will venture to suggest from time to time.

Meanwhile, how about Charlton Heston? "In this space on June 4 there appeared an explanation of how the complicated scheme — for an income supplement of $1,000 per person for every American — was supposed to work. That explanation was based on conversations with, and a seven-page document prepared by, the McGovern staff. All this was accepted far too uncritically, with the result that the McGovern income program was made, in this column, to seem more practical and carefully worked out than it is. This was a journalistic sin for which responsibility is hereby accepted; it was also reaffirmation of the cardinal lesson that every political reporter learns and re-learns — that everything said and done by politicians seeking or holding power has to be constantly challenged."

Columnist Wicker then went on to tell how subsequent analysis revealed "obvious distortions" and various "errors of omission and commission" in the way the McGovern staff and Senator McGovern himself had discussed the income proposals.

Noting that Senator McGovern himself now seems to have backed away from his own program, Columnist Wicker observed: "Mr. McGovern cannot at one and the same time proclaim his intention to restore the 'credibility' of the Presidency and at the same time pretend that his program for income redistribution was just a casual idea to which he was never really committed. The fact is that it was only when analysts began to show the economic holes in that program that Mr. McGovern started backing away from it."

"The road to credibility gap and elsewhere," Wicker concluded, "is paved with good intentions, and if George McGovern really wants to restore the faith and trust of the American people in their Government, he has made a bad start of it with his income program. As to always the case with the question some other pledges and calculations."

Inside Report

WASHINGTON — The deepening cleavage between the new politics of McGovern reformers and the old politics of the Democratic regulars was dramatically evident at this past week's closed-door caucus of Democratic House members.

Called to explain how the radically changed and enlarged Democratic National Committee will work, the party caucus erupted into accusations and condemnations from old-pro Congressmen, several of whom abruptly stomped out of the meeting.

Many House Democrats were already feeling like lepers watching the McGovern bandwagon pass them by, a condition dramatized by the fact that only 18 members of Congress have been picked as delegates to the Miami Beach convention.

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has once again proven his critics to be wrong. In apparent reaction to charges from some that he has turned a deaf ear to Connecticut's needs, the governor's selection of "The Hills of My Connecticut" as the official state song proves he really has a tin ear.

The lyrics appear to have come straight out of the old "Dick and Jane" primers, but this did not seem to displease the governor from selecting it. He launched a crusade for a new state song as if there aren't other things we need more — because the lyrics have been greeted with the Yale Fight Song, "Boo, Boo," whenever he appeared at outside functions.

Possibly our fearless leader would not have dismissed the Yale fight song so much were it not for the fact that he is a Trinitarian. But, outside of loyalty to his alma mater, what reason was there for seeking an official state song? No other Connecticut governor ever got too up-tight when met out-of-state with the familiar strains of "Boo, Boo."

Despite the mediocrity of the lyrics (with such pep as "... the land is peaceful and lovely; it's where I want to live and die..."), the tune is hardly to be despised. To describe it to those yet to hear it, the melody, if it were used in a musical comedy, is of the caliber to make the audience walk away humming the scenery. —BRISTOL PRESS.

The Hills of Connecticut Gov. Meskill's selection of "The Hills of Connecticut" as the state song, has attracted the critical comment of a network radio and television commentator. He finds the sentiments expressed in "The Hills" a bit schmatzy, and deplores the abandonment of "Boo, Boo" as a substitute for any official tune.

One veteran House Democrat recently friendly to the reforms, told us it was the "naïfist" of them all.

Hebron Six Requests Before ZBA

The Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building to hear six requests.

There will be a testing session at the high school Tuesday, Sept. 5, for new students entering Grades 11 and 12.

Mrs. Lynch was pronounced dead on arrival at Manchester Memorial Hospital Sept. 13, 1971, following an accident at Highland and Wyllys Sts.

Manchester police immediately arrested Miss Plante on charges of negligent homicide. The case is still pending in Circuit Court 11 at Manchester.

According to police, Mrs. Lynch was driving west on Wyllys St. when she failed to yield the right of way to the vehicle operated by Mrs. Plante.

The coroner's report states also that Mrs. Plante failed to give a stop sign. The report also notes that it was raining at the time of the collision — "the road surface was wet; and lighting conditions were poor."

The State Traffic Commission has approved a Manchester Police Department request for a flashing signal beacon at Highland and Wyllys Sts. Police Chief James Reardon reported three months ago. The beacon system has been installed by the state.

The School Board has hired a new principal for the high school, despite steadily increasing enrollment.

The board also ratified contracts with the school principals and school nurses, as well as agreeing to pay retroactive salaries to the teachers.

Coroner Places Crash Blame In Lynch Fatality

An 18-year-old Windsor Locks girl was responsible for the car crash death of Mrs. Mary M. Lynch of Bolton last fall at Manchester, according to a Hartford County coroner's finding.

Deputy Coroner Henry Ramonda said the collision in which Mrs. Lynch was killed resulted from the criminal action of Cheryl A. Plante, in that she failed to yield the right of way to the vehicle operated by Mrs. Lynch.

Miss Jane F. Hammond of Manchester, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The matron, Mrs. Bowler, is a 1971 graduate of Emmanuel College.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, she wore a gown of organza and venise lace threaded with ribbons, designed with high neck line, sheer yoke, bishop sleeves and detachable wattleau train bordered in matching lace.

The attendants were dressed also in purple and orange floral print gowns and white picture hats. They carried white baskets filled with miniature carnations and daisies to match the color of their gowns.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Pressure Makes the Difference

What Causes Ear Blockages?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D. Dear Dr. Lamb—What causes ear blockages? I have had this problem approximately seven years.

I have gone to two doctors and they told me this was likely due to ear infections I had as a child. One stated that I may eventually need an operation.

Dear Reader—You should make arrangements to see an ear, nose and throat specialist. Your family doctor can refer you to one or you can obtain the names of specialists for this problem with a telephone call to the nearest county medical society.

The ear is affected by changes in altitude because of the difference in pressure across the eardrum between the external ear and middle ear chamber. The external ear is at the side of the head plus the ear canal which funnels sound into the ear.

When you go to altitude, the thin air creates less pressure at the external ear, the air in the hollow middle ear is under greater pressure and can push your eardrum out. The ear is protected against this by the Eustachian tube from the middle ear chamber through the tube to the mouth.

When descending from altitude, as the air pressure increases, the external pressure is a great hollow chamber, the middle ear. At the bottom of this hollow chamber is a tube that passes downward and opens in the back of the throat (Eustachian tube).

Through this tube the middle ear chamber communicates with the air in mouth. When air pressure builds up in the middle chamber, air is forced out the tube and into the mouth.

If the pressure in the chamber falls, air is sucked up into the chamber through the same tube. This way, the pressure can be changed in the middle ear chamber.

When you go to altitude, the thin air creates less pressure at the external ear, the air in the hollow middle ear is under greater pressure and can push your eardrum out. The ear is protected against this by the Eustachian tube from the middle ear chamber through the tube to the mouth.

Overgrowth of tissue in the throat near the tube opening may make it impossible for air to pass freely in and out of the middle ear chamber. Sometimes, surgical removal of the overgrown tissue is needed.

Mothers Circle Elects Officers

Mrs. Ronald Gates of 12 Overlook Dr. recently was elected leader of Our Lady of Unity Mothers Circle at its meeting at the home of Mrs. John McKee on Richmond Dr. She succeeds Mrs. George Yarko.

Other officers elected are Mrs. Gerard Gaudreau, co-leader; Mrs. William Taylor, secretary; Mrs. James DeLoe, treasurer; Mrs. John McNamee, librarian; Mrs. John Colman, publicity; Mrs. Herbert Stevenson, hospitality; Mrs. McKee, contact; and Mrs. Yarko and Mrs. Thomas Parker, representatives to the Combined Catholic Mothers Circles.

Your ears are exceptionally important, and anyone who is having hearing problems certainly deserves a careful examination by a specialist.

Having trouble shedding pounds? If so, you'll want to read Dr. Lamb's booklet in which he answers your questions about Losing Weight. Send 50 cents to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 15500, City Station, N.Y., N.Y. 10019. Ask for "Losing Weight" booklet.

THIRD OF A SERIES CLIP AND SAVE TIPS ON SPAIN by LaBonne TRAVEL WORLD

FIRST THINGS FIRST "First things first" is a by-word for any foreigner in Spain. The very first thing recommended is that you be friendly and courteous, remembering that you are the foreigner in Spain. You will find, as a result, that the Spanish are extremely outgoing and eager to please.

The second "first" is to reconfirm your airline reservations immediately upon your arrival in any city. If there is one operation in Spain that appears to be casual to the point of indifference, it's the airlines. On both trips that we have made, we have had problems with respect to our airline reservations within the country. Had we not started reconfirming immediately upon arrival, we would not have been able to solve them. Again, if a snafu occurs relax, remember you're on vacation, and that time usually corrects most things.

A third "first" is water. Although many have traveled through Spain drinking water from hotel taps, etc., we don't think it's worth the risk. Immediately upon arrival in a hotel room we order aqua mineral "sings" which is plain mineral water. It is delicious and safe. We also make a point of avoiding any vegetable or fruit that is not peeled. Shellfish are also on the taboo list. We think this advice is important because there is nothing that can spoil a vacation faster than avoidable intestinal illnesses. Watch for the next article on "What To Do In Madrid."
