The Manchester Municipal Building went to the dogs yesterday, the last day for buying licenses without a penalty. The line into the town clerk's office extending into the hallway formed late in the morning and the steady stream of dog owners kept up for most of the day. Allies Stall Near Target

SAIGON (AP)—South Vietnam's northern counter-offensive slowed down today, but forward elements were within three miles of enemy-held Quang Tri City, field reporters said. Meanwhile, scattered enemy attacks to the rear and in the south showed that the North Vietnamese offensive—now in its fourth month—is far from finished. Government troops reported killing 90 enemy soldiers and taking four prisoners at a cost of two men killed and 25 wounded on Friday and early Saturday.

Outside Quang Tri

Field reports said, however, that many units in the 20,000-man drive were not bothering to count enemy bodies and that the figures could not be considered reliable. Action reported today in the far north ranged from six to 12 miles from Quang Tri City and included one enemy artillery attack against a position on the coastal "Street Without Joy" east of Quang Tri and a battle south just north of the old northern front of the western flank of the My Chanh River line. Field sources said South Vietnamese troops were meeting stiffer resistance as they neared Quang Tri and that the advance also was slowed by the lack of bridges over two rivers between the old front and the captive provincial capital. Associated Press Correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the battlefield that heavy rains flooded river fords today, holding up supply vehicles, including ammunition trucks. Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, in charge of the counter-offensive, is regarded as one of the bolder South Vietnamese generals—as well as the best. But he has been proceeding carefully to avoid leaving pockets of enemy troops to his rear. Some 50 miles below the front, enemy units shelled positions on Hue's southwest defense line and the Saigon command reports other shelling north of the national capital. Wasp Loses Sting

QUONSET POINT, R.I. (AP)—The aircraft carrier USS Wasp, which helped rip apart the Japanese war machine in World War II, is headed for the scrap heap. The carrier, which also participated in the blockade line during the Cuban missile crisis and plucked returning American astronauts from the ocean, will be decommissioned today at the Quonset Point Naval Air Station.

The Wasp, as tall as a 22-story building and three football fields long, was assigned here in 1963 and put up for bid. From the scrap yard, its tons of steel will likely be sold to make razor blades. The Navy has decided it would cost too much to replace the 28-year-old ship's three propeller shafts, which have fatigue cracks, and make other repairs. From 600 to 800 persons, many of them former crewmen, were expected at the formal ceremony when the 43,000-ton ship's ensign, commissioning pennant and union jack are hauled down and the watch secured. In about a week, a Navy tug will begin towing to Boston the powerless hulk, whose four

Benefits Hike Defies Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has disregarded warnings that President Nixon might veto a 20-per cent increase in Social Security benefits and sent the measure to the White House.

Nixon was expected to act on the bill before leaving today for a two-week stay in San Clemente, Calif. The Senate and House acted Friday night before recessing until July 17 for the Fourth of July holiday and the Democratic National Convention.

The Social Security measure, the biggest money increase in the program's history, was tied to a bill extending the $450-billion debt ceiling through October. Without such action, members were told, the government would have to stop paying its bills by Thursday. Also included in the hybrid measure—and increasing the difficulty Nixon would face in vetoing it—are provisions for future automatic Social Security increases to cover cost-of-living rises. It also includes procedure by which those who suffered from the floods of Hurricane Agnes and the earlier disasters in South Dakota and elsewhere can get prompt tax refunds.

The bill would make the 20 per cent across-the-board increase in Social Security payments effective in September. It would be reflected in checks received Oct. 3. Republicans, who vainly sought to cut the increase to 10 per cent as Nixon recommended and $12,000 starting in 1974.

ed, accused Democrats of playing politics with the measure. Nevertheless, the Senate approved the boost, 82 to 4, and the House, 302 to 85. The House defeated, 253 to 83, the substitute 20-per cent proposal.

Payroll taxes would be increased in 1973 and again in 1974 to finance the higher benefits. But sponsors contended that at least for the next 25 years, the increases would hit persons earning more than $9,000 a year, while those in lower brackets would pay less than under the rate schedules set by present law.

The reason is that the additional funds in the near future would be raised largely by increasing the wage base on which the payroll tax is levied. Tax rates also would be increased but at a slower pace than the present law provides. From $9,000 this year, the base would go to $10,800 in 1973 and $12,000 starting in 1974.

Holiday Business

This year, with the Fourth of July holiday falling on Tuesday, some area businesses will observe a four-day weekend, while others will close only on the Fourth. The Herald will publish Monday, but will close Tuesday for the holiday observance. Other closings on Tuesday include the Municipal Building, and the commercial banks. All banks in the state will be open for business Monday, and close for the legal holiday Tuesday. Allan Chesterton of the Manchester Summer School has announced that the school will close both Monday and Tuesday. Most area businesses will open Monday and close Tuesday. The J. Garman Co., however, will close both days, and the Manchester Lumber Co. will close Monday, but remain open on Tuesday.

Interview with Dr. Babbidge:

A One-House Legislature?

One of a series of articles based on an exclusive interview with Homer D. Babbidge, who stepped down July 1 as president of the University of Connecticut.

By JOHN ARMSTRONG STORRS, Conn. (AP)—Connecticut's two-house General Assembly should be junked for a one-house legislature and the executive branch of state government should be dramatically reorganized, says former University of Connecticut President Homer D. Babbidge.

Babbidge says his dealings with state government during 10 years as UConn president have convinced him that the government is "politically cumbersome and unresponsive," to the people.

Only bold changes, he says, will restore state government's effectiveness.

"If we have many more years of public disenchantment with the legislative process," he adds, "a unicameral legislature is a distinct possibility in this state."

Only one state, Nebraska, has a unicameral legislature.

"The irony is that the Connecticut General Assembly has been at work for a number of years to streamline, reform and make itself more professional," says Babbidge. "They're getting criticized for their efforts, I think, only because they haven't gone far enough."

Babbidge notes that lawmakers were greeted with public cries of anguish when they raised salaries and created pensions for members of the General Assembly.

Associated Press Exclusive

"If they had gone that one more step, to a smaller, unicameral legislature, I think the public would be applauding them today rather than hooting at them," says Babbidge.

The former UConn president would like a one-house legislature of fewer than 100 members. Legislative membership now totals 213.

"The great risk with a unicameral system is that in a mood of public passion or excitement things can go through awfully fast, but every system of government has its risks," he says. "I think that's far less of a risk than the sort of thing I've encountered personally in trying to get some things done in the General Assembly."

The one-house legislature is just one of the causes that Babbidge plans to work for as he becomes more deeply involved in state issues.

Babbidge stepped down as UConn president on Friday and will join Yale University as a college master later this summer.

A registered Democrat and adversary of Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill on a number of education issues, Babbidge has been mentioned as a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1974.

Babbidge says he purposely is not discouraging such speculation in hopes it will make "the enemies of education" nervous. He says he'll keep open the option of running for public office by becoming active in Democratic politics and boning up on state issues. One of his chief objectives, he says, will be to encourage reorganization of the legislative and executive branches of state government.

"We have a state government that is much too complicated," he says. "Even though individuals working within a department are decent, hard-working public servants, the ordinary citizen can feel terribly frustrated."

Babbidge says he would like to see a reorganization of all agencies and departments dealing with human resources into, perhaps, a state-level Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

And he believes the financial responsibilities of state government could be more centralized, rather than dispersed among the comptroller, treasurer and commissioner of finance and control.

"We have seen improvement in the area of public works," he says, "but it still falls far short of reasonable public expectation."

Daley Ousted

Democrats Near Discord

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, boss of the biggest Democratic organization in the country, has been shorn of his convention seat in a move that left the party teetering on the edge of discord.

The convention's Credentials Committee, firmly controlled by supporters of Sen. George McGovern, voted 71 to 61 Friday night to deny seats to Daley and 58 other uncommitted Illinois delegates.

The committee voted instead to seat a rival slate of 41 delegates pledged to McGovern and another 18 leaning toward him.

The vote was the second explosive challenge decided by the committee, triggering extreme emotional responses and setting the stage for a discordant convention floor fight. But, after the Daley vote, a leader of the insurgents called for a healing compromise.

McGovern also picked up eight convention votes in another successful challenge involving downstate Illinois delegates and so gained back at least 49 of the delegates he lost Thursday when the Credentials Committee outlawed California's winner-take-all primary, stripping him of more than half its 271 delegates.

All of the committee's actions are subject to final approval by the national convention, which opens in Miami Beach July 10, and both the California and Illinois challenges are expected to be rethought there. The Daley delegation is also planning a court fight to overturn the committee ruling.

In Chicago, Daley did not disclose his immediate plans, but the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a leader of the challenge, said he hoped a compromise could be worked out before the convention.

"Rather than having a fight in Miami, there should be a solution in Chicago," Jackson said. He did not disclose any details of the compromise that might be worked out.

"It is clear we have the power to cut him off, and he has the power to cut us off," said Jackson. "The question is how can we survive together."

Daley called the vote "regrettable and a great disservice to the Democratic party." He said it had the effect of "disenfranchising over 800,000 voters who elected the Illinois delegates."

Although there had been talk in the committee of a compromise on the Illinois chalenge, the mood changed abruptly to bitterness following the California vote.

A compromise solution requiring Chicago Democrats to select a new delegate slate was proposed to the committee by Mike Almond, a 23-year-old North Carolina delegate. But it collapsed without a vote.

Pay Hike Guide May Be Changed

WASHINGTON (AP)—This head of the government's Pay Board says the 5.5-per-cent guideline for pay raises may be changed in order to keep inflation within desired levels.

"It may very well be the standard will stay," Chairman George H. Boldt said. "But, if we have to change the standard to reach the objective of a level of inflation between 2 and 3 per cent, the standard will change, period."

In his address Friday at the National Press Club, Boldt gave no indication how soon there may be a decision, but said: "The necessary staff research is under way and should be ready for early study by the board."

Boldt also said the board will hold public meetings in several cities this summer to let Americans make criticisms and suggestions about Pay Board regulations.

The hearings will be held in Chicago, San Francisco, Atlanta, Washington, and perhaps other cities, Boldt said. He also announced a series of hearings around the country designed to ultimately modify the way anti-inflation regulations are carried out. Boldt said testimony would be taken in several cities, but he did not elaborate.

In another development affecting wages, the Cost of Living Council refused to exempt dentists, barbers, beauticians, symphony-orchestra members and California policemen from federal wage controls.

All of the groups had applied to the council to be free of Pay Board jurisdiction over their salaries.

On the food front, President Nixon discussed food prices for an hour with the council Friday, and then the panel talked about the matter for more than an hour after he left.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon told the council to explore "every feasible action" to provide quality food at reasonable prices.

As part of the effort, Ziegler (See Page Sixteen)

The Nation Has Been Spared

The one certainty which emerges from the Supreme Court's decision on capital punishment is that the some 600 men and women this country has been storing up for possible execution are not going to be executed.

Some of us had been looking forward with dread to the possibility that the Court might give a signal for an orgy of life-taking, in which we would run off these 600 innocents in one great smearing aerial performance, perhaps for television.

And even now, when the decision that there will be no such grim series of processions to the death chambers has been made, there is something of a shudder inside the fact that four members of the Supreme Court, all the appointees of the current president in the White House, are made of such hard, righteous stuff that they could containence such a mass taking of life because they felt it their duty to go through with their own responsibility for it.

Against those of us whose emotions react in such a way, and who try to amass supporting logic for the proposition that the state is too arduous in its effort to bring the death penalty to justify its use there are, of course, those who believe in the penalty, because they hold that its imperfections and inconsistencies are unimportant in comparison with its role as a deterrent.

There is the question of whether or not it is a deterrent we all divide again, and here, too, we stand on one side of the argument or the other not because we possess facts which win the argument for us, but because there is something inside our own nature, something perhaps almost as inbred as whether we are going to be short or tall, fat or lean, which impels us to choose one side or the other of the issue.

Notwithstanding this hopeless division according to instinctive, emotional standards, there is little doubt that there has been some motion, for better or for worse, for some time past, away from reliance upon and execution of the death penalty.

The list of nations, and American states, who no longer use it has been growing.

And something in this country—not so decisive and clearly definable one could produce it in, let us say, a referendum on the question such as California may soon offer us—has been responsible for the fact that these 600 current inmates of death row are still in prison as inmates instead of merely being part of a record of executions carried out.

Our society itself has been doing this. That realization leads into more division, between those who think that a society which can lose its will to kill the wicked is in a tragic decline, and those who think the will to kill can have no place in a truly moral, civilized way of life.

The Supreme Court has wandered its way through a maze of legal highways and byways toward an indecisive decision which, in the end, probably represented merely the grouping of those reluctant to kill against the list of those willing to kill.

But as for the immediate effect, it is the wrong emphasis, we think, to say that the verdict spares the 600 now on death row. The mercy is, we think, really for the country, and for us all, in that we are delivered from having to find out what it would be like, from 1 to 600, playing God.

Fun For The Republicans

Republicans can be pardoned, these days, if they just sit back and contemplate the pretty kettle of fish the Democrats are busy stirring for themselves.

What an unscrupulous, unprincipled bunch those Democrats are!

First, to take the latest episode in their plotting against themselves, the anti-McGovern candidate make resounding declarations to the effect that the Senator from South Dakota must broaden his views if he is going to be the standard bearer for something more than a party funeral.

Then, while Senator McGovern and his more pliable brainstrainers and assistant managers are doing their unenvied best to appease the anti-McGovern forces, these same anti-McGovern forces go into the Credentials Committee and steal half of California's delegation away from McGovern.

Even worse, while the anti-McGovern people are accomplishing this vile deed they have the narcissistic audacity to use, in behalf of their theft, the argument that, even though they are ignoring California law to split the delegation McGovern won, they are following the higher law of party reform, and wider representation to minority factions, which the McGovern people have themselves been championing within the party.

After this happens, to make everything still more enjoyable for the Republican warmongers, Senator McGovern has a few moments in which he loses his cool and publicly displays emotion and anger, which may have been what ruined Senator Muskie, the previous front-runner for the 1972 Democratic nomination.

Maybe the time Senator McGovern should really have lost his temper should have been a couple of days before, when somebody told him it was safe to pronounce a first ballot nomination all locked up.

The next day, anyway, the McGovern forces get revenge, inside the same Credentials Committee, by tossing Chicago's Mayor Daley out on his ear.

It looks as if somebody up there must love the Republicans. But, however enjoyable the spectacle may be, we wouldn't recommend that it be extended into euphoria. Those Democrats are always putting on displays like this, but the only safe time to trust them is after the votes have been counted, and then only if they have lost.

Judicial Vs. Legislative Powers

The annual assembly of Superior Court judges, the governing body for the administration of the State's Superior Court system, has revived the idea of an office of criminal justice by naming a committee to draw up plans for creating one.

It would be difficult to find anyone in disagreement with proposals to modernize Connecticut's legal machinery for bringing criminals to justice. One of the most urgent needs is to join under a single unifying and coordinating roof the various agencies and offices which are now scattered in various state's agencies. Especially if the State is to wage effective war against syndicate crime, the effort must be to bring together into an agency akin to the Justice Department in Washington as well as that of several thousand long-haired youths and blacks in Chicago.

The need of a justice department, is unquestionable; the problem lies in the manner by which such a department comes into being.

The State's judges first proposed to create an office of criminal justice last December, agreeing on the move the very day the General Assembly's Judiciary Committee was conducting a public hearing on the proposed creation of a justice department as a new agency of the executive branch.

The apparent conflict both developments were giving rise to never materialized, since the General Assembly failed to enact legislation creating a new agency during its session this year.

True, the assembly of judges has historically appointed State's attorneys, public defenders and other court personnel, and while this admittedly has tended to reduce the influence of politics in such appointments, there is still the very real and mostly unanswered question concerning the separation of powers. Haven't the judges, in naming prosecuting attorneys and public defenders, actually been invading the domain of the executive branch all these years? And in proposing to create an office of criminal justice within the State's Judiciary, aren't they usurping legislative powers?

A network of State's prosecutors, coordinated and working under the aegis of a single agency, is a critical need in the modern criminal justice system. It is too critical a need to be subjected to controversy-ridden power plays between branches of government. We would hope the judges examine their intended move closely and with every consideration for constitutional ramifications. The move would hope the Legislature examines its role in the affair, and especially with respect to its obligations to give greater attention to our children and to less to the political infighting that has held its own justice department proposal on the shelf. — NEW HAVEN REGISTER.

McGovern's South: All Uphill

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A vivid example of Sen. George McGovern's difficult task in playing both old and new politics at the same time was the decision by his local leaders to stage his Atlanta speech on the steps of the capitol, the traditional site of civil rights protests.

Totally unannounced in that decision was McGovern's Washington headquarters which left the details of McGovern's first Southern invasion up to his local aides.

More to the point, the decision to give McGovern's anti-establishment Presidential campaign the highest symbolic value as a protest movement by placing him in Capitol Hill Square was made without any effort to consult Gov. Jimmy Carter.

When one of the very few McGovern aides on Carter's personal staff discovered that the Atlanta rally Tuesday evening would be staged at the capitol, he went into orbit. It was the province of the state's most urgent needs is to join under a single unifying and coordinating roof the various agencies and offices which are now scattered in various state's agencies. Especially if the State is to wage effective war against syndicate crime, the effort must be to bring together into an agency akin to the Justice Department in Washington as well as that of several thousand long-haired youths and blacks in Chicago.

For example, in frequent telephone talks with Washington about the disputes over credentials and platform, McGovern strongly encouraged all moves to compromise with Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley on the Illinois delegate fight and to give Gov. George Wallace of Alabama a toe in the platform door.

He also categorically repudiated any part in the effort by some of his anti-establishment backers to dump the Democratic party chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

Moreover, refusing to trim his sails on school busing or defense cuts, he stood in the broiling sun at Little Rock and attacked "hidebound politicians he, in Washington, had been busy trying to accomplish the things they had elected him to do.

That was merely one level of the touching campaign year sentimentalism which, in the absence of controversy, took over the Republican State Convention. Like the Democrats, the Republicans had nothing to do. Unlike the Democrats, they refrained from stirring up trouble for themselves, and, instead, ran through it quick, warm, and in party subsides.

It was such a warning, disarming euphoria that it produced some of the strangest closings of ranks in political history.

The statement quoted above, for instance, about enabling Governor Meekill to be in a position to do what we elected him to do.

That was not a single member of the Texas Democratic establishment—now in utter disarray—showed up during his overnight stay in San Antonio, one top McGovern aide smiled knowingly. "We never would have got this far if we'd had the pros," he said, "and we don't need them now."

That purist view is sharply challenged by other McGovern aides. New Help Offered in Case Mt. Purchase

The Nature Conservancy is offering a $500,000 loan to help the town of Mt. Purchase, N.Y., buy the land from the state one of the current asking price only until Dec. 31 of this year.

Under the federal open space program, the federal government would provide half of the cost of the land, the state one quarter, and the town the remaining quarter. The state has agreed to provide approval for the loan to take for nearly $300,000 toward the Case Mt. purchase. This covers about half of the current $585,000 asking price.

Highways Chief Resigns Post
WASHINGTON (AP)—A highway chief has resigned his post as Federal Highway Administrator. Head of the Federal Highway Administration since 1969, Turner has been in charge of the $5-billion, a-year federal highway program.

The 63-year-old Turner served as chief of staff for the free society. Gray said he was appointed as president Dwight Eisenhower in the early 1960s and headed the service. Turner's resignation is now about 70 per cent complete.

A Thought for Today
Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Matthew 4:1-11

We are confronted with this paradox: The way to enjoy something is first to declare our independence of it. Possession comes only to those who are associated with disciplined, purposeful living. When cluttered with things, we become a drag on the soul. Satisfaction comes by cultivating a detachment which says, "I appreciate all this, but I could be quite happy without it."

Intern

Robert A. Lanier has arrived in Manchester to begin his internship year as student pastor at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. He will be assisting at the 8 and 9 a.m. services tomorrow morning.

Mr. Lanier is a native of Mt. Pleasant, Mo., and attended Mercer University in Macon, Ga., where he received his BA degree in 1969. For the past three years he has been studying at the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago in Chicago, Ill. He received his clinical training at St. Luke's Hospital Center in New York City in the summer of 1971.

While at Emmanuel, Lanier will assist the copastors, Rev. C. Henry Anderson and Rev. Ronald J. Fournier, with preaching, visiting, Christian Education activities and the youth program. He will live at 44 Church St.

Stolen Wagon Soon Replaced

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The new station wagon of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Britts of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was stolen after they arrived here for the convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States.

At the people prepared to return home, they heard the rattle of the door spring drawing away from the hinges. The wipers, Mr. and Mrs. Britts. The price: a new station wagon.

Yankee Doodles
It's the little things that are bothering Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees as he looks at the team's performance in the American League East Division title. "We got some breaks when we went on that winning streak and then everything seemed to turn against us the next day," Houk said. "We still have a good shot at this thing (American League East Division title)." Tony Ferrera is a successful New York real estate man who delights in pitching batting practice when the Yankees are home. The prematurely gray-haired right-hander is a friend of Whitey Ford. "He can get the ball over the plate and like a short hit," Houk said. "I have seen as he watched the slender Yankee player serve up pitches to the Yankee players in the dugout. He is the best-looking young ball player in the American League is Joe Rudi of the Oakland A's. I thought when he was in the pen, he had a lot of potential and he's been even better this year." Houk said of the young Oakland outfielder who is leading the league in hitting.

Balls 'n Strikes
Like several other clubs, including Boston, the Yankees are experimenting with the new kni-type uniform. "All the players like 'em," Houk said. "The only problem has been getting the manufacturer to come up with strips that are traditional with the Yankees." . . . Roy Blomberg, a butcher on defense at first base, still feels that he can pitch. He is lefthanded pitching if he plays every day. Houk feels differently and says to look at the outfield. "I don't see him in the right. The left-handed swinging Blomberg just hasn't been able to solve the problem of the kni-type uniform. The Yankees have a 23rd team batting average which is 19 points higher than Baltimore, which has New York with a .217 team mark. . . . The Yankees have been averaging 11.69 paid for their 23 dates at home in 23 starts and last year they were 10.11. Houk has decided in the Yankees have been winning a dozen by the same margin. . . . Quick look at the team's record. The Orioles in home runs this season? Don Baylor is the answer with seven. Fred with four. Terry Crowley and Merv Rettenmund.

Yogi Master Juggler

MONTREAL (AP)—Friday night was different from the other nights of the Montreal Expos' first season. The New York Mets manager did it again Friday night, making the right changes at the right times with a crippled lineup as New York dropped the Montreal Expos 7-3 in National League action at Jarry Park. "You look at our lineup," Tom Agee, cisco Jones, Willie May, John Miller and Rusty Staub are all hurting," he said after the win. The juggler gets the work done, and as a result the Mets are tied for first place with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the last nine East Division games.

Hinson Holds Edge in Cleveland Open

CLEVELAND, Ohio M.C., who edged in front of the birds put and another of 25 (AP)—Rookie Bob Lewis, who finished with a 23-34-45, six under par. That was one stroke ahead of third place in the $150,000 Cleveland Open golf tournament. Lewis, who posted an 83-85-86-87, 33 par, finished the 54-round, figures this might be 36-71 par at Tanglewood Country. "I know I can win," he said. "I know I can win." Tigeritis Fails to Stop Baltimore, Dobsonitis Proves to Be Too Much

NEW YORK (AP)—scored a 3-2 victory Friday night to silence the Tigers' lead in the American League East. "All I said," Billy Martin was explaining, "was he's gonna get Tigeritis against me the next time he's in Detroit." Instead, the "Tigeritis" was a severe case of Dobsonitis. Because of the Detroit manager's comment, Pat Dobson Milwaukee's game at Boston said, doing a little explaining of his own. "I wanted to win that game more than any game I ever pitched."

Short Stuff
Baltimore pitching staff has chalked up 13 shutouts and 27 complete games this season, both high water marks in the American League. . . . Brooks Robinson is the only Baltimore player in every game played to date. . . . Despite being the defending A.L. champion, Baltimore is averaging just over 11,000 paid admissions per game at Memorial Stadium. . . . When the New York Yankees signed Scott McGreer, an 18-year-old Southpaw, who was the club's first selection in the recent free agent draft, it completed the list of the top 10 players who were under contract. McGreer had an 16-1 record in high school this spring. . . . The softball game resided in forfeit last Wednesday night. The Yankees were unable to field full squads in the Charter Oak and Candlelight League. Word is still being awaited about the outcome of the bidding for a recent brawl at Charter Oak Park in the City City League. . . . When Orlando Cepeda was pitched over by the Yankees, he was pitched over by the Yankees. . . . The Yankees have a 23rd team batting average which is 19 points higher than Baltimore, which has New York with a .217 team mark.

End of the Line
Jack Crockett carded a low gross score of 60 this week at Yankee home with first prize in the New England Amateur Golf Tournament at Cunniff, Mass. . . . Willie Whitman, beloved Yale trainer and coach, died in his sleep at his home in New Haven. . . . Tim Kearns, former East Catholic High center who played with the Yankees, died in a playground instructor in East Hartford. . . . Despite the fact that attendance at Yankee games has been dropping, the Yankees are still making a profit. . . . The Yankees have a 23rd team batting average which is 19 points higher than Baltimore, which has New York with a .217 team mark.

Perry's Wet Pitch Can't Stop Sox

NEW YORK (AP)—Spitter? What spitter? Gaylord Perry doesn't throw a spitter. That's what Roy White told himself when he came to bat with two out in the ninth inning Friday night and that's what he told everyone after his single to center field gave the New York Yankees a 1-0 American League victory over the Cleveland Indians. White after his second straight game-winning hit was whether he hit a spitter. It was a logical question, since Perry's National League years were strewn with controversy about just what, if anything, he applied to the baseball besides his fingers. "It was my sweetest hit of the year," said White, who was robbed by second baseman Jack Brohamer in the same situation in the first inning.

Sox Rain out Another Blow At the Gate

BOSTON (AP)—The Milwaukee Brewers and the Boston Red Sox hoped for a break from the weather-related delay to get their rain-delayed weekend series started at Fenway Park. Managers Al Donnell of the Brewers and Eddie Kasko of the Red Sox decided to pitch with the original starting pitcher. The Red Sox waited until 2 1/2 hours before game time before they started the game. The Red Sox waited until 2 1/2 hours before game time before they started the game. Beaches On Sound Murky

By MARC CHARNEY NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Health officials have closed municipal beaches to swimming in more than a half-dozen southwestern Connecticut towns and cities in the wake of last week's record rainfall.

Express Bus Departs July 10

In an effort to reduce rush-hour traffic on I-86, at left, between Hartford and communities in the Manchester area, the Connecticut Department of Transportation will begin express bus service from Burr Corners Shopping Center on Tolland Turnpike in Manchester on July 10.

Allies Stall Near Target

(Continued from Page One) They said a 40-truck convoy carrying food and ammunition drove the 25 miles from Pleiku to Kontum on Friday without incident. The route had been closed by Communist forces and all efforts by South Vietnamese troops to dislodge them had failed.

Pay Hike Guide May Be Changed

(Continued from Page One) U.S.A., located in Gardena, Calif., of fixing prices on the sale of Datsun cars in the United States. The civil antitrust suit, filed in Federal District Court in San Francisco, charges that Nissan conspired with its U.S. dealers to fix prices at which Datsun motor vehicles are sold to customers.

Wasp Loses Sting

(Continued from Page One) steam turbine engines could develop 150,000 horsepower when she was home to 5,000 sailors. There she will be berthed at a Navy pier until a scrap yard buys it.

Violence in Ulster Rattles Cease-Fire

BELFAST (AP) — Violence burst across Northern Ireland today after several days of peace. One man was killed and others wounded in shooting incidents as militant Protestants stole buses and cars to barricade streets in a challenge to Roman Catholics and British authorities alike.

Daley Ousted By Democrats

(Continued from Page One) Wallace plans to leave Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md., on Friday. He'll stop in Montgomery, Ala., then fly on to Miami Beach the next day for the convention. He has been hospitalized since mid-May when he was shot at a political rally.

Darling Look Short-Set

Two lovely dresses for the young lady's wardrobe... one so tailored; the other trimmed with frilly ruffles! No. 8188 with PHOTOGUIDE is in Sizes 2 to 10 years. Size 4... 1 1/2 yards 45-inch for bodice; sleeveless, 1 1/4 yards plus 4 1/2 yards ruffling.

Jazz Festival Hits New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The Newport Jazz Festival, which outgrew its Rhode Island birthplace after 17 summers, moves here today to open a nine-day outpouring of sound expected to draw more than 100,000 jazz fans.

One-House Assembly

(Continued from Page One) Babbidge plans to research the state's tax problems. He's already convinced there is a need for a massive overhaul of the tax structure, including introduction of a personal income tax and a reshaping of the property tax system.

WTIC-TV (3) Reaches Accord With Minorities

The Hartford Communications Committee, a coalition of black, Spanish-speaking and women's groups, has asked the Federal Communications Commission to withdraw its petition to deny the renewal of WTIC-TV's license.

HUGE CLOCK MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)

One of the landmarks of Milwaukee is a huge, four-faced clock which can be seen by sailors on Lake Michigan as far away as 44 miles. It is atop a tower which stands 280 feet above street level, and which is part of an electrical manufacturing company complex.

 - ABC tapped Cooper to create a new children's show about a year ago.
 - "We had been doing 'Discovery' and it was a good show but the kids grew up with it and we found we were reaching too old an audience," Cooper said. "We wanted a new concept for the ones between 6 and 12."
 - Cooper and his staff came up with a form involving everything from quick cuts from one subject to another in "Laugh-In" style, to animation and even music.

Children's Show Producer Impatient About Criticism

NEW YORK (AP) — Lester Cooper is the executive producer, creator and writer of ABC's award-winning Sunday morning children's show, "Make A Wish." He is proud of the product but is getting impatient about the blanket criticism of children's programs.

From One Who Knows

James Farentino, who will star in the "Cool Million" segment of the "NBC Wednesday Mystery" trilogy starting in the fall, credits Bette Davis with helping his acting technique when both were in "Night of the Iguana" on Broadway.

Bottle Baby

During a recent "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" on NBC, Carson said of his sidekick: "Ed McMahon was born during the height of prohibition. One of his first memories was of Elliot Ness raiding his playpen."

Percentage Player

Comedian Marty Feldman, star of ABC's "The Marty Feldman Comedy Machine," believes in percentages.

"I'll be quite happy if the show is 65 per cent as good as I've hoped, reasonably happy if it's 50 per cent, and depressed if it's less than 40 per cent because I will know then that I've come nowhere near what I set out to do," he says.
