THE WAY I HEARD IT by John Gruber

Lots of people go to Washington in the summer. I suppose because they can't go anywhere else. It's a hot, muggy town but nowadays most everything is air conditioned so it is no longer as bad as it used to be. All of which brings me around to the twelve-day musical festival they will be having there starting Aug. 30.

The Kennedy Center will be the place and it will be open again. It has been closed because of general vandalism and souvenir swiping. And it will be completed, which is more than it was when I was down there in the year ago. At that time the Eisenhower Theater was nowhere near completed and many of the checkered areas that the public didn't see were either incomplete or in a state of chaos.

It's a beautiful place and well worth seeing; moreover, operational qualities of the various halls are really good. The opera house is rather too, too red, but in the dark this is not so overwhelming. Among the organizations that will participate in the 12 planned events are the National Symphony Orchestra, the Home Fido Opera, the Virginia Center Players, the Contemporary Chamber Ensemble, the New York Chamber Soloists, the Fine Arts Quartet, the Concord String Quartet, the Washington Choral Society, the Oratorio Society of Washington, and the Midtown Choir.

These for the event is "The Old and the New" and music from the baroque era will be contrasted by music of the 20th century. There is nothing in between. So the programs will not be hackneyed, in any event. Many of them are free, and quite a few cost only $2. With concerts scheduled in 12 days you can see that there are several events every day. In fact, there are simultaneous concerts on occasion. There are also concerts of electronic music, for those who go to this avant garde sort of thing.

Sheinwold on Bridge

BEST PLAYER MISSES FINE BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD "Who is the best card player in this tournament?" a lady asked me a few weeks ago during the Bridge Olympics at the Americana Hotel in Miami Beach. I hesitated for a few moments and then suggested that she watch Jean Besse of the Swiss team. She was back a few minutes later, after watching today's hand. West dealer. Neither side vulnerable. Opening—lead king of spades. I killed this hand myself during the match between Italy and Australia. (The same hands were played in all 19 matches of any session.) It didn't seem unusual.

are under the high-speed, water-cooled touch of the modern drill.

But one thing we do accept and believe, immediately.

This is the admission of the two researchers who say that it was by "dumb luck" that they happened to discover their magical compound.

Of course, they had to put themselves, by their selection of a profession, by surrounding themselves with certain materials, by dedicating themselves to the laboratory, in a position where some piece of "dumb luck" could happen to them.

But we will wager that more better ways of doing things have been discovered, down through the history of mankind, through accident than through plan. But although it may often be accident, it is not likely to be just "dumb luck." Somebody has to be smart enough not to throw the new compound down the drain.

I wish this fellow Bobby Fischer would go out to Iowa and play with my father. For my dad could beat the pants off him.

Now, it will be painful for him to see this, but my dad is not a good chess player—though I guess he has been playing off and on for most of his 70 years.

He probably thinks a Nimro Indian is a baseball player in the Three-I League. For instance, he probably thinks a Sicilian Defense is an armor-plated Cadillac.

And he probably thinks the Riga Variation is one of those weird movies that lately have come to Des Moines.

But still I'll bet he could beat this Fischer.

Bobby needn't spot my dad any pieces. The only stipulation I lay down is that the game be played under the usual conditions that prevail when you play chess at my dad's house.

The temperamental Fischer simply would go crazy.

For when you play chess with my father, there are certain distractions. If it's winter time, and you're playing in front of the big picture window in the dining room that looks out the back, you have to stop whenever my dad sees The Squirrel. Because when he sees The Squirrel, he says, "The Squirrel doesn't want to eat the birds or the bird feed, you see."

That he's afraid to get rid of Sammy forever. For one thing, I think they like each other, deep down. For another, he's afraid of violence. Also, he doesn't know how to shoot a gun—or drive a car or operate a posthole digger. So he's afraid to let me take over the game. And he's afraid to let me take over the game.

But winter games are easy compared to summer games at my dad's house. Summer games are just a lot of things that take up a man's time when he's outdoors. A lot of things that take up a man's time when he's outdoors.

For instance, you have to be ready to make a brilliant move, for instance, when my mother calls over the fence to see if the tomatoes are over on the other side of the yard, mess in around in the flowers, and she'll take the tomatoes to the kitchen.

Or you'll be working out a masterful play when my mother calls over the fence to see if the tomatoes are over on the other side of the yard, mess in around in the flowers, and she'll take the tomatoes to the kitchen.

Inside Report After Eagleton What?

WASHINGTON — At a closed-door session of his shocked high command here Thursday, Sen. George McGovern's battle plan was explained as "watchful waiting" for Sen. Thomas Eagleton to come to grips with himself and his future—and then voluntarily quit the ticket.

That message was from McGovern himself, still at his "vacation" retreat in South Dakota, where he has been wrestling with the worst political crisis afflicting any President-elect since Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But to the dismay of the McGovernite high command, Eagleton did not immediately get the message.

McGovern's orders to his staff were explicit: say and do nothing indicating repudiation of the embattled Vice Presidential nominee, but let the pressure build to the point where Eagleton will drop the Republican ticket.

Anticipating that conclusion, McGovern aides started their anxious search for a substitute. Reflecting repeated post-convention setbacks for McGovern in correcting traditional support from big labor, big city pros and the ethnic vote, the name of campaign chairman Lawrence P. O'Brien was receiving surprising support.

There was little doubt Thursday's appointment which Eagleton's "appropriate" conclusion must be a decision that he had become an unbearable burden upon a Presidential candidate starting so far behind as McGovern. While McGovern publicly took full responsibility for putting Eagleton on the ticket and would not be a party to disaster, Eagleton was marching to a different drummer than his party. Our talks with leading Democratic politicians in major states pointed to irrevocable pressure for dumping Tom Eagleton.

Thus McGovern, who had such difficulty making his first public appearance in a running-mate, now confronts an even harder second round. Although no consensus is in sight, surprising support developed behind old pro McGovern, ousted as Democratic national chairman by McGovern and then retrieved as direct-mail money agent for one million Democratic voters, due for mailing Wednesday.

Whether Eagleton's name first on his Vice Presidential list at Miami Beach and vainly argued for O'Brien in the staff meeting.

But O'Brien's relationship with McGovern is closer today. Such McGovern supporters as Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut regard him as a serious contender. And major prospects are Govs. Patrick J. Leahy of Wisconsin and John J. Gilligan of Ohio and possibly Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

The new choice would be made with greater caution and precision than the old, whose cost was unbearably high: The possible blighting of a most promising political career and a start for the McGovern campaign worse than any Republican dared hope.

In addition to Miss White's recommendation, the Board's decision was based on more than perhaps Ms. Obermer's realism. Certainly, this would be a competitive position opening. Other candidates must have equally impressive backgrounds and an impressive record. The members were aware of all the applicant's qualifications. Their choices must have been weighed by many solid factors.

"I had to believe that it was Ms. Obermer's decision, obviously not qualified to judge as Ms. Obermer contends; this was clear," she says. "I was with the Board of Seven, with reasonable intelligence and objectivity" voted 7-0 in rejection of any candidate better than more or less clear.

Manchester WATTS will have a business meeting tomorrow at the Italian-American Club. Weighing in will be from 7 to 8 p.m. Members with names beginning with A to C are reminded to bring fruit for a fruit basket.

Miss Marian Joesman, children's librarian, will be the storyteller at tomorrow morning's story hour from 10:30 to 11:15 in the Mary Cheney Library Junior Room. At the Wednesday afternoon story hour, from 2:30 to 3:15, the storyteller will be Mrs. Judith LeVoigne, Singer Learning Center director. The summer book club will end Aug. 8, and the party will be held Aug. 15 at 2:30 p.m.

Rittenband's Statement to the Editor. In the July 27 edition of The Herald an article appeared concerning several statements made by Mr. Rittenband in reference to his challenge of Representative Cotter. In the article he implied that if Mr. Cotter were re-elected that Pratt and Whitney would suffer a 50 per cent shut down. Actually Mr. Rittenband has made this inference from George McGovern's policies as analyzed by Melvin Laird. This, I think, is a rather long, dubious, and indirect method of reasoning. Mr. Rittenband has failed to mention the issue of the space shuttle that was taken away from Pratt and Whitney and awarded to the California based corporation. Pratt and Whitney had already invested $3 million dollars in this project before they lost the contract. Contracts now totaling over 3 billion dollars, have been awarded to this California corporation. At the time the initial 500 million dollar dollar contract was awarded to the other company Rep. Cotter tried to challenge this but was unsuccessful. When things are examined from this point of view it seems to be at least debatable if the Nixon administration has been a help to Pratt and Whitney.

Toward the end of the article Mr. Rittenband challenged the merger Mr. Cotter approved when he was insurance commissioner. This has already been challenged in the courts and has been found to be valid. Maybe someone should have asked Mr. Rittenband for his approval when the merger went through in 1970.

In the final part of the article Mr. Rittenband has two separate sections, a hymnasium and an academic wing built on the high school. They informed the architects that they were looking for something under $5 million. In June, however, when the plans for the additions were first unveiled, building cost estimates were running over $5 million. The firm was asked to come back with totals some where "in the ballpark" being requested by the board.

On the other hand, Wapping Plan proponents argue that the better method would be to close the school, which will take care of all elementary students and utilize it as an expense to taxpayers and nothing more, he said.

A vote was finally taken by the board which still managed to get Arnold in the position of decision maker. Three members, Mrs. Cle Decker, Vernon Petersen and the board's newest member—Richard Kupp—voted against a public hearing on the Wapping Plan. In May, the girls' basketball team and David Cohen were in favor. Mrs. Margaret Rosen and Robert DeLoach were absent which therefore left Arnold in the position of tie-breaker, and he voted for a hearing.

In checking with the three opposing members of the public hearing committee, the three had similar reasons for voting as they did. They all felt the Wapping Plan was a waste of money.

Vernon Council To Seek Federal Funds To Renovate Memorial Building

The 52-year-old Memorial Building located on Park Pl. was $88,106, it was reported at a meeting. The final pay- ing. Other minor changes have been made in the proposed renovation of the building which was chosen as the new Memorial Building in September 1964. In November 1962, the then first major project for the building was approved for its renovation. City Council appropriated $2,872 ing.

The Town Council, at a special meeting Friday night, gave its unanimous support to Mayor Frank McCoy to apply for funding which he learned was available through the Economic Development Act (EDA). The mayor expects to go to Washington, D. C. this week to follow up on the application. He also plans to go, with a consultant, to the regional office of the EDA, before the deadline for filing applications which is Thursday.

The proposed renovations would cost an estimated $200,000. If the funding is approved the federal government will pay 80 per cent of the costs and the town 20 per cent. Plans for the proposed renovations were explained to the council by engineer John Pozzato and architect Dan Wright. They call for enlargement of the offices located on the first floor of the building, by taking space from the large central hall. The vault in the town clerk's office would also be enlarged.

A very wide stairway now leads to the upper floors from the large central hall. The plans also call for making the stairway smaller and installing an elevator. The first floor presently houses the town clerk's office, the assessor, tax collector and the office of the judge of probate.

The second floor is occupied by the GAR Hall which contains many mementos of the Civil War. The other portion of the second floor is occupied by the Circuit Court rooms. The third floor, used years ago for recreational purposes such as roller skating, has not been used for some time as it was deemed unsafe by the building inspector.

The renovation plans call for turning this floor into office space which would be easily accessible by elevator. Previously, those using the third floor had to climb 50 steps to reach it.

When the council approved the budget for the fiscal year it appropriated $60,000 for alterations of the building plus $10,000 for installation of a new boiler.

The EDA sets forth stringent regulations for projects to be funded. One of these requirements is that the project must produce a number of jobs, the majority of which are to be unskilled or semi-skilled, Mayor McCoy said.

The first town meeting was held in the Memorial Building, dedicated to the veterans of the Civil War, on Sept. 6, 1860. The

Funds Pledged For Center At Dinner

The first of a series of four fund raising dinners, for support of the Rockham Valley Community Services Center, brought the center $7,000 closer to its $50,000 goal, according to James Troy, chairman of the Finance Advisory Committee.

A total of $10,000 has been pledged from other sources. The proposal goal of $50,000 is to match another $50,000 to be received from private foundations and public agencies.

The dinner last week was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Götter in Talcottville. Three others are being planned, with the final one to be in October. Those attending the dinners are shown a video-tape demonstrating the goal of the services center which is primarily to offer family counseling, youth counseling, child guidance services, alcohol and drug counseling, vocational guidance, assistance to senior citizens, marriage counseling, psychological testing and counseling and psychiatric services.

The center is also receiving the support of several organizations, including Big Brothers of Hartford, Inc., Child and Family Services, Inc., the Community Child Guidance Clinic, Manchester, Consultation Center for Marriage and Family, Drug Information Assistance Line (DIAL) of Vernon, Mansfield Training School, Manchester Memorial Hospital, the Mayor's Committee to Combat Drug Abuse, Rockville General Hospital and the Rockville Public Health Nursing Association.

All of these groups have offered volunteer help on a part-time basis.

Three U.S. Planes Down in Indochina

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. B-52 bomber crashed Sunday night in a thunderstorm on Saturday night in the Hanoi region. It crashed on the Tonkin Gulf and off the coast of North Vietnam after running out of fuel, the U.S. Command announced today.

The U.S. Embassy in Bangkok said five of the six B-52 crewmen were killed. It said the sixth man was picked up by a rescue helicopter today.

The command in Saigon said the four Phantom crewmen were also rescued.

The cause of the B-52 crash was not known. The plane was on its way to a bombing attack in Vietnam, and the 30 tons of bombs aboard exploded in the crash, creating a huge fireball, said a spokesman here.

The B-52 was on a mission to drop bombs on the Hanoi region, an embassy spokesman said. There were no known civilian casualties or damage to property.

The eight-jet Stratofortress was stationed at the base at Utopia, 90 miles south of Bangkok. It crashed in a remote area about 30 miles northeast of the Thai capital near the Mekong River.

It was the second B-52 crash in Thailand since the big bombers were first stationed there in 1967.

Seven other B-52s have been at since the big bombers first entered the Vietnam war more than seven years ago, but none of the other B-52s were shot down or crashed since the first B-52 crash.

The command in Saigon said the B-52 was on a mission to drop bombs on the Hanoi region, an embassy spokesman said. There were no known civilian casualties or damage to property.

Obituary

Youth Victim Of Drowning

HEBRON—The body of Gary L. Yockachonis, 20, of Rt. 66, Hebron was found floating on Amston Lake Sunday afternoon by two men who were canoeing. State Police had been notified of a possible drowning shortly after midnight Friday.

Lake residents reported to police that they could hear yells for help coming from the lake, and about 7:30 Saturday morning Stephen Adamaki of Deepwood Rd., Lake Amston, reported finding an overturned canoe on the lake. This was about the same time police said Yockachonis was a possible victim.

State police divers searched the lake all day Saturday according to police. Yockachonis did not know how to swim. Chances Ernest Felicht of Lebanon and Ernest Dolone of Windover found the body floating in the water.

Yockachonis was pronounced dead at the Hackett Hospital in Norwich, by Dr. Peter Schwarz, medical examiner.

He was born July 8, 1952 in Hartford, son of Mrs. Rose Motz Yockachonis of Hebron and the late Joseph Yockachonis.

British Dockers Rally for Demands

LONDON (AP)—Striking longshoremen streamed from British Isles ports into London today to campaign for their job security demands in a labor security drive to cause food shortages within this week.

Jack Jones, secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, British's biggest labor union representing the longshoremen, and Lord Alington, chairman of the Port of London Authority, met to find a new formula acceptable to the longshoremen.

The longshoremen last week rejected a proposal by Alington and Jones that would have paid about $9,800 to old and unfit workers laid off. The proposal would also have given preference to longshoremen in new continuing contracts.

Crowds of dockers assembled in London to lobby at the talks already started between their leaders and port officials. If these talks failed to bring an early settlement, the government was expected to take emergency measures to move essential supplies.

The strike has stranded 170 ships in the port of London. In Liverpool, freighters lay at anchor waiting to be unloaded. Flying squad of striking longshoremen lightened their piloted blockade of mail unregistered ships still operating.

Strikes protesting the industrial relations act broke out in other areas. About 2,000 workers at the upper Clyde shipyards in Glasgow stopped work for the day.

Striking workers threatened to deprive newspapers of photographs. The IRA in Londonderry made an announcement that it was taking a strike against the British army's progress into the guerrilla-clad town of Derry.

Eagleton Makes It Official

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., today formally resigned as the Democratic party's nominee for vice president, saying his candidacy has apparently caused deep divisions in an already divided party.

In a letter to the party chairman, Mrs. Jesse Westwood, Eagleton said the decision had not been easy for him and that he had been urged by thousands of people had urged him to stay on the ticket.

While telegrams in his office jangled with even more expressions of support, Eagleton signed a letter of resignation. During the morning, columnist Jack Anderson said he had no claim to have located evidence that Sen. Eagleton has a record of arrests for drunken and reckless driving.

Anderson said his retraction was "unqualified" and "in total." He announced the retraction at an informal conference outside Eagleton's office after talking for about half an hour in private with Missouri senator, who resigned formally today as the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Eagleton, who originally labeled Anderson's charge a "distinguished journalist." Eagleton said he was satisfied with Anderson's retraction. "The book is closed as far as I'm concerned," he said.

Eagleton said he would not be running for re-election in 1974. He said he would be "too busy" with his political future. He said he would be "too busy" with his political future.

Eight in Forefront For Eagleton's Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—The search for a new Democratic vice presidential candidate centers on eight men following Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's precedent-setting withdrawal from the ticket.

Unable to convince presidential candidate George McGovern that the issue of Eagleton's history as a psychiatric patient would go away, McGovern looked for a replacement last Monday night and cleared the way for McGovern to look for a new running-mate.
