11 Killed On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pregnant Bridgeport woman died early today after a two-car accident on Interstate 91 in Meriden Sunday, according to state police.

The death was the 11th accidental death reported in Connecticut over the weekend, seven of them in traffic mishaps.

Police said today Catherine Foulds, 25, was in a car driven by her husband, Lloyd Foulds, 26, when the car hit another vehicle which had slowed down for an accident ahead.

The Foulds car hit the other vehicle, spun around and ran into a guardrail, police said.

They reported no apparent serious injuries but said that Mrs. Foulds was taken to Meriden-Wallingford Hospital after complaining of feeling ill. The pregnant woman died about 1 a.m. today, police said.

At least eight persons were killed in traffic accidents in Connecticut over the weekend, a Ridgefield man was killed in Golden Bridge, N.Y., and a Danbury baby choked to death on a plastic toy.

Thomas Guilmet, 14, of Plainfield died when he fell from a motorcycle he was driving in a hay field off Shephard Hill Road Sunday, police reported.

Violence In Ireland On Increase

BELFAST (AP)—Two British soldiers and a youth were killed early Monday as the violence in Northern Ireland increased again, bringing the three-year death toll close to the 600 mark.

The Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army were reported to have regrouped following the British Army's sweep into their barricaded strongholds in Belfast and Londonderry last week.

Troops manning an army post in Belfast came under fire from an anti-tank bazooka and immediately raised nearby homes in the Andersonstown area but failed to locate the weapon.

Two soldiers were killed and two others were injured when their armored jeep was hurled into a ditch by a mine on a country road in County Fermanagh, near the border.

In Belfast, the body of a youth of about 17 was found on a street, apparently the victim of an assassination squad. He was not immediately identified, but both Catholic and Protestant execution squads have been active in Belfast in recent days.

The three deaths raised the confirmed fatality toll in Ulster since August 1969 to 492, with 283 of them recorded this year.

The IRA's militant Provisional wing warned that its members are ready to resume operations after a lull. Guerrillas who took refuge across the border in the Irish Republic last week were reported filtering back into the Londonderry area.

Catholic resentment triggered a major riot in Belfast when a mob stormed an army post in a sports ground, tore down an iron fence with their bars, set an armored car ablaze and stoned troops.

After a peaceful demonstration to protest the army's takeover of Casement Sports Park, about 1,000 men and youths attacked the army post, cheered on by hundreds of bystanders.

The pro-Catholic Social Democratic and Labor parties canceled talks today with William Whitelaw, the British administrator of Northern Ireland. The party leaders apparently feared loss of Catholic support if they met with Whitelaw while anti-British feeling is running high. It was speculated that the British administrator might release 330 IRA suspects still interned to appease the Catholics.

Shriver Popular In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many of the top Democrats in Connecticut say they are enthusiastic about the selection of R. Sargent Shriver Jr. as George McGovern's running mate, and a member of the Democratic National Committee says one of his assets is that "anyone associated with the Kennedys has a special aura."

Shriver, the former Peace Corps director and ambassador to France, is the brother-in-law of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

State Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey, one of the early supporters of the late President John F. Kennedy, said he is "very happy" with the selection of Shriver.

"He brings a great deal to the ticket. People who are friendly with the Kennedys will like him," Bailey said.

The state chairman, who is also a member of the national committee that must formally approve of the choice of Shriver, noted that he had campaigned around the country for John Kennedy in 1960 and for Democratic candidates in 1970.

"I'm sure he has great standing with regular Democratic organizations throughout the country," Bailey said.

McGovern announced Saturday his choice of Shriver to replace Sen. Thomas Eagleton who had withdrawn from the ticket.

Mrs. Beatrice Rosenthal, a member of the national committee, said she didn't expect Shriver to get the nod, "but I'm

Poor Little Fat Kids

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Children in poor white families are likely to be fatter than rich youths, four researchers say.

A study of 3,300 youngsters in Philadelphia, New York and Wilmington, Del., also showed a "surprising incidence of overweightness in young children in general," one of the researchers, Dr. Ross D. Filion, said Sunday.

Published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the study shows that "marked differences" in weight appear by age 6 in upper and lower class children.

The study limited its sample to white children, 2,300 in the upper socio-economic group and 850 classified as poor. The researchers, all from the University of Pennsylvania, explained that differences in anthropometric measurements among various races caused the restriction.

Of the children studied, 29 per cent of the girls from the lower socioeconomic levels were obese at age 6 compared to three per cent of the upper level girls.

The differences continued to age 18, but fell to a minimum at age 12, when 13 per cent

Sewage Plant Ordered Shut

8th District sewage treatment plant opened in 1938.

8th District Told To Use Town Facility

By GLENN GAMBER (Herald Reporter)

The Eighth Utilities District has been ordered by the state to close its sewage treatment plant by Sept. 30.

Copies of the July 24 order, signed by Douglas M. Costle, deputy commissioner of environmental protection, became available today.

District officials, a number of them on vacation, could not be reached today for comment.

The order further directs the district to "provide treatment immediately for the sludge being generated by the existing primary treatment facility in conformance with the requirements of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP)."

According to Joseph Ward of DEP's water compliance section, this part of the order was aimed at stopping the district until the plant closes, from discharging settled solids into the town northeast sewer interceptor every morning.

Ward said this part of the order has already been complied with. "The district has started handling its sludge properly," he said.

Ward said that solids are allowed to settle out of effluent at the district plant in settling tanks. The district has been pumping these solids out of the tanks every morning into the northeast sewer interceptor which feeds into the new town treatment plant off Olcott St., Ward said.

Already In Partial Compliance

The result was "shock loading" at the town plant, Ward said, which is difficult for that plant to handle. When properly treated, settled solids at the district plant are removed from the tanks and disposed of, Ward said.

The town plant is capable of handling the district's effluent if it is fed directly to the plant over the course of a day, Ward said. Since the district is already being billed for treatment at the town facility, it was decided to order the district plant closed, he said.

"The district will have to pay to install connecting sewer lines which will bypass the district treatment plant, Ward said.

Concern over the district plant resulted from state inspections of the town plant, according to Ward.

Town officials had also recently expressed some concern over the district's procedure of discharging solids into the northeast interceptor. This resulted in a charge July 17 by Eighth District President William Hankinson that the town was harassing the

Democratic Leaders Open Quest for Running Mate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic National Committee today opens an extraordinary three-day meeting to nominate a running-mate for presidential candidate George McGovern.

But first the party must decide a number of seating disputes including one involving a slate headed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Chicago Alderman William S. Singer, who led a successful fight to unseat the Daley delegation at the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach last month, filed a challenge early today against the mayor's Illinois slate of committee members.

Some forces in the party were talking of a compromise that would avoid antagonizing Daley again. Daley, who has not been an avid McGovern backer, has welcomed McGovern's recommendation of Sargent Shriver as the vice-presidential nominee.

Challenges have been filed by dissidents in Wisconsin, New Jersey, Ohio and Virginia, and New York Democrats have been given until midnight tonight to say whether they plan to lodge a challenge with the nine-member Credentials Committee.

The full national committee meets at 2 p.m. Tuesday to nominate a "replacement for Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton. He quit the ticket July 31 because of the public discussion arising out of his disclosure that he had undergone shock treatment for mental depression in the Miami Beach convention where Singer's 59-member group replaced Mayor Daley's delegation.

Under the new rules by which the Democratic National Committee was expanded from 110 to 303 members, members are chosen by the state's delegation to the previous national convention or, in some states, by joint action of the convention delegates and the state executive committee.

The complication in Illinois is that, although the Singer slate was seated at Miami Beach, a Cook County judge last week ousted Singer's challenge group from the Illinois convention which was choosing DNC members and put Daley's forces back into the delegation.

The six additional DNC members were seated at the convention

Eight Perish in Blaze

BOSTON (AP)—Five children and three women died in an early morning fire today which reportedly exploded through a 2½-story woodframe tenement in Boston's Roxbury section.

A mother, Maria Gomes, 24, and five of her children ranging in age from one to eight were among the victims of the fire which also has left the head of the Gomes household and two young children hospitalized.

Police said Ormand Gomes told them he was asleep on the second floor of the building in the heavily populated section of the city when he heard an explosion, stepped out into the hall and ran into a "sheet of flames."

Gomes told police he returned to the bedroom, became semi-conscious and was unable to remember anything else.

Found dead in their bed on the second floor of the building were Gomes' wife and his five children, Michael, 1; Gina, 3; James, 4; Anthony, 5, and Zire, 8.

Above them in the building's attic police and firemen found the bodies of two women, Alberta Carvalho, 60, and Catherine Ahern, 70.

Gomes, the only person to escape the upper two floors of the building, was reported suffering from shock at Boston City Hospital.

In critical condition at the same hospital were two children identified by police as Balbina Andrade, 5, and Candida Andrade, 3. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andrade, were reported not injured. The Andrades lived on the first floor of the building.

A neighbor, Antanasio Rosa, who lived across the street, told reporters the fire spread so quickly that rescue was impossible.

Another neighbor, Audrey Waldren, said she "saw a little girl lying on the ground...they were trying mouth-to-mouth re-

Corporate Reversal

Gotham Exodus

By JAMES CARRIER WESTPORT, Conn. (AP)—The stream of corporate headquarters moving from New York City to Connecticut has dried up, but Connecticut officials say they expect to hit water again.

The flow stopped, they say, for a variety of reasons: The economy, hostile reactions from some towns and worry that it might not be good business to move away from "where the action is."

In 1970-1971, dozens of major companies announced their withdrawal to the green hills of Connecticut. This year, many of those announcements are bearing fruit.

The Stauffer Chemical Co. moved its world headquarters with 400 people to a site beside an old barn in Westport.

Uniroyal's $10 million research center opened in Oxford in June.

Chesebrough-Pond is scheduled to relocate from Manhattan to its $3 million Greenwich headquarters in September with 300 employees.

Construction has begun on world headquarters of General Telephone and Electronics Corp. in Stamford, and General Electric Co. in Fairfield. GE hopes to relocate in 1974.

Continental Oil Co. and Electrolux moved from New York to Stamford this spring.

The town of Wilton has approved a zoning change for the Richardson-Merrell headquarters near Route 7.

Still up in the air are zoning changes for Xerox in Greenwich and RCA in New Canaan.

Xerox has not filed a formal zoning proposal for its 100-acre tract in northwest Greenwich, but it has issued expensive full-color brochures outlining plans in the face of some public opposition.

RCA, owner of 299 acres in New Canaan, filed a plan with the town's zoning board, but withdrew it about the time Suburban Action Institute charged the town with discriminatory zoning laws and RCA with employment discrimination.

A world headquarters of General Telephone and Electronics would apply again to change the residential zoning.

Local resistance is one reason no new companies are making the switch, says William Swan, executive director of the Association for a Better New York, a group established to persuade New York businesses to stay there.

"The suburbs are inheriting the very problems that the cities had," he said.

New Connecticut companies, like Stauffer, say they are trying to be "good neighbors" and have gone to such lengths as putting parking garages underground.

"We feel that all the benefits that would occur, have occurred," says Ed Block, a Stauffer Public Relations man.

He cites an executive's wife who said "you should have done this 10 years ago. My husband has breakfast with the family now and is home for dinner."

Stauffer has not had any trouble getting clerical help or the supportive services like printing that corporate headquarters require, Block says.

Will the exodus continue? "I would say it will continue, but not as steady as before,"

Democrats Begin to Feel Better

So far as the Democrats are concerned, their worst pains seem to be over, and there is no way for them to be over, considering how low they have felt in the past two weeks, but up. It does seem possible, now, that the Eagleton affair can recede into the distance.

As if in an effort to make up for lost ground, Nominee McGovern converted his Saturday night television "news conference" into a full-scale political speech.

Under the care and arrangement of those professional production experts every top nominee now employs as a matter of routine, the Senator acquitted himself strongly and effectively.

Whether or not the beginning of new cheer the Democrats feel today is going to be communicated into a swing on the part of the electorate toward a more favorable attitude toward their party and nominee, it is too early to say.

But this seems to be a turbulent time in which volatile political emotions and instincts may be following their own secret and sometimes little understood laws instead of the opinions of the experts or even the findings of the poll takers.

For the Republicans, then, the warnings are up again. The approaching campaign commands nothing but their best, both as to the energy with which they present their case and preserve their advantage, and as to the quality of their approach to the people. Nothing short of the best could possibly be considered safe.

Once Again, Two Negative Votes

Any time there are two die-hard votes cast negatively in the midst of a great Senate race for admission to the traditionally important measure, the Tonkin Gulf alarm bell rings and suggests that we remember how the two lonely, defunct votes that were cast against it later came to be recognized as the only votes which had been on the right side.

There were, in the Senate on Thursday, 88 votes in favor of that section of the SALT accords by which the United States and Russia pledge themselves to a limitation of their defensive missiles.

This is a treaty negotiated by the administration of President Nixon. A Republican conservative and hinesian traditionalist, although written in advance, was actually stage-managed as an emergency spur of the moment policy.

Along with the 88 votes in favor of this treaty, there were two votes in the negative, with the Conservative Party Senator from New York, James L. Buckley, playing the non-conformist role comparable to that played by Wayne Morse, the liberal maverick, in August of 1964.

So much for the arguing that we all may, in the years ahead, come to that moment when we join in conceding that Senator Buckley and his other negative companion, Senator James B. Allen, Alabama Democrat, were the really smart ones in the Senate Thursday.

In this present moment, examining Senator Buckley's stated position on the treaty, we find it difficult to join him. He voted in the negative, he said, because he had "strong misgivings as to both the prudence and the ultimate morality of denying for ourselves for all time—or denying the Russians, for that matter—the right to protect our civilian populations from nuclear devastation."

Speaking for one four-billionth part of the civilian population, we would say that our own sense of security in terms of actual blood and breath as well as in terms of a way of life is one which grows, rather than increases, in proportion to the amount of missile strength—offensive or defensive—which is deployed in its behalf.

It would be our belief that there is only one way to protect civilian population from nuclear devastation, and that this would be by continuing international agreement to restrict and diminish, until it could nearly be deemed altogether, the manufacture and deployment of nuclear missiles. The pitifully modest little agreement the Senate ratified Thursday barely begins the movement toward such a goal, but it is at least in what seems to us the right direction.

The Eagleton Episode

Senator McGovern has in effect admitted that he came up with an astonishing blunder in the most important single decision he has faced in public life. Having set things right by securing his running-mate's withdrawal, he now asks to be President of the United States.

Coming as it does atop the air of overboldness that has attended the McGovern candidacy, the blunder raises questions not only about the man, but more profoundly about the impulses that have made him a paramount figure on the American scene. The McGovern supporters got the kind of candidate they asked for, all heart and good intentions. By now they are learning that in the real world much more is demanded. Perhaps they are even starting to suspect that in picking a President there may be other qualifications that are even more important.

All of us make mistakes, of course, and Senator McGovern can offer excuses that would be perfectly adequate in most contexts. He was the victim of a mammoth lapse by Senator Eagleton, who assured a McGovern aide he had no skeletons in his closet though he had been hospitalized and received shock treatment for nervous illness. Senator McGovern was also the victim of the haste and pressure that typically surround vice-presidential decisions.

But not all of us ask to be President, and these excuses are precisely the type a President cannot give. He must bear the ultimate responsibility for his decisions and his staff work; for the details of the case—with Senator McGovern talking to Senator Eagleton for 45 minutes and aides asking about skeletons only after the decision was made—do not exactly leave the presidential candidate fully exonerated. And whatever the deficiencies of the way Vice Presidents are chosen, it has served other candidates since the advent of the convention system in 1828 without any one else having to withdraw his choice.

A breakdown in staff work, even on so important a decision, would not seem too significant if it were a mere, or less isolated incident; after all, President Nixon had his Crawford case. But Mr. McGovern has become someone of an expert in withdrawals. Prior to withdrawing his running-mate, he withdrew his income maintenance plan, which was told to be reworked, and his tax reform proposals, which have given way to Wilbur Mills' now-you-see-it-now-you-don't approach.

The typical pattern seems to be one of the Senator discovering the world is a more complex place than he thought it was. On previous matters we have been told that the "direction" is right and the trouble is in the "details."

Of course the income-maintenance plan can be made to add a new vice presidential nominee can be found, and so on. But what plausible reason is there to believe the directions themselves have been treated with any greater realism? If we abjectly withdraw from Vietnam, for example, how realistic is it to expect to maintain a credible commitment to Israel, even by assuring the "Israelis we are 1,000 per cent behind them?"

This is a question that should be put not only to the Senator, but to his erstwhile supporters. Many former supporters, at least to judge by the columnists in the press who have been attacking him by the Eagleton episode, and particularly by Mr. McGovern's inductive, mess-in-the-making style, are a real sense, these supporters have created a candidate in their own image.

If enough people in the nation want a candidate who is above all "candid" or "honest" or "trustworthy" as these people define those terms, the political system will obligingly supply a candidate who purports to fulfill their desires. But if the desires are defined in a way that can be met only by monkish isolation from the complexities of the real world, there is going to be trouble when their candidate encounters those complexities.

For in fact, public issues are seldom black and white, seldom matters of "honesty" or even "candor." Those who suggest issues can be resolved in those terms simply do not understand reality. This is not always bad; there is a place in the world for Saints who push aside reality and set unblemished moral examples. But a President needs above all the ability to deal with complexity and ambiguity. Those who demand that a President be a Saint as well as simply asking too much. — WALL STREET JOURNAL

Inside Report

The Wooing of Hubert

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON—Sen. George McGovern, before turning to Ben Edmund S. Muskie as his next choice, conducted a prolonged, intensive backstage campaign to recruit Sen. Hubert Humphrey for Vice-President—a fact immensely revealing about the present state of the McGovern campaign.

Reports from his lieutenants at Capitol Hill when he offered a place on the ticket to Humphrey are simply not true. In fact, even before the dumping of Sen. Thomas Eagleton was completed, McGovern was plotting to replace him with Humphrey.

That Humphrey flatly refused McGovern's offer is less important than the seriousness of the offer. By wooing Humphrey, McGovern was casting aside rosate theories of his advisers about a new Democratic constituency and acknowledging, belatedly, the shattered Rooseveltian coalition. McGovern also was saying his ideological differences with Humphrey, so paramount to McGovernite ideologues, are less important than winning an election.

Through the week, McGovern was placing telephone calls to Humphrey's labor leaders and money men (including Minnneapolis millionaire Ewayne Andrew) asking their help in trying to persuade Humphrey to run. They were refused.

But there were others who tried to convince Humphrey—including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who saw Humphrey per-

"Why Does He Hide?"

The person who writes under the name of "Burning of the Books" takes such pains to attack those that are fighting the adult book store but has not the courage to sign his own name. If he is so sure he is right and believes there is nothing to be ashamed of in dealing with pornography, then why does he hide behind an alias? Those that are fighting to remove the store have certainly put their names, and in the case of Rev. Swank, even his job on the line but "Burning" prefers to throw stones from ambush. He stoops to making fun of the attackers which is the usual method of those who do not have reason or logic on their side.

Just to make sure, however, one of Humphrey's closest friends and most faithful supporters—Los Angeles fundraiser Eugene Wyman—telephoned him with a plea to turn down McGovern. Wyman urged Humphrey to recall indignities of the past, such as top McGovern opinion Frank Manbeck's telling Life magazine that "Hubert Humphrey is the used car you wouldn't buy from Richard Nixon."

When Humphrey said all day Wednesday and again at Thursday's "salute," McGovern turned to Muskie as offering—in diminished quantities, to be sure—Humphrey's best-broadening qualities. McGovern's lieutenants then tried, in what is becoming characteristic fashion, to blur the footprints of history by claiming McGovern never really made a firm offer to Humphrey.

Such obfuscation cannot erase the meaning of McGovern's moves last week. We are rejecting staff advice that public discontent has no revolutionary politics that the Democratic party no longer need rely on Jewish voting blocs. Stunned by the Eagleton fiasco, McGovern had returned to the old politics.

Disputes Like Denials

To the Editor, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird repeatedly denies that U.S. planes are bombing dikes in North Vietnam. Yet he will admit to the bombing of anti-aircraft guns and military convoys positioned on roads built along the dikes. And he expects the adult book store but has not the courage to sign his own name.

New England Tourism Soggy, Lean

BOSTON (AP)—Chilly, wet weather has dampened profits as well as beach blankets for New England's tourist industry so far this summer. And unless August is hot, losses could be sharp. Even though good weather has brought booming tourist business during the past couple of weeks, the steady rain of May, June and early July made tourists—and their money—disappear.

Many state commerce officials say it will take outstanding August weather for hotels, restaurants and others who depend on summer travelers to recoup their losses. Perhaps hardest hit is Vermont where the tourist trade is off an estimated 35 to 40 per cent. State park attendance there dropped 35 to 40 per cent during May and June from what it was last year, according to Roland A. Lovelace, state secretary of development and community affairs.

Wet weather was the reason for the dollar loss, which ran into millions in the Bay State, said W. H. Brown from whom the report was received. "Business was bad during May, June and July because of the abnormally heavy rainfall," he said. "With the coming of August we are receiving reports from beach-oriented resort area innkeepers that they are turning away tourists."

Even the American Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Conn., said the weather had cut into attendance. Restaurant and hotel owners in Maine reported that business was off more than 15 per cent in June. Despite the season's bad start, however, a state economist predicted that vacation travel will increase 9.2 to 9.5 per cent over last year. But last year, according to economist Edgar Miller, tourist business increased 15 per cent.

One area that's been hurt is Old Orchard beach, an ocean resort that attracts many French Canadians. "We've begun to get business a little late this year," said a spokesman for the town's Chamber of Commerce. "But it looks like the season will be good from here on in."

But Brennan, director of the New Hampshire Division of Regional and Economic Development, said, "We're not kidding ourselves. We can expect that the traveling public in Little Rhody will add up to a $80 million business for us in 1972, which makes this a record-breaking year."

Wet weather was the reason for the dollar loss, which ran into millions in the Bay State, said W. H. Brown from whom the report was received. "Business was bad during May, June and July because of the abnormally heavy rainfall," he said. "With the coming of August we are receiving reports from beach-oriented resort area innkeepers that they are turning away tourists."

Lt. Timothy Davis of the Dept. of Motor Vehicles checks trailer hitch on a mobile home as part of a new safety program sponsored by the Department. The program includes trailer weighing and a vehicle inspection to check for faulty equipment.

MVD Makes Free Check Of Trailers

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The Department of Motor Vehicles says it will begin a free weighing service for recreational vehicles to check on overloaded campers. "One of the dangers is the tendency to load heavy camper modules on small pickup trucks. We also have determined that other types of recreational vehicles—motor homes, camp trailers, boat trailers—are routinely overloaded," Motor Vehicles Commissioner Robert C. Leuba said Saturday. Leuba said the free weighing service will begin Tuesday at the department's office in Wethersfield, and noted that campers found to be overloaded won't be ticketed. "We want campers to know whether their vehicles have an overload problem both for their own safety and so that they can take corrective action before proposed safety regulations go into effect," the commission said. Under proposed regulations scheduled to become effective next January, drivers would be prohibited from operating motor homes or truck mounted camper modules which "exceed by two per cent or more the gross vehicle weight established for the motor vehicle," a department spokesman said.

Parties Repeat Nominating Job

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Connecticut Democrats and Republicans held repeats of their congressional nominating conventions over the weekend, but wound up choosing the same candidates. The second conventions were necessitated by a federal court ruling that struck down Connecticut's old congressional district lines because of population imbalance between districts. Several towns were shifted into new districts in the new redistricting plan but the changes didn't alter the wishes of the earlier conventions. In the 1st District, Republicans tapped Richard Rittenband of South Windsor to challenge incumbent Democrat William R. Cotter of Hartford. In the 2nd District, Democrats selected Roger Bluman to oppose Republican incumbent Robert Steele. State Rep. Henry Poyntell of Milford was nominated by 3rd District Republicans to challenge incumbent Democrat Robert N. Glamo of North Haven. In the 4th District, incumbent Republican Stewart McKinney of Fairfield was tapped to run again, and his Democratic challenger will be James McLoughlin of Bridgeport. U.S. Rep. John S. Moazzan of Waterbury was renominated by 5th District Democrats. His challenger will be State Rep. Ronald Sarasin of Beacon Falls. Sixth District Democrats renominated U.S. Rep. Ella Grasso of Windsor Locks while Republicans nominated John F. Walsh of New Britain.

Japanese To Visit Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said today he will visit Communist China in September for talks on normalizing Tokyo-Peking relations. Japanese press reports have said Tanaka will go to Peking between Sept. 20 and 25 if agreement is reached within his Liberal-Democratic party. Speaking with newsmen, Tanaka said the time is ripe for his visit to China, but added his tour schedule will be subject to the convenience of the Chinese. On relations with Nationalist China, Tanaka said no nations have continued to maintain diplomatic relations with Taipei after establishing relations with Peking and Japan will be no exception. But, Tanaka added, Japan should handle realistically its trade and business with Taipei. The prime minister said he plans to send a special envoy to Taipei to explain Japan's stand.

Korean 'Honeymoon' Now Feared Ended

SEOUL (AP) — A brief political honeymoon between the North and South Korea appears to have ended in a deadlock over arrangements for negotiations to unite families separated by the division of the peninsula. It was just July 4 that the two governments surprised their own people as well as the outside world by announcing they even agreed to abandon abusive words while pursuing their diplomatic goals, and each stopped calling the other a puppet regime. Two weeks later, after nearly a year of quibbling over technical details, the two Korean Red Cross organizations agreed to produce an agreement, and the get down to business on Aug. 5 full-dress meeting has been and meet alternately in Seoul postponed indefinitely.

Mekong Areas In Peril

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops and tanks threatened three towns in eastern Cambodia today, raising fears of new threats across the border into the Mekong Delta and the provinces north and west of Saigon. Messages from Kompong Trabek, on the Salween-Pinung Penh highway 85 miles west of the South Vietnamese capital, indicated the Cambodians were still fighting there on the west bank of the Prek Trabe River but had abandoned that part of the city lying on the east bank. Sources in Phnom Penh said North Vietnamese tanks were sighted east of Kompong Trabe advancing toward the beleaguered provincial capital of Svay Rieng, 20 miles to the east and five miles from the Vietnamese border. Another column of North Vietnamese infantrymen and tanks was reported heading toward Prey Veng, a provincial capital 25 miles northwest of Kompong Trabe. U.S. bombers were supporting the Cambodians, the U.S. Command claimed they knocked out 14 tanks Sunday and Monday. The Cambodian command said its air and ground forces destroyed another seven. Meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers made heavy strikes in the southern part of North Vietnam, aimed primarily at fuel supplies for the Quang Tri and Phu Bai battlefronts. Thirty of the Stratofortresses carried out the raids Sunday, saturating a wide area with more than 700 tons of bombs. Dong Ho, 60 miles north of Quang Tri City, information officers across the state say the bombers were fired from 55-gallon drums of fuel widely scattered in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam. Another 20 B52s struck at North Vietnamese rocket concentrations near the west-ern flank of Hue. These attacks were concentrated around Fire Base Baotang and an outpost called "Chickadee," a U.S. Air Force base in the southern panhandle of Hue, where there have been increasing North Vietnamese shelling and infantry assaults. North Vietnamese gunners continued to pour hundreds of mortar shells into the area.

State Grants to Towns Denied Illegally: Court

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — year, and an additional $15 per pupil in property-tax relief held some $22 million in state grants based on the ADM for grants to municipalities during the last fiscal year in violation of another tax relief law enforcement meeting. The Connecticut Supreme Court ruled Monday.

Ready for Nixon Battle Shriver Nod Expected

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Democrats are expected to nominate Sargent Shriver as their new vice-presidential candidate tonight, amid growing predictions that he can help unseat the party's incumbent, Sen. George McGovern as his new running mate. The DNC's Credentials Committee ruled on four of the challenges Monday and will hear the rest of the New York delegation this morning. The Credentials Committee ruled against Ohio labor leader Frank King in the most sharply contested challenge and recommended that a black state senator, Morris Jackson, be seated instead of King's choice, Rep.

Heroin Prices Also Zoom

By THOMAS KENT Associated Press Writer If you're looking for heroin in Connecticut these days, it's going to cost you a little more. Local and federal narcotics officers across the state say the price of heroin has increased sharply and what's more, the "high" addicts so desperately need is costing more now than ever before. "There's been a heroin panic in Hartford and other Connecticut towns for about six weeks now," says F. Mac Gruden, chief of the Hartford office of the U.S. Office of Drug Enforcement. "The price of heroin has increased sharply and at the same time the quality has deteriorated to a point where it's almost unusable." North Vietnamese gunners continued to pour hundreds of mortar shells into the area.

No-Fault Law Studied

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — slimmers on Uniform State Laws would be even more comprehensive than the Massachusetts and Florida laws, the toughest in the nation. The idea is to make sure people are compensated," said Lindsey Cowen, dean of the University of Georgia Law School and chairman of the committee that drafted the model law. The annual conference has brought together commissioners from every state to complete the drafting of bills for adoption by their legislatures. The auto proposal was fought over for four days before it was passed.

Unrest in Ulster Leaves 500 Dead Over Three Years

BELFAST (AP) — The death toll in three years of religious warfare in Northern Ireland reached 500 Monday night, according to revised police figures, as Roman Catholic politicians opened secret peace talks with British officials. Police headquarters said 40-year-old lance corporal in the Ulster Defense Regiment, William Whitelaw, and leaders of the Social Democratic and Labor Party, the opposition group that represents the province's Roman Catholic minority. The talks were to continue today, that nobody would say what was discussed or what progress, if any, was made. Both sides are operating under delicate conditions. Whitelaw's death, a total of 495 was being used, but all such figures are considered inexact because the guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army usually carry off their dead and bury them secretly. Sales Tax Cut Killed for Year

HARTFORD (AP) — A state he taxed on 100 per cent of dividends on capital gains and Supreme Court ruling against their capital gains. "The capital gains and dividends on 100 per cent of capital gains. It's impossible to cut the sales tax this year, Gov. Thomas J. Meskall said Monday. He said the state has no "no capital gain without the 80 per cent exclusion allowed by the state legislature. The tax was originated by the state legislature in 1968. The state Supreme Court ruled Monday the state could not tax the full amount of $15 million in already collected tax revenues had been "kicked around," but could be as high as $20 million," he said. "This is far less than the $30 million surplus which Meskall has previously announced for the last fiscal year, the governor noted that the Supreme Court's ruling affects capital gains tax revenues for the present year, as well as requiring refunds or tax credits to the state since the total impact of the current budget is $30 million less than the state's decision. Finance Commissioner Adolf Carlson said after the news conference that the anticipated $30 million surplus must be assumed to be completely wiped out by the court's decision. Meskall said he had not decided whether to appeal the state Supreme Court's decision. He indicated he would not appeal the state Supreme Court's decision.
