

Negotiated Settlement, Rogers Aim

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers pledged the administration today to strive for a negotiated Vietnam settlement instead of the "immediate and complete withdrawal" promised by the Democrats.

Pay Board Clings To Wage Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pay Board appears to be leaning toward retaining its 5.5-percent wage standard for the time being, even though a review of the ceiling is under way.

Nixon administration officials privately doubt there'll be any change in the figure up or down anytime soon. For the record, they say the decision is up to the board.

The board meets jointly with the Price Commission today in a session that probably will trigger debate on changing the standard. Spokesmen emphasize a decision is not likely soon.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson last week said the board has taken a look at the 5.5-percent standard and feels it can "meet the President's objective without changing that."

The arguments for keeping the standard at the present level center around the difficulties of next year's big round of labor negotiations.

"All the heavy hitters are up" is the way one member described the situation. Contracts in a number of the large industries, with the exception of steel, come up for bargaining in 1973.

Meets Nixon's Objectives

Organized labor, which now is felt by some insiders to be tacitly accepting the wage-price-control system, might actively fight the program if the standard were lowered.

The board, as it has done from (See Page Twenty)

Addressing the opening hearing of the Platform Committee of the Republican National Convention, Rogers lauded the peace moves made by President Nixon and said:

"As our military involvement in Vietnam ends we will continue to provide economic support and military supplies to South Vietnam to prevent a military takeover by North Vietnam."

"Thus the political future of Vietnam will be left to the Vietnamese themselves to be determined by the political process."

Bulletin

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today that if the United States ignored a North Vietnamese peace signal four years ago "it was President Johnson who missed the boat, not President Nixon."

By implication Rogers rejected the proposal of the Democratic presidential nominee, Sen. George McGovern, to withdraw two American divisions from Europe. He said the United States will seek early negotiations with the European allies for "mutual and balanced force reductions on both sides."

Then, with obvious reference to McGovern's plan, he told the platform drafters: "To avoid compromising our chances for success in such negotiations, we will resist premature pressures for withdrawal of American troops alone."

As leadoff witness for the administration at the four-day hearings of the 106-member GOP platform body, Rogers took pains to challenge the Democratic platform's charge that, whereas the (See Page Twenty)

Republican Army killed two British soldiers today a few hours after the army reported a "dramatic reduction" in terrorist violence since the troops seized control of the IRA's strongholds two weeks ago.

The two soldiers were on foot patrol in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district of Belfast when a trip wire set off the mines. Their deaths brought the total of confirmed deaths to 508 in three years of religious strife in Northern Ireland; 68 of the dead this year have been British soldiers.

In its report earlier the army said "explosions were down to half and shooting incidents less than a quarter" in the two weeks since the troops opened up the Catholic districts in Belfast and Londonderry where the guerrillas had been in full control.

The troops have also uncovered scores of rifles and pistols. (See Page Twenty)

POW Release Hinted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark says North Vietnamese leaders have assured him that American prisoners of war will be released "when we stop this senseless bombing and get on with the business of peace."

Clark did not elaborate fully but did say he would speak in more detail at a news conference today.

Speaking briefly to newsmen Sunday night after his arrival here from Honolulu following a two-week tour of North Vietnam, Clark said the assurances were "both written and verbal" and that among those who gave him the pledges was the North Vietnamese foreign minister with whom he had a nearly three-hour conference.

"There is no question that the POWs will be released when we stop this senseless bombing and get on with the business of peace," said Clark, who served in the administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The North Vietnamese have demanded a halt to bombing, withdrawal of American troops and other conditions as a prelude to ending the war and returning prisoners of war.

Clark said the POWs he visited during his tour was one of two reasons it was hard for him to return to the United States.

"It's good to be home, as it usually is," he said, "but it's harder than usual for two reasons:

"As an American it doesn't make me feel good to see the inhumane waste in Vietnam. He said he had seen churches, dikes, schools, and villages destroyed by U.S. bombing.

U.S. officials have denied that American warplanes have deliberately bombed North Vietnamese dikes or any other non-military target.

And, he added, it was difficult to leave the prisoners there — strong, good men who want to come home. He said the treatment of POWs he saw was "very humane and very good under the circumstances."

Shriver Opens Campaign Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Insisting anew that President Nixon lost a "very golden opportunity" to end the war in 1969, Sargent Shriver opens his vice-presidential bid today with a continent-spanning trip to meet voters and "point a new direction for America."

Shriver, who has been surrounded by a political storm ever since he declared that Nixon "blew" a chance to negotiate an end to the war by ignoring North Vietnamese peace signals, hit the issue harder Sunday.

Interviewed by newsmen on NBC's "Meet the Press," Shriver said the Nixon administration has given President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam virtual veto power over U.S. foreign policy "Gen. Thieu," Shriver said, "should not be the sole life-and-death criterion for thousands of Americans."

And he accused Secretary of State William P. Rogers of politicizing the State Department by telling a news conference that Shriver's account of the negotiating situation in 1969 was "political fantasy."

Ending a long series of issue briefings with the staff of his running mate, Sen. George McGovern, Shriver spent Sunday night with his wife and children in Hyannis Port, Mass.

Then he was to fly off for a four-day campaign swing taking him to at least six cities in the border and Western states.

First stop today was Wheeling, W.Va., then on to a week's tour that will take him to Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Denver and Houston.

"I want to have a chance to talk to the American people," Shriver told newsmen. "I want an opportunity to talk and listen — to point a new direction for America."

Shriver's assertion that Nixon "blew" a chance for peace three years ago was repeated by McGovern Sunday. Appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," the Democratic presidential nominee said:

"A national-security memorandum prepared at the beginning of this administration and published in the Congressional Record some time ago shows very clearly that the administration was aware that North Vietnam had withdrawn a substantial number of its divisions from South Vietnam in 1968, that they were in fact giving us a sign that they were willing to ease off militarily and they were expecting us to respond then with generous offers of negotiation."

"Instead of that," McGovern said, "the bombing was accelerated, the military attack was increased, and we blew the opportunity for a negotiated settlement several years ago."

McGovern accused Nixon of "taking the low road by remote control" through his appointees' denunciations of former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who is under criticism for going on Radio Hanoi to condemn U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Bombers Hit Red Forces In DMZ Area

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers today attacked units of a fresh North Vietnamese division apparently trying to cross the demilitarized zone to reinforce the Quang Tri Front. Far to the south, Saigon forces fanned out in an effort to ward off an assault on South Vietnam's southwestern borders.

Heavy fighting was reported in both areas, and the Saigon command claimed 113 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed. It announced 28 South Vietnamese troops killed and 71 wounded.

About 30 B52 bombers hit inside the DMZ and just above it, releasing 750 tons of explosives on North Vietnamese troops and supply stockpiles, U.S. sources said.

The sources said units of the North Vietnamese 312th Division, which were pulled out of Laos several months ago, had reached the frontier region from Vinh.

The Saigon command reported 61 North Vietnamese were killed Sunday in a series of fights from the edges of Quang Tri City to the western and southern flanks of Hue. South Vietnamese losses were put at 11 men killed and 43 wounded.

On the southern front, about 20 U.S. B52s struck at enemy troop concentrations between Saigon and the Cambodian border and also to the north and northwest of the South Vietnamese capital.

In Cambodia, 50 miles west of Saigon, South Vietnamese forces clashed in a day-long battle with the enemy near Kompong Rau. A communique said 52 of the enemy were killed and two prisoners captured, while South Vietnamese losses were 14 men killed and 28 wounded.

The fight occurred in the Parrot's Beak region of Cambodia which juts into South Vietnam. It has been a major staging area for the Communist command.

Viet Cong terrorists also kept up their attacks to undermine the Saigon government's hold on the provinces.

Three Vietnamese were killed and 20 were wounded in a grenade attack on a militia office in Qui Nhon, on the central coast. Between 2,000 and 10,000 tons of ammunition were destroyed in a sapper attack on the ammunition depot at Long Binh, 12 miles northeast of Saigon, the South Vietnamese said.

A series of explosions also ripped through two ammunition dumps outside Pleiku in the central highlands, but the cause was not immediately known, the Saigon Command said.

New U.N. Chief Warns Big Powers Against Running World Alone

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — In his first broad policy statement since becoming secretary-general of the United Nations, Kurt Waldheim warns the big powers against trying to run the world without the world organization and asserts his own responsibility to speak out on life-or-death issues.

The 53-year-old Austrian, in office since Jan. 1, took his stand in the introduction to his first annual report on the work of the organization, issued by U.N. headquarters Sunday while Waldheim was visiting China.

It amounted to the secretary-general's position toward President Nixon's talks in Peking and Moscow and to Nixon's recent blast at him for saying he had unofficial word from Hanoi that U.S. bombing had damaged North Vietnamese dikes and threatened "enormous human suffering."

"No matter what criticisms or setbacks may arise," Waldheim declared, "the unwritten moral responsibility which every secretary-general bears does not allow him to turn a blind eye when innocent civilian lives are placed in jeopardy on a large scale."

He said "new and positive relationship" of the big powers is encouraging because it affords the possibility that at last the U.N. Security Council will work as it was supposed to work — with "the unanimity of the permanent members in matters affecting peace and security."

But he cautioned: "The idea of maintaining peace and security in the world through a concert of great powers... would seem to belong to the 19th rather than to the 20th Century, where the process of technological advance and democratization is producing a new form of world society."

"The interests, the wisdom and the importance of the vast majority of medium and smaller powers cannot, at this point in history, be ignored in any durable system of world order."

"The United Nations provides, or should provide, the means by which all nations, great and small, participate on a basis of sovereign equality in the political process of establishing and maintaining international peace and security."

Waldheim deplored tendencies to downgrade the United Nations and "to deride the organization as such for its failure immediately to succeed where everyone else has failed."

"The United Nations," he reminded, "is not an independent sovereign organization but an association of sovereign governments, and... its failures are also their failures."

World War II came about because governments neglected the League of Nations and reverted to previous international practices, Waldheim said, and the danger of a third world war "will always exist" unless they now make "international political institutions work as they were intended to work."

He applauded the entry of the People's Republic of China into the United Nations but complained of "a certain unwillingness to involve the United Nations in the reconciliation of some conflicts," even with the Security Council now "more representative of the power realities in the world."

In that connection, he repeated his offer of last April to help settle the war in Vietnam and his statement of deep concern the month after that the United Nations could do nothing to end that war.

Waldheim welcomed the Soviet-American strategic arms limitation agreements, but he complained that the arms race has not been perceptibly slowed down and that the world is spending $200 billion a year on weapons now, against $187 billion a year in the 1960s.

One Nonsense Succeeds Another

For more than two decades, the United Nations, thanks to the mistaken leadership of the United States, persisted in conducting its affairs as if mainland China did not exist.

And the United States, although it had put on a show of still opposing that decision, reversed its own policy by sending its President to Peking in the supreme gesture of recognition and admission that Communist China did exist and was, in fact, China.

The arrival of so much sanity in one year was perhaps too much for this schizophrenic world of ours, and so we seem to have, in compensation, a return to folly as grotesque and silly, in its way, as the long pretense that China itself did not exist.

Now it is Formosa, or Taiwan, the island ruled by the Nationalist Chinese, which is being treated as if it did not exist.

Formosa, it is relatively a small island piece of territory, and contains a relatively few millions of people. But it is there, and it is governed by a government which is not the government of mainland China.

Yet, because the China we finally admitted to the United Nations has been insisting on having its bullying way on the issue, and because nobody dares or cares to make a real issue in opposition, the United Nations has gone through one step after another designed to reduce Formosa to the state of a non-nation, a non-land, a nonpopulation. The idea, we suppose, is that if everybody treats Formosa long enough as if it didn't exist, the stage will some day be set for Peking to take it over.

But the main issue should be that one piece of nonsense does not authorize another, or one piece of injustice justify another, and it is just as silly to try to ignore the existence of 14,000,000 Formosans as it was to try to ignore 800,000,000 mainland Chinese.

There are now a long list of United Nations members whose population or territory is far below that of Formosa. What ought to occur is that the United Nations, instead of ignoring Formosa, should take steps to conduct a plebiscite among the people of the island to determine whether they want to join mainland China, continue to be under the government of the Nationalist Chinese, or want to have a native government of their own, and then readmit Formosa to the world, on the basis of its own choice.

Not That Much Of An Issue

The Democrats, if they hope to make anything of their present national campaign, should begin by making one thing perfectly clear to themselves.

They are not going to elect a President and control a Congress because they caught some characters of possibly questionable reputation trying to install or remove some electronic surveillance equipment in the offices of the Democratic National Committee.

The episode makes a fascinating word game if it will be interesting to see how and if the Nixon administration can wiggle out of the appearance, which suggest that at least somebody thought to be doing the bugging in its behalf. It is quite possible that one of the ramifications in the affair may be the disclosure of some rather loose handling of campaign money.

But take this episode and blow it up to its most witty imaginative proportions. In which you might have the President himself stooping to give the plot his personal blessing, and it still wouldn't swing an election. It still wouldn't amount to more than the slightest distraction from whatever it is the voters are really going to be thinking about when they decide this election.

Why do we say this? Somehow, we are afraid, the public has the idea that one really adds politics to love and war as a business in which anything is fair enough.

Nobody, not even the Democrats themselves, as their own inability to keep a straight face while they discuss the Watergate case reveals, really takes this episode seriously, or really feels indignant about it.

Perhaps it is very bad news for us, as a people, that it doesn't disturb us very much.

But the present point is that those Democrats, or those pundits, who keep referring to this affair as if it were going to be one of the big issues of the campaign are, in our judgment at least, wasting their time and wisdom.

A Salesman Aboard

In Bangor, Shriver, Senator George McGovern has found a running mate who is similar to him in an important way. Mr. Shriver has nothing to lose in making the run and he possesses an outlook that will not be dismayed by long odds. If the voters decide that what they want in the White House above all else is exuberance, the McGovern-Shriver ticket would win in a walk.

The Egyptian exodus gets the U.S.R. out of a potential Vietnam-like morass from which the Russians have little to gain and a great deal to lose.

The original involvement in Egypt served Moscow well for a while, much as backing India aided Soviet objectives in South Asia. It won temporary sympathy for the Russians and considerable suspicion for Americans through much of the Arab world.

Yet this demonstrated level of presidential competence is what Sen. McGovern and Mr. Shriver are up against, along with the likelihood that voters expect more than the usual shrewdness of the people they would elect to lead the nation.

For this reason, it is probably fortunate that several of these figures which he makes in turning Egypt into a state willing to serve Soviet interests in the area. Despite Soviet assistance, Egypt has become increasingly "independent" from the Russian standpoint.

Because he has not been the kind of public man who is required to set out his views on every conceivable issue of the day, we would be hard pressed to find any one of his past candidacies. As the campaign unfolds, no doubt he will be asked to express himself on the entire range of public issues.

However, we hope he has ideas of his own that will complement, and perhaps refine, those of Mr. McGovern. By his own experience, Mr. Shriver knows vitality of historic is not enough to sustain the public's favor. A demonstration of competence, now sorely lacking, would help the Democratic ticket.—WALL STREET JOURNAL

Willing To Go?

By R. A. CROMLEY, NEA Columnist

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the long run, the large scale Soviet withdrawal from Egypt may be to Moscow's advantage. But additional Russian setbacks in other major Arab lands would be a serious blow.

As some White House economic specialists and administration security strategists analyze the move, Americans do like exuberance in their national leaders, the sense that the man in power is cheerfully willing to move mountains, if necessary, for the greater good. It must be said that while the public responded favorably to President Nixon's bold and innovative gesture at home and abroad—which many never really expected of him—the sense of vitality has been lacking. As a salesman, the President is not the longer he has served in the Oval Office the more careful he has been to let his deeds speak for themselves.

Yet this demonstrated level of presidential competence is what Sen. McGovern and Mr. Shriver are up against, along with the likelihood that voters expect more than the usual shrewdness of the people they would elect to lead the nation. Sec. McGovern has come as far as he has on the verge and daring of his proposals. His messianic zeal persuaded sufficient numbers of Democrats that he, unlike his competitor, at least had a vision of a better America. In recent weeks he stumbled badly in the eyes of the nation, we sense, by having that vision set against his dismal handling of the Egyptian affair. Now, if he is to recapture that sense of mission, and if it appears attainable under his stewardship, a prodigious job of salesmanship must be done.

For this reason, it is probably fortunate that several of these figures which he makes in turning Egypt into a state willing to serve Soviet interests in the area. Despite Soviet assistance, Egypt has become increasingly "independent" from the Russian standpoint.

Because he has not been the kind of public man who is required to set out his views on every conceivable issue of the day, we would be hard pressed to find any one of his past candidacies. As the campaign unfolds, no doubt he will be asked to express himself on the entire range of public issues.

A Thought For Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Our Helper In Heaven — But Jesus the Son of God is our great High Priest who has gone to heaven itself to help us; therefore let us never stop trusting Him. This High Priest of ours understands our weaknesses, since He had the same temptations to do, though He never once gave way to them and sinned. So let us come boldly to the very throne of God and stay there to receive His mercy and to find grace to help us in our times of need.

Defends "Burning"

To the Editor, Recently two letters have appeared which criticize the anonymous writer, "Burning of the Books." It is quite obvious that Mr. Swank and his cohorts are running out of arguments against pornography in Manchester if they have to stoop so low as to call "Burning of the Books" a poor source of quotes for almost any argument. I'm not putting down the Bible, but what I am saying is that it is a compilation of many different books by different authors; therefore you can find both pro and con on almost any subject. I myself am not against the downtown bookstore presently under fire. For one thing, it is by far not the only source of pornography in this town. Also, what many of you left-over Puritans label pornography is not pornography at all. There are many books and magazines which describe and picture the human body as a beautiful creation, and sex as the highest act of love. Unfortunately there are many more books and magazines which turn both into a crude, tasteless subject for camera and pen alike. This is true pornography. But I have never seen or heard of a documented case in which children or adolescents were perverted as a result of exposure to hard-core pornography. It is a well-known fact that a child brought up in an atmosphere of supervised freedom learns to handle personal freedom (such as what he or she can read or buy) sooner. A child brought up in a more protected atmosphere, however, often has difficulty in adjusting to personal freedom when given it to him (when he goes away to college, for example). Out of these difficulties in adjustment, I think, come many "perverts" and sexual delinquents than from early exposure to pornographic material. No, I am certainly not a psychiatrist or behaviorist, but I do observe what goes on around me and I draw on personal experience.

Finally, Americans do have the right to freedom of expression and we do live in a free enterprise system. When you start encroaching on the basic rights of the American citizen, Mr. Swank, you start challenging the Constitution of the United States. And that, Sir Knight in Shining Armor, is a pretty big job, even for you. Sincerely, Ms. Leslie M. Greene

Like Broadway

To the Editor, I had to write immediately to express my appreciation to SAM and the marvelous cast of the "Curious Savage."

I have seen many Broadway plays. This production could have been one too. The acting was so professional I completely forgot I was watching a performance of high school and college-age students. The entire audience laughed and wept with the actors. Thank you, SAM players, for an unforgettable evening. Robert Shefel And Family

Court Says Health Key To Prison Hair Length

HARTFORD (AP) — When it comes to haircuts, prison regulations based on health factors take precedence over personal religious convictions, according to a Superior Court ruling. Patrick J. Benway, 29, who lived in Hartford before he was sentenced to a 2-to-5-year term in state prison for third-degree burglary and carrying a dangerous weapon, appealed to the court after he was punished for refusing to have his hair and beard cut because he was a practicing Zen Buddhist.

Benway told Judge Simon S. Cohen he had shunned haircuts, ethical and spiritual beliefs that to cut his hair and trim his beard is unspiritual, defaming and mutilating.

He claimed his refusal prompted prison authorities to have his hair cut by force and later to place him in administrative segregation, stripped of privileges normally granted to inmates.

Court Upholds Bribe Sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has upheld convictions against Westchester County garbage entrepreneur Nicholas (Cockeye) Nick Rattenni and four others for conspiring to bribe state police to protect illegal gambling.

The three-judge panel's decision Friday turned down an appeal by Rattenni, 65, of Yonkers, of his conviction and the three-year prison sentence and $30,000 fine imposed by U.S. District Judge Irving Ben Cooper.

The others who unsuccessfully appealed their convictions were Michael Roman, 43, of South Nyack, N.Y., identified as a gambler, sentenced to two years; Charles Casino, 33, of Tappan, N.Y., a former state police captain, 18 months; Eugene Curcio, 41, of Yonkers, 18 months, and Vincent Malvarco, one year.

He claimed his refusal prompted prison authorities to have his hair cut by force and later to place him in administrative segregation, stripped of privileges normally granted to inmates.

AMA Would Improve Rural, Inner-City Medicine

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Charles A. Hoffman, president of the American Medical Association, says he plans to study inner-city and rural medical services in this country to see how they can be improved.

He said Friday that the problem of distributing doctors adequately throughout the country, especially in rural areas, was one shared by four European health care systems he toured recently.

This observation, Dr. Hoffman said in a review of his trip, led him to the conclusion "that there is no perfect health care system." We keep talking about a health care crisis in this country, but I was not so sure this was so," he said. "After the trip, which I went on with an open mind, I'm convinced we don't."

Dr. Hoffman, a urologist from Huntington, W. Va., his wife and two AMA staff members spent 10 days each in the Soviet Union, Great Britain, Sweden and West Germany.

All the systems have problems, he said. "Every country is trying to solve the problem of getting doctors into rural areas. Some of the countries, which have excellent emergency services, have extremely long waiting lists for elective surgery."

Pretzels Take on New Twists

By AP Newfeatures What is a pretzel? "A pretzel is something that God forgot to twist."

These are examples of what elementary school students in a Berks County, Pa., came up with when asked, "What is a pretzel?" The schools cooperated when Bachman Foods, Inc., pretzel producer, set out to get a better idea of what youngsters think of pretzels.

Ten-year-old Steve showed signs of becoming a stand-up comedian. "A pretzel went to jail and when he got out he told the warden, 'I'm going straight.'"

Carly imagined, "A pretzel is coral in the middle, brown velvet on the outside, and on top of these are a million precious diamonds."

Alice, age 11, seemed to know how to twist words. "We lost the passer (sic) so we gave my baby brother a pretzel, and he hasn't heard a word from him since."

One 10-year-old, Darrell, wrote, "It is a piece of dough that was in the middle of a robbery and the man who stole it so one said, 'Tie him up, Fred.' And he tied him up in this shape."

Betting Parlors Accepted As Part of New York Scene

NEW YORK (AP) — Construction workers do it. Housewives in their neighborhoods do it. They all bet on the horses, legally, without going anywhere near a racetrack.

Sixteen months after the New York City Off-Track Betting Corp. took in about $62,000 on opening day in April 1971, OTB is handling an average of $16 million a day in bets at 83 offices and over the phone.

The public benefit corporation has booked $350 million worth of wagers since that first day. It is planning to add two offices a week and step up promotion of its phone accounts.

While commuters can take a 15-minute ride to the Grand Central Terminal over the amount of money it's making for the city and its effects on the racing industry, the local betting "parlor" has become an accepted part of the New York scene.

Down on Wall Street, stockbrokers, clerks and secretaries put their gambling instincts and analytical skills to the test daily.

In Times Square, a varied OTB president and chairman clientele often produces long lines. Despite grumbling about the wait and computer breakdowns, however, the clients seem generally pleased with the opportunity to take a legal plunge.

"It's great," said Joseph A. Garrido, a 32-year-old Manhattan newspaper miler. "Nobody wins in the long run—it's just a lot of fun."

A 29-year-old construction worker wearing a blue hardhat said he had bet only occasionally before OTB and now blanks down $5 a day. "Some people have a couple of beers at the house," he said. "I bet a horse once in a while."

Samuels says the tangle of lawsuits that resulted from their resistance shows the industry's shortsightedness. He contends OTB will create a whole new audience for racing.

The tracks, for their part, got the legislature to increase their share of the OTB take earlier this year. Now the state, after letting Schenectady open its own off-track parlor last month, has called a moratorium on approvals of additional local systems while a commission takes a look at the entire matter.

Otherwise, OTB would have to borrow from banks to finance expansion.

The fact that OTB has yet to produce a windfall for taxpayers has led some to call it a financial bust.

Promoting this view are the tracks OTB has taken bets on—the New York Racing Association's thoroughbred operations at Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga, and the harness operators at Yonkers, Roosevelt and Monticello raceways.

They have pointed to declines in attendance and handle, contending that OTB is responsible.

'Candidate' Success Defies an Old Maxim

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For many years Hollywood held to the maxim, "Political pictures don't sell." It's true, they don't. "At a production cost of $1.5 million, the picture is bound to be a flop," said Coblenz. "Sometimes we made contributions to political clubs. We did that to get 2,500 people for the labor temple scene, which was filmed in the old Paramount theater in Oakland."

The ticker-tape parade was a school football game.

Producer Coblenz and consultant Rising were discussing the success of "The Candidate." "At a production cost of $1.5 million, the picture is bound to be a flop," said Coblenz. "Sometimes we made contributions to political clubs. We did that to get 2,500 people for the labor temple scene, which was filmed in the old Paramount theater in Oakland."

The ticker-tape parade was a school football game.

Coventry Major Revisions In Charter May Face Voters In Nov. 7 Election

The Charter Revision Committee is expected to face major revisions on the voting machines in time for that election.

Two major revisions in the present charter appear possible, involving a change in the minority representation rule and the reduction of terms on all boards to two years.

Also being proposed are certain changes in fiscal policy, including the tightening of transfer policies so as not to exceed 10 per cent of a line item without town meeting approval. Special town meeting approval would be required for transfers exceeding a cumulative 10 per cent per line item per fiscal year.

The rest of the CRC feels the new system would make the board member more responsible to the electorate.

Phillips feels also that it takes at least a year for a board or commission member to become fully familiar with its work, and particularly, he feels this is true of the Board of Education.

He adds also that some school issues become highly emotional, and cited the case in 1971 of the dismissed guidance counselor Ernest Martucci. If this had happened close to an election in which all seven school board members were to be elected, school issues would be more responsive to their political parties, rather than the issues they were elected to deal with.

SKINHEADS

DUNEDIN, New Zealand (AP) — When two long-haired college students were ordered by their teachers to get their hair cut, they did just that.

Sixth former, Bevan Boyle swapped his neck-length locks for a skinhead style, and fourth former Geoffrey Thomson settled for a Molican cut.

Geoffrey also made $227 ($152) from classmates who bet he wouldn't do it.

TIPS ON IRELAND

BY LaBonne TRAVEL WORLD

Continuing from last week's description of the Southeast, Eastern and Southern Regions, this week we will do the Midwestern, West, Northwest and Midland Regions. The Midwestern area is cut in two by the estuary of the Shannon. South of the Shannon you have lands of good grass and secret villages, of ruined monasteries, and orchards. North of the Shannon lies County Clare, unique in its landscape and treasures of the past.

In the West, the Spaniards traded in Galway and Columbus prayed in St. Nicholas's. Salthill is a swinging seaside suburb of Galway. There are many islands off the coast with the best known being the Aran Islands.

The Northwest, Donegal, is the home of hand-crafted tweeds, fabrics both traditional and with all the beauty of the new Irish designs. Sligo is a small county and beautiful. The poet W.B. Yeats is buried in Drumcliff and each August there is a gathering of students visiting the Yeats Summer School.

The Lakeland or Midland Region is the green heart of Ireland. Rent a cruiser and float all your cares away amid wooded green hills. Monasteries, castles and ancient towns are all about for exploring and visiting. It is also a fisherman's paradise.

Assistant Dean

Mrs. Karen Rivard Haskell, formerly of Manchester, has been appointed assistant dean of students at Gettysburg (Pa.) College.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Herbert Bandes of London Rd., Hebron, and the late Adolbert J. Rivard, and the wife of Dr. David F. Haskell, assistant professor of English at Gettysburg College and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Haskell of 18 Jordt St.

The couple lives at 221 Ridge Ave., Gettysburg.

Mrs. Haskell graduated from Manchester High School in 1961, received her M.A. from the University of Rhode Island in 1967.

After her graduate study, she was dean of women until 1970 at Stonehill College in North Easton, Mass., dean of resident living at York (Pa.) College in 1970-71, and psychology instructor and counselor last year at the Harrisburg (Pa.) Area Community College.

Explosive Gavel SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—U.S. magistrate court Judge Thomas Dwyer, has a rough, hand-beaten gavel prominently displayed on his bench.

The gavel was given him by one of the defendants who had noticed that the judge didn't have one.

The judge has yet to use the gavel. However, the contributor of the wooden instrument was convicted of a bomb charge and, Dwyer says with a chuckle, "I'm afraid if I hit it, it might explode."

Vernon Dooley Criticizes Lowering Of State Trooper Standards

In a letter to State Police Commissioner Cleveland B. Fuesenich and to the State Personnel Policy Board, Vernon Rep. Thomas Dooley sharply criticized the lowering of standards for state trooper candidates. In the letter, Dooley even those who have left school prior to graduation are provided with several alternate routes to complete their studies on a part-time basis. "I simply cannot believe that our present standards are disqualifying applicants which possess the ability and sincere desire to become state police officers," Dooley commented.

He reasoned that if the state is not attracting qualified candidates in sufficient numbers, then it must make the job more attractive for those it seeks.

As a legislator, I can assure you that I will take all reasonable steps in this direction. Similarly, I would urge you to reconsider your previous action when you meet again on Thursday and restore the educational requirement for state police candidates."

Dooley advised Commissioner Fuesenich and the policy committee.

SCHOOL CLOSED

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—St. Emma Military Academy, a 77-year-old Catholic private high school, has closed.

Located on a 2,000-acre pre-Civil War plantation, "Belmead," in northern Powhatan County, the institution has graduated more than 10,000 students, almost all of them blacks.

The board of directors said they decided to cease operation of the school due to declining enrollments, rising costs, a lack of sufficient religious staff and the end of segregation.

Pot-Luck Batting Successful for Detroit

NEW YORK (AP) — Hats off to Billy Martin. Hoping to wake his slumping team, the Detroit Tiger manager went with a pot-luck batting order Sunday dictated by a bat drawing.

The names came out spelling success for the Tigers as they stepped a four-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the first game of a doubleheader.

"It served the purpose. It was supposed to relax the guys—and it worked," said Martin, who went back to his regular batting order in the second game and lost 8-2. Ed Brinkman, a .285 batter at game time who usually hits in the eighth spot, opened in the cleanup position and came up with a crucial hit with a homer, triple and single that started the winning rally.

Second baseman Tony Taylor and left fielder Willie Horton were two other batters who helped while hitting somewhere else than their normal positions.

Taylor, usually a leadoff or No. 2 hitter, batted fifth and singled home Brinkman with the winning run. Horton, who has been batting sixth this year, was No. 3 and came through with a homer, triple and single that started the winning rally.

The split dropped the Tigers into third place in the zany American League East race. They are merely one percentage point behind the New York Yankees, the hottest team in baseball who moved into second after sweeping a doubleheader from the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2 and 1-0.

The Baltimore Orioles held first place in the East by 1 1/2 games by crushing the Boston Red Sox 8-2.

Things are no less uncertain in the West, where the Oakland A's climbed into first place by one game after beating the Chicago White Sox 2-0. The White Sox are in the driver's seat for less than 24 hours.

In the other American League games Sunday, the Texas Rangers blasted the Kansas City Royals 13-4 and the Minnesota Twins stopped the California Angels 4-3.

Tigers Indians
The Tigers should have stayed with the bat-trick formula in the nightcap—although the way the Indians were hitting, it didn't really matter how Martin stacked his lineup. Ray Fosse and Graig Nettles drove in four runs apiece as the Indians took the second game and left town with three victories in the four-game series in Detroit.

Yanks-Brewers
In New York, the Yankees made things a little more interesting in the American League East by sweeping the Brewers in a pair, the first game fashioned with the help of Sparky Lyle's fancy relief work and the second on home run power.

Lyle has appeared in seven games during the last eight days to help New York rise to second place.

After Lyle picked up his 28th save in the opener, the Yankees wiped out a 3-2 Milwaukee lead in the second game on a two-run pinch-hit homer by Ron Blomberg and a bases-empty blast by Bernie Allen in the seventh inning. The rally brought down the full house of 56,235 at Yankee Stadium.

Orioles-Red Sox
Bobby Grich betted a homer and Johnny Oates knocked in two runs with a double in a four-run seventh that powered Baltimore over Boston.

A's-White Sox
Vida Blue pitched the Oakland A's back into first place with a four-hitter. Dave Duncan and Bert Campaneris provided the offense with home runs.

Rangers-Royals
The Rangers buried the Royals under a 17-hit attack that included four base hits by Dick Billings, who drove in five runs. Frank Howard also had a two-run homer for the Rangers, a 430-foot shot.

Twins-Angels
Rookie catcher Glenn Borgmann capped a three-run sixth inning that carried Minnesota over California.

Lyle to Get Rest At Least for Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees wants to give Sparky Lyle a rest — for a day, at least.

"There's no way he's going to pitch tonight against Kansas City, no matter what," said Houk.

The hard-working Lyle surely earned a day off with another of his frequent relief appearances Sunday that helped the Yankees beat the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Houk, who also beat Milwaukee in the nightcap with a 5-4 decision, used his stand-out relief pitcher seven times in the last eight days.

Even Lyle, who doesn't like to sit still, readily admitted he's tired.

"I won't pitch a ball until Tuesday," said the southpaw who has a major league-leading 28 saves to his credit. "I won't even touch one."

After the first game, Houk said that he couldn't possibly use Lyle in the second — even if it was a close matter.

"No matter what, he's not going to pitch any more today," Houk told pitching coach Jim Turner.

"I feel all right when I was out there, but my velocity was a little off," admitted Lyle, who saved the game for Met Stottlemyre after coming on in the eighth inning. "That's why the Milwaukee hitters were fouling off so many of my hard sliders."

Lyle decided to spend the second game in the bullpen, even if he wasn't going to get in the game, "because I want to sit with my friends out there — I'd feel strange watching from the dugout."

Even so, the impressive pitcher found something to do while his teammates were beating Milwaukee in the nightcap. Lyle spent his time wiping the windshield of the car that carries relief pitchers into the game.

Lyle helped protect a lead heavily built on Gene Mitchell's bases-loaded triple that highlighted a four-run second-inning lead for the Yankees. In the ninth, the Yankees wiped out seventh on a two-run homer by Ron Blomberg and bases-empty by Bernie Allen in the seventh inning.

The comeback brought penance to a new pitch that Lyle used for the first time in 1972, where a crowd of 56,235 brought the house down. The double triumph left New York in second place, just one game behind the Milwaukee Brewers.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Carlton was once again all about the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carlton, Philadelphia's veteran left-hander who has been baffling the rest of the National League for the past 2 1/2 months, did it again Sunday, stopping Montreal 4-0 in the first game of a doubleheader.

The Pirates left behind 30 or 40.

"It's a good thing to be able to look toward the Clemente coming back and having us leading by eight, nine or 10 games," said Carlton in his 10th career shutout.

"I'm not going to let myself get carried away by this," he said. "I'm just going to keep pitching and trying to win for the Cardinals."

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys made plans today to defend their Super Bowl championship without their inspirational leader, quarterback Roger Staubach, who underwent surgery Sunday for a shoulder separation and will be lost two or three months.

Coach Tom Landry said, "The only problem we have is depth at quarterback."

Staubach could have stepped out of bounds, but instead, charged into Ram middle linebacker Marlin McKeever on the end of a yard gain.

Dr. Marvin Knight, who performed the 90-minute surgery on Staubach, said the repair of the torn ligament and capsule was "excellent."

"Knowing Roger, he won't be in the hospital long," Knight said. "The only other quarterback on the Cowboy team is rookie Steve Baker, who is a good player. He ran three or four times in the first half, but it is plays like that and his competitive nature that make him great."

George Weiss Dead at 78, Built Yanks

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — A 78-year-old master builder of championship baseball teams, died Sunday in a hospital here after a long illness.

George Weiss, who had been in ill health for some time, was a virtual unknown to the general public. Weiss was the man behind the scenes who as general manager laid the groundwork for the phenomenal success of the New York Yankees and later the New York Mets.

He was inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., a year ago this month for his achievements as club executive in a developing championship team in the minor and major leagues from 1916 to 1966.

He developed a minor league farm chain as Yankee farm manager under Ed Barrow when the Yankees were back in baseball as president and manager of the newly organized New York Mets.

Weiss and Stengel didn't win their pennant in their 10-year partnership with the Yankees and later the New York Mets.

Cubs Outlast Mets in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — It was that kind of a game. Everybody was happy that it finally ended.

After three hours and five minutes of what passed for a regular game baseball, the Chicago Cubs had scored a 7-4 victory over the New York Mets on a hot, steamy Sunday afternoon.

"I've never seen Jenkins work that slowly," said Met Manager Yogi Berra. "And the same thing with that Bert Houston yesterday in a 2-1 game. It took three hours."

The slow hurling was not calculated on the part of the Chicago Cubs.

"I found the tempo very disturbing," said Cub manager Whitey Lockman. "We were in only the fifth inning after two hours and Fergie usually is in the eighth or ninth inning by that time. But it was a struggle for everybody—hot, humid and steamy."

Jenkins, who needed help from Jack Abern in the seventh inning, boosted his record to 16-10 but wasn't proud of the achievement. "I didn't have good rhythm," said Jenkins. "I was behind most of the hitters and I was lucky those homers came with the bases empty."

Tommye Agee clubbed his ninth homer in the third and Willie Mays hit his seventh and the 63rd of his career in the seventh which helped send the Cubs to the showers.

Mays' homer seemed to drop the Cubs to a 1-0 deficit. "I was surprised," said Mays. "I was surprised."

Willie dropped a fly ball off the bat of Jim Hickman in the third and Tommy Caska in the first and unstruck run.

Olympic Cagers Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Henderson's basket on a goal-tending call against Jim Chones in the fourth quarter, won the U.S. Olympic basketball team to a 65-63 victory over a pro all-star team.

"We just got mixed up on it," said Mays, indicating he thought Agee also had a chance for the ball.

Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenal led the way for the Cubs with three hits each while Ron Santo drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a bases-loaded homer and Handy Hundley hit his fifth homer of the season.

The screwy game also saw Met starter Jerry Kosman exit on a goal-tending call against Jim Chones in the fourth quarter, won the U.S. Olympic basketball team to a 65-63 victory over a pro all-star team.

Dick Williams Rewarded With New Two-Year Pact

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Athletics manager Dick Williams, who piloted the A's to the American League playoffs last year, has won a two-year contract and a new two-year contract from club owner Charles O. Finley.

The contract, announced in the midst of the A's light pennant race with the Chicago White Sox, includes a "substantial increase in salary," Finley said.

"In my opinion, Dick Williams is one of the most outstanding managers in the game today," Finley said in a Saturday

Pats Back to Work After Second Loss

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots, humbled in their first two pre-season starts, had their work cut out today as they returned to practice in preparation for an exhibition game with the Chicago Bears next Sunday at Scherer Stadium in Foxboro.

The Philadelphia Eagles, supposedly one of the National Football League's weaker clubs, had a 17-10 victory over the Patriots 29-20 Saturday night, with only two New England touchdowns in the fourth period making the score respectable.

Philadelphia, playing for a home crowd of about 30,000, set the tempo by dropping quarterback Jim Plunkett for a quick 20-yard lead. After New England's Mike Walker booted a 22-yard field goal, rookie quarterback John Hevesi directed the Eagles to a 23-6 halftime lead.

"We took enough penalties and made enough mistakes to last an entire season," New England Coach John Mazur said.

The Patriots, belted 31-24 in a exhibition game by Oakland, had trouble both on offense and defense once again. Plunkett, the American Conference's 1971

Aetna Express Bus Negotiated Settlement, Rogers Aim

As Rogers entered the hearing room, a giant, ashen white figure clad in a shroud stood silently outside the door — one of the most Americans believe — that our nation has the outstanding leader in the world in the cause of peace — the leader who gives the United States the best chance for a generation of peace.

Rogers appealed for broad support by Americans of Nixon's policy, but warned that the path to peace is not a straight line. "We are not ready to maintain that strength without which no peace can be assured."

Young Republicans Support Proposal

The Manchester Young Republicans voted last week to support the participation of young persons as ex-officio members of the Manchester Board of Education, a proposal which the board will consider when it meets tonight.

The Young Republicans action is on the basis that "such participation will improve communications between students and regular board members." Another action taken last week was the Young Republicans voted to support mass transportation improvements in the Greater Hartford area.

Pay Board Clings To Wage Rate

(Continued from Page One) The start is considering public workers, apparently feeling that too much tightening could well cause an outbreak of strikes, damaging the economic recovery.

Another argument against changing the standard is the price picture, although greatly improved from a year ago, is still not good enough to justify lowering the figure.

Particular disappointment is peace demonstrators who have undertaken to remind Republican convention delegates that the killing in Vietnam goes on.

MANCHESTER, CONN., TUESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1972 VOL. XXI, NO. 269 MANCHESTER — A City of Village Charm (FOURTEEN PAGES) PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS.

Allies Deny Church Hit In Air Raid

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command said Navy jets attacked seven targets in the Thanh Hoa area of North Vietnam Monday, but it denied charges by Hanoi that a business center and the cathedral area were bombed.

Asked about a North Vietnamese claim that 100 civilians were killed or wounded in the raid, a spokesman said: "I have nothing to say."

The command denied any strikes inside the city limits of Thanh Hoa, a port 80 miles south of Hanoi. It said the targets attacked were a highway bridge, a fuel storage depot and two aircraft sites a mile north of Thanh Hoa, a gun site a mile to the northeast and an army magazine and another fuel storage depot a mile and a half southwest of the city.

But Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency claimed that the U.S. planes did "very heavy damage to many streets and outlying areas" and that the city's pharmaceutical workshop, the bakery, and the noodle factory were completely ruined.

The U.S. command reported more than 190 strikes against the North Monday and said Southeast Asian forces captured scores of others. But in South Vietnam more than a score of strikes approved by the U.S. command against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop concentrations to the northwest and southwest of Saigon for the second successive night. At least 600 tons of bombs were dropped at points 24 to 35 miles from the capital.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 97 enemy troops were killed with no South Vietnamese losses in fighting near the Cambodian town of Kompong Rau, just across the border 50 miles west of Saigon. The Saigon command said its forces captured 19 weapons, including three Soviet Strela antiaircraft missiles, and one of an armoured car.

The South Vietnamese are trying to seal off the border against an assault across the northern Mekong Delta that could isolate Saigon from the rice belt. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have re-established staging areas in eastern Cambodia.

More heavy fighting was reported on the northern front between Quang Tri and Hue, 30 miles to the south. The Saigon command said 61 North Vietnamese and three South Vietnamese were killed Monday and 45 government troops were wounded.

The U.S. Command announced that 22 Americans and 22 Vietnamese were killed in the crash last Saturday of an Air Force C-130 transport in the Mekong delta, not 65 Americans and 24 Vietnamese as it had previously announced. The command said five Americans and 11 Vietnamese survived. But all were injured.

The four-jet plane carried a crew of eight Americans and 18 passengers, including eight U.S. military personnel and two civilians.

Dr. David Winer, communications program chairman, said that a formal proposal for youth representation on the Board of Education is being drafted. The proposal has been drafted, he said, and is being circulated among board members for discussion. Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of schools, said that data has been obtained from other boards having student representation.
